LIBRARY
THE MUSEUM
OF MODERN ART
Received:

Scanned from the collection of
The Museum of Modern Art Library

Coordinated by the Media History Digital Library
www.mediahistoryproject.org

Funded by a donation from Domitor

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2012 with funding from Media History Digital Library

http://archive.org/details/moviwor04chal

FL
PER

FL
2733

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

VOLUME IV

January-June, 1909

Edited by
J. P. CHALMERS
THOS. BEDDING. F.R.P.S.

PUBLISHED BY

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO.

125 EAST TWENTY-THIRD STREET, NEW YORK

Contents of Volume IV

Page

A

Animated Photographs in Natural Colors...6-7-8-9
Announcement to Exhibitors..... 140
Advice to Operators.....599-600
Among the Slide Makers..... 9
Among the Exhibitors..... 330
Accessories for Moving Pictures..... 792

B

Baby Shows as a Summer Attraction..... 869
Board of Censorship, The.....265-266
Barker, Will G., Interview..... 197
Barker in England..... 440
Backgrounds for Song Slides..... 831

C

Comments on the Mayor's Action..... 5
Conditions of License.....85-86
Chicago Enforces Licensed Operators..... 119
Censorship of Film Subjects..... 165
Case for the Moving Picture, The.....262-263
Censorship of Film Subjects..... 325
Congress and the Moving Picture Trust..... 334
Clergy and the Moving Picture..... 395
Combine and Its Policy, The..... 57
Cameraphone, The..... 71
Cameraphone Experiments..... 90
Chicago Notes..... 332
Canada Notes..... 514
Current Saving Devices 865

D

Drama Loses to the Picture Show, The..... 199

E

Exhibitors' Associations, The..... 138
Exhibitors' Associations of New York..... 300
Essanay Company's New Plant..... 750
Exchange License Agreement with Motion Picture Patents Company.....61-62
Exchange Men See Wisdom in the Movement 87

F

F. S. A. Special Meeting, July 11, 1908..... 3-4
Five-Cent Theaters Redeemed..... 139
Future of the Moving Picture..... 239
First Aid to the Operator..... 374

G

Great Northern Enjoins Biograph Company.. 63
Glass Plates for Moving Pictures..... 705
Galveston Managers Comply with Laws..... 7

H

Hallberg's New Lamp Economizer..... 710
Hallberg Economizer 875
Historical Notes.....57-58
Human Voice as a Factor in the Moving Picture Show, The..... 86
Harstn & Co. Make a Statement..... 149

I

Independent Movement and Its Progress, The 137
Instructive Articles for Exhibitors and Operators 194
International Projecting and Producing Co... 197
Independents vs. Trust..... 373
Independent Association's Letter..... 63
Injunction Refused Against Motion Picture Patents Co.....229-230

J

Jungle Law, The..... 199

K

Kine Company's Kosmik Economizer..... 9
Kluge Kleine's Letter.....170-171
Kline's, George, Letter.....170-171
Kohle Electric Co.'s Problem.....398-399
Kum Company's New Home..... 470

L

Letter from the Motion Picture Patents Co..60-61
Lumile Becomes a Manufacturer..... 750
Lens for Operators..... 4

Page

Letter from the Independents..... 63
Lantern Slide Co. Incorporated..... 65
Law Makers and Law Breakers..... 293
License Question, and Others.....138-139
Laemmle Interviewed.....472-473
Laemmle Enters Song Field.....632-633

M

Mayor McClellan's Christmas Present..... 3-4
Moving Pictures in Natural Colors.....90-230-400
Motion Picture Patents Co. New Headquarters 93
Modern Art in Moving Pictures..... 363
Moving Pictures in Stereoscopic Relief..... 665
Moving Pictures as Nature Studies..... 711
Moving Pictures by Telephotography..... 745
Moving Pictures Aid Temperance Movement. 6
Masses Are Being Educated, The..... 7
THE MODERN WAY IN MOVING PICTURE MAKING. By Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S.
The Play and Its Productions..... 294
Producers and Performers 326
The Studio 360
Exposure 396
The Lens 432
The Camera 468
The Developing Room 508
Some Defects of the Negative..... 546
Some Defects of the Negative (concluded).. 586
Toning and Tinting 626
Photographing Outdoor Subjects.....666-706
Photographing Outdoor Subjects.....706-746
Moving Pictures in the Home..... 787
Industrial Uses of Moving Pictures 826
Educational 868
THE MAKING OF SIGNS AND POSTERS FOR MOVING PICTURE THEATERS:
Chapter I.—Introductory 670
Chapter II.—Signs for Moving Picture Theaters, etc. 709
Chapter III.—Elementary Strokes 748
Motion Picture Patents Co. and Film Service Association Opposition..... 63
Mexico Has Moving Pictures..... 88
Moving Pictures Protected by New Copyright Law 293
Music Publishers Are Punished..... 141
Moving Picture Test Case..... 143
Moving Picture "Octopus".....165-166
Moving Pictures in Australia..... 175
Montreal Exhibitors Plan Combine..... 200
Machine Troubles and Their Remedies..... 201
Making Lantern Slides.....233-234
Mullin Film Service Expands..... 274
Moving Pictures Are Dramatic Works.....363-264
Moving Picture Out West, The..... 397
Moving Pictures in British Columbia..... 439
McKinney Camera and Projector..... 440
Moving Picture in Europe and America, The 512-515
Modern Way in Moving Picture Making...826-827
Modern Way in Moving Picture Making..... 787
Model Machine Factory, A..... 793

N

National Board of Censorship. Second Article 867
Natural Colors in Photographs.....6-7-8-9
New and Approved Apparatus..... 9
New Synchronizing Device, A..... 339
New York Exhibitors and Their Political Power 670-671
New and Approved Apparatus..... 9
Notes of the Trade..... 14
Notes and Comments..... 139
New Jersey Bars Minors from Shows..... 365
New Copyright Law, The.....
Notes from Canada..... 514
Notes from Ohio..... 592
National Board of Censorship.....825-826

O

Opposition to the Motion Picture Patents Co. and Film Service Association..... 63

Page

Official Statement by Motion Picture Patents Co. 366
Old Agreements to be Cancelled..... 87
Opinions of the Press..... 550
Ohio Notes..... 592
Ohio Notes..... 801

P

Partisan Errors 866
PLAIN TALKS TO THEATER MANAGERS AND OPERATORS. By F. H. Richardson.
Chapter I.—The Current—Direct and Alternating 433
Chapter II.—Definitions of Terms..... 469
Chapter III.—Definitions of Terms (cont.). 511
Chapter III.—Definitions of Terms (cont.). 547
Chapter IV.—Switches 667
Chapter V.—Fuses 707
Chapter VI.—Meters 747
Chapter VII.—Rheostats 787
Chapter VIII.—Transformers 827
Price of Films in England..... 90
Province of the Moving Picture..... 114
Press and the Moving Picture, The..... 325
Pathe Freres and Motion Picture Patents Co. 590
Political Power of the New York Exhibitors.670-671
Photography at a Great Distance..... 675
Pictorial Effect in Moving Pictures..... 709
Patents Co. and Its Rights..... 710
Patents Co. Injunction..... 710
Patents Co. Threats..... 750
Position of the Independents, The..... 59
Protect Moving Pictures by New Copyright Law 293
Punishing the Music Publishers..... 141
Pathe's Southern Office..... 365
Pathe's New Machine..... 402
Patents Co. and the Liberal Sunday League.. 472
Progressive Slide Concern, A..... 793

R

Remarks About Failures.....166-167
Renters Are Worried,..... 87
Renters Sign Agreements..... 87
Reform Moving Pictures..... 139

S

Second Annual Meeting of the Film Service Association 59
Schools for Operators..... 206
Some More Food for Thought..... 865
Supreme Court Upholds Mayor's Action..... 267
Sign and Poster Making for Moving Pictures 625-670
Sign and Poster Making for Moving Pictures 709-748
Something New Under the Sun..... 5
Sunday Shows..... 6
Steiner's Interview..... 63
Staging of the Picture 874
Situations Wanted.....99-338
Statements Issued by Motion Picture Patents Co. 140
Simpson's Solar Screen..... 275
Song Slide Notes..... 831

T

Talks to Managers and Operators.....667-668
Talks to Managers and Operators..... 669
Talks to Managers and Operators.....707-747
Telephotographing of Moving Pictures..... 745
Theaters for Sale.....98-99
Truth About Moving Pictures.....327-328-329
Talking and Singing Pictures..... 293
Twentieth Century News..... 143
Trade Notes..... 365
Toned and Tinted Pictures..... 791

U

Useful Adjunct to the Operating Room..... 674

W

Warning to "Would-Be" Operators.....756-757
Wrinkles for Operators..... 799

INDEX TO FILM SUBJECTS

A

Page

iend in Need is a Friend Indeed..... 769
Uninvited Guest..... 725
e French Ball..... 11
he Crossroads of Life..... 11
ntures of an Old Flirt..... 125
Emmy's Scrap Book..... 126
ntures of a Drummer Boy..... 492
he Altar..... 211
ffair of Art..... 843

B

Kid..... 882
Again..... 880
ers in Arms..... 754
He Couldn't Lose, The..... 763
Manhattan..... 763
Legend..... 765
Man of Jerusalem, The..... 713 ul Heart, A..... 725
rmaid, The..... 688
Won by Bravery..... 684 r's Coin, The..... 646
s Shoe, A..... 602
en Love and Honor..... 565
nian Girl, The..... 528 of Tabaiva, The..... 76 mailer, The..... 11
Fiance..... 11-12
lor's Supper, A..... 153 na Diamond, The..... 124 and Saddles..... 344
ar's Mistake, A..... 345
er Against Brother..... 416-417 and Her Goose..... 179-180
lian's Ring, The..... 180

C

of Seltzer, A..... 878 of the Sea, A..... 753
w Bell, The..... 753 e's Marriage, The..... 753
's Prayer, The..... 754
t On the Hearth..... 754
Number 519..... 755
t at Last..... 769
town Slavery..... 567
oy's Sweetheart, The..... 568 of Life, The..... 101
g Day..... 103
of Spirits, A..... 103
oy's Narrow Escape..... 871 ial Romance, A..... 103-104
ial Hypnotist, The..... 73-74
er's Bride, The..... 312
y Argument, A..... 314 om the Wilderness, A..... 342
ence..... 448
one, The..... 450
of Gold, The..... 450
t's Revenge..... 452 of Tea, and She, A..... 413-414
n Pole, The..... 177-178
tte Corday..... 179 er on the Hearth, The..... 834
y Girl's Peril, A..... 847 of Cocaine, The..... 847-848 on Sunday..... 803

D

of Wealth..... 20
us Affair..... 11
ives of the Italian Bureau..... 125
Jester..... 871

Deacon's Love Letter..... 127-128
Deception, The..... 345-346
Drive for Life, The..... 488-489
Drunkard's Reformation, A..... 376
Dime Novel Detective, A..... 230-231
Duke's Jester, The..... 848-849

E

Empty Sleeve, The..... 753
Eloping with Aunty..... 682
Eavesdropper, The..... 562
Edgar Allen Poe..... 152
Educated Abroad..... 153-154

F

Fighting Bob..... 727
Frollicking Youths..... 730
Farmer's Grandson, The..... 687
Foundling, The..... 870
Fuss and Feathers..... 563
Fighting Chance, A..... 492
For Love's Sake..... 377-378
Fool's Revenge, A..... 246
Famine in the Forest..... 843
For His Daughter's Sake..... 845
Fun with a Manikin..... 880

G

Good Omen, The..... 753
Gambler's Honor..... 727
Gold Prospectors, The..... 526
Girls and Daddy, The..... 124-125
Guard's Alarm, The..... 124-125
Guarding Angel, The..... 416
Guilty Guardian, The..... 232 Grandfather, The..... 845

H

He Wouldn't Go Under a Ladder..... 878
His Lucky Day..... 767
Hunting Game in Africa..... 712
He Couldn't Dance, But He Learned..... 686-687
Hunter's Grief, The..... 604
His First Girl..... 528
Heroine of the Forge, The..... 76
Haunted Lounge, The..... 16
Hunting Game in Africa..... 646
House at the Bridge..... 19-20
Husband Wanted..... 11
Hard to Beat..... 376-377
Hypnotic Subject..... 250
Honor of the Slums, The..... 216
Hindoo Dagger, The..... 177
Hand of the Wizard, The..... 178
How the Tramp Got the Lunch..... 803
Her First Biscuits..... 802

I

Intruder, The..... 647
In the Bad Lands..... 606
Interrupted Romance..... 11
Incriminating Evidence..... 127
In the Sultan's Power..... 805-806

J

Jephthah's Daughter..... 713
Johnny and the Indians..... 647-648
Jones Has a Card Party..... 73
Just Reward, A..... 378
Jessie, the Stolen Child..... 180-181
Japanese Invasion, The..... 833

K

Page

Kiss of Judas, The..... 414
King of the Ring..... 150

L

Lonely Villa, The..... 762
Little Angel of Roaring Springs, The..... 763
Little Peacemaker, The..... 763
La Tosca..... 765
Little Miss Moffet..... 643
Lunatics in Power..... 603
Love Wins..... 871
Lost Invitation..... 870
Love and Law..... 75-76
Love and Fortune..... 12
Lady Helen's Escapade..... 488
Little Cyril, the Runaway..... 416
Love Wins..... 811

M

Man Without a Country..... 873
Mother's Choice, A..... 763
Moonstone, The..... 767-769
Mr. Physical Culture's Surprise Party..... 769
Miss Faust..... 686
Mireille's Sincere Love..... 603
Mexican's Gratitude, A..... 563
Mephisto and the Maiden..... 528
Moving Pictures Are Dramatic Works..... 363
Model Machine Factory, A..... 792
Musician's Love Story..... 125
Medicine Bottle, The..... 376
Mad Miner, The..... 282
Miser, The..... 250
Making of a Champion, The..... 212-213
Moonstone, The..... 834

N

Necklace, The..... 877
No Appetite for Dinner..... 878
Neptune's Daughter..... 646-647
Note in the Shoe, The..... 562-563
Noble Jester, The..... 13
New Copyright Law, The..... 467
New Minister, The..... 212
New Governess, The..... 213

O

Oliver Twist..... 727-729
Oriental Mystic, The..... 729
Officer McCue..... 683-684
Old Heidelberg..... 525
Octoroon, The..... 102
One Touch of Nature..... 15
On Bad Terms with the Janitor..... 11
Origin of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata..... 125
Oliver Cromwell..... 452
Old Soldier's Story, The..... 247-248
On the Warpath..... 214-215

P

Parted on Their Honeymoon..... 878
Phantom Sirens, The..... 878
Poor Wife's Devotion, A..... 723
Pulverizer, The..... 765
Professor Weise's Brain Injector..... 765
Professor Fix Fixed..... 683
Plain Name..... 566-567
Pagan and Christian..... 74
Poe, Edgar Allan..... 152
Prairie Town Romance..... 127

Page

Pair of White Gloves, A....490-492
Politician's Love Story, The.... 211
Pass Key, The.... 214
Peachbasket Hat, The....842-843

R

Romance of Old Mexico, A.... 769
Resurrection, The.... 712
Right to Labor, The.... 646
Romance of Old Madrid....101-102
Road Agents, The.... 312
Reforming a Husband....313-314
Ringleader, The.... 452
Return of Ulysses.... 452
Rude Hostess, A.... 412
Road to the Heart, The.... 412
Reckoning, The.... 805

S

Saved from the Flames 878
Skylight Theater Seat, A.... 767
Story of Two Lives 878
Smuggler's Daughter, The.... 712
Saved by a Waif.... 725
Serappy Bill.... 688
Sergeant's Stripes, The.... 75
Specter, The.... 12
Settlement Workers, The....378-380
Sceptical Cowboy, The.... 381
Shanghaied 247
Skipper's Daughters, The.... 250
Saul and David.... 251
Son's Return, The....834-835

T

Tramp Story, The 878
Ten Nights in a Barroom.... 763
Two Heroes.... 763
Through Jealousy.... 765
Truer Lover, The.... 729
The Jilt.... 642
Temptation of John Grey....607-608
'Tis an Ill Wind that Blows no Good.... 524
Tenderfoot, The....18-19
Tyrant's Dream, The.... 19
Tragic Love....152-153
Treasure, The.... 181

U

Unwritten Letter, An.... 526

V

Violin Maker of Cremona, The.... 762
Vercingetorix, Gaul's Hero.... 424-426

W

Washington Under the British Flag 993
Washington Under the American Flag.... 993
Way of Man, The.... 977
Western Hero 980
Wartime Sweetheart, A....784-785
Woman's Intrigue, A.... 767
What Drink Did.... 723
Wife's Ordeal, A.... 723
Welcome Burglar, The.... 101
When Casey Joined the Lodge....13-14
Wreath in Time, A.... 152
Woman of the People 984
Winning Coat, The.... 448
Was Justice Served?.... 842

wl.
regiture World
seeme over Incorporated rse tha
e. TlXHIBIT
be cl estigatt, 1908, by s werhic Publishing Company, ether.ach Building), New York.
ident 1, 1344 Gramercy.
stree
J. P. Chalmers.

a: $3.00 per year. Post free in the United States, ll, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.
Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classiments (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with

Paris Representative:
AFTON, 27 Rue des Appenins, Paris, France.
Western Office:
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.
VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.

JANUARY 2 No. 1

Editorial.

HRISTMAS PRESENT BY MAYOR LELLAN TO THE EXHIBITORS OF GREATER NEW YORK.

licenses for moving picture shows are issued personally responsible for the safety and lives and take this action on personal knowledge nditions and the firm conviction that I am lic calamity.

erefore, order each and every license issued by ving picture show be and the same hereby is annulled."

GEO. B. McCLELLAN, Mayor.

ve was the unexpected present handed out to itor in Greater New York on Christmas Eve. pt and decisive action by several prominent in obtaining a temporary injunction, prevented tors from losing the holiday receipts. As we ss we learn that the matter has been argued courts and that the judge has taken the papers, his decision.

hile all the shows are open, but many of them d trembling, and all taking special pains to set e in order and present programs that would not lace at a Sunday school entertainment.

oving picture exhibitors ever doubted the ad of necessity of organization for mutual pro- ch doubts must have been effectively dispelled perience of the Greater New York exhibitors ek. The jolt they received at the hands of ellan should put life into every exhibitor he United States. Several weeks ago attenlled to the effective work towards protection y the organized exhibitors of Hudson County ey. It did not fail of attention, but the ex- Greater New York were both too skeptical and be plain, too stingy—to get down to business hem were content in the possession of a license belief that a few dollars "planted" occasionally would bring them ample protection, regardless of agitation or conditions. In consequence of this, Mayor McClellan's manifesto, coming as it did like a thunder-bolt from a clear sky, found them in a practically helpless condition. The resources and energy of a few bright and determined men came to their rescue and brought them together in an organization within a few hours that demonstrated what organization can do. Had they come together months ago and paid into a mutual protection treasury but a small part of what they spent foolishly, the result of the hearing before the Mayor in the war against moving picture shows would in all probability have been different, at least to the extent of more fair play.

* * *

The most regrettable feature in connection with the Mayor's order is that he should have, by one stroke of his pen, temporarily nullified hundreds of licenses without regard to the merits of individual cases, thereby subjecting the holders to serious financial loss. Without making any distinction, the just were made to suffer for the unjust and without being given the opportunity of saving themselves.

Mayor McClellan's position is an exalted one. We mean with reference to the Mayoralty, not in connection with the moving picture question. But no matter how important and dignified the position may be, the Mayor is bound to respect the laws with the same fidelity as the humblest citizen, and respect the rights that are accorded those who observe them. A license granted under the law governing moving picture shows is not revokable in the manner resorted to by Mayor McClellan. It holds good until specific charges are made and proved against the holder, and the law provides for a procedure in a court where all parties interested may be given a full and fair chance to be heard before the license is either declared sustained or revoked. This matter was gone into fully at the last session of the Legislature in order to deprive the police of the opportunity to arbitrarily close the shows.

* * *

The clergymen who appeared before the Mayor generalized their complaints and did not have the spirit of fairness to admit that there were exhibitors who had fully complied with all the requirements of the various city departments and were conducting their places in accordance with the laws. In making his order the Mayor was apparently actuated by the same impulse. All exhibitors were put in one class. No attempt was made to ascertain if there were any who had a good case against the charges.

There is no calling that holds and should command more respect than that of the clergy. There is reverence due these men collectively that cannot be withheld if the welfare of civilization and good government is sought. Individually, we regret to say, the case is quite different. Too many clergymen are prone to become both egotistical and bigoted. They assume that any cause they champion must be supported. In cherishing this view they oft usurp the privileges that rightfully belong to others, and when challenged on this score not infrequently become unreasonably aggressive. One of the most prominent of the clergymen who appeared before Mayor McClellan was fined for contempt of court not many months ago and cleared himself only by a most profound apology to the court he had offended. This incident is cited merely to show that where charges are made by the clergy the case is no different from that in which the accuser is a layman. All sides are entitled to a fair and impartial hearing and investigation.

The extensive support given by the public to the moving picture show proves that, in the main, they are of a nature that is elevating, for the great American public are not fools. At the same time the public morals should be considered, the public health by proper ventilation, and the public safety by ample means of exit in case of panic. The voice of the critic should be heeded if it is not hypercritical like that of the reverend gentleman who cited as a sample of the immorality of the shows, the shortness of the tunic worn by "Caesar" in a film that has recently been much exhibited. Would he have had "Caesar" appear in trousers and a frock coat If the public would be satisfied, the producers of Shakespeare's dramas and historical plays would hereafter save money by using everyday attire instead of going to the expense of obtaining costumes that are historically correct.

* * *

As a whole, the charges made before the Mayor were of the cut-and-dried order. The picture men were not prepared for blanket charges. They looked for specific complaints, with a chance to make specific refutation, and the obligation of the authorities to respect a legally granted license was apparently entirely ignored.

There are excellent reasons for the belief that the crisis the picture men have been forced to meet was not brought about entirely by the clergy. That they have been used as a catspaw by one of the strong organizations of vaudeville actors is accepted as a fact in many quarters. For several weeks it has been known that an organization of actors has been formulating plans to put the moving pictures out of business. If they did not succeed in getting the clergy to do the trick, their labors and the results accomplished through the Mayor's order at least form a striking coincident.

* * *

No plea is made in behalf of the exhibitor who has not complied with the laws other than that he should be deprived of his license as provided by law. He has a right to demand a hearing, be fully acquainted with the charges against him individually, and given ample opportunity to defend himself. If found guilty, his license should be revoked.

Now is the time for the exhibitors of Greater New York to perfect an organization that will work in conjunction with the manufacturers and renters to eradicate those places that do not comply with the laws and put an end to all this turmoil and unrest by cutting off the supply of films to those exhibitors who will persist in violations. It is all very well to advocate an exhibitors' association and a common fund with which to fight their persecutors, but there is no disposition on the part of the Mayor or the reformers to persecute the showman who is conducting a legitimate business. It is said that the clergy are strongly opposed to the moving picture show. This is not so, as we have learned by personal inquiry. They are only opposed to certain features, and these can be dealt with.

The exhibitors have suggested that a representative be appointed from two civic bodies to investigate the shows. This would be a temporary palliative, but afford no permanent relief. At the hearing before the Mayor last week the manufacturers offered to pay for the services of a censor. Whom have we got to deal with if it is necessary that all their productions should be vised by a moral censor before they can be shown in public? The admission is in itself humiliating. If a censorship of all films is decided upon, the manufacturer, the renter and the exhibitor should be represented as well as the public.

Calmly reviewing the situation, drastic action of the Mayor, we existence of the conditions which action. In fact, the more we think matter we cannot see any other cou taken that would have been effectu clergymen requested the theaters to The Mayor had been personally inv picture shows and his of ereation felt justified in closing them, abo not far wrong was shown by an ac almost the next day in a Theupon the exits were found to be unavailab called into use. The reformers wo isfied with an order to enforce the the safety of the public would not ordering an investigation and afte licenses of offending exhibitors. the conclusion that the Mayor acted decisive step stirred up the exhibit that it will lead to concerted action eradicate the bad spots that are cont business into the spotlight of public

---

THE SECOND ANNUAL MEE
FILM SERVICE ASSOC

New York City, January 9-11, 1
Hotel Imperial, Broadway, 31st to

The Association has secured a re equal to one and three-fifths for the not available unless not less than o present certificates to the agent of will be present at the Imperial Hote meeting. So as to avail of this p should ask for a certificate when p for the going trip. These certificat every local ticket office, but the ticke nearest point at which a through certificate can be obtained.

So far the New York Central Li Erie, B. & O., D., L & W., Lehigh Vall Philadelphia & Reading, the Western connecting lines of these roads have

Film renters, their delegates or hibitors who may desire to be on ha of the 9th of January are all reques tificates when purchasing their ticke

The saving effected is in all ca the charges for a Pullman berth, and operative it is requested that all me tificates when purchasing tickets for bers of their families, or delegates, hundred is necessary before the r will be granted.

ALL FILM RENTERS. Indepe should attend the meeting of Ja Hotel Imperial, Broadway and T New York. Rooms at the hotel wards; for two persons $3 per da with private bath $2.50 per day $4 per day up. Rooms may be se out-of-town delegates by writing the Hotel Imperial or to the Mpv We have also on file other accom cinity of the meeting rooms per day to $1.50 per day for pr $10 per day for room and par

COMMENTS ON THE MAYOR'S ACTION BY AN EXHIBITOR AND A RENTER.

Pro and Con.

There has been considerable red-hot discussion as to the justice of the Mayor's proclamation shutting down on the moving picture shows, and it has resolved itself down to this decision.

The managers who have complied with the law need have nothing to fear, and they are foolish to step into the breach and help protect the many who by falsification and trickery have evaded the law and operated places that have not fulfilled the requirements. That there are many moving picture shows in this city that are a constant menace to human life and the safety of the community goes without saying. These places are in almost every instance operated by foreigners who are not citizens, and who are dumb when you advance any argument to them why they should obey the laws as they exist on the statute books.

The first thing these men ask is: "Ain't this a free country, where a man may do as he pleases?" It is time these men, who have in probably the vast majority of cases been law-breakers in the country they came from, learn that the laws must be obeyed here, or they will be made by harsh means to obey them. This is a free country, but freedom does not mean untrammeled and limitless license. Therefore, the quicker the law-abiding moving picture showmen abandon these law-breakers to their fate the better it will be for those who do obey the law. There is nothing will save them, unless they obey the law.

The cry of and accusation against Mayor McClellan of graft and a desire to get square with someone is childish, and without one iota of foundation. All the opinions of lawyers anxious to stir a mix-up for the purpose of collecting a fee will not stop the Mayor in the exercise of his authority. He is the chief magistrate of the city of New York, the High Chief of Police and the Constitutional Law of the city authorized by the Constitution of the State of New York gives him the authority to cancel and abrogate any license issued by the city at any and all times, whenever he thinks the continuance of the same is detrimental to the public welfare. And the clergymen and others who have presented the evidence to the Mayor that caused him to take drastic action against the law-breakers are men above reproach. They have secured evidence of law breaking that the police should have secured, but which they either neglected to see or refused to take notice of. That's all there is to it. When the sifting out process is completed there will be a healthier state of affairs all around. Obey the law.

AN EXHIBITOR.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

At last the public has expressed his wishes, and by the Christmas gift of the Mayor of New York to the cinematography industry, the manufacturers, renters, exhibitors cannot tell us any more that the public wants the bad productions shown of late.

The manufacturers, renters and exhibitors have just what they deserve; they have been working very faithfully to attain this result. The manufacturers have been on a lively competition, overworking their brains to find silly and impossible situations to beat each other in the production of miserable films. Instead of elevating the work they have been pulling it down as fast as they could.

The manufacturers should have put on their thinking caps instead of listening to the greedy exhibitors.

It is a well known fact that cannot be denied, that if the moving pictures had fallen in the hands of respectable showmen they would be at this day the best amusement. This was not the case. Three-fourths of the showmen are of the greedy set that could not see a future fortune in cinematography, but wanted to make all the dollars and cents they could to-day. To-day is their cry. To-morrow will take care of itself—and the manufacturers joined this folly of the exhibitors. These greedy showmen are all the time in trouble with the authorities; they neglect the fire regulations, they purchase cheap machines, pay poor salaries to inexperienced operators, etc., all the time cutting down the expenses. Money, money, is their cry, and to make more money they run the machines as if they were engaged in a speed contest, consequently showing the pictures to a great disadvantage.

These foolish exhibitors are blind, blind in many senses. They didn't see that running their machine so fast, they disgusted the public and injured the eyesight of many, and consequently ruined the business. Blind because they could not judge between the rough element and the decent classes. When showing silly films, as the one of a drunkard sitting down on a cake of ice to cool himself, one-third of the audience, the rough, ignorant element, laughs, while two-thirds walk out disgusted. Because an ignorant one-third laughed and because the other two-thirds were decent enough to walk away without making a fuss or protesting, the blind showmen said, "This is what the public wants." The renters say the same to please and keep the trade of the exhibitors, and the manufacturers join to please the renters, until the great sad awakening, when the outraged people walked to the City Hall and asked the Mayor to close all the shows.

Is it not time that the exhibitors open their eyes and take warning of all the good advice you gave them in your paper? You have never stopped at the truth; you have criticised the manufacturers on their bad productions, as you have praised them on their good work. All this information, editorials and other comments should have been of a great benefit to the exhibitors, but all of them were too busy to read any paper, they did not care to read anything, they knew it all. At least it is what they told me when I called on so many of them.

How about this manufacturer who said that he had been 15 years in the business and had no use for reformers? How does he enjoy his Christmas? Is it not a mighty poor Christmas gift on the part of the Mayor? Reformers have been slow in appearance, but it seems that they were working under cover and were preparing their batteries for the great fight, and they won the battle, as outside Mayors will copy Hon. George McClellan.

I have sounded the alarm several times, but it was of no use.

A FILM RENTER.

VIEWS OF A PROMINENT RENTER ON THE STATEMENT ISSUED BY THE MANUFACTURERS.

One of the most prominent film renters made the following statement when asked what he thought of the announcement by the new Motion Picture Patents Company, published in our last issue:

"Personally, I have not the remotest idea what effect this is going to have on the business from the viewpoint of the exchange men. I am quite certain, however, that it will not be of any special benefit unless the so-called 'patent owners' can ramify the situation by enforcing schedules and prohibiting running any film through any machine that is not licensed by patent owners. I think this will be the radical stand that they will take, it being the one method to my mind that will be of sufficient weight with exhibitors to prohibit them from using film other than the licensed product. Then, again, another suggestion that might possibly be adopted by them would be selling the product of certain manufacturers in certain territories, which would eliminate the prospects of repeaters in the same territory, and thereby enhancing the value of the film for a longer period of time. Heretofore, as you know, so many film exchanges being compelled to buy the product of so few manufacturers, has brought about a condition where it is almost impossible to use a reel after it is a few weeks old, owing to the fact that all the Association members were compelled to confine their purchases to a limited variety.

"I presume this consolidation will now eliminate the so-called Independent renters, and if this is the case it means that they will be cut off from the supply, thus compelling them to work off what they now have on hand, and as time progresses I have no doubt but that they will be renting these subjects for as little as 25 cents a day. Their continued existence in business, with some such policy as I have mentioned, and the threatening of exhibitors with prosecution for running film not licensed by the licensees will keep the Independents in business for some considerable time and will prevent the elimination of the very cheap store show which make possible the existence of cheap price film exchanges.

"Then, again, the idea strikes my mind that I hardly see how it will be possible for the patent owners of projecting machines to enforce the requirements for a license, as it will be a difficult matter to distinguish film now in the possession of the film exchanges that were unlicensed. Further, it will be an extreme hardship on all film exchanges to maintain an existence to return film at a stated period. It is also a disadvantage to men to be in business and having stock, and in reality having no stock at all, making any valueless business so far as assets are concerned. The business could only be sold for the prospective trade. In other words, it reduces the film business on a sale basis to a good will. This, in case of the owner of a film exchange would be an extreme hardship on the heirs."

We have often called attention to the poor lecturing given by the $12 per week lecturers in our city. The managers will insist upon spoiling their entertainments because they can get an ignorant illiterate "speiler" for $12 per week, when a competent speaker and educated man who would attract people into the theater instead of driving them away would cost them $50 and be the cheapest in the end.

Right here we have to chronicle the utter failure of a special feature presented at a prominent theater on Fourteenth street last week, owing solely to the man who gave the descriptive talk being neither an elocutionist, orator, nor humorist, and not knowing how to talk or grasp his subject, or to pronounce his words properly.

Every American child knows the old story of "Santa Claus and the Night Before Christmas." This story had been elaborately illustrated by Mr. Hal. Merritt, the cartoonist, and supplied with excruciatingly funny pictures. The story in the hands of a person with any conception of what an American Christmas is becomes intensely interesting, provoking cheers of approval from the little folks and roars of laughter from their elders. But in the hands of this lecturer, who could neither speak, pronounce his words properly, nor had any conception of humor or of dear old Santa Clause, to whom the children of America send over a million letters through the postoffice every Christmas, this splendid feature became a flat and disastrous failure. And the report given on the matter was that it "did not take." The reason it did not take was simply because managers look for lecture talent among people brought up in rear tenements because they will work cheap. It's about time the public rebel against this kind of trash.

THE BEAR AND THE BEEHIVE.

(With Apologies to Æsop.)

Once there was a lot of industrious bees, which had worked hard to accumulate honey for the Winter, when a meddlesome bear came along and attempted to appropriate the honey. He upset the hive and the bees poured out of the hive and stung the bear to death. As his meddlesome nose was the only vulnerable spot the bees could find they made the attack there and soon had the bear hors de combat.

The big music publishers of this city remind us of the bear, and the singers who own a couple of songs remind us of the bees. It is a fact that to-day there is not a song hit on the market and has not been for fully a year. There is not even a popular publication in the way of a song that is rated as above a half-way good seller. The cause is the moving picture shows and the singers. No singer will handle a publication of the big publishers to-day unless he is paid to sing it. He knows that the publishers pay some singers and considering himself as good as they, he refuses to sing unless he is paid. The moving picture shows do not keep a song on longer than two days, and in the majority of cases it comes off after one day's use, and the public does not hear it enough to get acquainted with it or interested enough in it to buy it. Therefore, it falls flat.

But there is a swarm of bees in the shape of singers who own themselves two or three songs which they have published and secured sets of illustrations for, and they are crowding out the singers who do not own slides from all the cheap shows where illustrated songs are sung. For the privilege of hawking their music through the audience during intermission they furnish their own slides and save the manager the rental price of his slides. They get the preference because to the average moving picture show manager the $2 bill which he saves on the rental of slides looks as big as a barn door. The result is that these bees are stinging the big bears of music publishers right in the pocket, which is their most vulnerable and fatal spot. They are selling thousands of their own songs and creating a call for them in the stores and shutting out thousands of copies of the big managers' productions.

And it is a good thing, too, because the big managers have tried to not only make wage slaves of talented writers, but they have almost killed the art of ballad singing by sending their cheap clerks into the theaters to sing without cost. The business has got away from them now, and to their hagrin men whom they boycotted and threatened are working steadily and selling thousands of their own publications here the big fellows formerly had a monopoly. Well the y is only fattened to be killed, and the knife is doing its k on many of the hog music publishers in this city.

ONE OF THE STUNG.

ANIMATED PHOTOGRAPHS IN NATURAL COLORS.

A Paper Read Before the Royal Society of Arts, London, December 9, 1908.

By G. Albert Smith, F.R.A.S.

It is a pleasure to respond to-night to the invitation of the Royal Society of Arts to describe briefly a rather long course of experimental work carried out with an interesting object in view—that of reproducing by means of photography moving scenes in their natural colors.

The subject of color photography has been very much to the fore of late, and the main lines upon which the work is done are so widely understood that it is unnecessary to go very fully over rudimentary ground in introducing the subject to an audience like the present one.

But we are to deal with that branch known as "animated" photography, and as I often find that though most people are familiar enough with the results as exhibited at the places of amusement, they are not always quite clear about the process, it seems desirable to outline briefly the principles of the art.

Briefly stated, animated photography is snap-shot photography, without much interval between the shots. To do the work you provide yourself with a special camera and a roll of sensitive film, which latter may be of any length from say, 50 to 500 feet, and on this film you take snap-shots at the rate of 16 per second. A handle on the camera actuates machinery which carries the film forward. You turn the handle at a speed which causes the film to pass behind the lens at the rate of one foot of film for every second of time, whilst a revolving shutter with an opening in it permits 16 images to the foot to fall in rotation upon the travelling sensitive surface. It is important to note that the sensitive film is not travelling past the lens continuously; the machinery causes it to stand still momentarily while the actual snap-shot is being taken, and whilst the film is being whisked forward preparatory to another snap-shot being recorded, the revolving black shutter intervenes to protect the moving film from light. Thus the film jumps forward sixteen times every second and stands still sixteen times every second. When all the film has run through the camera, or when you think enough of the scene has been recorded, the film is developed like any other negative. When dry, a contact print is made on another piece of transparent film of corresponding length, and when that print is finally developed and dried it is ready to exhibit to an audience. It is run through a machine fitted with a lens and provided with a good light, in such a manner that the snap-shots are projected just as lantern slides are shown, only that they change at the rate of 16 per second. A black shutter here again revolves and obliterates the light every time a picture changes. The sheet is, therefore, being bombarded with a stream of snap-shots at such a rapid rate that before one snap-shot has had time to fade from the observer's retina another one is in view, and as each view is a record slightly different from its predecessors, the illusion of movement is conveyed. The part played by persistence of vision in this process is important, because we shall meet with that phenomenon again presently.

It is admitted that "animated photographs" are of great interest and educational importance, enabling us, as they do, to participate at our ease in scenes and happenings which we can never witness without their aid. But now that the extreme novelty and wonder of the thing have lost their first spell over our minds, how frequently the thought occurs that if only color could be added a much more realistic impression of the situation would be conveyed. Personally, I have frequently had the desire for color during the twelve years that I have been actively interested in the animated picture industry; but I think I date my determination to do what little within me lies to bring about that desired end from the time of the funeral of our late Queen, when it was my sole privilege to cinematograph the scene on the steps of the Chapel Royal, Windsor Castle. The picture that I obtained on that occasion, though a faithful record of movement and incident, conveyed no suggestion whatever of the gorgeous coloring of that historic scene. The rich uniforms of our King and Princes, the gorgeous tunics, plumes, and gold braidings of the great representatives of continental and other countries, made a blaze of moving color on the broad steps of the Chapel which I shall never forget. My picture, of course, conveyed nothing of all this, and to my mind lost nine-tenths of its interest and truth in consequence. The same lament applies to almost all military scenes, in my opinion; and numerous other cases will occur to all of you where, if we could only reproduce color as well as movement, a much more realistic and valuable record would result.

But how is it to be done? What methods are open to us? Science tells us, with proofs that cannot be disputed, that there is no such thing as color in an objective sense; color is a sensation—a something supplied by our own minds—a subjective phenomenon entirely. A red object is conveying to our eyes a series of physical impulses numbering some millions per second; a violet object is sending impulses at nearly double the rate; other colors are sending impulses at different rates per second; and the brain translates these different impulses into sensations which we term color. Colors, then, in all their innumerable shades and gradations, are actually impulses, shocks, or waves of varying intensity and proportion, each impulse or shock having its own characteristic velocity by which we recognize it and assign it its value.

Scientifically speaking, in the light of our knowledge to date, the photographer who sets out to record color is seeking to record what does not exist outside of his own mind! Apart from his own brain, the beautiful colors and gorgeous tints around him are "oscillations of the ether"; and any experimenter who fails to grasp this scientific proposition and to work in the light of it is handicapped indeed.

Students of photography and of color phenomena are well aware that the scientific performance of Professor Lippman some thirteen years ago still ranks as the only real "photography in colors." He passed the focussed picture in his camera through an extremely thin and transparent sensitive emulsion on to a wall of mercury. Thence the color waves rebounded, and by what is known as interference set up a permanent chemical change in the thin film. The light waves became, as it were, stationary, and revealed colors when viewed at a certain angle in reflected light. Such pictures require an exposure of at least a quarter of an hour in good sunlight. The colors are not always quite satisfactory (white is not at all well rendered) and the picture cannot be reproduced. The process is of intense scientific interest, but has no other practical value.

It appears, then, that in the present state of knowledge the most we can hope to do photographically in the pictorial registration of color is to record the particular color waves in any scene in a scale—from white ranging through intermediate greys to black, subsequently translating these neutral gradations back into color terms by some artifice with colored lights or dyes.

Some authority has, I believe, laid down the proposition that the human eye is a very imperfect optical instrument. However that may be, it is very certain that the photographic plate is much more imperfect. The photographic plate is partly color-blind. It is said that some ladies in church are so much absorbed in the millinery that they necessarily bring away a very imperfect impression of the sermon. The photographic plate when put to work is so much impressed by the colors violet and blue, i.e., ether oscillations of high frequency, that it omits to give anything like an adequate rendering of the slower oscillations which human eyes recognize and designate as orange and red. Every amateur photographer knows how sluggishly responsive, comparatively speaking, his plates are to red rays, and for that reason he develops and inspects them in red light. Consequently, before photographic plates can be made to record color waves, even in terms of neutral greys with white at one end of the scale and black at the other, they must be induced to see things more as human eyes see them. At present, whilst the human eye says that yellow is the most luminous color next to white itself, the photographic plate says that violet is. Whilst the human eye says that scarlet is a very bright and luminous color, the photographic plate says it can scarcely see it at all.

So far as is generally known, the only way to make photographic plates see more as we see is to doctor them in very carefully arranged conditions with certain of the curious dyes derived from the by-products of coal. By a course of experimental doctoring of this sort, extending over the past three years, I have found it possible to make cinematograph film as sensitive, for all practical purposes, to red as to white. Thus a negative taken in the sixty-fourth of a second through a piece of red glass of two ladies, one dressed in scarlet and one in white, shows the dresses recorded with equal intensity. This is in harmony with the testimony of the human eye in similar conditions, as we shall find if we take a piece of red glass and look through it at two ladies dressed as I have described.

Apart from the beautifully scientific but impracticable process of Professor Lippman previously alluded to, the only field of operations presented to our view (assuming that we have secured a photographic medium sensitive to all colors of the spectrum) is the three-color theory promulgated by Thomas Young early in the last century, and since adopted in every process of color photography with which I am acquainted. This theory refers all human color sensations to three primary ones—red, green, and violet. It suggests that we have a sort of triple seeing-mechanism capable of exciting sensations in the mind when stimulated by light-waves, and that all the color sensations we experience are caused by the stimulation and activity of these triple avenues in varying proportions.

Whether the three-color theory is in accordance with physiological facts or not need not be discussed. Sufficient is it for us that its adoption gives a practical working hypothesis, and as expounded and practised by Ducos du Hauron, Dr. Joly, McDonough, Ives, Lumiere, Sanger Shepherd, and others, gives us pleasing reproductions in color. The applications of the theory are almost as old as most of us in this room; and we have seen from time to time lantern slides of still subjects beautifully produced by methods based on it.

Briefly, the theory indicates that, applied to photography, we are to take a photograph through red glass, which, by cutting out all other rays, permits us to secure a record of all that is red in the view and of all that relates to red; we are to take another through a green glass and so obtain a record of green, and of all that relates to green and of nothing else; finally we are to take a third photograph through a violet glass and secure a record of all that is violet and of all that relates to violet. When these three photographs are ultimately viewed in the colored light that belongs to each, and they are somehow superimposed so that we view them all at once, each picture will contribute the requisite proportion of color recorded in it and the reconstruction of the colored scene will be complete.

The simplest illustration of the principle is perhaps the triple lantern, when the top lantern may shed a light through red glass on the sheet, the middle lantern may throw light through green glass, and the bottom lantern supply a beam of violet light. These three beams of colored light superimposed upon the sheet will form white light. Then if the photographs, taken as described, and made into lantern slides, are inserted in their appropriate lanterns, and correctly focussed and superimposed on the sheet, the proportions of colored light passed through the three slides suffice to reproduce to our eyes the proportions of color in the original scene.

The most startling example of the three-color theory is admittedly afforded by the recently-introduced and wonderful Autochrome plate, in which, by the marvellous skill of the brothers Lumiere, the required color filters are embodied as microscopic particles in the photographic plate itself, so that one exposure secures the photograph in three-color value, and, when finished, a light at the back of the plate enables us to see the three colors in proper proportion. The multitude of microscopic filters (red, green, and violet) embodied in the plate abolish all the intermediate steps necessary before the introduction of the plate, and at the same time afford the most brilliant example of the application of the three-color principle.

The three-color principle having been proved by numerous lines of demonstration to be a sound working theory, it would naturally suggest itself as being applicable to animated pictures; and, judging by the records of the Patent Office, there are plenty of people who have thought so. But it is to be feared that in the rush to the Patent Office the details of experiment and trial have generally been overlooked.

Some years back (1902), I was invited by Mr. Charles Urban to assist in a thorough trial which he was making, regardless of reasonable expense, of a three-color process applied to the cinematograph. At that date very little was known about the possibilities of sensitizing film to red and green, and, to that extent, we were handicapped, although we had very expert assistance. Nevertheless, in good sunlight we did succeed in taking a few negatives in which the three colors were duly recorded. It was when we came to superimpose the pictures on the sheet through three colored glasses that we found the process unworkable. As soon as the handle of the projecting machine was worked the three pictures refused to remain in register, and no knowledge that any of us could bring to bear upon the matter could even begin to cure the trouble. I do not know whether any other workers, if there are any, succeeded where we failed; but, if they did succeed, the public have never, so far as I am aware, been permitted to see the results. The difficulty is mainly due to the fact that cinematograph pictures are small to begin with (about the size of a postage stamp), and they have to be enormously magnified in exhibiting, as you all know. The slightest defect in registration is pitilessly magnified, and when the minute defects of registration in the first three pictures are followed by minute defects of another sort in the next three, and by yet another sort in the succeeding three, and so on throughout the length of a film, the effect on the observer is almost unbearable.

A plan much recommended, and much patented, I believe, is to use three lenses in taking the negatives, with a color filter behind each, and to use a similar contrivance with three lenses and color filters when projecting, adopting one of the usual contrivances to superimpose the images issuing from the three lenses. Whether the persons who advocate and patent this plan ever descend to the trivial detail of trying it is unknown, but when Mr. Urban and I tried it with carefully made machinery, the results were astonishing and painful to behold. It becomes evident on trial that the three pictures taken through the three lenses, however close the proximity of the latter may be, are slightly different from each other, and the attempt to superimpose these slightly different pictures when they are highly magnified, results in unbearabe confusion.

The next idea we worked upon was to abandon the attempt at mechanical registration of the three pictures, and to run the films through the projecting machine at such a speed that the colors on the revolving shutter would combine, and so give the desired effect by persistence of vision. This was successful, but the colors were washy and ineffective. In fact, the colors were so pale that, considering the amount of film used up (three times the usual number of feet per subject), and considering that the problem of exposure was made three times as difficult, the experiment assumed a less hopeful aspect. The death of the original patentee put a further damper on the inquiry, and the experiment finally dropped.

During the last four years I have renewed the inquiry, to the exclusion of almost all other work, with the enthusiastic support and ever buoyant encouragement of Mr. Charles Urban. I have concentrated attention specifically upon four points:—1. Sensitizing the film to all color waves, specially pressing the sensitiveness as far into the red and of the spectrum as possible. 2. Superimposing the color records by persistence of vision. 3. Compressing the color records into a less number than three, so as to give the least possible interval of time between successive presentations. 4. To conform to the condition that any scheme must be easily applicable to the existing cinematograph machinery, and that the standard film with standard perforations must be used, so that any successful results might be readily adopted by every cinematograph user without much trouble or expense.

The first of these lines of inquiry (sensitizing) has been already referred to; it simply consisted of repeated trials and experiments day by day for a year or more until the required conditions for sensitizing emulsions for cinematograph work were better understood. The third line of inquiry, that of reducing the number of pictures in which the color waves could be recorded in a monochromatic scale from three records to two, also resolved itself into a matter of repeated trial. For, in addition to deciding upon the particular shades of grey deposit which should be adopted as the equivalent of particular colors, the variations of different emulsions in yielding these greys had to be taken into account. The final deduction from the experiments under the third heading was that, proceeding from the red end of the spectrum, all rays from dark red to blue could be recorded in proportions which our eyes accept as sufficiently truthful through two filters only.

If we ask individuals to set down the principal colors of nature, placing them in order of luminosity or brightness to the eye, the average of the lists will be as follows:—White, yellow, orange, red, green, blue, violet, indigo, black.

Now reference has previously been made to the unfortunate fact, that photographic plates or emulsions do not see as we do; thus, to the plate, blue and violet come at the top of the scale next to white, and not at the bottom end, as they do in the luminosity scale. I find that it is possible with two carefully-adjusted filters to pass to the sensitized plate or film colors in proportions parallel to the above order. Through one filter I pass white and yellow, then on through orange and scarlet to the darkest red I can sensitize for. Through the other filter I pass white and yellow again, as these two are at the head in luminosity and require fullest representation; then on through green, blue-green, blue and violet in the proportions suggested by the above luminosity list. The aim is to secure, by a careful adaptation of filters to emulsion, a record of color luminosity stated in gradations of tone from white to black through a scale of greys, this scale being fully represented in two successive pictures.

I take the pictures with an Urban bioscope camera fitted with the required filters to come into action alternately. One film only is used, of the usual standard size, and I take the pictures at the rate of not less than 16 per second through each filter, or 32 pictures per second in all.

When the negative record has been duly developed, and a positive transparency made from it, this positive transparency represents, by its gradations of tone from white to black in each successive pair of pictures, not only a record in form and shape, but it also acts as a filter or sifter of light; for when it is passed in the path of rays of colored light it will screen or filter them so as to reconstruct for our eyes the various proportions of color luminosity which were present in the scene when the record was made.

I have said that the photographic record now obtained is to be placed in the path of color rays, which rays are to be sifted by the travelling record so that the required amounts of color reach the projection sheet in due proportion. The question now is, What rays of color are we to use? Apparently, we must use the same colors that we used as filters in the camera, and, in fact, we may do so with pleasing results. But theoretical critics will point out that, owing to the unfortunate over-sensitiveness of the film to violet and blue, we must, of necessity, have cut these colors down to such an extent in our camera that if we use the same filters for reconstructing color for the human eye, their absence will be sorely missed—our whites will be so deficient in blue and violet, that they won't be white at all, but orange or yellow.

One reply to this contention is, that white is very largely a comparative sensation. What we agree to call white in a painting, for instance, is often quite different from what we agree to call white in another painting if we take steps to compare the two "whites" with one another. One may be yellowish or greyish compared with the other, yet both are white enough in their proper place in the picture, when surrounded with colors in proper "key," as it were to them. Again, the whitest of paper will look yellow when compared with the purer white of fresh fallen snow. Therefore, our whites produced by the mixture of colored lights may possibly be somewhat yellow as a matter of spectroscopic reality, but if the human eye accepts them as white by comparison with other colors in the same picture we need scarcely bother our heads further.

But another way of meeting the critical objection that the analytical filters of our camera are necessarily too deficient in violet and blue to give a proper rendering of color when used as synthetical or reproduction filters in projection is to introduce the missing beams of violet and blue into our projection instrument, and so make ourselves practically secure of the white or "all-color light," required on theoretical grounds. This I find it an advantage to do; and if you examine the light emanating from the projecting machine when lighted up and at work, you will see that beams of red and green are alternately issuing from the lens, and that these beams have added to them by means of a supplementary shutter just those proportions of violet and blue required to make a pure white when all are mixed. Thus we have light on the sheet for our whitest objects which contains, as it should contain to conform to theory, every color of the spectrum from dark red to violet.

There are some persons so obsessed with the idea that three is the magic number for filters, that they imagine a system in which two only are employed must necessarily restrict the colors recorded and reproduced to two. There is in fact a good deal of confusion on the subject of color mixture, and there are not a few who argue as though mixing colored lights and mixing colored pigments were the same thing. No mixing together of two or more pigments will ever make white; but white light can be produced by the mixture of two correctly chosen colored lights. The printer who has to make color prints on paper certainly has to divide the spectrum into three or even four, but he is dealing with printer's ink or paint, not with light at all. Every writer on the phenomena of light, including Tyndall and Sir Henry Trueman Wood, teaches that white light can be made by the proper mixing of two well-chosen colored lights; and it is further taught by every authority that white light contains all colors. I hope, however, to demonstrate that by dividing the spectrum into two it is possible to exhibit satisfactorily every color to the eye, including the purest of white.

The practical method sketched above is possibly open to assault on strictly theoretical grounds—although it must not be forgotten that theories have sometimes to be re-examined in the light of facts. The first consideration to my mind is the production of results. I am not striving to defend a theory; nor do I deem it necessary to keep within the limits of a theory.

I have no doubt whatever that many improvements are in store. Lens makers, emulsion makers, mechanics, will each contribute to the advance. I expect to make important improvements myself when Spring comes and I renew my experiments. The present results are presented as early experiments in the photography of moving things in color, and as the first serious exposition of work done in that direction. It is to be hoped that the numerous others who, we are led to believe, are working in the same direction will be encouraged to put their theories to the test and come forward with their results.

In conclusion, I submit the reasonable proposition that just as we have seen great advances in animated photography in black and white since the popular advent of the art nearly fourteen years ago, when there were numerous difficulties and limits which have gradually been overcome or broken down, so we shall see great and rapid advances in the new art of recording and reproducing moving scenes in natural colors. My own efforts, now briefly described and illustrated, will, I hope, inaugurate the movement, even if future results are obtained on quite different lines. As I have said, the first consideration is the production of results, and the results of my own researches we will now proceed to examine, with the assistance of Mr. Charles Urban and his bioscope.

After the demonstration, Sir Henry Trueman Wood complimented Mr. Smith on "the scentific interest and value of the beautiful experiments which had been shown." Even if Mr. Smith progressed no further than he had done, he had made a very valuable addition to the list of photographic inventions. He was convinced of this by the fact that those colors which required the greater part of the range of the spectrum to represent them—the greys and browns—appeared to be perfectly rendered. When this was obtained by only two color screens it showed that any falling off of quality at the extreme ends of the spectrum was a detail that would no doubt be improved in future. He also complimented Mr. Smith and Mr. Urban on the mechanism of the camera and on the extreme sensitiveness that they had obtained in the film.

Sir John Cameron Lamb, the chairman, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Smith and Mr. Urban for the display of "such marvelous results of patient industry and remarkable talent."

Mr. Smith, in replying, said that while he had labored to perfect the problem of rendering the colors with the fewest possible media, to Mr. Charles Urban was due the credit for the production of the necessary apparatus.

NEW AND APPROVED APPARATUS.

Kleine Optical Company's Kosmik Economizer—A Current Saving Device.

By Don. J. Bell.

One of the chief advantages to be gained by the use of alternating current electrical apparatus as compared with direct current, lies in the possibility of transforming a higher to a lower voltage or vice versa with but small loss of power, and, therefore, with economy. In some cases the gain lies in the ability to use a high voltage in delivering the power from the dynamo to a point near where it is to be used, and there transform it to a lower voltage safe for use in electrical apparatus and fittings. The ordinary house lighting transformer with its high voltage primary and low voltage secondary coils is the most common illustration of this practice.

In other cases it becomes necessary to employ circuits of ordinary voltages to supply energy to apparatus which of themselves operate only at still lower voltages. In such cases some means must be found to apply to this final apparatus only the oltage it requires, the excess being cared for in some device placed between the source of power available and the particular device to be operated.

The familiar arc lamp is an illustration of this type of device.

Suppose the voltage required for an arc lamp is 40 volts. That is, suppose the voltage across the carbons is 40 and the only available source of energy is an 110 volt lighting circuit. Then 70 volts must be taken up in some form of apparatus set into the line between the terminals of the 110 volt circuit and the lamp.

There are two methods of accomplishing this result. Either use a resistance rheostat or use some form of transformer. With direct current circuits only the rheostat method is possible, except in special cases where two or more lamps can be connected across the line of 110 volts. For moving picture machine arc lamps this latter course is obviously impracticable.

With alternating current a rheostat may also be used, but present-day practice is tending more and more to the use of some transforming device, either an auto-transformer, a two-coil transformer or a choke-coil (resistance coil).

The difference between a rheostat and a transformer in relation to the manner in which the energy is used may be illustrated roughly as follows: Imagine it necessary to move a heavy weight back and forth with great rapidity. In the first case let the weight lie on a horizontal table and have some means of dragging it back and forth, an eccentric or levers operated by an engine might be employed. It is evident that friction between the weight and the table will play an important part in the operation and will absorb a large part of the power used. The proof of this is seen in the fact that the table and the weight will be heated by the rubbing motion, and it needs but little thought to see that all the heat so caused is lost power.

But suppose the weight to be held by sets of coiled springs on each side, so arranged that the table can be removed, leaving the weight suspended in space. Now apply the power to move it back and forth. With each motion the springs will be stretched. This, of course, requires power, but at each reversal of the motion the springs that have been stretched assist in the return motion and restore to the arrangement nearly all the power stored in them. The weight then vibrates, and only such new power is required as will make up for the small losses of internal friction in the springs themselves. The vibrating balance wheel or pendulum of a watch is an arrangement of this sort.

A rheostat is something like the first case. It uses up in heat the power supplied to it. This power is wholly lost for useful work and the rheostat, however useful and convenient, is thus a comparatively uneconomical device. With direct current it must be used where part of the power must be got rid of. It is like a weight drawn along a table, not back and forth, but always in one direction, or like a shaft revolving in a bearing that absorbs part of the power in friction and gives no power back again.

With alternating currents we can avail ourselves of the well known properties of a transformer. On an iron core are wound two coils, primary and secondary. Into the primary flows the power from the dynamo. For the fraction of a second that the current flows in one direction the iron core becomes magnetized. It takes power to magnetize iron, of course, but this power is stored, not wholly lost, and when the current reverses this power is largely restored again. The magnetism acts like springs in the illustration above. In fact, all the space in and around the core is a magnetic spring, straining and unstraining with every alternation or reversal of the alternating current in the coils. Nearly all the power put into magnetizing the iron is restored again. There is but little loss in a well designed transformer, perhaps only a few per cent.

The secondary coils of the transformer draw off the power they require, and by making the proper relative number of turns of wire on primary and secondary the latter can be made to give any voltage desired. Thus if the primary has 200 turns and the secondary but 100, 110 volts on the primary will give 55 volts on the secondary.

Instead of using a transformer with two separate coils, a single coil on an iron core may be set into the line between supply terminals and lamp. Such a coil will store and restore energy by magnetic "spring" and is more economical than a rheostat. It is, however, found to be less satisfactory in moving picture machine work than a two-coil transformer if well designed. The regulation is not as good, the central station man does not look on it with favor, and it is not as economical for the picture man himself. The Kosmik Economizer is a first-class transformer, specially designed for moving picture arc lamps, and will be found to be vastly cheaper than a rheostat and superior to even the best single coil "choking" device. The difference between power wasted in heated coils of wire and power stored and restored by the transformer will show in the bills for the current to a degree scarcely believable by one who has not actually tried them both.

Don't Use a Current Saver

UNLESS YOU USE A

GILLES ARC REGULATOR

WITH IT

This will give you the best possible control and finest light with alternating current. Consumes no extra current and stops all travelling and pitting of carbons. Gives a clear white light free from shadows. Only possible way to get a perfect light with alternating current. Guaranteed one year. Sent prepaid for $10.00 or send $3.00 for examination and balance on acceptance. State make of machine and amperes used.

RICHARD L. GILLES, Distributor, HELENA, MONTANA

A Money Making PROPOSITION

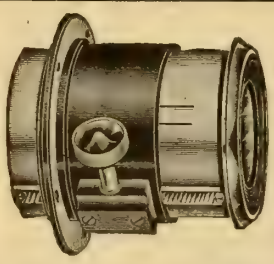
Some Exhibitors are paying their rent by exhibiting Advertising Slides before the show.

We make them, any design, from your copy. Also Announcement Slides in great variety.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.

513 Superior Building - Cleveland, Ohio



IMPROVE THE PICTURE ON THE SCREEN

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

by using a high grade projection lens.

Our lenses give a sharper and more brilliant picture than anylenses made here or abroad. We will send a lens on approval that makes a picture the size you want.

PRICE $18.00 NET

When ordering state the distance from lens to screen and size of picture. The purchaser of a new machine should insist on getting one of these lenses with it instead of the inferior lens usually supplied.

GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

CLIMAX WIRE

Fifty times the resistance of copper

THE BEST WIRE FOR

Moving Picture Machine

RHEOSTATS

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.
HARRISON, N.J.

Comments on Film Subjects.

"St. Moritz, Winter Sports."—A most interesting Pathe production, well worked in all the details. The different sports are well illustrated and show that our rich folks can find as much, if not more, healthful amusements in the deep snow and mirror-like ice of the Swiss mountains than they can find in the Sunny South. Most of the boys in the audience and owners of sleds wished that we would soon have a good snow storm to try some of the tricks shown on the screen. St. Moritz is situated in the eastern Swiss mountains, and is a Winter resort, mostly frequented by rich Americans and Englishmen.

"Water Sports."—Another very interesting film of the Pathe Freres on the same order as "St. Moritz," but this time the scenes are taken in France, and the actions are in the water. We see some very good diving, swimming and different very amusing games, which greatly pleased the audience. The photography is remarkably good, and all the details carefully worked out. This production and "St. Moritz" show that an audience can be pleased without showing them silly films, and these two films have the great advantage of encouraging the healthy sporting proclivities of our young folks, instead of giving them bad examples.

"Mr. Soaker at the Seaside."—A very poor subject on the part of the Pathe Freres, and should be censored, as it is not advisable to show to an audience, old or young, the disgraceful stunts of a man under the influence of liquor. Referring to the two previous films, is it not better to encourage our youths to healthful exercises, as shown in the film "St. Moritz," or to develop them as good swimmers, in showing them the film "Water Sports?" These are good examples that would have a wholesome influence on the future of our young generation. Mr. Soaker is not even funny.

"The Flower Girl of Paris."—As the subject proper is good, the Vitagraph Company could have produced a far better film if they had abandoned the tendency of late of showing too much brutality, and of wanting to go too deep in the sensational line. The details are not carefully handled. The French Commisariat de Police (police station) and the uniforms of the French police officers show us a sort of American police office and costumes out of place.

"The Hostage."—A very appealing subject, with a few good scenes, but in general the work is not up to the standard of the Pathe Freres. The lasso scene is very indistinct, and is painful on account of the brutal killing of the brigand.

"The Hazers."—One merit of this film is to be short. There is nothing of interest in the subject, and the details are poorly worked. When the students carry away their victim they do it in the most disgraceful manner, as if the poor young fellow was nothing else than an animal killed in a hunt. All of the outside scenes are of good photographic quality, but the inside scenes are below the average.

"Will He Overtake Them?"—May cause some hilarity, but is not a credit to the manufacturers, the Pathe Freres. It is one of these silly chases of which we had too many. Such films leave no impression.

"Clog Making in Britany."—A most interesting film of the Pathe Freres, showing how the clogs, the wooden shoes of the peasants, are made. The manufacturers take us from the woods, where the trees are cut down, to the bazaar, where the clogs are sold to the peasants. All the details are well worked out, and is an excellent production in every respect.

"Bill Wants to Wed a Toe Dancer."—A very amusing film of the Pathe Freres, in which the details are treated with much care. The audience had a good laugh at the funny motions of the peasant girl in her dancing act, and Billy caused much merriment with his little pig under his arm.

"On Guard at the Powder Magazine."—"The Queen's Love."—"The Stepmother."—"The Gnomes."—The Great Northern Film Company is scoring a new success with these four films. These productions show great care in all the details. The acting is no more of men and women pushed in front of the camera, with none or little preparation, but is what we generally see on our best stages. The success of these manufacturers is partly due to the attention paid to the staging, in which they seem to spare no expense. As to the good quality of the photographic work, it is up to the high standard established by the Great Northern Film Company. "The Stepmother" is one of these touching productions, which can hold an audience in suspense from the very beginning to the finish, and is almost sure to bring tears at the sight of the poor children thrown into a dungeon by the heartless stepmother. "On Guard at the Powder Magazine" shows us most of the scenes on high seas, and shows us some lively, well timed actions. Judges of high class dramatic work and of fine colored films should not miss the chance to see "The Queen's Love." You are no more in front of a moving picture screen, but you seem as if really transported to the very spot of the play, and the motions are so natural and so easy that you have the impression that you are a member of the party. This film of "The Queen's Love" contains some of the finest Danish natural scenery, including castles, parks, gardens, etc.

Making Moving Pictures.—In this film the Vitagraph people have reproduced for the benefit of the public the complicated process of making a film, from the time the contract is signed until the finished positive is ready to be run through the projecting apparatus. It is intensely interesting and gives some hint of the immense array of properties and the numerous actors' requisites which must be kept by every film producing house. It also illustrates forcibly and clearly the trials of those who direct the rehearsals, particularly in the crowded streets. The only thing about it which mars the film at all is some horse-play on the part of a few minor people. This might be advantageously eliminated. The photography is excellent, and the action is all that could be desired. Altogether it is an excellent film.

"The Cider Industry."—A Pathe film which reproduces the cider industry of France. It is different from what it is in America, but is quite as interesting, and the scenery and accessories are alike good. It would be hard to improve upon this film so far as technical excellence is concerned. These French outdoor films are all the more interesting because the picturesquely dressed peasant women are such prominent parts of the pictures.

"The Unselfish Guest."—A comic which misses being funny. It develops one or two fairly humorous situations, but the rest of it is silly.

"The Christmas Carol."—It is impossible to praise this film too highly. It reproduces the story as closely as it is possible to do in a film and the technical excellence of the work cannot be questioned. The photography, the staging and the acting are all of the best, and the story told is always impressive. The scene where the little girl is the only one who will love the old man is touching and brought the tears to more than one pair of eyes in the audience. Such films cannot be too highly commended. They are a welcome relief from the riot of bloodshed which has marred the moving picture shows of New York and other cities far too long. Even though it costs a fortune almost to prepare such a film, it is quite likely that the public will patronize it sufficiently to make good the extraordinary outlay.

"The Mind Reader."—The point of the story is too obscure to be understood. It is probably intended as a sort of film for teaching the necessity of watching for one's enemies. Or it may be that some philanthropic gentleman devises this scheme for the purpose of distributing a new kind of charity. Whichever it is, the makers should endeavor to bring it out more plainly. They haven't succeeded, even though there is little to criticise in the technical excellence of the production.

"Charlie's Ma-in-Law."—Supposed to be funny, and it does excite a laugh every time the mother-in-law raises her veil and starts everything, even a trolley car, running backwards to escape her face.

"Dick's Aunt."—A case of mistaken identity, which is turned to good advantage in creating sport for the audience. As it all ends happily, there is no use to criticise it. The play is of the knockabout stamp, and has some rough places in it.

Kalem Company's new film, "A Florida Feud," is the first production of their company which is now operating in Florida. The scenes show a most charming representation of tropical foliage and Southern home life and customs. The story is well told and depicts the course of one of the family feuds which is a marked characteristic of Southern life. A little love episode adds interest to the story, which is told with good action and without anything that could offend the most fastidious. The termination of the feud, when the two inveterate enemies are brought together and made to shake hands by the parson of the little church, is a happy ending to a film that should meet with the approval of the clergymen who have lately severely criticised the class of subjects shown in moving picture theaters.

A Better Light at Half-Price

There's a Reason

Our

ECONOMY COIL

Which Murders Electric Light Bills

"Claro" Condensers

Which increase your Light 25 per cent

THE PEOPLE WILL TALK ABOUT THE IMPROVEMENT IN YOUR SHOW

Could you Make a Better Investment?

We Furnish the Film Service You Will Eventually Adopt

Pittsburg Calcium Light and Film Co.

Rochester, N. Y., Pittsburg, Pa., Lincoln, Neb.
Cincinnati, Ohio, Des Moines, Ia.

SPECIAL SALE OF POWER'S MACHINE PARTS

Lamp Jaws	$2.25 per pair,	regular price	$3.50
Rollers	.60 each	regular price	.75
Eccentric Bushings	.20 each,	regular price	.25
Plain Bushings	.20 each,	regular price	.25

DEPOSIT REQUIRED ON ALL C.O.D. ORDERS

IMPERIAL FILM EXCHANGE, Inc., 301 River St., Troy, N. Y.

Prompt, Reliable — Lowest Prices

NEW JERSEY FILM RENTAL CO.

F. PENNINO, Manager, 367 CENTRAL AVE., JERSEY CITY, N. J.

We handle all New Goods—BIOGRAPH, GAUMONT, LUX, GREAT NORTHERN, ETC.

Telephone, 4139 W. Jersey — Si parla Italiano and German.

Machines of all kinds bought and sold. We carry everything pertaining to the business

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides

The Finest Made. $5 per Set
All of the New Song Hits.

A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

SONG SLIDES

The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

Have you secured our slides for the two great hits

"There's A Fleet On The Sea"

"Would You Like To Take A Walk With Me"

Your patrons will want them. Send your order to

THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

Films of Quality Rented

LATEST AND BEST SELECTIONS OF THE FOLLOWING WELL-KNOWN MAKERS

Gaumont
Urban-Eclipse
Lux
Williamson
Eclair
Comerio

Great Northern
Biograph
Ambrosio
Cricks & Martin
Hepworth
Carlo Rossi

Full line of Supplies, Machines Carbons, Condensers, Tickets etc., etc.

We are not junk handlers, but supply service that tells at the ticket office.

MAKE KNOWN YOUR WANTS

Liberty Film Exchange

Telephone Walnut 3956

1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.

Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

When writing to advertisers please mention the Moving Picture World.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Neligh, Neb.—An electric theater has been established at Neligh.

Bonaparte, Ia.—An electric theater has been opened in the D. H. Cresap Building on Front street.

Joliet, Ill.—A new moving picture theater, the "Grand," opens under the management of Flynn & Miller.

Valparaiso, Ind.—H. W. McMahan has sold the Ideal Moving Picture Show to a local stock company.

White Plains, N. Y.—Edward Davis and Walter Gaddis purchased the Star Theater from Natale Bambace.

Atlantic, Ia.—The building at 512 Chestnut street is being remodeled for a moving picture theater, to be in operation by January 1.

New York City.—Bancroft Amusement Company. Capital, $10,000. Directors—A. D. Burnham, 49 Wall street; D. Jones and J. A. Beaver.

Kankakee, Ill.—The proprietor of a billiard room and barber shop in Kankakee is contemplating adding a nickel theater to his equipment.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—World Moving Sporting Picture Company. Capital, $1,500. Directors—N. S. Riley, 718 Humboldt street; C. B. Regan and S. Flaherty.

New York City.—Plans have been filed for remodeling the two-story building at 689 Amsterdam avenue into a moving picture hall, for Simon Fritz, as owner.

Baltimore, Md.—Bohanon & Lewy, managers of the Greater Wizard Amusement Company, will open a moving picture theater at 30-34 West Lexington street.

Ottawa, Can.—Excellence and safety promise to be two of the many important features of the new Majestic Theater at 181 Spark street, which opened recently.

Galena, Ill.—C. M. and F. R. Kremer, of Union, have rented the Johnson Building on Main street, and are making preparations to open a ten-cent moving picture show.

Provo City, Utah.—W. M. Barnes, the pioneer moving picture showman in that city, has again bought the Grand Theater and will hereafter give his personal attention to the business.

Bellingham, Wash.—The petition of H. C. Kern to open a moving picture show at 105 West Holly street, and for a license from December 19, 1908, to June 30, 1909, for $54, was granted.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The edifice that has been known as the Bishop Little-John Memorial Church at Fulton and Hemlock streets, is being renovated for a moving picture theater, for Mr. A. Frankel.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Union Theater Company filed certificates of incorporation with the Secretary of State. Capital, $10,000. Directors—C. Corneklsen, 189 Howard avenue; R. J. Rudd and F. H. Koster.

Mt. Pleasant, Ia.—Messrs. Stith and Cooper have purchased the Electric Theater from Strawn Bros. Mr. Stith was former proprietor of the Electric, and is an expert operator of moving picture machines.

Bridgeport, Conn.—The Park City Moving Picture Theater, now under construction at the corner of Stratford and Newfield avenues, expects to open for business January 4, under the management of W. E. Victory.

Bay City, Mich.—The "Wenonah" is Bay City's newest moving picture theater, and is one that ranks among the best picture houses in the United States. Its seating capacity is 300, and the manager, Mr. Leahy, was more than surprised to see the large audience that attended his playhouse on opening night.

Savannah, Ga.—Racing picture of the Grand Prize Race, the New York to Paris, and the Dieppe race, which was thought stolen from the Criterion Theater, was recovered last Wednesday evening. The films were found under the stage by one of the actors, and he was awarded a hundred and fifty dollars for his find. He seemed happy, and at once got a money order for same and sent the full amount to his mother. The money was given by Mr. Arthur Lucas, Jr., local manager for the Miles Bros. Company.

The Messrs. Herbert and Frank Bandy gave a Christmas supper to all the employees and actors in their three amusement houses. The supper was given in the Coney Island restaurant. All the moving picture shows in the city gave special Christmas matinees.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Roanoke, Va., December 28, 1908.

Editor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—I notice in the last issue of the Moving Picture World, under date of December 26, the stand the film manufacturers are taking, and I for one am pleased at such, as I am confident it will be to the interest of each and every exhibitor. We have in Roanoke, Va., a city of 30,000 population, six moving picture shows, one run in connection with vaudeville. Only two places cater for good A No. 1 new stuff. It is a mixed up affair, indeed, and if conditions continue as such very long the picture business will soon be something of the past. Now, just what I have reference to is this: First, a bad film service—in other words, junk—properly speaking; second, machines operated by kids who know nothing about it, except to turn the crank. The films are sub-rented. I know they are from Association members, or, at least, they are supposed to be. The manager knows his films are sub-let. But there is one consolation, if he ever gets them back, he can safely say he has lost nothing but scrap and junk. When you approach the proprietor (who is looking for cheap service) and tell him you can give him six changes per week, songs included, for $35, express paid both ways, why, he will stand on his head and shout, "I am getting six changes and songs for $12." He will say it is good stuff. Now, I have been in the business three years and have made it a study. Our State laws are very rigid in regard to exits in theaters, also the S. E. T. Association, and they should be for the protection of the public. Still it seems the laws are not enforced in a great many cities. This one is on the map.

C. H. LOWE.

Chicago, Ill., December 28, 1908.

Editor of Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—In your issue bearing date of December 26 we find that you published a letter signed by Wm. H. Swanson, in which he claims a vindication for himself in the outcome of the recent hearing before Judge Gemmill.

I am not going to try our cause in the newspapers. The film manufacturers and film exchange men of Chicago are familiar with the entire matter. Most of them attended the preliminary hearing and the fact that their sympathy and moral support is with us best evidences the local feeling.

It is a poor general who makes his plans of battle known. Suffice it to say that the assertions of Swanson are as false as they are malicious, and show up in true light the character of the man, and the destructive tendency of his mind. All readers of your paper are, no doubt, familiar with the fate that befell Haman. He met the fate that he planned for others. History repeats itself.

There has been no trial thus far, merely two preliminary hearings. The first before Judge Crowe, who discharged us and severely arraigned Swanson, and the other hearing before Judge Gemmill, who discharged Mr. Norman and said: "I feel that, were I sitting here to dispose of this case finally, I should discharge Mr. Hopp, but I am not sitting in that capacity. I have some doubt whether Mr. Hopp really had any knowledge of this affair, and I question very much whether a jury would convict him. I am much in doubt whether Mr. Hopp would be convicted by any jury."

We are at peace with the film world, conducting a clean business, paying our obligations promptly, and have the confidence of all who transact business with us.

Yours very truly,
STANDARD FILM EXCHANGE.

Savannah, Ga., December 24th.—The Old Star Theater at Dublin, Ga., has been purchased by Mr. Williams of that place. The theater will be rebuilt and a new name will be given to it. The manager has advertised in the daily papers that the lady who sends in the most suitable name will be given a season ticket free. Miss Anneile Peacock will have charge of the orchestra, and nothing but the best pictures and songs will be given. The season will open on Christmas Day.

The Superba, Criterion and Arcade, owned by the Bandy Bros. and Arthur Lucas, Jr., are doing a rushing business. The Orpheum, controlled by the Southern Amusement Company, is making good with the twenty-cent night performances. Special matinees are given for children for ten cents all over the house.

Mr. Doc. Love, who has managed the Criterion Theater for the past year, has resigned to take on another position.

NOTICE TO EXHIBITORS

A real live Film Exchange at

LOUISVILLE, KY.

Receiving direct from one to two copies of each subject issued by the following Eight Licensed Manufacturers:

Edison Co., Essanay Co., Kalem Co.,
S. Lubin, G. Melies, Pathe Freres, S lig Polyscope Co , and Vitagraph Co. of America

Exhibitors having strong competition or wishing to improve their Film Service, should write or wire today, as only a limited number can be furnished at pre ent.

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.
(Members Film Service Association)
421 Fourth Avenue - Louisville, Ky.
(Branch of the O. T. Crawford Film Ex. Co., St. Louis, Mo.)

SONG SLIDES

L I D E Peerless Song Slides L I D E

Ever Imitated, NEVER EQUALED

A trial order will convert you into a steady customer. We are now in a position to fill orders more promptly than ever before.

NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO.,
143 North 8th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

Sales Agents for the

GAUMONT

CHRONOPHONE

Talking and Singing

PICTURE MACHINES

New 1909 Models.

Model D, Price $600.
" C, " $850.

The synchronism is perfect! The subjects embrace all the latest Stars and Feature Acts. Over 500 different subjects now ready. Picture theatres, heretofore playing to empty houses, packed and jammed to the guards when equipped with the Chronophone. It is up to you to be first. Write us quick. Catalogues Free.

Selling Agents

Aloe Optical Co.

513 Olive Street St. Louis, Mo.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? $2 per year—52 numbers.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

The Great Northern Film Co. have opened an office in Chicago at 810 Unity Building, in charge of S. Atkinson, to take care of the increased demand for their products in the Middle States. As announced in a previous number, they are already represented on the Pacific Coast by The Pacific Coast Film Exchange, with offices in Los Angeles and San Francisco. The Great Northern productions have won a firm footing in this country on their merits and as one of the Biograph licensees they have made connections which stamp them as an important factor in the film world. They are progressive and careful producers.

* * *

The Announcement Slides made by Levi Co., 64 East Fourteenth street, New York, have jumped into popularity, and the assortment is certainly very complete. Mr. Levi says that a new illustrated catalogue will be ready for distribution shortly and will be mailed free to all intending purchasers. Theater managers should file applications for a copy and will find many slides therein that they can use to advantage.

* * *

The Wire Terminals and Connections for electrical wiring made by Robert B. Webb, 40 Cresson street, Pittsburg, Pa., are highly spoken of in the trade. Any device of this kind that tends to the safety of the electric installation should be adopted by every theater manager. Not only is the increased safety to be considered, but repairs and connections can be made by these connections in much less time and much more satisfactorily than by splicing. The prices are so low that any one can afford to keep a set on hand to use in case of emergency.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

Experienced Operators.

Sydney Baehr, 420 East 140th street, New York City. Experienced operator.

Young man wishes position as manager; good hustler, and has New York license; can repair all machines. Address "Manager," care of this paper.

O. N. Wilson, Jr., care of M. Ahlers, 36 Somers street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Licensed operator, with two years' city and road experience.

James Purcell, 97 Hudson avenue, Green Island, Ia. Expert operator and electrician.

Louis Pratt, 446 First street, Albany, N. Y. Expert operator.

Edw. Jakobowski, 600 South Seventh avenue, Reading, Pa. Operator or manager.

R. Clay Crawford, care of Kline Amusement Co., Franklin, Pa. Experienced electrician and operator.

Robert Curry, 1670 Third avenue, New York. Experienced and licensed operator.

W. F. Chinns, General Delivery, Slater, Mo. Experienced on all machines.

Ludwig Wailgum, 10 Bullfinch place, Hotel St. Lion, Boston, Mass. Experienced operator; also wiring and repairing. Have Massachusetts license.

W. A. Lee, expert operator and electrician, 706 Marietta street, Excelsior Springs, Mo. References.

T. C. Patrick, 14½ South Main street, Helena, Mont. Experienced on Edison and Power machines.

E. J. Keefer, Colfax, Ia. Experienced manager, also lecturer and effects producer. Can put any house on a paying basis by producing the right kind of a show. Am sober and reliable.

A. C. Wallace, P. O. Box 126, Baraboo, Wis. Experienced operator. Repairs on all machines.

Bernard Corbett, 67 Walnut street, Norwood, Mass. Experienced operator, (Massachusetts licensed.) References. Capable of managing house if desired.

L. Darier, 109 West Fifty-fourth street, care of Y. M. C. A. French branch, electrician and licensed operator, 2 years' experience. Power or Edison machine.

Edw. Latell, 1396 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Experienced licensed operator or manager.

H. Hudson, 158 Earl street, Kingston, Ont., Canada. References, David Heller, 938 North Fifth street, Philadelphia, Pa. Experienced operator.

Fred W. Tross, Orpheum Theater, Lockport, N. Y. Four years' experience.

R. Ed. Johnston, P. O. Box 409, Reading, Pa. Three years' experience.

ECONOMY FILM SERVICE

410 LIBERTY AVENUE
PITTSBURG

WE HAVE MORE FILM IN STOCK THAN ANY OTHER COMPETITOR

EVERY Reel is in first-class condition. The old stock has been disposed of. We have just received Five Hundred Reels from a foreign exchange, like new. We guarantee subjects to please any audience. We give all customers their proportionate share of new subjects. If you are paying big prices remember our service is Quality and Low Prices.

2 changes,	shipped	two	at a time,	1000	feet	each	$ 6.00
4	"	"	two	"	"	"	10.00
6	"	"	three	"	"	"	14.00
12	"	"	four	"	"	"	25.00

POSTER AND SONG SLIDES WITHOUT ADDITIONAL CHARGE

VAN ALLIN CO'S

Sensation Song Slides

WRITE FOR LATEST LISTS OF NEW ILLUSTRATIONS

Lantern Slides

FOR ANY PURPOSE MADE TO ORDER

We are the largest manufacturers in the United States

GET OUR PRICES!

THE VAN ALLIN CO.

1343 Broadway, New York

INDEPENDENT FILMS PLEASE

INVESTIGATE this when you are ready for business. WE do not promise to make you rich, or give you something for nothing. BUT we DO promise you the squarest deal you ever had in SUPERIOR FILM SERVICE.

THAT IS THE KEYNOTE OF OUR SUCCESS

WONDERLAND FILM EXCHANGE

Suite 1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Block - Pittsburgh, Pa.

SEVERAL PAYING THEATRES FOR SALE. Apply, Theatres, care of Moving Picture World. Do not write or call unless you mean business.

PUT YOUR THEATRE ON A BUSINESS BASIS

I will systematize it and make it pay. S. M. WALKER, care of The Moving Picture World 913-915 Schiller Bldg., Chicago

I BUY FILM

I pay cash for new and second-hand film in good condition. How much have you for sale? Send list of subjects and price. Positively no junk wanted. New and second-hand machines and films in good condition of all makes bought, sold and exchanged. Newman Motion Picture Co , 293 Burnside St., Portland, Oregon.

FOR SALE—FILMS

Second-hand Power's Machines, Phonographs, Excello Arc Lights, 25x40 foot black tent, 100 Light Dynamo, little used in our oulside theatres.

Wm. Bullock American Theatre
716 E. Superior Avenue - Cleveland, Ohio

CHAIRS

Folding Steel Opera Chairs. All kinds Fireproof Booths. Resistance Grids and Wire Repairing.

New York Steel & Production Co.
NEWARK, N. J.

Money for you. In towns withou: electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

Indianapolis Calcium Light Co.

W. M. SWAIN, Manager

116 South Capitol Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

Our film service makes your bank account grow fat, Mr. Manager. Write us to-day and we will tell you why.

We are members of the Film Service Association

OELSCHLAEGER BROS.
110 East 23d Street, New York

Importers of OPTICAL GOODS

Condensing Lenses
Objectives for Projection Lanterns
Tubes & Jackets for Moving Picture Machines.

Supplied to the Trade Only. Write for prices

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.

Wholesale and Retail
Sterecopticon and Lantern Slides

56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

ONE TOUCH OF NATURE.—A pathetic story of a mother's grief. No more intense emotion can be imagined than a mother's grief for her dead child, and this Biograph subject beautifully portrays a story of maternal bereavement. It also shows the seemingly cruel workings of fate in taking from the earth the happy, well cared for child while leaving the poor, ragged orphan to be starved and beaten by a couple of merciless wretches, into whose hands she has fallen. Policeman John Murray is the proud father of a little girl and the happy husband of a dutiful wife. Both father's and mother's whole life is centered in their little one, and the little family are as happy as can be until death tears the baby from them. As the child's soul leaves its body, so the poor heart-broken mother's reason leaves her. What an awful blow to Murray. The loss of his child was indeed hard to bear, but his dear wife hurled into a living death was worse. A trained nurse must be her constant companion, and the poor woman spent her time fondling the dolls and playthings of her lost one. Murray's beat lay in the tenderloin section of the city, and many curious characters came under his notice. In a cellar under a junk shop there lived, or rather existed, a Sicilian couple of the very lowest type, who eked an existence by begging and theft. A little orphan girl fell into their keeping and they forced her to beg on the street for them, beating her into submission if she refused, which the child's proud spirit inclined her to do. Out in the snow storm, thinly clad, the poor child was made to stand at the stage doors of the theaters or in front of saloons to work upon the sympathy of the generous hearted habitues. She was always accompanied by the Sicilian woman, who took good care that she didn't escape. Murray, on his rounds, runs into them and his suspicions are aroused, so he follows them and enters their hovel just in time to see the poor creature receiving a frightful beating. With a terrific blow he sends the man reeling to the floor and hurling the woman on top of him he seizes the child in his arms. At this moment a couple of his squad, in answer to his whistle, enter and take the Sicilians in charge. An idea dawns on him. He takes the little one home and presents her to his poor demented wife. The presence of the child at once restores her reason, so the clouds of sorrow are dissipated and happiness reigns. The picture presents a moral showing the singular working of God's justice in taking to Himself an unsullied soul that another might be saved. Length, 724 feet.

EDISON MFG. CO.

THE LOST NEW YEAR'S DINNER.—Synopsis of scenes:

Jack and Alice, lately wed, have received an invitation to dine with the old folks on New Year's Day, leave town for the farm, in their automobile, with orders to the chauffeur to make good time, as they are somewhat late.

All goes well until a spurt is attempted, when they unluckily run into a "trap" set by some crafty country constables, and are haled to the district court. After a long wait, in line, their case is called by the pompous and self-important "hayseed" Justice.

In the meantime, at the farm, the old folks are experiencing some trouble with the turkey. As if scenting danger, "Mr. Turk" roosts high, and "Pa" has troubles of his own; sometimes the turkey is on top, and sometimes "Pa" has an inning. "Ma" is an agonized and interested spectator, but her well-meant advice does not help "Pa." Eventually, things calm down. Traces of the conflict are removed, "Ma" and "Pa" primp up a bit, and complacently await the arrival of the "newlyweds."

To return to our young couple—we find them the center of an interested group in the court room. Their case has been reached and a fine is imposed—but, "horrors!" Hubby finds he has forgotten his purse! They are doomed to spend New Year's Day in the lock-up, where they dine on bread and coffee, and resolve never again to be late, or spurt, or forget their money. App. length, 900 feet.

A PERSISTENT SUITOR.—Synopsis of scenes:

The tender passion rules the same the world over. Whatever the clime, or race, or color, the course of true love seldom runs smooth. A pair of dusky lovers experience trials and tribulations and the unavailing grouch of the girl's daddy, the Deacon.

Jim is a colored dandy—fearless and nervy—determined to win the coy and winsome Gladys, the Deacon's daughter. Somehow the Deacon does not care for Jim, and a state of war exists that keeps the old man bordering on frenzy, and in hot water all the time. Jim, ordered from the parlor, slides around to the kitchen and meets the delighted Gladys, and the love making is resumed.

After many hairbreadth escapes from Jim's devilishness, the Deacon waylays Jim in a dark neck of the woods, made up as a ghost. Jim saun-

Do NOT put on the PASSION PLAY Without Music and Lecture

If you are too far away from New York or Philadelphia to engage the services of the first and foremost lecturer on Moving Pictures in general and the Passion Play in particular, get his lecture in print. Complete lecture on every scene with valuable suggestions as to music and interesting introductory.

W. STEPHEN BUSH

This copyrighted lecture running exactly with the pictures and giving full explanation and commentary on every scene sent postpaid to any address in U. S. or Canada on receipt of one dollar. Address

W. Stephen Bush, 155 N. Conestoga St., Phila., Pa.
May be reached at any time by phone in residence, Belmont 4484.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—I have prepared special lectures with suggestions as to music and effects for every feature film turned out by the Edison licensees. The list comprises over a hundred subjects and includes the very latest feature films. Price per lecture, 25c.

United States OR Canadian

PATENTS $25.00

We pay all expenses and disbursements except Government fees. Write to us for preliminary opinions on all legal matters. No charge unless retained. Associates enable us to investigate and prosecute foreign interests with dispatch.

Our Pamphlet for the Asking

THE INDUSTRIAL LAW LEAGUE, Inc.
170 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

Wanted INFORMATION concerning Moving Picture Theatres for Sale, Catalogues of M.P. Machines and supplies—Supplies for M.P. Theatres. Advance sheets of films and song slides. THE EASTERN AMUSEMENT CO., P. O. Box 95, ST. ALBANS, VT.

The Chicago Transparency Co.

Manufacturers of

Plain and Colored Lantern Slides and Illustrated Songs
69 DEARBORN STREET CHICAGO, ILL.
Frederick T. McLeod, Manager

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!

FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!

Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material

COMPLETE, $175.00

VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI

Are using these chairs in their best theatres.

AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING

OPERA CHAIRS

Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating

The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

Still Another New Model. Most Up-to-date Machine on the Market

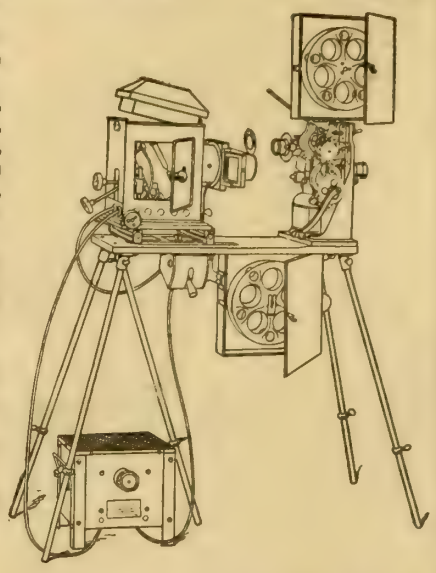
UNDERWRITERS' MODEL (Type "B") ONE-PIN MOVEMENT

Approved by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters and the Bureau of Water, Gas and Electricity

IMPROVED Take-up, Rheostat, Automatic Shutter, Revolving Shutter, Arc Lamp, Adjustable Stand, Metal Cabinet, Film Guard, Film Protector, Motion Picture Lens, Metal Slide Carrier, Film Re-Winder, Steel-Faced Fibre Gears, Star Wheel, Cam, Cam Pin, Shafts, Sprockets, Steel Mitre Gears.

With Underwriter's Model Rheostat (Type "B") 40 Amp. $225.00 / 25 Amp. $220.00

Send for Illustrated Descriptive Circular No. 380



Improved Exhibition Model - $155.00
One-Pin Movement

Universal Model - - $75.00

An Opportunity to Change your Two-Pin to a One-Pin Movement Mechanism $25.00

Will Improve Your Exhibition 50%

Send for Illustrated Descriptive Circular No. 370

EDISON FILMS

Exhibitors who show them draw the biggest crowds. They're high-class and they please

NEW SUBJECTS

SHIPMENT DECEMBER 29, 1908.

The Lost New Year's Dinner—Comedy

No. 6408. Code, VENEYS. Approx. Length, 900 feet.

SHIPMENT JANUARY 1, 1909

A Persistent Suitor—Comedy

No. 6409. Code, VENEZIANO. Approx. Length, 900 Feet.

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS

SHIPMENT JANUARY 5, 1909

UNDER NORTHERN SKIES. Dramatic

No. 6410. Code, VENEZOLANO Approx. Length, 900 feet.

SHIPMENT JANUARY 8, 1909

THE WORM WILL TURN. Comedy

No. 6411. Code, VENGADORAS Approx. Length, 900 feet.

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 304 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. Waters, 41 E. 21st St., New York George Breck, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO. Members Film Service Association FILMS

Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries.

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.

Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

ters along—but does not score "worth a cent." Instead he gives the Deacon the chase of his life.

The war becomes warmer. The Deacon grows thin—runs shy of ideas. Jim, more determined and sassy, keeps the old man guessing. Gladys' love grows stronger, and the wedding day seems nearer.

The grand finale comes when the Deacon, trying to escape Jim, climbs to the roof of the meeting house, falls through the ceiling, and recovers consciousness in time to gracefully surrender and bestow his blessing on the happily wedded Jim and Gladys. App. length, 900 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

THE NEIGHBORS' KIDS.—This is a comedy film which differs materially from the films we have lately produced.

It tells the story of two little girls and their mischievous pranks. A neighbor visits her friend, taking with her her child, a little girl about the same age as the friend's little girl. Both children being full of mischief, they immediately put into execution a number of startling and ingenious pranks. While the laundry maid is entertaining her policeman lover, the children pin the policeman's coat tail to a sheet which is being ironed by the laundry maid. They next get a trap containing some mice and let them loose in the parlor where their parents are entertaining guests at a card party. They put the cat in the piano, make finger marks with flour on the back of father's coat, causing his wife to think he has been embraced by the cook; they find grandfather asleep, his slippers lying on the floor, and nail the slippers down, and grandpa upon awakening receives a severe fall. He discovers the culprits and pretends that he is about to give them a severe spanking, but finally ends in embracing them and enjoying the jokes with them. Length, 550 feet.

THE HAUNTED LOUNGE.—A tramp in his haste to escape from the clutches of the law, rushes into a second-hand store and hides in a folding lounge. An old maid later purchases the lounge, and after having it delivered to her house, discovers the lounge moving. Becoming frightened she sells it to a neighbor. The neighbor, after undergoing a similar experience, sells it to someone else; the lounge changing hands continually until at last it is sold back to the second-hand dealer, and ultimately purchased by the same policeman from whom the tramp escaped. After having it delivered to his residence, the policeman attempts to sleep, but the lounge starts to move, the policeman clinging to it. After riding about the room, sometimes on top, sometimes underneath, the lounge starts for the door, goes down the stairs to the hallway out the back door into the yard. The policeman decides to burn the lounge, and after it is burned to ashes, behold the tramp standing in the center of the ash heap unharmed. The police arrest him for disturbing the peace.

This is the story briefly told, but is brimful of clean laughable comedy; the lounge in transit falling from the express wagon, out the window, being dumped down stairs, etc. We consider this one of our best efforts. Length, 370 feet.

KALEM COMPANY.

A FLORIDA FEUD; Or, Love in the Everglades.—This is the first of a series of moving pictures taken by the Kalem Company in Florida. And the story it tells is said to be a very faithful portrayal of conditions which exist in certain parts of Florida to-day. Feuds are common, more so perhaps than in any other section of the country.

Our story deals with the Guthrie and Cordova families, Sue Gutherie and young Cordova are lovers, but the fathers of the two families are bitter enemies and we are here to show you how the love affair finally triumphed after being entangled in the meshes of a cruel family warfare.

The scenes were all taken on the east coast of the St. John's River, south of Jacksonville, Florida.

Scene 1.—Sue Guthrie's Lover is Ben Cordova, Son of Her Father's Enemy.

Scene 2.—Old Man Cordova Thrashes Sue Guthrie's Brother.

Scene 3.—Old Man Guthrie Breaks Out Anew When He Hears of the Thrashing.

Scene 4.—Cordova Is Shot by Guthrie from Ambush.

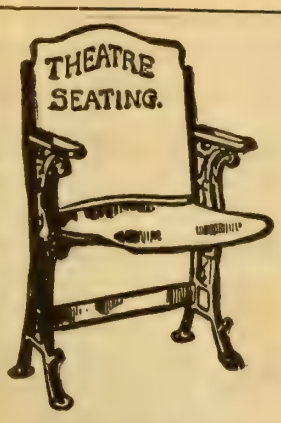
Scene 5.—The Feud in Full Swing.

Scene 6.—Sue Guthrie Falls Over the Cliff and Is Rescued by Ben Cordova.

Scene 7.—A Cracker Sunday—On the Way to Church—Reconciliation and the Lovers United.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

CURRENT NEWS ITEMS (Gaumont).—This subject portrays very vividly the impression received by an earnest newspaper reader from the items he is reading, and embodies an innovation in the production of moving picture films. The reader of the paper is viewed from the back, and as he peruses the various articles, the impressions he receives are reproduced in moving pictures presented in miniature form covering the space of the paper which he is reading. Length, 254 feet.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company

90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.

70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Kalem Films

LOVE IN THE EVERGLADES

LENGTH 890 FEET

Released January 8th, 1909

This is the first of the great Southern series, the biggest novelty of the season. A STRONG DRAMATIC STORY IN REAL TROPICAL SCENERY.

For January 15

The Sponge Fishers of Cuba

No charge for complete lectures Send your address at once

KALEM CO., Inc.

131 West 24th St., New York City

THE DEVIL'S SALE (Lux).—His Satanic Majesty has incurred an obligation and is unable to meet this, for which an execution is secured and served. A subsequent sale of his belongings is necessary and Satan vents his spleen not only upon the court but also upon the purchasers of his property in a decidedly amusing manner. Length, 410 feet.

ACROBATIC TOYS (Gaumont). This is a decidedly novel magic production and we are sure will meet with the approval of the most fastidious. Length, 294 feet.

A HEAVY HEADPIECE (Gaumont).—This is a short comedy producing the experiences of a soldier who is adorned with an exceptionally heavy headgear. Owing to the weight of the helmet he is the victim of many unfortunate difficulties and proves the object of much ridicule. Length, 264 feet.

NOT GUILTY (Gaumont).—This is a strong, dramatic production, and portrays the love of a young farmer for a country maiden, and because of the refusal of the lady's parent to permit the courting and the subsequent finding of the parent murdered in cold blood, the young man is accused of murder, but through the intelligence of the police official's dog, a clue of the real murderer is secured, and the latter is run down. The subject is well dramatized and is one of exceptional merit. Length, 807 feet.

BOBBY HAS A PIPE DREAM (Gaumont).—This is an exceptionally fine subject depicting in a very vivid manner how Bobby, an English policeman, goes to a theater and is so enthused by what he sees that when he goes out to night duty he experiences various visions and meets with severe censure at the hands of his superior. Length, 410 feet.

THE BLACK SHEEP (Rossi).—This is a subject full of pathos and depicts very vividly the sharp contrast between the two principal characters. Two brothers, one doing everything possible to assist his mother and the entire family in their efforts to maintain an honest livelihood, and the other using every energy to evade the responsibility resting upon him and to avoid every honest means of maintaining a livelihood. A number of strong sensations are depicted, and the subject is rendered in a highly dramatic manner. Length, 600 feet.

THE HOLY HERMIT (Gaumont).—In this subject we find the singular incident of a community ruled by its women residents. The men at one time governed matters but incurring the animosity of the hermit aroused his vengeance, and the rule of authority is transferred to the feminine sex. A series of comical incidents are portrayed. The hermit having accomplished his purpose in humiliating the male constituency, heeds their supplications and again transfers the ruling power. A very interesting subject and well dramatized. Length, 500 feet.

IN BONDAGE (Gaumont).—This story portrays the condition of the Roman Empire several centuries ago, and portrays in particular the incident of a slave in love with another slave and thwarted by his master who is also in love with this slave; seeking vengeance, but through miscalculated events, causes the death of the one he loves. Excellent photographic quality and details throughout. The incidents portrayed are so true to life and conditions existing at that time as it is possible to produce them. Length, 674 feet.

THE LITTLE MARCHIONESS AND THE YOUNG SHEPHERDESS (Gaumont).—Story with an object lesson. A demure little miss, discontented with her station in life, desires to be free and exchanges positions with a young shepherdess. The latter unsophisticated as she is makes a failure of her endeavors in the social world in which she is expected to move, and the former becomes discontented, because of her inability to cope with the situations and conditions as found in the lower stations of life. The coloring appropriately applied renders a beautiful effect throughout. Length, 434 feet.

IN THE NICK OF TIME (Aquila).—This subject portrays the incident of two parents, becoming infuriated because of minor differences of their children, engage in mortal combat and are rescued only by the persistent pleading of their children who have managed to adjudicate their differences and are bent upon establishing peace between the two households. Length, 560 feet.

GEORGE AND MARGARET (Raleigh & Roberts).—This is a story of love and devotion. Two young people, devoted to each other's interests, are intent upon making love to each other, when the irate parent of the young lady interferes and causes the eviction of the young man. The latter, disheartened, enlists in the army and enters upon active service. In the performance of his duty he is wounded and taken to a hospital. The superior officer adorns him with a medal of honor. The papers publish the valor of the young man and one of these publications gets into the hands of the father of the young lady and his objections to the young man's love for his daughter are promptly removed. Taking his daughter with him, he immediately repairs to the hospital where he engages in a conversation with the young man and then imparts

HOTEL IMPERIAL

ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF

BROADWAY 31st TO 32d ST.

NEW YORK'S MOST POPULAR HOTEL

Headquarters—during the Convention, January 9th to 11th. Accommodations should be promptly engaged. Apply to

COPELAND TOWNSEND, Manager

MOVING PICTURE PRINTING SAMPLES $1.00 By Mail, Postpaid.

Passion Play Printing. Catalogues.

I. W. ALLEN, Beverly, Mass.

CALEHUFF

A Member of the FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION

Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk. MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.

LATEST SONG SLIDES $5.00 per set

N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs JUST OUT

I Want Some One to Call Me Dearie Sailor Boy
Under the Evening Star
If You Loved Me as I Loved You
When You Love a Summer Girl
And More Yet Besides
She Is My Bonnie Jean and I'm Her Sandy
Won't You Come Over and Play Croquet

DeWitt C. Wheeler

120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

CLEAN FILMS

Can be had only by the use of

THE FAMOUS PARKER FILM CLEANSER

Samples sent by express upon receipt of 50c

For full particulars write to

THE PARKER SUPPLY CO.

2634 Mission Street, San Francisco, Cal.

Do You Suppose

DO YOU SUPPOSE that a House of OLDEST standing, and now with four Completely Equipped Film Exchanges of its own, would continue to grow as we have Year after Year.

If

those who from the infancy of the Film Business have been served here, were not satisfied?

And If

new customers were not continually coming to us because of the sterling qualities of our Service?

The advantages that have won their confidence might reasonably invite your preference.

YOU are sure that what you get here is RIGHT.

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

Argyle Building,
KANSAS CITY, MO.

59 Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Eccles Building,
OGDEN, UTAH

Foreign Office:
HAVANA, CUBA

the joyful news that his objections to their match have been removed. Length, 667 feet.

KALEM —

PATHE FRERES.

ST. MORITZ.—So much is told us Americans about the grandeur of the Alps and the beautiful country of Switzerland that we try to stretch our imagination and travel there in fancy. But, strange to say, we can never appreciate the beauty of this country until we have the privilege and pleasure of seeing such a picture as this, which gives us a clear idea of the beauty of this country and the happy customs of the people who are fortunate enough to live in such a magnificent place. This picture is taken in St. Moritz and shows us how dwellers there enjoy life during the cold winters with their many sports. The first picture shows the crowds on the ice playing hockey; then we see the great sport of tobogganing, which is enjoyed by old and young. The town is situated on a hillside, which affords great opportunities for this sport, and the toboggans start at one end of the town and go all through the place, having it so arranged that they come back to the starting point. The children take their sleds to school and it is enjoyable to see them when the hours of study are over, starting for home down the toboggan slide.

The last picture shows the great winter carnival, which is a feature of the winter's festivities, showing all the people dressed in grotesque costumes on the ice, dancing and skating around and enjoying life, as only they know how to enjoy it. Length, 623 feet.

STRASBURG.—This film is sure to meet with the approval of all who are fortunate enough to see it, for it takes us on a trip through the famous old City of Strasburg, showing us the ancient cathedral with the remarkable old clock, also the main street of the city, which is a very busy and up-to-date thoroughfare. Next we take a ride down the beautiful river, and enjoy the many quaint scenes along the picturesque banks. The public gardens are worthy of special mention for they are a credit to the old town with their beautiful lawns and well-trimmed trees and magnificent flowers in profusion.

We get a good view of the soldiers drilling on the public square, also some of the magnificent mansions of which the city can proudly boast.

The last picture shows us the stork, as a family pet, perched on the housetops and coming down to get food for the young. They are taken good care of by their owners, and we see one getting his bath and cared for similar to the way Americans care for their dogs. Length, 462 feet.

COLLECTION OF STAMPS.—This beautifully colorred picture shows the interior of a room all decorated with postage stamps of different countries, and an old wizard, who performs some wonderful tricks, holds our attention and shows us some remarkable transformation scenes. He has a large screen in the background, where he causes to appear the postage stamps of different countries, with a group of girls who perform the national dances in exquisite costumes. After showing all, there is a grand ensemble of all the dancers, and the film ends showing a pretty tableau. Length, 508 feet.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

THE TENDERFOOT.—A comedy depicting cowboy pastimes at Red Dog Gulch. Bill Loomis has charge of a large ranch owned by an English syndicate.

The manager, who resides in New York, has a brother, Bertie by name. Bertie has heard of the wild West and is filled with a desire to emulate some of its heroes. By jove, I'll show these fellows how we ah-ah-ride in England, don't cher know.

He gets his brother to write to the foreman, instructing Bill to teach him the ranching business. Things are dull at Red Dog, the boys are loafing around the Palace hotel. Bill arrives with the news that Bertie is coming. Let's rope a cayuse and start Bertie's education right. The boys proceed to get busy; they rope a wild one, and lead it back to the hitching rail in front of the Palace, and await Bertie's arrival. Bertie's clothes are of the latest cut affected on the Strand. Accompanied by John, his faithful valet, and carrying Ponto, his thoroughbred Yorkshire (the dog's front locks tied prettily with a pink ribbon), Bertie applies for the best room in the Palace. The boys at the sight of Bertie and his outfit, seek shelter under the tables and behind the bar, choking with laughter. Oh, we won't do a thing to that tenderfoot (and they don't).

Bertie's troubles begin when he inspects his bedroom. The chairs have all been fixed up as well as the bed for his reception. The valet sits on a chair which promptly flattens out. The same thing occurs to Bertie when he sits on the bed. By this time he is actually real angry and repairs to the office to make a complaint. As he enters the office his anger evaporates, and for the first time in his life his placid nerves get a real shock.

See here, landlord! Bang! Bang! From every direction the cowboys cut loose with their six-shooters.

Bertie has heard of Indians, and with a frightened yell he and his valet make a wild dash for the open, followed by their tormentors. Bill

A CHANCE OF YOUR LIFE TIME

TO START THE NEW YEAR RIGHT

Selig! Selig! Selig!

Was the cry for 1908, always showed to packed houses. Don't overlook the BEST BET of the COMING YEAR

Three Comedies for One Night's Entertainment

Is Selig's next. Nothing like these pictures has ever been staged in the comedy line. It will keep you laughing all the while

The Tenderfoot

A Comedy of the West
Length 416 feet

The Tyrant's Dream

A Comedy Full of Life and Up to Date
Length 420 feet

Schooldays

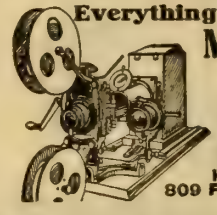
This Comedy will Bring You Back to Childhood Days
Length 164 feet

RELEASED JANUARY 7, 1909

Get in Touch and Order from Your Nearest Film Exchange. THEY ALL KEEP SELIG'S FILMS

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.
45-47-49 Randolph Street
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

Everything in NEW and S. H.



Motion Picture Machines

Films, Stereopticons, Song Slides and Supplies. Same wanted. Catalogues free.

HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

The New York World says: "All NICKELODEONS are Not NICKELODEOUS"

Especially when they don't use

Perfection Announcement Slides

Send for our large illustrated catalog, over 120 variaties

LEVI CO., Inc.

64 E 14th St., New York. U. S. A.

All First-class Film Exchanges carry our slides in stock ropes the now thoroughly frightened Bertie and the scenes that follow are ludicrous in the extreme.

ASK FOR THEM

118

Bertie is attired in a pair of "chaps" and placed on a broncho. He hangs on for dear life, but the broncho soon spills Bertie.

The boys then drag him back to the Palace and finish his education by stripping him of his "chaps," tossing him in a blanket, and many other methods of initiation, known only to the cowboy fraternity. Bertie gets all he wants, and telegraphs home for a remittance—I cawn't stand the blooming climate, don't cher know.

A characteristic comedy that will please all. Nothing just like it has been seen in motion pictures. A laugh in every foot of the "Tenderfoot."

THE TYRANT'S DREAM.—A tyrannical husband, returning home from work in the evening after a hard day's work at the office, finds his supper only in preparation instead of being ready as usual, and in a rage abuses his frightened wife and her mother, who are making strenuous efforts to hasten the tardy meal and appease the wrath of their lord and master. After a scene of tears on the part of the wife and defiance on the part of the mother-in-law, the irritable husband adjourns to the library and buries himself in his paper. Worn out by the exertions of the day, he soon falls into a troubled sleep. The door of the cabinet flies open, and a little imp of mischief bounds into the room. Waving his magic wand over the head of the slumbering tyrant, he laughs in glee as he sees the workings of his mysterious art.

The tyrannical husband is at once launched into dreamland. The library fades away and an office appears. The stenographer is at work at her desk and the office boy, taking advantage of his master's absence, is reading a dime novel, his feet on the desk and a cigarette stuck in his mouth. The tyrant arrives. The office boy is kicked into a corner, and later sent on an errand. The office boy exits, and Mr. Grouch begins to flirt with the blond stenographer. Enter wife and mother-in-law. Tableau. At once all is confusion. The wife tackles the stenographer, while mother sails into the tyrant. There is only one way of escape, by the window, and through it the guilty husband dives and lands on his head on the pavement below. More dead than alive he staggers away.

We next see him running down the street. Turning a corner he bumps into the fleeing stenographer, who, losing her wig in the melee, presents a most terrifying appearance to the escaping husband. Suddenly the wife and mother-in-law appear before him out of the very air, and proceed to belabor him with their umbrellas. Just as he is about to succumb to this harsh treatment, they disappear into space, and the terrified victim dashes madly away.

He sees a horse and buggy standing by the curb, and confiscates it, thinking to make good his escape. He starts to step into the buggy, when, horror upon horror, the dreaded wife and mother-in-law are seated in the vehicle. With a frightened scream the tyrant staggers back. In an instant horse and buggy and all disappear into air.

On he goes from one adventure to another, always haunted by the dread apparition of the enraged females, until finally he spies a ladder leaning against the side of a building. It offer an avenue of escape, and up he goes. He is just reaching the top, when before him again appear the two dreaded faces. Clutching at the air wildly, the terror stricken man plunges headlong to the ground below. Presto, the avengers are standing over his prostrate body before the twinkling of an eye. Gathering the now helpless wreck of a man up in their arms, the two women bear him away.

We next see them cramming his limp form into a large barrel and piling on great quantities of combustible materials. They set fire to the pile, and up in smoke the unfortunate victim goes. The fire fades away, and again we see the library and the sleeping husband still seated in his arm chair, squirming under the torture of the little imp of mischief, who, with a hot poker, is burning the hands and feet of the household tyrant.

Suddenly the imp disappears and the husband is awakened by his wife and mother-in-law calling him to supper. The realization that he has been in the throes of a hideous nightmare dawns upon him, and so overjoyed is he that it was only a dream that he surprises both the abused women by clasping them in his arms and swearing that never again will he reign as tyrant in his now appreciated home.

Following this comedy will be another short comedy.

SCHOOLDAYS.—This picture will bring you back to your childhood days. The scene shows two boys who are great acrobats and do some wonderful work, that will keep you smiling, and when the end comes you will be wishing to see another Selig picture. These three comedies will be the biggest hit of the year, and no doubt will pack your house to the capacity. Order at once from your film exchange, as these pictures will be released January 7, 1909.

S. LUBIN.

THE HOUSE AT THE BRIDGE.—The Foreman.—A number of girls working on benches. Among these Etta. The foreman throws longing glances at her. He tries to embrace here, but is sharply rebuked. He bites his teeth and passes on.

OUR LATEST SONG HITS

Don't Take Me Home
Love Spells Trouble to Me
In the Days of '49
Mansions of Millionaires
Take Me to the Moving Pictures
You Are the Girl for Me

Religious Song Slides $4.00 per set, cash with order

ALSO 100 SETS At $2.75 per Set

WRITE FOR LISTS

HARSTN & CO.
138 East 14th Street - New York City
Phones 3812-3813 Stuyvesant

ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
No. 47 North 10th Street
Philadelphia, Pa.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License — Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

EDISON UNIVERSAL MACHINE, excellent condition and complete for sale. A bargain for $38.
C. E. Dressler, 143 E. 23rd St., N. Y.

Kinetoscopes, Films, Lanterns, Accessories, Edison Supplies.

CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St., - Kansas City

Opera Chairs Durable Prices Right Opera Chairs

Everything in the Seating Line

Second-Hand Opera Chairs Always in Stock

H. S. ANSLEY
1402 Broadway, New York City
Tel. 6203, 38th St.

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER
PRICE $5.00
THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied. Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB
340 Spruce Street
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

PRINTING for PASSION PLAY
AND OTHER SUBJECTS Send for Catalogue
HENNEGAN & CO.
126 E. 8th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio

PROMPT SERVICE COURTEOUS TREATMENT

Our Two Big Catalogues

and the completeness of our line has made us what we are. We handle all machines, a full line of instruments and supplies and negotiate a

Film Rental Service

that will stimulate your Bank Account. Give us a chance to convince you. "Catalog A" is for Traveling Exhibitors. "Catalog B" tells all about the Motion Picture Theatre. Both are FREE. State which is wanted.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY,
1038 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Cal. Dept. C. 85 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

LOOK LOOK LOOK
MR. FILM EXCHANGE

Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving.

B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

THEATRE FOR SALE

Seats 300. Very successful. City of 5000. Good show town.

R. A. HEALY,
PRINCETON, ILL.

$498 Pathe Passion Play (colored Four Parts)

Over 3000 feet on three reels

One Copy in Good Order - $200
One Copy in Fine Order - $275

If $20 is remitted either copy will be sent C.O.D, Privileged to examine for balance. 2,100 feet of films: $43 also 2,500 feet $50.

HARBACH & CO., 809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

FOR SALE

Pathe Hand Colored Passion Play complete. A-1 condition, $250.00 Lubin's Passion Play, good condition, $140. One $135 Edison Ex. Machine, magazine and Rheostat brand new, never used, $90.00. One Edison Universal Machine, used 1 week, $50. Power's Rheostat, $5. One $20 Allen Adjustable M. P. Lens, $7. One $30 Edison Phonograph $5. One pair Edison Fire Magazines, never used, $12. Four Reels of Film, A-1 condition, 3c per foot.

C. J. MURPHY, Box 171. Meadville, Pa.

NEXT

S and A

FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK OUR

New Comedy Subjects

The Haunted Lounge
(Lgth. 370 Ft.)

The Neighbors' Kids
(Lgth 550 Ft.)

READY WED. JANUARY 6th

Essanay Comedies delight more audiences than does the combined output of all other manufacturers

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

Lunch Time.—The foreman again approaches Etta, but does not find any more favor than before.

Closing Hour. The girls have left. One of the last to go is Etta. The foreman waited in a dark spot, from where he tries to take hold of Etta. At this moment the proprietor's son approaches. He protects Etta and sends the foreman away. He then accompanies her to her home.

The Foreman's Revenge.—The foreman follows Etta and the proprietor's son. He is angry and swears revenge. He waits at the bridge until the proprietor's son returns. He then knocks him down and throws his body over the bridge into the water.

The Rescue.—Etta, who has just come out of the house to throw a last glance after the polite young man, whom she did not know to be the son of the proprietor, hears a splash in the water. Without hesitation she takes a boat and rescues the young man, whom she thought had fallen into the water. Together with her mother she carries the unconscious form into the house, where she recognizes the young man as her protector.

The Proprietor's Son.—The girls are at work. The proprietor enters to ask if anybody saw his son. The foreman points to the empty chair and suggests to look for the son at Etta's home. The proprietor, the foreman and a detective start for Etta's home. There they find the lost son. The foreman accuses Etta of having tried to kill the man. Etta tells her version of the story, and is supported by the young man, who gained consciousness and listened to what had been said.

The Capture.—Seeing the game is up, the foreman runs away, hotly followed by the detective. Two shots make the foreman stop. He is handcuffed and led away to jail.

The Engagement.—The son in the meantime explained to his father the circumstances and how the girl rescued him, not knowing who he is. He asks the father's consent to marry the girl, which is gladly given. Length, 590 feet.

THE FORGOTTEN WATCH.—Mr. Hurryup has just two minutes' time to catch his train. He runs to the depot, collides with a messenger boy, who, too, is in a hurry. They both fall to the ground. When getting up Mr. Hurryup misses his watch. He accuses the messenger boy, who, by this time, is already a block away (this being a moving picture we have not used a real messenger boy). Mr. Hurryup chases after the messenger boy. He runs over many people, who, in turn, join the chase. When at last the messenger boy is caught Mr. Hurryup's butler also appears on the spot, carrying in his hand the forgotten watch. Now all turn against Mr. Hurryup, and the way he is beaten up proves that he had a hot time. Length, 285 feet.

A NEW YEAR.—Hard Luck.—Everybody is rushing; the busy life of a great street. Mike in rags. The day is cold. No work. No food for wife and child.

A Pitiful Sight.—In a dingly little room, on a wooden bed, lies a thin, ragged woman. Beside her, shivering from cold, a six-year-old girl. Mother is sick. Mike enters. There is no food in the home. The pitiful sight drives Mike to the street.

New Year's Eve.—In his richly furnished library sits the proprietor of a large factory. Mike approaches from the street, ascends a ladder, sneaks through an open window into the library and waits behind the closed curtains for an occasion to strike down the man and rob him.

A Child's Prayer.—Just then a little girl enters to kiss her father good-night. She says her prayer together with her father. This picture reminds Mike of his own little girl at home. He drops the blackjack and covers his tearful eyes. The rich manufacturer sees Mike, but does not disturb the child's prayer. When the child has left, he confronts the burglar.

A Confession.—Mike tells him of his circumstances, of his sick wife at home and of his little child who resembles the rich child. The manufacturer has pity on the man, calls wife and baby and they, all together, visit Mike's home.

I Have Work for You.—When, seeing the poor household, the rich manufacturer offers Mike work. Overcome with joy, Mike kisses his hand. A New Year has begun. Length, 265 feet.

A NEW YEAR'S GIFT.—Mr. Cook, an art connoisseur, buys a statue of Venus. His wife, who is not so artistically inclined, refuses to expose the statue in her parlor. Mrs. Cook, therefore decides to give the statue to Mrs. Walker. They again give it to another friend, and so it comes from house to house, until, on New Year's Day, it comes back to Mrs. Cook. Mrs. Cook decides that the only way to get rid of the statue is to smash it. This is done accordingly. Length, 330 feet.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

A DREAM OF WEALTH.—A tale of the seekers of '49. The story opens in the cabin of a Kentucky mountaineer. The mother and little daughter come from the house and scan the road for the husband's return. He soon comes in sight, reaches the house and all three enter and partake of their evening meal. The husband takes from his pocket a newspaper which tells in glowing terms of the discovery of rich veins of gold in California. The item makes a strong impression on the mountaineer, and after discussing the project with his wife they decide to try their fortunes in the new land. Preparations are quickly made, the little family bid farewell to their happy home and start on their long journey. The last stop before crossing the Arizona desert is made, a stock of preparations and water laid in and the journey across the desert begins. Here their hardships commence. The water tank springs a leak and the water is soon lost. One of the horses drops dead, the other is unhitched, the woman and child put on its back, while the man buckles some provisions on his back and walks beside them. The remaining horse soon becomes exhausted and dies, and the three are compelled to continue on foot. Shortly afterward the wife succumbs and dies. After caring for the body, the husband and his little girl resume the journey. But a short time elapses before the father staggers and falls. As he breathes his last two Indians come upon the scene, take the little child, who is unconscious, into their arms, and after reviving her, ride away. They reach a mining camp, proceed to the sheriff's office, tell their story and leave the orphan in his care. Fifteen years later a wedding in the town church is taking place. The orphan, now grown to womanhood, is marrying a young miner. An old feeble Indian enters the church, and the girl's attention is attracted as the men strive to throw him out. She rushes over, recognizes in him her saviour of years gone by and warmly welcomes him. After relating the story to the guests the bridegroom and the Indian depart amid cheers. Length, 612 feet.

WANTED TO BUY
BLACK TENT
20 x 60
Give full description and best price
Address B. F. SEGER, Manson, Iowa

For Sale===FILMS.

PASSION PLAY, Colored.

Nearly new. One reel Passion Play from Annunciation to Jesus and the Samaritan. Four reels of film subjects—Holy City, Jesus Sold by His Brothers, Ancient Gladiator, Daniel in Lion's Den, Balshazzer's Feast, The Tramp, Joy of Tight Boots, Late for Lunch, Lost Leg of Mutton, Life of Cowboy. All 5 reels $125.

Lubin Machine, $55.
Edison " $50.
Oxygen Gas Making Outfit Model B, $15.

Prof. A. H. WOEHLCKE, Jr.
821 Perkiomen st., Philadelphia, Pa.

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
New York Office, 1402 Broadway

Latest Films.

If the films of any manufacturer are not correctly listed it is because they have neglected to furnish the information requested.

Abbreviations: Dr.—Dramatic. Co.—Comedy. Ind.—Industrial. Tr.—Tragic. P.—Pathetic. H.—Historical.

Edison Licensees.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Dec. 25—Turning Over a New Leaf (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 29—The Lost New Year's Dinner (Co.).....900 ft.
Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 29—The Lost New Year's Dinner (Comedy)....900 ft.
Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....900 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Dec. 23—Who Is Smoking that Rope? (Co.).....400 ft.
Dec. 30—In Golden Days (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 6—The Haunted Lounge (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 6—The Neighbors' Kids (Comedy).....550 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Dec. 25—Red Cloud (Dr.).....880 ft.
Jan. 1—The Trial of the White Man (Dramatic)..975 ft.
Jan. 8—A Florida Feud (Dramatic)..... ft.

S. LUBIN.

Dec. 21—Christmas Eve at Sunset (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Dec. 24—Restored by Repentance (Dramatic).....865 ft.
Dec. 31—The House at the Bridge (Dramatic).....590 ft.
Dec. 31—The Forgotten Watch (Comedy).....285 ft.
Dec. 28—A New Year (Pathetic).....565 ft.
Dec. 28—A New Year's Gift (Comedy).....330 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Dec. 21—Faithful Little Doggy (Co.).....285 ft.
Dec. 21—Too Much Snuff (Co.).....246 ft.
Dec. 23—Antique Wardrobe (Co.).....640 ft.
Dec. 23—An Awkward Habit (Co.).....331 ft.
Dec. 25—The Gallant Guardsman (Dr.).....571 ft.
Dec. 25—Silhouettes (Magical).....371 ft.
Dec. 26—Bill Wants to Marry a Toe Dancer (Dr.)..462 ft.
Dec. 26—Water Sports (Educational).....436 ft.
Dec. 28—St. Moritz (Educational).....623 ft.
Dec. 28—Mr. Soaker at the Seaside (Comedy).....278 ft.
Dec. 30—The Ragtag's Ball (Comedy).....544 ft.
Dec. 30—The Sicilian's Revenge (Tragic).....387 ft.
Jan. 1—Anonymous Letter (Dramatic).....420 ft.
Jan. 1—Strasburg (Educational).....462 ft.
Jan. 2—Collection of Stamps (Magical).....508 ft.
Jan. 2—Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....394 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Dec. 24—The Duke's Motto (Dr.).....1000 ft.
Dec. 31—In the Shenandoah Valley (Historic Drama).....1000 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tenderfoot (Comedy).....416 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tyrant's Dream (Comedy).....420 ft.
Jan. 7—Schooldays (Comedy).....164 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Dec. 22—The Merchant of Venice (Dramatic).....980 ft.
Dec. 26—The Flower Girl of Paris (Dramatic).....680 ft.
Dec. 26—The Hazers (Dramatic).....300 ft.
Dec. 29—Monkey Land (Serio-Comic).....330 ft.
Dec. 29—A Dream of Wealth (Dramatic).....612 ft.
Jan. 2—Cure for Bashfulness (Comedy).....520 ft.
Jan. 2—A Sister's Love (Dramatic).....435 ft.

Biograph Licensees.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Dec. 22—The Christmas Burglars (Dramatic).....679 ft.
Dec. 25—Mr. Jones at the Ball (Comedy).....503 ft.
Dec. 29—The Helping Hand (Pathetic).....841 ft.
Jan. 1—One Touch of Nature (Pathetic).....724 ft.

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY.

[illegible]c. 21-26—The Black Sheep (Dramatic).....600 ft.
[illegible]c. 21-26—The Holy Hermit (Dramatic).....500 ft.
[illegible]c. 21-26—In Bondage (Dramatic).....674 ft.
[illegible]. 21-26—The Little Marchioness and the Young Shepherdess (Pathetic).....434 ft.
[illegible]. 21-26—In the Nick of Time (Comedy).....560 ft.
[illegible]. 21-26—George and Margaret (Dramatic).....667 ft.
[illegible]ec. 28-Jan. 2—Current News Items (Comedy).....254 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—The Devil's Sale (Comedy).....410 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Acrobatic Toys (Comic).....294 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—A Heavy Headpiece (Comedy).....264 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Not Guilty (Dramatic).....807 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Bobby Has a Pipe Dream (Comedy).410 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 16—Changing of Souls (Comedy).....475 ft.
Dec. 16—The Spring Lock (Comic).....351 ft.
Dec. 23—Hercules the Athlete (Dr.).....500 ft.
Dec. 23—Count Zeppelin's Aerostat (Ind.).....279 ft.
Dec. 30—The Queen's Love (P.).....580 ft.
Dec. 30—The Quack (Comic).....360 ft.

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE.

Dec. 21—Cabby's Sweetheart (Dramatic).....300 ft.
Dec. 21—Baby's Playmate (Sensational).....375 ft.
Dec. 21—The Baby and the Loafer (Dramatic).....350 ft.
Dec. 21—Spoof and His Monkey (Comedy).....350 ft.
Dec. 14—A Free Pardon (Dramatic).....525 ft.
Dec. 14—Harmless Lunatic's Escape (Comedy).....350 ft.
Dec. 14—The Serpent's Tooth (Dramatic).....400 ft.
Dec. 14—How the Dodger Obtained a Meal (Comedy).520 ft.

The Kosmik Economizer

Price $50

Approved by Underwriters' Laboratories.

An inductive resistance device for controlling alternating current on motion picture arc lamp.

STATISTICS OF EFFICIENCY

Efficiency = = 98 per cent
Economy saves = 68 per cent
Insulation test = 2000 volts
Temperature rise less than 25 degrees

Adjustable without changing connections. Shipping weight 96 ponnds

Kleine Optical Co.

52 State Street CHICAGO

NEW YORK 662 Sixth Avenue
DENVER Boston Building
DES MOINES Commercial Bldg.
WINNIPEG 613 Ashdown Block Manitoba, Canada
BOSTON 687 Washington St., Boylston Bldg.
SEATTLE Mehlhorn Bldg.
BIRMINGHAM 2008 3d Av. Harrington Bldg.
MONTREAL, CAN. La Patrie Bldg.
INDIANAPOLIS Traction Building
LOS ANGELES 369 Pacific Electric Bldg.
DALLAS, TEX. 405 Main St.
SAN ANTONIO 304 Conroy Bldg.
ST. LOUIS 523-4 Commercial Bldg., 6th and Olive Streets
ST. JOHN, N. B. 94 Prince William Street, Stockton Building

When you see PERFECT MOTION PICTURES
You'll find, in the Operator's Booth, THE MOTIOGRAPH
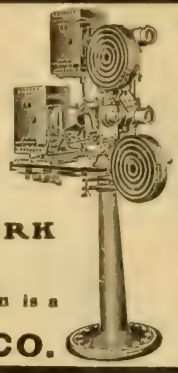
The Latest, the best and most durable
MOTION PICTURE MACHINE
New York, Boston, Chicago and Frisco approved
Flickerless, Steady and wonderfully Brilliant Pictures, absolutely Fireproof, Heavy, Strong and Durable.
Designed and built especially for
MOTION PICTURE THEATRE WORK
The Stereo Motiograph
combining the Motiograph and Double Dissolving Stereopticon is a Wonder and will increase your receipts
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.



We've quadrupled our facilities during the past few months and still unable to meet the demand.
WHY? Its the QUALITY OF MACHINE AND PICTURES
We also manufacture the RHEOSTATO Current Saver saves 60 to 75% on Electric Bills, the Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit, Non-Pop Calcium Jets, Enterprise Lanterns etc., and are Agents for Oxone, Oxylithe, Arco Carbons, Song Slides, etc.
For sale by progressive and up-to-date dealers
Write for Catalogue and particulars
83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

NEXT ISSUE JANUARY 9, 1909

Soldier's Heroism

(Cines)

FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.

Representing
145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange
NINTH FLOOR
MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

This Will Bring You Money

ORDER QUICK

Twenty-five slides from original negatives of the Earthquake Zone

in Sicily and Italy, showing Cathedrals, important buildings, and Mount Etna.
Any number you want from the set. Price 25c. each, plain; 50c. colored.
Orders accompanied by cash will receive first attention.

WE ISSUE EACH WEEK

Special Feature Films

SEND FOR LATEST LISTS

Williams, Brown & Earle
918 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

EASTERN FILM EXCHANGE

Wabash Building
PITTSBURG, PA.

HIGH PRICE Exchanges have requested us repeatedly to increase our price on supplies and Film Service—you can bet we have satisfied more customers and have made good on low rentals. Why should we increase prices when our profits justify us in purchasing large quantities of film. If you are dealing with Mr. Stick-Him you had better install our service immediately. Send list of subjects you have used. No repeaters guaranteed.

2 changes,	shipped	two	at a	time,	1000	feet	each $ 5.00
4 "	"	two	"	"	"	"	10 00
6 "	"	three	"	"	"	"	14.00
12 "	"	four	"	"	"	"	25.00

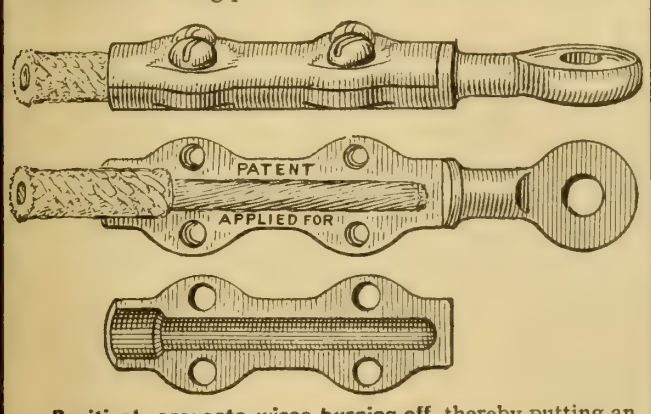
Song Slides and Beautifully Colored Posters FREE

SUPPLIES Tickets 9 cts, per 1000. Carbons 2 cts. each. Condensing Lenses 50 cts. Moving Picture Lenses, $8.00. Stereopticon Lenses, $8.00. Film Cement, 10 cts. a bottle. Reels 50 cts. each.

NOTICE—We Guarantee to Fit a Lens for Any Curtain.

Mr. Moving Picture Man

The Wire Terminal shown here is designed especially to meet the exacting requirements of Moving Picture work. A two-piece Terminal made of copper, is extra heavy, clamped securely with four screws. Wire is completely enclosed and cannot possibly become loose, and holds insulation which keeps it from fraying. The simplest and quickest way to make your connections. Cuts are exact size, showing wire ready to be clamped, and clamped together ready to attach to binding post.



Positively prevents wires burning off, thereby putting an end to your wire bills. Makes a brighter and steadier light, and gets full strength of current by making perfect contact. Terminal complete, 50c. each, sent prepaid on receipt of price

ROBERT B. WEBB, Mfr., 40 Cresson Street, PITTSBURGH, PA.

The New Kind of Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one. IF you are progressive you will call, if not, we both lose money.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,
A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)
CHICAGO, ILL.

We Design and Construct Complete Moving Picture Theatres from $2,500 up

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only to the high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4., No. 2. January 9, 1909 Price, 10 Cen.

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WHICH IS INCORPORATED WITH THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, 125 E. 23d STREET, NEW YORK

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

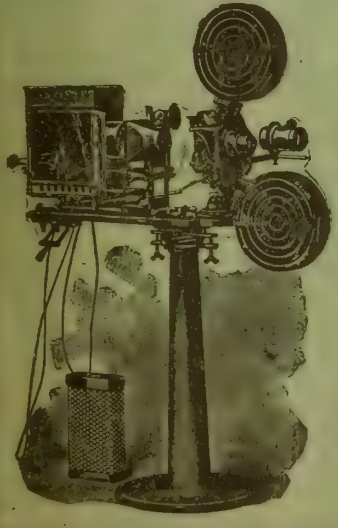
SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

THE EAGLE FILM EXCHANGE

We rent Films, Machines and carry everything pertaining to the business. The quality of our goods and service is unequalled. We positively handle all new goods, Biograph, Gaumont, Lux and Great Northern, etc., etc.

143 North Eighth Street - - - PHILADELPHIA, PA.



PREVENTS TIRED EYES AND HEADACHES

The rapidity of our new shutter has been so perfected that 30 to 40 per cent. less non-exposure (which has heretofore caused the tremulous vibration producing so many tired eyes and headaches) is found in the Motiograph than in any other machine, making perfect brilliancy of picture and sharpness of outline. Together with the rocklike steadiness of the pedestal the flicker is thus entirely eliminated.

Five-cent Theatre and Vaudeville-House Managers increase their bank account with the Motiograph. Patrons who come once will always come again where they know they see the best pictures, positively rest their eyes instead of tiring them, and where all fire risks are removed.

The Motiograph

1908 Theatre Model, Especially Approved by the Underwriters Association

OTHER POINTS OF EXCELLENCE IN THE MOTIOGRAPH found in no other machines are: A special Film Rewind by which the film can be rewound with the main crank in two minutes without removing either reels or magazines, saving time between pictures and entertainments; perfected Fireproof Magazines, Fire Traps, with four rollers and with spring actuated flanged guides, preventing side movement and making it impossible for fire to pass them; never failing Automatic Fireproof Shutters; Perfect Framing Device; Flanged Sprocket Rollers to prevent film being torn or ruined by accidentally running off sprocket wheels; Enclosed Gears and working parts; Perfect Take-up with new form of belt adjuster; Lid Off Wide Open Lamp House making it easily accessible; Improved Arc Lamp with all Hand Wheel Adjustments; Slide Carrier Swing, saving one-third more illustration for the Motion Pictures.

FILMS AND SLIDES

Headquarters for the finest, largest and most complete stock in the United States. The success of an entertainment depends on never allowing the interest of an audience to flag; patrons who have come once will come again when constgnt change of programme is made.

Send For NEW FALL CATALOGUE of Entertainers Supplies explaining everything and showing how big money can be made entertaining the public, sent free. Special literature describing the advantages of the Motiograph for professional entertainers and theatre managers.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO., E. D. OTIS, Mgr., Supply Dept., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

THE IMPERIAL FILM EXCHANGE, INC.

Members F. S. A.

Greets you all with a Happy and Prosperous New Year

Turn over the New Leaf and brush away the cobwebs of conservation or carelessness. At the top of a fresh page record your Resolution to Give Your Business the Benefit of Better Film Service.

The resolution will be harder to break than to make. Tasteful, appreciative people who have used our Film Service are never thereafter satisfied with anything but the best. That's Ours—and the closer you scrutinize it the better you like it.

Power's and Edison MACHINES and all accessions
Carbons, Tickets, Cement and Everything Pertaining to the Motion Picture Industry

THE IMPERIAL FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

Members Film Service Association

WM. STEINER, Pres. and Gen Manager. WM. DEVERY, Treas. and Asst. Mgr.

Main Office: 44 West 28th St., N. Y. City
Phone 2095 Madison Square

NORTHERN OFFICE:
Rooms 503-504-505 Cronin Bldg.
299-301 River Street, Troy, N. Y.
WM. S. MILLIKEN, Mgr.
H. R. Phone 184; House Phone 75

SOUTHERN OFFICE:
803 Ninth Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C.
TOM MOORE, Mgr.
Phone Connections. 3492 Main

Do You Suppose

DO YOU SUPPOSE that a House of OLDEST standing, and now with four Completely Equipped Film Exchanges of its own, would continue to grow as we have Year after Year.

If

those who from the infancy of the Film Business have been served here, were not satisfied?

And If

new customers were not continually coming to us because of the sterling qualities of our Service?

The advantages that have won their confidence might reasonably invite your preference.

YOU are sure that what you get here is RIGHT.

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

Argyle Building,
KANSAS CITY, MO.

59 Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Eccles Building,
OGDEN, UTAH

Foreign Office:
HAVANA, CUBA

BIOGRAPH FILMS

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED JANUARY 11, 1909

The Honor of Thieves

Stirring Picture of a Young Girl's Bravery
Length 681 Feet

Love Finds a Way

A Comedy Drama of Mediæval Days
Length 319 Feet

RELEASED JANUARY 14, 1909

A Rural Elopement

The Trouble a Hobo Caused by Butting In
Length 546 Feet

The Sacrifice

An Ingenious Comedy of Errors
Length 438 Feet

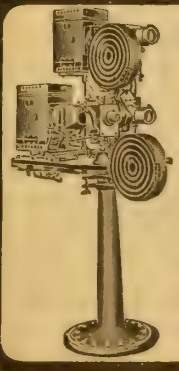
Release Days of Biograph Subjects — MONDAY and THURSDAY

GET ON OUR MAIL LIST AND KEEP POSTED
WRITE FOR OUR DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS

All pictures are made with our celebrated Biograph Camera. Our Films run on any Machine.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY



PROMPT SERVICE
COURTEOUS TREATMENT

Our Two Big Catalogues

and the completeness of our line has made us what we are. We handle all machines, a full line of instruments and supplies and negotiate a

Film Rental Service

that will stimulate your Bank Account. Give us a chance to convince you. "Catalog A" is for Traveling Exhibitors. "Catalog B" tells all about the Motion Picture Theatre. Both are FREE. State which is wanted.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY,

1038 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Cal. Dept. C. 86 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

NEXT ISSUE

THE STEPMOTHER
The Spirit of Unkindness and Jealously Thwarted
Feature Film of Unusual High Standard
Length About 850 Feet

JIM SMITH, The Champion Boxer
Length About 312 Feet

LIFE IN RUSSIA
Length About 330 Feet

Our Motto: Quality Not Quantity!

COMING!
Length About 700 Feet

Raffles' Escapes from Prison—
Sherlock Holmes in Danger of His Life

WE HAVE PRODUCED SUCH FEATURE FILMS AS:

Lion Hunting, The Robber's Sweetheart, The Flight from Seraglio,
Texas Tex, The Tinder Box, The School of Life,
Bear Hunting in Russia, Sherlock Holmes

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Licensee under the Biograph Patents. All purchasers and users of our Film will be protected by the American Mutoscope and Biograph Company

Moving Picture World

With Which is Incorporated

THE EXHIBIT

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company, 125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.

Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

Paris Representative:
F. GRAFTON, 27 Rue des Appenins, Paris, France.

Western Office:
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.

Vol. 4 JANUARY 9 No. 2

Editorial.

The G. Albert Smith process of making moving pictures in natural colors has lately attracted great attention in London, and the experimental results shown have been favorably spoken of. In an article printed in another part of this week's World, Mr. Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S., an authority on the subject, submits the Smith process to a careful and impartial analysis from the practical viewpoint. The article should attract great attention all over the moving picture world.

THE COMBINE AND ITS POLICY.

Time enough has now passed to enable the moving picture industry to grasp the full meaning of the statement of facts concerning the newly-formed Motion Picture Patents Company, which we published in the Moving Picture World on December 26. On that date we characterized the document as a master stroke. To-day we go further and say that the stroke has been delivered at a masterly moment. It has probably saved a growing industry from extinction; for the dog-eat-dog policy that has so long prevailed throughout the moving picture world could only have one possible end. And that end, as we have said, was obviously the complete disappearance of the moving picture as a money making factor.

An unprejudiced examination of the new company's manifesto, for so we must regard the document, and of the situation it has created, will, we think go far to reassure those who on the first blush were inclined to think that this combination of manufacturing interests would work out adversely either in a general or a particular sense. We do not think it will; on the contrary, we think that in the long run it will benefit the moving picture industry as a whole, and that being the case, it clearly follows that in the abstract the individual must also benefit. For the less is obviously contained in the greater.

NOT A "TRUST."

The new company is not a "trust" in the conventional meaning of the term; nor is it a monopoly. It is a combination, and a legitimate combination of existing business interests, carried out in a perfectly legitimate way. It does not stand in the way of other combinations if such can be formed; it does not control all possible sources of supply; it does not, it cannot, prevent manufacturing enterprise or inventive ingenuity outside its own scope; it simply handles its own factors as integers for mutual profit; the advantage of its renters or agents; and above all, the benefit of the public. And the last is not the least in importance. For the public is the ultimate court of decision in all business matters, and has a way of its own in rejecting what it does not want. And the signs were becoming plain that it did not want moving picture films—of a sort.

IN THE INTERESTS OF THE PUBLIC.

Consider the declared policy of the new company: "It is hoped . . . to guarantee to the renters and the exhibitors a sufficient quantity of the best American and foreign films and to prevent the demoralized state of affairs which now prevails abroad." This means that only a sufficient quantity of films will be sent out to prevent the market being glutted; that those films will be good; and that by inference the standard of quality will be maintained at a uniformly high level. In the interests of all concerned, and especially in the interests of the public, it was high time that some such drastic action was taken. Any association which assures the elimination of undesirable film subjects from public exhibition is worthy of support. The new company has that power. We hope it will exercise it.

THE PATENT ASPECT.

The consolidation of all the principal patent interests of the industry in the new company, besides abolishing costly and unsatisfactory litigation, determines a cardinal point of policy from which all other conditions necessarily follow. No other course was possible if the new company was to be operatively effective. The leasing and return of the films and the limitation of the use of the films to licensed machines only, solidifies the business, and forces it into a groove where it can be regulated and dealt with in a legislative manner. It is only by such comprehensive means that any business can be properly and effectively directed. That the primary control of all businesses should rest in the hands of those who are responsible for them, viz., the manufacturers, is an axiom the force and finality of which cannot be seriously questioned. And such a power in the present instance was only possible by a combination of patent interests.

THE RENTER AND THE EXHIBITOR.

The position of the renter under the new arrangement should certainly be bettered. Hitherto he has not known precisely where he stood; now it is to be hoped his arrangements with the various companies will be clear, specific and on a common basis. That is the impression which a careful study of the company's statement leaves on our mind. The undesirable renter may possibly be eliminated; but then the undesirable in all walks of life courts destruction. The remedy is not to be undesirable. We do not think that any honorable, fair dealing renter need apprehend any harm to his business by the new arrangement. For the renter is an indispensable factor in most branches of trade, and certainly so in the moving picture industry. Lastly, there is the exhibitor. His case calls for least consideration of all. He is perfectly well able to take care of himself. Let him do his duty to the public and he cannot possibly suffer.

POSITION OF THE IMPORTER.

The fate of the film importer and manufacturer not mentioned in the statement of the Motion Picture Patents Company may appear to be uncertain; but an officer of the company assures us that no film manufacturer has been ignored and that other names would have appeared in the list if the demands of the agents had been considered reasonable. It is not the intention of the Patents Company to create a monopoly, and competition is welcomed where co-operation cannot be obtained.

THE MACHINES TO BE LICENSED.

What machines are to be licensed? This is a subject that has not come up for final consideration, but, like the films, it is proposed that the machines will be taken on their merits, and that each applicant will be duly considered. It has been hinted that some renters will receive a setback, and possibly some manufacturers, and this alone on their past record. We believe that since the last meeting of the Association in July, agents of the M. P. P. Company have been gathering a vast amount of information relative to the factors in the business, and that the recording angel has sealed the fate of not a few.

Who, then, has any right to complain of the formation of the new company? Not competing concerns handling their own products; but only those whom the law of the survival of the fittest affects. Not the renter, as we have shown; not the exhibitor; and certainly not that all-powerful arbiter of all our destinies, the public. We have endeavored to examine the publicly declared policy of the new company by the light of a full sense of our responsibility to the readers of the Moving Picture World and the public at large, and can come to no other conclusion than that the formation of the Motion Picture Patents Company can only result in all round benefit. It will require very strong arguments and irrefragable proof to convince us to the contrary.

FILM QUALITY.

Much of the uproar in New York City was caused by the fact that managers were not careful enough of the quality of their films. The danger in case of fire was also dwelt upon by critics, and the combination of the two objections was sufficiently strong to force the instant revocation of every license. This phase of the subject need not be discussed here, but it is well to keep it in mind. Other similar difficulties will arise elsewhere. In fact, New Jersey is quite likely to have a drastic law some time this Winter which will place the exhibitors in almost the light of criminals.

If quality is held up to the proper standard, if care is exercised that the films are of the best morally, and if equal care is exercised in other directions affecting the quality of the films, there will be less opposition and exhibitors need not worry about being closed. One is almost forced to the conclusion that in numerous instances they are themselves to blame for whatever opposition may arise. They evidently do not exercise sufficient care in the selection of films and it affords an opportunity for cranks to criticize and find fault. It does no good to say they are cranks and are, therefore, unworthy of notice. If they keep steadily at it they will arouse public sentiment against the shows, and that means closing.

These observations apply everywhere. Public sentiment is the controlling factor in all matters of this character, and public sentiment will rouse from its usual lethargy if anything immoral is shown, especially when children are affected. The most immoral man in a community will insist that his own sons and daughters shall not be contaminated by immorality in any way, not even with pictures. Exhibitors ought to understand this and act accordingly.

Exhibitors can force manufacturers to stop issuing questionable films. Merely refuse to accept and use them. If there is no demand, if exhibitors refuse to take them, there will be few, or none, made. Accept the best, insist upon the best possible productions, show only the high quality films, and your theater will be crowded and your coffers will fill with coin. And this latter is the main consideration in this proposition.

Hold up your quality. Otherwise you may find your place closed and you will be put under heavy expense in different ways. The quality must be maintained at the highest standard, otherwise the public will see that you are held to a strict accounting.

MOVING PICTURES IN NATURAL COLORS.

By Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S.

Specially contributed to the Moving Picture World.

The hall of the Royal Society of Arts, London, has been the scene of many notable gatherings in the history of photography, at some of which the writer of this article has been present. I recall one of those gatherings in particular. It was when Professor Gabriel Lippmann, of Paris, described and demonstrated his wonderfully beautiful process of interferential color-photography. Great things were predicted of that process, which remains, even after the lapse of sixteen years, the only known method of making color photographs direct in the camera—if we exclude the starch-grain method of the Messieurs Lumiere. But time has not verified those predictions, and the Lippmann system at the present hour is little more than a scientific curiosity. It is inapplicable to paper or film, and even on glass the colors are only visible by reflected and not transmitted light. Obviously, therefore, such a process responds in no degree at all to the requirements of the every day practical worker.

G. ALBERT SMITH'S PROCESS.

A happier fate, I am convinced, awaits the two-color method of reproducing moving objects in the tints of nature, which was described at the Society of Arts on December 14 last, and a full account of which was printed in the World of last week. To begin with, it is experimentally practicable; it gives good results; and, above all, it embodies the logical development of a close study of trichromatics, which is, so far, the only feasible system of making natural color photographs on glass, film or paper. The process, therefore, is deserving of serious notice and as one who has attentively followed the working of Mr. Smith's mind as revealed in his Patent Specification, and his other publications, I should like to congratulate him on the successful outcome of his experiments—experiments, which he tells us at the conclusion of his paper, are not complete. To one who, like myself, has studied for many years the whole known field of color photography, this frank avowal of the incompleteness of the process augurs well for Mr. Smith's ultimate success. Many inventors mistake tentative success for complete success; two totally different things. Lecture room demonstrations and triumphs are pretty enough in their way; the final test of merit, however, must always be sought in the inexorable requirements of every day practice.

MOVING PICTURES IN NATURAL COLORS NEEDED.

How, then, does the Smith process comply with those requirements? I grant its practicability; but is it workable? The moving picture in natural colors is bound, sooner or later, to displace monochrome images. The public is waiting for it; so are the makers of film subjects; so, indeed, is the entire moving picture industry throughout the world. Hence the very great importance of Mr. Smith's contribution to the science and practice of the subject. He may certainly claim to be the first to have handled the matter in a workmanlike manner; he has produced some very beautiful results, and the British press, as we have been reminded during the past few months, has praised those results very highly. In no carping spirit, but from an entirely sympathetic viewpoint, I propose for the information of the readers of The Moving Picture World to give a brief and clear description of how the Smith process, as it stands in the inventor's own words, is worked out. Then I will offer a few criticisms of its theory and practice.

THE PROCESS BRIEFLY DESCRIBED.

First of all the film is made panchromatic by suitable dyes, and it is exposed in the camera, behind a revolving shutter in which are fitted two filters (or screens) colored red and green. Thirty-two pictures a second are taken, one for each filter. When the negative is developed a positive is made from it and this is projected through red and green filters at the rate of 32 per second on the screen. The eye of the observer then perceives the moving picture approximately in the colors of nature. When he showed his results in London last month Mr. Smith appears to have supplemented the colors of his filters by adding color to the illuminant in his lantern—he colored the light, in fact—and the total effect on the screen was said to have been much admired. No doubt it deserved to be, for I believe that, carefully worked, the process will give very fine results.

In the foregoing description I have endeavored to avoid highly scientific terms, and to assume that the reader is a practical maker of moving pictures and wants to know if the Smith process is one he could take up straight away and make pictures in natural colors with. My best reply to the latter of these two points is that probably Mr. Smith himself is the only man in the world at the present time who could make his process work satisfactorily.

WEAK POINTS OF THE PROCESS.

In the hands of an ordinary moving picture photographer, unless he be of phenomenal knowledge and skill, the process is doomed to failure at the very start. Observe that a panchromatic film must be used—and made, by the way. For the information of those unversed in the chemistry and technique of the subject, I may say that a panchromatic film is one that has been sensitized for all rays of the spectrum; and that it cannot be handled in an ordinary dark room. No; it must be placed in the camera in total darkness and it must be developed in total darkness, or the image will fog. Red light does not affect an ordinary moving picture film; red light would ruin a panchromatic film. The successful manipulation of panchromatic plates and films is one of the most difficult things in the whole field of photography, as my technical readers know. In moving picture work I don't think one photographer in a thousand would (or could) successfully use panchromatic films, and what is more I don't think the manufacturers would take the trouble to make them.

Thus, the Smith process is hampered by enormous difficulties at the very start. Personally I admire the inventor's scientific ingenuity in selecting a panchromatic film to work on—and here let me say that if I went into the scientific minutiæ of the process I should exhaust more space than the World could afford to give me—but I unhesitatingly pronounce it as entirely impracticable for every day use in moving picture work.

MORE CRITICISMS.

Thirty-two pictures a second must be taken and projected, instead of about half that number. This is not a fatal drawback, but it is sufficient of a departure from ordinary practice to constitute a disadvantageous innovation, always a risky thing to attempt, for it involves some interference with existing methods. Then Mr. Smith colors the projection light. He is vague and unspecific on this point, although I for one appreciate the delicate ingenuity of the provision. But in ordinary practice the idea would introduce error and vitiate the purity of the results, unless great care were exercised. This is a very weak part of the process, indeed; it is unsound; it is unscientific and it is empirical. You must not talk about coloring a light unless you give plain directions for doing so. To sum up, then, the Smith process though vastly ingenious and well thought out is, in its present stage, utterly impracticable and can only be regarded as a valuable step forward.

The practical value of this process being, as I submit it is, open to such grave objections, no useful purpose would be served by dissecting the theory upon which it is based. A two-color process, however, as worked out by Mr. Smith, is certainly open to ordinary photographic criticsm and the purist may reasonably object to such vague terms as "red" and "green" filters. Reds and greens are very numerous; and the spectroscope, I may say, is a very useful instrument.

Finally I should like to say I admire the way in which Mr. Smith has handled a very complex problem. He is on the way to success; but it is a long way off yet awhile. His process does not comply with the requirements of any ordinary moving picture plant with which I am acquainted. Taking the process as it stands, special provision would have to be made for it at very great expense, and, as I have shown, it would have to be worked with extraordinary care. Nothing is said about the exposures. How much do the "red" and "green" filters increase the time? What is the H. & D. (or any other) speed number of the film? What dyes are used to render it panchromatic? What sort of lens is used—a specially computed apochromatic or what? How did Mr. Smith develop his negatives and with what? And the positives? What dyes were used for the screens? Is it a fact that persistence of vision is a function of color blending as well as of motion-blending? I doubt if Helmholtz, Young, or any other noted physicist, has taught this. Tyndall, I know, as an authority on light; but not Sir H. T. Wood. What has he published on the subject? Where is the two-color theory scientifically enunciated? Lastly, is it scientifically correct?

Send $2.00 for a Subscription to the Moving Picture World—the representative trade newspaper.

THE QUESTION OF CENSORSHIP.

By W. Stephen Bush.

It would be strange indeed, if in so vast and growing an enterprise as the moving picture there were no imperfections. No garden is without its choking weeds and no bed of flowers will long keep its beauty and its symmetry without the aid of the trimming knife. There is no doubt that the moving picture field needs supervision, and supervision and censorship express in different words the same idea. The question is: How is this censorship to come? Do we want it to appear in the shape of a blue coat and brass buttons and a club or are we resolved that it come from within the ranks of the makers of films and the exchanges and the exhibitors? Some of the criticism leveled at the moving picture is not without reason. Is the wave sweeping against it in New York the forerunner of a tidal flood that if allowed to run unchecked will soon overwhelm the whole business? Is the force of the hostile sentiment against the great industry gathering head? Whether the answer be hopeful or otherwise one thing is sure, it is in the power of the film makers and all the allied interests of the art to check the sentiment and to avert the danger.

The Moving Picture World suggested some months ago the creation of a board of censors, in which beside the film makers the exchanges and the exhibitors should have representation. What then would be the functions of such a board? It could scarcely be expected to set in any way a positive standard to which the film makers would have to conform. It could, however, agree on certain rules of elimination and such rules, if carried out impartially and unsparingly would do incalculable good to the moving picture business. In a general way the following features should be barred from the screen:

I. The interior of prisons; the detailed description of life in prison; the introduction of convicts in stripes; revolts and mutinies in jail; in short, everything connected with these plague spots of civilization; likewise the doings in police stations; the display of cells and iron bars, etc. Recently I saw in the course of one evening pictures by reputable film makers in which portrayals of prison life, of struggles of convicts and keepers, etc., were the principal features. Why should just such things be obtruded upon the gaze of women and children and normally constituted men? This morbid tendency of the film makers should be suppressed by the board of censors.

II. The portrayal of contemporary sensational crime; the film showing or rather pretending to show the trial of a rich murderer in New York; the presentation of the doings of notorious outlaws. I wonder would the makers of these films allow members of their own family, young or old, to witness these delineations of crime?

III. Any thing that could in the least wound the religious sensibilities of the public. A recent film, which shall be nameless here, outrages the feelings of every religious minded person by a gross insult to a sister of charity.

IV. The lingering over the details, such things as murders and executions. Witness "Mary Stuart" and "The King's Pardon."

V. The needless piling on of horrors. Such films as "The Wages of Sin" and "For His Country's Sake" are examples.

VI. Every comic picture which depends for its effect on the degradation or on the personal defects of any human being.

If these rules and the spirit which suggests them would be conscientiously obeyed by the board of censors, there would soon be no weapon left in the hands of our enemies. If the rank growth of bad pictures is not checked what will be the result? The American people, if they once conceive a violent prejudice against any institution are likely to put such institution out of business. It took the Masonic institutions more than half a century to recover from the blow of Morganism and if the film makers will persist in defying the decent sentiment of the people they are sure to come to grief. Let us hope that the storm may never come and strike down the makers of these films in the very hour of their money making.

New Orleans, La.—The Dauphine Theater, which was opened this season by the Lester Lonegan Stock Company, has been leased by J. E. Pearce & Sons and they have installed moving pictures and high-class singing, this making the second big house J. E. Pearce & Sons have opened with moving pictures in New Orleans in the last three weeks.

MAYOR McCLELLAN'S ACTION DECLARED ILLEGAL.

On Tuesday last Supreme Court Justice Blackmar granted an injunction restraining the Mayor of New York from closing 500 moving picture theaters in the city.

The decision is looked upon as a victory for the moving picture men. It is not believed the city administration will again attempt to interfere with them, except to see that the fire and other regulations are strictly complied with. Justice Blackmar holds that the Mayor's action in closing the moving picture places is illegal because "he is making the innocent suffer along with the guilty." The court emphasizes the point that the Mayor has no right to close all places of entertainment in New York because he thinks the owners of some of these places are violating the law. One of the contentions raised by attorneys representing the city was that if the moving picture places were allowed to continue in business a great fire disaster similar to the burning of the General Slocum might result. Justice Blackmar replies to this by saying that while the Slocum disaster might have been averted if the Government officials had revoked the license of every steamship plying in the port of New York, such revocation would nevertheless have been wholly illegal. The final conclusion of the court is that the city has the right to revoke the licenses of only those places where it is satisfied the fire regulations are being violated. As to the Mayor's contention that the moving picture places have been violating the Sunday amusement law, the court says that point does not figure in the fight to close these resorts on the ground that they are a menace to public safety. In his decision Justice Blackmar says:

"There is a limit to the exercise of the power of revocation. It must not be arbitrary, tyrannical, or unreasonable. To my mind, after a license has been granted, paid for and acted upon, a revocation without cause is unreasonable and arbitrary. The test I shall apply is whether there was a cause having relation to the duties of the Mayor and the welfare and protection of the people which justified this general order of revocation. The Mayor might, perhaps, have revoked those licenses under whose protection indecent or improper pictures were shown and also those which were acquired by bribery.

"He could have revoked or suspended until required changes should be made the licenses of those places insufficiently safeguarded against fire. And it is possible that there were other conditions shown at particular places which furnished cause for revocation, but the Mayor did not confine his acts to those places against which cause was shown; he revoked each and every license he had granted. He included in the same condemnation the innocent and the guilty."

* * *

Mayor McClellan's probable refusal to grant any new or renewed moving picture show licenses to applicants who will not agree to keep their places closed on Sunday, is likely to tangle up the question even more than before Justice Blackmar's decision of last Tuesday granting a permanent injunction to the proprietors to continue their business. This phase of the question has not been previously considered.

It was expected that Mayor McClellan would simply appeal from Justice Blackmar's decision, and that matters would stand as they are until such appeal was determined. As the injunction affects only such licenses as were in existence prior to Mayor McClellan's revocation it can hardly be held to apply to applications for new licenses or for renewals.

Mandamus proceedings will be brought by Gustavus A. Rogers, attorney for the moving picture men, just as soon as application for a renewal is made by a proprietor whose license has expired since Justice Blackmar's permanent injunction was granted, and is refused for Sunday opening reasons.

Should the mandamus proceedings against the Mayor prove unsuccessful an attempt will be made to have the Board of Aldermen enact a new ordinance taking the power of licensing of shows away from the Mayor and either placing it in the hands of the board itself or in the hands of a commission, or perhaps combining it with the regular theater licensing system. The charter permits this, and the Mayor in his present capacity of licensor of moving-picture shows is only the agent of the board.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? $2 per year—52 numbers.

THE RECENT CLOSURE—THE MORAL ASPECT.

Opinions of the Press.

The recent action of Mayor McClellan of New York in revoking the licenses of the moving picture theaters in this city, has evoked widespread comment in the journals of the United States which have treated the matter as something more than a mere passing incident of the amusement world. It is significant that this comment invariably bears one complexion, that of approval of what the Mayor did. Something vastly more important than the personal safety of the people who patronize the moving picture theater was at stake. We mean their morals. The Mayor, according to Tuesday's decision, may probably have acted illegally in the matter, but if the press opinions of this and other large cities and the action of the various authorities be any guide to popular feeling, it is quite clear that the time had arrived when the axe was due at the root of an admitted evil.

The following extracts are typical of many hundreds for which we cannot spare space:

(Pittsburg Post.)

Moving pictures may be made exclusively educational. Unfortunately, they are more often inimical to the morals of the young. Some of the subjects thrown on the screen are not fit to be seen by self-respecting adults, and the impressions they create in the adolescent mind must be anything but beneficial. The five-cent theater may well be made the subject for more stringent regulation. That this has not been done hitherto is undoubtedly due to the fact that they are a comparatively new development, a mushroom growth.

(Cincinnati Times-Star.)

If crime and indecency are to be exploited in these shows, they will have little enough excuse for living. With the moving picture apparatus it is possible to depict situations which would never be accepted on the stage. And the proprietors of such exhibitions, if they cater to the morbid and licentious appetites of their patrons—particularly of the younger element—must be held strictly accountable for such perversion of their public morals.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

Their audiences should be just as carefully guarded as in the case of the regular theaters. So should the moral influence of their entertainments, in so far as this comes within the control of the police. Canon Chase's objection that some of these pictures exalted and honored horse racing and gambling is something that the police cannot fairly be asked to take notice of, although they can and should act promptly in a case of plain indecency, such as has sometimes been charged against these exhibitions. The police, too, should be watchful about the admission of children under sixteen. The small price of admission makes these entertainments a lure for the pennies of children in the street and many screen and slot machine pictures from which there would be no occasion to protect adults would yet be demoralizing to children.

(Hoboken, N. J., Observer.)

There is slowly creeping into the business a tendency to use pictures which tend to degrade the morals of those who see them; and, while the beautiful and artistic exhibitions deserve, and should receive, the highest praise, the fact remains that, though hundreds of yards of "reel," showing pretty scenes or moral pictures may be cast upon a screen, the ones tending to corrupt, strike the weakest point in human character—that of natural tendency.

(Chicago News.)

It is to be regretted that an invention which offers such possibilities in the way of wholesome amusement should ever be the means of exploiting crime, robberies and tragedies. In giving exhibitions of realism in crime and brutality this novelty tends to demoralize the rising generation. It must be remembered that these exhibitions are patronized very largely by young boys and girls. Why not make these exhibitions good, wholesome and instructive?

(Scranton Tribune.)

It is hardly fair to criticise too severely the character of the cheap vaudeville or moving picture show. When the leading musical comedies and dramas of the day are allowed to flaunt suggestive witticisms before patrons of supposed respectability and deal with features of life that should not be mentioned even in a whisper in the presence of decent people, there is no reason why the more crude attempts exhibited in the moving picture entertainment should be condemned.

These cheap theaters should be inspected to guard against accident by fire, the exits and fire escapes should be as perfectly arranged as they are in the large homes of the drama, but aside from this they should be encouraged rather than condemned and the proprietors aided in keeping the moral tone of the places at their present high standard.

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

There is no doubt that there ought to be some sort of supervision over the character of the output, and, although Boards of Supervisors and city police officials have never been great successes as dramatic censors, public opinion is not unlikely to ask that they try their hand on the moving picture shows. Perhaps when our city fathers get through with the clairvoyants and mystics who are just now occupying their attention they will do so.

(New York Evening Journal.)

It would be a good idea to employ a regular inspector—a man of intelligence and above graft—to pass upon these shows. Then we could enjoy the interesting and amusing ones and be sure that the bad ones were suppressed.

Notes and Comments.

Some showmen have found it profitable, even if it is not necessary, to present souvenirs to their patrons on certain occasions, and we call the attention of those who may desire such articles to the announcement of some suitable Japanese articles for this purpose in our advertising pages.

The Centaur Film Company, 900 Broadway, Bayonne, N. J., ask us to say that they are prepared to print new titles for films and they would like to hear from renters who have films which may be still in good condition although the titles are worn out.

Powers' Inductor, the current saving device manufactured by the well known Nicholas Power Company, is now being handled by H. B. Coles, 150 Nassau street, New York, who has been appointed general sales agent. The Powers' Inductor is intended for use instead of a rheostat with moving picture machines on an alternating current circuit and is claimed to give a very steady light as well as reduce the light bill.

The New England Lantern Slide Company, 224 Tremont street, Boston, Mass., send us a booklet listing some 200 announcement slides. They ask us to call attention to their rental service for travelogues, about fifty different subjects being listed in the catalogue and others in preparation. They are supplying the leading New England theaters with these travelogues, which are arranged so as to dispense with a lecturer. A title or word description precedes the picture slide. The description is held on the screen just long enough to be read, followed by the picture, which is held on the screen according to the time wished to be killed.

"The Stepmother."—The Great Northern Film Company have, in a masterly manner, illustrated in this film the maltreatment which children too frequently receive from a stepmother. The story is clearly told and the action, as in all the late productions of this company, is not overdrawn, but natural and easy. This, combined with the excellence of the photography and the evident care which they give to the details of the scenario, explains why Great Northern films have won in one year a strong footing on the American market. The style and class of the subjects issued by this company are so different from that of any other manufacturer that they should make a welcome occasional change of program.

Illustrated Lecturettes have become a feature in connection with many picture shows, and the supply is keeping pace with the demand. We have already called attention to the sets supplied by Williams, Brown & Earle, Henry B. Ingram and the Riley Optical Instrument Co. We have now received notice from Scott & Van Altena, 61 Pearl street, New York, that they have two sets of slides ready, with lecturettes, on "Japan" and "Egypt." A. L. Simpson, 113 West 132d street, New York, also announces sets with lecturettes on "Our Navy," "New York Fire Fighters," "The Sky Scrapers of New York," "Trip to Coney Island," "Around Manhattan Island on a Sightseeing Yacht," and others in preparation. With this comprehensive and interesting list to select from, exhibitors should have no difficulty in making up an attractive addition to the program. Illustrated lecturettes are a feature that will appeal to the best element in an audience and should be encouraged.

"The Sponge Fishers of Cuba" is a full reel subject that will be issued next week by the Kalem Company. We have been favored with an advance view of the film, which is of excellent scenic quality and of great educational value. Some showmen do not yet fully appreciate the value of a film that is not highly dramatic or of mirth-provoking quality, but if they were guided by public opinion they would call for these subjects and encourage the manufacturers to produce more of these films, which certainly tend to raise the moving picture show in the estimation of a large proportion of the public. The average person who makes use of a sponge is ignorant of, or has a very vague idea of its source, and after the film of "The Sponge Fishers of Cuba" has gone its rounds through the country it is safe to say that many thousands will be edified. The film opens with a panoramic view of the harbor at Havana, and, after showing the various scenes in connection with the sponge industry, it ends with scenes of the home life and customs of the sponge fishers and inhabitants of Cuba and the islands in the Caribbean Sea. The Kalem Company furnish a very complete lecture for this subject, which is supplied free to any exhibitor on application.

A FILM OF THE EARTHQUAKE HORROR.

Raleigh & Robert, 16 Rue Saint-Cecile, Paris, France, announce a film of the actual terrible scenes of the holocaust in Sicily and Calabria. The film is said to show the effect of the tidal wave, the destruction of Reggio, the conflagration in Messina, the plight of the victims who escaped, and the regiments of soldiers that now police the scene of the catastrophe. Truly a gruesome subject, but one that would draw, and that through no idle curiosity.

LANTERN SLIDES OF THE EARTHQUAKE ZONE.

Messrs. Williams, Brown & Earle, of 918 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa., are the fortunate possessors of a fine set of original negatives made in and around Messina and the other Italian and Sicilian cities that have been devastated by earthquake; also the volcano, Mount Etna, in activity. The slides which are made from these negatives give a clear idea of the architecture of the beautiful and ancient cities which have been so suddenly destroyed and should be a splendid attraction at this time in connection with moving picture shows. The set comprises twenty-five slides and are supplied at 25 cents each, plain, or 50 cents, colored.

THE KNICKERBOCKER CIRCUIT EXTENDS.

The Knickerbocker Circuit have moved their offices to larger quarters in the Shubert building at Thirty-ninth street and Broadway. The circuit has been increased within the last week and can now offer ten weeks of small time within the vicinity of New York. Arrangements are being made whereby musical and dramatic playlets will be presented in the smaller moving picture houses, who heretofore had to confine themselves to singles and doubles. The weekly tryout of new acts will be held at the Amsterdam Opera House on Thursday morning.

AN ASSOCIATION OF SLIDE MAKERS

Is being discussed by the leading manufacturers of New York and Chicago. It seems to us that some organization among slide makers would put an end to many complaints that reach us in regard to ruinous price-cutting and the trickery of some people who order slides sent C. O. D. and then refuse to pay for them until they are released—and not then. Organization has been successfully tried in other lines and the slide makers would be better off if they buried the hatchet which they use against each other and get together to place their business upon a more substantial footing.

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER SCORES.

B. F. Keith, through his New York manager, Harvey L. Watkins, St. James Building, New York City, has ordered a large number of "Hallberg Automatic Electric Economizers" for his nickel theaters throughout New England and Canada. The last installation was made a week ago at the new, beautiful and expensive Gaiety Theater, at Bangor, Me. The saving guaranteed is 69 per cent. on the moving picture lamp current bill. The installation also includes seven "Hallberg 4,000 candle power Flaming Arc Lamps," which give a most powerful and attractive light, pulling the crowd from far and near.

Weekly Comments on the Shows.

BY OUR OWN CRITIC.

"Write just what you think of them in your own words," was the Editor's final order as he detailed me to criticise the programs and the conduct of the moving picture shows.

My first visit was to the Fourteenth Street Theater, Fourteenth street near Sixth avenue, New York. The entertainment at this house is bright and popular, but I think crying babies should be denied admittance and I object to the industry of a chewing gum boy in marketing his goods whilst the show is actually in progress. A small orchestra would enhance the attractions of the place, and the highly colored song slides to which a Mr. Driscoll sang a soulful ballad do not impress one as being artistic. The announcement slides were crude and tawdry and could easily be replaced by something more finished and artistic.

The film subjects ran too much towards the obscure and the lugubrious. A French subject, "Tit for Tat," illustrated workmen playing practical jokes on one another, but the story was the reverse of obvious to the audience (and me) and it passed without a hand. "For Baby's Sake," another French subject, told that to comfort a dying child, a poor workman went out and stole a doll, only to find upon his return that the little one had died and that he himself had been pursued as a thief. Excellent conception and photography could not redeem the subject from gloom, and again I thought Mr. Rosenquest, the manager, was not happy in his choice. There was humor of a caustic kind in "A Wonderful Discovery." This showed a party of savants exulting over the discovery, the nature of which was not clear, although it looked like a big camera on a tripod. Anyhow, it enabled you to see things that were happening elsewhere: A desk robbery; policemen at card-play; and, finally, the secretly married daughter of the discoverer visiting her husband. A clever but cynical picture. There was a masterly Gaumont relating how a baby girl was washed on shore from a shipwreck. She was adopted by an old sailor, whose son, also a sailor, falls in love with her. So does the captain of his ship. The course of true love goes somewhat awry, for the girl sticks to the captain and finally the disappointed sailor commits suicide by throwing himself off the rocks and dies a ghastly death as the waves sing his requiem. Quite a great cinematographic achievement, but what a dismal ending, to be sure, Messrs. Gaumont.

Fortunately there was some much-needed comic relief in "Mrs. Jones Entertains," a fine humorous triumph for the Biograph Company. I have never laughed so heartily at a film in my life, nor have I seen a better piece of photography. And how neatly and effectively the Biograph subjects are framed as they appear on the screen! Well, dear little Mrs. Jones once gave a tea party to her temperance friends, at which Mr. Jones unfortunately got intoxicated. So his presence was objected to when the ladies met again. As luck would have it the waiter who was to serve the repast could not come, and so Jones, poor fellow, consented to disguise himself and act as waiter to his own wife's guests. These prim and virtuous ladies duly arrived; the meal was served and all proceeded happily until Jones, who received the dishes from a pert maid in the kitchen, was seized by a desire to try an experiment before the meal was finished. Discovering a bottle which appeared to contain a spirituous liquid, he poured some into each of the guests' cups. The effect of the experiment was soon apparent. The ladies got more communicative towards each; they warmed and melted; they clamored for more "tea"; they got quite boisterous and just slightly indecorous, and finally so abusive and intoxicated that Mrs. Jones had to clear them off, and then husband and wife were reconciled, presumably with a promise on his part to behave himself in future.

Now this, it is true, is broad farce, but it was never allowed to fall into coarseness, suggestiveness or indecency, and the audience at the Fourteenth Street Theater were genuinely amused by it: all of them, men, women and children. That fact should give the managers of moving picture theaters an infallible guide to the kind of entertainment which pays best at these places. It must be bright, clean, wholesome, amusing. Most emphatically my fellow visitors the other night—people obviously of good social position—were not on the qui vive for the unclean or the salacious; and they did not get it, thank goodness!

The Fourteenth Street Theater is a well conducted moving picture house, and if Manager Rosenquest will bring it up to date in respect of the small details treated of in this notice, he will please his patrons and swell his bank balance.

Successful Film Renters.

"BILL" STEINER.

We call attention to the advertisement of the Imperial Film Exchange, Inc., on another page. While not as widely known or advertised as many other film exchanges, yet its business is most substantial and increasing weekly. Genial Bill Steiner, whose personality has won countless friends inside and outside of the moving picture field and who is general manager of the corporation, was formerly of the firm of Paley & Steiner, pioneer of exhibitors and manufacturers of moving pictures. They launched upon the market an excellent assortment of subjects well staged and enacted, making a specialty of comedy auto races, etc., pictures well calculated to warm the cockles of the heart, under the trade mark of the Crescent brand of films. The firm supplied the Proctor circuit of houses for nine years.

"Bill Steiner" is personally known as a jolly good fellow among nine-tenths of the film exchanges and has done much to place the moving picture industry where it is to-day. Bill Devery, the assistant manager of the Exchange, smokes the same brand of cigars as his Big Bosom Friend Chief Devery and is favorably known as a piccolo and accodeon mnipulator purely as a side issue and to smooth out the wrinkles caused by severe strain of office duties.

The Exchange enjoys a profitable business at each of its three offices, the clientele embracing heavy renters and pleased patrons in each district.

The Washington, D. C., office is under the management of Tom Moore, a name which in itself is calculated to soothe the ruffled feelings of any momentarily displeased customer, and it is really asserted by some of his most intimate friends that he is a direct descendant of his namesake. Joking aside, Tom has built up a business which is the envy of many of his competitors.

The Troy, N. Y., office, brought to the front by Billy Milliken, has made other exchanges reaching out after trade in Bill's territory sit up and take notice. Veni, Vidi, Vici has constantly rung in Manager Milliken's ears since he first opened the Troy office, and that he has conquered is at once evidenced by a casual visitor. Billy has made many friends in his territory and a customer once gained by him is invariably held in spite of stern competition.

LAEMMLE.

Two years ago manager of a clothing store in the city of Oshkosh, Wis.

Now founder and president of a company which does a business of $10,000 a week—half a million dollars a year!

Two years ago Mr. Carl Laemmle picked up his Sunday Tribune in Oshkosh and read a story dealing with the wonderful possibilities of the moving picture business. It caught his eye and held his interest. His friends, to whom he made casual mention of the article in question, pooh-poohed the idea.

But he continued to think it over, resolving in his mind the different facts brought out in The Tribune's story. He came to Chicago and visited some of the moving picture theaters on State street and elsewhere. He found every assertion of the newspaper story verified—nay, he found it more than verified beyond the wildest flights of his own active imagination.

He rented a store on Milwaukee avenue. His project was considered a good deal of a joke at that time. One of his neighbors predicted that he would not last thirty days.

"You cannot expect to make your theater pay on a street so far removed from the principal business district," he was warned.

But he rented the store, nevertheless, and invested nearly all of his capital in making both the exterior and the interior comfortable, safe, and attractive.

Mr. Laemmle's first week's profits were over $100. The second week he banked $150. His "high water mark" in receipts was $650 for one week, but that was an exception to the rule, of course. Other theaters sprang into existence in the twinkling of an eye. Naturally this cut down Mr. Laemmle's receipts, but not to such an extent that he was worried about it.

The thing that bothered him most was his inability to secure the very best pictures, known as films to the trade. He tried firm after firm, agency after agency engaged in renting films to five-cent theaters—for the films are rented, not sold outright—but without avail.

So he decided to take the next step upward and become a "lessor" himself. With money he had saved from his theater profits he bought several films from the manufacturers. This was six months after the day he opened his theater.

Being a firm believer in printer's ink, Mr. Laemmle advertised the fact that he had been unable to rent such films as he wanted, so he had bought them. He was now ready to rent them, in turn, to such other theater owners as might desire the sort of pictures he insisted upon for his own house. He did not have many films, but what he had would satisfy the most exacting theater manager, so he declared.

This frank tone of advertising caught the fancy of other theater owners and managers. They rented his films. He bought more. This was the foundation of the present concern known as the Laemmle Film Service.

His first week's receipts from films rented were $40. The second week he took in $90. By the end of the third week the receipts had grown to $250. Two months later his weekly receipts were $2,000.

He found it necessary to secure larger headquarters three times within less than a year, so rapid and unexpected was the growth of this amazing business. Its possibilities opened before his eyes with kaleidoscopic swiftness. He seized upon them and made the most of them.

Within the next year he had established large branch houses in Evansville, Ind.; Memphis, Tenn.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Omaha, Neb.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Portland, Ore., and Montreal, Canada. Instead of the two assistants who comprised his staff at the beginning he now controlled an organization of nearly 100 experienced moving picture men.

To-day his weekly receipts are $10,000, and still the limit is beyond sight.

If there had been danger of a near approach of the limit that danger was obviated when a Berlin inventor produced a contrivance which forces the phonograph and the moving picture machine to work in perfect unison. Thus were born the "pictures that sing, and talk, and move," making possible the reproduction of an entire opera, if desired, with all the sights and sounds, acting and music that go with it.

"It all resulted directly—mind you, directly—from reading the Workers' Magazine," says Mr. Laemmle. "Were it not for that I would still be selling clothes in Oshkosh. I would still be a salary coward.

"My suggestion to readers of The Tribune magazine is this: Do a little thinking while you read. Take your reading seriously. If you find a good story about something accomplished by some other worker don't throw up your hands and say, 'O, it's all very well to read about such things, but it's another thing to do them.' Get busy. Form the habit of forming your judgment quickly and then act upon it. Don't be afraid to gamble on your own ability. The more desperate your gamble the more desperate and determined will be your own individual efforts to win out.

"Failures" Need Not Count.

"This, I will admit, is not the old-fashioned advice that is generally doled out to young men. I don't take much interest in stories of men who carried newspapers when they were boys and then grew to be millionaires. Just because you didn't carry newspapers or saw wood when you were a boy is no reason why you cannot become big in your line.

"I claim that regardless of whatever failures you may have made in the past, you can make good if you will really apply yourself. Make up your mind to do one thing and then do it with all your might. That's what I'm doing, and the bigger my business grows the harder I'm doing it.

"For heaven's sake, keep out of ruts. If you find yourself grubbing along in the same old groove day after day—and there are thousands of you who do it—break away from it even if it looks like a risk. It won't be one-half so risky as letting yourself grow into an automaton. That's what kills growth—automatic application instead of brainy, thinking application. I have no more than my share of brains, but I make them work overtime.

"Work with your brains as well as with your hands and eyes and feet. If you read the Workers' Magazine, read it with your brains as well as your eyes. You'll stand a whole lot greater chance of making good this way than by any other method, I don't care whether you are a hodcarrier or a bank president.

"And whatever you do or don't do—don't be a salary coward."—By Robert H. Cochrane, in Chicago Sunday "Tribune."

N.B.—All copy must be in our hands on Wednesday morning to ensure publication in that week's issue.

Don't Use a Current Saver

UNLESS YOU USE A

GILLES ARC REGULATOR

WITH IT

This will give you the best possible control and finest light with alternating current. Consumes no extra current and stops all travelling and pitting of carbons. Gives a clear white light free from shadows. Only possible way to get a perfect light with alternating current. Guaranteed one year. Sent prepaid for $10.00 or send $3.00 for examination and balance on acceptance. State make of machine and amperes used.

RICHARD L. GILLES, Distributor, HELENA, MONTANA

A Money Making PROPOSITION

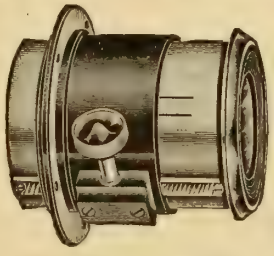
Some Exhibitors are paying their rent by exhibiting Advertising Slides before the show.

We make them, any design, from your copy. Also Announcement Slides in great variety.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.

513 Superior Building - Cleveland, Ohio



IMPROVE THE PICTURE ON THE SCREEN

ITS ALL IN THE LENS

by using a high grade projection lens.

Our lenses give a sharper and more brilliant picture than anylenses made here or abroad. We will send a lens on approval that makes a picture the size you want.

PRICE $18.00 NET

When ordering state the distance from lens to screen and size of picture. The purchaser of a new machine should insist on getting one of these lenses with it instead of the inferior lens usually supplied.

GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

THE BEST MOVING PICTURE MACHINE.

RHEOSTATS

CONTAIN

CLIMAX WIRE

Catalogue and information upon request.

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.,

HARRISON, N, J.

Comments on Film Subjects.

"Bewitching Woman."—A French production which is based upon the infidelity of a lover. The way the French take on new loves and discard them and then accept the old one again is astonishing to American audiences. The action and staging of this are both good and the film is quite as interesting as any based upon this subject. It is better than some in that no one is killed and so far as can be judged from the pictures no innocent heart is broken.

"The Kind-Hearted Gamekeeper."—A well acted and well photographed film in which a gamekeeper is shown with an exceptionally kind heart. It is representative of a possibility, but unfortunately is not probable. Americans know little about such things and this matter of trapping rabbits seems perfectly right to them. As a Christmas film it is a success.

"The Dog and the Pipe."—An amusing railroad comedy which has an interesting denouement. The last scene with the dog sitting up holding the pipe waiting for the gentleman to alight from the train is much the best of them all.

"Under Northern Skies."—An excellent film which tells a good story centering around a lumber camp in the North. The photography is good and the staging could scarcely be improved. In this, as in others of the Edison films, the technical quality is beyond criticism. Some of the scenes are strong and all are good. The tale would not have been complete without one death, but it is so well managed that it leaves no disagreeable impressions.

"The Selfish Man."—This film tells a good moral story and enforces it so vigorously that almost anyone can see the application. It is watched with intense eagerness by the audience and when the man reforms and changes his manner of living there is applause.

"For He Is a Jolly Good Fellow."—Based upon the picture of that name and well acted and staged. It is unnecessary to repeat the story. It is, perhaps, sufficient to say that it ought to exert a good influence upon those who do likewise.

"The Sacrifice."—A French film which doesn't seem entirely clear and which might quite as well be left out. The story does not seem complete. Why the old lady is killed at the opening of the story and just what the mixup is that finally leads to the young woman's suicide is not thoroughly understood.

"Bad Lodgers."—Portraying the trials of those who rent rooms to so-called artists.

"The Painting."—A pathetic story, strongly told and with a tragic ending, though one that is possible and no doubt such events occur all too frequently. The photography is good, but in some parts the action appears strained and overdone. As a whole, however, it is a good film and one any manager might add to his programme with profit.

"The Bride of Lammermoor."—An excellent production of Scott's well known novel of that name. The Vitagraph people have given another of their ambitious films which is as satisfactory as it is possible to make such a long story in so condensed a form. The staging is as near correct as can be made now and the acting is especially good. The scene where the heronie goes mad is strong and appears natural in the last degree. This film is extremely popular with the audience and brought a round of applause in two different places where it was seen this week.

"Bill Jones' New Year's Resolutions."—This is supposed to be a comic, and perhaps in so far as the swearing off part goes it is a comic, but few can understand where is the fun of appearing drunk and breaking up things generally.

"Who Is Smoking That Rope?"—A film that illustrates what sometimes occurs when an inexperienced person buys cigars for a present. It has some amusing situations, particularly when the smoker clears the trolley car and the hotel.

"The Gambler's Fate."—A well told story of the gambling fever which led to the attempted commission of murder. Happily no one dies but the plotter of all the ruin, and he kills himself when confronted by the unmistakable evidence of his crime. It is a French film and the staging and acting are both good. Perhaps because it teaches a moral lesson it should be called satisfactory.

"Catching a Fly."—A comic in which a fly buzzing about an old gentleman's head brings all sorts of disasters. Finally the little girl catches and immures him safely. Then all the troubles cease. The film develops numerous genuinely amusing situations.

"All Is Fair in Love and War."—An excellent comedy film, beautifully colored, in which with the aid of a friendly musketeer two lovers set a trap for the young woman's father and compel him to consent to their marriage before they will release him. The action and staging are both good and the pictures are tinted just enough to relieve the monotony of the black and white. More such pictures would be appreciated. This one was applauded.

"The Maniac Cook."—As a specimen of good photography, the Biograph Company is scoring a success in this film. It is one of the rare American films in which much attention is paid to the acting. All of the motions and expressions are correct and natural, perhaps too realistic, as when the cook arranges the legs of the child and takes the knife to cut them there is a general shudder among the audience and an impulse to run to the screen, to save the child. This unpleasant feeling does not last longer than in the other actions of the maniac, as in her deranged state of mind, she drops the knife without injuring the baby. The cook is a consummate actress, her face motions are well studied, she really acts the part of a demented person. The two other actors are as good, and if the subject is somewhat painful the production is a masterpiece, it is no mere moving pictures on a screen but the real art of the actor as displayed on our best stages. With this film the Biograph Company is bringing cinematography to a stage for cultivated folks and it is time that our manufacturers should produce something for the better classes, as the better classes are showing a disposition to patronize the picture show.

"Two Very Unlucky Thieves."—This is one of the funniest films of the season. The actors do their parts unusually well and the funny situations in which they find themselves, ending with breaking into a police station, are sufficiently out of the ordinary to excite loud laughter.

"Strolling Players."—A dramatic film which has two situations of unusual strength, the first where the minister turns his daughter out of doors for attending a theatrical performance. The next when she returns a famous actress to save her father from the clutches of a rejected suitor who holds a mortgage upon her father's property and is going to sell it out. She tears up the papers and gives the creditor the money and drives him out of the house. It is a good story, well told, and the actors are good. It should have a good run.

"Renunciation."—A love story in which the rejected lover saves the accepted one for his old sweetheart and then turns resolutely away and leaves them in their happiness. The scene where the renunciation occurs is particularly strong and appeals to the audience in an unusual degree. It is a good film and managers will make no mistake in placing it before their patrons.

"The Rajah's Casket."—A semi-magic film in which ballets play an important part and there is more or less of the black art developed in searching for a lost casket. It is well staged and finely colored and the action is good.

"The Messenger's Mistake."—A series of amusing incidents arising from a messenger who was given a baby and a rabbit to deliver to different addresses and gets the cards mixed. Finally everything is straightened out, but not until there is consternation in two homes and the audience has had a number of good laughs.

"A Persistent Suitor."—A comic in which a persistent suitor finally induces a girl to marry him. Several extremely funny situations are developed and as a comic the film is a success.

"The Mysterious Correspondent."—A funny film in which the incidents lead up to a capital denouement and the timid maiden gets the man she wants. The ducking the old gentleman gets at the laundry never fails to excite roars of laughter. At the close the picture is liberally applauded.

"Dangerous Members of Bostock's Menagerie."—An extremely interesting film showing how they extract the poison fangs from snakes and also showing some other members of the menagerie which has been famous for a number of years. Record films of this character interest a great many in every audience and at the same time they convey information.

"The Electric Hotel."—A comic that has numerous characteristics of more than ordinary interest. These films are chiefly interesting in the curious developments. Marvelous work is done in preparing them and even though they are intended to be funny, the making of fun in these instances is coupled with some wonderful work upon the films.

A SET OF BEAUTIFULLY COLORED

Lantern Slides

Especially Arranged for Nickelodeon and Theatre Use on

Sicily, Italy

and the

Earthquake District

Many managers are crowding their houses with these slides as a leader. Order quick. Send $5 00 and we will send slides, C. O. D. for the balance.

34 slides in set. Per set, colored, $17, per set, plain, $8.50

For sale only by

Williams, Brown & Earle

Dealers in Motion Picture Supplies

918 CHESTNUT ST., Dept. P, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Have you received our Booklet P, giving detailed description of 8 Illustrated Lecturettes? Between—reel features.

Doehler Die-Casting Co.

369-371 PARK AVE.

Tel. 4438 Williamsburgh BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Finished Die-Castings

Made for Machine Manufacturers and Inventors

Prompt, Reliable Lowest Prices
NEW JERSEY FILM RENTAL CO.
F. PENNINO, Manager, 367 CENTRAL AVE., JERSEY CITY, N. J.
We handle all New Goods—BIOGRAPH, GAUMONT, LUX, GREAT NORTHERN, ETC.
Telephone, 4139 W. Jersey Si parla Italiano and German.
Machines of all kinds bought and sold. We carry everything pertaining to the business

Morton Film Exchange
S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.
High-Class Film Service handling exclusively all Biograph Licensee Films. Parties desiring first-class service write us

INDEPENDENT FILMS PLEASE
INVESTIGATE this when you are ready for business. WE do not promise to make you rich, or give you something for nothing. BUT we DO promise you the squarest deal you ever had in SUPERIOR FILM SERVICE.
THAT IS THE KEYNOTE OF OUR SUCCESS
WONDERLAND FILM EXCHANGE
Suite 1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Block - Pittsburgh, Pa.

Films of Quality Rented
LATEST AND BEST SELECTIONS OF THE FOLLOWING WELL-KNOWN MAKERS
Gaumont
Urban-Eclipse
Lux
Williamson
Eclair
Comerio
Great Northern
Biograph
Ambrosio
Cricks & Martin
Hepworth
Carlo Rossi

Full line of Supplies, Machines Carbons, Condensers, Tickets etc., etc.
We are not junk handlers, but supply service hat tells at the icket office.
MAKE KNOWN YOUR WANTS
Liberty Film Exchange
Telephone Walnut 3956
1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.
Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

"Faithful Little Doggie."—A well photographed film, illustrating how marvelously a dog can be trained. The action of the dog is good in all instances and the pictures never fail to bring applause. Anything which shows the sagacity of animals seems to please the average audience better than almost anything else that can be shown.

"The Pearl Fisher" is not a new film, but as it is one of the good magic productions of the Pathe Freres it was well received. This proves once more that good films can be shown over again and still command admiration.

"Father and the Kids."—If you are under the influence of the weather and you want a good hearty laugh, do not miss seeing this Gaumont production. If it were shown at the White House, our President would be more than delighted at such a collection of kids and he would jump to the screen to congratulate the father.

"An Unprofitable Call."—Another success of the Gaumont folks and a success in many ways. The whole film is remarkably fine as photography. The acting could not be better and the subject, although on the comic line, is very amusing, clean and can be shown to audiences of children and ladies. The audience gave a good reception to this film, it was not a forced laugh from silly stunts but a hearty laugh from very natural causes.

"The Burglar in a Piano."—An attempt at some comic work but of very unnatural and forced situations; on the whole a mediocre production.

"The Poor Singer Girl."—If the Gaumont producers kept the audience roaring with the "Father and the Kids," this time they kept the handkerchiefs busy. This highly dramatic film goes deep down the heart. The subject although very sad is perfectly clean and can be shown before any audience, in fact there is a good moral lesson in it and shows us plainly that while we may have plenty of the goods of this world, we do not know the sufferings of others. The production can be recommended for church entertainments.

"Unveiling a Statue."—In this production the "Eclipse" folks try to amuse an audience, but the attempt is not a successful one. As usual a few spectators have to laugh when the supposed statue gets on a spree. It is a very mediocre production.

"Interior Cyclone."—A comic in which a new idea is developed that highly amuses the audience. If some change could be made so that the machine could be reversed and the two policemen carried to the top of the building it would add to the fun making qualities of the film.

"The Holy Hermit."—A comedy drama which has more actual funny situations than some of the so-called comics. The action is good and the photography couldn't be better. The film deserves a long run because it is technically good and possesses strong elements of amusement.

"The Merchant of Venice."—An ambitious film. The staging is exceptionally good, and this includes the costumes and all the accessories. But some of the characters are weak. Shylock himself is not up to the standard, though perhaps he is better than some of the others. Nevertheless, the fact that others are weak does not affect the play as much as it does if Shylock is weak. It is a little difficult to follow the thread of the play through some of the scenes, but this is due to necessary elimination. In the main, however, the film is good and deserves a long run. It is a good representation for the money.

"The Vestal; A Love Idyl."—One of those beautiful films representative of ancient Roman life which are always sure to please and instruct. This hangs on the love of a Vestal virgin and has numerous dramatic situations which are made the most of. The final scene in which the fire is miraculously rekindled and the virgin is taken from her living tomb is particularly strong and appeals to the audience as few scenes do in these films. The picture won vigorous applause in two places where it was seen.

"Christmas Eve at Sunset."—This is said to be a story of life in 1784, but it might have been any other year and Christmas has little to do with it. Some of the scenes are strong, while others are weak. The scene of the murder of the child is strong and brings involuntary cries of horror to the lips of the audience. The duelling scene is equally weak and brings mostly contempt. The brother's actions in undertaking the rescue of the girl and securing her pardon are marked by undue deliberation. It would seem as though the actor should have shown feverish haste here, at least, but he moves with as calm a demeanor as though nothing of importance depended upon it. Staging and technic are both good and the film deserves a long run.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Mt. Pulaski, Ill.—W. W. Snyder will engage in the moving picture theater business.

Richmond, Mo.—S. F. Black, of Maryville, will open a moving picture theater in this city.

Hammond, Ind.—Julius Cohn, of Indiana Harbor, will open a moving picture theater in this city at an early date.

South Bend, Ind.—Barry Scanlon, manager of the Olympic Theater here, is planning to erect a moving picture theater.

Springfield, Ill.—The Chicago Amusement Company will open a moving picture theater in this city at an early date.

Rockford, Ill.—Contractor Schmeling has started the work of remodeling a skating rink to be fitted for a moving picture theater.

Fortville, Ind.—John K. Smith, with other gentlemen, is to open a moving picture theater in Fortville, to be known as the Lyric.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Plans have been completed for the remodeling the Arcade bowling alleys, on John street, into a moving picture theater.

Dundee, Ill.—Messrs. V. W. Lawrence and J. W. Andrews, of Elgin, Ill., will open a moving picture theater here, to be known as the Crescent.

Baltimore, Md.—Robert B. Bull has obtained a permit for the alteration of the building at 112 North Howard street into a moving picture parlor.

Mitchell, S. D.—The Star Theater Company opened its new house of amusement on Christmas Eve. It is the second moving picture show in Mitchell.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., is becoming a very popular headquarters for moving picture shows, another one having opened up for business this week.

Ware, Mass.—F. F. Gilmore and James Foley have leased a room on Parker street where they will open a moving picture show with a seating capacity of 600.

Denver, Colo.—The Cinematograph Amusement Company filed incorporations for $10,000. The incorporators are C. M. Hedrick, R. P. Moeller and H. H. Buckwalter.

Traer, Ia.—The Electric Theater, which has been running for the past four months under the management of Boynton Bros., closed its doors on account of lack of patronage.

Albuquerque, N. M.—The Crystale Theater, on Gold avenue, has resumed business after a silence of three weeks; during this time it has undergone all the latest improvements.

Louisville, Ky.—Articles of incorporation were filed by the East End Amusement Company. The object of the corporation is to conduct a moving picture show in the eastern part of the city.

Ogden, Utah.—The Globe Theater, a new moving picture house recently completed on Washington avenue, was thrown open to its patrons under the management of Wm. F. Normandy.

Warren, Ohio.—W. W. Dunnavant has decided to add 50 feet to the rear of the Dreamland Theater building, in Park avenue, and will make the place a home for vaudeville and moving pictures.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—I. M. Martin petitioned Building Inspector Kuhlman for a permit to erect a moving picture show on McMillan street. The Eden is the name of the enterprise and is to cost $24,000.

Hammond, Ind.—Bailiff F. Shine and William Dietel, who recently started a moving picture show in the Standard steel car district, have sold out to Charles McCoy for $1,000. It will be known as the Family Theater.

Chicago, Ill.—The Garfield Amusement Company has been organized here for the purpose of operating amusement park, moving picture houses, etc. Frederick Bartholmae, 4310 Berkeley avenue, is one of the incorporators.

Marion, Ind.—Leroy Tudor has opened the Star Theater. It is said to be one of the cosiest theaters in Marion. It is seated with automatic folding and revolving chairs and its entertainment consists of moving pictures and illustrated songs.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—"The Wide Awake" is the name of the new moving picture show which is to take the place of the Dreamland that was recently burned out on Market street, near Seventh. Mr. Howell Graham is manager of the new enterprise.

Beware! Mr. Manager

A very contagious disease exists (worn out sickly junk film service) means

Instant Death to your Theatre

LET US PRESCRIBE OUR SELECTED FILM SERVICE

A tonic that is necessary for success. If you are worried, and need assistance, write for latest proposition; results will follow; we increase receipts.

PENNSYLVANIA FILM CO.

400-1-2-3-4 Lewis Building
PITTSBURGH, PA.

ECONOMY FILM SERVICE

410 LIBERTY AVENUE
PITTSBURG

WE HAVE MORE FILM IN STOCK THAN ANY OTHER COMPETITOR

EVERY Reel is in first-class condition. The old stock has been disposed of. We have just received Five Hundred Reels from a foreign exchange, like new. We guarantee subjects to please any audience. We give all customers their proportionate share of new subjects. If you are paying big prices remember our service is Quality and Low Prices.

2 changes,	shipped	two	at a time,	1000	feet	each	$ 6.00
4	"	"	two	"	"	"	10.00
6	"	"	three	"	"	"	14.00
12	"	"	four	"	"	"	25.00

POSTER AND SONG SLIDES WITHOUT ADDITIONAL CHARGE

At Liberty after January 10

A-1 OPERATOR, any MACHINE

Now with Lia Carli Company Talking Pictures and Vaudeville Show on the road. Reeason for being out, show closes. Address permanently

CARL M. TOMPKINS, PBox 826, Maquoketa, Iowa.

New York City.—Plans have been filed for remodeling the building at 45 James street into a moving picture hall and for putting a moving picture show in the three-story dwelling at 162 East 86th street for Martin Jerome & Chas. Schroeder.

Guthrie, Okla.—The Yale Amusement Company of Oklahoma filed incorporation articles to operate moving picture shows in Oklahoma and Arkansas. The company is capitalized at $10,000, the incorporators being L. W. and A. I. Brophy and H. P. Moseley.

Savannah, Ga., January 3.—Mr. Robert Sullivan, of Savannah, has become manager of the Lyric Theater in Macon, Ga., of which the Bandy Bros., of Savannah, are owners. The Arcade has been closed for repairs. The Bandy Bros., who had half interest in the place, have sold out to Arthur Lucas, Jr., and a stock company. The place will be entirely remodeled, getting new opera chairs and a beautiful thirty feet or more front. There will be more than three thousand electric lights used on the outside of the building and it will be the finest theater south of the Mason and Dixon line when finished.

CORRESPONDENCE.

AN EXHIBITOR ON THE MORALS OF THE SHOW.

Waycross, Ga., December 2, 1908.

Editor Moving Picture World:

The effort you are making, through your most valuable paper, to put a check to the manufacture of films which almost blush because of the very improper pictures they are so often forced to display, is enough to call forth the praise of every genteel exhibitor and patron of moving picture places the world over.

I read with great pleasure the weekly or timely comments on the films that have been coming out recently in The Moving Picture World. If the manufacturers of films were wise in their time and generation they would cease offering the boys and girls, through moving pictures, lessons of crime, vulgarity and immorality generally by bringing such things so constantly before their eyes. They ought to and must know that an exhibitor should have due consideration for those who visit his place of amusement and try to give them a knowledge of things worth knowing and legitimate entertainment such as they would be willing for their wives, girls and boys to know about and see.

Why wait for the heavy hand of the law to force the annihilation of improper subjects? Beyond any doubt whatever, a change is going to take place ere long. I, for one, go to the extra expense of express charges both ways and telegraphing, returning improper subjects for others I am willing to show rather than take the chances of offending even a half dozen good citizens and spoiling the mind of one child. The gentleman who supplies me with films will vouch for the truth of this.

Manufacturers of films, for the sake of humanity do give us more of the good and less of the bad, good-moral-killing kind, and then watch the business succeed. In all sincerity,

CHAS. H. REDDING.

AN EXHIBITOR ON THE MUNICIPAL LAWS.

Lancaster, Pa., January 4, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—Having read of the drastic action taken by Mayor McClellan in revoking the licenses of moving picture shows in New York, I will venture to say that had the law-abiding exhibitors in your city taken such action that was necessary and seen that the license of the exhibitor who evaded the law was revoked, this calamity would never have happened. I own and operate a moving picture theater in this city and am only too glad to abide by the laws governing such shows in this State; in fact go even farther and provide precautions which are not exacted. I cannot understand why the film renters will lease film to exhibitors whom they know evade the law. It only means that the business will go to the "dogs" and the well meaning will suffer with the bad. I notice under the New Patent Company each exhibitor will pay a license fee. Am I to understand that the fee paid by the law-abiding exhibitor will be used to further the interest of one who will knowingly break the law? Why should not the renters and the manufacturers pay a fee also, for are not they interested in bringing the business to a higher level? Can not this same Patent Company make and enforce rules which will compel all exhibitors to obey the law and employ competent and careful operators or else refuse them film? In this city there are five moving picture theaters and we are not bothered at all by the authorities, simply because we obey the law and run as clean a show as possible with the subjects the manufacturers give us.

Yours truly,

"Dreamland." GEO. M. KRUPA.

GREAT NORTHERN DEFINE THEIR POSITION.

New York, January 8, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—We desire to announce that we have contracts with the owners of numerous patents connected with the moving picture machine business. These contracts have many years yet to run and all users of film manufactured by the Great Northern Film Company are fully protected from any interference whatever from owners of such patents.

If any litigation is commenced against users of our films they will confer a favor by notifying us immediately, and we will see that such action is terminated very rapidly.

The Great Northern Film Company is in business in America to stay and our film supply can be increased to meet any demands.

Suit has been instituted against the American Mutoscope and Biograph Company, and we will spare no expense to protect our rights.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY,
INGVALD C. OES, Manager.

IT IS OUR POLICY

To
- Purchase from three to five copies of every good subject manufactured.
- Make shipments in ample time to avoid delays.
- Avoid REPEATERS.
- Ship NO JUNK.
- Give what we promise.

We earnestly solicit a trial order for Film Service that we may convince you

WRITE TO-DAY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.
(Members Film Service Association)

1401-1405 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
421 Fourth Ave., LOUISVILLE, KY.

Care of Crawford Theatre El Paso, Tex.
Care of Shubert Theatre New Orleans, La.
306 Moore-Burnet Bldg. Houston, Tex.

THE WORLD FAMOUS "NONPARIEL" SONG SLIDES

By HENRY B. INGRAM, 42 W. 28th St. New York

Who the Catskills Lift Their Summits to the Sun.
Money Won't Make Everybody Happy.
Mollie, Come Jump on the Trolley.
Among the Valleys of New England.
Anchored.
Love's Old Sweet Song.
I'm Longing for My Old Green Mountain Home.
Lenore.
On Bunker Hill, Where Warren Fell.
On the Banks of the Wabash.
The Holy City.
The Little Old Red Schoolhouse on the Hill.
There Stands a Flag, Let Them Touch It if They Dare.
The Old New England Homestead in the Dell.
When the Autumn Leaves Are Falling.
Memories.
Where the Tall Palmettos Grow.
In Old Illinois.
Where Poverty's Tears Ebb and Flow.
Sweetheart Days.
Lexington.

I BUY AND SELL SLIDES. ALL SLIDES $5.00 PER SET

How to Make Film Cement and HOW to keep your Condensers from Cracking sent on receipt of $1.00. Address
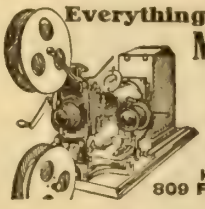
MAYER SILVERMAN - ALTOONA, PA.

ELECTRIC THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
No. 47 North 10th Street
Philadelphia, Pa.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License — Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

Do NOT put on the
PASSION PLAY
Without Music and Lecture
If you are too far away from New York or Philadelphia to engage the services of the first and foremost lecturer on Moving Pictures in general and the Passion Play in particular,
W. STEPHEN BUSH
get his lecture in print. Complete lecture on every scene with valuable suggestions as to music and interesting introductory.
This copyrighted lecture running exactly with the pictures and giving full explanation and commentary on every scene sent postpaid to any address in U. S. or Canada on receipt of one dollar. Address
W. Stephen Bush, 155 N. Conestoga St., Phila., Pa.
May be reached at any time by phone in residence, Belmont 4484.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—I have prepared special lectures with suggestions as to music and effects for every feature film turned out by the Edison licensees. The list comprises over a hundred subjects and includes the very latest feature films. Price per lecture, 25c.

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!
FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!
Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material
COMPLETE, $175.00
VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago



Everything in NEW and S. H.
Motion Picture Machines
Films, Stereopticons, Song Slides and Supplies. Same wanted. Catalogues free.
HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

Buy the Best means Buy a Bal.
The only Moving Picture Machine Trunk in the world which is strong enough to carry the machine safely and light enough to save excess baggage charges, is the "BAL" FIBRE TRUNK, and, being the best, it is the cheapest.
SEND FOB CATALOGUE—W
WILLIAM BAL, Inc. - - - 210 West 42d Street, New York City

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

LOOK LOOK LOOK
MR. FILM EXCHANGE
Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving
B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

PRINTING for PASSION PLAY
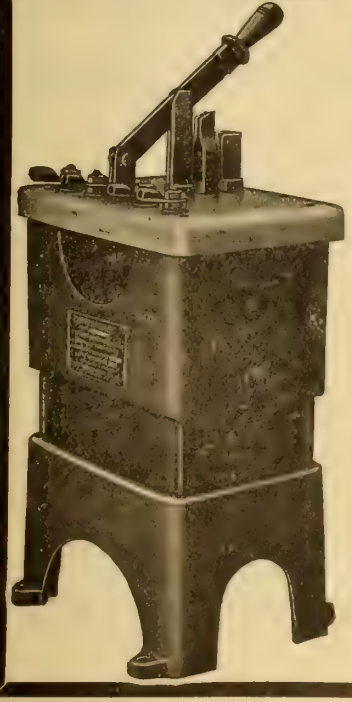
AND OTHER SUBJECTS Send for Catalogue
HENNEGAN & CO.
126 E. 8th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio

KNICKERBOCKER CIRCUIT
MOVED TO SHUBERT BUILDING
Broadway & 39th St.
BOOKING THE FINEST VAUDEVILLE FOR M. P. HOUSES



Steady Light for Moving Picture Machines ASSURED BY THIS COMPENSARC
for Alternating Current Only

It is the only device that you can depend on for steady light. Variations in line voltage cannot affect the light, because this Compensarc smooths out the variations, something a rheostat can not do because it is in series with the line and lamp and any variation immediately affects the lamp.
The Compensarc is the only device on the market with which you can vary the intensity of the light satisfactorily—three different lights in as many seconds—and it saves two-thirds of your light bills at that.

Save Money by Getting a COMPENSARC at Once
Ask for Booklet 25013 and Price

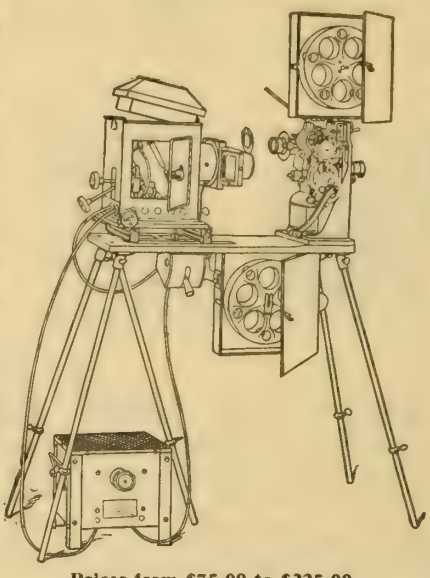
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
Department A
FORT WAYNE, - INDIANA
738

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

The public wants something better in Motion Pictures than ordinary machines produce.

Once any sort of motion pictures went because the idea was new. Now only the best draw the crowds. Exhibitors should have the brilliant, steady, clean cut work of the Edison Kinetoscope to secure a permanent and real success. The Kinetoscope is Mr. Edison's invention, perfected by him and manufactured under his supervision.

Among its many advantages is its



Prices from $75.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

AUTOMATIC SHUTTER

This protects the film from the heat of the light. If for any reason the film stops, the shutter automatically drops between the film and the light. Its action is instantaneous and absolutely prevents destruction of the film. The Kinetoscope is fully described in a booklet which we will gladly send free, on request.

EDISON FILMS

The Edison idea in film making is to produce subjects that hold the attention by reason of their cleverness. They are never coarse or suggestive. Some thrill; others amuse; all are the kind that appeal on the strength of high quality. New Edison Films are made each week. Let us put your name on our mailing list.

Exhibitors who show them draw the biggest crowds. They're high-class and they please

NEW SUBJECTS:
Shipment, January 12, 1909
"WHERE IS MY WANDERING BOY TO-NIGHT"
Dramatic
No. 6412 Code, VENGANZAS
App. Length 900 feet

Shipment, January 15, 1909
DRAWING THE COLOR LINE
Comedy.
No. 6413 Code, VENGARAMOS
App. Length 900 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS:
Shipment, January 19, 1909
PAGAN AND CHRISTIAN
Dramatic
No. 6414 Code, VENGARIAIS
App. Length 1000 feet

Shipment, January 22, 1909
A BURGLAR CUPID
Comedy
No. 6415 Code, VENGARIAN
App. Length 850 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.
New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 804 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:
P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries. FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

Stories of the Films.

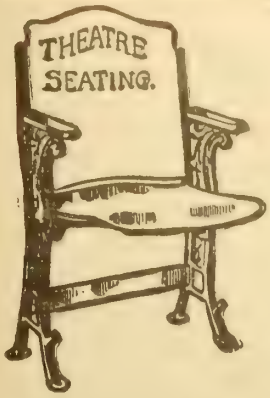
BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

THE HONOR OF THIEVES.—The one human animal totally devoid of honor is the thief, and the penchant for stealing seems absolutely irresistible. No emotion in man is capable of repressing this propensity. Ned Grattan and Mike Murphy are a couple of crooks, who have looked with longing on the extravagant display of valuables in Einstein's loan office. They figure that if one could only gain an entrance, a rich haul would be the reward. Many plans were devised and discarded, until Grattan, who is a handsome chap, resolved to perpetrate his evil design by way of the daughter, Rachel's heart. Rachel falls an easy victim to the flattering Ned, and accompanying him to a dance, consents to his proposal that they elope the following evening. Ned arrives at the pawnshop after closing time, and is admitted by Rachel. While she is upstairs getting her things, Ned admits Murphy. Poor trusting Rachel descends to be knocked on the head, gagged and bound to the newelpost of the stairway. Mr. Einstein, missing his daughter, comes down into the shop only to receive a like treatment. The crooks then pile a lot of rubbish in front of Rachel and saturate it with kerosene. On top of this they place a lighted candle, so that when the dip burns down it will set fire to the rubbish, incinerating the pair, at the same time allowing them to make good their escape—a slow fuse as it were. Up the stairs they dash and rifle the money safe in Einstein's room. Meanwhile, Rachel has worked herself down until her hands come in contact with the candle's flame, with which she burns the binding of her wrists. Her hands free, she releases herself from the post, and rushing back of the counter takes up two revolvers, holding up the two crooks as they descend into the store, commanding them to put down their loot and forcing Grattan himself to telephone for the police, who arrive immediately, taking the thieves in charge, much to the satisfaction of Einstein, who is released and revived. Length, 681 feet.

LOVE FINDS A WAY.—A comedy drama of mediaeval days, when Cupid was obliged to work overtime, and be an inventive genius of subtle powers, resorting to artifice and cunning to work his felicitous plans. In this Biograph story the Duke's daughter is loved by a gallant knight, which love she reciprocates. The Duke, however, favors another and would force her to wed the man of his choice. Preparations are made for the wedding, and it looks as if the poor girl will be made a party of an odious match, but the lover becomes fearless and resorts to trick. With the aid of friends, he seizes the bridegroom that is to be, and assisted by the court barber, makes up to look exactly like him, and thus takes his place at the altar, is married before the deception is discovered. This is one of the most elaborately staged and costumed productions ever made. Length, 319 feet.

A RURAL ELOPEMENT.—"Be sure you are right, then go ahead," is a pretty good rule to follow, and had the heroine of this subject cognized this fact she would have prevented a lot of anxiety, worry and trouble. Hank Hopkins and Cynthia Stebbins were ardent lovers, matrimonially inclined, and while Hank was a proper sort of a chap, old Dad Stebbins looked with disfavor upon his suit for the hand of Cynth. Their clandestine meetings were nearly always interrupted by ubiquitous Dad, until, in desperation, they resolve to elope. The momentous evening arrives and Hank signals to fair Cynthia, who is waiting in her room, dressed and ready to fly with her hero Hank. Although of a romantic turn, they have not selected Spring as the season to enact the episode, the weather being decidedly hibernal, and so Hank arrives clothed in a heavy hat and long ulster. Hungry Henry, the hobo, butts in on the scene at this moment, and from a distance casts covetous glances at the aforesaid ulster, and when Hank goes to procure a ladder he follows and with one fell swoop knocks out Hank, taking his ulster and hat, leaving him bound and gagged. Back he goes to complete the romance, which had begun so beautifully that it would be a shame not to consummate. Wrapped up in the ulster, with hat pulled over his face, the hobo might easily be taken for Hank by one less nervous than Cynthia, so she descends the ladder and makes off. They haven't gone far when she discovers her error, but the tramp drags her along by force. Meanwhile, poor Hank, reviving from the effects of the blow, rolls over and over until he reaches Stebbins' porch steps. Disarranging the gag he calls and brings to his aid Dad Stebbins and the rest of the household, who, after a hurried explanation from Hank, start after the human gorilla in whose clutches they realize poor Cynthia must be. After a spirited chase, serious in agonizing earnestness, and comical in ruralistic details, they come up with the miscreant, and the poor trembling Cynthia is handed over to her dad, who in turn hands her to the brave hero Hank, at which there is general rejoicing. Length, 546 feet.

THE SACRIFICE.—Oh, the woe of simultaneous birthdays, as were Mr. and Mrs. Hardlucks', and both being of a generous nature, were seized with an insatiable desire to make on this anniversary



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company

90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.

70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Kalem Films

LENGTH 965 FEET

Release of January 15th, 1909

"The Sponge Fishers of Cuba" comes at a time when it is badly needed. It is unquestionably the greatest travel and educational film ever issued, and the lecture which is sent free to all applicants is as complete and thorough as any by Elmendorf or Holmes.

Next Week

"The Girl at the Old Mill"

KALEM CO., Inc.

131 West 24th St., New York City

of their nativity suitable gifts, each to the other. Hardluck has a watch, but no fob. Mrs. Hardluck has a wealth of hear, but no decorative comb for her hair. What is worse, finances are low or rather exhausted. An idea strikes Hardluck. He will pawn his watch and buy a comb, thus surprising her. Mrs. Hardluck's mind is also illumined by a bright thought. She will sacrifice her hear, and with the money buy him a fob. This they do, of course, unknown to each other. Well, here's the situation: He had no fob for his watch, and she, no comb for her hair; but now he has no watch for his fob, and she has no hair for her comb. Length, 438 feet.

EDISON MFG. CO.

UNDER NORTHERN SKIES. Synopsis of scenes: All the world's a stage—the play is ever on; no curtain ever lowers between the acts—the scenes are simply shifted. The players come and go, and play their different parts. To some it is a tragic tale—while others see but comedy. The scenes may change and costumes vary, but the company is that good old "stock," humanity.

Away in the Northern woods where the lumberman's ax makes the echoes ring—where Jack Frost holds sway, and Winter long and earnest—even there love finds his way and melts a path to human hearts, and sometimes sees happiness crown his work, and sometimes havoc.

Two comrades working in the same lumber camp—breathing the air that makes men sturdy—happy until love knocks for admittance, find a change come o'er the spirit of their dreams when the heroine, the Lumber King's winsome daughter, comes.

Then fate begins to toss the shuttle and the comrades are caught in the grind. The hero finds the paymaster unconscious, revives him, to learn that his loved comrade has turned thief. To shield him and the woman he thinks he has lost (and his comrade won) he takes the guilt upon himself, and even lies, in court, to shield those he loves; but his well-meant effort is fruitless, for the guilty man, unable to bear the sacrifice, breaks down, confesses all, and gives the girl up to the man whom she misjudged, but always loved. App. length, 900 feet.

THE WORM WILL TURN.—Synopsis of scenes: The master poet gave us a "Taming of the Shrew" that stands unequalled—but Mr. Pepper, who, unlike his name, was a very mild man—(until Mrs. Pepper begun to grind him), started a comedy going, when he finally rebelled at petticoat tyranny that would make the immortal one "turn green with envy."

Weary of the perpetual nagging and "Talkfest," he holds a council of war with himself behind the wood shed and determines on a plan of action.

Recalling an old army comrade who closely resembles Mrs. Pepper's "first husband," with whom she is always comparing poor Pepper, to his eternal disadvantage and mortification, he arranges with him to come on a visit and impersonate the "sainted number one," who was supposed to have been lost at sea fifteen years before our story opens—but the wise ones hinted at a different reason for his absence.

Well—our hero arrives and catches Mrs. Pepper wielding a fryingpan over Pepper—who is crouched in a corner. Talk about transformations! She imagines "number one's" ghost confronts her. When she learns that he is really flesh and blood, come to claim her, she becomes meek as a cow, and the two old cronies nearly die with laughter but not until they are smoking a pipe behind the aforesaid woodshed.

When the conspirators are through with their work Mrs. Pepper returns, a chastened and wiser woman, and the dove of peace nestles coyly in the chimney corner ever after. App. length, 900 feet.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

THE BEWITCHED BRETON (Gaumont).—A rip-roaring comedy full of action in every phase. Some exceptionally novel features are reproduced in this subject and it is certain to be adjudged a perfect success. Excellent photographic quality and highly interesting magic illusions. Length, 527 feet.

CONVERTED (Gaumont).—A very pathetic drama well rendered. The story is that of a young woman who with her husband is employed by a wealthy family. Unable to resist the temptations to which she is subjected in a house of plenty and splendor, overindulgence in liquor is the premature cause of her undoing. She is evicted from the home, leaving husband and child behind, she goes forth into a cold and unsympathetic world to make her living. From bad to worse she travels the well beaten downward path.

Her son progresses at school and is about to graduate as is also the daughter of his father's employer. The exercises over, the child and mother come face to face at the church door. A reconciliation of the parents is effected and the mother now resolves to make a new start and merit the confidence and sympathy of a loving son and husband. Photographic quality and dramatization are unexcelled. Length, 884 feet.

VISIONS OF A GOLDSMITH (Gaumont).—A beautifully hand colored subject portraying the visions of a smith. The productions of his skill,

TURN DOWN ANY ECONOMIZER THAT ISN'T HALLBERG'S

This is confidential, of course. Let me whisper this, too—

I was the first to use the word Economizer; I will be the last. The Hallberg is the only one that has stood the test of time. Those I sold a year ago are as good now as then. Ask HENRY OEHL, 1828 Amsterdam, Ave., New York. He bought the first one. I'm making the same kind yet. No one else has made one half as good. Ask the M. P. man who doesn't use a

HALLBERG

On D. C. I Save you 45 to 90%
On A. C. I Save you 65 to 90%

I have saved M. P. Men over

$100,000$

during the past year

ASK FOR MY NEW PROPOSITION

and specify
1st. Length of throw.
2nd. Line voltage.
3rd. If A. C. state cycles.
4th. Size of your M. P. lamp.
5th. Make of your machine.

WRITE NOW

J. H. HALLBERG

28 Greenwich Ave.
New York, U. S. A.

Money for you. In towns without electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

FOR SALE

Pathe Hand Colored Passion Play complete. A-1 condition, $250.00 Lubin's Passion Play, good condition, $140. One $135 Edison Ex. Machine, magazine and Rheostat brand new, never used, $90.00. One Edison Universal Machine, used 1 week, $50. Power's Rheostat, $5. One $20 Allen Adjustable M. P. Lens, $7. One $30 Edison Phonograph $5. One pair Edison Fire Magazines, never used, $12. Four Reels of Film, A-1 condition, 3c per foot.

C. J. MURPHY, Box 171. Meadville, Pa.

Indianapolis Calcium Light Co.

W. M. SWAIN, Manager

116 South Capitol Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

Our film service makes your bank account grow fat, Mr. Manager. Write us to-day and we will tell you why.

We are members of the Film Service Association

NEXT

Sand A

FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK OUR

Comedy Subjects

Professor's Love Tonic
(Lgth. 490 Ft.)

The Actor's Baby Carriage
(Lgth 467 Ft.)

READY
Wednesday, January 13

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

sabres and various weapons, wrought immense havoc and left a veritable trail of death in their wake, all of which was brought before him in vivid visions.

The din of battle, the passion of a duelist and the perpetrations of the highwayman left upon his imagination such marked impressions that he resolved immediately to reform and he changed his vocation to that of a goldsmith. Length, 327 feet.

A GYPSY'S JEALOUSY (Urban-Eclipse).—A strong sensational dramatic production. Members of a gypsy camp are visited by the residents of a little wood near which the former have encamped One of their number falls in love with a demure maiden and while he makes no open advances and receives no encouragement, he manages to effect a sale of some of his wares.

His demeanor, however, is perceived by one of his own party and a bitter jealousy aroused. In the shadows of the night the treacherous woman approaches the home of her imaginary rival. A crime is committed and the stiletto of her lover left upon the ground naturally throws suspicions upon him as to the perpetrator of the crime.

The physician's skill, however, averts the dire catastrophe and the victim is able to identify his antagonist and justice is then allowed to be administered. Length, 664 feet.

S. LUBIN.

WHEN LIPS ARE SEALED.—Lovers.—Plainly furnished room. From the appearance is to be seen that woman's loving hands reign there. The intended enters and is greeted cordially.

The Next Morning.—The young girl, after having partaken of a simple breakfast, departs, going to the store where she is employed as a salesgirl.

The Rejected Lover.—Jewelry counter in a department store. The young girl is selling. The floorwalker comes up and speaks to her and tries to take liberties, but is sharply rebuked.

A Thoughtless Act and Its Consequences.—Business is quiet at the jewelry counter. The girl takes a piece of jewelry and pins it to her waist unthinkingly. At this moment the floorwalker rushes up accusing her of an attempt to steal the brooch. She is so frightened that she does not know what to answer.

Swear That You Will Help Me and Keep the Secret or I Will Expose You as a Thief.—The floorwalker's office, before him lies the diamond brooch. The young lady enters. He takes some papers out of his desk and asks her to put these into the overcoat pocket of Locker No. 7. She refuses and he threatens to expose her as a thief if she does not carry out his wishes.

I Will Swear for Mother's Sake.—Being the only support of her old mother, she promises to do as he requests. She takes the enevelope and departs for the cloak room, where she places the envelope in the overcoat in Locker No. 7, unaware of the owner's identity.

The Missing Documents.—The Superintendent looks for some documents which have disappeared from his desk. He calls the business staff into his office, but they deny any knowledge of the missing documents. The floorwalker proposes a search. Accompanied by the store detective, the superintendent and his staff, they proceed to the lockers.

The Thief.—The missing documents are found in Locker No. 7. This is the locker of our girl's lover. The investigators return to the Superintendent's office, where they call for No. 7. He comes to the office and is accused of the theft just as his intended entered to bring some papers. She hears the accusation and faintingly drops to the floor.

The Vision.—The girl is at her home. Her thoughts haunt her. She sees her lover in jail bending his knees before her begging her to tell the truth. At this moment the villain appears behind her lover, laying his fingers upon his lips bidding her to silence. In her vision she sees herself behind prison bars. Her mother is coming to visit her. The shame is more than she can stand; she drops to the floor—dead. The girl resolves to tell the truth.

Judgment Day.—Court room. Superintendent, his staff and many spectators are in the court room. The young man's fate is to be decided. Now his intended is in the witness stand. She tells the truth in such a straightforward manner that the Judge and jury believe her, and the young man is freed and the villain is put in his place. Length, 825 feet.

TROUBLES OF A STRANDED ACTOR.—Stoned Out of Town.—Mr. Shakespeare introduces the new play, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to an unappreciative audience at Windsor. The receipts consisted of a volley of over-ripe tomatoes, eggs which were laid too soon and apples which had outlived their usefulness. The kind citizens of Windsor accompanied Mr. Shakespeare to the depot. Not having the price of a ticket and no train leaving until the next morning, Mr. Shakespearer decides to walk to the next station, which is Buckville. The distance is only 200 miles so Mr. Shakespeare starts to walk the ties.

Two Weeks Later.—Tired and worn out, Mr. Shakespeare arrived at Buckville. Sleeping accommodations are scarce in Buckville, especially if you have not the price of a meal ticket. Mr. Shakespeare, therefore, occupied an unoccupied

CALEHUFF

A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION

Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.

LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set

N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs
JUST OUT

Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,

STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
New York Office, 1402 Broadway

The Chicago Transparency Co.
Manufacturers of
Plain and Colored Lantern Slides and Illustrated Songs
69 DEARBORN STREET CHICAGO, ILL.
Frederick T. McLeod, Manager

Kinetoscopes, Films, Lanterns, Accessories, Edison Supplies.

CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St., - Kansas City

freight car, and pretty soon slept the sleep of the just. Unfortunately the car was attached to an outgoing freight train and when Mr. Shakespeare awoke the next morning he found himself in Windsor. The citizens did not appreciate his visit any more the second time than they did the first. The supply of over-ripe tomatoes, too, did not seem to be entirely exhausted, so he was treated a second time with fruit he could not eat. Again he walked the ties.

The Escaped Convict.—The sheriff at Windsor was notified of the escape of Wild Bill, and instructed to swear in deputies to catch the desperado. They did not catch the desperado, but Wild Bill caught the stranded actor. He exchanged clothing with him and started him off in the direction of Windsor. Imagine his reception at Windsor. Fortunately for him the citizens remembered his face as that of the great impersonator of Little Eva and for a third time chased him out of Windsor.

More Bad Luck.—Again using the fast freight line to Buckville, Mr. Shakespeare was held up by two tramps and deprived of his only suit. Using a sack as trousers he runs for shelter.

Wash Day.—Bridget is busy hanging up her clothes. Mr. Shakespeare appears and tries to take some of her clothing. She calls her friend, Mr. Casey, and now they start a chase after Mr. Shakespeare, who, stepping on a box of dynamite, is blown up in the air. When at last he comes down, he is brought into Dr. Bug's Sanitarium where he still plays the part of Little Eva. Length, 620 feet.

HOW HAPPY JACK GOT HIS MEAL.—Happy Jack finds a pocketbook which a lady has lost. Immediately he visits a swell restaurant and orders the best on the bill-of-fare. The lady in the meantime discovers her loss; a little girl tells her of the tramp who found it and in company with "one of the finest" she starts in pursuit of Happy Jack. They find him, he delivers the money and not being able to pay is thrown out of the restaurant. But he got his meal just the same. Length, 175 feet.

PATHE FRERES.

DUEL UNDER RICHELIEU.—This beautiful and historic picture depicts an incident which took place in Paris when Cardinal Richelieu was in power, and when duelling was considered a capital offense. In the opening scene we see a notice which has just been posted up in the public square stating that one Bouteville and his accomplices are guilty of treason in violating the law, and condemning them to death in expiation of their offense. The latter reads the notice and treats it as a huge joke; so tears it down, putting in its place another poster challenging the Baron Bevron and his friends to a duel with sword and dagger at noon on the following day in the Place Royal. The Baron and his friends read the challenge, and the former, adding underneath the words, "We will be there," signs his name and goes off in high glee.

At the appointed time the enemies meet, and in the presence of their friends and admirers fight an interesting duel. Both sides show great skill in the use of the foils, but gradually they drop out, mortally wounded, one by one, until Baron Bevron and one companion stand alone the victors of the hour, having killed Bouteville and his comrades. Realizing that they have broken the law and must pay the penalty, they make a hasty departure from the scene of the duel, and we next see them surrounded by their friends, drinking and making merry in honor of their victory. All at once, however, a messenger comes to warn them that the police are on their track; so quickly mounting their horses, they flee to the woods. But their hiding place is soon discovered, and the officers swoop down on them, making all hands prisoners.

The two brave fellows face their doom, and when they are condemned to die they walk to the gallows to pay the penalty. As they are about to mount the platform, the cardinal is borne on the scene in a sedan chair, and when the friends of the condemned men plead for their release he brushes them aside and orders the execution to take place. He coolly passes on while in the presence of the multitude on the square, the two brave fellows place their heads on the block and pay the price of their folly. Length, 718 feet.

SPANISH BLOOD.—This little drama, as depicted in this beautifully colored picture, shows us a young Spaniard who treats his wife with utter indifference, and, leaving her heartbroken, goes to the woman whom he has placed before her in his affections. The wife, whose pride is injured by being cast off for a courtesan, follows her husband and sees him join his sweetheart at their rendezvous. The pair stroll down the river, where they enter a small boat, and, unconscious that they are being watched by the cast-off wife from the shore, they float along while the gallant lover strums on his guitar and sings songs of love to the queen of his heart. The jealous wife keeps a close watch on them until they land on a square, where they join in the revelry with other happy young lovers. Seizing the opportunity, the enraged woman confronts the pair and makes a plea for her rights, but is only jeered at by the cold-hearted damsel who has wrecked her life. Finally they agree to settle the feud with a duel; so both women seize daggers and face one another while the amused spectators look on. The affair does not last long, for the wife is not equal to the occasion and is soon lying dead at the feet of her rival, and her husband coolly takes the arm of the courtesan and walks away. Length, 278 feet.

STILT WALKING.—This picture gives us a good idea of the use of stilts and the many wonderful feats which can be performed on them when worn by one who is skilled in handling them. In the first picture we see a lot of men with them attached walking around, tapping maple trees and extracting the sap. Then we see them walking through the woods and easily stepping over fences, wading through a deep pond which otherwise could not be accomplished without wetting their feet. Next we see them climbing up a high embankment and racing through the forest at a great rate. Finally we are treated to a novelty in the form of a football game, in which all the contestants wear stilts, and it is extremely droll to see them trying to keep their equilibrium and at the same time kick at the ball with the ends of the stilts. Length, 348 feet.

A NERVY THIEF.—Three fellows meet at a cafe, and one, who is without funds, proposes to his companions to enter into a scheme whereby they will be able to make a rich haul. He knows of a doctor who is a specialist in nervous diseases, and who is noted for his wealth; so the trio start out to get a little of it. One of the fellows feigns sickness, and jumps and twitches until they reach the office of the physician, and when he is brought in the doctor thinks that he requires immediate attention; so dismisses all the other patients, and proceeds to give this fellow the required medical aid. While the doctor and his servant are busy with the would-be invalid his two companions are rifling the rest of the apartment, and when they get everything of value in the place they make their escape and give a signal to the other fellow, who, upon hearing it, flips up the doctor and his assistant and leaps through the window, joining his companions outside. By the time the doctor comes to his senses the thieves have flown, and he is left in bewilderment. Length, 282 feet.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

IN OLD ARIZONA.—A story dealing with the early ranch life of Arizona, when the Apaches were frequently wont to go on the warpath and troops of the United States cavalry were constantly on the alert to punish the thieving bands of redskins whenever their depredations were brought to notice.

Joe Hartley, a large land owner and cattle raiser, had settled in the very heart of the Apache country, and by employing a great number of cowboys managed to keep his domains free from the threatened raids of the Indians.

The opening picture shows the ranch house surrounded by adobe walls, a veritable fort in the foot hills. A party in honor of Ethel Doyle, a niece of the ranch owner, is being given, and many guests from other ranches miles around are gathered. One of Hartley's most trusted men, young McFarland, is smitten with the charms of the vivacious Ethel, but he has a rival in Antonio Vallejo, a Mexican horse raiser, who proves to be on rather friendly terms with certain chiefs of the Apaches not many miles away. Antonio's blood is also fired by the beauty of this Eastern flower, and with the impetuosity characteristic of his race he declares his love and is rejected, at the same time learning of his rival's success.

The party is at its height, when a messenger arrives from his long journey across the desert with the mail. A letter is delivered to Ethel containing the news of the dangerous illness of her father in the East and requesting her immediate return home. Plans are instantly made for Ethel's departure the next morning, and a half dozen cowboys are detailed to accompany her and her uncle to the railroad, which is more than one hundred miles across an arid desert waste.

The next morning the party start on their long journey, and Antonio, the rejected lover, seeing the hopelessness of his suit and thirsting for revenge to sooth his disappointment determines at once upon his course. Securing the aid of an Indian renegade he starts out upon the trail of the party and finally overtakes them as they are camped for the night. Waiting until all are asleep, the crafty Mexican creeps into the camp, and with the aid of his Indian confederate steals all the horses of the unexpected travelers. To complete his revenge he empties the water cask, thus placing the unfortunate party in a most perilous position.

We are next shown a genuine Apache camp. The sun is just rising over the distant hills when the Mexican and his Indian companion ride into the village, trailing behind them the stolen horses. Offering to trade the ponies to his friend the chief for the scalp locks of the despised whites, a bargain is soon struck and a war party of Apaches start out to waylay and murder the unfortunate victims of the Mexican's hatred.

We next see the girl and her escort plodding wearily over the blazing sands of the desert, hoping against hope for some signs of water to relieve

In 1908 We Set the Pace

for the Motion Picture world. We made excellent pictures, and in 1909 we intend to make even better. Our past record is a guarantee for the future. It was the kind of work that tells, the kind that invites comparison

SELIG Always Stands for Superiority

Coming SELIG'S Next

In Old Arizona

Length 1000 feet. Code word Dessert

Order now from your nearest film exchange, as this will be the best Western picture ever gotten out by Selig.

Order a One-Sheet Poster for your lobby, ten cents, a beautiful Indian head.

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.
45-47-49 Randolph Street
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

Song Slides!
Travelogue Slides!
Announcement Slides!

Newest, latest and best. "You Select —We Ship." Lowest rental rates consistent with superior service. We also furnish thoroughly competent illustrated song vocalists, moving picture and vaudeville pianists, trap drummers, instrumentalists, dramatic lecturers, demonstrators and licensed operators.

Quick, reliable service.

Our references: Leading Film Exchanges, Song Slide Manufacturers, or "Dramatic Mirror" of New York.

Write now for Circulars and full particulars.

LEN SPENCER'S LYCEUM
44 West 28th St. NEW YORK

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.
Wholesale and Retail
Stereopticon and Lantern Slides
56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

THEATRE CHAIRS

Veneered and Upholstered

Can make quick delivery and give reasonable terms of payment

H. D. WARNER

63 Fifth Ave,, Rooms 14 & 15, N. Y. City

I have furnished thousands of Chairs for Moving Picture Theatres in New York City and vicinity. Have fitted six theatres for one company and several theatres for many other companies.

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

LATEST SONG HITS

"My Yankee Land."

"When the Leaves Turned to Golden."

"In the Bright Moonlight."

$4.00 per set, Cash with order

WE RENT SLIDES

at $1.00 per Week

1 Set Changed Daily

100 Sets of SLIDES

Originally Posed, Highly colored, A-1 Condition

at $2.75 per set

Write, 'Phone, Wire to

HARSTN & CO.

138 East 14th Street, New York City

Phones 3812-3813 Stuyves'nt

their burning thirst. An idea occurs to our heroine — way not send a message by one of her pet pigeons that she has been carrying on her journey, a present from her aunt. It is no sooner suggested than they begin to put the plan into execution. It is their last hope, as during the day a war party of hostile Indians has been sighted.

A letter is hastily written and tied about the neck of the feathered pet, and with a prayer upon her lips for its safe arrival Ethel releases the little messenger and it soars away on its mission of relief.

Judge of the surprise of the people at the ranch when the pigeon flutters through the open window of the adobe, carrying the letter about its neck. It is eagerly read, and without delay the ranch foreman dashes away to a nearby military post and spreads the alarm — a party of whites lost on the desert, surrounded by hostile Indians.

A troop of cavalry is soon on its way to the rescue. But what of our friends? Wandering hopelessly about, almost mad from thirst, they fall exhausted in the shade of a cliff that marks the entrance to a rugged gorge in the foot hills. They have no sooner reached this haven of rest than a long line of Apaches is seen ascending the winding trail that lies just ahead, mounted on their ponies. With the instinct of a bloodhound one of the swarthy band detects the presence of the little band of refugees, and instantly the dreaded war cry of the Apache rings out, a cry that freezes the blood in the veins of the helpless victims. Behind every rock a dark, wicked face protrudes, a shot is fired and the fight is on. With the desperation of despair the whites give battle, preferring to die fighting to the awful fate of being taken alive by the dreaded foe. A few well directed shots send two or three of the red devils into the "Happy Hunting Ground." They grow cautious and are more careful not to expose themselves to the deadly aim of the cowboys. But the ammunition of the brave little band is running low. Hope is almost gone and death stares them in the face, when a distant roar breaks upon the keen ears of the savages. They grow uneasy and begin to pay less attention to their victims. It is the beating of many hoofs, and now its glorious sound is borne to the ears of the little group of whites. "It's the cavalry," they shout. "The Apaches are on the run." Finding themselves cut off from their ponies, the surprised Indians retreat toward their former victims, who, encouraged by the knowledge of help so near at hand pour a deadly fire into their midst. Over the rocks come the boys in blue, up the gorge dashes a squad of Indian fighters. The Apaches are ridden down and scattered to the four winds.

Antonio, the Mexican, who has been hiding to watch the murder of his hated rival, is captured and dragged before the commander. He is ordered to be bound and carried to the post, where punishment will be meted out to him.

With a military escort our heroine is conducted on the long journey to the railroad, and when she returns from the East a few months later it is as the bride of Jack McFarland, her cowboy hero, who fought a good fight and would have died for her.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

THE BRIDE OF LAMMERMOOR. A Tragedy of Bonnie Scotland.—A young girl is being urged by her father to marry a Duke. She refuses and leaves the room, closely followed by the Duke who remains unseen. She enters the garden, where she meets her lover. The couple plight their troth. The young man gives his sweetheart a ring in token, then hastily departs. The girl, turning, meets the Duke face to face. He follows her to the house, tells her father of the scene he has witnessed. The old man angrily orders his daughter from the room, then with the Duke concocts a plan to cure the girl's love. They dispatch a note, signing the lover's name, making an appointment for that evening. She unsuspectingly goes to the spot designated, waits anxiously for her lover, and when he does not appear, returns home, convinced that he is false. Another forged note but adds to her grief, and when the Duke again presses his suit the girl reluctantly consents. In due time the wedding takes place and as the bride signs the marriage contract, her former lover enters and demands an explanation. The girl tells of the letters. He angrily asks for the betrothal ring, throws it to the ground, grinds it beneath his feet, bitterly curses her and her family, then leaves. The young girl realizing the deception practiced upon her, shows signs of madness. Her father, entering with the Duke, becomes alarmed at her condition. The latter is frightened at her wild appearance, and as he approaches she stabs him before her father can intercede. She kisses the picture of her lover, walks among the guests still carrying the dagger. During this time the lover in his room is bemoaning his fate, when the fearful news is brought to him. He hastens to the castle and pleads with his sweetheart, trying to bring back her wandering senses. She gazes at him wildly at first, then gradually her memory returns. The forged letters are again brought out and when the lover denies having written them, the knowledge that he still loves her and the fact that she has been cruelly deceived, drives her again to madness and she dies in her lover's arms. Length, 540 feet.

THE PAINTING.—A poor artist in his studio is painting a picture of a little child ("his own"), his wife standing nearby watching him. She is delighted with the picture when it is finished and showers kisses upon it. A buyer enters the studio, purchases several pictures, enthuses particularly over the baby painting, which the artist and his wife refuse to sell.

The subject of the painting, the baby, lies sick with fever. The doctor calls and after holding out no hope of recovery, leaves. The little child glances about the room, spies a fruit picture hanging on the wall and asks for an orange. The father takes up a few pennies, his all, and starts out. At a fruit stand he finds he has not enough money to buy, and while the vender's back is turned drops the pennies and takes an orange. Hastening home, he finds his child growing worse. He gives her the fruit, she brightens up a bit, then falls back lifeless. To further add to his grief, the wife takes sick and their money soon gives out. A buyer comes in, inspects the pictures, but the only one which appeals to him is that of their baby. This he offers to buy for $10. The artist and his wife beg him to select another subject, but he remains firm and offering a higher price gets the picture and leaves. After his departure, the artist repents and starts after him. He catches up, begs for the return of his painting and, being denied, returns home down-hearted. His wife grows worse, takes out the baby clothes and toys and fondly caresses them. Her mind finally wanders and the husband, beside himself with grief, goes out on the street. In walking along he spies his baby picture in an art store window. Watching his chance, he steals up, breaks the window, grabs the picture and runs home. He gives it to his wife and momentarily her reason returns, then she falls back dead in her husband's arms. The theft of the picture is soon discovered and the shopkeeper with a policeman reach the studio. As they enter, the husband lays his dead wife back on the pillow, takes a knife and plunges it into his own heart. Length, 430 feet.

A TELEPATHIC WARNING.—During the Civil War a Down East family are seated about a large table. A little girl is playing on the floor with a doll. The day following the mother is in the garden watering the flowers, the child playing nearby when a Federal sergeant with a squad of soldiers halts outside the gate. The officer enters, talks to the mother, who is overcome at the sad news. The father is summoned, reads the contents of the document, accepts the inevitable, explains to the women that he has been drafted and must go to war. He gathers together a few necessaries, kisses the family good-bye and departs with the soldiers. Proceeding to the scene of action the sergeant is seen marching a squad through the clearing in the forest, the father of our previous scene the last of the party. They halt and the sergeant posts the Yankee as a sentry, and after giving him the countersign, marches off with the squad. The guard left alone, lights his pipe, sits on a stump and presently falls asleep. He dreams of home, wife, mother and little girl. He can see the little child being put to bed. In her sleep the little one tosses about restlessly, finally sits up and sees her father asleep at his post. A scouting party of Confederates are about to surround and capture him. She jumps from her crib and runs toward him with outstretched arms. He moves, partially awakens and he sees his child running toward him as if in warning. He starts to his feet, realizing that he has been dreaming. The impression has been so vivid that he instinctively looks to the priming of his gun just as a party of Confederates enter the clearing bent on his capture. He fires upon them, is wounded himself, but the shots have attracted attention of his comrades, and they come to his aid and capture the enemy.

Returning to the New England home, the little girl is returning from school, she loiters a moment at the gate, spies her father coming in the distance and runs to meet him. The closing scene shows the wounded man, now a captain, seated in an easy chair with his wounded foot propped on a stool. Three officers enter and present him with a medal for his bravery. To them he tells the story of his dream, takes the medal, which has been pinned on his breast, and puts it on his little girl. Length, 675 feet.

EDISON UNIVERSAL MACHINE, excellent condition and complete for sale. A bargain for $38.
C. E. Dressler, 143 E. 23rd St., N. Y.

CHAIRS

Folding Steel Opera Chairs. All kinds Fireproof Booths. Resistance Grids and Wire. Repairing.

New York Steel & Production Co.
NEWARK, N. J.

SIMPSON'S
Celebrated Song Slides
THE FINEST MADE

$5.00 per set

All of the New Song Hits. See List of Latest Songs.

A. L. SIMPSON
113 W. 132d Street, New York City

SONG SLIDES
The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES for the great hits
"There's A Fleet On The Sea"
"Would You Like To Take A Walk With Me"
"I'm Going To Tell On You"
THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

JAPANESE GOODS FOR
SOUVENIRS
are a big drawing card for that dull day. Announce it every day for a week in advance, and try the following: Give the salt shaker to the first 25 or 50 persons, and the trays or basket to the balance.

Salt $3.50 per 100

2¾ inch Fine Basket $1.90 per 100

4¼ inch Lacquer Pin Tray $1.50 per 100

$2.00 DEPOSIT WITH EACH ORDER

W. A. MENTZER, Importer
92-94 LAKE STREET, CHICAGO

The suggestion to give the first 25 the larger article is to get a crowd at your door, which is a big add in itself.

Scott & Van Altena
SONG SLIDES

When you see a perfect set of Song Slides on the screen you will find the imprint of Scott & Van Altena on the title slide.

A Few of Our Latest are:

"I NEVER KNEW WHAT LOVE WAS UNTIL I MET YOU."

"A GOOD OLD DOLLAR BILL."

"DON'T TAKE ME HOME."

"TRUE BLUE."

"WON'T YOU EVEN SAY HELLO?"

Have you had our Illustrated Lecturettes on

"JAPAN" and "EGYPT"

SCOTT & VAN ALTENA
61 Pearl Street, New York City

NEW MUSICAL WONDER
Piano Orchestra Attachment of four pieces, capable of giving the effect of an eight piece orchestra

Controlled and Played by One Pianist
SNARE DRUM, BELL PIANO, BASS DRUM AND CYMBALS, which, combined with the regular piano, makes a most wonderful combination. Can be Attached to any Piano in 15 Minutes

Any talented pianist can arrange special parts for each instrument. The effect cannot be described, it must be heard to be appreciated.

Invaluable for Moving Picture and Vaudeville Houses, Skating Rinks, Dance Halls, Etc., Etc.

PRICE $150 NET, F.O.B., NEW YORK

Circular Matter and Particulars from

E. J. PERRY, Sole Agent
43 West 66th St., New York City

Demonstrations given at 151 W. 145 St.

When you see PERFECT MOTION PICTURES
You'll find, in the Operator's Booth, THE MOTIOGRAPH
The Latest, the best and most durable
MOTION PICTURE MACHINE
New York, Boston, Chicago and Frisco approved
Flickerless, Steady and wonderfully Brilliant Pictures, absolutely Fireproof, Heavy, Strong and Durable.
Designed and built especially for
MOTION PICTURE THEATRE WORK
The Stereo Motiograph
combining the Motiograph and Double Dissolving Stereopticon is a Wonder and will increase your receipts
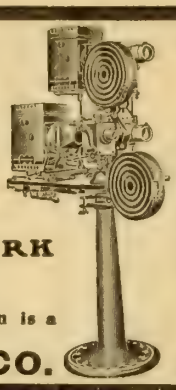
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.



We've quadrupled our facilities during the past few months and still unable to meet the demand.
WHY? Its the QUALITY OF MACHINE AND PICTURES
We also manufacture the RHEOSTATO Current Saver saves 60 to 75% on Electric Bills, the Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit, Non-Pop Calcium Jets, Enterprise Lanterns etc., and are Agents for Oxone, Oxylithe, Arco Carbons, Song Slides, etc.
For sale by progressive and up-to-date dealers
Write for Catalogue and particulars
83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

NEXT ISSUE:
Soldier's Heroism (Cines)
THREE REELS TO BE ISSUED WEEKLY

FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.
Representing
145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City

SONG SLIDES
Read Our Gigantic Offer
We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for
50c. per Set a Week
We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange
NINTH FLOOR
MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

"SMOKE UP, BOYS"

No. 31

Your visit to the Convention is incomplete without an inspection of our sample room to see the bewildering display of

Announcement Slides

on exhibition.
Don't Go Home Until You've Seen Us.

LEVI CO., Inc.
64 E. 14th St.,
Tel. 1425 Stuyvesant Cor. 4th Avenue

LATEST FILMS OF ALL MAKERS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Dec. 25—Mr. Jones at the Ball (Comedy).....503 ft.
Dec. 29—The Helping Hand (Pathetic).....841 ft.
Jan. 1—One Touch of Nature (Pathetic).....724 ft.
Jan. 11 The Honor of Thieves (Dramatic).....681 ft.
Jan. 11 Love Finds a Way (Comedy drama).....349 ft.
Jan. 14—A Rural Elopement (Dramatic).....546 ft.
Jan. The Sacrifice (Comedy).....438 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Dec. 25—Turning Over a New Leaf (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 29—The Lost New Year's Dinner (Co.).....900 ft.
Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 29—The Lost New Year's Dinner (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 5 Under Northern Skies (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 8 The Worm Will Turn (Comedy).....900 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Dec. 23—Who Is Smoking that Rope? (Co.).....400 ft.
Dec. 30—In Golden Days (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 6—The Haunted Lounge (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 6—The Neighbors' Kids (Comedy).....550 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Dec. 25—Red Cloud (Dr.).....880 ft.
Jan. 1—The Trial of the White Man (Dramatic)..975 ft.
Jan. 8—A Florida Feud (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 15 The Sponge Fishers of Cuba (Educational).965 ft.

S. LUBIN.

Jan. 4 A Bitter Lesson (Dramatic).....515 ft.
Jan. 4—The Old Maid's Dream (Comedy).....390 ft.
Jan. 7 Two Orphans of the G. A. R. (Dramatic).650 ft.
Jan. 7 Leo's Air Rifle (Comedy).....320 ft.
Jan. 11—When Lips Are Sealed (Dramatic).....825 ft.
Jan. 14 Troubles of a Stranded Actor (Comedy)..620 ft.
Jan. 14 How Happy Jack Got His Meal (Comedy)..175 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Jan. 4—Two Very Unlucky Thieves (Comedy).....459 ft.
Jan. 4—Mysterious Correspondent (Comedy).....536 ft.
Jan. 6—School Children's Strike (Comedy).....380 ft.
Jan. 6—A Lovely Lass (Dramatic).....581 ft.
Jan. 8—The Wooden-Headed Veteran (Comedy)..502 ft.
Jan. 8—A Drunkard's Dream (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Jan. 9—Ted and His Little Sister (Pathetic)....538 ft.
Jan. 9—Burning of Stamboul, Constantinople, ...367 ft.
Jan. 11 Duel Under Richelieu (Historic Drama)...718 ft.
Jan. 11—Spanish Blood (Drama).....278 ft.
Jan. 13—Prehistoric Lid (Comedy).....371 ft.
Jan. 13 Stilt Walking (Comedy).....348 ft.
Jan. 13 A Nervy Thief (Comedy).....282 ft.
Jan. 15 Paper Cock a Doodles (Magical).....377 ft.
Jan. 15 He's Only the Painter (Comedy).....425 ft.
Jan. 16 Mr. Pyncheon Out for a Good Time (Comedy).....192 ft.
Jan. 16 The Hunchback (Dramatic).....433 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Dec. 31 In the Shenandoah Valley (Historic
Jan. 7—The Tenderfoot (Comedy).....416 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tyrant's Dream (Comedy).....420 ft.
Jan. 7 Schooldays (Comedy).....164 ft.
Jan. 14 In Old Arizona (Dramatic).....1000 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 2—Cure for Bashfulness (Comedy).....520 ft.
Jan. 2—A Sister's Love (Dramatic).....435 ft.
Jan. 5 The Bride of Lammermoor (Tragic).....540 ft.
Jan. 5 The Painting (Pathetic).....430 ft.
Jan. 9 A Telepathic Warning (Dramatic).....675 ft.
Jan. 9—He Went to See the Devil Play (Comedy).295 ft.

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY.

Dec. 28-Jan. 2—The Devil's Sale (Comedy).....410 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Acrobatic Toys (Comic).....294 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—A Heavy Headpiece (Comedy).....264 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Not Guilty (Dramatic).....807 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Bobby Has a Pipe Dream (Comedy).410 ft.
Jan. 11-16 The Bewitched Breton (Comedy).....527 ft.
Converted (Pathetic).....884 ft.
Visions of a Goldsmith (Dramatic).....327 ft.
A Gypsy's Jealousy (Dramatic).....644 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 30—The Queen's Love (P.).....580 ft.
Jan. 6 Mafia (Dramatic).....720 ft.
Jan. 6 On Guard at the Powder Magazine (Dramatic).....500 ft.
Jan. 13 Rattles' Escapes From Prison (Comedy)....700 ft.

FILM IMPORT AND TRADING COMPANY.

Dec. 21—My Laundress Inherits (Eclair)..... ———
Dec. 21—Misdeeds of a Tragical Part (Eclair).... ———
Jan. 2 Corsican's Revenge (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 9 Soldier's Heroism (Pathetic).... ..... ft.

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE.

Dec. 14—How the Dodger Obtained a Meal (Comedy).520 ft.
Dec. 21—Cabby's Sweetheart (Dramatic).....300 ft.
Dec. 21—Baby's Playmate (Sensational).....375 ft.
Dec. 21—The Baby and the Loafer (Dramatic).....350 ft.
Dec. 21—Spoof and His Monkey (Comedy).....350 ft.

LATEST SONG SLIDES.

A. L. SIMPSON.

113 W. 132nd Street, New York.

Sunburnt Salome.
Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Along.
When Darling Ross Whispered Yes.
Lecturettes on
Our Navy.
Skyscrapers of New York.
Trip to Coney Island.
Fire Fighters of New York.
Around Manhattan Island on a Sight seeing Yacht.

DEWITT C. WHEELER.

120 W. 31st Street, New York.

Shine On, Harvest Moon.
Don't Take Me Home.
Somebody's Heart.
Promise.
Beating.
My Rosie Rambler.
I'd Like to Be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You.
Honey Dear.
Smiling Star.
The Holy Light.
That's Why I Never Married.

THE PREMO CO.

1851 Germantown Ave., Phila., Pa.

Under My Merry Widow Hat.
When the Robin Sings Again.
Would You Like To Take a Walk With Me?
Your Picture Says, "Remember."
I Love You For Yourself Alone.
You're Just the Girl For Me.
I'm Going To Tell On You.

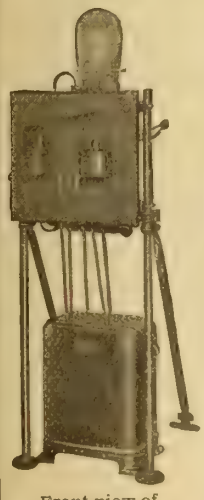
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA,

59 Pearl Street, New York.

I'm Tired of Living Without You.
It's Always Nice Weather Indoors.
Lecturette on "Japan."
A Good Old Dollar Bill.
Don't Take Me Home.
Won't You Even Say Hello?
True Blue.
Lecturette on Egypt.

General Electric Company

Alternating Current Not Objectionable



Front view of rectifier panel

There once was a time when you could rightfully feel dissatisfied because you couldn't get anything but alternating current for your moving-picture lamp. But this time has past. The perfection of the puts within the reach of every moving picture manager a simple, compact, money-saving device that successfully and economically changes alternating current to direct.

MERCURY ARC RECTIFIER

We want you to know that the MERCURY ARC RECTIFIER will save you dollars and cents that you are now paying out for lost power—power that goes up in heat from inefficient rheostats and choke coils. Don't delay but send to-day for Booklet 3681-P.

Rear view of rectifier panel

New York Office:
30 CHURCH STREET

Principal Office:
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.

1932
Sales Offices in ALL LARGE CITIES

The A B C of the Film Business

Attention
Brains
Courtesy

At Your Disposal and Gladly Furnished by

Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co.

Pittsburg, Pa. Des Moines, Ia.
Cincinnati, O. Lincoln, Neb.
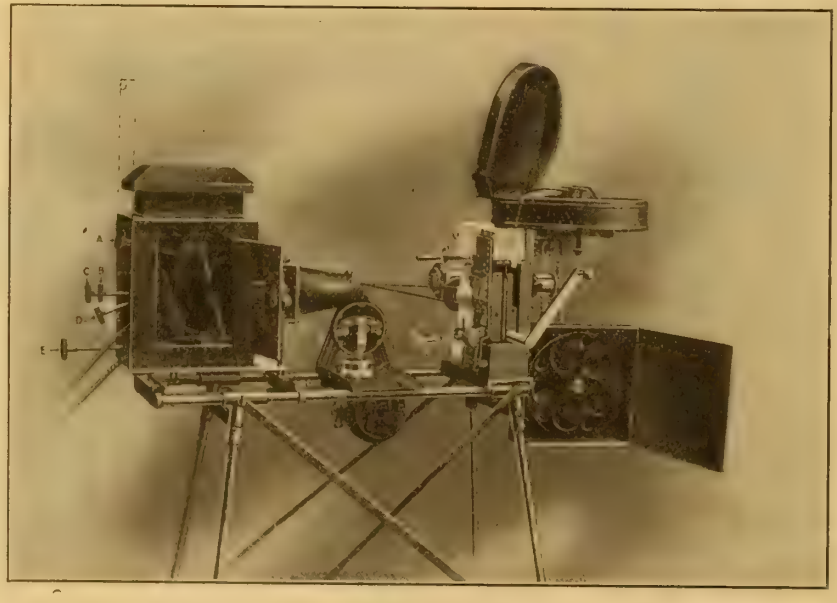
Rochester, N. Y.

The "Standard" Automatic Moving Picture MACHINE



With Self-Rewinding Film Device

PRICE, $170.00

With Motor and Speed Controller $190.00

American Moving Picture Machine Co.

104 BEEKMAN STREET, NEW YORK CITY

EASTERN FILM EXCHANGE

Wabash Building
PITTSBURG, PA.

HIGH-PRICE Exchanges have requested us repeatedly to increase our price on supplies and Film Service—you can bet we have satisfied more customers and have made good on low rentals. Why should we increase prices when our profits justify us in purchasing large quantities of film. If you are dealing with Mr. Stick-Him you had better install our service immediately. Send list of subjects you have used. No repeaters guaranteed.

2 changes,	shipped	two	at a	time,	1000 feet	each $ 5.00
4 "	"	two	"	"	"	10.00
6 "	"	three	"	"	"	14.00
12 "	"	four	"	"	"	25.00

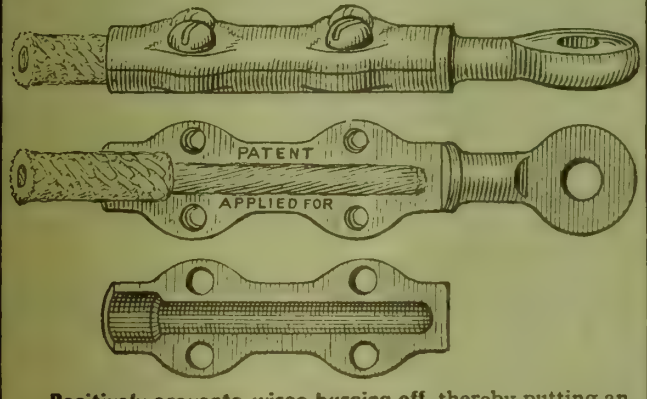
Song Slides and Beautifully Colored Posters FREE

SUPPLIES Tickets 9 cts. per 1000. Carbons 2 cts. each. Coudensing Lenses 50 cts. Moving Picture Lenses, $8.00. Stereopticon Lenses, $8.00. Film Cement, 10 cts. a bottle. Reels 50 cts. each.

NOTICE—We Guarantee to Fit a Lens for Any Curtain.

Mr. Moving Picture Man

The Wire Terminal shown here is designed especially to meet the exacting requirements of Moving Picture work. A two-piece Terminal made of copper, is extra heavy, clamped securely with four screws. Wire is completely enclosed and cannot possibly become loose, and holds insulation which keeps it from fraying. The simplest and quickest way to make your connections. Cuts are exact size, showing wire ready to be clamped, and clamped together ready to attach to binding post.



Positively prevents wires burning off, thereby putting an end to your wire bills. Makes a brighter and steadier light, and gets full strength of current by making perfect contact. Terminal complete, 50c. each, sent prepaid on receipt of price

ROBERT B. WEBB, Mfr., 40 Cresson Street, PITTSBURGH, PA.

The New Kind of Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one. IF you are progressive you will call, if not, we both lose money.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,
A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)
CHICAGO, ILL.

We Design and Construct Complete Moving Picture Theatres from $2,500 up

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only to the high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4., No. 3. January 16, 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, 125 E. 23d STREET, NEW YORK

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

"ALL OTHERS BEAT TO A FRAZZLE"

"THE WOLF HUNT"

THE GREATEST MOVING PICTURE EVER MADE

SEND in YOUR ORDER before YOUR COMPETITOR

WRITE FOR TERMS AND PROSPECTUS

Oklahoma Natural Mutoscene Co., 605 14th Street N. W., Washington, D. C.

The Eagle Film Exchange

We rent Films, Machines and carry everything pertaining to the business. The quality of our goods and service is unequalled. We positively handle all new goods. Biograph, Gaumont, Lux and Great Northern, etc., etc.

143 N. 8th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

will Not hereafter Import or Sell Films. It will continue its business as heretofore, covering

Licensed Motion Picture Machines, Lenses, Lamps and accessories of all kinds

There will be no change in the management or policy of the Company.

Kosmik Film Service will continue the rental of films to exhibitors licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co., from its various offices.

Kleine Optical Co.

GAUMONT FILMS

Gaumont

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co

Two reels of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

ECLIPSE

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

One reel of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

GEORGE KLEINE

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Do You Suppose

DO YOU SUPPOSE that a House of OLDEST standing, and now with four Completely Equipped Film Exchanges of its own, would continue to grow as we have Year after Year.

If

those who from the infancy of the Film Business have been served here, were not satisfied?

And If

new customers were not continually coming to us because of the sterling qualities of our Service?

The advantages that have won their confidence might reasonably invite your preference.

YOU are sure that what you get here is RIGHT.

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

Argyle Building,
KANSAS CITY, MO.

59 Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Eccles Building,
OGDEN, UTAH

Foreign Office:
HAVANA, CUBA

BIOGRAPH FILMS

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED JANUARY 18, 1909

The Criminal Hypnotist

A psychological episode in which an iniquitous disciple of Dr. Mesmer exercises his powers on a young girl in the vain endeavor to induce her to rob her father.

Length 626 Feet

Those Boys

That boys will be boys is a sure thing, and this picture is a reflex of what two mischievous youngsters would do with a pistol that fell into their hands. It is a comedy that is near-thrilling.

Length 342 Feet

RELEASED JANUARY 12, 1909

Mr. Jones has a Card Party

Another of the popular Jones series in which Jones gets into a bunch of trouble, but wriggles out of it as usual. This subject promises to be as big a hit as its predecessors.

Length 583 Feet

The Fascinating Mrs. Francis

A story of a woman's self-immolation. She having incurred the love of a young man, consents, on the plea from his father, to disillusionize the youth although she herself has a tender feeling for him.

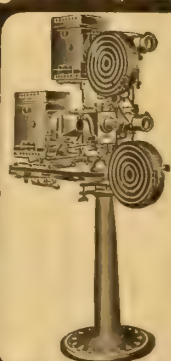
Length 417 Feet

Release Days of Biograph Subjects — MONDAY and THURSDAY

GET ON OUR MAIL LIST AND KEEP POSTED
WRITE FOR OUR DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY



PROMPT SERVICE
COURTEOUS TREATMENT

Our Two Big Catalogues

and the completeness of our line has made us what we are. We handle all machines, a full line of instruments and supplies and negotiate a

Film Rental Service

that will stimulate your Bank Account. Give us a chance to convince you. "Catalog A" is for Traveling Exhibitors. "Catalog B" tells all about the Motion Picture Theatre. Both are FREE. State which is wanted.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY,

1038 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Cal. Dept. C. 85 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

The A B C of the Film Business

Attention
Brains
Courtesy

At Your Disposal and Gladly Furnished by

Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co.

Pittsburg, Pa. Des Moines, Ia.
Cincinnati, O. Lincoln, Neb.
Rochester, N. Y.

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

NEXT ISSUE

THE GNOMES
Fascinatiug Fairy Tale. Beautifully Staged. Finely Colored and Tinted. Length About 450 Feet

DESERT LIFE
Interesting and Pleasing. Length About 380 Feet

BALLOON RACES
Held in Germany in ihe Autumn of 1908. Length About 290 Feet

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Licensee under the Biograph Patents All purchasers and users of our Film will be protected by the American Mutoscope and Biograph Company

Moving Picture World

With Which is Incorporated

THE EXHIBIT

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company,
125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.

Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display); 3 cents per word, cash with order.

Paris Representative:
F. GRAFTON, 27 Rue des Appenins, Paris, France.

Western Office:
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.

Vol. 4 JANUARY 16 No. 3

Editorial.

This week we present to our readers a complete account of important changes that have just occurred in the moving picture field. Wherever possible we have relied upon officially issued documents to tell the story, which we think they do, clearly and fully. Our own editorial articles are carefully considered comments on the situation and they are published with but one aim, viz., that of promoting, as far as lies in our power, the welfare of the industry. They embody opinions formed after consultations with the leading members of the trade and may be accepted as reflecting the views of level-headed men in the business as well as our own deductions.

* * *

The air having been cleared by the events of the past week, it falls to us to make some sort of forecast as to the probable effects on the industry of the changes that are in progress. Assuredly we are not pessimistic. Time, we are convinced, will justify us in the belief that what has happened will be of universal benefit; a healthy stimulus after the long night of watching and waiting. The darkest hour is just before the dawn and the rays of sunlight now point to a long and bright day in the history of moving pictures. For some time languishing in public esteem, the motion picture and the whole trade is in rapid process of rehabilitation. This having been brought about, the field, we think, will be found lucrative, promising and wide. There is room in it for all who are desirable; but none for the undesirable. A loyal observance of business contracts and dealings will do much to promote success and we counsel moderation and fair dealing in all transactions.

* * *

Listen to all advice, sift down the promises made by the factors who compete for your business and act on your own judgment. Freedom and liberty are dear to the heart of every American citizen, so is any business proposition that touches his pocket-book. Sign no contract unless you intend to live up to it and feel that you will be benefited by so doing.

THE COMBINE AND ITS POLICY.

Our last week's editorial on this subject was written and published before the meetings of the Film Service Association took place on January 9-10, but so accurately did we forecast the inevitable trend of events resulting from the formation of the Motion Picture Patents Company that it might just as well have been written after the meeting as before. The action taken by the manufacturers and the policy of the Picture Patents Company, as clearly set forth in the various documents which they circulated at the meetings of the renters, confirms our avowed conviction that the whole scheme is a carefully considered step to safeguard and elevate the moving picture industry as a whole.

The necessity for some decisive means of placing the business on a sound footing has long been obvious. During the past three or four years it has been dragged down to a level which made self-respecting persons blush to have their names connected therewith, while the odium attached to the name "nickelodeon" became such that any person of refinement looked around to see if likely to be recognized by anyone before entering the doors. Many men who had built up a business in the manufacture or handling of films apologized for their business in their social life and felt a reluctance in bringing their sons into connection with the people who were responsible for the moral decrepitude of the business and its threatened extinction as a money-making proposition.

Historical Notes.

The general dissatisfaction with conditions first resulted in a meeting of manufacturers in New York on November 9, 1907, at the call of I. W. Ullman, a renter and a representative of foreign manufacturers. The meeting resulted in a call for a general conference at Pittsburg on November 16, at which all the American and most of the foreign manufacturers were present or represented, together with the film renters. This conference was the nucleus of the United Film Service Protective Association, which adopted the following set of resolutions as their platform:

1. The renting interests enrolled as members to purchase film only from the association of manufacturers and importers.
2. No duplicating of film.
3. The elimination of sub-renting. (A sub-renter was defined as one who, for the purpose of profit, secures film from a renter and re-rents it.)
4. No film to be sold second hand.
5. Retiring of film purchased after it has been rented for a period to be decided; the returning of this used film to the manufacturers.

Another meeting was held at Chicago, on December 14, 1907, at which the platform was ratified and officers elected and a committee appointed to draft a set of by-laws. The rotten plank in the platform of the association and the cause of its collapse and of much acrimonious discussion and expensive litigation was the lack of unanimity among the manufacturers, based on rival patent claims. This led to the dropping of the terms "United" and "Protective" from the title and the formation of the Film Service Association at a meeting held in Buffalo on February 8, 1908. At this meeting the renters forming the F. S. A. signed allegiance to eight manufacturers licensed under the Edison patents, a rental schedule was adopted and really earnest effort was made to reform the business. The avowed motive of the eight manufacturers at this meeting was that the "combination of interests was ninety-nine parts commercial and one part legal, the legal aspect being only a steppingstone to accomplish the prime object of placing the business on a substantial footing for the ultimate benefit of all concerned." It was but a short step in advance, but perhaps all that could have been accomplished at that time.

The American Mutoscope and Biograph Company, feeling secure in their own patents, licensed four importers and headed the opposition, to which movement George Kleine, an important and aggressive factor, gave the name of "Independents." The dog-eat-dog policy of the competing factions developed a condition worse than before, notably in the competition between the film renters, and resulted in a call for another meeting in New York on July 11. The manufacturers met here in secret session and formulated a plan to unite the opposing interests, the Edison and Biograph companies having each become satisfied by this time of the strength of the other's claims to patent rights. A company known as the Motion Picture Patents Company was formed to acquire the rights to the Edison patents, the Biograph patents, and such other important patents as were considered to have an important bearing on the taking and projecting machines in general use or which were considered to have commercial value. Under these patents licenses have been granted to seven American and the representatives of three foreign manufacturers, the combined output of which was considered to be sufficient to supply the demand. Others may yet be licensed. This sums up the situation to the present stage of the game.

The Film Service Association.

The position of the Patents Company, in enabling the manufacturers to regulate the use of their output, opened the way to reforms which was not within the power of the Film Service Association and that body was formally disbanded at the second annual meeting in New York on January 9. Having summed up the history of the F. S. A., the various evolutions of which were only steps in the shaping of the destiny of the moving picture business, the story of their final meeting can be told in a very few words. Simultaneously with the opening of the convention, there was presented to the members a printed document drawn up by the Motion Picture Patents Company (which we reproduce in full on another page), the effect of which was to render the further existence of the F. S. A. as a responsible factor in the situation quite superfluous. Instead of disbanding, however, the Association was re-formed into a social body, with a new board of officers, and it will in future, we presume, take a benevolent interest in the progress of the moving picture industry. In that respect it may have its uses. It would be foolish to imagine that it can have any real influence in vital matters and we think, therefore, that it would be prudent on the part of its officers and members to accept the situation with good grace, and if they "do nothing in particular" to make a point of "doing it very well." For all practical purposes the F. S. A. is dead and if it accomplished little on the lines of the platform adopted at its organization, it did one praiseworthy act by willing, on its deathbed, $500 to the Red Cross Society for the sufferers in the recent earthquake calamity.

The Situation.

What, then, is the situation now? Briefly, it is this. Between now and the 20th of the present month the film renter is required to sign an agreement with the Motion Picture Patents Company which virtually converts him into a selling agency of that company, or rather of its licensees, on terms which clearly define his obligations and privileges. It seems to us, and we think that it will be apparent to every reader of well balanced mind, that this is a commonsense development of the Motion Picture Patents policy. There are parts of the agreement the renter is expected to sign which are open to criticism or objection—notably the clause which provides for the termination of the agency at the abrupt notice of two weeks. But, on the whole, we think that the somewhat drastic nature of the document is more apparent than real to any business-like renter whose one desire is to deal equitably and honestly by the manufacturers and his competitors. Those who sign the document with the intention of living up to its obligations, have nothing to fear. (One prominent renter remarked that he would sign it without reading it, he had such confidence in the integrity of its originators.) Those who sign and expect to treat its obligations like they did the by-laws of the F. S. A.—Well!—Culpam paena permit comes!

The Renter and the Exhibitor.

The situation, moreover, is an interdependent one, for it brings the renter and the manufacturer into close and indissoluble touch at all parts of the business and it does exactly the same with the renter and the exhibitor, who in future will be obliged to play the game together, instead of separately. This desirable result is to be brought about by imposing a license fee on the machine used by the exhibitor, while the renter must report the nature of the exhibitor's business and other details to the licensor. Licensed exhibitors in return will be alone permitted to use the films of the licensed manufacturers and their interests will be further protected by the M. P. P. Co., who will consult with an exhibitor before licensing a competitor in a locality that would make the opposition ruinous to both.

Control By the Manufacturers.

So, for the first time in the history of the motion picture industry, we have a serious and drastic attempt to place the business upon a sure and profitable footing. We do not think the wisdom of man could have devised a more effective scheme, a scheme, moreover, which, as we pointed out last week, is perfectly legitimate in conception and execution. Our readers will remember that we suggested a somewhat similar scheme for the safety of the business some four or five months ago, but we did not dream that it was so soon and so more effectively to be realized. Let both documents, which we reproduce elsewhere, be carefully studied and it must be plain that the control of the industry is to be placed by a stroke of the pen in the hands of those most entitled to control it, viz., the manufacturers.

Some Advantages.

Among the renters it is almost unanimously conceded that anyone who decides not to sign the agreement will act with imprudence if he desires to continue in the business at a profit. We have not space to enlarge on the merits of each separate condition in the license, but under Par. 13 the exhibitor is assured of a constant supply of new subjects from a licensed renter. Par. 15 protects the small renter and rules against loosely conducted branch offices. Par. 9 provides for the much-needed elimination of worn-out films, and the period of use—seven months—has been said by several renters to be more than necessary.

So it is evident that no hardship is entailed, and we think that the effect of concentrating the control of the film business in the hands of the M. P. P. Co. and its licensees cannot be otherwise than beneficial. It will bring about a state of affairs parallel to that which has proved so successful in the photographic and phonographic trades. Here great corporations have acquired controlling powers and have appointed protected agents who are making money by rigidly conforming to the conditions of sale. Mr. Alfred Weiss, of this city, is one of the renters who was quick to see the advantages of the proposed regulations. He also conducts a successful wholesale phonograph business and says that his success is solely due to his acting loyally to the National Phonograph Company, who have loyally stood by him. There are other film renters in the phonograph business who will readily appreciate the parallel features in the agreements when they consider with what profit the phonograph business is now handled since distributing centers were localized, selling prices restricted and release dates arranged for new records. There is no reason to suppose that the M. P. P. Co. and its licensees will act towards the renters in any other spirit and we strongly advise all to sign the proffered agreement by the time stipulated, January 20th. Some of the renters, on first reading the document, demurred at "signing away their liberty," but they seem to have reasoned themselves to a better frame of mind and wisely accepted the inevitable.

In conclusion, the exhibitor has in many cases resented being brought into line and renters are having a hard time to explain the object of the license fee. What is $2 per week in return for the assurance of a steady supply of desirable subjects and a protection which amounts to a monopoly in a lucrative business? The wise will not hestitate to sign the agreement, and if all act in a similar manner the present chaotic condition of the business will speedily change for the better.

We have reviewed the situation since the first agitations for reform methods. Next week there will be some minor aspects of the matter that will receive notice. Meanwhile the position of the M. P. P. Co. and its licensees is so convincing that there is nothing for the renter and exhibitor to do but fall in line. The sooner that is done the better for all concerned, not overlooking that most important factor, the public, whose nickels and dimes have built up and will continue to sustain the motion picture industry.

THE POSITION OF THE INDEPENDENTS.

It was obvious that the recent unification of the patent interests of the moving picture industry and the consequent effects upon those engaged in it, would provoke some sort of counter combination amongst those who were excluded, automatically or otherwise, from the combine, and we are pleased to note that the "independents" promptly took action in the matter. Pleased for two reasons. First, because competition is the soul of business; second, because opposition will be welcomed by contributory licensees of the Motion Picture Patents Company, who, they told us, would have been disappointed if no counter move had been made.

The Independent body, we are informed, includes the Film Import and Trading Company; the Great Northern Company; the Cameraphone Company, and others. There is mention of a non-infringing camera which is to be placed on the market, backed up by considerable capital, and the name of a very large concern indeed is mentioned as being interested in the matter. At least one of the independent companies named has a very fine plant for the making of pictures, and can draw upon a full independent supply of negative and positive film.

The situation, therefore, on the independent side is full of interest and its development will be watched closely. We may dismiss as mere rumor the talk about the vulnerability of the Motion Picture Company's patents and the threat of wholesale infringements. That sort of thing can hardly advantage the independent cause, which has our best wishes for its commercial success. As we said a week ago, the new combine is in so sense a monopoly or trust; it has not cornered all the available sources of supply and it certainly cannot prevent the exercise of inventive ingenuity. In those circumstances the Independents must feel themselves quite unhampered in their future policy. "The world is all before them where to choose."

It is open to them to bid directly for the support of the renter and the exhibitor by means analogous to those adopted by the M. P. P. Co.; or to promote the establishment of independent theaters, or to cut prices (not a policy to be encouraged); to excel in quality of goods; or to make the competition a mere matter of competitive capitalization. Then there are the foreign markets to draw upon. These factors show that the Independents are not at all out of the contest, if the latter is vigorously conducted on up-to-date business methods.

We will do our duty impartially in the matter of keeping our readers in touch with events as they occur.

Second Annual Meeting of the Film Service Association

The annual meeting of the Film Service Association was held at the Hotel Imperial, New York City, on Saturday, January 9, 1909. Mr. James B. Clark, the President, called the meeting to order, and it was ascertained that over one hundred memberships were present or represented by proxy. The report of the Treasurer showed that the Association had a cash balance on hand January 8, 1909, of $17,519.18.

Report of Special Committee.

The meeting then listened to the report of the Special Committee, Messrs. Robert Lieber, Harry Davis, A. J. Gillligham, Mr. Wurzer and Carl Laemmle, which had conferred with the officers of the Motion Picture Patents Company regarding the conditions contained in the new license agreements. This committee was appointed at the informal meeting of the Association held on Friday, January 8, 1909, at which the new features in the license agreements were very thoroughly explained and discussed. Messrs. Lieber and Gilligham both spoke for the committee, and advised the meeting that the new conditions were in the main satisfactory, and that the Patents Company's license should prove desirable to all members who wished to build up the business upon legitimate lines. They also said they had assurances from the Patents Company and the manufacturers that led them to believe that no exchange dealing fairly under the new agreements would suffer. They announced that the Patents Company would arrange to collect directly from the exhibitors the royalties due the company from exhibitors, for the licenses covering the projecting machines.

Mr. Macdonald, who had been employed by the Executive Committee of the Association during the past year to perform the duties of Secretary for the Committee, announced to the meeting that he had been appointed General Manager of the Motion Picture Patents Company, and that his duties as such would begin on Monday, January 11, 1909. He asked to be relieved from the duties of Secretary as soon as new officers were elected.

The meeting then proceeded to the election of officers, and as a result of the voting the following officers for the year 1909 were chosen: President, William H. Swanson, Chicago, Ill.; Vice-President, Carl Laemmle, Chicago, Ill.; Secretary, Herbert Miles, New York City; Treasurer, Robert Lieber, Indianapolis, Ind.; Executive Committee, A. J. Gilligham, Grand Rapids, Mich.; William Fox, New York City; William F. Steiner, New York City.

WM. H. SWANSON
President of the Film Service Association

Change in the Association Rules.

After the new officers took charge of the meeting it was determined by the Association that the old by-laws, rules and regulations be set aside and that the Association hereafter be conducted more as a general social and business men's association, with nominal dues of $25.00 per year, payable $12.50 semi-annually in advance. This decision was reached principally because of the fact that the Patents Company does not purpose to deal exclusively with the Association, but has licensed other exchanges than those in the Association. While the Company will give every consideration to the ideas and wishes of the Association members as expressed by their executive officers it will also give the same consideration to the individual opinions expressed by exchanges dealing directly with the Patents Company, and will give an equal opportunity to all of its licensees whether members of the Association or not.

Distribution of Association Funds.

After the election of the new officers and just before they were installed the meeting decided, in view of the changed conditions in the Association, that the funds on deposit in the Association treasury be redistributed to the memberships in good standing. Following this, $500 was voted to the Red Cross Society of America for the Italian sufferers, and the outgoing Treasurer was also instructed, by the unanimous vote of the meeting, to hand to Mr. Macdonald, the retiring Secretary, the Association's check for $1,000, as an expression of the Association's good will.

Final Report.

The above outlines all the business transacted while the retiring officers of the Association were still in, and the above report completes the history of the Association's work up to the time when the present officers for 1909 took charge of the Association's affairs. It is left to the new officers to report to the members regarding what has occurred since they have been the representatives of the Association.

While the results have not been obtained very rapidly and there are not many examples to indicate the progress which has been made, yet the new license agreement issued by the Patents Company is nothing more nor less than a testimonial of the work of the Executive Committee during the past year. The cardinal points for which the Association has stood (which are the doing away of sub-renting, the elimination of distributing offices and the requirement that an exchange to be upon a legitimate basis must buy a considerable amount of film to be shipped direct to each office which it is operating) have been established and are now recognized in the Patents Company's new license agreement.

We have every assurance now that the Patents Company is able and proposes to enforce these restrictions for the benefit of those exchanges desiring to build up the business and become a permanent part of it. The report of the Special Committee which conferred with the representatives of the Patents Company confirms this, and we hope that the history of the coming year will bear out the hopes of your retiring board.

Respectfully submitted.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION.

[In view of the position taken by the Patents Company it was useless for the F. S. A. to continue in existence as it had been, so the constitution and by-laws will be revised and the members will meet from time to time and swap yarns on the funny moves the pictures make. We wish the new organization success and hope that the events of the ensuing year will not be as gloomy as many of the members seem to think the shadows foretell. We do not think they will. While it has not dealt with the Film Service Association in a manner that might be called kindly, the Motion Picture Patents Company has not thus far even intimated that the renters as individuals will not receive due consideration. So far as can be learned the policy is to do everything for the advancement of the film business in all lines. Such a policy can hurt none having the interests of the business at heart.—Ed.]

Letter to the Film Renters from the Motion Picture Patents Company

To the Film Rental Exchanges:

The Motion Picture Patents Company has been incorporated for the purpose of taking over, and has acquired, the ownership of the Edison, Biograph, Armat, and Vitagraph patents, which, we are assured by counsel, cover all modern moving picture films and all existing commercial types of projecting machines. The Patents Company proposes to control the business in such a way that the honest and legitimate exchange, whether a member of the F. S. A., or not, shall be protected from the unfair and ruinous competition of the dishonest exchange. This can only be done by insisting that all exchanges who may desire protection under the above patents shall conform rigidly to the fair and reasonable rules which the company has formulated and which are embodied in a proposed license agreement herewith submitted for your consideration.

In addition to the Licensed Manufacturers whose films licensed exchanges have heretofore been permitted to handle, the Motion Picture Patents Company has licensed the American Mutoscope and Biograph Company of New York City, which has a present output of two reels a week, and Mr. George Kleine of Chicago, who will have a weekly output of two reels of Gaumont film and one reel of Urban Eclipse film, and the product of these two new licensees will be available to licensed exchanges after January 11, 1909.

All of the present licensed exchanges, except a few whose credit is very bad or who have flagrantly violated their agreements, will be invited to sign the new agreement with the Patents Company, as will the exchanges now operated by the Kleine Optical Company, and a very few of the more substantial independent exchanges.

The new agreement will be found not to materially alter the present system of handling licensed film, the principal change being that no licensed motion pictures will be permitted to be used on any projecting machine which is not licensed by the Patents Company under its patents. All projecting machines now in use will be licensed by February 1, 1909, upon the payment of a nominal fee. The Patents Company has licensed all of the present manufacturers of projecting machines of any importance, and the machines sold by these manufacturers after February 1, will bear patent plates setting forth the conditions under which these machines shall be used, these conditions being the same as will be applied to the machines now in use. Each exhibitor will be required to pay a royalty after February 1. The total royalty for the period from February 1 to March 8, will be $10 for each exhibitor, but it is the intention to equalize this fee as soon as practicable, so that small exhibitors will not be required to pay so much, and the large exhibitors more, the average being maintained as nearly as practicable at $2 per week. Each exhibitor must make application for a machine license on a form to be furnished by the Patents Company and the application must be accompanied by the royalty fee of $10 to cover the period of the first five weeks from February 1 to March 8, 1909. Before any license is granted to an exchange by the Patents Company, the exchange must furnish a list of theaters now being supplied by it, together with certain data as to the character of each theater, its size and location, and kind of film service it takes, all as called for on the blank which will be furnished to the exchanges. These lists must be at the office of the Patents Company in New York City, by January 20, 1909, and the Patents Company will refuse to grant a license to any exchange failing to furnish such lists on that date, unless the distance of the exchange from New York City warrants lenience. After February 1, 1909, an exchange, before accepting an order for service, must ascertain whether or not the exhibitor desiring service has a license for his projecting machine and must refuse to supply licensed film to that exhibitor until he shall have obtained a license. On accepting an order for service from an exhibitor having a licensed machine the Exchange must mail to the Patents Company at its office in New York City the data in relation to the place of exhibition, etc., including the time the service is to begin, and a blank will be supplied by the Patents Company for this purpose. In a similar manner each exchange losing a customer must notify the Patents Company. Exchanges will be obliged to cease supplying with film any exhibitor whose fees are not paid. Each exchange should advise all of its exhibitors to apply immediately to the Patents Company for a license for the machines used by the exhibitors, so that the exhibitor may not be in danger of being cut off from his supply of film on February 1.

In addition to the foregoing change the following are the only material differences between the old and new agreements:

(a) Hereafter licensed motion pictures will not be sold outright but will be leased by the various licensed manufacturers and importers, so that the latter may at all times retain title and be in a position to recover possession of such pictures should they be found in the hands of exchanges or exhibitors not entitled to use them.

(b) Exchanges will be permitted to sub-lease film only for use in the United States and its territories and will not be permitted to sub-lease them for use in Canada, Mexico and other foreign countries.

(c) The same requirement for the return of motion pictures is made in the new agreement as was made in the old one, and it is intended that this clause shall be enforced and in this way prevent the exhibition of worn out and damaged pictures.

(d) Hereafter when any motion pictures are destroyed or lost it will be necessary within fourteen (14) days after such destruction or loss, for the exchange to furnish satisfactory proof to the Manufacturer or Importer from which such picture was obtained, in order that the exchange will not have to account for that film when it should be otherwise returned to the Manufacturer or Importer.

(e) Under the new agreement no distinction is made between an exchange and a branch. A license agreement will be necessary for each place of business operating as an exchange and no exchange is to establish a branch or any new place of business unless the regular license agreement is first signed for the new exchange and accepted by the Patents Company. By this means all controversy as to what constitutes a branch and who is responsible for it, will be avoided and failure to meet the requirements of the conditions of the license for one exchange will not necessarily jeopardize the license for any other exchange. Each exchange or branch will be required to purchase $2,500 worth of film per month for direct shipment to its office. This change is intended to eliminate insignificant offices which have been used heretofore simply as an outlet for worn out films.

(f) If any one wishes to open a new office, it will be necessary to apply to the Motion Picture Patents Company for a license and that company will determine whether or not the new office would be beneficial to the whole trade and will accordingly grant or refuse the license.

(g) Payments on all invoices received during each week must be made directly to, or mailed to the Manufacturer or Importer from whom the films were leased, on each Monday.

(h) No minimum schedule has been incorporated in the new agreement, although it is contemplated that such a schedule will, in the near future, be established when the exchanges have adjusted themselves to the workings of the new conditions of license. Such a schedule will be drawn after consultation with representative exchanges and will be as fair as possible to all.

(i) The signing of this new license with the Patents Company will constitute a cancellation of all the present agreements between an exchange and the Licensed Manufacturers, except so far as the return of old film is concerned.

The Patents Company reserves the right to revoke the license on fourteen (14) days' notice, and also to revoke it at once on proof of violation of any of the conditions. If the license is revoked, because of violation on the part of the exchange, all licensed motion pictures in the possession of the exchange will be returned to the Manufacturers or Importers from whom they were obtained at the end of twenty (20) days, and the exchange agrees that the Patents Company may direct the various Manufacturers and Importers to cease supplying the exchange with motion pictures.

It will be noted from the foregoing changes that the only departure from the spirit of the old agreement lies in the fact that hereafter licensed motion pictures and licensed projecting machines only can be used together. This will insure that licensed exchanges will be absolutely protected from unfair and infringing competition, since all projecting machines now in use are covered by the patents of the Patents Company, and all exhibitors, therefore, would be compelled to use only licensed film.

Established exhibitors will be protected as much as possible by the Patents Comuany, which will carefully scrutinize each application for a license from any new exhibitor. No license will be granted for a new theater in any district already well provided for.

All exchanges and exhibitors will be protected by the Patents Company under its patents, and infringers of any of these patents will be vigorously prosecuted.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY.
10 Fifth avenue, New York City.

January 9, 1909.

EXCHANGE LICENSE AGREEMENT WITH MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY.

Whereas, The Motion Picture Patents Company of New York City (hereinafter referred to as the "Licensor") is the owner of all the right, title and interest in and to reissued Letters Patent No. 12,192, dated January 12, 1904, granted to Thomas A. Edison, for Kinetoscope Film, and also Letters Patent Nos. 578,185, 580,749, 586,053, 588,016, 673,320, 673,992 707,934, 722,382, 744,251, 770,937, 771,280, 785,205 and 785,237 for inventions relating to motion picture projecting machines; and

Whereas, The Licensor has licensed the American Mutoscope and Biograph Company of New York City, the Edison Manufacturing Company of Orange, N. J., the Essanay Company of Chicago, the Kalem Company of New York City, George Kleine of Chicago, Lubin Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia, Pathe Freres of New York City, the Selig Polyscope Company of Chicago, and The Vitagraph Company of America, of New York City (hereinafter referred to as "Licensed Manufacturers or Importers") to manufacture or import motion pictures under the said reissued Letters Patent and to lease licensed motion pictures (hereinafter referred to as "Licensed Motion Pictures") for use on projecting machines licensed by the Licensor; and

Whereas, The undersigned (hereinafter referred to as the "Licensee") desires to obtain a license under said reissued Letters Patent No. 12,192, to lease from the Licensed Manufacturers and Importers licensed motion pictures and to sublet the said licensed motion pictures for use on projecting machines licensed by the Licensor;

Now, therefore, the parties hereto, in consideration of the covenants herein, have agreed as follows:

(1) The Licensor hereby grants to the Licensee for the term and subject to the conditions expressed in the "Conditions of License" hereinafter set forth, the license, under the said reissued Letters Patent No. 12,192, to lease licensed motion pictures from the Licensed Manufacturers and Importers and to sub-lease said license motion pictures for use only on projecting machines licensed by the Licensor under Letters Patent owned by it.

(2) The Licensee covenants and agrees to conform with and strictly adhere to and be bound by all of the "Conditions of License," hereinafter set forth, and to and by any and all future changes in or additions thereto, and further agrees not to do or suffer any of the acts or things thereby prohibited, and that the Licensor may place and publish the Licensee's name in its removal or suspended list in the event of the termination of this agreement by the Licensor, or in case of any violation thereof, and may direct the Licensed Manufacturers and Importers not to lease licensed motion pictures to the Licensee, the Licensee hereby expressly agreeing that such Licensed Manufacturers and Importers shall have the right to cease such leasing when so directed by the Licensor; and the Licensee further agrees that the signing of this agreement constitutes a cancellation of any or all agreements for the sale of licensed motion pictures made prior to this agreement by and between the Licensee and any or all licensed manufacturers or importers, except as to any clause in said agreements relating to the return of motion picture film to the several licensed manufacturers or importers. It is further understood and agreed by the Licensee that the license hereby granted is a personal one and not transferable or assignable, and the Licensee hereby recognizes and acknowledges the validity of the said reissued Letters Patent No. 12,192.

Conditions of License.

1. From the date of this agreement the Licensee shall not buy, lease, rent, or otherwise obtain any motion pictures other than licensed motion pictures and shall dispose of any motion pictures only by the sub-leasing thereof under the conditions hereinafter set forth.

2. The ownership of each licensed motion picture leased under this agreement shall remain in the Licensed Manufacturer or importer from whom it may have been leased, the Licensee, by the payment of the leasing price acquiring only the license to sub-let such motion picture subject to the conditions of this agreement. Such license for any motion picture shall terminate upon the breach of this agreement in regard thereto, and the Licensed Manufacturer or Importer from whom it may have been leased, shall have the right to immediate possession of such motion picture, without liability for any leasing price or other sum, which the Licensee, or the person in whose possession said motion picture is found, may have paid therefor.

3. The Licensee shall not sell nor exhibit licensed motion pictures obtained from any Licensed Manufacturer or Importer, either in the United States or elsewhere, but shall only sub-let such licensed motion pictures and only for use in the United States and its territories and only to exhibitors who shall exclusively exhibit licensed motion pictures, but in no case shall the exhibitor be permitted to sell or sub-let or otherwise dispose of said licensed motion pictures.

4. The leasing price to be paid by the Licensee to the Licensed Manufacturers or Importers, or the terms of payment for or shipment of licensed motion pictures, shall in no case be less or more favorable to the Licensee than that defined in the leasing schedule embodied in this agreement, or any other substitute leasing schedule, which may be regularly adopted by the Licensor, and of which notice shall be given to the Licensee hereafter.

5. To permit the Licensee to take advantage of any standing order leasing price mentioned in such schedule, such standing order with any Licensed Manufacturer or Importer shall be for one or more prints of each and every subject regularly produced, and offered for lease by such manufacturer or importer as a standing order subject and not advertised as special by such Licensed Manufacturer or Importer; and shall remain in force for not less than fourteen (14) consecutive days. Any standing order may be canceled or reduced by the Licensee on fourteen (14) days' notice. Extra prints in addition to a standing order shall be furnished to the Licensee at the standing order leasing price.

6. The Licensee shall not sell, rent, or otherwise dispose of, either directly or indirectly, any licensed motion pictures (however the same shall have been obtained) to any persons, firms or corporations or agents thereof, who may be engaged either directly or indirectly in selling or renting motion picture films.

7. The Licensee shall not make or cause to be made, or permit others to make reproductions or so-called "dupes" of any licensed motion pictures, nor sell, rent, loan or otherwise dispose of or deal in any reproductions or "dupes" of any motion pictures.

8. The Licensee shall not deliberately remove the trade-mark or trade-name or title from any licensed motion picture, nor permit others to do so, but in case any title is made by the Licensee, the Manufacturer's name is to be placed thereon, provided that in making any title by the Licensee, the Manufacturer's trade-mark shall not be reproduced.

9. The Licensee shall return to each Licensed Manufacturer or Importer (without receiving any payment therefor, except that the said Licensed Manufacturer or Importer shall pay the transportation charges incident to the return of the same) on the first day of every month commencing seven months from the first day of the month on which this agreement is executed, an equivalent amount of positive motion picture film in running feet (not purchased or leased over twelve months before) and of the make of the said Licensed Manufacturer or Importer, equal to the amount of licensed motion pictures that was so leased during the seventh month preceding the day of each such return, with the exception, however, that where any such motion pictures are destroyed or lost in transportation or otherwise, and satisfactory proof is furnished, within fourteen (14) days after such destruction or loss, to the Licensed Manufacturer or Importer from whom such motion picture was leased, the Licensed Manufacturer or Importer shall deduct the amount so destroyed or lost from the amount to be returned.

10. The Licensee shall not sell, rent, sub-let, loan or otherwise dispose of any licensed motion pictures (however the same may have been obtained) to any person, firm or corporation in the exhibition business, who may have violated any of the terms or conditions imposed by the Licensor through any of its licensees and of which violation the present Licensee may have had notice.

11. The Licensee shall not sub-lease licensed motion pictures to any exhibitor unless a contract with said exhibitor (satisfactory in form to the Licensor) is first exacted, under which the exhibitor agrees to conform to all the conditions and stipulations of the present agreement applicable to the exhibitor; and in the case of an exhibitor who may operate more than a single place of exhibition, a similar contract shall be exacted in connection with each place so operated, and supplied with licensed motion pictures by the Licensee.

12. After February 1, 1909, the Licensee shall not sub-lease any licensed motion pictures to any exhibitor unless each motion picture projecting machine on which the licensed motion pictures are to be used by such exhibitor is regularly licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and the license fees therefor have been paid; and the Licensee shall, before supplying such exhibitor with licensed motion pictures, mail to the Motion Picture Patents Company, at its office in New York City, a notice to that effect, which notice shall give the name of the exhibitor, the name and location of the place of exhibition, its seating capacity, hours of exhibition and price of admission, and the number and make of the licensed projecting machine or machines, together with the date of the commencement of the sub-leasing, all in a form approved by the Licensor. The Licensee, when properly notified by the Licensor, that the license fees of any exhibitor for any projecting machine have not been paid, and that the license for such projecting machine is terminated, shall immediately cease to supply such exhibitor with licensed motion pictures.

13. The Licensee agrees to order during each month while this agreement is in force, for shipment directly to the place of business of the Licensee in the city for which this agreement is signed, licensed motion pictures, the net leasing prices for which shall amount to at least $2,500.

14. The Licensee shall, on each Monday during the continuance of this agreement, make or mail payment to each Licensed Manufacturer and Importer for all invoices for licensed motion pictures which have been received by the Licensee during the preceding week.

15. This agreement shall extend only to the place of business for the sub-leasing of motion pictures maintained by the Licensee in the city for which this agreement is signed, and the Licensee agrees not to establish or maintain a place of business for the sub-leasing of motion pictures, or from which motion pictures are delivered to exhibitors, in any other city, unless an agreement for such other city, similar to the present agreement, is first entered into by and between the Licensee and the Licensor.

16. The Licensor agrees that before licensing any person, firm or corporation in the United States (not including its insular territorial possessions and Alaska) to lease licensed motion pictures from Licensed Manufacturers and Importers and to sub-lease such motion pictures, it will exact from each such licensee, an agreement similar in terms to the present agreement, in order that all licensees who may do business with the Licensed Manufacturers and Importers will be placed in a position of exact equality.

19. It is understood and specifically covenanted by the Licensee, that the Licensor may terminate this agreement on fourteen (14) days' written notice to the Licensee of its intention so to do, and that if the Licensee shall fail to faithfully keep and perform the foregoing terms and conditions of lease, or any of them, or shall fail to pay the leasing price for any motion pictures supplied by any Licensed Manufacturer or Importer when due and payable, according to the terms of this agreement, the Licensor shall have the right to place the Licensee's name on an appropriate suspended list, which the Licensor may publish and distribute to its other licensees and to exhibitors and to the Licensed Manufacturers and Importers and to direct the Licensed Manufacturers and Importers not to lease licensed motion pictures to the Licensee, and the exercise of either or both of these rights by the Licensor shall not be construed as a termination of this license, and the Licensee shall also have the right in such case, upon appropriate notice to the Licensee, to immediately terminate the present license, if the Licensor shall so elect, without prejudice to the Licensor's right to sue for and recover any damages which may have been suffered by such breach or non-compliance with the terms and conditions hereof by the Licensee, such breach or non-compliance constituting an infringement of said reissued Letters Patent. It is further agreed by the Licensee that if this agreement is terminated by the Licensor for any breach of any condition hereof, the right to possession of all licensed motion pictures shall revert, twenty days after notice of such termination, to the respective Licensed Manufacturers and Importers from whom they were obtained and shall be returned to such Licensed Manufacturer at once after the expiration of that period.

20. It is understood that the terms and conditions of this license may be changed at the option of the Licensor upon fourteen (14) days' written notice to the Licensee, but no such change shall be effective and binding unless duly ratified by an officer of the Licensor.

AN INTERVIEW WITH MR. WILLIAM STEINER,

One of the Members on the New Executive Board of the F. S. A.

"Bill" Steiner has placed himself squarely and unqualifiedly upon elevating the moving picture business to a place of respectability that it has not occupied before. He says it can be done and that from its present condition of having the enmity of the ultra-law-abiding it can be elevated so that it will merit their unqualified approval. "Then," said Bill, "any man may say that he is engaged in the moving picture business without having the blush of shame mantle his cheek."

Bill has been a pretty busy man for the last few days. Between the rush of hours of work in his Imperial Moving Picture Company on Harmony Lane (as you must know that Bill is at the head of one of the busiest film bureaus in the East), and his being elected a member of the Executive Committee of the F. S. A. at their semi-annual convention last Saturday, he has been a hard man to get at, but the writer waylaid him Tuesday night at McMahon's Chop House on Sixth avenue, and between bites into a juicy porterhouse Bill said:

"When we met last Saturday we didn't know where we were at. The new turn of affairs given the situation by the Moving Picture Patents Company made some of the boys weak in the knees, and some of them are weak yet. I didn't see anything to be frightened at, however, as I felt that every man who was on the square would be treated fairly by the big combination and need give themselves no concern.

"As for myself, I am not troubling myself one iota what the fate of the gentry who have resorted to trickery dealing will be. They are coming into their reward. Who are they? Well, I don't know, but they know themselves.

"There was only one thing for every man who wished to stay in the moving picture business to do, and that was to conform to the regulations of the Patents Company.

"I am very glad that the F. S. A. has grasped the situation as it has. It means friendship with the Moving Picture Patents Company, it means continued prosperity for men who deal square, and for myself I can say that I am more than satisfied with the outcome of the F. S. A. meeting and I look now for a positive improvement in business right along the line, from this time henceforth. The watchword now is—Forward and Fair and Square."

Active Opposition to the Motion Picture Patents Company and F. S. A.

The Independent Moving Picture Men held a meeting at the Imperial Hotel and organized under the name of "The Independent Film Protective Association." There were present representatives from the independent manufacturers, importers, renters and exhibitors who represented all sections of the country. The association elected officers as follows: President, Mr. I. W. Ullman, New York, N. Y.; vice-president, Dr. Richard Ray, Kansas City, Mo.; secretary, George F. Kearney, Detroit, Mich.; treasurer, Ingvald C. Oes, New York, N. Y.

The following resolution was adopted by the association: "It is the purpose of this organization to safeguard the interests of its members and to advance the cause of the independent film movement. To take aggressive action to sustain the open market and legal action against any monopoly striving to control the moving picture business. We hereby pledge our support, both financial and otherwise, for the promotion of the objects of this organization and for the furtherance of the mutual interests of all its members."

The association has declared war on the Motion Pictures Patent Company.

LETTER SENT TO EXHIBITORS BY THE INDEPENDENT FILM PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

143 East Twenty-third Street, New York, January 11, 1909.

Mr. Moving Picture Exhibitor:

Dear Sir—This letter is being sent to every exhibitor of films in the United States, and is undertaken by us on account of the unique condition in the film trade. The crisis is such as to call forth the united effort of all exhibitors of film to save themselves from the impending action of the Moving Picture Patents Company, just now started on its career of monopoly and extortion.

In organizing the Independent Film Protective Association it is our intention to make it national in scope, and owing to the limited time in which to make concerted action possible, we are taking this means in calling upon exhibitors to pledge themselves to create a fund to be used in defense and in litigations which we are about to institute.

The Motion Picture Patents Company will probably try to intimidate exhibitors by threatening injunction proceedings, and may even threaten to close your house, to force you to sign their license agreement. Should such action be taken, if we band together, the Independent Film Protective Association will be financially and legally able to resist any move they may take. Attack may come from any quarter upon a defenseless industry, but properly organized, the enemy debates long upon his strength, so in this crisis the Moving Picture Patents Company have counted not upon their legal strength, but the exhibitors' defenseless or disorganized position, which would leave them powerless to resist the demand of extortion. We call upon you to recognize your position and take active hand in complete organization of the industry. We wish further to point out that Europe produces four-fifths of the entire film output of the world, hence you cannot believe that you are at the mercy of the Trust, unless you by inactivity permit them to crush you.

A thinking man can see, and seeing, understand, the drift of a provisor that the names, seating capacity, etc., of each and every exhibitor be registered with the Trust heads, coupled with the further condition that THEY LICENSE YOU; REVOKABLE AT THEIR DISCRETION.

Stop, think and be sure that the hour for united action is at hand and our call for support is opportune and necessary for your salvation.

If you wish to join with us in the formation of a fund with which to resist the despotic action of the new Trust, mail your check at once to our Treasurer. Yours respectfully,

INDEPENDENT FILM PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

GREAT NORTHERN ENJOINS BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Pending the hearing of a suit for damages which has been instituted against the American Mutoscope and Biograph Company by the Great Northern Film Company, one of their licensees, a temporary injunction has been granted, restraining the Biograph Company from "joining in any contract, agreement or combination to which it is a party which will directly or indirectly violate the terms of the agreement" which the Biograph Company made with them when granting a license to sell under the Biograph patents.

Don't Use a Current Saver

UNLESS YOU USE A

GILLES ARC REGULATOR

WITHOUT IT

This will give you the best possible control and finest light with alternating current. Consumes no extra current and stops all travelling and pitting of carbons. Gives a clear white light free from shadows. Only possible way to get a perfect light with alternating current. Guaranteed one year. Sent prepaid for $10.00 or send $3.00 for examination and balance on acceptance. State make of machine and amperes used.

RICHARD L. GILLES, Distributor, HELENA, MONTANA

A Money Making PROPOSITION

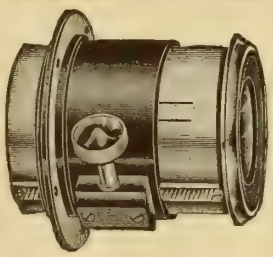
Some Exhibitors are paying their rent by exhibiting Advertising Slides before the show.

We make them, any design, from your copy. Also Announcement Slides in great variety.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.

513 Superior Building - Cleveland, Ohio



IMPROVE THE PICTURE ON THE SCREEN

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

by using a high grade projection lens.

Our lenses give a sharper and more brilliant picture than anylenses made here or abroad. We will send a lens on approval that makes a picture the size you want.

PRICE $18.00 NET

When ordering state the distance from lens to screen and size of picture. The purchaser of a new machine should insist on getting one of these lenses with it instead of the inferior lens usually supplied.

GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N.Y.

CLIMAX WIRE FOR RHEOSTATS

Does not become brittle

Three times the resistance of German silver

HIGHEST EFFICIENCY—LOWEST COST

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.
HARRISON, N.J.

THE NEW F. S. A. AND THE OLD

(By An Observer)

Well, did you hear anything drop? Saturday, January 9, was the day it was expected to fall. Did you hear it? Sure, you did. With a dull, sickening thud the Film Service Association fell from its high pinnacle of usefulness almost to the depths of oblivion. It is still in evidence, but officially dead, so far as official recognition by the manufacturers is concerned. As a social organization it still survives. What a change in the short period of twelve months! As the mind reverts to that gladsome gathering at Buffalo, N. Y., in December, 1907, we can almost hear the "He's a jolly good fellow" and the merry ripple of the glad-hand water. What a remarkable scene that was! Producer and dealer hand in hand, yea! arm in arm, at the festive board, swearing eternal friendship and unswerving fidelity to a common cause. At last the "main guys" of the bulwarks of the moving picture business had come together and adopted a plan whereby both manufacturer and renter could and would derive from the business what they were entitled to. The former was to receive a fair price for products and the latter a reasonable price for rental. There was to be no more cutting of sales or rental prices and no independent concerns were to be allowed to do anything that might tend to weaken that platform.

There were a good many loyal renters in the Film Service Association. Many of them lost thousands of dollars through their loyalty, but were appeased by the intimations of some who pretended to be wise and the assurances of many who thought they were wise. Loyalty was to reap its reward at the next annual gathering. Many film renters traveled hundreds, and some thousands, of miles to attend the meeting of January 9; and for what? To see the Film Service Association receive a blow in the solar plexus from which it will not recover. Outside of the pleasure some may have derived from the visit to the metropolis, the journey to the convention was a dead loss of time and money. Some of the members traveled from one ocean to the other only to learn that the Moving Picture Patents Company would not give recognition to the Film Service Association as an organization. No distinction was made. The men who had been loyal for a year were shown no more consideration than the others.

Many of the F. S. A. members were disposed to give vent to their injured feelings. All of them have returned to their homes chagrined. The most philosophical of them have reasoned that after all the result is only a repetition of history. With the Motion Picture Patents Company it is a cold, unrelenting business proposition. Having purchased all the patents that are supposed to affect the production and projection of moving pictures in this country, and having absorbed the opposition or competition represented by the so-called Independents, the Patents Company now feels that it is in a position to take care of all conditions and emergencies itself, and without the aid of the F. S. A. or any other organization. True, many renters deserve some recognition for their fidelity to the manufacturers when they were feeling their way to the position they now hold, but that is only a matter of sentiment. In these days sentiment is a bore in business circles.

Sufficient time has not elapsed since the F. S. A. passed out of its sphere of usefulness as a mainstay to the operations of the film manufacturers to enable one to picture the situation as it really exists to-day. All indications point to the withholding of definite information by the Patents Company for a week or so. Just before the F. S. A. convention was held, rumors that several film renters would find it impossible to deal with the Patents Company were plentiful. No announcement of that kind came from the manufacturers, neither during the period of the convention, nor after.

One opinion that seems to have the most sponsors is that all who have been the F. S. A. and all that come in from the independent columns will have an opportunity to lease all the films they can make use of if they pay their bills promptly and use the films in accordance with the terms of the lease. Several very prominent and well-informed men in connection with the film business have stated they believe very few, if any, renters will be cut off; that when the new contracts are ready all who want to sign them will be allowed to do so. It will practically be an open market. The only string to the situation will be a surveillance of the signers. If any of them break their contracts by failing to meet their obligations promptly, or by doing anything that may be inimicable to the interests of the lessor, they will be deprived of their lease. It would seem that the Patents Company maintains a position similar to that which the landlord bears to a tenant. The lease will be based upon certain conditions. If the lessee violates any of them the lessor will have the privilege and power to terminate the lease without consulting or dealing with any intervening committee or organization.

One feature that was relished by the film renters was the failure of the Patents Company to raise the prices of films. They remain as they have been since the first of last September. This is a sweet morsel of satisfaction to many of the renters. Had the prices of films been raised there is not the slightest doubt that a number of renters would have been forced out of business by the first of next March. With the sharp competition in the rental business many of the exchange men frequently find it a hard task to pay promptly for their films even at existing prices.

But it seems there is room for argument on any phase of the film question that can be brought up. When the effects of an increase in the price of films were referred to the other evening, several exchange men declared they would welcome such an increase if it would put some of the exchanges out of business, because it would lead to cheap exhibitors going out of business or make them pay more for service. Others argued that this theory sounded very nice, but it is as feasible as that of the F. S. A. when it was formed. At that time the members of that organization were to gather in all the exhibitors of the country because none could do without association films. Before the F. S. A. was three months old members were crying about the independents taking their customers, and to offset this many of them commenced to handle both association and independent films. If any exchanges should be put out of business by the prices of films going up, it is dollars to doughnuts that the exhibitors they abandoned would be taken care of by some of the survivors

The following quotation is very applicable to the present state of affairs:

"Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. . . . Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them."—St. Matthew, vii., 15-20.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

One of the headliners at the American Theater (vaudeville) this week was Savarin and his company, presenting in pantomime a strong play of tragic nature. We were impressed with the possibilities of this company if in front of the moving picture camera, and have since learned that the Vitagraph Company has secured their services. The Vitagraph Company are to be congratulated on their enterprise and we look forward to see a series of films showing the consummate art of the foreign mimic actor satisfactorily presented to American audiences by an American producer.

The Great Northern Film Company releases this week three short subjects, one finely colored fairy tale and two scenic films, that are also of educational interest. We have before remarked on the photographic quality of this company's productions, and these three are up to the standard.

LECTURETTES.

221 East 53d street. New York, January 14, 1909.

The Moving Picture World:

Dear Sirs—Owing to the rapidly increasing demand for short lecture sets, we have gone into the lecturette RENTING field on a large scale and are now prepared to furnish the moving picture trade with lecture sets on a large variety of subjects; each set is accompanied by a carefully prepared explanatory reading which can be read off by any employee of the theater, so that it is not necessary for the manager to go to any extra expense (aside of the rental for the slides) to put this extra attraction on his program. Yours very truly,

NOVELTY SLIDE EXCHANGE.

LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY INCORPORATED.

A corporative charter was granted last week at the State Department in Albany to Henry B. Ingram Company. The charter asked for was for the manufacture of lantern slides, photographic products, the publishing of sheet music and books, pamphlets, the dealing in, exporting and importing of music, musical instruments, manufacture, dealing in and sale of magic lanterns, stereopticons and other projection machinery, microscopes and lenses and the transaction of other allied business. The company is also licensed to operate projection machinery of all kinds, furnish operators, etc.

The incorporators are: Henry B. Ingram, Raymond Moore and Walter R. Lewis. The offices and factory are at 42 West Twenty-eighth street, New York, where for two years Mr. Ingram has conducted the lantern slide business. The company is capitalized for $25,000.

Beware! Mr. Manager

A very contagious disease exists (worn out sickly junk film service) means

Instant Death to your Theatre

LET US PRESCRIBE OUR SELECTED FILM SERVICE

A tonic that is necessary for success. If you are worried, and need assistance, write for latest proposition; results will follow; we increase receipts.

PENNSYLVANIA FILM CO.

400-1-2-3-4 Lewis Building
PITTSBURGH, PA.

ECONOMY FILM SERVICE

410 LIBERTY AVENUE
PITTSBURG

WE HAVE MORE FILM IN STOCK THAN ANY OTHER COMPETITOR

EVERY Reel is in first-class condition. The old stock has been disposed of. We have just received Five Hundred Reels from a foreign exchange, like new. We guarantee subjects to please any audience. We give all customers their proportionate share of new subjects. If you are paying big prices remember our service is Quality and Low Prices.

2 changes,	shipped	two	at a time,	1000	feet	each	$ 6.00
4 "	"	two	"	"	"	.	10.00
6 "	"	three	"	"	"	.	14.00
12 "	"	four	"	"	"	.	25.00

POSTER AND SONG SLIDES WITHOUT ADDITIONAL CHARGE

MR. I. W. ULLMAN, President.
Film Import Trading Co., New York.

DR. RICHARD RAY, Vice-President.
Kansas City, Mo.

GEO. F. KEARNEY, Secretary.
Detroit, Mich.

INGWALD C. OES, Treasurer.
Great Northern Film Co., New York.

INDEPENDENT FILM PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION

143 East Twenty-Third Street

NEW YORK, January 11, 1909.

MR. MOVING PICTURE EXHIBITOR.

Dear Sir: This letter is being sent to every exhibitor of films in the United States, and is undertaken by us on account of the unique condition in the film trade. The crisis is such as to call forth the united effort of all exhibitors of film to save themselves from the impending action of the Moving Picture Patents Co., just now started on its career of monopoly and extortion.

In organizing the Independent Film Protective Association it is our intention to make it national in scope, and owing to the limited time in which to make concerted action possible, we are taking this means in calling upon exhibitors to pledge themselves to create a fund to be used in defense and in litigations which we are about to institute.

The Motion Picture Patents Co. will probably try to intimidate exhibitors by threatening injunction proceedings, and may even threaten to close your house, to force you to sign their license agreement. Should such action be taken, if we band together, the Independent Film Protective Association will be financially and legally able to resist any move they may take. Attack may come from any quarter upon a defenseless industry, but properly organized, the enemy debates long upon his strength, so in this crisis the Moving Picture Patents Co. have counted not upon their legal strength, but the exhibitors' defenseless or disorganized position, which would leave them powerless to resist the demand of extortion. We call upon you to recognize your position and take active hand in complete organization of the industry. We wish further to point out that Europe produces four-fifths of the entire film output of the world, hence you cannot believe that you are at the mercy of the Trust, unless you by inactivity permit them to crush you.

A thinking man can see, and seeing, understand, the drift of a provisor that the names, seating capacity, etc., of each and every exhibitor be registered with the Trust heads, coupled with the further condition that THEY LICENSE YOU; REVOKABLE AT THEIR DISCRETION.

Stop, think and be sure that the hour for united action is at hand and our call for support is opportune and necessary for your salvation.

Enclosed are copies of the contracts and announcements made to the film exchanges by the Trust (these copies furnished by courtesy of Moving Picture News), read them carefully in order that you may grasp [illegible]

If you wish to join with us in the formation of a fund with which to resist the despotic

Independent Film P

143 EAST 23d STRE

Formally and regularly

New York City, January 11th, 1909. Each and every

FOR PARTICULARS AND INFORM

rotective Association

ET, NEW YORK CITY

rganized at Hotel Imperial, exhibitor in the land is invited to join the organization
ATION ADDRESS HEADQUARTERS

If you wish to join with us in the formation of a fund with which to resist the despotic action of the new Trust, sign the blank form appended below and mail same with your check at once to our treasurer.

Yours respectfully,

INDEPENDENT FILM PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

We I hereby make application for membership in the

INDEPENDENT FILM PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION

and enclose herewith Five Dollars ($5.00) for membership fee. We agree to pay the annual dues of the Association amounting to $25.00, payable $2.00 monthly and $3.00 on the twelfth month.

Signed.....

Address.....

Name of Theatre.....

Forward this blank and make checks payable to Independent Film Protective Association, Treasurer, 7 East 14th Street, New York City

Mr. Address

Name of leading attorney in your city

The New Kind of Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one. IF you are progressive you will call, if not, we both lose money.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,

A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)

CHICAGO, ILL.

We Design and Construct Complete Moving Picture Theatres from $2,500 up

Comments on Film Subjects.

"In Old Arizona," one of the most ambitious films that we have seen, is a production of which the Selig Polyscope Company may well be proud. As a spectacle it embodies the results of a vast amount of stage work, and the story it unfolds is clear, dramatic, and exhilarating, with never a moment in it that is not tense, without being morbid. It looks on the screen like a photographic realization of a story by Fennimore Cooper or Mayne Reed. To a happy Arizona homestead comes a message to a girl staying there that she must hasten home. "Home" lies across the desert, across which she is escorted. In camp, a rejected Mexican suitor turns the horses adrift, and the little band of persons in charge of the girl is thus at the mercy of a horde of Apache Indians. Finally, after many thrilling adventures, in which the rifle plays a conspicuous part, rescue is effected by United States soldiers, a carrier pigeon conveying a message from the party in peril, and a splendid piece of drama ends happily. Great expense must have been gone to in staging the crowds of performers, and for horse hire, uniforms and so forth; but the result has justified the outlay, for the Selig Company has scored a distinct success with "In Old Arizona." Its reception by the audience on the occasion when we saw it was unmistakably enthusiastic.

"The Two Orphans of the G. A. R."—We note with pleasure that Lubin is making a serious effort to improve his work. As we wish to encourage Mr. Lubin in his attempt to elevate the moving picture to a higher standard, we will say that this is a very creditable production, which, on account of its military character, pleased the audience. Mr. Lubin is on the right road. We would like to see the same disposition on the part of other manufacturers.

"A Soldier's Heroism," a full reel subject released a few days ago by the Film Import and Trading Company, is a notable example of the magnificent and expensive staging that is now being resorted to by many producers. The Cines Company (Italian) are to be congratulated on the scenic effects and the realistic action, but enough titles are not used to make the story clear, and the film should be accompanied with a lecture.

"Spanish Blood."—While the action and staging of this film is all that could be desired and the tinting enhances its attractiveness as a picture, one wonders if the makers really intend to convey the impression that the Spanish are a race of jealous men and women and are always plotting violence. Surely there must be something in Spanish life far more attractive than this, and something that will depict that life quite as accurately as this film does.

"The Duel Under Richelieu."—Perhaps as a glimpse of the manners and customs in Richelieu's day this film can be condoned, but there are too many unpleasant details connected with it. A wholesale duel is not quite the mental pabulum which is desired by present-day Americans. The execution is much too bald. The audience sees the stroke of the axe and then the severed head is held up for them to see. All the time the wife or sweetheart is writhing in the clutches of the soldiers in the foreground. It is too bloodthirsty and nerve-racking to allow it to run. If the riot of bloodshed is to begin all over again in the films, the censor had better get busy.

"Ted and His Little Sister."—One of those pleasant little children's stories which go far to relieve the strain caused by the sight of some of the murderous films. This is a particularly well acted and well photographed film and deserves a long run.

"Love Finds a Way."—A splendidly acted and staged picture. Technically it would be difficult to improve it. The work is all of that type which appeals alike to the artistic sense and to the pure love for pictures. Besides, it tells an interesting story, which is, perhaps, a feature worth commending. Not all do that. Another point in its favor: While one man is captured and bound to a table for a time he is released and arrives at the church too late for his wedding; but no one is killed, and even the disappointed lover seems to accept the situation good-humoredly after he discovers that it is too late to mend matters.

"The Honor of Thieves."—A story of drawing Cupid into a scheme to rob a pawnbroker. The scheme succeeds, only the girl develops unexpected bravery and holds the robbers at bay, compelling one to telephone for the police. The action is good and the story is good enough, only it borders upon that type of film which arouses adverse public opinion.

"Held by Bandits."—A blood-and-thunder dime novel story which is interesting, but can do no possible good. It is well acted and well staged, but had better be suppressed. If it runs it should be changed so that Fiametta, who acts the part of a heroine, is allowed to live. It is too bad to kill her along with half a dozen bandits or brigands, or whatever else them may be. Let her live. She deserves it.

"Two Great Griefs."—Possibly this film would appeal to a French audience, but it doesn't go here. To assume that a man can forget his wife in a week and a woman her husband in so short a time is a little too much for Americans. It may do in France. It misses being either funny or serious here. Better forget it.

"Napoleon and the English Sailor."—Not very well acted, though the staging is good. The figures move as though they were made of wood, excepting in one or two scenes, where they go well enough. The conception of the film is a good one, but the development of the idea is not satisfactory excepting in a few scenes.

"Mabel's Beau in Trouble"—When a man allows himself to be tied up in a bundle of straw and tumbled around, finally being set on fire and forced to flee to the water to put himself out, all for a girl, he must be in bad shape mentally. The film develops some funny and interesting situations and is really funny in spots.

"The Peer's Fancy."—This film is not quite clear. It is one of those love stories where the father, or someone else, objects, and the result is the death of the girl, but just what the by-play beteween means is not clear. The film should be made clear so it could be understood.

"Legend of the Stars."—A most beautiful film so far as the sentiment expressed is concerned. The scene where the little girl gives away her doll because she is blind and will be unable to ever see it again never fails to bring tears, and again when she awakes after the angel has placed the stars on her eyes and joyously announces that she can see, the audience cries again. This film deserves a long run.

"The Tyrant's Dream."—This film ought to be shown daily to the domestic tyrant who forces his family into subjection through his irritability or plain ugliness. It is well staged and well acted and the lesson taught is well worth repeating.

"The Police Band."—Perhaps the idea developed in this that music will charm away lawbreakers could be adopted with success where other means have failed. It is funny and there is no element in the fun which is foolish.

"Military Prison."—If France treats her imprisoned soldiers the way this film pictures it is time a little humanity was injected into their system. It is the most inhuman representation ever seen on a film. No doubt the actors did their parts well. The scenes are too realistic for comfort, but the question remains whether the representation is correct. One would suppose that the French Government would seek to suppress a film of that character, whether it is true or false.

"The Tenderfoot."—A Western story which is told with a good deal of vigor and in the main is correct. Most newcomers are treated practically as the one here represented, but not all are such sickly looking dudes. The staging and action are excellent. The bucking horse is particularly strong and is accurately reproduced.

"Poetry of the Sea."—One of the most beautiful and impressive films shown this season. Anyone who loves the sea could look at this picture for hours without tiring. The film runs smooth and the appearance of the waves is extremely natural. Such films ought to be more common. They have an educative value which cannot be estimated.

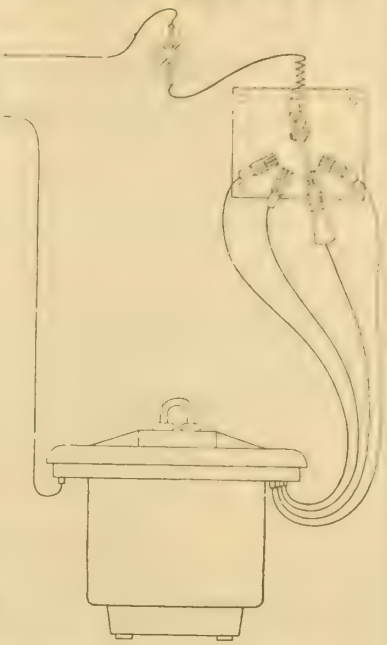
"The Old School Master."—A pathetic story strongly told. The character of the school master is well acted and the little boy who tells a wrong story and afterwards repents and tells the truth is well carried out. The staging and acting are alike good and the film runs smoothly and is excellent technically. It deserves a long run.

"The Poet and the Maid at the Mill."—A comic which is actually humorous. The caricature of the poet is excellent and the way the maid fools him is rich. The running and knocking over things is not quite what it should be, yet even the destruction of property in this instance is funny.

"A Little Hero."—One of those pathetic pictures which appeal to the very heart of humanity. The little boy must lose his mother, but he is adopted by a kindly family and repays their kindness by saving their daughter from a burning building. The action is excellent and the little hero is

Lemon Arc Regulator

For Alternating Current Only



This device takes the place of the Rheostat.

Does away with the Heat.

Gives perfect control of the light.

Produces a steady light with a strong arc and gives the

HIGHEST ECONOMY

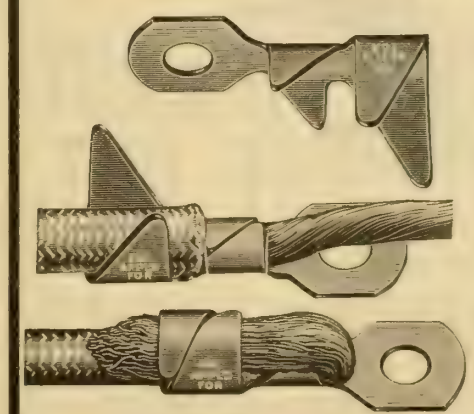
MADE BY

Vindex Electric Co.

AURORA, ILL.

BALL'S COPPER TERMINALS

FOR ASBESTOS OR RUBBER COVERED STRANDED WIRE



For Number 6 or 8 Wire

Price 10 Cents Each $1.00 Per Dozen

Easily Attached by the use of Plyers only, making a Sure Contact

Especially adapted for Motion Picture Lamp and Rheostat Connections

Use these Terminals for Lamp Connections and be insured against the Annoyance of Burned Off Wires. For Sale by all Dealers. Made by

THE BELL & HOWELL CO.

90 ILLINOIS STREET, CHICAGO

EASTERN FILM EXCHANGE

Wabash Building
PITTSBURG, PA.

HIGH PRICE Exchanges have requested us repeatedly to increase our price on supplies and Film Service—you can bet we have satisfied more customers and have made good on low rentals. Why should we increase prices when our profits justify us in purchasing large quantities of film. If you are dealing with Mr. Stick-Him you had better install our service immediately. Send list of subjects you have used. No repeaters guaranteed.

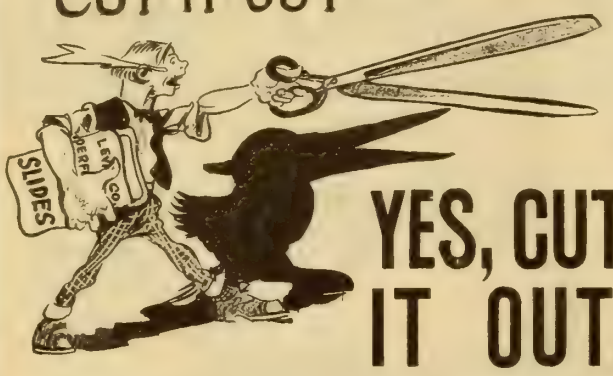
2 changes,	shipped	two	at a	time,	1000 feet	each $ 5.00
4 "	"	two	"	"	"	10.00
6 "	"	three	"	"	"	14.00
12 "	"	four	"	"	"	25.00

Song Slides and Beautifully Colored Posters FREE

SUPPLIES Tickets 9 cts, per 1000. Carbons 2 cts. each. Condensing Lenses 50 cts. Moving Picture Lenses, $8.00. Stereopticon Lenses, $8.00. Film Cement, 10 cts. a bottle. Reels 50 cts. each.

NOTICE—We Guarantee to Fit a Lens for Any Curtain.

"CUT IT OUT"



YES, CUT IT OUT,

that's what the exhibitor says when dealers try to sell them the ordinary announcement slide.

THEY ALL WANT LEVI'S

the reason is not hard to find. Our

PERFECTION SLIDES

are sometimes imitated but never equalled. There is a satisfying quality about them that is very pleasing. They are a distinct relief to the monotony of the film. Send for our new illustrated catalog. You can't afford to be without it.

LEVI CO., Inc., (Specialists)

64 East 14th Street, Tel. 1425 Stuyvesant, New York, U. S. A.

very lovable. The picture of the burning house is excellent. It is so realistic one can almost hear the flames crackle.

"Gamekeeper's Bride."—A good love story, which, while it appears for a time rather black, is after all a good story. The ending is all that could be desired. Hence it does not deserve much criticism. No one is killed and the old marquis is rescued before he gets up to his knees in the water.

"Braving Death to Save a Child."—A love story with a good ending, which is spiced with the discharge of a governess and other exciting adventures. The scene of the rescue from the rising tide is good. In fact, the water sweeps over the rock upon which the child stands so viciously at times that the audience catches its breath. The rescue is accomplished, however, and everything is made right afterward.

"Bobby Has a Pipe Dream."—The story of what might happen to a policeman if he went to the play and then indulged in something afterward. The hallucinations were certainly spicy enough to suit the most blase policeman who ever tramped a beat. The action is good and the technical quality of the film is also satisfactory.

"The Burglar in a Basket."—The burglar, introduced in a basket, succeeds in opening the safe, only to find himself confronted with a man and many more appear from different doors about the room. The meaning of the picture is not quite clear. If it is a representation of clever detective work it is well. But no one can discover from the appearance of the film just what it means.

"Nick Carter."—An illustration of the wonderful powers of dime novel Nick Carter in tracing criminals and securing the release of a prisoner. It is a good story, has plenty of action and is well worth seeing. At the same time it is too improbable to be considered.

Weekly Comments on the Shows.

BY OUR OWN CRITIC.

Visiting Keith's Bijou Dream, on East Fourteenth street, the other night, I was struck by the evident good standing and apparent prosperity of the audience. There were no loafers or down-and-outs killing time or going to sleep. No, my fellow visitors had come to see the show and evidently enjoyed and appreciated it. No theater in the city could have desired a better class audience. Surely if the patronage of such people is to be had for the effort the future of motion pictures is not in doubt. I was fortunate in seeing a series of delicately colored lantern slides of Messina and other parts of Italy recently visited by earthquakes. A lecturer gave a good talk on the subject and the turn was evidently liked by the audience. As I have said the slides were delicately colored, the tints applied with the skill of an artist and not slobbed on as in the case of many of the song slides seen. A set of the latter kind were also shown accompanied by a song about love and kisses and all sorts of sentimental piffle. There is much room for improvement in the pictorial quality of the song slide. When I say pictorial quality I do not expect to be understood by the average song slide maker but they may be induced to put on their thinking caps. If the theater managers were careful in presenting to an intelligent audience only such slides as showed evidence of artistic talent we should move.

There is a good pianist at the Bijou Dream and other instruments are used for effects, but I think that a small orchestra of at least four pieces would be a great attraction. The photographic quality of the films shown was just good enough to prove that they could have been better. There is a wrong impression that anything is good enough for a moving picture audience. No. The public at large may not know much about the technicalities of photography or the niceties of dramatic construction but they intuitively appreciate what is good although they cannot tell why it pleases. It is therefore suicidal to give the public anything but the best. There are a great many rungs to climb yet on the ladder that leads to perfection.

Although not impressed with the quality of the pictures there was no dismal or lugubrious subject shown and I came away favorably impressed. The story of the boy who leaves home to work in a large city, has a high old time, goes to the bad and returns home to find his mother dead and repents to his sister, is a trite one, of course, but the subject is always a popular one with a mixed audience. And there was no unhappy ending. Two other subjects were "The Professor's Love Tonic" and "The Actor and the Baby Carriage," both comedy. The audience seemed to enjoy the humor. On the whole the programme was bright and attractive but subject to improvement on the lines pointed out.

THE CAMERAPHONE.

The Cameraphone in operation at the Theater Unique during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention. It has been perhaps the most striking feature of an excellent program. As an illustration of the possibilities of the talking picture machine it is especially interesting. But it is no criticism to say that it is not entirely adjusted in all its workings yet. Perhaps in the near future it will be properly adjusted and the text and the pictures will coincide so closely that the action of the pictures will be in perfect consonance with the words. Three selections were rendered. The first was the well-known coon song, "I Guess I'm Bad," posed by Miss Stella Mayhew. Of course the pictures were good, but the deep metallic voice of the concealed phonograph detracted somewhat from the illusion. It was not a woman's voice that spoke. This could be obviated to some extent by having a woman sing the song when the records are made. The words and the movement of the lips were not in accord, excepting occasionally, though there was little reason to criticise the action.

The next one was a scene in a Turkish bath house, and here neither action nor words were in accord any of the time. The action did not matter so much, since a good deal of it could have been anywhere; and where the action was essential not much was said.

The third selection was the ambitious drama of the "Corsican Brothers," and here the work was much better than in the lighter pieces. The deliberate action required was conducive to consonance between the words and the movement of the speakers and there was less facing of the audience when the characters were speaking, which permitted more illusion regarding the speeches. On the whole there was nothing to be desired in the production. The voices of the characters are notably heavy, anyhow, and that helped the phonograph materially in reproducing the text. On the whole, this ambitious third number was a success.

All three held the close attention of the large audiences every day and they opened up the possibilities of this instrument as soon as it has been perfected. The speaking picture will soon be as common as the moving picture now, and the pleasure of those who see and hear will be increased proportionately. One might add, however, that as soon as the talking picture is an accomplished fact upon a basis which will admit of wide distribution and use, film manufacturers will be forced to change their subjects and cast them upon an entirely different plane. It would be impossible to reproduce a considerable proportion of the pictures offered now if the speaking text was included in the exhibition.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

In general the films of the past week have been good, though in one or two instances there has been a return to the blood-and-thunder type of a few weeks ago. This is to be deprecated just now when public attention is riveted upon the moving picture business, ready to take offense at anything which seems inimical to the public good. It would be well for manufacturers to eliminate this type for the present. On the other hand it would be well if managers would not accept such films for use.

There have been no notable films during the week. "The Legend of the Stars," while not particularly ambitious, was one of the most touching which have been produced recently. "All Is Fair in Love and War" is a good film which deserves a long run and a number of record films have been shown which were above the ordinary. But the work has been, as a whole, of the ordinary type, without special effort to make it notable.

Nevertheless, it has pleased the audiences and perhaps the effect has not been quite as good as it is when there are one or two ambitious attempts that are weak in some particular.

VAUDEVILLE ACTS.

In most theaters the acts were exceptionally good. In some of the leading houses they were the best seen this season. It is apparent that managers are adopting the right course in this respect and are gradually improving the quality of the acts in their theaters.

Vaudeville helps only so far as it is attractive and it can't be attractive unless it is good. Consequently it is better to run pictures alone than it is to introduce vaudeville which does not appeal by its attractiveness.

With such acts as have been put on during the past two weeks no one can find fault and they are commended to managers who want to obtain drawing numbers at their respective places.

A table d'hote dinner usually satisfies, our Song Slide Service always does

Over 200 song hits that are not hackneyed, artistically illustrated

New York Successes at your service weekly

Old time favorites for those who desire them

RENTAL, 50c PER SET WEEKLY

Announcement Slides Up-to-date
When in doubt try them

SYKO SLIDE CO.

Room 505, Cronin Building, Troy, N. Y.

WRITE TO-DAY

STILL IN THE RING

We are still Independent and are going to be. We intend to own and have some small say how we will run our own business.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

Liberty Film Exchange

Telephone Walnut 3956
1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.

Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

IT IS OUR POLICY

To
- Purchase from three to five copies of every good subject manufactured.
- Make shipments in ample time to avoid delays.
- Avoid REPEATERS.
- Ship NO JUNK.
- Give what we promise.

We earnestly solicit a trial order for Film Service that we may convince you

WRITE TO-DAY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.
(Members Film Service Association)

1401-1405 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
421 Fourth Ave., LOUISVILLE, KY.

Care of Crawford Theatre El Paso, Tex.
Care of Shubert Theatre New Orleans, La.
306 Moore-Burnet Bldg. Houston, Tex.

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange
NINTH FLOOR
MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides The Finest Made. $5 per Set All of the New Song Hits.
A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Wichita, Kan.—A new theater is to be constructed south of the Crawford by the Klaw & Erlanger theatrical corporation.

Ada, Ohio.—Harry Vestal has bought out his partner George Holman's interest in the moving picture amusement palace.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Mr. I. Martin was granted a permit to erect a moving picture theater in McMilian street at a cost of $20,000.

Portsmouth, Va.—The Pastime Theater will hereafter be under the management of the Duquesne Amusement Supply Company, Inc.

New Orleans, La.—A new theater, known as the Victor, opened its doors to the public at 1012 Canal street. Mr. Victor A. Perez is owner.

Bridgeport, Conn.—A new theater, which will be the most elaborate in the city, will be established in the bowling alley building on John street.

Youngstown, Ohio.—The Edison moving picture show on Central square has changed hands. It is now under the proprietorship of Joseph Wess.

St. John, N. B., Canada.—The Cedar Theater in Union Hall has changed hands. The old proprietors, Jordan & Giggey, have sold to unknown parties.

Danbury, Conn.—The Godfrey building, corner of Main and Crosby streets, is being fitted up by E. G. Godfrey as a modern moving picture theater.

Albany, N. Y.—After weeks of hustling, bustling preparation, the doors of the Majestic Theater opened for business, under the management of Emil Dieches.

Lexington, Ky.—The Majestic Amusement Company filed articles of incorporation with County Clerk T. Lewis, incorporating with a capital stock of $5,000.

Newark, N. J., is to have another moving picture theater, which will soon be erected in Market street. Mr. Charles Sheerer is the promoter of the new enterprise.

Marquette, Mich.—A new moving picture theater, known as the Theatorium, will open in the Voelker building, on Cleveland avenue, under the management of C. A. Crinnian.

Richmond, Va.—Two moving picture theaters have recently opened in Richmond—the "Theato," situated at Fifth and Broad streets, and the "Rex," at Seventh and Broad streets.

Philadelphia, Pa.—E. W. Detwiller has a contract to alter the property at 1219 Market street into a moving picture house for the Unique Amusement Company, at an estimated cost of $15,000.

Hot Springs, Ark.—The Grand Opera House has opened its doors for business. Its policy is to give its patrons first-class moving pictures. The Cameraphone talking picture machine will also be installed.

Atlanta, Ga., is to have one of the finest moving picture theaters in the United States. The seating capacity is about 600. O. D. Posey, owner of the popular Elite Theater, 36 Peachtree street, is the promoter of the enterprise.

Napa, Cal.—The James H. Goodman Company has commenced the erection upon their lot on Main street of an elegant theater 80 by 100 feet in size, and which Miss Alva G. Fisher, who now conducts the Hayes Theater, will conduct as a moving picture show.

Eugene, Ore.—The Aloha Nickelodeon will open up on Willamette street on or about the 12th of January. The front is of a shell effect, containing 245 lights; seating capacity 300. It will be without any exception the most beautiful theater of its kind in the State of Oregon. Mr. R. M. Walker, the manager, is well versed in the business, and there is no doubt of a big success.

SONG SLIDES
The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES for the great hits
"There's A Fleet On The Sea"
"Would You Like To Take A Walk With Me"
"I'm Going To Tell On You"
THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

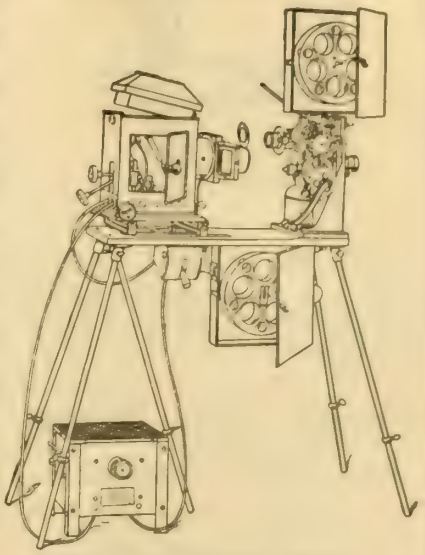
MR. JONES HAS A CARD PARTY.—"When the cat's away the mice will play," so also when wifey is nonest the sportive hubby will break out all the more eagerly from his long restraint, and there will be some doings. Mr. Jones, since his last escapade, had made strenuous efforts to amend the reputation he had gained in the eyes of the ladies of the Temperance League. But, Oh! the ordeal, for such it was, was telling on him, and his pent-up spirits were threatening ebullition, when at last the chance comes. The league arranges to attend a three-days' convention out of town, and when Mrs. Jones departs, Jones sends a note to Smith, telling him to bring the gang, and they would have a "Prayer Meeting," enjoining him not to forget the "fixings." Well, the gang are not long in putting in an appearance, for they feel that every minute's delay is a chunk lost from a golden opportunity for fun. Of "fixing" there is much, and it isn't long before they are in the "Wild Indian" stage of inebriety. During this time the feminine nemesis of Rum, the League, has arrived at the station just in time to see the train pull out. Madder than wet hens, they decide to pass the night with Mrs. Jones—"Oh, horror! Oh, horror! a couple of times." Does not your sympathetic heart go out to poor unsuspecting Jones, who in the meantime has gotten into a glorious condition, and the gang dress him in one of his wife's gowns, paint his face, carry him to the bedroom and throw him into bed, covering him up with the bedclothes. At this moment the prohibition party are seen approaching the house. The men hide as best they can the "fixings," and are sitting reading books entitled "Down with Rum" when the ladies enter. They of course are delighted at this sight, and the absence of Jones is explained by a faked note calling him to attend a sick friend—noble Jones. The ladies go to the bedroom to remove their wraps, and their intrusion arouses Jones, who, not recognizing them, makes a dash for them, at which they all rush wildly into the drawing room, screaming that there is a madman in the bedroom. The men then rush in and while pretending to annihilate the imagined maniac they tidy up Jones and slip him through the window, that he may go around and enter the front door. The fright attending this episode has somewhat sobered him and everything would have been well had not Mrs. J. got a whiff of his breath. Even this would have passed, but Sister Anderson spies the bottles—Well, it's all off. It looks bad for Jones until the gang step forward and claim all the blame, as Jones was not even present. Here Jones makes the bluff and exclaims majestically, "Madam, nimium de crede colori!" or, in other words, "Trust not to appearances," and the bluff goes. Length, 583 feet.

THE FASCINATING MRS. FRANCIS.—Love's a capricious power and in this subject an example is shown that love is the embodiment of positive contradiction. Like dynamite it directs its force against the strongest point of resistance. At a musical Mrs. Francis is the star, and her singing not only elects encomiastic terms from those present, but incurs the violent love of the son of the host, a callow youth. The father beseeches Mrs. Francis to dissipate this madness in his son, which she is most willing to do. To this end she endeavors to make herself obnoxious in his eyes, by pretending intoxication and abandon, all with apparently little effect, which inen treasure tokens Mrs. Francis, and when they force a new allegiance on him and he transfers his allegiance to her, she comes to realize that she herself really loves the boy, and her act amounts to self immolation. Length, 417 feet.

THE CRIMINAL HYPNOTIST.—Little did old Dr. Mesmer, the venerable Viennese physician, dream of the scope of his wonderful discovery, its labors being incited chiefly by his therapeutical attainments. While the science was known and practiced longer ago than history, the power was ascribed to demoniacal possession or else cabalistic puissance. From Mesmer's time on much has been done through the tireless efforts of the various societies of physical research, until that which was once veiled with the heavy cloud of mystery is now treated with nonchalance. Like many other scientific discoveries, the power of suggestion has its abuses, and is often the tool of a contemptible villain, as this story will show. To a reception there is invited a celebrated professor of hypnotism, and during the evening he obliges with an exhibition of his wonderful powers. Several of the guests are put under the influence and made to perform most ridiculous antics, to their embarrassment upon reviving. The daughter of the host is the last to be subjected to the professor's power, and she proves to be such a good subject that the professor at once resolves to make her his unconscious agent in a dastardly plot he at once evolves. Opportunity serves him most graciously, for he meets the lady on the street and hypnotizing her, suggests she return to her home and rob her father's desk of a large sum of money. The scheme seems to work, but it is an acknowledged fact that a person of good morals cannot be made to commit a crime, by hypnotism, and so

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

The exhibitor who uses an Edison Kinetoscope need not fear competition



To invest in an indifferent or inferior picture machine is to invite failure. The Edison Kinetoscope is unequalled for its brilliant, steady clear cut work. There is no unpleasant flicker, no wear on the films, no danger from fire and no complicated mechanisms to get out of order. The motion picture idea originated with Thomas A. Edison. He offers it in its most perfect form in his Kinetoscope. One of many decided improvements is its

Prices from $75.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

IMPROVED LAMP HOUSE

This lamp house is much larger than other types, has better radiation, takes longer carbons and, by reason of top, back and side openings, is much more accessible. A complete description of the Edison Kinetoscope with illustrations, in booklet form sent free on request.

EDISON FILMS

The subjects for Edison Films are selected with great care and are acted out by talented people. They are never ordinary, but are always of a character that does not offend. They range from thrilling melodrama to brisk, lively comedy. They are made with unusual care by a process that insures absolutely perfect results. New films are prepared each week. If you will send us your address you will receive complete descriptions of the new films as they appear.

NEW SUBJECTS:

Shipment, January 1[illegible], 1909
PAGAN AND CHRISTIAN
Dramatic
No. 6414 Code, VENGARIAIS
App. Length 1000 feet

Shipment, January 22, 1909
A BURGLAR CUPID
Comedy
No. 6415 Code, VENGARIAN
App. Length 850 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS:

Shipment, January 26, 1909
A ROMANCE OF OLD MADRID
Dramatic
No. 6416 Code, VENGATIVA
App. Length 900 feet

Shipment, January 29, 1909
A MODEST YOUNG MAN
Comedy
No. 6417 Code, VENGATIVOS
App. Length [illegible] feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 304 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. Waters, 11 E. 21st St., New York George Breck, 70 Fulk St., San Francisco, Cal

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
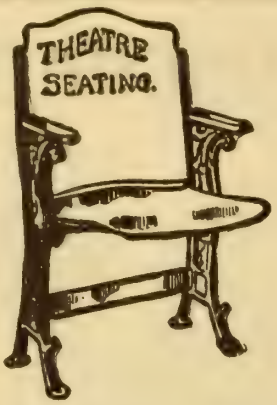
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries. FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company

90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.

70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Kalem Films

LENGTH 805 FEET

Release of January 22d, 1909

"The Girl at the Old Mill" is a story of absorbing heart interest placed in beautiful scenic settings The scene at the old wheel has seldom been equalled.

Next—Another Florida Sensation

"THE OCTOROON"

Send for complete lecture—no charge

KALEM CO., Inc.

131 West 24th St., New York City

although the girl goes to the house, and even opens the drawer in which the money is placed, she returns without it. On her way back she is followed by her sweetheart, who assails the professor, but is worsted, gagged and bound. Back the professor sends the girl, he following, and at the home she somnambulistically leads him to the desk. He takes the money and leaves her under his hypnotic power. In this condition her father finds her, and failing to arouse her, calls the family physician, who at once suggests a celebrated mind specialist. He is hurriedly called, and using his powers of suggestion on her she is induced to retrace her steps, followed by her father and the doctors. Meanwhile the professor has arrived at his rooms and is hastily packing his effects preparatory to skipping; when the girl and her father, followed by the doctors and a couple of policemen, enter. The professor is overpowered, and made to resuscitate the girl, and taken into custody by the policemen. Length 626 feet.

THOSE BOYS!—"Boys will be boys," that's a sure thing, and while the action of this Biograph subject is in part thrilling and impish, it is simply a motion picture reflex of what two mischievous boys would do. Papa brings home a revolver and cartridges, as protection against tramps, the house being in the suburbs. The two boys are on the lawn with a target and bow and arrow, when mother calls them into the house for their lessons. The three girls of the family steal up to the garret to peruse the love letters of their parents hidden away in an old trunk. The boys find the pistol, and loading it with cartridges sneak up to the outer garret, place their target against the thin board partition and are about to indulge in a little target practice which would have resulted in the death of one or more of the girls, when mother, who has missed the pistol, also the boys, bursts in and seizes the gun and thereby prevents an apparent casualty. Length, 342 feet.

EDISON MFG. CO.

PAGAN AND CHRISTIAN.—Synopsis of scenes: Two schools of thought have ever dominated the world—the Epicurean, addicted to pleasure, and the Ascetic, given to severe self-denial and austerity.

The contrast between the two is forcibly brought out in this picture, wherein we see the restless, pleasure-loving pagans vainly seeking happiness, and the austere Christians, who, indifferent to the world's temptations and pleasures, find "A peace that passeth understanding."

The influence of the little "God of Love" is felt by both schools. Livia, a pagan Egyptian dancing girl, arouses the dormant passion (thought to be subdued) of Caius, a Christian hermit, who sees her in a festal procession during a visit to Thebes. Neither prayers, fasting nor penance can efface her alluring and bewitching image from his memory. The red blood in his veins cries aloud for her, his eyes demand another sight of her charms, and he decides to see her again. To appease his conscience, he determines to undertake her conversion.

With the aid of a friendly, pleasure-loving nobleman, the meeting is arranged. Caius, attired in costly raiment (pursuant to his friend's suggestion), his Ascetic perfections heightened by their aid, meets Livia, whose imaginaton is fired and the "Little God's" conquest is complete. She forsakes the pagan worship of Venus, destroys her idols, dons a simple garb and together they seek the desert.

But conscience will not down, and they reluctantly part. She enters a nunnery; he seeks his hermit's cell, where visions still pursue him, in one of which he sees her dying, calling for him. Hastening away, he arrives at her side in time to hear her breathe her gratitude and love, and expire in his arms. Approximate length, 1,000 feet.

A BURGLAR CUPID.—Synopsis of scenes: Artie, very much in love with Gladys, makes but little headway in his wooing, owing to his nervousness and a desire to be very gallant.

Calling to escort Gladys to a ball, he rouses her wrath when he attempts an untimely embrace and steps on her skirt.

"Mike the Terror" and his pal, "Barney the Bike," select the home of Gladys for action, and make preparations accordingly, including the imprisonment of the fat butler.

After the ball Artie and Gladys have supper at a fashionable cafe, where poor Artie adds to his blunders by upsetting the soup on Galdy's ball dress.

Arrived home the moonlight flooding the apartment suggests romance to Artie, and he gets busy, to the discomfort of "Mike."

Mike finally tires of the mushy performance and, to hasten matters, steps forth, and, under cover of his gun, forces Galdys to bestow the long-sought kiss.

Artie is so delighted that he insists on Mike accepting his valuables and money, and further presents him with his fur coat and gloves.

"Mike" and "Barney" make a safe get-away and hasten home to divide the spoils and enjoy the fruits of their success in love matters. Approximate length, 850 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

THE OLD CURIOSITY SHOP.—In the famous characters of English fiction, none are more widely known than those of Quilp, Dick Swiveller, the Marchioness, Grandfather Trent, and little Nell. They are perhaps the most satisfying in the Dickens gallery of famous portraiture.

The first scene of our film shows an old-fashioned London street of the Dickens period. Little Nell is sent on an errand by her grandfather and loses her way. Dick Swiveller takes her home.

Scene 2 shows a corner of the Old Curiosity Shop. Kit Nibbles, a friend of little Nell, is discovered waiting anxiously for her. Swiveller enters with Nell. Kit is overjoyed at her safe return. Nell invites Swiveller into the house. He declines, and surrenders her to Kit, who bows and bashfully takes Nell into the house.

Scene 3 gives us the interior of the Old Curiosity Shop. Nell enters, followed by Kit. She immediately takes charge of the household affairs. She orders Kit to bring in wood, then sets tea table. Grandfather Trent enters. Nell goes to him and is greeted tenderly, showing deep affection between the old man and child. Kit returns with wood and starts to go out again for more, bumping into Fred Trent, a dissolute brother of little Nell. Fred Trent demands money of the grandfather and is refused. He leaves, vowing that he will get it. Grandfather Trent writes a letter to Quilp and again sends Nell on the errand. Reluctantly she goes, whereupon grandfather takes out a deck of cards and plays imaginary game, indicating his passion for gambling.

Scene 4 takes us to the law office of Sampson Brass, and tells of the conspiracy to marry Nell to Swiveller.

Scenes that follow show how Quilp secures a mortgage on Grandfather Trent's Old Curiosity Shop, how they are sold out of their home, wander into the field, and at last are rescued by a kind-hearted farmer. Then how the Brasses and Fred Trent are arrested through the help of Swiveller, who marries the Marchioness. Length, 1,000

KALEM COMPANY.

THE GIRL AT THE OLD MILL.—Knowing the great popularity of pastoral plays, such as "'Way Down East" and "Shore Acres," we have had our dramatists and photographers prepare a drama of intense heart interest, a drama from the pen of one of the leading playwrights of the country. The theme can be told in one word, "Love." A beautiful young girl, the daughter of a country miller, has pledged her troth to a young millwright who is in her father's employ. All would have been well had not a handsome young city chap come that way. He makes himself agreeable to the girl and with the usual result—the girl forgets her first love and gives her whole heart to the city man. But, alas, it is only a moment's fancy with him. He soon tires of the little country girl and when she learns of his perfidy she attempts to commit suicide by jumping into the mill pond. Of course she is rescued by her first lover and all ends happily.

Scene I.—The girl and the boy.
Scene II.—The kiss at the mill race.
Scene III.—A city chap on the scene.
Scene IV.—Promises are easy.
Scene V.—First love is forgotten.
Scene VI.—The city chap is neglectful.
Scene VII.—The city chap says "Good-bye."
Scene VIII.—The city chap's perfidy.
Scene IX.—First love is best after all.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

MARRIED TWICE (Gaumont).—This is a dramatic production of exceptional merit and has a strong pathetic conclusion.

An unfortunate finds himself unable to provide for his family, as he is unable to secure work, and therefore agrees to enter the army for his country at a certain allowance. This he secures and presents to his wife, and then goes out upon his mission. Soon after he has left word comes back that the ship on which he sailed was lost at sea with all on board. The widow mourns the loss of her husband sincerely, and for a long time tries as best she can to maintain a livelihood for herself and infant left her. Fortune, however, smiles kindly upon her, as in the course of time she meets with a man similarly afflicted and to whom is left the charge of a little girl. She reluctantly accepts the latter's proposal, but once having accepted, she endeavors to meet her obligations as best she can. All goes along very nicely until it develops that the sailor was rescued, and after many hardships succeeds in returning to his home. Here he fails to find his family at the home left, and the intelligence reaches him that they are occupying more spacious quarters. He seeks them out and finds his wife comfortably located in spacious apartments. His joy at homecoming is of but short duration, as the situation confronting him fills his heart with dismay. With deepest regret he leaves the place, to enter a cold and unsympathetic world and continue life as mere existence. The photographic quality is exceptionally good and the dramatization is perfect. Length, 790 feet.

CHAMPION SUFFRAGIST (Gaumont).—This subject portrays in a very ludicrous manner the escapades of a gentleman who is possessed of an exceptionally strong conviction that woman, in general, must not work, and he carries this out very conscientiously in all instances excepting his own home, where he proves to be a very stern and unrelentless master. Length, 277 feet.

TROUBLED ARTISTS (Urban Eclipse).—This is a comedy of merit and depicts in a very grotesque manner the difficulties experienced by a number of artists who go out into rural districts to seek suitable subjects.

The production throughout is of merit and will not fail to meet with the approval of the most fastidious. Length, 507 feet.

A HOT REMEDY (Gaumont). The principal subject of this story is a man in ill health. To relieve his ailment he applies a remedy in the form of a poultice, and this generates such enormous heat that the temperature in his immediate proximity is raised by many degrees. The result is that during a cold spell he proves to be a very desirable companion, and pedestrians, police, and others take advantage of his presence at all times.

Many very ludicrous incidents occur, but the climax is reached when our patient enters an establishment in which are housed a number of volatile substances. The excessive heat causes spontaneous combustion and a conflagration of no small size ensues, but the fire department is ultimately successful in extinguishing the flames, and unearthing the cause, which then proves to be the remedy applied. Length, 500 feet.

THE PERSEVERING INSURANCE AGENT (Gaumont).—A comedy depicting in a very vivid manner the "sticktoitiveness" which is bound to bring success. A number of very ludicrous incidents are portrayed in this subject. Details are perfect throughout and photographic quality is unquestionable. Length, 464 feet.

PATHE FRERES.

THE SERGEANT'S STRIPES.—This powerful little drama, as acted by a company of clever artists, shows us a group of officers outside of the station, where the wife of one of the men sits with her family and chats while she is engaged in caring for her little ones. After the men depart, a poor old tramp comes along, and in her goodness of heart she gives him some food, which he carries away with him. Presently the woman goes for a walk with her children, and as she is passing along the road she discovers the same old fellow in distress, for he has been attacked by another tramp, who took the food from him and left him helpless by the roadside. The woman calls to the police, and they set out in search of the culprit. They find him in a field, devouring the stolen provisions, and when they are about to place him under arrest he seizes a sickle and strikes one of the officers (the husband of the aforesaid woman), cutting his arm badly. They take him to the lock-up, and as they are passing through the yard where the woman is at work, she recognizes the fellow as an old sweetheart of hers, who strayed from the beaten path of life. He does not recognize her, however, but it grieves her beyond measure to see him in trouble, and knowing that she was the one who caused his arrest, she makes up her mind to free him.

That night, when her husband is asleep, she takes out a box and reads over some of her old love letters, and as memories are awakened her heart becomes softened; so taking a file from her husband's tool chest and some money from her purse, she steals out of the house and goes to the place where the unfortunate is locked up. Through a little hole in the door she drops the file and the money, and returns to the side of her injured husband without being seen. The fellow forces the lock and makes his escape, leaving the file on the ground near the door.

In the morning, when the watchman makes his round, they discover that their prisoner has flown, and among the officers who hasten to the place is the woman's husband, who recognizes the file. He goes to his wife, and when he accuses her she makes a clean breast of the affair; and knowing that she did no wrong, hands him a revolver to shoot her if he thinks that she is guilty. She also shows him the old letter, and at this juncture some officers enter and present the husband with honorary stripes for his bravery, and when they are gone he takes his wife in his arms and assures her that he has implicit confidence in her fidelity. Length, 735 feet.

BEGINNING OF THE SERPENTINE DANCE.—In this beautifully colored picture we see a dancing master in his studio playing the violin and giving instructions to a number of beautiful maidens. They go through a minuet, and suddenly their costumes change before our very eyes, seemingly without the aid of human hands. A fellow enters, and is very much interested in the dancing lesson, but casts a spell over the group, and instantly we see them disappear into space. The visitor is then transformed into Mephistopheles and takes the dancing teacher into a large laboratory, where stands a large caldron and into which he pours some sort of fluid from a number of bottles. Stirring up the mixture, flames soon begin to shoot out, and with them a long piece of marvellously colored silk. When the cloth is shaken out a beautiful girl in flowing silk robe steps forth and dances the serpentine. As she trips around, other girls appear, and all group in a magnificent ensemble. The light effects are wonderful as they swing their draperies and gracefully go through many different figures. Finally they all disappear into a burst of flame. Length, 410 feet.

BUFFIN WINS FIRST PRIZE.—A jolly young fellow, while picking rags, finds a lottery ticket in some refuse, and, buying a paper, reads that it contains the number calling for first prize. He hastens to the office and presents the ticket, and in return receives a large sum of money and starts off in high glee. He finds it rather hard to keep the pace alone, and as the jackass which was attached to the cart at the time of the find is his only companion, he comes in for his share of the good time which so much money brings. In the first instance he must be made presentable; so the fellow takes him to a bootblack and has his hoofs polished up, after which they visit an ice cream booth, where the beast is feasted on cream, eating it out of Buffin's hat. Next he tries to enter a cafe with his dumb companion, but is promptly ejected; so he goes to a baker's and buys a lot of delicacies which he gives his pal to feast on. He then goes to a millioner's and purchases a beautiful Parisian creation, which he ties on the head of the beast, making him appear quite up to date. Finally, arriving home, he takes the animal into his room and spends a long time arranging his toilet, spraying him with costly perfumes and making him look vastly attractive. Length, 505 feet.

BOBBY'S SKETCHES.—This very amusing and unique picture shows us some clever sketches drawn by little Bobby when left alone in his nursery. He sketches some landscapes, then on another paper he makes some grotesque figures, which he cuts out and places on the original drawing. The figures come to life, an dthey are an amusing lot of puppets as they pass across the scene, cutting up all sorts of capers under the guidance of Bobby, who directs the little manikins in their many amusing tricks. Length, 174 feet.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

LOVE AND LAW.—Our story opens at the home of Jackson Burns, a well-to-do farmer in Iowa. Burns has a pretty daughter, Mable, who is teaching school in a nearby village. John Deane, a stalwart son of the soil, works for farmer Burns, and is in love with Mable. Mable, though in love with John, is loth to lose her freedom, and not averse to listening to the honeyed words of other admirers. Among them is a certain lawyer and judge by the name of Todd. As our picture opens the buxom wife of Farmer Burns comes from the house with Mable and proceeds to ring the welcome dinner bell. Mable and her sweetheart, John, engage in conversation, which is interrupted by the coming of John's rival, who drives up to purchase a horse from the farmer. John is sent for the horse, and the deal is soon consummated. A wandering gypsy, whose companions are in camp a few miles from town, has also tried to secure the horse, but his bartering methods are not looked upon favorably by the farmer. So the cash buyer gets the horse, the gypsy leaves vowing vengeance. The next day as pretty Mable is leaving for home after dismissing school, little Bill, a favorite pupil, brings her a note from the lawyer asking her to wait after school. Mable, not caring to miss a chat with her admirer, returns to the gate to wait for Mr. Todd. But John also arrives expecting the privilege of a stroll home with his sweetheart. Mable prefers a ride with the lawyer, who at this juncture drives up with his sweli trap, so John is given Mable's books and lunch basket, with instructions to tell mother, "I'll be home by supper time."

And as he stands jealous and disconsolate by the school house gate, Gypsy Jack, who has witnessed the little comedy, saunters on and taunts John. "So the young lady she prefer the lawyer, eh?" John turns from the gypsy in disgust, and away. A handkerchief with his initials hangs carelessly from his pocket. The gypsy sees his opportunity, and, sneaking behind the unsuspecting boy, deftly extracts the handkerchief. His cunning brain has on the spur of the moment conceived a plan of securing the horse, and laying its theft on Mable's lover, while he makes good his escape, and but for little Bill, Mable's pupil, he might have succeeded.

The Village Green.—Supper is over, and the youngsters are at play. Hide and seek is the game. Little Bill hides behind an ash barrel near the lawyer's stable door. And while his companions are busy at play he is witness to a scene that fills him with wonder; he sees the gypsy go in the stable and lead out a horse. "I'll go home and tell mamma." But mamma thinks it not probable that the gypsy would steal the horse at that hour in the evening, and puts little Bill to bed, with a lesson on the merit of minding one's business. Had little Bill been in the stable and seen the actions of Gypsy Jack as he coolly takes John Deane's handkerchief from his pocket and drops it carelessly in the horse's stall, he might have convinced his mother and saved his teacher and her lover a lot of trouble. John, discouraged over Mable's receiving the attentions of the lawyer,

CALEHUFF

A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION

Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.

LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set

N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs
JUST OUT

Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,

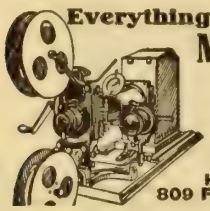
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
New York Office, 1402 Broadway
Boston Office, 224 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

The Chicago Transparency Co.
Manufacturers of
Plain and Colored Lantern Slides and Illustrated Songs
69 DEARBORN STREET CHICAGO, ILL.
Frederick T. McLeod, Manager

Kinetoscopes, Films, Lanterns, Accessories, Edison Supplies.

CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St., - Kansas City

Money for you. In towns without electric service
Our Cylinders of Gas
make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING
ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.



Everything in NEW and S. H.
Motion Picture Machines
Films, Stereopticons, Song Slides and Supplies. Same wanted. Catalogues free.
HARBACH & CO., 809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

PRINTING FOR THE
Earthquake in Italy
HENNEGAN & CO.
127 EAST 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

NEXT
Sand H
FILM ISSUE
ORDER QUICK
OUR Feature Subject
The Old Curiosity Shop
(Lgth 1000 Ft.)
A Thoroughly Artistic Reproduction of Dickens' Most Popular Story
READY
Wednesday, January 20

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

Mention the Moving Picture in your correspondence.

determines to leave. He writes her a note to this effect, and strikes out for a new situation. But pretty Mable's eyes have been opened to the meaning of the lawyer's intentions, and she is horrified the next morning when she learns in the village that her lover is under arrest, having been caught red-handed with Lawyer Todd's stolen horse in his possession. She goes to the jail, filled with repentance, and convinced in her own mind of John's innocence, determined to hear the story from his own lips. The sheriff has known her since babyhood and readily grants her an interview. John explains to her what we have already witnessed; how he in passing the gypsies' camp had recognized the horse his employer had sold the day before, and how he had, after securing the horse, cowed the gypsy crowd, at the point of a revolver, and how as he was returning with the animal he was placed under arrest. His handkerchief had been found in the empty stall, and how he was found with the missing horse in his possession.

Mable decides to visit that camp. She rides up to little Bill's home, remembering that he had told her about a visit to the gypsies some days before. She can scarcely believe her good luck when she hears little Bill's story about what he saw while playing hide and seek. She asks Bill's mother to allow him to accompany her, and, being a pioneer's daughter, she decides to take the law in her own hands and return with the evidence to clear her accused lover, who is to have a hearing before the village justice that very day.

Love's Stratagem.—She is riding a pet horse, one she has taught to walk lame and shake hands, little dreaming that one day she will be able to put one of Pinto's accomplishments to a serious purpose. Arriving near the camp, she takes up her station in a clump of trees, and instructs little Bill to find the guilty man and tell him a lady is waiting near, whose horse has picked up a stone, and won't he come and remove it for her. Gypsy Jack, unsuspecting, falls into the trap. He sees the limping horse approach, and kneels to examine the hoof, when he is startled by the lady's quiet voice ordering him to utter a word at his peril. He jumps to his feet to look into the muzzle of a six-shooter leveled at him. "Throw up your hands and walk ten feet ahead." Gypsy Jack decides to obey. His entire camp is just around the bend in the road, but the six-shooter is much nearer. Imagine the surprise of the village court, spectators, lawyers, judges and all, when the strange procession files in—little Bill, then the gypsy and his captor. Little Bill tells his story, the gypsy confesses, and Lawyer Todd, thoroughly disgusted at the turn of affairs, leaves the room in high dudgeon, while John takes Mable in his arms, to the great delight of little Bill. "Hurrah! Teacher's going to marry. There won't be any more school."

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

THE HEROINE OF THE FORGE.—A wealthy young man, dressed for riding, comes down the steps accompanied by his mother. He kisses her good-bye, mounts and rides away. From another home an athletic looking girl, dressed in hunting costume and carrying a gun, bids her mother good-bye and starts away. On a lonely road in the woods two highwaymen are seen waiting for a victim. They conceal themselves as a horseman, our young man of the opening scene, comes down the road. He is set upon by the two men, but he puts them off and rides away. The men fire upon him and wound him; still he clings to his horse, the assailants starting in pursuit. In another part of the woods the athletic girl comes to view. She hears a noise, steps aside and waits. As the horse with a wounded young man comes abreast of her, she springs out, grabs the bridle and assists the young man to dismount. While binding his wound the two highwaymen come up and renew their attack. She knocks them down with her fist, picks up her gun and chases them away. She and the young man proceed on foot and presently come upon an auto, which, fortunately, contains the young man's mother. She thanks the young lady profusely, takes her boy in the auto and rides away. From glances cast by the young couple it is evident that it is "love at first sight." The next scene shows the interior of the blacksmith shop, the blacksmith (our heroine) and her helper are at work at the anvil. After finishing, she leaves the shop, going through to her living rooms. Her mother enters with a letter just received from the mother of the young man, in which she expresses thanks and promises to call in person. Almost immediately afterward the writer of the letter appears, and although their stations in life are widely separated, the poorer woman is made to feel perfectly at ease. The young girl has returned to the shop and shortly after our hero appears to have his horse shod. He is astonished to find in the "smithy" the young girl who so nobly saved his life. They are engaged in earnest conversation as the two mothers come upon the scene. The young man tells of his love and as the mothers give consent the lovers fondly embrace. Length, 315 feet.

THE BRIDE OF TABAIVA.—Tabaiva, an Indian brave, is in love with White Doe, an Indian maiden, daughter of the chief of a tribe hostile to that of Tabaiva. Tabaiva rides into the woods to meet White Doe, and after telling of his love, she in turn confesses hers. On hearing this, he asks her to go with him to the wigwams of his father. To this she cannot agree. While they are conversing, White Doe's father, Frowning Elk, breaks through the bushes and with the aid of his followers, makes Tabaiva prisoner. He is taken to Frowning Elk's camp, where he is accused of being a spy and is condemned to death. White Doe, hearing of this, pleads for him, cuts his bonds and is clasped in his arms. Frowning Elk is furious, his daughter is taken from Tabaiva, while he himself stabs Tabaiva. As her lover falls, White Doe drops to her knees beside him, raises him up while he curses the tribe of Frowning Elk. White Doe also hurls a defiant curse on her father's tribe and, cutting her wrist, lets her blood drop into that of Tabaiva, saying, "His blood is mingled with mine. I am the bride of Tabaiva." Four warriors then advance and take Tabaiva's body off, White Doe following unseen. The body is taken into the woods, where his horse is grazing, and placed across the saddle. White Doe, running up, orders the warriors away, and springing into the saddle, gallops off rapidly. She finally reaches the camp of Tabaiva's tribesmen, dismounts, and to Tabaiva's father she tells of his capture, murder and how she mingled her blood with his. She urges the old chief to vengeance. The braves are universal in support of her words. The old man agrees, and White Doe volunteers to lead them. They steal quietly to Frowning Elk's camp, where the latter is taken captive. At a signal from White Doe the people of Frowning Elk's camp are awakened and slaughtered by Tabaiva's tribesmen. Frowning Elk, having been made to witness the destruction of his tribe, is taken to Tabaiva's camp and placed on trial. As a punishment for his crime, Frowning Elk is sentenced to death. The lifeless body of Tabaiva is brought before the condemned man. White Doe puts a knife in the dead hand, and holding it there with her arm, plunges it into her father's heart. She then falls beside him in hysterics. Suddenly she rises, a maniac, first accusing her father of Tabaiva's death, then Tabaiva of the death of her father. Suddenly seeing the knife, her lost reason returns momentarily, then she falls over dead. Length, 380 feet.

SELIG'S
Next Feature Film
The Best Melodrama of Years
LOVE AND LAW
Length 950 feet. Code word Law
Released January 21, 1909
Order now from your nearest film exchange
They ALL keep Selig's Films.
THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.
45-47-49 Randolph Street
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

Indianapolis Calcium Light Co.
W. M. SWAIN, Manager
116 South Capitol Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.
Our film service makes your bank account grow fat, Mr. Manager. Write us to day and we will tell you why.
We are members of the Film Service Association

LATEST FILMS OF ALL MAKERS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE & BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Dec. 1—The Valet's Wife (Comedy).....508 ft.
Dec. 4—Money Mad (Dramatic).....684 ft.
Dec. 8—The Feud and the Turkey (Dramatic)....904 ft.
Dec. 11—The Reckoning (Dramatic).....462 ft.
Dec. 15—The Test of Friendship (Dr.).....775 ft.
Dec. 18—An Awful Moment (Dr.).....737 ft.
Dec. 22—The Christmas Burglars (Dramatic).....679 ft.
Dec. 25—Mr. Jones at the Ball (Comedy).....503 ft.
Dec. 29—The Helping Hand (Pathetic).....841 ft.
Jan. 1—One Touch of Nature (Pathetic).....724 ft.
Jan. 11—The onor of Thieves (Dramatic).....681 ft.
Jan. 11—Love Finds a Way (Comedy-drama).....319 ft.
Jan. 14—A Rural Elopement (Dramatic).....546 ft.
Jan —The Sacrifice (Comedy).....438 ft.
Jan. 18—The Criminal Hypnotist (Dramatic).....626 ft.
Jan. 18—Those Boys! (Comedy).....342 ft.
Jan. 21—Mr. Jones Has a Card Party (Comedy)....583 ft.
Jan. 21—The Fascinating Mrs. Francis (Comedy)....417 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Dec. 1—Lord Feathertop (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Dec. 4—Miss Sherlock Holmes (Dramatic).....600 ft.
Dec. 4—The Old Maid's Temperance Club (Comedy) .....300 ft.
Dec. 9—The Tale the Ticker Told (Dramatic)....900 ft.
Dec. 11—The Angel Child (Comedy) .....900 ft.
Dec. 15—Cocoa Industry, Trinidad, B. W. I. (Industrial) .....850 ft.
Dec. 18—The Street Waif's Christmas (Serio-Comic).900 ft.
Dec. 22—An Unexpected Santa Class.....900 ft.
Dec. 25—Turning Over a New Leaf (Comedy).....900 ft.
Dec. 22—An Unexpected Santa Claus (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 25—Turning Over a New Leaf (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 29—The Lost New Year's Dinner (Comedy)....900 ft.
Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 5—Under Northern Skies (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 8—The Worm Will Turn (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 12—Where Is My Wandering Boy To-night? (Dramatic) .....900 ft.
Jan. 15—Drawing the Color Line (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 19—Pagan and Christian (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 22—A Burglar Cupid (Comedy).....850 ft.
Jan. 26—A Romance of Old Madrid (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 29—A Modest Young Man (Comedy).....900 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Dec. 2—The Somnambulist (Dramatic).....825 ft.
Dec. 2—The Obstinate Tooth (Comedy).....165 ft.
Dec. 9—Christmas Carol .....1000 ft.
Dec. 16—The Installment Collector (Comedy).....550 ft.
Dec. 16—A Battle Royal (Comedy).....396 ft.
Dec. 23—Bill Jones' New Year Resolutions (Co.)....600 ft.
Dec. 23—Who Is Smoking that Rope? (Co.).....400 ft.
Dec. 30—In Golden Days (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 6—The Haunted Lounge (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 6—The Neighbors' Kids (Comedy).....550 ft.
Jan. 20—Old Curiosity Shop (Scenic).....1000 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Dec. 4—For Love of Country (Historic Drama)....895 ft.
Dec. 11—Maggie, the Dock Rat (Drama).....825 ft.
Dec. 18—The Molly Maguires (Dramatic).....880 ft.
Dec. 25—Red Cloud (Dr.).....880 ft.
Jan. 1—The Trial of the White Man (Dramatic)..975 ft.
Jan. 8—A Florida Feud (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 15—The Sponge Fishers of Cuba (Educational).965 ft.
Jan. 22—The Girl At the Old Mill (Dramatic).....

S. LUBIN.

Dec. 3—Hobo's Dream (Comic).....675 ft.
Dec. 3—Lady Barbers (Comedy).....275 ft.
Dec. 7—The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter (Dramatic) .....900 ft.
Dec. 10—Dick's Aunt (Comedy).....430 ft.
Dec. 10—Charlie's Ma-in-Law (Comedy).....305 ft.
Dec. 21—Christmas Eve at Sunset (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Dec. 24—Restored by Repentance (Dramatic).....865 ft.
Dec. 31—The House at the Bridge (Dramatic).....590 ft.
Dec. 31—The Forgotten Watch (Comedy).....285 ft.
Dec. 28—A New Year (Pathetic).....565 ft.
Dec. 28—A New Year's Gift (Comedy).....330 ft.
Jan. 4—A Bitter Lesson (Dramatic).....515 ft.
Jan. 4—The Old Maid's Dream (Comedy).....390 ft.
Jan. 7—Two Orphans of the G. A. R. (Dramatic).650 ft.
Jan. 7—Leo's Air Rifle (Comedy).....320 ft.
Jan. 11—When Lips Are Sealed (Dramatic).....825 ft.
Jan. 14—Troubles of a Stranded Actor (Comedy)..620 ft.
Jan. 14—How Happy Jack Got His Meal (Comedy).175 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Dec. 18—The Smuggler's Daughter (Dramatic).....636 ft.
Dec. 18—The Bee and the Rose (Comic).....344 ft.
Dec. 19—Some Dangerous Members of Bostock's Menagerie (Educational) .....420 ft.
Dec. 19—Electric Hotel (Comedy).....476 ft.
Dec. 21—The Faun (Dr.).....442 ft.
Dec. 21—Faithful Little Doggy (Co.).....285 ft.
Dec. 21—Too Much Snuff (Co.).....246 ft.
Dec. 23—Antique Wardrobe (Co.).....640 ft.
Dec. 23—An Awkward Habit (Co.).....331 ft.
Dec. 25—The Gallant Guardsman (Dr.).....571 ft.
Dec. 25—Silhouettes (Magical) .....341 ft.
Dec. 26—Bill Wants to Marry a Toe Dancer (Dr.)..462 ft.
Dec. 26—Water Sports (Educational).....436 ft.
Dec. 28—St. Moritz (Educational).....623 ft.
Dec. 28—Mr. Soaker at the Seaside (Comedy)..... 278 ft.
Dec. 30—The Ragtag's Ball (Comedy).....544 ft.
Dec. 30—The Sicilian's Revenge (Tragic)..... .387 ft.
Jan. 1—Anonymous Letter (Dramatic)..... .420 ft.
Jan 1—Strasburg (Educational) .....462 ft.
Jan 2—Collection of Stamps (Magical).....508 ft.
Jan. 2—Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....394 ft.
Jan. 4 Two Very Unlucky Thieves (Comedy).....159 ft.
Jan. 4—Mysterious Correspondent (Comedy).....536 ft.
Jan. 6 School Children's Strike (Comedy).....380 ft.
Jan. 6—A Lovely Lass (Dramatic).....581 ft.
Jan. 8—The Wooden-Headed Veteran (Comedy)..502 ft.
Jan. 8—A Drunkard's Dream (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Jan. 9—Ted and His Little Sister (Pathetic)....538 ft.
Jan. 9 Burning of Stamboul, Constantinople, ...367 ft.
Jan. 11—Duel Under Richelieu (Historic Drama)...718 ft.
Jan. 11—Spanish Blood (Drama).....278 ft.
Jan. 13 Prehistoric Lid (Comedy).....371 ft.
Jan. 13—Stilt Walking (Comedy).....348 ft.
Jan. 13—A Nervy Thief (Comedy).....282 ft.
Jan. 15 Paper Cock-a-Doodles (Magical).....377 ft.
Jan. 15 It's Only the Painter (Comedy).....525 ft.
Jan. 16—Mr. Pynhead Out for a Good Time (Comedy) .....492 ft.
Jan. 16—The Hunchback (Dramatic).....433 ft.
Jan. 18—The Sergeant's Stripes (Dramatic).....735 ft.
Jan. 18—A Pretty Little Milliner (Comedy).....164 ft.
Jan. 20—Wonderful Eggs (Magical).....328 ft.
Jan. 20—The Stepmother (Dramatic).....649 ft.
Jan. 22 Beginning of the Serpentine Dance (M)....410 ft.
Jan 22—Butlin Wins First Prize (Comedy).....505 ft.
Jan. 23—A Fish Story (Comedy).....400 ft.
Jan. 23—Lady Cabby's Romance (Comedy).....410 ft.
Jan. 23—Bobby's Sketches (Comedy).....174 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Dec. 3—A Dual Life (Melodrama).....500 ft.
Dec. 3—The Football Fiend (Comedy).....485 ft.
Dec. 10—The Queen of the Arena (Comedy).....980 ft.
Dec. 17—A Montana Schoolmarm (Dr.).....950 ft.
Dec. 24—The Duke's Motto (Dr.).....1000 ft.
Drama) .....1000 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tenderfoot (Comedy).....416 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tyrant's Dream (Comedy).....420 ft.
Jan. 7—Schooldays (Comedy) .....164 ft.
Jan. 14—In Old Arizona (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Dec. 19—Weary's Christmas Dinner (Co.).....395 ft.
Dec. 22—The Merchant of Venice (Dramatic).....980 ft.
Dec. 26—The Flower Girl of Paris (Dramatic).....680 ft.
Dec. 26—The Hazers (Dramatic).....360 ft.
Dec. 29—Monkey Land (Serio-Comic).....330 ft.
Dec. 29—A Dream of Wealth (Dramatic).....612 ft.
Jan. 2—Cure for Bashfulness (Comedy).....520 ft.
Jan. 2—A Sister's Love (Dramatic).....435 ft.
Jan. 5—The Bride of Lammermoor (Tragic).....540 ft.
Jan. 5—The Painting (Pathetic).....430 ft.
Jan. 9—A Telepathic Warning (Dramatic).....675 ft.
Jan. 9—He Went to See the Devil Play (Comedy).295 ft.
Jan. 12—The Heroine of the Forge (Dramatic)....315 ft.
Jan. 12—The Castaways (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Jan. 16—The Two Sons (Dramatic).....587 ft.
Jan. 16—The Bride of Tabaiva (Dramatic).....380 ft.

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY.

Dec. 28-Jan. 2—The Devil's Sale (Comedy).....410 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Acrobatic Toys (Comic).....294 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan 2—A Heavy Headpiece (Comedy).....264 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Not Guilty (Dramatic).....807 ft.
Dec. 28-Jan. 2—Bobby Has a Pipe Dream (Comedy).410 ft.
Dec. 31—In the Shenandoah Valley (Historic
Jan. 11-16—The Bewitched Breton (Comedy).....52 ft.
Converted (Pathetic) .....884 ft.
Visions of a Goldsmith (Dramatic).....347 ft.
A Gypsy's Jealousy (Dramatic).....644 ft.
Jan. 18-23—Married Twice (Dramatic).....790 ft.
Jan. 18-23—Champion Suffragist (Comedy)..... 277 ft.
Jan. 18-23—Troubled Artists (Comedy).....507 ft.
Jan. 18-23 A Hot Remedy (Comedy).....500 ft.
Jan. 18-23—The Persevering Insurance Agent (C)....464 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 2—A Sinner .....495 ft.
Dec. 2—Dummies on the Spree.....302 ft.
Dec. 9—Sherlock Holmes .....1140 ft.
Dec. 16—Changing of Souls (Comedy).....475 ft.
Dec. 16—The Spring Lock (Comic).....351 ft.
Dec. 23—Hercules the Athlete (Dr.).....500 ft.
Dec. 23—Count Zeppelin's Aerostat (Ind.).....279 ft.
Dec. 30—The Quack (Comic).....360 ft.
Dec. 30—The Queen's Love (P.).....580 ft.
Jan. 6—Mafia (Dramatic) .....720 ft.
Jan. 6—On Guard at the Powder Magazine (Dramatic) .....500 ft.
Jan. 13—Raffles' Escapes From Prison (Comedy)....700 ft.
Jan. 20 The Stepmother (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Jan. 20—Jim Smith (Comedy).....312 ft.
Jan. 20—Life in Russia (Educational).....330 ft.
Jan. 27—The Gnomes (Comedy).....450 ft.
Jan. 27 Desert Life (Comedy).....380 ft.
Jan. —Balloon Races (Scenic).....290 ft.

FILM IMPORT AND TRADING COMPANY.

Dec. 2—Every Age Has Its Troubles (Comedy)....
Dec. 19—Misdeeds of a Tragical Past (Dramatic)..
Dec. 21—My Laundress Inherits (Eclair)..... ——
Dec. 21—Misdeeds of a Tragical Part (Eclair).... ——
Jan. 2—Corsican's Revenge (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 9—Soldier's Heroism (Pathetic).... ..... ft.
Jan. 16—Holy Fires .....
Jan. 16—Porcelain of Good Quality.....

LATEST SONG SLIDES.

A. L. SIMPSON.

113 W. 132nd Street, New York

Sunburnt Salome.
Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Along.
When Darling Bess Whispered Yes.
Lecturettes on:
Our Navy.
Skyscrapers of New York.
Trip to Coney Island.
Fire Fighters of New York.
Around Manhattan Island on a Sight-seeing Yacht.
As the Years Roll On.
Billy Dear.
But You, My Queen.
Childhood.
Come Kiss Yo' Mammy Good-night.
Daddy's Little Tomboy Girl.
Down in Jungle Town.
Everybody Loves Me But the One I Love.
Germany.
Hoo! Hoo! Ain't You Coming Out To-Night?
Hurrah! for Uncle Sam.
I'm Tying the Leaves So They Won't Come Down.
I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark.
In Monkey Land.
It's Only Me in My Nightie.
I Don't Want the Morning to Come.
I Will Always Love You, Sweetheart.
I Lost My Heart When I Saw Your Eyes.
I Love You as the Roses Love the Dew.
M-u-m Is the Word.
Over the Hills and Far Away.
Roses Bring Dreams of You.
Sweet Rosie May.
Sunbonnet Sue.

DEWITT C. WHEELER.

120 W. 31st Street, New York.

Shine On, Harvest Moon.
Don't Take Me Home.
Somebody's Heart.
Promise.
Beating.
My Rosie Rambler.
I'd Like to Be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You.
Honey Dear.
Smiling Star.
The Holy Light.
That's Why I Never Married.
Why Doesn't Santa Claus Go Next Door?
The Holy Light.
You'll Be Sorry Some Day.
Smiling Star.
There Never Was a Girl Like You.
Playing School.
Dear Heart.
Don't Go Away.
Take Me Out to the End of the Pier.
You Will Have to Sing an Irish Song.
You'll Do the Same Thing Over for the Old Red, White and Blue.
We're Growing Old Together.
No One Knows.
Rainbow.
When Night Falls, Dear.
In Mem'ry of You, Sweetheart.
It Looks Like a Big Night To-night.
Mandy Lane.
Stars of the National Game.
The Little Old Red School House On the Hill.
Good Evening, Caroline.

THE PREMO CO.

1851 Germantown Ave., Phila., Pa.

As In Days of Old, Dear Heart.
It's Nice to Be Loved By Someone.
I Lost My Heart When I Saw Your Eyes.
I Could Learn to Love You.
I Don't Want Another Sister.
If You Must Love Someone Won't You Please Love Me
Let Me Call You Sweetheart Once Again.
There's a Fleet On the Sea.
Twilight Down In Dixie.
There's a Warm Spot In My Heart For Tennessee.
Under My Merry Widow Hat.
When the Robin Sings Again.
Would You Like To Take a Walk With Me?
Your Picture Says, "Remember."
I Love You For Yourself Alone.
You're Just the Girl For Me.
I'm Going To Tell On You.

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied. Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

No. 44 North 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

We Rent Song Slides

1 set of Slides Changed Daily

$1.00 PER WEEK

All the Best, All the Latest

100 SETS

of slightly used sets originally posed, beautifully colored strictly in first-class order

At $2.75 per Set

Write for lists immediately to

HARSTN & CO.

138 East 14th Street, New York City

The Largest Song Slide Dealers in the World
Established 1897

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.

Wholesale and Retail
Sterecopticon and Lantern Slides

56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

PARTNER WANTED

To manage Theatre. Must have $1,000 to $2,000. Money not wanted, only as a guarantee of good faith Give experience, qualifications and references in first letter. HARLEMITE, P. O. Box 226 Madison Square, New York.

Do NOT put on the

PASSION PLAY

Without Music and Lecture

If you are too far away from New York or Philadelphia to engage the services of the first and foremost lecturer on Moving Pictures in general and the Passion Play in particular,

W. STEPHEN BUSH

get his lecture in print. Complete lecture on every scene with valuable suggestions as to music and interesting introductory.

This copyrighted lecture running exactly with the pictures and giving full explanation and commentary on every scene sent postpaid to any address in U. S. or Canada on receipt of one dollar. Address

W. Stephen Bush, 155 N. Conestoga St., Phila., Pa.

May be reached at any time by phone in residence, Belmont 4484.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—I have prepared special lectures with suggestions as to music and effects for every feature film turned out by the Edison licensees. The list comprises over a hundred subjects and includes the very latest feature films. Price per lecture, 25c.

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!

FIRE PROOF!

NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!

NO VIBRATION!

Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material

COMPLETE, $175.00

VIASCOPE MFG. CO.

Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

Look! Look! Look!

NEW 1909 MODELS

Model D, Price $600

Model C, Price $850

Gaumont CHRONOPHONE

Talking and Singing Picture Machines

The synchronism is perfect! The subjects embrace all the latest Stars and Feature Acts. Over 500 different subjects now ready. Picture theatres, heretofore playing to empty houses, packed and jammed to the guards when equipped with the Chronophone. It is up to you to be first. Write us quick. Catalogues Free.

Selling Agents

Aloe Optical Co.

513 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Subscribe for the

Moving Picture World

the only Fair and Untrammelled Newspaper of the Trade

$2 Per Year

OELSCHLAEGER BROS.

110 East 23d Street, New York

Importers of OPTICAL GOODS

Condensing Lenses

Objectives for Projection Lanterns

Tubes & Jackets for Moving Picture Machines.

Supplied to the Trade Only. Write for prices

SONG SLIDES

Peerless Song Slides

Ever Imitated, NEVER EQUALED

A trial order will convert you into a steady customer. We are now in a position to fill orders more promptly than ever before.

NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO.,

143 North 8th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS

ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT

Write for Samples and Full Information

THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS

59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

When you see PERFECT MOTION PICTURES

You'll find, in the Operator's Booth, THE MOTIOGRAPH

The Latest, the best and most durable

MOTION PICTURE MACHINE

New York, Boston, Chicago and Frisco approved

Flickerless, Steady and wonderfully Brilliant Pictures, absolutely Fireproof, Heavy, Strong and Durable.

Designed and built especially for

MOTION PICTURE THEATRE WORK

The Stereo Motiograph

combining the Motiograph and Double Dissolving Stereopticon is a Wonder and will increase your receipts.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.

We've quadrupled our facilities during the past few months and still unable to meet the demand.

WHY? Its the QUALITY OF MACHINE AND PICTURES

We also manufacture the RHEOSTATO Current Saver saves 60 to 75% on Electric Bills, the Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit, Non-Pop Calcium Jets, Enterprise Lanterns etc., and are Agents for Oxone, Oxylithe, Arco Carbons, Song Slides, etc.

For sale by progressive and up-to-date dealers

Write for Catalogue and particulars

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

INDEPENDENT FILMS PLEASE

INVESTIGATE this when you are ready for business. WE do not promise to make you rich, or give you something for nothing. BUT we DO promise you the squarest deal you ever had in SUPERIOR FILM SERVICE.

THAT IS THE KEYNOTE OF OUR SUCCESS

WONDERLAND FILM EXCHANGE

Suite 1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Block - Pittsburgh, Pa.

Morton Film Exchange

S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.

High-Class Film Service handling exclusively all Biograph Licensee Films.

Parties desiring first-class service write us

NEXT ISSUE:

HOLY FIRES (Cines)

Porcelain of Good Quality (Cines)

FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.

Representing

145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City

FOR RENT 6000 feet reels film, 3 sets slides, 6 at a time, $12 weekly.

FOR SALE 100—1000 ft. reels film, released since April, $10 per reel. 3100 ft. Passion Play $35.

Will buy Passion Play; other film and machines.

H. DAVIS, Watertown, Wis.

AT LIBERTY

A hustling manager of Moving Picture theatre would like position as same. Have had good experience and am competent, sober and reliable. References.

A. C. Blythe, 187 W. Brookline, St., Boston, Mass.

CHAIRS

Folding Steel Opera Chairs. All kinds Fireproof Booths. Resistance Grids and Wires Repairing.

New York Steel & Production Co.
NEWARK, N. J.

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER

SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER

GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST

J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only to the high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4., No. 4. January 23, 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, 125 E. 23d STREET, NEW YORK

When you see PERFECT MOTION PICTURES
You'll find, in the Operator's Booth, THE MOTIOGRAPH
The Latest, the best and most durable
MOTION PICTURE MACHINE
New York, Boston, Chicago and Frisco approved
Flickerless, Steady and wonderfully Brilliant Pictures, absolutely Fireproof, Heavy, Strong and Durable.
Designed and built especially for
MOTION PICTURE THEATRE WORK
(Licensed under the patents of the Moving Picture Patents Co. of New York)
The Stereo Motiograph
combining the Motiograph and Double Dissolving Stereopticon is a Wonder and will increase your receipts.
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.,

We've quadrupled our facilities during the past few months and still unable to meet the demand.
WHY? Its the QUALITY OF MACHINE AND PICTURES
We also manufacture the RHEOSTATO Current ... saves 60 to 75% on Electric Bills, the Model "B" C... Outfit, Non-Pop Calcium Jets, Enterprise Lanterns, ... Agents for Oxone, Oxylithe, Arco Carbons, Song Sl...
For sale by progressive and ...
Write for Catalogue ...
83-91 W. Rando...

"ALL OTHERS BEA...
"THE W...
THE GRE... PICTU...
SEND in YOUR OR...
WRITE FOR ...
Oklahoma Natural Mutoscen... Co., 6...

OKLAHOMA · NATURAL · MUTOSCENE · COMPANY
TRADE MARK

A WORD TO THE ...
Successful Moving Picture Exhibit...
POWER'S CAMERA...
The best results with alternating current are obtained w...
POWER'S INDUCTOR
SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A
NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau ...

A Satisfied Patron is a Traveling Advertisement

BE PROGRESSIVE

Have a Souviner Day. Announce it in your Theatre for a week in advance and post a Notice at your box office. Below are three catchy Imported Articles. Give first 100 the Match Safes, the next 100 the Toothpick Holders and the next 50 the Vases. Or if you have a larger or smaller house give in proportion, but don't run short. 20% deposit with each order.

W. A. MENTZER, Importer, 92-94 Lake St., Chicago

ina Match Safe. This is a use decorated with Japanese figs 2½x3½ in., and something body, has use for. It has hit every time it has been per 100.

Toothpick Holder and Vase. These articles come packed with 1 Vase and 2 Toothpick Holders in each bundle. The Vase is 3 in. high and the Holder 1¾ in., and decorated with Jappy figures. A hundred bundles contain three hundred pieces. $7.50 per 100 bundles. Average 2½c each.

TICE

as the result of an as-crease that necess-s —we have (known as Complete K. Spoor nly into

MENT" ins to our

both depart-or the hand-

prices and proposition.

Jor Company ATED)
Str ago, Ill.

The New Kind of Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

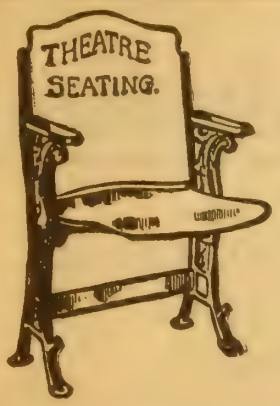
We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one. IF you are progressive you will call, if not, we both lose money.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,
A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)
CHICAGO, ILL.

We Design and Construct Complete Moving Picture Theatres from $2,500 up



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company

90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.

70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

NEXT

S and A

FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK OUR

Comedy Subjects

TOO MUCH DOG BISCUIT
(Lgth. Approx. 400 Ft.)

A CURE FOR GOUT
(Lgth. Approx. 540 Ft.)

READY
Wednesday, January 27

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

TRADE MARK BIOGRAPH TRADE MARK

FILMS

RELEASED JANUARY 25, 1909

The Welcome Burglar

A dramatic episode of most unique construction, showing how the advent of a burglar helped a woman in ridding herself of a persecuting wretch.

Length 790 Feet

Those Awful Hats

An extremely funny satire on the big hat craze, as met with at a Moving Picture Theatre.

Length 185 Feet

RELEASED JANUARY 28, 1909

The Cord of Life

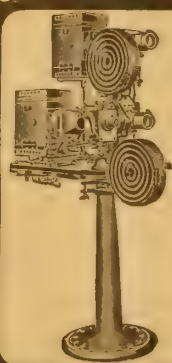
Without exception the most thrilling picture ever produced. A story of a Sicilian's vow of vengeance, in which he is thwarted, making a subject which while intensely stirring is entirely devoid of any gruesomeness. It is bound to prove a distinctive feature of any program.

Length 857 Feet

Release Days of Biograph Subjects — MONDAY and THURSDAY

GET ON OUR MAIL LIST AND KEEP POSTED
WRITE FOR OUR DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY
11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY



PROMPT SERVICE
COURTEOUS TREATMENT

Our Two Big Catalogues

and the completeness of our line has made us what we are. We handle all machines, a full line of instruments and supplies and negotiate a

Film Rental Service

that will stimulate your Bank Account. Give us a chance to convince you. "Catalog A" is for Traveling Exhibitors. "Catalog B" tells all about the Motion Picture Theatre. Both are FREE. State which is wanted.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY,
1038 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, Cal. Dept. C. 85 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

The A B C of the Film Business

Attention
Brains
Courtesy

At Your Disposal and Gladly Furnished by

Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co.

Pittsburg, Pa. Des Moines, Ia.
Cincinnati, O. Lincoln, Neb.
Rochester, N. Y.

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

NEXT ISSUE

SULTAN ABDUL HAMID, and the Ladies of His Harem
Unique Subject of Splendid Quality — Length About 415 Feet

MOVING FURNITURE. Comedy
Length About 370 Feet

SUMMER SPORT
Length About 236 Feet

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Licensee under the Biograph Patents All purchasers and users of our Film will be protected by the American Mutoscope and Biograph Company

Moving Picture World

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company, 125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.

Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

Western Office:
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.

Vol. 4 JANUARY 23 No. 4

Editorial.

The Conditions of License.

In the two weeks that the document has been before the trade, the "Conditions of License" of the Motion Picture Patents Company have been freely discussed and criticised. This was only to be expected. The coup de etat that becomes the fait accompli does not, as a rule, satisfy everybody. Something of the kind has happened in the present case. The new licensing conditions have, on the whole, been drawn up on well reasoned and equitable business lines, but some of them are considered by many impartial persons so arbitrary and drastic that they certainly jar. Take, for instance, clause 19, which specifies that the licensor may terminate the agreement to license on fourteen days' written notice to the licensee of its intention to do so!

The clause, or that part of it to which we are referring, is, it will be observed, permissive. Now it is reasonable to suppose that the company would not turn away business by putting it in operation without good and sufficient cause; but what of the position of the renter in the matter? It is not an enviable one. He might work up a large business, the tenure of which is determinable by a fortnight's notice at the discretion of a possibly irresponsible person. Thus, the sword is always suspended over the head of the renter. Not a reassuring state of affairs to an ordinary business man.

Of course, it can be argued that so long as a renter behaves himself he need have nothing to fear under clause 19. An obvious retort to this argument is that in business matters nothing should be left to chance. The position of a concern which may be extinguished at fourteen days' notice, is clearly one of great uncertainty. Three, or six months, we submit, would be more reasonable length of notice and would remove all cause of dissatisfaction with this section of the clause. Fourteen days' notice is too short a term for any well-intentioned man of business.

On the other hand, it is too long a notice for a rogue to clear out of a business he disgraces. It must be admitted that the rogue and the rascal have long borne too prominent a part in the moving picture industry, and we are in sympathy with the Motion Picture Patents Company, the Independent Film Protective Association or any other agency which is trying to purge an honorable trade of these disgraceful elements. Several well meaning renters have pointed out that the rogue can do much harm to the legitimate business man even on the two weeks' notice.

The position of the renter under clause 19 therefore may seem to be somewhat unsatisfactory, but we learn that over 75 per cent. of the renters have already signed the agreement, which proves that they are not afraid of the outcome.

* * *

Disaffection also exists in the ranks of the exhibitors, with whom, however, we find it difficult to fully sympathise because the hardship of which they complain is more imaginary than real. They are required to pay a license fee of $2 per week on the projecting machine, which is not a large or fatal sum to any business worth the name. Some exhibitors have been heard to utter all sorts of objections against paying this weekly license fee, in return for which they are said to be practically guaranteed territorial protection in what amounts to a money-making monopoly. Meetings of exhibitors have been held at which resolutions were adopted to run only such old films as were in the market until a sufficient independent supply could be assured or until the licensed manufacturers suffered such loss that pressure would be brought to bear on the Picture Patents Company to waive the machine license fee. At these discussions the point has been raised that the validity of these patent claims has not been sustained, and until this had been established (which many claim to be impossible) they will defy any one to interfere with their rights to use as they may see fit, the machines that they have already bought and paid for.

* * *

We have been at some pains to gather expressions of opinion from responsible sources as to the validity of these patents and the position and the policy of the Motion Picture Patents Company. Our information confirms our previously expressed opinion that the power invested in the Patents Company will be exercised for the general good of all concerned, from the manufacturers to the public. We are also convinced that their patent holdings cover all available practical machines. The Armat patent has already been adjudicated. The fact must not be overlooked that George Kleine, formerly the most aggressive of the independents, is now a licensee of the Motion Picture Patents Company, as is also the Biograph Company, whose productions led the former independent ranks. Besides the patents cited in their first announcement, the Motion Picture Patents Company have acquired many others of importance and their position must be recognized as indeed formidable if not impregnable. Regarding their policy, it is but reasonable to infer that this was satisfactorly defined to the former independent leaders before they decided to affiliate. The publicly declared policy of the Motion Picture Patents Company and its licensees is to "place the business on a substantial footing for the benefit of all concerned." The patent aspect presented the simplest and the most effective means of accomplishing this end and it may be assumed that the promoters of the combination will take firm steps to accomplish their purpose. It is also reasonable to suppose that they will be upheld by any court of justice if they can show that their policy is for the "benefit of all concerned" and that those who may suffer are not victims of oppression or injustice. No one with a grain of sense will listen to the twaddle that the combination under the Motion Picture Patents Company is a direct violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. We may rest assured that all the steps that have been taken are perfectly legal. Some of them may be regarded as injudicial, if not prejudicial to the interests of the combination. The situation could have been better controlled from the start if other interests had been invited to participate in the "benefit of all concerned" movement. But those on the inside are not giving out information as to why and where the line was drawn.

It has been officially stated that opposition was expected and competition welcomed. This has arisen, and the more vigorous the competition on clean lines, the better for the business. The Patents Company and their licensees disclaim any idea of trying to create a monopoly and merely claim the right to regulate the distribution of their own products as they may decide to be best from a business point of view. The opposition have the same opportunity and if they are wise in their own interests they will profit largely from the position of the enemy and adopt some of the same tactics.

THE HUMAN VOICE AS A FACTOR IN THE MOVING PICTURE SHOW.

By W. Stephen Bush.

Specially contributed to the Moving Picture World.

Most of our knowledge and a good deal of our pleasure and entertainment is imparted to us by eye and ear. All public amusements appeal to eye and ear alone. It is indeed impossible to move mankind through the drama, to instruct it with knowledge, without the aid of both these senses, and as a rule no entertainment or amusement is complete or truly pleasing without these channels to the soul combined. There are, of course, exceptions. It is possible to enjoy music without seeing the musicians (sometimes this is the only way of enjoying it), and a man may listen to the solemn and inspiring strains of an organ without looking to see whence the sound is coming. Likewise a pantomime may be enjoyed without a sound of any kind. As a rule, however, the burden of absorption soon becomes too heavy and tiresome for the one sense alone; the eye demands to be satisfied as well as the ear, and the ear becomes eager to share its burden with the eye.

In some vague and wandering way this fact was felt from the very beginning of the moving picture, and numerous have been the attempts to supply sound, and especially the sound of the human voice. Our poor and patient English tongue has been subjected to cruel and unusual punishment in an effort to find names for both the inarticulate and the articulate sound in the moving picture show. At one time a craze for effects infected the electric theaters and instruments were devised to imitate common sounds. There was a little success and much failure, and there is to this day, and there always will be. Then came "cameraphones," "synchronizers" and "talking pictures," produced by men and women hiding behind the screen and endeavoring to "make the pictures talk." Not one of these devices has solved the problem: What is the proper function of the human voice in the moving picture show? The trouble in all cases was the inability to produce a perfect illusion. Illusion is pleasing only when it is without a flaw. The ventriloquist with his dummies upon his knee pleases and amuses the audience with his illusion, though of course everybody knows that the sounds and voices are produced by himself and that the dummies are nothing but painted pieces of wood and rags. As soon as the illusion is broken the thing becomes tiresome in the extreme. Even, however, where the illusion is perfect, a little of it goes a good ways. It is very much the same with all the vaunted devices, summed up in the fitting name of "talking pictures." In the first place, the illusion is hardly ever perfect, and even where it is nearly perfect it cannot hold the attention long, for the whole business is unnatural, and nothing that is unnatural will ever last long, though persistent and reckless puffing may give some of these contrivances a fleeting vogue.

The effort to make the human voice count in the moving picture show has not, however, been confined to the "talking pictures." The more common way is the so-called illustrated song. No doubt there are many very fine illustrated songs, and there are actually some good and clever singers, strange as this must sound to the average visitor of the moving picture theater. There is, however, a recurring sameness, a sad monotony about the moving picture song and singer, which begins to afflict people more and more and which makes even the exhibitor tired, a thing not easy to accomplish. It needs no long argument to show that the illustrated song does not supply the proper function of the human voice in the moving picture show.

It may be that the voice best suited to the moving picture is the voice that runs with the picture, not with the individual figures in a silly attempt to imitate their very words, but the voice that runs with the story, that explains the figures and the plot and that brings out by its sound and its language the beauties that appear but darkly or not at all until the ear helps the eye. Take any dramatic or historic picture; in fact, almost any picture, barring the magic and comic subjects. Stand among the audience and what do you observe? As the story progresses, and even at its very beginning, those gifted with a little imagination and the power of speech will begin to comment, to talk more or less excitedly and try to explain and tell their friends or neighbors. This current of mental electricity will run up and down, wild, irregular, uncontrollable. The gifted lecturer will gather up and harness this current of expressed thought. He has seen the picture before, and convincing his audience from the very start that he has the subject well in hand all these errant sparks will fly toward him, the buzz and idle comment will cease, and he finds himself without an effort the spokesman for the particular crowd of human beings that make up his audience. What all feel and but a few attempt to express even imperfectly, the lecturer, if he is worthy of the name, will tell with ease and grace in words that come to him as naturally as iron obeys the law which draws it to the magnet. All at once the human voice has found its proper mission: the darkened house and the dumb show cease to be a strain to the overworked eye, and as the ear shares the burden the amusement becomes doubly attractive and the period of exhaustion or disgust is deferred. No longer any need on the part of the audience to make loud guesses and supply the voice themselves; the entertainment is complete and the patron feels that he has seen a different kind of moving picture.

This is felt and appreciated by the well-known Parisian art critic, Cellatier, who in a recent issue of the "Temps" speaks of the picture, "The Assassination of the Duke of Guise," and who after praising the acting and staging of the piece goes on to say: " . . . But after I had sat there a while and looked at the pictures I felt a great longing to hear the human voice. If this sort of entertainment is ever to stop being a toy and is to become a permanent institution in the amusement world it needs the assistance in some shape or other of the human voice."

CONDENSED INTERVIEWS WITH RENTERS AND EXHIBITORS AND OBSERVATIONS BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

The dust that filled the atmosphere when the bomb thrown by the Motion Picture Patents Company exploded in the Film Service Association hall of unity and peace has settled down, and it is possible to now see coming events with more distinctness than on January 9. But there is still a haziness about and above existing conditions that keeps many in anxious expectations as to the ultimate effect of what has happened and what is liable to happen.

After dividing the funds in hand and declaring the F. S. A. a thing of the past, followed by the formation of a new association on a social basis, the film renters wended their way homeward. A few tarried a day or two to see if they could get some insight as to just how matters stood. The harvest of information they gleaned was not a fruitful one. The Patents Company remained dumb as an oyster. There was but one answer for all: "We are not prepared to make definite announcements at present. Between now and February 1 official statements will be made through the regular channels. Everything contemplated is believed to be for the best interests of the motion picture business as a whole." All of which is reassuring, if not wholly satisfactory.

Some Renters Are Worried.

A restless spirit has brought a number of film exchange owners back to New York during the past few days. These return trips were occasioned by reports that the Patents Company had about decided to refrain from doing business with certain exchanges that held membership in F. S. A. Several Western exchanges and two or three located in New York City are said to be on the slate for decapitation. It would not be fair to give the names at this time. There is too much likelihood of a change of heart in connection with some of them. Some Independent exchanges are also slated. Their chances for securing an ultimate decision in their favor do not appear to be as good as some of the former F. S. A. exchanges. It appears that the ground upon which these exchanges would be excluded are vaguely defined as "undesirability." This term is used in a general manner and no one has been found to attempt a definite interpretation of it. No definite decision on these cases is expected before next week.

The Renters Are Signing the Agreement.

The general trend of opinion seems to favor the Motion Picture Patents Company. Each day seems to add to the strength of its position and win additional endorsements of its policies. General Manager McDonald, who previous to January 9 was national secretary of the F. S. A., is one of the busiest men of the times. He is working night and day rounding affairs into shape. He is proving himself a great worker and an almost inaudible talker. A newspaper man cannot get near him. "Nothing official to say at present," is the best he will give.

Shrewd Exhibitors See the Advantages of the Machine License.

The interest of the film exchanges in the situation as it exists at present is no greater than that of the exhibitors, who want to know all about the royalty business. They are all satisfied to agree not to use any machines, or run upon them any films, not licensed by the Patents Company, but they do not all look with favor upon the proposition requiring them to pay a royalty upon the machines. Some exhibitors have openly declared that they will not pay royalties upon machines which they purchased and paid for before the Patents Company went into existence. This is a point that would be a good one if it were not for this declaration on the part of the Patents Company, "and the machines sold by these manufacturers after February 1 will bear patent plates setting forth the conditions under which these machines shall be used, these conditions being the same as will be applied to the machines now in use." The idea appears to be that the royalty is not paid on the machines, but for the privilege of having the machine licensed by the new company, without which the films controlled by that company cannot be leased. It is not a question of ownership, but of license. It is not likely that this point which some of the exhibitors have raised will prove a formidable one. When the alternative of paying a nominal royalty fee or having the film service cut off is presented, there will undoubtedly be a general falling into line.

Some question has been raised as to the object of exacting this royalty, and it has been answered in an unofficial way to the effect that the Patents Company will have direct supervision of the inspection of all places of exhibition to see that the licensees are not evading their contracts. This will necessarily entail considerable expense, as the licenses will cover every city and town in the United States, and the royalties will help defray these expenses.

Exchange Men See Wisdom in the Movement.

The feeling among the film exchange men on the whole seems to be very favorable towards the Patents Company. They express the belief that it will prove the best move towards the building up of the moving picture business of any yet made. All are more or less at sea at present regarding future operations. The bringing of additional reels of film within reach they look upon as the filling of a long-felt want. Many of them are readjusting their routine with a view to placing their orders for films in a manner that will best suit their purposes. It will be the middle of February before affairs assume anything like definite shape. By that time the fate of exchanges now in the balance will be decided, and the favored exchanges will be in a better position to see what, if any, increase of business is coming to them through the dropping of exchanges and the privilege of taking as customers exhibitors who have heretofore been identified with the Independents. Many former F. S. A. exchange men declare they have many warm friends among the latter who have been anxiously awaiting the change that has taken place.

Unlicensed Manufacturers and Renters Will Benefit If They Follow Similar Tactics.

One of the developments of the past week was a movement on the part of a New York concern representing foreign manufacturers that were left out by the Patents Company. A manifesto has been issued declaring that the Independents are still in existence and prepared to meet the requirements of all exhibitors. Assurances are given that all its customers will be protected and to this if added an announcement that a suit for damages will be instituted against one of the former Independents that went into the Patents Company. Aside from this nothing has developed to indicate that there is trouble in store for the latter, and among the conservatives the manifesto referred to is not looked up as a very weighty one.

All Old Agreements to be Cancelled.

When asked the other day how existing contracts with film exchanges were to be disposed of, a manufacturer said that is one of the easiest problems. Last December the manufacturers, exercising an option under the contract entered into last March, gave sixty days' notice that they would alter the contract so as to permit them to terminate it on ten days' notice. The sixty days will expire on February 1 next, and the manufacturers will then have the option of giving ten days' notice of termination. That will end the direct relations between manufacturers and exchanges. The latter will then have direct contracts with the Motion Picture Patents Company and the film manufacturers will become practically the distributing agents for the company. By that time the exhibitors will have signed direct contracts with the company and no exchange will be permitted to lease films to an exhibitor who cannot show a license secured from the Patents headquarters.

OLIVER.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. vs. BIOGRAPH.

The application to continue the injunction of Ingvald C. Oes, manager of the Great Northern Films against Biograph Company was denied by Judge Gerard on the 20th.

The American Mutoscope and Biograph Company filed affidavits setting forth that they had not discriminated against Great Northern Films, and did not intend to do so. The suit for damages will be continued, however, and in the meantime, Great Northern Films will be sold as usual.

THE INDEPENDENT FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION.

During the past week we have ascertained that there have been several more or less informal meetings of this newly formed Association, and that the movement on the part of the exhibitors to refuse payment of the Picture Patents Company's license is growing. One of the officers of the Association has left for Europe to arrange for the shipment to this country of a large supply of film subjects to be used in independent houses. Six reels a week are already available.

The Chicago Film Exchange, presumably acting on its own behalf, has issued a letter to exhibitors in the course of which it states:

"It is our duty to warn you against the danger of signing the proposed machine license agreement, and we urge you to give very careful consideration of the following:

"1st. The proposed agreement is intended to bind you hand and foot; it absolutely takes away your independence.

"2nd. It imposes a tax on you from $100 to $500 or more yearly, for the privilege of using your machine, for which you have already paid full price.

"3rd. Every dollar of profit you make and even your whole business could be taken from you, if you should sign.

"4th. You will not only have to pay more for film service eventually, but you will have to use licensed film exclusively, and take any film that is offered to you at any price asked.

"5th. If you sign, you acknowledge the alleged patents and forfeit all future rights to secure legal protection against any further royalties or taxes which may be imposed upon you—and there is no limit to what you may have to pay for film."

Precise information as to the responses of exhibitors to this and other circulars is not yet available; but a definite factor in the situation is the action of the Pictures Patents Company in themselves addressing the exhibitor direct. We believe that a very large number of renters' licenses have this week been applied for; and that the proportion of exhibitors also applying for licenses is also great. There is possibly another section of the exhibitors that may elect to be guided by this advice, which has been circulated amongst them:

Such action as they have taken, together with an unlimited film supply; a strong combination of independent manufacturers; some valuable camera and projector patents, with the power of granting licenses; and the backing of large capital, should place the Independents in a very powerful position indeed for opening up a field quite as large and lucrative as that controlled by the Picture Patents Company. The situation, therefore, promises healthy competition in the near future.

THE OPINION OF AN INDEPENDENT.

Running into Mr. Geo. F. Bauerdorf, of the Film Import and Trading Co., on the street, we asked him what the Independents were doing and what was his opinion in regard to the policy of the two factions. His reply was:

"You would be surprised to know how strong the Independents really are. Their policy is right. For the best interest of the trade in general it is necessary to have an open market and films sold to every one the same as clothing or bread or any other commodity is. I do not believe that any movement to control the business will ever be accomplished, unless it is done in a straightforward way."

"Don't you think that the Motion Picture Patents Company are proceeding in a straightforward way to accomplish this end?"

"I do not believe that this can be done by the Patents Company, as the best interests of the manufacturer are not the best interests of the renter or exhibitor. In fact, their interests are not identical but opposed. The only movement on foot at present that has at heart the best interest of the manufacturer, the importer, the renter and the exhibitor is that of the Independent Film Protective Association. The object of this Association is to maintain an open market and prevent any body of men from monopolizing the business."

"Then you think that there is a monopoly in sight?"

"There is no doubt that if the Motion Picture Patents Company were given the support of the trade that they would shortly monopolize the business as in the case of the American Tobacco Co. with the tobacco business; and other lines of business that have come into the control of large corporations. Therefore I wish to urge every renter and exhibitor, whether or not licensed by the Patents Company, to subscribe to the Independent Film Protective Association and keep competition in the field."

WEEKLY COMMENTS ON THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

There was a packed house at the Dewey when I went there the other evening; people of the working class on their way home from their employment, stolidly determined, it seemed to me, to enjoy the show, which is a bright and pleasant one. Opponents of the moving picture theater should visit the Dewey. They would then learn that the moving picture has made a public of its own, which is very loyal, and determined in its loyalty in spite of the denunciations of "superior" persons and the jealousy of Broadway. Why not? When the entertainment is cheap and clean, whilst your Great White Way show is so often costly and risqué.

I soon realized that the Dewey audience appreciates humor and lightness of subject. An old Pathe colored trick film, "The Wonderful Eggs," showing what funny animals and persons can be produced from eggs was well received; but respectful silence greeted the same manufacturers' "Step-mother," in which a widower marries a second time, only to discover that his new wife is the victim of blackmailers who threaten to tell her No. 2 that her No. 1 is also alive. No. 1 isn't; there is only a baby which is conveniently assumed into the ex-widower's family, a characteristically French arrangement that "brings down the curtain." There was a graveyard scene in this cleverly photographed film which, in my opinion, bordered on the maudlin. "The Vagabond," another Pathe, appeared somewhat obscure in construction, the audience (and I) thought; but no such doubt attached to the "Merry Widow Waltz" in which a fantastically dressed man dances and plays his way through the world to the music of this fearsome tune; drives people dancing mad and finally sends the very furniture of his room careering about that apartment. Here the Dewey audience laughed and applauded vigorously. The long film of seashore life, love and adventure, "The Dumb Hero," which culminates in the rescue of a girl by a dog, was also very much appreciated. It is full of movement, change and excitement, shows good photography and is evidently a suitable subject for a miscellaneous audience.

The vaudeville turns at this house were fairly good, but the young lady who sang the music to the highly colored slides which illustrated the usual love ballad, either can't, won't, or didn't sing just as nicely as I should like to hear her. But perhaps I am a grouchy critic; and, frankly, I don't like colored lantern slides unless they are as well done as the Sicilian pictures I saw at the Bijou Dream last week. (I believe Williams, Brown & Earle sell these slides.) The Dewey audience, however, seemed to like the polychromatic gems that were shown them; and they heartily joined in the chorus of the song. A girl sitting at the back of me threw all her soul into that chorus—bless her!—and I enjoyed the way in which she enjoyed her ten cents' worth.

The Dewey is evidently a resort of the popular "family" kind. The programme I saw was, perhaps, rather too French, and might have been a little more varied. By the way, I wonder how Pathes make an uneducated French loafer write a letter in good English. Tell me, gentlemen of the rooster, please? The "good old" Dewey has its own following of patrons which it will probably keep to the end of the chapter.

THE MOVING PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY AND EXHIBITORS.

We reproduce on another page the Patents Company's communication to the exhibitors of the United States, informing them of the manner in which they may apply for exhibition licenses. Practically all exhibitors now doing business will be given opportunity to apply for license, but all applications will be carefully considered by the Patents Company before issuing the license with a view to eliminate from the business undesirable and unfit houses and managers. It is proposed to regulate this branch of the business along the same line as the rental exchanges, the object being to elevate the entire tone of the moving picture field.

Moving Pictures in Mexico.—A British Consular report says that little difficulty is found in Tampico (Mexico) in renting rooms and halls for motion picture machines. Two motion picture shows are now being operated in Tampico, and while patronized to some extent, cannot be said to return more than a fair profit. The report points out that great care should be taken before engaging in this new enterprise.

Russell & Co. Photo.

BANQUET TENDERED TO THE OFFICERS OF THE FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION AND FRIENDS, BY S. LUBIN AND WM. T. ROCK, AT THE HOTEL IMPERIAL, NEW YORK, JANUARY 10th.

THE S. P. C. V.

The Society for the Prevention of Cheap Vaudeville is gaining recruits every day among exhibitors. In place of a lot of ungraduated amateurs, good talent is coming to be recognized as the only attraction worth securing, the quantity of vaudeville is diminishing, its quality improving. The cheap vaudevillians, it is true, are making a last stand in those places that stand lowest in the moving picture scale, but the epidemic of 2-for-5 artists, which some time ago swept over the electric theaters, has been effectually checked. The importance of this gain to the moving picture business cannot be overestimated, and the Moving Picture World is entitled to some little share of the credit.

In connection with this subject I am moved to offer a word or two of friendly counsel to exhibitors generally. The great bugbear of most exhibitors is the ever dreaded spectre of competition. The frightful spread of eleventh class vaudeville was largely due to this fact. Let me illustrate. Jones is the owner of a prosperous electric theater. He pays a good rental for his film service, attends carefully and personally to the conduct of the place, and has in time built up a valuable regular patronage. Now comes Miller, envious of the quiet, steady profits of Jones, and, taking a bold plunge into the business that to him seems a little gold mine, he opens a competition house. There is a blare of trumpets and noisy advertising, and if the old place wisely steered clear of worthless vaudeville the newcomer thinks it an excellent thing to beat his rival with this new feature. Some "artists," who thus far have only been seen at private entertainments, where their audiences consisted of charitable and sympathetic friends, are without pity let loose upon the unsuspecting public. At this juncture the blasting winds of the North begin to caress the toes of Jones, and presently we see him sally forth in search of vaudeville. Thus the evil spreads. I say "evil" advisedly, for Jones in 99 out of 100 cases is absolutely wrong in supposing that any danger threatens from his rival's "vaudeville." Some nickels will be diverted, people will be tempted to take a peep at anything new; there would be no demands for freaks and museums for curios if it were otherwise. Soon, however, the newcomer, if he offers nothing better than Jones, will be playing to one-fifteenth of his capacity, while the few, who have for a night or two patronized the rival, return to Jones more loyal to his place than ever before. The "vaudevillians" are in due time discharged, but they are now resolved to show again, for never in their lives had they earned $2.50 so easily.

It has been urged by some kind souls that many of these "artists" are deserving of encouragement, because their earnings help in the support of indigent relatives. This sort of argument is not proof against the test of logic, for reduced to its real meaning it simply implies that these "artists" need the money. That need is so common that they ought to have no special privilege by reason of it, but from my observations even this wretched excuse does not hold good in most cases. I have seen "sister teams" singing between reels who had enough personal property on their fingers to frighten the wolf from the door for many a month. Even as they "sang" and "danced" I could plainly hear the voice of Destiny calling to them from the wings, "Come back to Dennett's," "Brown the wheats, 13." I saw another team of "Rubes," a man and a woman. Restraining the homicidal impulses that surged through me, I sat through their entire act. The man was constantly wiping his nose in a manner which he evidently thought was very funny; aged jokes were disinterred from their graves, and the thing wound up with a song. When the torture had come to an end the oldest rainstorm pictures followed. The person running this amusement shop remarked complacently to a critic of the pictures: "Well, we ain't strong on dem pictures, but look at our vodeville." A large jolt is rapidly approaching in the direction of this purveyor of pleasure.

When in these days you hear a dull, sickening thud breaking the monotony of the whirr and buzz of machine and carbons, it is most likely to be caused by the hasty dropping of the cheap vaudeville artist—and may the good work never slacken. W. STEPHEN BUSH.

[We heartily endorse the sentiments of our contributor. Our own personal observations and correspondence with exhibitors throughout the country convince us that vaudeville is not needed to bolster up a moving picture show if it is rightly conducted. Vaudeville of the kind alluded to by Mr. Bush, and of which we have seen a surfeit in connection with the pictures, has done more than some people may believe to drag down the name of the picture theater. True, the world owes those would-be Thespians a living, and they would fare better if they retired from the glare and glamor of the footlights to earn their living in some calling for which they are by nature and education better adapted. We have been taken to task for discouraging vaudeville acts (of a kind) and of discouraging "lecturers" (also of a kind). But we have nothing but charitable motives in doing so, as the public will inevitably rebel against being buncoed and the individual who attempts to do that which he is not fitted for will always come to grief. The day is close at hand when the show proprietor will be protected against "fool" competition. When good pictures are obtainable and popular with the public, the folly of 5 and 10 cent houses in trying to hire $2.50 acts to fool the public that they are running a vaudeville theater will be ridiculous. We are not sure if they would not be liable to the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.—Ed.]

THE PICTURES OF THE BURNS-JOHNSON FIGHT.

Mr. John Krone, the well-known Chicago business man, familiarly called "Doc," is said to have secured, for exclusive use in the United States, eighteen sets of moving pictures of the Johnson-Burns fight for the heavyweight championship of the world, which took place at Sydney, Australia, December 26, 1908. Mr. Krone has been in England, managing Frank Gotch, champion wrestler of the world, and also exhibiting the motion pictures of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match held in Chicago April 3, 1908, and the Nelson-Gans fight pictures taken under Krone's direction in Colma, Cal., September 9, 1908. Mr. Krone will return to the United States some time in February, and will open offices in Suite 816, Ashland Block, Chicago, Ill.

CAMERAPHONE EXPERIMENTS.

The Cameraphone experiments have been continued this week with varying success, depending upon the character of the subject. Where the figures do not face the audience too much the work of the instrument is all that could be asked, but where one can see the lips move the words and motions do not always correspond. In one selection this week a portion of the act was a dance. The movement of the figures and the music did not always go together, though in the main the work was quite satisfactory.

As a rule, however, the most successful selections are those where the movement of the figures and the spoken words are deliberate. They seem to give time for the phonograph to catch up, as one might say.

The success so far demonstrates beyond question that the speaking and moving picture is coming shortly. It will require some modification and some improvement, but it is here, and needs only a little smoothing and polishing to be successful.

Some one will have to improve the phonograph to mellow the voice and get rid of the harsh, metallic ring. The writer knows of a phonograph in a home, for example, which has a reproducer that yields a tone as mellow and soft almost as the human voice. It is not the original reproducer, however, but was put in by the owner, who made experiments for years before he succeeded in softening the tone. It demonstrates that improvements will come, and every one made will improve the talking pictures.

Meantime it would seem as though the present talking pictures would be a strong drawing card for any manager. Audiences like novelty, and this is most certainly a novelty worth considering by any manager. For a week or so it ought to be a winner in any location, or even on the road.

THE PRICE OF FILMS IN ENGLAND.

Rumors have been afloat in the trade for some time past regarding the intention, says the Kinematograph Weekly, with which certain film manufacturers were credited of reducing the price of their films to threepence per foot at the beginning of the year, and we are able to announce this week that the reduction will become an accomplished fact as regards the products of at least four firms as from January 1.

We stated a week or two ago that a number of firms opposed to any reduction in price had come to an informal arrangement to maintain the 4d. per foot net, and evidence of this agreement is to be found in the fact that the larger number of houses in the trade will not make any alteration in price.

We are officially informed that the Warwick Trading Company, the Gaumont Company, R. W. Paul and the Hepworth Manufacturing Company will make the reduction. The latter inform us that although the majority of their subjects will be sold at 3d. per foot they reserve the right to charge special subjects at the old rate, and we understand a similar reservation is made by the other three firms.

The result of inquiries throughout the trade enables us to state that the Chas. Urban Trading Company, Ltd.; Williamson, Dressler & Co., Ltd., the Nordisk Films Company, the Vitagraph Company of America, Messrs. Walter Tyler, Ltd., the Clarendon Film Company, Messrs. Cricks & Martin, are all in favor of the maintenance of the present price. The majority make the clear statement that they will not "cut" under any conditions.

MOVING PICTURES IN NATURAL COLORS.

Another Impracticable Process.

[The following paragraph is going the rounds of our scientific and motion picture contemporaries, as well as the ordinary newspapers. We take the opportunity of stating that the process, though plausible, is impracticable.—Ed. M. P. W.]

A novel system has recently been invented by a Roman painter, Signor Barricelli, for the cinematographic reproduction of animated scenes in their natural colors. The coloring of the films is obtained by means of the three-color process, but in a novel way. Instead of coloring the film itself, the inventor reaches his result by a rapid presentation of images, each of which is colored in one of the three fundamental colors (red, yellow, blue). By virtue of the well-known phenomenon of visual persistence, these images will give the impression of a complete three-color image.

In order to reproduce a given scene in its natural colors it is sufficient to photograph the object three times through properly colored screens, each of which will allow only the light rays of a given color to pass. Thus three analytical color negatives are obtained. The corresponding positives printed from these negatives in black and white must be projected in rapid succession on a white wall, each through the same color screen used in obtaining the negative. The eye will then perceive a multi-colored image, provided the rate of succession be such that the individual impressions due to the various colors on the retina may superpose themselves one on another. The length of the photographic film, as well as the speed of succession, should, accordingly be three times as great as in an ordinary cinematograph. The system adopted by Barricelli for insuring the succession of the various color screens in front of the objective, both during the taking of the views and during projection, is of remarkable simplicity. A glass disk divided into three colored sectors, according to the fundamental colors, red, yellow, blue, is rotated in front of the objective so as to change the screen at each move of the cinematograph shutter.

KEEP THEM WARM.

During the cold snap of the early part of the week some of the New York theaters were too cold for comfort. The tendency was to reduce the attendance. It would be better to keep them comfortable, even at the cost of a little extra trouble and some extra heat. The attendance will be larger and patrons will be more comfortable. There is little pleasure in going to an entertainment only to be half frozen before one can get out. It is safe to assume that one will not go back after one refrigerating experience.

Notes and Comments.

Relative to Sunday shows, the Hudson Country Association has laid plans to carry a vigorous campaign down at Trenton this Winter in an effort to secure a favorable legislation. The legislative committee has recently had conference with local assemblymen who will represent the liberal interests in the present house, and has laid these claims before them.

In a letter from a Pennsylvania exhibitor he says that the demand for Selig's "Arizona" was such that he had to get it again from his rental house and featured it for three days. This confirms our opinion that the present system of daily or tri-weekly change is absurd, as it does not give one-tenth of the public an opportunity to see many fine films. Neither is it an incentive to the manufacturer to excel in a production as was the case in the film mentioned.

The election of officers of The Henry B. Ingram Company, Inc., manufacturers and dealers in lantern slides and projection apparatus, took place at the office of Percy L. Klock, the company's attorney, 145 Broadway, last Monday. Henry B. Ingram was elected president and treasurer, Raymon Moore vice-president, and Walter R. Lewis secretary. Henry B. Ingram, Raymon Moore and Walter R. Lewis were elected directors.

George K. Spoor, who is reputed to be the first man to project a moving picture exhibition west of New York City, is a busy man in the film business of the West, being at the head of the National Film Renting Company, the Kinodrome Theater Service, and the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company. The theater service and rental business has increased to such an extent that a new company (the George K. Spoor Company, incorporated) has been formed to take over both interests and concentrate the business under one roof, but divided into two departments. Their large purchases of new films and great facilities should place this concern in a position to give the exhibitor ideal service. This concentration of the different departments of his business will enable Mr. Spoor to give more of his time to the interests of the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, of which company he is also president.

The Kalem Company are now on the right track in combining educational features with dramatic interest in their productions. Their next issue, "The Octoroon," portrays the turpentine industry in the timber regions of the South, and interwoven therewith is a drama that reflects the life and customs of that section. This class of subjects should appeal to any mixed audience.

S. Hudson Chapman, of Philadelphia, Pa., a noted lecturer and writer who presented a course of lectures last Spring on Southern Italy and Sicily, landed at Naples on January 15th, on the way to the earthquake zone. Mr. Chapman is equipped with three cameras and a motion picture camera to get views for his lectures this season and also for the Red Cross Society, who have given him permission to enter all camps, hospitals and refugee stations. He expects to return in the latter part of February.

Knickerbocker Circuit.—Arrangements have been made with Mr. Charles Brandon, formerly connected with the Crescent Stock Company in capacity of stage director, to take charge of the vaudeville productions that are to be made by the Knickerbocker Circuit. It is the idea of the interests behind the circuit to make some of its own productions, and which will be sent over its circuit. Three houses have been added to the Knickerbocker time, and judging from the present outlook a twenty-week circuit will be completed shortly.

C. M. Purdy, who has been connected with more than one local film rental house, is now established at No. 300 East Twenty-third street, where he has built up a good connection in film rental and supplies. Mr. Purdy realizes that long credits, false promises and inattention has been the ruin of many reputations in the business of film renting and is building up his business on just the reverse of those lines.

B. R. Craycroft, the popular manager of the Laemmle Film Service in Evansville, Ind., sends us a copy of a neatly printed booklet entitled "Laemmle's Instantaneous Service." There are several half-tone illustrations of the various departments and a connected line of talk leads up to a convincing argument that should appeal to the exhibitor. It is a clever little advertising dodge; but then all of Laemmle's advertisements are cleverly written.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Neligh, Neb., is to have another moving picture theater.

Peoria, Ill, is to have a third moving picture show, which will open in the Mystic Opera House.

Bridgeton, N. J.—A new moving picture theater will open on North Laurel street within a short period.

Hot Springs, Ark.—The Grand Opera House will open for the season as a first-class moving picture theater.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The North Side Turn Hall is being remodeled for the home of a moving picture theater.

Peoria, Ill.—Will Faucott has purchased the Dreamland Moving Picture Theater on North Main street from C. E. Dutro.

Seymour, Ind.—Mr. Rhodes has purchased the "Nickelo" moving picture theater from David M. Stewart, who was former proprietor.

New York City.—Plans have been filed for remodeling the building at 21 Suffolk street for a moving picture theater, to be owned by Louis Phillips.

Utica, N. Y.—P. Karl, A. & P. Fennis and F. P. Moyer have leased the building at 33 Lafayette street, and will open it as a moving picture theater.

Canton, Ill.—The moving picture theater on Main avenue has not been running for a week on account of the suspension of the electric lighting system.

San Francisco, Cal.—Turner & Dahnken will erect another moving picture theater. They have leased the property on Market street between Fifth and Sixth.

Greenwich, Conn.—The Olympia candy store in the Bocker Building on Greenwich avenue is being remodeled for a moving picture theater for Hearn & Hume.

Chicago, Ill.—The Charles Amusement Company was incorporated for $1,000 to conduct moving picture theaters. The incorporators are: W. R. Scates, C. W. Taylor and P. F. La Vernway.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Two more big moving picture houses are to be added to the amusement industries in Philadelphia. Work has been begun on the remodeling of the Penny Arcade at Nos. 1219-21-23 Market street, into a moving picture house, for the Unique Amusement Company. The building, when completed, will provide for an auditorium 40 by 170 feet, containing a seating capacity of 800. The improvements will cost $15,000. Work has also been started on a similar building at Nos. 606 to 612 South street, for the Philip Sternberg Company, to cost $8,500. The plans provide for a one-story structure, 40 by 120 feet, containing a seating capacity of 500.

Hot Springs, Ark.—The old Grand Opera House, Hot Springs, Ark., has been leased by Frank Head, manager of the Auditorium Theater, and after being renovated and some minor alterations being made, was opened Monday, January 4, as a moving picture house, and though a little remote from the central portion of the city, has been packed at every performance. The house, which seats 900, has introduced the cameraphone talking pictures as well as the silent, and two vaudeville turns and illustrated songs are given. Three shows are given daily, and films are changed weekly.

Savannah, Ga.—Last Sunday the Bandy Bros. turned over the Criterion and Superba Theater to the Mayor of Savannah for the benefit of the earthquake sufferers. More than a hundred dollars was cleared, as there was no expense attached to it. This is the first time in the history of Savannah that a moving picture house has been opened on Sunday.

The Arcade has closed. There will be no more Arcade, the name having been changed last week to the "Grand." The work on the interior is almost complete, and all that is left to be done is to have the front put in. When finished the "Grand" will have the honor of being the only theater running vaudeville and moving pictures carrying a stock company in Savannah. The stock company is headed by Mr. Arthur Lucas and E. H. Kingman. Mr. Kingman will have full charge as manager.

The Criterion will give another free show Sunday for the benefit of the earthquake sufferers. It is probable that Savannah will grant the Bandy Bros. privilege to keep open on Sunday, though nothing has been said of it yet. The Bandys have become quite popular in Savannah, and more people saw the moving pictures and vaudeville last week than ever before.

To the Exhibitors of Moving Pictures

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY.

The Motion Picture Patents Company has acquired the Edison, Biograph, Armat and Vitagraph Patents, which patents, we are assured by counsel, cover all modern moving picture films and all existing commercial types of projecting machines. The Patents Company has licensed the following Manufacturers and Importers whose present output is 18 reels per week:

American Mutoscope & Biograph Company,
Edison Manufacturing Company,
Essanay Film Manufacturing Company,
Kalem Company,
George Kleine,
Lubin Manufacturing Co.,
Pathe Freres,
Selig Polyscope Co.,
Vitagraph Company of America.

All moving picture films not manufactured or imported by the above licensees are infringements of our patents, and any exchange or theater handling such infringing films, is liable to suit for injunction and damages.

The leading Manufacturers and Importers of projecting machines have also been licensed under our patents, and their machines will be sold hereafter subject to the condition that they shall be used only with licensed film. A list of the manufacturers of licensed machines will be furnished upon request.

LICENSED EXCHANGES.

The following Exchanges have been licensed, and at the present time are the only Exchanges that are authorized to handle licensed film:

Actograph Company, 50 Union Square, New York City.
Actograph Company, Troy, N. Y.
Alamo Film Exchange, 405 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Alamo Film Exchange, 304 Conroy Building, San Antonio, Tex.
American Film Exchange, 645 Wabash Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
American Film Service, 125 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.
American Film Service, 158 North Main street, Memphis, Tenn.
American Vitagraph Company, 116 Nassau street, New York, N. Y.
George Breck, 70 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo Film Exchange, 13½ Genesee street, Buffalo, N. Y.
C. A. Calehuff, Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Calumet Film Exchange, Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline & Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline, 268 South State street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Clune Film Exchange, 727 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.
Colorado Film Exchange Company, 320 Charles Building, Denver, Colo.
Columbia Film Exchange, 414 Ferguson Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Gayety Theater Building, St. Louis, Mo.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Crawford Theater, El Paso, Tex.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Hopkins Theater, Louisville, Ky.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Shubert Theater, New Orleans, La.
Harry Davis, 347 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Harry Davis, Buffalo, N. Y.
Harry Davis, 1311 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Denver Film Exchange, 713 Lincoln avenue, Denver, Colo.
Dixie Film Company, 620 Commercial place, New Orleans, La.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 104-5 Bakewell Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 235 Monticello Arcade Building, Norfolk, Va
Edison Display Co., 1116 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash.
Edison Display Co., 165½ Fourth street, Portland, Ore.
Electric Theater Supply Co., 47 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Greater New York Film Rental Co., 24 Union Square, New York City.
C. J. Hite Company, Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill.
Howard Moving Picture Co., 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Imperial Film Exchange, 44 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City.
Imperial Film Exchange, 299 River street, Troy, N. Y.
Imperial Film Exchange, 803 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Imported Film & Supply Co., 708 Union street, New Orleans, La.
Kent Film Service, 218 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Kleine Optical Company, 2008½ Third avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Kleine Optical Company, 657 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Kleine Optical Company, 52 State street, Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Company, 302 Boston Building, Denver, Colo.
Kleine Optical Company, 229 Commercial Building, Des Moines, Ia.
Kleine Optical Company, 214 Traction Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Kleine Optical Co. of California, 369 Pacific Electric Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Kleine Optical Company, 662 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Company, 309 Melhorn Building, Seattle, Wash.
Kleine Optical Company of Missouri, 523 Commercial Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 314 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
H. Lieber Co., 24 West Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lubin Film Service, 21 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Lubin Film Service, 510 Paul-Gale-Greenwood Building, Norfolk, Va.
Lubin Film Service, 140 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 82 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
Miles Bros., Inc., 259 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Miles Bros., Inc., Washington and Dover streets, Boston, Mass.
Miles Bros., Inc., 790 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Mitchell Film Exchange, 120½ Main street, Little Rock, Ark.
Monarch Film Exchange, 201 Thompson Building, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Montana Film Exchange, 41 North Main street, Butte, Mont.
Morton Film Exchange, 107 Sixth street, Portland, Ore.
Mullin Film Service, Solar Building, Watertown, N. Y.
National Film Company, 100 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., Spokane, Wash.
Novelty Moving Picture Co., 418 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Broad street, Columbus, Ohio.
Pacific Coast Film Co., 1724 Filmore street, San Francisco, Cal.
Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.
Pennsylvania Film Exchange, 403 Lewis Block, Pittsburg, Pa.
People's Film Exchange, 126 University place, New York City.
Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 121 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Wilkesbarre, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 501-503 Central Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Neave Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 421 Walnut street, Des Moines, Ia.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 60-62 Brownell Block, Lincoln, Neb.
Schiller Film Exchange, 103 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Southern Film Exchange, 1822 Fourth avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Southern Film Exchange, 148 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George K. Spoor & Co., 62 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.
Standard Film Exchange, 79 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Superior Film Supply Co., 621 Nasby Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Swaab Film Service Co., 338 Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 160 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Wm. H. Swanson Co. of Omaha, 405 Karbach Block, Omaha, Neb.
Wm. H. Swanson St. Louis Film Co., 200 North Seventh street, St. Louis, Mo.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main street, East, Rochester, N. Y.
Tally's Film Exchange, 554 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Theater Film Supply Co., 202 South Tryon street, Charlotte, N. C.
Theater Film Supply Co., 2007 Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Theater Film Service Co., 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Theater Film Service Co., 1038 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal.
Trent & Wilson, 63 East Third street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
20th Century Optiscope Co., Shukert Building, Kansas City, Mo.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 408 Eccles Building, Ogden, Utah.
Turner & Dahnken, 1650 Ellis street, San Francisco, Cal.
Twin City Calcium and Stereopticon Co., 709 Hennepin ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
United Film Exchange, 717 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
U. S. Film Exchange, 132 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Vaudette Film Exchange Co., 103 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich.
P. L. Waters, 41 East Twenty-first street, New York City.
Alfred Weiss' Film Exchange, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City.
Western Film Exchange, 949 Century Building, St. Louis Mo.
Western Film Exchange, 307 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange, 201 Miners' Bank Building, Joplin, Mo.
Wonderland Film Exchange, Seventh street and Liberty ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
Wheelan-Loper Film Co., 339 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Yale Film Renting Co., 622 Main street, Kansas City, Mo.

The Patents Company has by its licenses to the most important manufacturers of moving picture films and machines in the world, and to the leading rental exchanges, provided, for such exhibitors as become its licensees, the highest class of service with the largest and best selection of subjects, and in addition has made provision for the elimination of worn-out and objectionable film.

APPLICATIONS FROM EXHIBITORS.

FOR THEATERS NOW OPEN.

Every Exhibitor now in business may apply on the enclosed blank before February 1, 1909, for a license. It is the policy of this Company to be liberal in issuing these licenses, but for the good of the business and to conserve the interests of the better class of the exhibitors, it may be necessary to refuse some applications.

FOR NEW THEATERS.

The Patents Company will protect theaters already established as far as may be possible, and it will issue licenses to only such new places of exhibition as obtain the approval of the Patents Company before they are established. The Patents Company will approve only such locations as in its opinion will support new houses and meet a public demand.

Terms of License.

The license of the Patents Company to exhibitors covers the theater, or place of exhibition, and is issued on the following terms:

(1) At the place licensed, only motion pictures may be used which are manufactured or imported by the licensees of the Patents Company and rented from a licensed Exchange.

(2) The Exhibitor shall pay a weekly royalty to be determined by the Patents Company, graded according to the relative business of each of the licensed theaters. For the period from February 1 to March 8, 1909, this royalty shall be $10.00 ($2.00 per week), which sum must accompany each application. Should a license be refused, the fee accompanying the application will be returned.

(3) The license shall be at all times prominently displayed in the place of exhibition of the licensee and together with the machines used, be always open to inspection by the Patents Company.

In order that the theaters may be fully assured that the Patents Company has no desire to act arbitrarily or oppressively, it should be stated that the royalty to be collected after March 8, 1909, from the average exhibitor will be as nearly as practicable $2.00 per week, and that in the case of the smallest theaters, the royalty will be less. We feel confident that the royalties paid by exhibitors will be insignificant in comparison with the increase in their business, which will result from the co-operation of the various licensees of this Company.

PROJECTING MACHINES.

The exhibitor's license covers all machines purchased before February 1, 1909, which the Exhibitor uses in the place licensed. The Exhibitor may not use any machine purchased after February 1, 1909, unless the official license plate of the Patents Company is attached to the head of the machine.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
10 Fifth Avenue, New York.

January 22, 1909.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY SOON TO HAVE OFFICIAL HEADQUARTERS.

Shortly after February 1 the M. P. P. Co. will occupy a suite of offices on the sixteenth floor of No. 80 Fifth avenue. This location, at the corner of Fourteenth street, is central and convenient to exhibitors and exchange men who may have business with the company.

Meanwhile the management of the Motion Picture Patents Company desire to announce that the volume of mail from exhibitors and exchanges has been so voluminous that it has been impossible to give each one a personal reply, or even to attempt to answer those exhibitors who have already made applications for licenses. All leading questions will be found clearly answered in the circular letters to the exchanges and to the exhibitors which have been issued by the company. Any special question of importance will be answered and correspondence is invited on any point of mutual interest. Careful study of the official documents will, however, obviate much needless correspondence.

The company also desires to acknowledge the receipt of a large number of checks from exhibitors who made early application for licenses. These will be formally acknowledged as soon as the regular forms are printed and the licenses will be delivered as soon as possible. Meanwhile every established exhibitor is invited to make formal application, accompanied by the $10 initiation fee which covers the five weeks from February 1 to March 8. Should there be any good reason for rejecting any application the license fee will be returned. The grounds for refusal may be where an exhibitor openly defies the municipal laws to the detriment of the law-abiding, or where the locality will not support two or more theaters.

Each licensed exhibitor will receive his license neatly framed, by prepaid express.

Many letters of approval from exhibitors have been delayed in answer, but all will receive courteous attention as soon as the company is installed in their permanent quarters.

EXHIBITOR'S APPLICATION.

January , 1909.

Motion Picture Patents Company, 10 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—In accordance with your announcement of January 22d, 1909, inclosed find $10 fee for license covering the following theater from February 1 to March 8, 1909:

Name of Theater.....

Address—No. .....Street.

Town or City.....State.....

Yours very truly,

.....
(Exhibitor.)

1. Sign a separate application for each theater.
2. Make remittances only by: (a) New York draft; (b) P. O. order; (c) express money order.
3. This company reserves the right to refuse this application.

Comments on Film Subjects.

"The Miner's Daughter."—A good film without a manufacturer's mark. The action and staging are good, and the story is out of the ordinary. Instead of the runaway girl marrying a man who finally turns her out-doors and she is forced to go back to her father poor and disgraced, she marries a rising artist who makes his mark in the world and she goes back, after her father is hurt, rich and with a famous husband. Whoever conceived this form of a story deserves commendation for changing the usual order of things. The film deserves a long run, since it inculcates the principle that men are usually good to their wives.

"Mister Sleepy Head."—A dream that should be placed before the eye of every man or woman who enjoys sleeping late mornings, only to be compelled to hurry through everything to get to business. It is weird and lively while it lasts.

"Tit for Tat."—In this Warwick film there is a different style of fun from what is usually shown. It is, however, a welcome relief from the old monotony and the audience testifies to its appreciation by prolonged applause.

"The Pleasant Side of a Soldier's Life."—A Pathe film in which the pranks of soldiers are illustrated with a good deal of caricature. The situations in which the recruit finds himself are amusing and the audience enjoys the horseplay.

"Pagan and Christian."—This product of the Edison Company is the most ambitious film of the week. It is designed to illustrate the power of the cross over paganism and it does this successfully. It is impossible to give a description of it which will convey any adequate conception of its beauty, the action of the various characters and the finish of the film itself. It would be a good film for churches and other religious organizations and its teachings are, perhaps, as emphatic as many sermons. The only feature of it which might be open to criticism on that score is the austerity with which it invests the Christian religion. And yet, in essence, the one who directed the preparation of this film has kept very close to the facts. This ought to be a good film for traveling companies who go through the rural districts and in small towns and villages. It holds one fascinated while it runs and at its close the entire audience breathes a deep sigh. One wants to go back and see it again; something which is not often true.

"Astrakhan Fishermen."—A record film by the Pathes which gives an excellent idea of the fisherman's life in that far-away region. The pictures of the fish themselves are interesting. The film should be a good one for a traveling company's program.

"The Two Castaways."—A story of shipwreck and adventure. The Vitagraph people have given the public a film here which tells an interesting story in a strong way and the action and staging are alike good, while the film itself runs smoothly. The story is good enough to make people watch in breathless interest for the next development and the applause is vigorous at the close. It is a film that can be commended to managers who want something interesting and strongly dramatic without a taint of suggestion.

"The Heroine of the Forge."—The Vitagraph Company has a good film here, which, though short, is strongly dramatic and attractive. The action and the staging are both good and no one is killed, though one is badly used by some marauders who are prowling about. The heroine is athletic, but lovable, and one can see why the man whom she saves and his mother both fall in love with her.

"The Girl at the Old Mill" is a fine Kalem film that was issued last week, and that should appeal to all lovers of the idyllic and the beautiful in graphic art. For it tells by means of motion photography one of those rustic sentimental comedies of which the large-hearted public never tires. The "curled darling" of the city displaces the country lad in the affections of a rustic maid, only to deceive her and drive her to attempted suicide, from which she is rescued by her earlier lover. A pretty ending to a pleasing story. What we like about this film is its uniformly good photographic quality, and the clearness with which the details of the story are told in a number of well divided scenes. The lecture gives a synopsis of the story; but it is an eloquent picture without words.

"Drawing the Color Line."—This Edison film is quite up to the usual standard of that company's pictures technically, while the subject is one that never fails to arouse much merriment in the audience. Yet an element of pathos can be found in it. The picture shows very graphically how

Beware! Mr. Manager

A very contagious disease exists (worn out sickly junk film service) means

Instant Death to your Theatre

LET US PRESCRIBE OUR SELECTED FILM SERVICE

A tonic that is necessary for success. If you are worried, and need assistance, write for latest proposition; results will follow; we increase receipts.

PENNSYLVANIA FILM CO.

400-1-2-3-4 Lewis Building
PITTSBURGH, PA.

LANTERN SLIDES

Travelogues 60 Sets (3 new each week)

Stock Slides— Over 250 Designs (all colored)
3 Stock Slides for $1.00

THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY
224 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.
SEND FOR CATALOG "C"

Exhibitors! Note That
SOUVENIRS
are a Great Drawing Card for
5 AND 10 CENT THEATRES
We Give You the Greatest Value for the Least Money
DROP US A POSTAL. CATALOGUE FREE ON APPLICATION

No. O 12
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100

No. 500 ½
Cup 2¼ x 2¼
Saucer 4½
75c per dozen

No 1048
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100

TAKITO, OGAWA & CO.
Importers and Manufacturers of
JAPANESE GOODS
166 East Lake Street - Chicago, Ill.

merely putting a little black on a man's face changes his status.

"The Sponge Fishers of Cuba."—One of the best educational films brought out in a long time is this product of the Kalem Company. The view in Havana Harbor is particularly good, and the work of obtaining and preparing sponges is interesting when seen by means of this excellent picture. Technically the film is beyond criticism. The matter was well selected and well developed. The film should have a long run.

"When Lips Are Sealed."—An intensely dramatic film from Lubin, which holds the audience entranced until it runs its course. The story of the sealing of the girl's lips and the final denouement are both strong scenes and help to make up an extremely interesting film. The denunciation of the villain by the girl is strong enough to set one's nerves on edge. The film illustrates, too, the tyranny which is sometimes found where a good many hands are employed.

"Paper Cock-a-Doodle-Doos."—A Pathe magic film, beautifully colored and filled with interesting manipulations of the little paper "cock-a-doodles" which children make. The way they are driven about the stage and change from one point to another is extremely interesting. A little child behind us was perfectly delighted to see the little paper cock-a-doodles, which he said he had made at school, dance around like that.

"It's Only the Painter."—A comic which develops some interesting features, although we deprecate the faithlessness of wives as a theme for graphic illustration.

"Those Boys."—In this film the Biograph people have represented some of the mischief which boys will get into when left to themselves. Technically the film is good, and the action of the characters is all that could be asked.

"The Hunchback."—A story of sacrifice. The staging and the action are alike good, as are most of the Pathe films. This one is tinted enough to take away the bald black and white appearance. The only questionable feature about it is the repetition of the faithless lover. One wonders sometimes if there are no faithful ones in France. Perhaps this kind do not make a story.

"Mr. Pynhead Goes Out For a Good Time."—The Pathes have here shown a so-called gentleman who gets himself up regardless and goes out for a good time, but in this instance it consists merely in obtruding his presence upon various women whom he meets by the way. The ducking he gets at the end is richly deserved, and it can't be made too emphatic.

"The Pretty Little Milliner."—A Pathe film in which the ogling of a woman by a number of men is carried to the extreme. A dozen or so are chasing her, young and old alike. There is an interesting feature about it in her disappearance occasionally and the final discovery of three rabbits in the box where she disappeared. The movement of the box just ahead of the ardent chasers is amusing, but there is nothing particularly funny in a subject of this character.

"The Sergeant's Stripes."—A Pathe film in which the story is not quite clear. One must assume that the imprisoned man was a former lover of the soldier's wife, but there is nothing to make this plain. The scenes where she gives the prisoner the file and the money are strong, and there is a strong human touch in the discovery of the file by her husband. Then they make up and he gets his stripes for his bravery in assisting in making the capture. As a story it doesn't appeal very strongly.

"The Criminal Hypnotist."—This Biograph film shows the possibility of hynotism when misapplied. The action of the girl when under the hypnotist's influence was good, and probably she did what any subject would have done under the same circumstances. The interest lies chiefly in the suggestions.

"Going Home to Mother."—A comic which is chiefly humorous because the husband gets tossed about in a trunk, thrown upon the ground, rolled down stairs and banged about generally. Then they make up and agree to live happily ever afterward.

"Suicidal Poet."—A comic in the direction of suggestion. The would-be suicide is stopped from taking his life many times, and finally in sheer desperation throws himself in front of a span of horses, which prove to be runaways. He is given a large sum of money for stopping the team, and finally takes his life eating, when he did not intend to do it.

"The Shepherdess."—A Pathe film which is beautifully staged and acted, and the story is pathetic enough. It is the usual one of the girl who runs away with a man above her station. She is tolerated until the man dies, and then she is turned out to go back to her sheep.

VAUDEVILLE.

As a whole the vaudeville of the week did not vary much from the previous week. Not any special act stood out as exceptionally good, though at least three were above the average. It would seem that there is a gradual improvement in this regard and that the acts, as given in the different theaters, are rather better than they were, though this doesn't hold good in all instances.

Managers are evidently trying to bring all departments of their shows up to a higher standard. They are selecting the better acts in vaudeville to accomplish this and the audiences who see them appreciate the situation and are patronizing liberally the theaters which offer the best entertainment, regardless of what department it is in. Hence, it is necessary to bring all parts of the shows up to the highest possible standard of merit to hold the patronage.

THE SONGS.

No particularly striking songs have been offered during the week, though the average has been quite as good as usual. Of course much consists in the singing and not all theaters have a singer who can get the most out of the songs.

In the main the illustrations have been good; better, perhaps, than last week, though two songs were illustrated with slides that must have belonged to something else. Otherwise there is no criticism. One theater has a singer who is certain to win rapturous applause whatever he sings. Others are not so fortunate. In this particular instance it is noted that men will go to the theater and sit until they hear the song and then go out. This does not hold good elsewhere, however, though possibily it might if the conditions were favorable.

Improvement in the quality of the slides is noted and the songs are that much better. The slides can't be too good. That much is certain. And the fact that they are gradually improving indicates that those who make them appreciate this fact and do not intend to offer anything which is below the standard required by those who have made a specialty of this department of entertainment.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

The week has been productive of a number of unusually good films. The "Pagan and Christian" of the Edison Co., the "Two Castaways" of the Vitagraph Co., and "The Fisherman's Rival" are all good films. The "Pagan and Christian" is one of the notable films of the Winter. Another good one is "The Heroine of the Forge," a Vitagraph, and "The Old Curiosity Shop" of the Essanay Co. deserves to be classed with the leaders. Selig's "Arizona" was a masterpiece; Edison's "Where Is My Wandering Boy To-night?" impressive; Kalem's "The Girl at the Old Mill" clean and attractive.

Happily, manufacturers are getting away from the too frequent murder and suicide idea and are giving the public good, clean comedy or drama. Occasional lapses are still noticed, but in the main the character of the films has changed during the past two or three months so that the old style has almost completely disappeared.

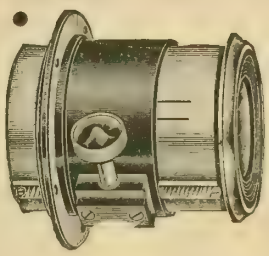
The films brought out this week are, perhaps on the average the highest quality yet produced. And it is understood that manufacturers will hold their products up to the present standard regularly hereafter. If they do this the future of the motion picture is assured.

With manufacturers exercising due restraint in the development of murderous subjects, and with the output limited to the pleasant or touching films which have been offered this week, surely no one could complain of the moving picture show. It would not incite to crime or violence of any sort under such circumstances and the entire scheme as outlined has been educational and amusing, which comprises the field of the moving picture.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? $2 per year—52 numbers.

Morton Film Exchange
(Incorporated)
S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.
High-Class Film Service
LICENSEES MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY
Parties desiring first-class service write us

A Money Making PROPOSITION
Some Exhibitors are paying their rent by exhibiting Advertising Slides before the show.
We make them, any design, from your copy. Also Announcement Slides in great variety.
SEND FOR PARTICULARS
OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.
513 Superior Building - Cleveland, Ohio



IMPROVE THE PICTURE ON THE SCREEN
IT'S ALL IN THE LENS
by using a high grade projection lens.
Our lenses give a sharper and more brilliant picture than anylenses made here or abroad. We will send a lens on approval that makes a picture the size you want.
PRICE $18.00 NET
When ordering state the distance from lens to screen and size of picture. The purchaser of a new machine should insist on getting one of these lenses with it instead of the inferior lens usually supplied.
CUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

CLIMAX WIRE
Fifty times the resistance of copper
THE BEST WIRE FOR Moving Picture Machine
RHEOSTATS
DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.
HARRISON, N.J.

Wonderland Film Exchange

1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa.

Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company

Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.

EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices.

FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED

THE CHRONOPHONE

PICTURES THAT SING AND TALK

The new money maker. You not only see all the fun but you hear it.

Think of a perfect Talking Picture Machine for $600

FULLY PATENTED

The Chrono System has no star wheel and infringes no patents.

Gaumont GAUMONT CO. Gaumont

125 E. 25th St, New York

SONG SLIDES

PEERLESS SONG SLIDES

The Kind that Almost Talk

Ever Imitated, NEVER EQUALED

Let us place you on our mailing list

Full line of ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES

SEND for SPECIAL PRICE LIST

SLIDES OF SICILY AND ITALY

Scene of the Recent Earthquake

Set of 20 plain, $4, colored $8. Set of 35 plain, $7, colored, $14

NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO. 143 N. 8th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

Send $2.00 for a Subscription to the Moving Picture World—the representative trade newspaper.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE MOVING PICTURE EXHIBITORS OF MICHIGAN, OHIO AND INDIANA.

17 Newberry Building.

Detroit, January 19, 1909.

Dear Sir:—You no doubt have heard of the crisis now pending in the moving picture industry and of the drastic action the Motion Picture Patents Company have taken to force the exhibitors into paying them a weekly royalty for the privilege of using "Trust" film.

To combat this move the Independent Film Protective Association has been formed. The Association includes all independent manufacturers, importers, renters and exhibitors, and meetings are now being arranged at convenient points throughout the United States for the exhibitors to get together and decide upon a uniform action. A meeting has been arranged at Detroit, Mich., on January 27th, for the exhibitors of Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, and you are personally requested to attend this meeting, as it is vitally important for you to know the existing condition of affairs.

The meeting will be held in the Convention Room of the Burns Hotel, and will be called to order at noon, on Wednesday, January 27th.

Please advise me by return mail if you will be able to attend this meeting, so that accommodations can be arranged for you. Arrangements have been made for attending exhibitors and a $1.00 per day rate, European plan, has been granted us by the managers of the Burns Hotel.

Awaiting your reply, I am,

Yours very truly,

GEO. F. KEARNEY.

Sec'y Independent Film Protective Association.

TO ARMS!

Philadelphia, January 20, 1909.

Brother Exhibitors:—Action and reaction are equal only in opposite directions. This is a law of philosophy and the action of the Film Combine, as I will term it, is no exception to this natural mandate. We exhibitors are once more made a mark of by the powers that be. They have set a trap for us that, if we enter it, will hold us tight so that ever after we may be squeezed at their pleasure. But they have reckoned without their host. Exhibitor, sit up and take notice. The trap is in the shape of a license to get film and rent machine to run same on. If you sign this document abide by whatever rules they see fit to impose upon you, for you have no redress thereafter. But if you don't sign it you may run your business to suit yourself. This is the advice of our attorney, who is one of the ablest of lawyers and stands ready, aye, and even anxious, to defend anyone under our jurisdiction. It is a strange coincidence and might be taken as an ill omen for the Combine. But the very city that is known as the birthplace of liberty, where our forefathers declared equal rights to all, special privileges to none, is also the birthplace of an Association that will make the Combine look like a counterfeit coin with a hole punched in it. The Philadelphia organization has been preparing for war this last year; and now in this dark hour can give courage and support to the most oppressed set of business men in this country to-day. Philadelphia is thoroughly organized and at our last regular meeting decided to make this the headquarters for the State, so that we will eventually have just as strong a State organization as we have a city. We know that every big city has done the same, and we ask that the biggest city in each State follow our example and constitute themselves headquarters for their respective States. Let them communicate with each other and the result will be we can fly the flag that Colonel John Proctor made famous—"Don't tread on me." We ask you not to be scared by this bugaboo, as it is the easiest thing we have to overcome. We have greater things that call for combination, such as State and local legislation. As a social affair you will find no end of advantage in the amount of money and trouble you can save by making your wants known on the floor, as someone will always enlighten you. The getting of funds seems to be the great trouble of some organizations, but we in four weeks enlarged our treasury immensely by a little exertion and at very little cost to ourselves. We would be glad to advise any city that needs funds or that wants to organize, of our method. Address our headquarters, 2525 Girard avenue, or through this paper.

WM. M. HAMILTON, Organizer.

IT IS OUR POLICY

To

- Purchase from three to five copies of every good subject manufactured.
- Make shipments in ample time to avoid delays.
- Avoid REPEATERS.
- Ship NO JUNK.
- Give what we promise.

We earnestly solicit a trial order for Film Service that we may convince you

WRITE TO-DAY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.
(Members Film Service Association)

1401-1405 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO. — 421 Fourth Ave., LOUISVILLE, KY.

Care of Crawford Theatre El Paso, Tex. — Care of Shubert Theatre New Orleans, La. — 306 Moore-Burnet Bldg. Houston, Tex.

"NONPARIEL" SONG SLIDES

By HENRY B. INGRAM, 42 W. 28th St. New York

Whe . the Catskills Lift Their Summits to the Sun.
Money Won't Make Everybody Happy.
Mollie, Come Jump on the Trolley.
Among the Valleys of New England.
Anchored.
Love's Old Sweet Song.
I'm Longing for My Old Green Mountain Home.
Lenore.
On Bunker Hill, Where Warren Fell.
On the Banks of the Wabash.
The Holy City.
The Little Old Red Schoolhouse on the Hill.
There Stands a Flag, Let Them Touch It if They Dare.
The Old New England Homestead in the Dell.
When the Autumn Leaves Are Falling.
Memories.
Where the Tall Palmettos Grow.
In Old Illinois.
Where Poverty's Tears Ebb and Flow.
Sweetheart Days.
Lexington.

I BUY AND SELL SLIDES. ALL SLIDES $5.00 PER SET

SONG SLIDES

The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES for the great hits
"There's A Fleet On The Sea"
"Would You Like To Take A Walk With Me"
"I'm Going To Tell On You"

THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange
NINTH FLOOR
MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

Indianapolis Calcium Light Co.

W. M. SWAIN, Manager

116 South Capitol Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

Our film service makes your bank account grow fat, Mr. Manager. Write us to-day and we will tell you why.

We are members of the Film Service Association

PRINTING FOR THE Earthquake in Italy

HENNEGAN & CO.

127 EAST 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

Do NOT put on the
PASSION PLAY
Without Music and Lecture

If you are too far away from New York or Philadelphia to engage the services of the first and foremost lecturer on Moving Pictures in general and the Passion Play in particular,

W. STEPHEN BUSH

get his lecture in print. Complete lecture on every scene with valuable suggestions as to music and interesting introductory.
This copyrighted lecture running exactly with the pictures and giving full explanation and commentary on every scene sent postpaid to any address in U. S. or Canada on receipt of one dollar. Address
W. Stephen Bush, 155 N. Conestoga St., Phila., Pa.
May be reached at any time by phone in residence, Belmont 4484.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—I have prepared special lectures with suggestions as to music and effects for every feature film turned out by the Edison licensees. The list comprises over a hundred subjects and includes the very latest feature films. Price per lecture, 25c.

Buy the Best means Buy a Bal.

The only Moving Picture Machine Trunk in the world which is strong enough to carry the machine safely and light enough to save excess baggage charges, is the "BAL" FIBRE TRUNK, and, being the best, it is the cheapest.

SEND FOB CATALOGUE—W

WILLIAM BAL, Inc. - - - 210 West 42d Street, New York City

LOOK LOOK LOOK

MR. FILM EXCHANGE

Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving

B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

DON'T

Send us any more orders for a week or two, we're too busy to fill 'em.

LEVI CO., Inc., 64 E. 14 St., New York, U.S.A.

We are now in the position to supply our customers with

The Latest Output of Licensed Films Every Week

THE C. J. HITE CO.
439-441 Monadnock Block
Chicago, Ill.

The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

THE PENN MOTION PICTURE CO.
2333-35-37 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

will release on Saturday, February 6th, 1909, a most appropriate feature film and a money maker for LINCOLN'S 100th anniversary, February 12th. This film can be run the whole week.

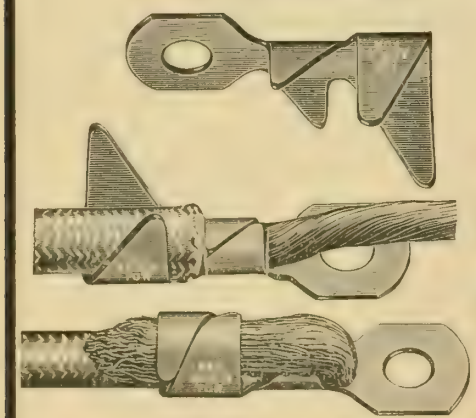
The Assassination of Abraham Lincoln

About 700 feet in Length at 8½ Cents per Foot, net

This Film was made several months ago, but was never released
Order early as we will only have a limited number of copies for sale

BELL'S COPPER TERMINALS

FOR ASBESTOS OR RUBBER COVERED STRANDED WIRE



For Number 6 or 8 Wire

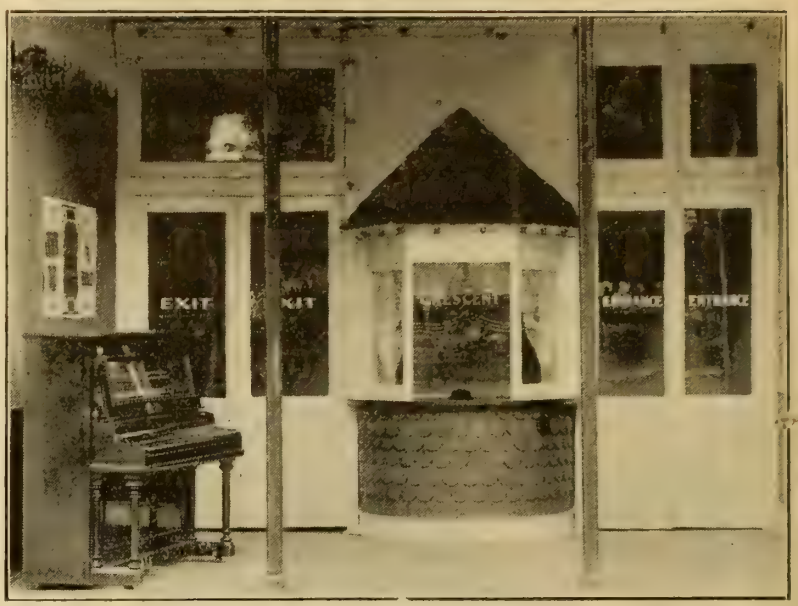
Price 10 Cents Each $1.00 Per Dozen

Easily Attached by the use of Plyers only, making a Sure Contact

Especially adapted for Motion Picture Lamp and Rheostat Connections

Use these Terminals for Lamp Connections and be insured against the Annoyance of Burned Off Wires For Sale by all Dealers. Made by

THE BELL & HOWELL CO.
90 ILLINOIS STREET, CHICAGO



Front of Crescent Theater, Bowling Green, Ky. See No. 47a under Theaters for Sale.

Front of Crescent Theater, Vandalia, Ill. See No. 47d under Theaters for Sale.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

Among the theaters that are for sale there are few that offer such tempting terms or such good opportunities as the group numbered under 47 in our list of "Theaters for Sale" in another column. None of them are large, but all are said to be on a paying basis and if taken in hand by one man who would contract for a service of first-run films and form a little circuit it seems to us that he would realize a nice profit on his investment. We have on file details of the equipment and the business done by two of the places, but would advise that they be handled together and full particulars of the different places and the terms of sale may be obtained from Mr. B. R. Craycroft, Evansville, Ind.

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides

The Finest Made. $5 per Set
All of the New Song Hits.

A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

THEATRES FOR SALE.

The following places for sale are all live and paying theaters and in each case there is special reason for selling. Further particulars will be learned by addressing the Moving Picture World and giving the key number of the place, or replying direct where address is given.

Plainfield, N. J.—First-class motion pictre theater for sale. Good business; best location; must be sold by January 26th. Reason for selling, partners do not agree. Seating capacity, 225. Population, 25,000. C. J. Woehrer, 127 West Fourth Street, Plainfield, N. J.

(54) Westerly, R. I.—Profitable theater, seating 400. Good reasons for selling. Goldstein Bros. Amusement Co., 231 Main street, Springfield, Mass.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Moving Picture Theater for sale, fully equipped, no opposition, the only one within a two-mile radius. Reason for selling, owner has other business. Theater now pays regular weekly profits. Bargain for some one. For further particulars, please address S. W. Dukat, 533 Hudson avenue, Rochester, N. Y.

(46) Fayette, Ohio.—Seats 60. Good business, low expenses and sure profits. Other business, reason for selling. H. Pawling, Fayette, Ohio.

(47) Four Paying Shows, which would make a nice circuit for some enterprising manager, can be obtained at less than invoice value and on suitable terms. They are all making money and there are special reasons for selling. The locations are:

(47a) Bowling Green, Ky.—Seats 154. One other show in town.
(47b) Petersburg, Ind.—Seats 120. No other show in town.
(47c) Rockport, Ind.—Seats 110. One other show in town.
(47d) Vandalia, Ill.—Seats 190. One other show in town.
(47e) Princeton, Ind.—Seats 112.
(47f) Henderson, Ky.—Seats 230.
(47g) Mt. Vernon, Ind.—Seats 108. No opposition.

There is no better proposition in the country at the present time than the above circuit of seven shows, all within easy traveling distance of each other. Any man who wants to go into the exhibiting business and make money from the start can secure the above theaters at a bargain. Each one is in charge of a competent manager, each one paying a profit, and full particulars and reasons for selling will be given to parties who mean business.

Full particulars in regard to this unusual proposition may be obtained from B. R. Craycroft, manager, Laemmle Film Service, Evansville, Ind., or Moving Picture World. They will be sold together or separately.

(48) Snohomish, Wash.—Established theater now paying a profit of $10 per day over all expenses. Seats 225. Interest in another State compels the owner to move. Sell at a bargain. Apply, J. D. Thompson, Box 533, Snohomish, Wash.

(49) Massillon, Ohio.—15,000 population. Established theater paying a handsome profit is for sale on account of serious illness of the proprietor. Price for complete show, elegant outfit and two Edison machines, $2,500, less than half its value. Good show town, only one other moving picture theater whose lease expires in Spring and which cannot be renewed. Further particulars from Moving Picture World, or R. C. Stueve, Massillon, Ohio.

(50) New Brunswick, N. J.—Well equipped and profitable 5-cent theater will be sold on account of other business.

(51) Lawrence, Kan.—Paying theater in college town. Seats 300, has vaudeville stage and sloping floor. Only reason for selling is sickness, owner being compelled to go to the mountains. Price, $1,100.

(52) Petoskey, Mich.—Money-making show at a bargain if sold at once. Other outside interests demand owner's time.

(53) Malden, Mass.—Theater in town of 42,000, doing fine business. Seats 200. Weekly profits over all expenses average between $60 and $120. Will sell for cash only, $1,500. Opportunity will bear strictest investigation. Owner is interested in business in another section which now demands whole attention.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

LECTURER.—Guarantees to make good on any picture and bring increased business. Can also act as manager. Address, Lecturer, care of Moving Picture World.

SINGER AND PIANIST.—Five year's experience. Geo. A. Purrin, 182 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Experienced Operators.

A. L. Darier, electrician and expert operator, or manager; New York licensed. Address, 1645 71st Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Carl E. Capman, Red Oak, Iowa.—A-1 electrician, operator and machine repair man at liberty. Experienced in all kinds of stage electrical appliances. References.

H. Long, 132 Second Avenue, Albany, N. Y., experienced operator.

Louis Pratt, 446 First Street, Albany, N. Y.—Expert operator.

Emil L. Hadd, 513 Main Street, Fitchburg, Mass.—Experienced licensed operator and practical electrician. Three years' experience. Repairing. Sober and steady. References.

Henry J. Stephenhausen, 92 Lexington Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Experienced on Powers machine. References. Prefers State of New Jersey.

Sydney Baehr, 420 East 140th street, New York City. Experienced operator.

Young man wishes position as manager; good hustler, and has New York license; can repair all machines. Address "Manager," care of this paper.

O. N. Wilson, Jr., care of M. Ahlers, 36 Somers street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Licensed operator, with two years' city and road experience.

James Purcell, 97 Hudson avenue, Green Island, Ia. Expert operator and electrician.

Edw. Jakobowski, 600 South Seventh avenue, Reading, Pa. Operator or manager.

R. Clay Crawford, care of Kline Amusement Co., Franklin, Pa. Experienced electrician and operator.

Robert Curry, 1670 Third avenue, New York. Experienced and licensed operator.

W. F. Chinns, General Delivery, Slater, Mo. Experienced on all machines.

Ludwig Wailgum, 10 Bullfinch place, Hotel St. Lion, Boston, Mass. Experienced operator; also wiring and repairing. Have Massachusetts license.

W. A. Lee, expert operator and electrician, 706 Marietta street, Excelsior Springs, Mo. References.

PHOTOGRAPHERS, ETC.

P. W. Angelo, 602 Third avenue, New York. Experienced operator for the taking of moving pictures. References.

A table d'hote dinner usually satisfies, our Song Slide Service always does

Over 200 song hits that are not hackneyed, artistically illustrated

New York Successes at your service weekly

Old time favorites for those who desire them

RENTAL, 50c PER SET WEEKLY

Announcement Slides Up-to-date
When in doubt try them

SYKO SLIDE CO.

Room 505, Cronin Building, Troy, N. Y.

WRITE TO-DAY

STILL IN THE RING

We are still Independent and are going to be. We intend to own and have some small say how we will run our own business.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

Liberty Film Exchange

Telephone Walnut 3956
1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.

Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500
OPERA CHAIRS
IN STOCK

If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received.

Ask for Catalog No. 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

LECTURER

I lecture on any film subject; guarantee to make good; can act as manager. Results or no pay. Address LECTURER care of Moving Picture World.

FOR RENT 6000 ft. of films, 3 sets slides, 6 at a time, $12 weekly.

FOR SALE Edison Exhibition Model Moving Picture Machine, $60 Power's $75. 200 reels films released since April, $10 per reel. 2100 ft Passion Play $35.
Will buy Films, Machines.

H. DAVIS, Watertown, Wis.

CHAIRS

Folding Steel Opera Chairs. All kinds Fireproof Booths. Resistance Grids and Wires. Repairing.

New York Steel & Production Co.
NEWARK, N. J.

FOR SALE

40 reels of film (all titled) pretty good condition $10.00 a reel—50 reels (all titled) extra good condition $17 50 a reel. One Pathe Passion Play $150.00.

MAYER SILVERMAN
712 Fulton Building - Pittsburg, Pa.

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!

FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!

Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material

COMPLETE, $175.00

VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.

Wholesale and Retail
Stereopticon and Lantern Slides

56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

Song Slides For Rental

We illustrate 3 to 4 songs every week and are capable of giving an excellent service, which cannot be equalled. Our charge is

$1.00 Per Week
1 set charged daily

Best Service! Lowest Prices!

Slightly used slides in perfect order

At $2.75 per Set

Write for lists immediately to

HARSTN & CO.
138 East 14th Street, New York City
Established 1897

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00
THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Money for you. In towns without electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

No. 44 North 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Kalem Films

A STORY OF THE TURPENTINE FOREST

LENGTH 835 FEET

Release of January 29th, 1909

This is another of the Great Florida Series which has attracted so much attention throughout the country. In addition to giving an intense, dramatic story, it shows the principle features of the turpentine industry.

Send for our weekly lecture—no charge

KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

Song Slides!
Travelogue Slides!
Announcement Slides!

Newest, latest and best. "You Select—We Ship." Lowest rental rates consistent with superior service. We also furnish thoroughly competent illustrated song vocalists, moving picture and vaudeville pianists, trap drummers, instrumentalists, dramatic lecturers, demonstrators and licensed operators.

Quick, reliable service.

Our references: Leading Film Exchanges, Song Slide Manufacturers, or "Dramatic Mirror" of New York.

Write now for Circulars and full particulars.

LEN SPENCER'S LYCEUM

4 West 28th St NEW YORK

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

THE WELCOME BURGLAR.—Contradictory as this may seem, yet in this Biograph subject it is shown that the advent of the housebreaker was most opportune. Alice Pierce, an innocent country girl, was the sweetheart of Ben Harris, a heartless wretch, and in the impetuosity of her trusting nature she consents to elope. It is the old story: he soon tires of her and cruelly deserts her. Poor Alice is then forced to fight her own way, as to return home she dare not. In this she succeeds so well that at her place of employment, where she fills the position of typist, she inspires in the manager a kindly interest by her modest demeanor, which feeling ripens into love culminating in their marriage. While out walking she is seen and recognized by her first husband, who turns up after being supposed dead. He has sunk into the depths of debauchery and he at once resolves to force his presence upon her. Sending a bogus telegram to her husband he decoys him away from home at night, and then makes his way to their home. Just previous to his arrival, a burglar breaks into the house, leaving the window open behind. Through this he crawls and the burglar hearing his intrusion conceals himself behind the portiers. Alice hearing a noise, goes to learn the cause and when she sees Harris is dumbfounded. He locks the door and seizes the poor frightened woman and in the struggle backs against the burglar who fires and kills him. At this moment the husband returns and finding the door locked is at once suspicious. The position of Alice is indeed compromising until an idea strikes her. She bids the burglar decamp leaving his tools behind, which escape he is glad to make, and when the husband bursts into the room she stands over the prostrate form of her former spouse, with the pistol in her hand and pretends the lifeless body is that of a burglar whom she has shot. Length, 790 feet.

THOSE AWFUL HATS.—It is often you are annoyed by the fact that it is simply impossible to see the screen of a motion picture show owing to the enormous size of some of the lady spectators' headgear. Persuasion, pleading, prayers, are all in vain, and so the Biograph set to work to invent a contrivance to remedy the evil, a demonstration of which is shown in this picture. The scene is the interior of a motion picture theater during the performance of which the ladies with the big hats are very much in evidence. From the ceiling are let down grappling tongs which clutch the offending millinery hauling it up out of sight. This is a comedy picture too funny for description, and it would make a splendid subject to start a show with instead of the customary slide. Length, 185 feet.

THE CORD OF LIFE.—Thrilling episode of a Sicilian's vengeance. It is said that life at times hangs by a single thread, but never was it more conclusively demonstrated than in this Biograph subject, showing the awful peril in which a child is placed by a facinorous Sicilian profligate, who is bent on wrecking vengeance on its father, but Providence intervenes. Antonine, a worthless, good-for-nothing scoundrel, demands money of his cousin Galora, an energetic, provident husband and father. His demands are met with a positive rebuff, and when he becomes insistent he is forcibly ejected by Galora. As he leaves the tenement he vows to get even, and lies in wait until Galora has gone out on business. Climbing to the fifth floor, on which the Galoras live, he watches his chance, which comes when Mrs. Galora goes for an instant to visit a neighbor on the same floor. Darting into the apartment and raising the window he perceives the awful result of a drop to the ground, five stories below, and so evolves a plan that is dastardly in the extreme. Taking the infant child from the cradle, and placing it in a basket he lets it out with a short rope, the end of which he secures by letting the sash down on it, so that to raise the window would precipitate the baby to destruction. Not content with this he follows Galora and would have killed him were it not for the timely arrival of a policeman, who arrests him. Here he boasts of what he did at the home, and Galora makes a mad race to save his child, who is still dangling five stories from the ground; several times Mrs. Galora has approached the window to hang out clothes, etc., but was always called away by some fortuitous happening, until Galora bursts in followed by two policemen, who have given chase, thinking him crazy. They are now in a quandary as to how to rescue the child, for to raise the window meant certain death. At last Galora suggests they let down the top sash and he is held by the feet as head down he lifts the baby from its perilous position into the room. While the subject is intensely thrilling, it is totally devoid of gruesomeness. Length, 857 feet.

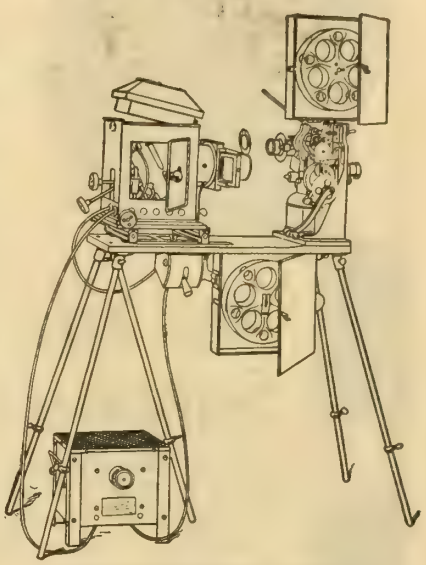
EDISON MFG. CO.

A ROMANCE OF OLD MADRID.—Synopsis of scenes: The Land of Castile has ever breathed of love and romance, of music, song and dance; of gay and dashing bull fighters, and dreamy-eyed fair senoritas. Our story takes us to the province

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

The exhibitor who uses an Edison Kinetoscope need not fear competition

To invest in an indifferent or inferior picture machine is to invite failure. The Edison Kinetoscope is unequalled for its brilliant, steady clear cut work. There is no unpleasant flicker, no wear on the films, no danger from fire and no complicated mechanisms to get out of order. The motion picture idea originated with Thomas A. Edison. He offers it in its most perfect form in his Kinetoscope. One of many decided improvements is its



Prices from $90.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

IMPROVED LAMP HOUSE

This lamp house is much larger than other types, has better radiation, takes longer carbons and, by reason of top, back and side openings, is much more accessible. A complete description of the Edison Kinetoscope, with illustrations, in booklet form sent free on request.

EDISON FILMS

The subjects for Edison Films are selected with great care and are acted out by talented people. They are never ordinary, but are always of a character that does not offend. They range from thrilling melodrama to brisk, lively comedy. They are made with unusual care by a process that insures absolutely perfect results. New films are prepared each week. If you will send us your address you will receive complete descriptions of the new films as they appear.

NEW SUBJECTS:

Shipment, January 26, 1909
A ROMANCE OF OLD MADRID
Dramatic
No. 6416 Code, VENGATIVA
App. Length 900 feet

Shipment, January 29, 1909
A MODEST YOUNG MAN
Comedy.
No. 6417 Code, VENGATIVOS
App. Length 900 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SHIPMENTS:

Shipment, February 2, 1909
THE ORIGIN OF BEETHOVEN'S MOONLIGHT SONATA. Dramatic.
No. 6418 Code, VENGEABLE
App. Length 900 feet

Shipment, February 5, 1909
ADVENTURES OF AN OLD FLIRT
Comedy
No. 6419 Code, VENGEANCE
App. Length 900 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 304 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries. FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

Do You Suppose

DO YOU SUPPOSE that a House of OLDEST standing, and now with four Completely Equipped Film Exchanges of its own, would continue to grow as we have Year after Year.

If

those who from the infancy of the Film Business have been served here, were not satisfied?

And If

new customers were not continually coming to us because of the sterling qualities of our Service?

The advantages that have won their confidence might reasonably invite your preference.

YOU are sure that what you get here is RIGHT.

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

Argyle Building,
KANSAS CITY, MO.

59 Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Eccles Building,
OGDEN, UTAH

Foreign Office:
HAVANA, CUBA

of old Madrid, around which has sighed many a tender tale of love.

Paquita, the beautiful daughter of poor peasants, much sought after by adoring village swains, and the admiration of strolling painters, makes her first visit to the city of her dreams on a great festival day.

She attends the bull fight and in a very romantic manner meets Carlos, the famous bull fighter, who pays here undivided attention and presses his suit with all the warmth and ardor of a Spaniard.

A cloud comes o'er Paquita's dream of happiness through fear of her brother's opposition to her lover. She agrees to elope with Carlos, on the night of the Governor's grand ball, and Carlos selects a friend to make arrangements for a successful termination of his plan.

The festival days draw to a close—Paquita is the acknowledged belle everywhere. In mask and domino the friends attend the grand ball, and at its height the friend announces all ready. The lovers slip away and are married.

The helpful friend calls later to congratulate the happy pair. His astonishment is only equalled by his delight when he realizes the ruse. Approximate length, 900 feet.

A MODEST YOUNG MAN.—Synopsis of Scenes: A guileless young man, over-modest, determines to start a crusade against all sights that offend his shrinking nature. Later, his friends—including a bevy of bright young ladies—take him in hand, and his extreme sensitiveness is considerably toned down, to his great advantage.

An innocent post card, sent by an admiring friend, picturing a pretty chorus girl, grates on his delicate nerves, and he has a fit. An unexpected corset demonstration in a store window causes him to beat a blushing retreat.

The sight of a poster displaying the charms of a prominent burlesque actress, doing some high and lofty kicking, puts him in a frenzy. Around an undraped statue of a fountain in the park he places his overcoat, to the amazement of an unsentimental Irish policeman, who promptly marches him to the lockup.

On beholding a lady, in a low-neck dress, at the opera, he faints and causes a sensation. He is shocked when he visits a man of family and beholds baby in its bath; nor does he wait upon the order of his going, but abruptly leaves.

So on through a series of adventures, all of which he relates to his friends, who finally determine to cure him of his peevishness. They arrange a fitting climax that causes him to forever forswear his prudish scruples and act like a man of sense. Approximate length, 900 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

"TOO MUCH DOG BISCUIT."—A slight drawing upon the elastic chambers of your imagination will help greatly in assimilating the following story, which is as true now as it ever was, still it may furnish additional proof of the power exercised over us by our domestics for weal or woe.

In the first scene of the above story we see a late riser at the table calling for his breakfast. The cook comes rushing in to take the order. We follow her to the kitchen and see her mix a batch of dog biscuit instead of the breakfast food ordered. This canine concoction is served to the unsuspecting one, who eats it. The effect is most wonderful. He growls and he bites at everything in sight, and dropping on all fours, bounds out of the room and into the kitchen. He leaves the impression of his molars on the cook's lower extremities, then out of the door and down the street he goes, gathering bark from the trees lining his way, and leaving his mark upon different spots of the anatomy of all who cross his path, until the dog catcher strikes his trail, then his finish, and we leave him in the cage of the dog catcher's wagon.

"A CURE FOR GOUT."—The first scene shows a gouty parent refusing the consent of his daughter to attend a masquerade ball, because her sweetheart was so unfortunate as to strike against a gouty foot. He orders daughter to her room, the sweetheart and companions out of the house; also orders the butler to lock the garden gate to prevent any one getting in or out.

The butler shows the young people from the room, down to the gate, locking gate after them, but love laughs at locksmiths. A ladder is secured and placed against the garden wall. The daughter escapes. Outside the garden wall sweetheart and friends rush her away to the ball. When the news reaches the father he decides to go to the ball and bring his daughter back. He starts, and between the time of his starting and return many strange and wonderful things happen; ending fortunately in mutual happiness, because of the successful outcome of a trial of "A Cure for Gout." The picture will tell you that the cure is one you should adopt if afflicted as was the father.

KALEM COMPANY

"THE OCTOROON."—"The Octoroon" is a story of life in the turpentine forests of the South today, and as the story progresses you will have a very good idea of the turpentine industry from the collection of the gum to the distillation of the "turps." Thus we are going to try to teach you something about our great country the while we are entertaining you with our dramatic story.

Our theme deals with a beautiful young octoroon, and her lover, who is the foreman of the turpentine still. The owner of the still, a man of Spanish descent, is a cruel, vindictive brute of little principle, and he, too, would be glad to win the favor of the girl. But she repulses him and in anger he attempts to wreak vengeance on her lover. But the hands at the turpentine still resolve to put an end to the cruelty of the overseer and draw lots to see who shall teach him a lesson. The lot falls to the young foreman, and he determines to settle the matter in a very unusual way. I will not tell you how, for the pictures will tell the story much better than I can.

Scene I.—A home in the Florida pines; lovers; the overseer.

Scene II.—The octoroon insulted by the overseer.

Scene III.—Gathering gum for the still; the overseer's whip.

Scene IV.—At the still; weighing the gum; the cooperage.

Scene V.—Conspiracy; the octoroon's lover draws the fatal lot.

Scene VI.—An unusual duel; the unexpected shot.

Scene VII.—The lover accused of murder; the colored boy confesses; love triumphant.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

TRIP ON RHODESIAN RAILWAY (Urban-Eclipse).—A scenic subject depicting in a most pleasing manner the delight of travels over a most picturesque and beautiful landscape. Length, 287 feet.

CONVERTED (Gaumont).—The story is of a young woman, who with her husband is employed by a wealthy family. Unable to resist the temptations to which she is subjected in a house of plenty and splendor, over-indulgence in liquor is the premature cause of her undoing. She is evicted from the home, leaving her husband and child behind, she goes forth into a cold and unsympathetic world to make her living. From bad to worse she travels the well beaten downward path. Her son progresses at school and is about to graduate, as is also the daughter of his father's employer. The exercises over, the child and mother come face to face at the church door. A reconciliation of the parents is effected and the mother now resolves to make a new start and merit the confidence and sympathy of a loving son and husband. Length, 884 feet.

FOR MOTHER'S SAKE (Gaumont).—A dramatic presentation. A physician called to attend the wife of a wealthy merchant finds his patient such an apt subject to his hypnotic power that he resolves to utilize this condition to a furtherance of his own ends.

He concocts a scheme by which the wife takes from her husband's desk bank-notes comprising a large value, which she delivers to the apartments of the physician.

The husband, not aware of the true conditions, accuses his wife, but the doctor's servant intercedes and the police are called. In the absence of the family the doctor makes another call upon his patient in order to make a final effort to secure more funds, when his violent attack upon the woman is resented by the latter's child, who with his father's pistol defends his mother's honor. Length, 700 feet.

FOR THEIR COUNTRY'S CAUSE (Gaumont).—An episode of love and war taken from the Franco-Prussian War.

A young Frenchman attending university at Berlin becomes infatuated with a young lady resident of that city and subsequently is endeared to the brother and entire family. The call to arms fills with dismay the hearts of all and with sincere regrets our friends separate the sweethearts, the brother entering the German army, while the student enters that of his country.

Not long after the papers announce the death of the two young men, one having shot the other in the performance of duty.

News from the front is anxiously expected, but the shock of this awful intelligence is almost too great for the respective families, who are plunged into the depths of despair over the lost. Length, 567 feet.

MESSINA AFTER THE EARTHQUAKE (Gaumont).—An accurate presentation of the awful devastation caused by nature's upheaval, taken immediately after the catastrophe. Excellent photographic detail and perspective. Length, 367 feet.

PATHE FRERES.

THE SCAR.—In this artistically colored film we see a pretty little drama of the period of Louis XIV, in which two young noblemen are in love with the charming Lady Cecile, but she shows one of them that she does not care for his attentions. In order to be near her, he makes love to her sister Lady Maude, but never misses an opportunity to let Lady Cecile know of his infatuation for her. One day when she is out strolling through the estate she is attacked by masked men who make an attempt to kidnap her, but she causes so much excitement that they let her go,

CALEHUFF

A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION

Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.

LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set

N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs
JUST OUT

Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

CHEAP
Steel Frame
Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY
Non-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,

STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
New York Office, 1402 Broadway
Boston Office, 224 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

The Chicago Transparency Co.
Manufacturers of
Plain and Colored Lantern Slides and Illustrated Songs
69 DEARBORN STREET CHICAGO, ILL.
Frederick T. McLeod, Manager

Kinetoscopes, Films, Lanterns, Accessories, Edison Supplies.

CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St., - Kansas City

but not until she bites one of the party on the hand, inflicting an ugly wound.

She returns to her home and tells of her encounter but there is no way of tracing the culprits, so the matter is let drop.

Shortly after the fellow proposes to her sister and is accepted, and when the time arrives for the wedding the happy family and friends gather around the table where the couple must sign the marriage certificate. The fiance removes his gloves and as he is about to sign his name Lady Cecile notices the scar on his hand which she inflicted with her teeth the day that she was attacked. She makes an outcry and confronts him with her proofs that he is the one who attacked her. He tries to deny the charges but the evidence is too strong against him, and Lady Cecile's fiance champions her cause and invites the villain to fight a duel, in which he is killed, much to the satisfaction of all. Length, 606 feet.

SAMMY CELEBRATES.—Sammy, who is one of the boys in the navy does some great celebrating when he reaches port, and when it comes time for him to report at roll call, he is very conspicuous by his absence. The police start out to find him and after a prolonged search, they come upon him in a cafe where he is having the time of his life. The officer places him under arrest, and starts off for the station, but Sammy is not overjoyed with his companion, so makes a bolt for liberty. He gives the officer a warm chase for a long distance, and finally seeing a delivery boy leave his little wagon at the curb, he takes refuge in it, thinking that he can evade the law. The officer saw him climb in so when he comes up he sits on top of the lid and gives orders to the boy to wheel the wagon to the station. On their way they stop to have a drink, and poor imprisoned Sammy tries his best to get out, but they manage to keep the lid down. Finally the pair imbibe too freely and begin to show signs of carrying a heavy load, with the result that Sammy takes advantage of their condition and makes good his escape this time, for the pair are in no condition to give chase. They make their way back to the station and when the officer reports to his superior officer the outcome of his escapade, he is himself locked up along with his generous companion. Length, 354 feet.

CALLING DAY.—A young couple go out calling and leave their servant alone in the apartment, but she is not lonesome very long for she has friends of her own to call on her. The first caller is the policeman on the beat, who comes in and after an affectionate salutation, she gives him a hearty meal. Suddenly they are disturbed by the bell ringing, and she hides the fellow in a cupboard, upon opening the door discovers it is only one of the tradesmen delivering some provisions. He stays a little too long and the poor fellow in the cupboard can't stand his cramped position any longer, so stretches out, upsetting everything on the shelves over himself. When he is released he is a terrible sight to behold. The good natured cook then takes him into the parlor where she serves him his coffee. As he is enjoying the beverage the bell rings again, and this time she hides him in the bath room, and goes to the door and is surprised to behold another one of her admirers, a soldier. She invites him in and he is not long in letting her know that he is hungry, so she gives him a good feast, after which they retire to the parlor to have a quiet little chat. They are just about seated, when they hear the people of the house returning, and she hides him also in the bath room along with the other fellow, who, profiting by the opportunity, takes a bath. He is unable to turn the water off and the tub is overflowing and flooding the room while he contentedly splashes around. When the soldier enters he splashes him with the water, which immediately starts a fight, and the two fellows clinch, one trying to throw the other into the tub. In their scuffle they upset the tub full of water and the place looks like a miniature lake. Finally they bolt through the door out into the hall where they run into the master of the house who is horrified at the state of affairs. He grabs both of them and kicks them out of the place followed by the unfortunate maid. Length, 469 feet.

NICK CARTER'S DOUBLE.—An old woman falls asleep in front of her home while watching a cage which contains a pet bird, and soon a fellow comes along who takes advantage of the situation and steals the bird. He is sure of having a fine feast on the little creature, so in his anticipation of having it ready to cook upon arriving at his home, he plucks the feathers as he goes along the street. When the old woman awakes and discovers that her pet is gone she puts up an awful wail, and goes straight to a detective whom she hires to run down the cruel culprit. The pompous sleuth takes a large magnifying glass, and accompanies the woman to her home and when he sees the feathers strewn along the street he follows the trail for some distance which eventually leads him to the door of the thief's house. He is unable to enter, so climbs up a drain pipe to the roof, and comes down through the chimney and is just in time to see the fellow devouring the bird. He attacks his man and soon has him under his power, and lugs him off to the station where the poor old woman is patiently waiting. He throws the thief on the table and proceeds to extract the bird from his stomach, which he does successfully with the aid of a saw, and returns the little pet to its mistress, and as a reward for all his trouble she presents him with a small bunch of flowers. Length, 469 feet.

SAVED BY HIS DOG.—An old beggar woman is standing in front of a beautiful mansion asking for alms when the inhabitants of the place come along. They give her a little change but not enough to satisfy her and when she tries to get more the butler orders her away and slams the door in her face.

Infuriated at the treatment the old woman leaves vowing vengeance. In the afternoon the housemaid has the baby out in the park, and while she is seated on a bench conversing with a friend the old hag steals the child out of its carriage and makes away without being seen. When the maid misses the youngster she returns and tells the grief stricken parents the sad news. They have a noble dog, and when he sees the family in tears he realizes that the baby is gone, so without being seen he steals out of the place and starts on a long run in search of the little one. His instinct leads him to the door of the hut where the old hag has the baby, and entering he sees the little one on a mattress on the floor while the old woman lies in a drunken stupor. The dog retraces his steps back to his master's home and whines and barks until he attracts attention and causes his master to realize that he is up to something. Finally the man follows the animal and he leads him to the place where upon entering he is overjoyed to find the lost baby. He takes the little one back to the distracted mother who is thankful to have her darling returned to her, and the noble dog comes in for his share of the adulation for performing such an intelligent act. Length, 512 feet.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

RUY BLAS.—Ruy Blas, one of Don Salluste's lackeys, falls in love with the young Queen of Spain. A woman scorned, Don Salluste refuses to marry his victim and is banished. Don Salluste plots vengeance. He disguises Ruy Blas as Don Caesar de Bezan and presents him as a kinsman of his just returned from India. The young queen falls in love with Ruy Blas. Death of Ruy Blas. Length, 900 feet.

A CASE OF SPIRITS; Or, All's Well That Ends Well.—An expressman carrying a case of champagne enters a farm yard, rests the box on the wall while he examines his book to verify the address. He takes out a bottle and takes a good long pull, then a few more, leans against the well and pushes the case of champagne into it. He runs away, and in doing so collides with the farmer's wife, who is just going for a pail of water. She jumps up, goes to the well, draws a bucketful, takes a drink from the dipper and shortly after begins to feel jolly. Her husband comes along, is very indignant at his wife's conduct and orders her into the house. Feeling warm and thirsty, he takes a drink himself and gets very jovial. He goes to another part of the yard, joins his wife and both are celebrating, taking occasional drinks of well water as a pious village gossip walks by. She gives them a lecture, then enters the house. Here an old maid member of the household is busy knitting, and to her the gossip unfolds the shameful tale of the farmer and his wife being intoxicated. The hired girl is sent for a pitcher of water. She takes a drink at the well and becomes hilarious. She finally returns with the water, doing a little dancing and kicking, much to the disgust of the gossip mongers. The old maid fills two glasses and she and her companion drain them. Then they move toward the pitcher. Both drink freely of the "tainted" water, the gossiper gets woozy, the old maid hysterical. Both begin a skirt dance in which the hired girl takes a part. While this is going on inside, the village parson calls. The hired girl opens the door, fondly embraces the minister, and after breaking loose he goes inside and finds the couple still dancing. Such conduct on the part of his church members almost paralyzes him, and he beats a hasty retreat. Coming from the house he meets the constable and excitedly tells of the awful happenings. Meanwhile the constable's donkey has been drinking from a pail standing near, gets ugly, chases the men, and in the excitement the constable falls down the well. The parson sounds an alarm, to which all hands respond, and the unfortunate man is drawn up. The expressman who dropped the case into the well now appears with the rope and grappling iron and hauls up his case with all the bottles broken. The parson marches off with the constable and expressman while the others rush for the well and go down one after the other. Length, 500 feet.

A COLONIAL ROMANCE. A lady and her lover are talking earnestly on the porch as a villainous suitor appears in the rear and watches them. The lover shortly leaves, and after watching him for a few moments the girl goes into the garden, the villain following closely. He comes upon the lady picking flowers and urges his suit. That the conversation is distasteful to her is very evident, and the girl steps back in anger as the villain makes an insulting remark. The lover returns, learns the trouble and orders his rival away, takes his sweetheart's arm and leads her into the house. The baffled man goes to his room, where he conceives a plan to wreak vengeance. He summons a colored servant, gives him a note to deliver to an Indian chief, whose camp is nearby. The note is delivered and the answer is agreeable, for the villain starts off for the camp, where plans are perfected, after which the plotter returns to the lady's home. He invites her to take a walk, a request she at first refuses, then finally grants. Their departure has been observed by a colored servant girl, whose fear for her mistress' safety causes her to warn the father and lover. They start immediately, but too late to prevent the Indians from kidnapping the girl. She is taken to the Indian encampment and placed in a wigwam, carefully guarded. The lover and the old man secure help, and with bloodhounds strike the trail which leads them to the camp. A sentry is observed in the foreground. The lover creeps cautiously up, knocks the guard senseless, dons his togs and enters the camp. Inside the wigwam the girl is tied to a pole, the villain taunting her. As the pseudo Indian enters the villain orders him out. The lover throws off his disguise, engages the villain in combat, in which the latter is bested. The Indians, alarmed by the noise, rush to the wigwam, but planters appear and repulse them. The girl is released and embraces her lover, the father granting his blessing. Length, 468 feet.

THE TALK OF THE WORLD ARE

Selig's Films

The bigger we grow the bigger the pictures will grow. Remember this is a big country. Big people don't like little pictures. This is what Selig, the Pacemaker of motion pictures says. So fall in line and join the winners as Selig's films always show to packed houses.

Order Our Next

"THE PRAIRIE TOWN ROMANCE"

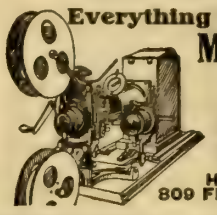
The Greatest Western Picture ever staged
Length 1000 feet

All Exchanges keep Selig's Films.

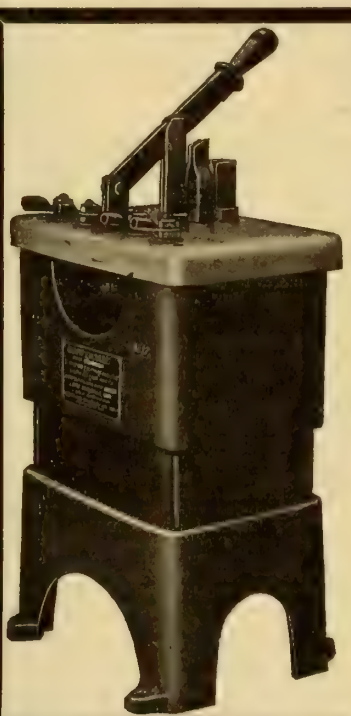
THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.
45-47-49 Randolph Street
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

A BARGAIN
$75 SNYDER MAGNISTRAT, $50
An Electric Economizer
NEW—NEVER USED



Everything in NEW and S. H.
Motion Picture Machines
Films, Stereopticons, Song Slides and Supplies. Same wanted. Catalogues free.
HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.



This Compensarc for controlling moving picture machine arc lamps

Does Not Break the Circuit

in passing from one adjustment to another. The lamp can't flicker or go out—no cause for it. After the switch blade is pushed down to the first contact it closes the circuit and starts the lamp. You can't open the circuit or cut off the current from the lamp except by pulling the switch all the way out.

No tedious delays, no worrying the audience, no bother, no heat, no extravagant, wasteful light bills if you use a

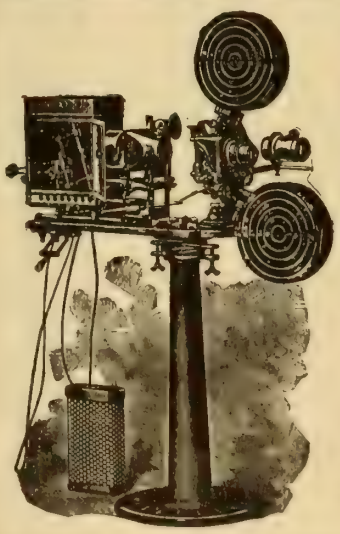
COMPENSARC

for Alternating Current Only

Approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters
Get complete description free in our Booklet 25013. Ask for it.

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
Department A
FORT WAYNE, - INDIANA

747



PREVENTS TIRED EYES AND HEADACHES

The rapidity of our new shutter has been so perfected that 30 to 40 per cent. less non-exposure (which has heretofore caused the tremulous vibration producing so many tired eyes and headaches) is found in the Motiograph than in any other machine, making perfect brilliancy of picture and sharpness of outline. Together with the rocklike steadiness of the pedestal the flicker is thus entirely eliminated.

Five-cent Theatre and Vaudeville-House Managers increase their bank account with the Motiograph. Patrons who come once will always come again where they know they see the best pictures, positively rest their eyes instead of tiring them, and where all fire risks are removed.

The Motiograph 1908 Theatre Model, Especially Approved by the Underwriters Association

OTHER POINTS OF EXCELLENCE IN THE MOTIOGRAPH found in no other machines are: A special Film Rewind by which the film can be rewound with the main crank in two minutes without removing either reels or magazines, saving time between pictures and entertainments; perfected Fireproof Magazines, Fire Traps, with four rollers and with spring actuated flanged guides, preventing side movement and making it impossible for fire to pass them; never failing Automatic Fireproof Shutters; Perfect Framing Device; Flanged Sprocket Rollers to prevent film being torn or ruined by accidentally running off sprocket wheels; Enclosed Gears and working parts; Perfect Take-up with new form of belt adjuster; Lid Off Wide Open Lamp House making it easily accessible; Improved Arc Lamp with all Hand Wheel Adjustments; Slide Carrier Swing, saving one-third more illustration for the Motion Pictures.

FILMS AND SLIDES

Headquarters for the finest, largest and most complete stock in the United States. The success of an entertainment depends on never allowing the interest of an audience to flag; patrons who have come once will come again when constant change of programme is made.

Send For NEW FALL CATALOGUE of Entertainers Supplies explaining everything and showing how big money can be made entertaining the public, sent free. Special literature describing the advantages of the Motiograph for professional entertainers and theatre managers.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO., E. D. OTIS, Mgr., Supply Dept., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Motion Picture Patents Company
10 Fifth Avenue - - New York City

The following Manufacturers and Importers of Films have been Licensed by this Company:

American Mutoscope and Biograph Company

Edison Manufacturing Company

Essanay Film Manufacturing Company

Kalem Company

George Kleine

Lubin Manufacturing Company

Pathe Freres

Selig Polyscope Company

Vitagraph Company of America

Motion Picture Patents Co.
10 Fifth Avenue - NEW YORK CITY

LATEST FILMS OF ALL MAKERS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE & BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Dec. 11—The Reckoning (Dramatic).....462 ft.
Dec. 15—The Test of Friendship (Dr.).....775 ft.
Dec. 18—An Awful Moment (Dr.).....737 ft.
Dec. 22—The Christmas Burglars (Dramatic).....669 ft.
Dec. 25—Mr. Jones at the Ball (Comedy).....503 ft.
Dec. 29—The Helping Hand (Pathetic).....841 ft.
Jan. 1—One Touch of Nature (Pathetic).....724 ft.
Jan. 11—The onor of Thieves (Dramatic).....681 ft.
Jan. 11—Love Finds a Way (Comedy-drama).....319 ft.
Jan. 14—A Rural Elopement (Dramatic).....546 ft.
Jan —The Sacrifice (Comedy).....438 ft.
Jan. 18—The Criminal Hypnotist (Dramatic).....626 ft.
Jan. 18—Those Boys! (Comedy).....342 ft.
Jan. 21—Mr. Jones Has a Card Party (Comedy).....583 ft.
Jan. 21—The Fascinating Mrs. Francis (Comedy).....417 ft.
Jan. 25—The Welcome Burglar (Dramatic).....790 ft.
Jan. 25—Those Awful Hats (Comedy).....185 ft.
Jan. 28—The Cord of Life (Dramatic).....857 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Dec. 4—Miss Sherlock Holmes (Dramatic).....600 ft.
Dec. 4—The Old Maid's Temperance Club .....300 ft.
Dec. 9—The Tale the Ticker Told (Dramatic)....900 ft.
Dec. 11—The Angel Child (Comedy) .....900 ft.
Dec. 15—Cocoa Industry, Trinidad, B. W. I. (Industrial) .....850 ft.
Dec. 18—The Street Waif's Christmas (Serio-Comic).900 ft.
Dec. 22—An Unexpected Santa Class.....900 ft.
Dec. 25—Turning Over a New Leaf (Comedy).....900 ft.
Dec. 22—An Unexpected Santa Claus (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 25—Turning Over a New Leaf (Co.).....900 ft.
Dec. 29—The Lost New Year's Dinner (Comedy)....900 ft.
Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 5—Under Northern Skies (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 8—The Worm Will Turn (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 12—Where Is My Wandering Boy To-night? (Dramatic) .....900 ft.
Jan. 15—Drawing the Color Line (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 19—Pagan and Christian (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 22—A Burglar Cupid (Comedy).....850 ft.
Jan. 26—A Romance of Old Madrid (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 29—A Modest Young Man (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 2—The Origin of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata 900 ft.
Feb. 5—Adventures of an Old Flirt (Comedy).....900 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Dec. 9—Christmas Carol .....1000 ft.
Dec. 16—The Installment Collector (Comedy).....550 ft.
Dec. 16—A Battle Royal (Comedy).....396 ft.
Dec. 23—Bill Jones' New Year Resolutions (Co.)....600 ft.
Dec. 23—Who Is Smoking that Rope? (Co.).....400 ft.
Dec. 30—In Golden Days (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 6—The Haunted Lounge (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 6—The Neighbors' Kids (Comedy).....550 ft.
Jan. 20—Old Curiosity Shop (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 27—Too Much Dog Biscuit (Comedy).....400 ft.
Jan. 27—A Cure for Gout (Comedy).....540 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Dec. 11—Maggie, the Dock Rat (Drama).....825 ft.
Dec. 18—The Molly Maguires (Dramatic).....880 ft.
Dec. 25—Red Cloud (Dr.).....880 ft.
Jan. 1—The Trial of the White Man (Dramatic)..975 ft.
Jan. 8—A Florida Feud (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 15—The Sponge Fishers of Cuba (Educational).965 ft.
Jan. 22—The Girl At the Old Mill (Dramatic).....
Jan. 29—The Octoroon (Dramatic)..... ft.

S. LUBIN.

Dec. 7—The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter .....900 ft.
Dec. 10—Dick's Aunt (Comedy).....430 ft.
Dec. 10—Charlie's Ma-in-Law (Comedy).....305 ft.
Dec. 21—Christmas Eve at Sunset (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Dec. 24—Restored by Repentance (Dramatic).....865 ft.
Dec. 31—The House at the Bridge (Dramatic).....590 ft.
Dec. 31—The Forgotten Watch (Comedy).....285 ft.
Dec. 28—A New Year (Pathetic).....565 ft.
Dec. 28—A New Year's Gift (Comedy).....330 ft.
Jan. 4—A Bitter Lesson (Dramatic).....515 ft.
Jan. 4—The Old Maid's Dream (Comedy).....390 ft.
Jan. 7—Two Orphans of the G. A. R. (Dramatic).650 ft.
Jan. 7—Leo's Air Rifle (Comedy).....320 ft.
Jan. 11—When Lips Are Sealed (Dramatic).....825 ft.
Jan. 14—Troubles of a Stranded Actor (Comedy)..620 ft.
Jan. 14—How Happy Jack Got His Meal (Comedy).175 ft.
Jan. 18—Love's Sweet Melody (Dramatic).....880 ft.
Jan. 21—The Wrong Burglar (Comedy).....615 ft.
Jan. 21—The Fighting Parson (Comedy).....270 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Dec. 23—Antique Wardrobe (Co.).....640 ft.
Dec. 23—An Awkward Habit (Co.).....331 ft.
Dec. 25—The Gallant Guardsman (Dr.).....574 ft.
Dec. 25—Silhouettes (Magical) .....371 ft.
Dec. 26—Bill Wants to Marry a Toe Dancer (Dr.)..492 ft.
Dec. 26—Water Sports (Educational).....336 ft.
Dec. 28—St. Moritz (Educational).....23 ft.
Dec. 28—Mr. Soaker at the Seaside (Comedy).....278 ft.
Dec. 30—The Ragtag's Ball (Comedy).....544 ft.
Dec. 30—The Sicilian's Revenge (Tragic).....387 ft.
Jan. 1—Anonymous Letter (Dramatic).....420 ft.
Jan 1—Strasburg (Educational) .....462 ft.
Jan. 2—Collection of Stamps (Magical).....508 ft.
Jan. 2—Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....394 ft.
Jan. 4—Two Very Unlucky Thieves (Comedy).....459 ft.
Jan. 4—Mysterious Correspondent (Comedy).....536 ft.
Jan. 6—School Children's Strike (Comedy).....380 ft.
Jan. 6—A Lovely Lass (Dramatic).....581 ft.
Jan. 8—The Wooden-Headed Veteran (Comedy)..502 ft.
Jan. 8—A Drunkard's Dream (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Jan. 9—Ted and His Little Sister (Pathetic)....538 ft.
Jan. 9—Burning of Stamboul, Constantinople, ...367 ft.
Jan. 11—Duel Under Richelieu (Historic Drama)...718 ft.
Jan. 11—Spanish Blood (Drama).....278 ft.
Jan. 13—Prehistoric Lid (Comedy).....371 ft.
Jan. 13—Stilt Walking (Comedy).....348 ft.
Jan. 13—A Nervy Thief (Comedy).....282 ft.
Jan. 15—Paper Cock-a-Doodles (Magical).....377 ft.
Jan. 15—It's Only the Painter (Comedy).....525 ft.
Jan. 16—Mr. Pynhead Out for a Good Time (Comedy) .....492 ft.
Jan. 16—The Hunchback (Dramatic).....433 ft.
Jan. 18—The Sergeant's Stripes (Dramatic).....735 ft.
Jan. 18—A Pretty Little Milliner (Comedy).....164 ft.
Jan. 20—Wonderful Eggs (Magical).....328 ft.
Jan. 20—The Stepmother (Dramatic).....649 ft.
Jan. 22—Beginning of the Serpentine Dance (M)....410 ft.
Jan 22—Buffin Wins First Prize (Comedy).....505 ft.
Jan. 23—A Fish Story (Comedy).....400 ft.
Jan. 23—Lady Cabby's Romance (Comedy).....410 ft.
Jan. 23—Bobby's Sketches (Comedy).....174 ft.
Jan. 25—The Scar (Dramatic).....606 ft.
Jan. 25—Sammy Celebrates (Comedy).....354 ft.
Jan. 27—Calling Day (Comedy).....469 ft.
Jan. 27—Nic Carter's Double (Comedy).....469 ft.
Jan. 29—Vampires of the Coast (Dramatic).....590 ft.
Jan. 29—A Put Up Job (Comedy).....348 ft.
Jan. 30—Saved by His Dog (Dramatic).....512 ft.
Jan. 30—On the Zambesi (Scenic).....328 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Dec. 3—The Football Fiend (Comedy).....485 ft.
Dec. 10—The Queen of the Arena (Comedy).....980 ft.
Dec. 17—A Montana Schoolmarm (Dr.).....950 ft.
Dec. 24—The Duke's Motto (Dr.).....1000 ft.
Drama) .....1000 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tenderfoot (Comedy).....416 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tyrant's Dream (Comedy).....420 ft.
Jan. 7—Schooldays (Comedy) .....164 ft.
Jan. 14—In Old Arizona (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....
Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....950 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Dec. 26—The Hazers (Dramatic).....300 ft.
Dec. 29—Monkey Land (Serio-Comic).....330 ft.
Dec. 29—A Dream of Wealth (Dramatic).....612 ft.
Jan. 2—Cure for Bashfulness (Comedy).....520 ft.
Jan. 2—A Sister's Love (Dramatic).....435 ft.
Jan. 5—The Bride of Lammermoor (Tragic).....540 ft.
Jan. 5—The Painting (Pathetic).....430 ft.
Jan. 9—A Telepathic Warning (Dramatic).....675 ft.
Jan. 9—He Went to See the Devil Play (Comedy).295 ft.
Jan. 12—The Heroine of the Forge (Dramatic)....315 ft.
Jan. 12—The Castaways (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Jan. 16—The Two Sons (Dramatic).....587 ft.
Jan. 16—The Bride of Tabaiva (Dramatic).....380 ft.
Jan. 19—Ruy Blas (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 23—A Case of Spirits (Comedy).....500 ft.
Jan. 23—A Colonial Romance (Dramatic).....468 ft.

KLEINE OPTICAL COMPANY.

Dec. 31—In the Shenandoah Valley (Historic
Jan. 11-16—The Bewitched Breton (Comedy).....52[illegible] ft.
Converted (Pathetic) .....88[illegible] ft.
Visions of a Goldsmith (Dramatic).....3[illegible]7 ft.
A Gypsy's Jealousy (Dramatic).....[illegible]44 ft.
Jan. 18-23—Married Twice (Dramatic).....[illegible] ft.
Jan. 18-23—Champion Suffragist (Comedy).....277 ft.
Jan. 18-23—Troubled Artists (Comedy).....507 ft.
Jan. 18-23—A Hot Remedy (Comedy).....500 ft.
Jan. 18-23—The Persevering Insurance Agent (C)...464 ft.
Jan. 23-30—Converted (Gaumont) .....884 ft.
Jan. 23-30—Trip on Rhodesian Railway (Urban)...287 ft.
Jan. 23-30—For Mother's Sake (Gaumont).....700 ft.
Jan. 23-30—For Their Country's Cause (Gaumont)..567 ft.
Jan. 23-30—Messina After the Earthquake (Gaum't).367 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Dec. 16—Changing of Souls (Comedy).....475 ft.
Dec. 16—The Spring Lock (Comic).....351 ft.
Dec. 23—Hercules the Athlete (Dr.).....500 ft.
Dec. 23—Count Zeppelin's Aerostat (Ind.).....279 ft.
Dec. 30—The Quack (Comic).....360 ft.
Dec. 30—The Queen's Love (P.).....580 ft.
Jan. 6—Mafia (Dramatic) .....720 ft.
Jan. 6—On Guard at the Powder Magazine (Dramatic) .....500 ft.
Jan. 13—Raffles' Escapes From Prison (Comedy)....700 ft.
Jan. 20—The Stepmother (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Jan. 20—Jim Smith (Comedy).....312 ft.
Jan. 20—Life in Russia (Educational).....330 ft.
Jan. 27—The Gnomes (Comedy).....450 ft.
Jan. 27—Desert Life (Comedy).....380 ft.
Jan. —Balloon Races (Scenic).....290 ft.
Feb. 3—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Dramatic).....415 ft.
Feb. 3—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Feb. 3—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.

FILM IMPORT AND TRADING COMPANY.

Dec. 2—Every Age Has Its Troubles (Comedy)....
Dec. 19—Misdeeds of a Tragical Past (Dramatic)..
Dec. 21—My Laundress Inherits (Eclair)..... ——
Dec. 21—Misdeeds of a Tragical Part (Eclair).... ——
Jan. 2—Corsican's Revenge (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 9—Soldier's Heroism (Pathetic).... ..... ft.
Jan. 16—Holy Fires .....
Jan. 16—Porcelain of Good Quality.....

LATEST SONG SLIDES

A. L. SIMPSON.

113 W. 132nd Street, New York

Sunburnt Salome.
Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Along.
When Darling Bess Whispered Yes Lecturettes on.
Our Navy.
Skyscrapers of New York.
Trip to Coney Island.
Fire Fighters of New York.
Around Manhattan Island on a Sightseeing Yacht.
As the Years Roll On.
Billy Dear.
But You, My Queen.
Childhood.
Come Kiss Yo' Mammy Good-night.
Daddy's Little Tomboy Girl.
Down in Jungle Town.
Everybody Loves Me But the One I Love.
Germany.
Hoo! Hoo! Ain't You Coming Out

DEWITT C. WHEELER.

120 W. 31st Street, New York.

Shine On, Harvest Moon.
Don't Take Me Home.
Somebody's Heart.
Promise.
Beating.
My Rosie Rambler.
I'd Like to Be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You.
Honey Dear.
Smiling Star.
The Holy Light.
That's Why I Never Married.
Why Doesn't Santa Claus Go Next Door?
The Holy Light.
You'll Be Sorry Some Day.
Smiling Star.
There Never Was a Girl Like You.
Playing School.

THE PREMO CO.

1851 Germantown Ave., Phila., Pa.

As In Days of Old, Dear Heart.
It's Nice to Be Loved By Someone.
I Lost My Heart When I Saw Your Eyes.
I Could Learn to Love You.
I Don't Want Another Sister.
If You Must Love Someone Won't You Please Love Me
Let Me Call You Sweetheart Once Again.
There's a Fleet On the Sea.
Twilight Down In Dixie.
There's a Warm Spot In My Heart For Tennessee.
Under My Merry Widow Hat.
When the Robin Sings Again.
Would You Like To Take a Walk With Me?
Your Picture Says, "Remember."
I Love You For Yourself Alone.
You're Just the Girl For Me.
I'm Going To Tell On You.

NEW TRAVELOGUES. THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY.

224 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Views in and Around Copenhagen, Denmark.
Life in Turkey.
Evangeline Land.
Santa Barbara, California.
The Crab Industry on the Oder River, Germany.
Flags and Coats-of-Arms of All Nations.
Wild Animals.
Wild Birds.
California's Infant Industries, Olive Scenes in Germany.
A Sunday in London, England.
As They Live on the Russian Steppe.

HARSTN & CO.,

138 E. 14th St., New York.

Take Me to Moving Pictures.
Love Spells Trouble to Me.
Mansion of Millionaires.
You Are the Girl for Me.
Flag of Green.
Don't Take Me Home.
When the Leaves Have Turned to Golden.
My Yankee Land.
In the Bright Moonlight.
Growing and Ostrich Farming.
Fire Lad in Blue.
My Irish Mary.

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS

ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT

Write for Samples and Full Information

THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS

59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER

SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER

GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST

J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

NEXT ISSUE:

MESSINA DISASTER (Cines)

ONE FULL REEL THE GREATEST CATASTROPHE IN MODERN HISTORY

Coming: No. 2 NICK CARTER SERIES

FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.

Representing

145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAIR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City

GAUMONT FILMS

Gaumont

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

Two reels of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

ECLIPSE

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

One reel of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

GEORGE KLEINE

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only to the high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4., No .5. January 30, 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WHICH IS INCORPORATED WITH THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY, 125 E. 23d STREET, NEW YORK

When you see PERFECT MOTION PICTURES
You'll find, in the Operator's Booth, THE MOTIOGRAPH
The Latest, the best and most durable
MOTION PICTURE MACHINE
New York, Boston, Chicago and Frisco approved
Flickerless, Steady and wonderfully Brilliant Pictures, absolutely Fireproof, Heavy, Strong and Durable.
Designed and built especially for
MOTION PICTURE THEATRE WORK
(Licensed under the patents of the Moving Picture Patents Co. of New York)
The Stereo Motiograph
combining the Motiograph and Double Dissolving Stereopticon is a Wonder and will increase your receipts.
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.

We've quadrupled our facilities during the past few months and still unable to meet the demand.
WHY? Its the QUALITY OF MACHINE AND PICTURES
We also manufacture the RHEOSTATO Current Saver saves 60 to 75% on Electric Bills, the Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit, Non-Pop Calcium Jets, Enterprise Lanterns etc., and are Agents for Oxone, Oxylithe, Arco Carbons, Song Slides, etc.
For sale by progressive and up-to-date dealers
Write for Catalogue and particulars
83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

The Eagle Film Exchange

Will give you an Exclusive Service. We handle nothing but new goods—no junk. We are prepared to give you the following makes of film: Great Northern, Eclair, Cines, Comerio, Melies, Williamson, etc.

143 N. 8th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

The New Kind

Independent Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one.

WE HANDLE THE FILMS OF THE FOLLOWING MAKERS:

Hepworth
Cricks & Martin
R. W. Paul
Granhic Cinematograph
Sheffield
Walter Tyler
British Colonial
Wrench
Williamson
Crescent Film Co.
Great Northern Film Co.
World Film Mfg. Co.

Eclair
International
Berliner Film Borse
Heinrich Ernemann A. G.
Fritz Gilics
Alfred Duskes
Internationale Kinematografen
Deutsche Mutoscope
Deutsche Bioscope Gesellschaft
Italian Cines
Centaur Film Co.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,
A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)
CHICAGO, ILL.

NOTICE

We take pleasure in announcing that as the result of an astounding increase in our business—an increase that necessitates the conserving of our various departments —we have decided to amalgamate our rental department (known as the National Film Renting Company) and our "Complete Kinodrome Service" department (known as Geo. K. Spoor & Co.) under the new firm name of

George K. Spoor Company

(INCORPORATED)

Our business, under the new caption, will be divided into two departments:

THE "RENTAL DEPARTMENT"
covering rental of licensed films to exhibitors.

THE "COMPLETE SERVICE DEPARTMENT" covering that portion of our business that pertains to our "Kinodrome Moving Picture Exhibition Complete."

Our film purchases for this new company for both departments will be virtually doubled—our facilities for the handling of more business ideal.

We solicit your enquiries as to our prices and proposition. They are both interesting.

George K. Spoor Company

(INCORPORATED)

62 North Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

BELL'S COPPER TERMINALS

FOR ASBESTOS OR RUBBER COVERED STRANDED WIRE

For Number 6 or 8 Wire

Price 10 Cents Each $1.00 Per Dozen

Easily Attached by the use of Plyers only, making a Sure Contact

Especially adapted for Motion Picture Lamp and Rheostat Connections

Use these Terminals for Lamp Connections and be insured against the Annoyance of Burned Off Wires. For Sale by all Dealers. Made by

THE BELL & HOWELL CO.
90 ILLINOIS STREET, CHICAGO

NEXT

S and A

FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK

OUR

Dramatic Feature Subject

The Musician's Love Story

(Lgth. Approx. 1,000 Ft.)

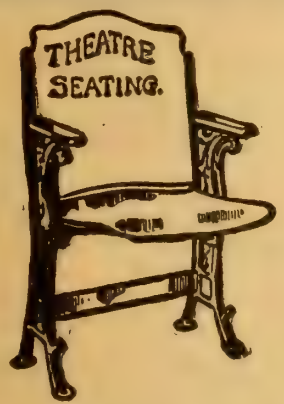
The Prettiest Story Ever Told in Motion Pictures

READY

Wednesday, February 3

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company

90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.

70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

TRADE MARK BIOGRAPH TRADE MARK

FILMS

RELEASED FEBRUARY 1, 1909

The Girls and Daddy

An intensely thrilling subject portraying the exciting experience of two little girls who, left alone in their home with a sum of money in their possession, are pursued through the house by a negro bent on robbery. They reach the garret, and one makes her way to the roof through the scuttle, where a crook is met coming from the next house, who comes to the little one's assistance. The subject besides being thrilling is a story of heart interest.

Length 901 Feet

RELEASED FEBRUARY 4, 1909

The Brahma Diamond

A story of the despoilation of the "Light of the world." The diamond which adorns the forehead of the Brahma idol arouses the cupidity of a tourist who steals it by drugging the guard. The sweetheart of the guard remains hostage while he is allowed to search for the robber, in which pursuit he is given three days. The guard finally recovers the gem just in time to save his faithful sweetheart's life. The subject is most elaborately staged and costumed, with a true Hindu atmosphere.

Length 1036 Feet

Release Days of Biograph Subjects — MONDAY and THURSDAY

GET ON OUR MAIL LIST AND KEEP POSTED
WRITE FOR OUR DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

OELSCHLAEGER BROS.

110 East 23d Street, New York

Importers of OPTICAL GOODS

Condensing Lenses
Objectives for Projection Lanterns
Tubes & Jackets for Moving Picture Machines.

Supplied to the Trade Only. Write for prices

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!

FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!

Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material

COMPLETE, $175.00

VIASCOPE MFG. CO.

Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

The A B C of the Film Business

Attention
Brains
Courtesy

At Your Disposal and Gladly Furnished by

Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co.

Pittsburg, Pa. Des Moines, Ia.
Cincinnati, O. Lincoln, Neb.
Rochester, N. Y.

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

Saturday, February 6th

we will release two films. After this date we will release two or three reels per week, according to demand. All feature films of the usual high quality, and of well selected subjects.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Moving Picture World

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company, 125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.

Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

Western Office:
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.

Vol. 4 JANUARY 30 No. 5

Editorial.

The New Order of Things.

"Only a few dealers sold the phonograph ten years ago, while to-day there are seventeen thousand dealers in the United States taking care of local demand for the phonograph. When a dealer sell a phonograph he has made not merely a customer, but a client."

Quoted from an advertisement in Scribner's Magazine for February.

The publication in our last issue of lists of licensed manufacturers and exchanges, and the circular and form of license application sent to all the exhibitors of the country, completes the sequence of literature which defines the policy of, and shows how it is to be carried out by, the Motion Pictures Patents Company. These documents demonstrate that we have no haphazard business scheme, entered on with a light heart and regardless of consequences, but a clearly thought out plan of campaign which places failure out of serious consideration. We admire the courage of those who think themselves capable of "going one better" than the Patents Company in the struggle for control of the moving picture business, but we doubt if the contestants are equally matched. The other side, however, has all the advantage of being able to borrow their competitors' methods of strategy and they would be wise to profit by them.

* * *

Now, it is our duty to try and forecast the probable effect on the trade of the new condition of affairs. The paragraph which prefaces this article gives the reader an idea of what we think is likely to happen. The position of the moving picture industry to-day resembles that of the phonograph ten years ago. Its outlook is entirely hopeful. For we have well equipped manufacturers making the pictures; enterprising exchanges (or jobbers); thousands of theaters; AND THE PUBLIC, numbered by millions, which wants, and will have, the goods, i. e., the moving pictures. All these are factors which make for common success; for putting the moving picture on the same plane of commercial government and regulation as the phonograph. It's all very well to prate about "freedom," "independence" and the rest of the shibboleths of ignorant agitation, but when your neighbor's "freedom" and "independence" mean your ruin and your friends' ruin, it is time to stop the spread of the folly. And this self immolating "freedom" and "independence" was handled most effectively on January 9 last—a day that will be forever memorable in the annals of the moving picture.

We demand to know of the intelligent reader of this article which state of affairs he prefers to see: The dog-eat-dog era that was ended on January 9, or the prosperous condition of things that is so plainly foreshadowed in the quotation at the head of this article? Common sense allows of only one possible reply. A prominent jobber of phonographs tells us that he dates his commercial success from the time when he first began to see "eye to eye" with the National Phonograph Company. They have given him protected territory; he has respected their conditions of business; and the result is success. Exactly this condition of affairs is possible in the moving picture field.

But such a satisfactory state of things, to become general, can only be brought about by sharp means, and the loyal co-operation of all concerned, manufacturers, renters and exhibitors. You must play the game strictly according to rules; and, if you do, the dimes and nickels of the public will reward you in due course. For, as we have said over and over again, the public is the final arbiter in this matter. Give the public good moving pictures in sufficient quantities and when and how it wants them, and it will infallibly respond in the most acceptable fashion. The new departure of January 9 all works in this direction. We are to have "not too much moving picture" but "just moving picture enough;" so that the public, like Oliver, will be constantly asking for more.

Like the Arab who "folded his tent and silently stole away" the undesirable is leaving the moving picture world for fresh fields and pastures new. The dishonest renter, the film duper, the unfair trader, the keepers of unsafe or unclean theaters, the undesirables, in fact, will be weeded out of the business. And this is not the least of the beneficial changes that are being surely but gradually effected by the inauguration of the new order of things bearing date January 9, 1909.

* * *

On enquiry of the Motion Picture Patents Company we learn that every application is being considered not only on its own individual and particular merits, but also in respect of the effect which its acceptance might have on the business in general. The creation of too large a body of renters would perpetuate one of the evils which it is the policy of the company to destroy, viz., excessive competition, a condition of things which will now be impossible so long as the list of applications is dealt with in accordance with the requirements of the business.

OURSELVES, THE INDEPENDENTS, AND THE EXHIBITORS.

Several of our friends among the Independents have remarked during the past week: "We are sorry to see that the Moving Picture World has gone over to the Trust."

We wish to record the fact once and for all that we do not permit this paper to be used for the advancement of any one particular faction in the moving picture field. Quite recently we were invited to espouse the Independent cause. We replied that party affiliations were never considered in our policy. This paper stands for the progress and best interests of moving pictures, without fear or favor. We have not been approached by the Trust and do not expect to be; but if we were, our answer would be the same.

We have commented favorably on the combination under the Motion Picture Patents Company because we believe in the project and respect the men who are carrying it out. Months before we knew that such a company was to be formed, we suggested that the moving picture business could only be saved from ruin by the control of the manufacturers under an executive body of capable men. When the combine was launched we saw in the new company the necessary means of control and the possibility of placing the business on a higher level than before. In carrying out their declared intentions the new company will have the moral support of this paper so long as their policy is fair and honorable.

THE INDEPENDENTS.

We also recognize the right of the Independents to fair play and adequate representation in the press, and we will warmly encourage any progressive movements that they may make. We wish to see a good and open fight, for the keener the competition on certain lines, the better for the welfare of the business as a whole. Our duty is to present all the news and facts impartially and to make such comments as may seem to be reasonably called for, and that duty we shall discharge, week by week, to the best of our knowledge and ability. So far the Patents Company have simply issued documents to the exchanges and exhibitors setting forth the terms on which business can be done with the already licensed manufacturers. In reply the Independents have attacked those documents from various points of view, in order to prevent exchanges and exhibitors from signing. This is fair enough warfare in its way, but, unfortunately, the Independents are using some arguments that must eventually weaken their own cause.

THE EXHIBITORS.

In their appeal to the exhibitors not to sign the application for a license, they say that this application is a "binding contract which ties the exhibitor hand and foot." This is not so. The application is only for a permit to run licensed film on a licensed machine, to be accompanied with the fee for that privilege. The exhibitor does not even need to sign the application. If he simply tenders his check or cash and asks for a license, it will be granted as readily as if he signed a hundred application forms. From the time of his application for a license he is expected to comply with the requirements, but he is at perfect liberty to quit at any moment, return or destroy his license, and use unlicensed film and unlicensed projecting machines. He will not then be molested if his machine does not infringe those owned by the Patents Company.

There is no intimation that those who do not take out a machine license will be molested, and this license, if it is taken, is not binding. If an exhibitor decides that he must have association film, the license is necessary. In that case the quicker he makes his application, the better. Exhibitors and exchanges should also note that an exhibitor is protected under the license from the time that he makes the application, although he may not have received the certificate. After the five weeks which the entrance fee of $10 covers, the license fee will be graded so that small theaters will not be required to pay $2 per week. Large places may have to pay more, but, as one theater owner said, "I am willing to pay $10 per week; yes, $100 per week, if I can be assured of protection and relief from the baneful influence on the business of the pikers who show stuff that simply disgusts the public."

We refer to these points because the exhibitors have asked us by 'phone and by letter what is our advice in regard to signing. To all we say: "Lose no time in getting a license if you wish the film of the associated manufacturers and pay no attention to the letter of the Patents Company if you decide to use independent films."

PROVINCE OF THE MOVING PICTURE.

By Burton H. Allbee.

The principal province of the moving picture is to amuse. Men and women are merely children grown a little bigger in size. They crave amusement of one sort or another, and as a rule they demand a little exhilaration in it. In other words, this amusement to be entirely successful must be seasoned in some way. Hence there is a species of film which suggests immorality in some form. Or there is an amusement which reproduces contests of various sorts, including those which end in the death of one or more of the participants. Perhaps this latter form is the more common of the two, and it may well be questioned whether the influence is as bad as it is painted. Sometimes one is disposed to think that more harm is done by watching constantly the pictures in which the story is based upon the infidelity of either husband or wife than is done when actual murders or larceny are pictured.

Assuming that amusement is the primary consideration of the moving picture, it becomes evident that the films should be so far as possible of an amusing character. This need not reduce their educative quality. It may, indeed, be helpful to it. The two can be combined without detriment in many instances, while in others the educative element must be eliminated, otherwise the force of the pictures will be lost.

Manufacturers should always have in mind the production of films for moving pictures which are of the right quality to amuse, but they need not forget the educative feature. And they should be careful about introducing the immoral influences which often form an important part of the story. The danger lies in subtle suggestions rather than in broad and well understood allusions. The indistinguishable allusions to vice are more dangerous than open description. The danger lies in suggestion and its development rather than in the open discussion of the subject.

Remembering this, manufacturers ought to make their films as amusing as possible, not in the sense that all should raise a laugh, but in the broader sense that all films which tell an interesting story in an easily understood way are amusing and deserve consideration by the audience. And they will get it. The bulk of the audiences which gather in the different theaters are not entirely given over to silliness and inspidity. They want something with strength, something that will rouse their dormant romantic instincts and create for them new conceptions and develop new representations of the subjects of life. And life is so many sided that the array of interesting subjects is endless. There is really no excuse for introducing immoral subjects. There are enough of the other sort to maintain the interest without resorting to questionable means. The province of the moving picture is clearly understood. And this province should not be invaded by anything which tends to degrade or pollute the show. Keep it clean and lively and the patronage will be yours.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the Moving Picture World? $2 per year—52 numbers

THE HUMAN VOICE AS A FACTOR IN THE MOVING PICTURE SHOW.

By James Clancy.

The writer of the article, "The Human Voice as a Factor in Moving Pictures," in the last issue of the Moving Picture World, brought out some useful facts, but leaves himself open to slight criticism, in regard to talking pictures produced by people behind a drop. He states in his article that the illusion cannot be made perfect. He is right to a certain extent, but if judgment is used in selecting the reels to be used as talking pictures, a great deal of difficulty can be overcome. Certain reels which are very good for a lecture (a point I will take up later in my article) will not be suitable for talking pictures. If details and effects are to be brought out in talking pictures, the actors and actress must use judgment in regard to placing the voices of the character in speaking from the center of the drop. The line should be read directly behind the character that he or she is impersonating. This will apply either to the right or the left of the center. At all times, in talking from behind a drop, try to keep as near to where the character is standing as possible. All letters and titles, before scenes, should be taken out, so that the story will not be told before the actors and actresses have read their lines, as this will have a tendency to kill the dramatic climax. The operator must also be drilled carefully and thoroughly in regard to the running speed of films, of struggles, horses galloping, battle scenes, which must be run very fast, while scenes in offices and homes must be run at a certain speed to bring out the desired effect of the character, and to give the necessary illusion. But many will ask, How can this be brought about? The answer is in rehearsing and drilling the people, not alone by explanation, but by having everyone act the character thoroughly, as if he were appearing on the stage, without being hidden by the drop. As an example, take a woman in tears. She should go through the same action that she would if it were happening to her in real life, using the handkerchief and hands and all gestures that accompany it. Struggles should be gone through in the same manner. To make the effect more complete, the breaking of a glass or the shooting of a revolver or a gun, or slapping the hand on a table to bring out a convincing point in an argument should always be done by the person speaking the line. A great deal of thought and consideration must be given when selecting a company. I have found that people with stock or repertoire experience, that are bright and can think, usually make the best talking picture actors and actresses, as they study the script much quicker than the others, and sometimes they have lines which are much better than the ones which you provide for them. Still, I do not advocate or advise rehearsing the people too much, as they lose a certain amount of interest in the subject, and as we all know they are compelled to do anywhere from four to ten shows daily, it is a hard matter to keep them interested, and if they lose the interest they lose the effect which you are after. Talking pictures can and will receive applause from the audience for speeches and climaxes, the same as a traveling theatrical company, providing the proper spirit is put in the work. Applause will also be given to characters when they are shown on the drop, like the late President Abraham Lincoln or General Grant, or any other well-known character. The only fault that I have found with this is that the actors do not impersonate the characters with the dignity and bearing called for. They all seem to think that they should shout to be heard through the drop, which is wrong, as we all know the voice will carry much better when spoken in an ordinary tone. The actors and actresses back of drop must watch every minute, so that they will not be talking when characters are not seen before their entrance or after exit. No doubt a great many will wonder what subjects are best adapted for talking pictures. This will depend a great deal upon the clientele to which you are playing. War pictures are always sure fire hits. Melodramatic ones are always very good, providing they are not too sensational. Plays like "East Lynne," "Camille" and "The Two Orphans" can be made to stand out with proper attention to the minor details. It is advisable in plays of this nature to follow as near as possible the original script. Any subject of a historical nature must be one that your audience is familiar with, or else it will not be a success. Comedy reels are also good, providing that you can keep up swift action. The talking pictures are only in their infancy, and they will grow and get better, and the people are going to like them more every day, providing judgment is used in these suggestions. An audience will sit and listen to good grammar and proper pronunciation, and stories with some logic, but they will not stand for fake lines and people back of the drop talking about something that they do not understand. If the artists will put their heart and soul into their work they will make this part of the moving picture line as much a success for themselves as for the manager. In regard to lecturing upon reels, it will always be a success, providing it is handled in the proper manner and the lecturer uses judgment in his language. If he will use plain, every-day English, and not words which he does not know the meaning of himself, and that the audience will not be compelled to have a dictionary beside them to find out what he is talking about, he will find that they will give him their undivided attention. If the lecturer will go right on with his lecture and not stop until he has finished he will find the applause of the audience will show him that they are satisfied with his efforts. As I stated early in this article, talking pictures are only in their infancy. The lecturer also is only in his infancy. I think the time is not far off when three and four-act dramatic productions will be produced in moving pictures by persons behind the drop. People themselves will get away from the idea that they are getting buncoed by five and ten-cent theaters, but are receiving more for their money than in any other branch of the amusement line. The recreation which they thereby receive will make them regular patrons of the moving picture theaters.

WEEKLY COMMENTS ON THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

I like the Unique Theater, Fourteenth street. The seating arrangements are good and the rectangular shape of the hall removes any latent impression one might have of being in a theater, instead of a proper moving picture house. The Unique looks as if it had been specially built for the business. It has a nice stage; shows a good sized picture; has multiple screens, which are easily displaced or replaced; the projector is, apparently, well housed up at the back of things, and it doesn't make any noise or throw off useless rays of light. Then, between whiles, when the stage is idle and people are waiting for the show to begin, the Unique is well illuminated, and so there is plenty of light by which to study your fellow mortal.

The vaudeville acts were some of the best I have seen in this city, or any other city, and were alone worth the ten cents charged for admission. They certainly amused the audience. And, thank God, there were no song slides, and no sickly sentimentality in the way of lachrymose ballad singing. If the song slide is to retain its position as a factor in moving picture entertainments, it must be bright and virile in theme; the pictures must be better both in monochrome and color, than any I have seen; and the people paid to sing to them must be able to sing. At present they can't, won't or don't.

With one exception the films shown were, I think, old. An Urban journey on an African railroad aroused languid interest. Some excitement was caused by the hypnotic subject, "For Mother's Sake." A (French) doctor hypnotizes a woman patient; causes her to rob for him; abandons her; re-pursues her, and finally is shot down in her room. The husband forgives her and all ends happily. "How sad," said a woman neighbor of mine, at the Unique. Yes, how sad, Messieurs Gaumont. Don't you think you could give us brighter, livelier, cheerfuller subjects? The public is asking for them; they are tired of the unpleasant, the murderous, the depressing.

The most ambitious subject shown was "The Bride of Lammermoor"; elaborate, clever, but stagy and stilted. I know the Lammermoor country well; I have seen the opera, and Henry Irving play Edgar, and I judge this film to be a very excellent effort, although it didn't seem to please my audience greatly. Just a word to the producer, who takes a liberty with Scott's text by making Edgar commit suicide and die, a ghastly object, at the foot of sea-swept rocks. That is just exactly what he did not do in the book; he was swallowed up by quicksands, was Edgar; and poor old Caleb Balderstone saw the going of his beloved master. Come, come, Mr. Producer, let us have historical accuracy, please.

Some very realistic pictures of the after incidents of the Sicilian earthquakes were shown in a Gaumont film. These caused deep emotion amongst the audience, who looked on at the burnings, the funerals, the misery and the sufferings in silent sympathy. A cameraphone talking picture act of Clarice Vance went "without a hand." The photograph was not good and the "record" about as unlike the voice of a singer as it well could be.

I do not think the Unique programme is as up-to-date as it could be made to be. A rainstorm in the Urban film caused a child near me to ask his mother, "What's that?" Once the impression gets abroad amongst the public that the moving picture houses are falling back on "old junk" the public may be safely relied upon to severely stay away.

THE INDEPENDENT FILM PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

Meeting in Chicago.

A mass meeting of exhibitors and renters was held in Chicago on Tuesday, January 26. Mr. Richard Friedlander, of Chicago, called the meeting to order. Representatives from all important Independent manufacturers were present, and about 300 exhibitors from various parts of the country.

The chairman read the license agreement issued by the Motion Picture Patents Company, which was severely criticised by several speakers, and especially the clause which calls for a royalty of $2 per week for all projecting machines licensed under the patents of the trust. The exhibitors present were urged not to sign.

Mr. Bauerdorf, of the Film Import and Trading Company, New York, stated that the present output of the Flm Import and Trading Company was three reels a week. He advised strongly against signing contracts with the trust and stated that in a very short time 14 reels of independent films would be issued; at the present time seven reels could be had. Other speakers to the same effect were Dr. Richard Ray, of the K. & C. Film Exchange, Kansas City, vice-president of the Independent Film Protective Association, and Mr. Brandenburgh, of the International Film Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, who stated that his concern could supply the trade with a weekly output of first-class motion picture film.

Mr. Pink, of the Viascope Manufacturing Company, announced that his concern soon could place a projecting machine on the market that would not infringe on the licensed patentees. Mr. Rubel, representing Chicago Film Exchange, Globe Film Exchange and Royal Film Exchange, stated that these three concerns had appointed a committee to investigate the resources of the Independent market. One agent was covering the American market, another sailing for Europe to secure assistance of prominent foreign manufacturers; a third was organizing and agitating the exhibitors all over the country, and an office was needed to solicit correspondence. Mr. Rudel furthermore stated that the best lawyers in Chicago, among others, Levy, Mayer & Co., had been employed at very great expense to fight their case, and would protect Independent exhibitors free of charge. Other speakers were Mr. George F. Kearney, secretary of the Independent Protective Association, who made a short review of the meeting in New York City, and the officers appointed and referred the meeting to the advertising campaign that had been conducted. Mr. Horsley, of the Centaur Film Company, Bayonne, N. J., stated that he could offer the independent market 1,000 feet of film a week, and that his concern were equipping a first-class studio at large expense. Mr. McMillan, of the Unique Film and Construction Company, announced that for the present time he could supply independent exhibitors with seven reels a week. Several others spoke; also many exhibitors.

The audience applauded every speaker very strongly, and it certainly looked as if there wasn't a licensed man in Chicago. When asked by the chairman if the exhibitors would sign their freedom away, everybody shouted "No." But trouble was soon to come. Mr. George H. Hines, one of the most prominent exhibitors in Chicago, was by his fellow-competitors several times requested to speak, but refused, and consented only after an overwhelming demonstration. Mr. Hines said that he had not come to the meeting to speak, but when pressed to express his opinion he wished to state that he was the first exhibitor to sign the new agreement of the licensed manufacturers, and that he was proud of that, and that his personal opinion was the Patents Company was going to treat everybody fairly and protect them in every way, as they had promised. Mr. Hines is the most popular exhibitor in Chicago, and it seems that his statement made quite an impression.

The meeting was then disbanded.

A meeting will be held this week in Detroit, and exhibitors are expected from all the State round the lake. A committee was appointed to lead the agitation for the Independent movement, with Richard Friedlander, president; Samuel Canter, secretary, and D. L. Swartz, treasurer.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS ON THE COMBINATION.

The New York World.

The consolidation effected by the moving picture manufacturers and operators possesses many of the aspects of a benevolent trust. This view is based on the assumption that the promoters of the merger are actuated by the high motives which animate theatrical syndicates and desire primarily to improve the quality of this form of popular entertainment.

In other words, there is the prospect of an elevation of the nickelodeon drama. Having acquired a monopoly of films, material, etc., as well as of five-cent theaters, the trust will be in a position to close down unprofitable or undesirable concerns and to regulate the character of the shows.

On its serious side the combination offers a satisfactory way out of the muddle in which the police and the moving picture operators have become involved by the indiscriminate closing of the cheap theaters. The trust may be looked to to separate the good from the bad and to exercise a careful censorship of films as a matter of sound business policy.

It will be against its plain financial interest to countenance the production or exhibition of any pictures of a suggestive or improper kind or to encourage a risk of life in firetrap halls.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE STOLEN.

Auburn, Ind., January 12.—Jay Thompson, manager of the Butler Opera House, was dumbfounded when he went to his playhouse and found his moving picture machine gone. On investigation he found that some daring thief had removed the glass from the ticket window and, crawling in, unlocked the door. The machine was disconnected from the live wires and carried away. There is no clew.

SUNDAY SHOW PROTEST.

Foreign Element Said to Be Principal Law-Breakers.

A mass meeting of clergymen and others interested in the suppression of vaudeville and moving picture shows on Sundays was held last Monday in the Marble Collegiate Church, the Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell presiding. Other speakers were Bishop Frederick Courtney, the Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn; Dudley Field Malone, of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York; the Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers, of the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn; the Rev. Dr. J. Wesley Hill, of the Metropolitan Temple, and Canon William Sheaf Chase, of Brooklyn. Resolutions were passed condemning Sunday shows.

Dr. Burrell was applauded when he said:

"The syndicate that is furnishing the indecencies for the city laugh at us when we Christian ministers come together only once a year and then let go. We have let go, yes, but only to spit on our hands and take hold again."

Dr. Carson said that in fighting for a Christian Sunday the forces of "greed of gain" and "love of pleasure" must be overcome. He said the State was betraying her children in the example of Sunday observance, and urged a vigorous campaign at Albany. In closing Dr. Carson said:

"It is not the business of the Mayor of Greater New York to say what laws shall be enforced or not. He has taken his oath to enforce the law and should and must be compelled to do so."

Dudley Field Malone said that this country must be sustained as a Christian Country, and he made an appeal to the Jewish citizens to repay the liberal benefits and protection which they receive by joining the Christians to preserve Sunday observance.

The resolutions passed urged the Mayor not to renew licenses in May for moving picture places against which there have been complaints, and asked that a censorship of moving pictures be established.

Resolutions containing a direct appeal to the Jews to become interested in the movement were then passed. They read, in part:

The Constitution of the United States and of New York State recognize Sunday as a day of rest, existing by common law, without need of legislative action.

The State Legislature has the right to regulate its observance as a civil and political institution.

That the enforcement of laws enacted by the Legislature for this end have been nullified of late through the activity of skilled lawyers and political manipulators generously fed by the Sunday amusement business.

This evasion and willful disobedience of the law they justified by an asserted change of public opinion in general and by the rapidly increasing Hebrew element who observe Saturday as their Sabbath.

That the moral duty of every applicant for American citizenship, Jew or Gentile, is subscription to American law and custom. The Jew is not ethically justified in distorting the legal permission to labor on Sunday, which is a generous concession to his interpretation of the fourth commandment, into permission to conduct any amusement or other business on that day.

Had last year's Legislature passed the law proposed by many Jewish citizens, all Christian employees of Hebrew merchants would have been robbed of their rest day. Even now Hebrew business men are compelling Christians to work on Sunday.

That we call upon our Jewish brethren to substitute for the letter of Sabbath the spirit of his Holy Day adopted by the Constitution and common law of this land as a satisfactory recognition of his religion.

We ask him, conceding this point of difference concerning the particular day of the week, in return for the generosity of our free institutions to unite with the Christian forces to secure one day of the week for the whole people, free from business and free for worship.

A collection was then taken up to defray the expenses of issuing literature. The next mass meeting will be held on March 1.—New York Times.

Magistrate Butts, sitting in Morrisania Court, Jan. 26, fined Frank Bacci, proprietor of a moving picture place at 4430 Third avenue, $10 for keeping his show open last Sunday in violation of the law. He also fined Bacci's operator, Boyd Adkins, of 315 East Eighty-first street, $5.

"Foreigners come here of different religions, or of no religion, or with different days for observing their religious duties than our Sunday, and they want to do as they please on Sunday, regardless of our laws," said the magistrate. "They may influence some courts, but not this court. All violators of our Sunday laws will be punished when brought before me and found guilty."

MOVING PICTURES MADE BOY WANT TO BE HOBO.

James Lennon, a Germantown lad, celebrated New Year's night by taking in a moving picture show on Germantown avenue, near Wayne Junction. One of the pictures shown depicted the adventures of a tramp. His experiences on the road appealed to the boy's roving nature. After leaving the entertainment he went directly to the Wayne Junction yards with the intention of taking a freight train out of the city. Here he met two tramps, who were waiting for a similar chance. A policeman arrested the three. Next morning the two tramps were given thirty days' free board and the boy was returned to his parents.

The audiences of the picture shows are largely drawn from the young whose tastes are unformed and with whom curiosity is far better developed than discretion. For such persons any sensational and immoral displays become an example of evil, and a suggestion of wrongdoing, and they have a tremendous influence toward a permanent debasement of taste and a chronic impairment of moral judgment.

In too many cases the pictures displayed are criminally suggestive and educative. They are the old dime novel in action, and infinitely more powerful for evil than any printed book could be. In some cases the pictures are indecent, and often they are extremely vulgar.

The American public will watch with interest the result of the campaign which the newly-formed Motion Picture Patents Company will wage in providing stricter regulations and elevating the tone of the plays and of the theaters.—Philadelphia Telegram.

CHEAP VAUDEVILLE BLAMED FOR THE EVIL TENDENCIES OF SOME FIVE-CENT SHOWS.

A writer in the Chicago Daily News says:

"Is the tendency of our five-cent theaters elevating or demoralizing? I believe that some of them are growing more lax morally each month. I attended one last evening on Madison street, after a lapse of some three months, and much of the vaudeville was not only suggestive but blasphemous. Downright blasphemy should not be permitted on the stage in a Christian land. It is revolting to those who have been brought up to respect the word of God. The picture shows have nothing to gain by lowering their standard. On the contrary, they are likely to lose the weekly and sometimes daily nickels of thousands of church people, parents and children, who, while they will not attend a regular theater, consider it no harm to enjoy these moving pictures."

We quote the above opinion because it in a large measure reflects our own views. Only a few weeks ago we listened to a "turn" in an otherwise well conducted five-cent theater which was "downright blasphemy," so plain that it was severely criticised by the operator, who was anything but religious in his views.—Ed.

URGE LAW TO SHUT SHOWS TO YOUNG.

Efforts to make it impossible for children under 16 years of age to attend moving picture shows were again made this week, when the Committee on Laws and Legislation of the Board of Aldermen gave a public hearing on a proposed ordinance to this effect. Representatives of reform movements in the city spoke in commendation of the proposed legislation and there was no opposition.

John F. Hylan, City Magistrate in Brooklyn, said that the present laws prohibiting children in theaters do not relate to moving picture shows, which are operated under a common license.

Mr. Preston, superintendent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in Brooklyn, said: "We find hundreds of children almost every day in these moving picture places when they should be in school."

Canon William Sheafe Chase, in urging the measure, said: "I wish it clearly understood that I am not against moving pictures. I believe in them, and we must have amusements, but I believe they should be regulated and made moral."

DO MOTION PICTURES NEED AN APOLOGY?

Especially one like this which we quote from an editorial in the Albany (Ga.) Herald:

"The moving picture entertainment is hardly calculated to appeal to the better side of one's artistic temperament. Motion pictures are manufactured for commercial purposes only, and one must needs be generous when essaying to criticise. For instance, when stirring scenes of the Colonial period are being thrown upon the canvas, the spectator is not supposed to take note of the telegraph and telephone poles at the edge of a modern macadamized road, or of a Colonial Dame scrubbing clothes in a 20th century galvanized iron wash tub; nor should one's sense of the eternal fitness of things be outraged by the spectacle of Indian braves, acting as escort to Pocahontas, carrying that dusky princess's luggage in sacks bearing the familiar 'Purina' label.

"But, our cherished artistic temperaments to the contrary notwithstanding, we will continue to patronize the moving picure shows. They may not be uplifting, but there is a considerable part of the most of us that isn't intent upon being uplifted."

MOVING PICTURES AS COURT EVIDENCE.

The use of moving pictures as indisputable evidence was demonstrated in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn on Tuesday of this week, when Stephen McGardy, a ten-year-old boy, through his guardians, sued the Coney Isalnd and Brooklyn Railway Company for $50,000 damages as a result of falling from a car. The boy's leg was supported by a metal brace, and it was claimed by his lawyers that he was permanently disabled and would always have to wear the brace. Great surprise was in store when the lawyers for the defense asked that the room be darkened and exhibited on an improvised curtain motion pictures showing the McGardy boy engaged in all kinds of athletic sports, wrestling and running matches, etc., and without wearing any brace or showing any physical weakness. The judge ordered a sealed verdict. This was handed in by the jury the following day, awarding the boy $8,500. The defense immediately appealed from the decision on the ground that the evidence shown did not justify the award.

THEATRICAL MAN SAYS A WORD FOR M. P. SHOWS.

Touching on the subject of Sunday shows, a correspondent to the New York Herald has this to say:

"I would like to say a word about Sunday amusements in general and moving picture places in particular. If I were prejudiced it would not be in favor of moving picture theaters, for I am in the theatrical business, and there is not any doubt that they hurt us to quite a considerable extent. Nevertheless, I say, do not close them on Sunday, for by closing them on Sunday you aim a blow at them that in many cases would close them permanently, and that would be a hardship not only to those who have their money invested and some hundreds of people who are employed in them, but to the patrons as well, for these patrons are largely those who cannot attend the regular theaters.

"To many families I consider the moving picture shows a real blessing. The tired nerves are rested and for the time being they forget the trials and struggles of their sordid lives. Their nerves rested, there is less irritability and consequently less friction in the small apartments that they call home. They have seen something that they will talk about, that will interest them, educate them, broaden their views, give them new ideas, and, best of all, it keeps them all together, when too often the man of the family would be spending the afternoon and evening in playing cards in the corner saloon, for some amusement is just as necessary for a working man as for a millionaire.

"I assert that morally and physically men and women are better for the moving picture shows and the theaters on Sundays as well as week days."

THE TENEMENT HOUSE LAW

is the means through which the city authorities are now oppressing the moving picture theaters. An important decision by Magistrate Breen against one exhibitor is being quoted as a precedent, but the lawyer for the defense has given notice of an appeal.

NO FREEZEOUT OF EXHIBITORS CONTEMPLATED.

Who is responsible for the canard that has been circulated by the Associated Press all over the country to the effect that the new combine intends to reduce the number of shows by one-half? Ridiculous and unfounded as the rumor is, it has given much trouble to exchange men who have been called upon by exhibitors to explain the object of the Patents Company.

As good an explanation as any that we have seen is that given to a representative of the Philadelphia Press by Dr. B. A. Baer, manager for S. Lubin.

"It will be one of the objects of the new combination," said he, "to wipe out, if possible, the apologies for films which are shown in many small places, especially in small towns. Not only worthless from a photographic standpoint, many of these films are immoral as well. If there is any 'freeze-out' at all it will be directed against those who have been purchasing fourth-rate films for little or nothing and charging the public good money to see the pictures."

Robert Leiber, of the H. Leiber Company, film renters, Indianapolis, Ind., says:

"The organization that has been effected will probably mean that there will be fewer moving picture shows that in the past, but there is no doubt that the entire moving picture business will be placed on a very much higher plane.

"All of the moving picture patents interests have been consolidated into one great company, and it will control the moving picture show business. It will cease to sell film and will only rent it to licensed moving picture shows. A nominal license fee will be charged. The license will only be granted when some general requirements, much to the benefit of the moving picture business, will be met.

"Among these requirements will be a demand for adequate fire protection, competent operators and good reproducing machines."

EXHIBITORS

are beginning to make favorable comment on the moving picture merger. Manager J. H. Brannen, of the Colonial Theater, Evansville, Ind., says that he sees in it a means of getting more regular change of pictures, more early retirement of worn-out films and pictures of better quality. He believes in motion pictures as a means of education and moral instruction when the right kind of films are shown, and has much hope in the power of the new company to regulate the distribution and eliminate much of that kind of film which has been classed as objectionable.

THE CAMERAPHONE.

The work of the cameraphone at the Theater Unique has been better this week. For instance, the singing of the College Four was not only well acted, but the voices seemed to be reasonably free from the metallic sound which has heretofore been inseparable from the phonograph. "The Jolly Blacksmiths" brought vigorous applause from the large audience.

It seems that selections in which the figures move considerably are far more satisfactory than are those in which they stand still or face the audience. The natural tendency is to watch the speaker's lips, and this is more or less dangerous. The words and the pictures are not always in perfect unison.

A singing and dancing act posed by the Elton Sisters was good, but a scene of troubles in a business block was not always so good. Another scene of an Irish party jigging was fairly good, but several times the music for the dance began before the fiddler raised his bow. Of course, not everyone watches these pictures so critically, yet manufacturers will be the first to recognize the fact that whatever success comes with talking pictures must be because they are perfect. Action is necessary, but yet greater care must be exercised in the poses and the words to keep them together.

EARTHQUAKE FILMS.

As soon as confirmation of the reports of the great disaster in Italy was obtained, the Vitagraph Company cabled to the manager of their Paris branch to proceed immediately to the scene and rush forward the negative. This he did, and we learn that he arrived on the scene at no small personal risk and inconvenience, having to walk a great distance, burdened with his outfit. But luck was with him from then and he secured a very complete record of the extent of the disaster, which was dispatched by the first steamer. An automobile was waiting at the dock for the arrival of the vessel, and as soon as the precious package was released it was rushed to the factory in record time and all hands worked night and day to get the prints in readiness for this week's release. The film is now holding the breathless interest of crowded houses and reflects great credit on the resources and enterprise of the Vitagraph Company.

Pathe, Gaumont, and the Society Italian Cines also have earthquake films, and taken altogether the American public have the satisfaction of witnessing the devastations of the catastrophe without risk to themselves, and the heartrending scenes shown should help to open the purse strings of those who have not yet contributed to the relief fund.

UNDESIRABLES.

A building inspector visiting several of the Indianapolis theaters one afternoon, found the operator in one booth smoking a cigar, with several reels of uncovered film lying around. This operator did not have a license.

An exhibitor (and as such should have known better) entered the office of the Swanson Film Exchange in Omaha, Neb., with a lighted cigar, which he carelessly allowed to come in contact with a reel of film. As a consequence the entire stock, fixtures and machines of the Swanson concern was a total loss, and several other tenants in the building suffered losses. This happened, although signs saying "No smoking allowed" were prominently displayed. Telegraph orders to other offices of the company enabled the shows to make their changes until a fresh stock could be shipped to Omaha.

The proprietors of three shows in East Liverpool, Ohio, are under the fire of the authorities for openly and flagrantly violating the State laws.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

The new order of things was demonstrated in the films of the week. The output was noticeably reduced and there was a good deal of duplication in theaters near each other, where heretofore the films have been different. Further, it was seen in numerous places by the return to subjects shown some time ago. This was true, too, in outlying towns. Old subjects, or, at least, subjects which have been out some time, were seen in a number of leading places outside of New York. Perhaps one cannot say that the shows have suffered by this reduction in the subjects offered. Not everyone has followed the films as closely as the writer of this, consequently many of those shown have been quite as new as they were when first offered to the public.

The quality of the output of the week has been good. Perhaps not so many notable ones have been produced, but the comics have been funnier, and there has been even less of the dime novel style than the week previous. Anything along this line will be appreciated by audiences, no matter where they may be. The elimination of dime novel stories is much to be desired, and the sooner the new association accomplishes this the sooner will it place the moving picture business upon a better basis.

A limited output should mean a better output, and undoubtedly that is exactly what will occur. The situation has improved so much in this respect recently that the friends of the business feel gratified and confidently expect to see still further improvement in this direction.

NOTES FROM CHICAGO.

By Our Western Representative.

Surprise was expressed here at the absence of Carl Laemmle's name from the published list of the Motion Pictures Patents Company's licensed renters. An explanation was, however, soon forthcoming. Mr. Laemmle has several branches and it was necessary for him to consult the managers of them on several points before sending in his application. This having been done, Mr. Laemmle's application was duly made on Saturday, January 23, and accepted on the following Monday. We have Mr. Laemmle's authority for stating that he is completely satisfied with the new state of affairs, which he believed to be the only possible solution of the problem.

Mr. J. R. Edwards, who was formerly connected with the Chicago office of the Wm. H. Swanson Company, and later with the Kansas City office of the same concern, now holds the position of general manager of their St. Louis office. Mr. Edwards has had great experience of the film business and is popular amongst his clientele.

Apropos W. H. Swanson: This firm is doing a very large business and their magnificent office, probably the largest of the kind in the country, is always full of people asking for Mr. Swanson. If one gets two minutes of that gentleman's time one must be considered a very lucky individual. He always, however, manages to find a good word for all his friends.

We called the other day to see Mr. Fred. Aiken, a man always with a welcome and to be relied upon. Asking Mr. Aiken what he thought about the new agreement, he replied: "Tell them I am tickled all over and that I have been waiting for this a long time. If this business is going to last, we must use radical cures for treating the present evil. I agree with Mr. Charles Pathe—'A sharp knife and a clever surgeon is the only remedy.'"

CHICAGO OPERATORS ADOPT SCHEDULE OF WAGES.

The Moving Picture Operators' Union has adopted a wage schedule to be strictly enforced. The scale follows:

One operator, with one machine, beginning work at 1 P. M. or later, with an hour for supper, $22.50 per week.

Two operators, handling two machines, beginning at 12 or later, with an hour for supper, $20 each per week.

One operator, beginning at 6.30 P. M. or later, with an hour for supper on Sunday, $18.

All shows giving extra matinees on any days but Sunday, $2 extra for each matinee.

All shows opening before hours already specified, 50 cents per extra hour.

Operators in vaudeville theaters, only two shows per day, $18.

Operators in vaudeville theaters, three or more shows per day, $22.50.

Operators for road work, $35 and transportation.

All entertainments to pay operators $5 per night.

The union agrees that any operator quitting work without one week's notice and good excuse shall be fined one week's pay, to be given to his employer as damages. The union will also investigate all cases where operators are discharged or suspended.

CHICAGO ENFORCES LICENSED OPERATORS.

Chicago, January 15.—The announcement has gone forth from the Police Department that arrests will be made tomorrow of all operators and managers who attempt to run without licenses. The ordinance, which was passed July 13 last year, and which has now reached the verge of being enforced, provides a fine of from $10 to $200 for each operator who works a day without a license and from $25 to $200 for the manager who employs him.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., TO HAVE A NEW THEATER.

Daniel E. Gorman, proprietor of the Lyric Theater, together with Frank H. Keyte, another prominent Williamsport business man, have purchased a plot of ground in the business center of the city on which they will erect a theater with a seating capacity of 600, to be devoted solely to moving pictures. The new theater will be known as the "Grand" and will cost to construct, from $8,000 to $10,000. Building operations will be begun at once and it is expected that the theater will be opened about the middle of April.

Notes and Comments.

The signatures of 700 residents of Hamilton, Ohio, to a petition circulated by the several churches has resulted in the Mayor issuing an order that all shows be hereafter closed on Sunday.

The Mayor of Norwood, Ohio, has issued orders to the same effect.

Assemblyman Gluck has introduced a bill into the Legislature providing for a reduction of the license fee for moving picture shows and for the admission of children between the hours of 3 and 8 P. M. on school days and at any hour on other days.

Levi Company, of 64 East Fourteenth street, who have made a reputation for announcement slides, have taken up the illustration of songs, and already have three for delivery, "Honey Dear," "Always Think of Mother," and "If To-day Were Yesterday." It is their intention to produce something always different from the regular run of song slides, and the slides that we have seen for the above songs are not behind any of their competitors in adaptability of the pictures to the lines of the song, while the coloring is very fair, and this, Mr. Levi says, will be greatly improved as soon as they get settled in more suitable quarters.

COMING HEADLINERS.

M. Severin, the master of pantomime, who has been the headliner in New York theaters for some time, will be seen all over the country next week through the enterprise of Pathe Freres. His masterpiece, "Incriminating Evidence," a drama giving a glimpse into the seamy side of Parisian life, is shown in a full reel film that will be released next week. It will be the headliner for the week, and will make money for the show that first gets it for any locality.

A Coming Headliner is "Stirring Days in Old Virginia," a war drama by the Selig Polyscope Company. The scenery, the spirited action, the historic interest and the personal element is such that we can safely say that this film will have a long and prosperous run. It can hardly be said that the Selig Company produce a headliner every time, but the success accorded to at least ten of their productions of recent date would seem to indicate that they come nearer the mark than any one else. One thing can be said for this concern, and that is that they spare no expense to stage their productions, and their efforts deserve the success that they have and more.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ACTION WANTED IN MOVING PICTURES.

Editor Moving Picture World:

I notice you speak favorably of the "Old Curiosity Shop" as an improvement in moving picture productions. While this special picture might please a person who has read Dickens' novel, and it was still fresh in the memory, yet a few more such pictures would put the box receipts to nowhere, as the general public want something more than stage scenery and people walking about, with the story untold. Such a picture caters too much to a mushy critic and hurts public interest in moving pictures. Manufacturers when cutting out murder and crime don't want to forget that the public's interest in pictures is sensation and action. As any manager can see by watching the audience while "The Sponge Fishers of Cuba" is on the curtain, when the closing scene showing natives walking the greasy pole comes on. It would have been better if that scene had been lengthened and some of the drier parts shortened for the lasting popularity of the picture.

Yours very truly,

W. CLARKE.

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 26, 1909.

The four page insert in this issue is to be detached by those who desire to bind the numbers of Volume 3, July to December, 1908. The publishers will furnish bound volumes at $1.25. Express paid, $1.50.

THE PENN MOTION PICTURE CO.

2333-35-37 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

will release on Saturday, February 6th, 1909, a most appropriate feature film and a money maker for LINCOLN'S 100th anniversary, February 12th. This film can be run the whole week.

The Assassination of Abraham Lincoln

About 700 feet in Length at 8½ Cents per Foot, net

This Film was made several months ago,
but was never released
Order early as we will only have a limited number of copies for sale

We are now in the position to supply our customers with

The Latest Output of Licensed Films Every Week

THE C. J. HITE CO.
439-441 Monadnock Block
Chicago, Ill.

The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

Order at Once
Our Two Great Sets of

LANTERN SLIDES

Sicily, Italy

AND THE

Earthquake District

34 Slides in Set. Colored, per Set $17.00
Plain, per Set, $8 50

Abraham Lincoln

From the Flat Boat to the White House
12 Slides in Set. Colored, per Set $6.00
Plain, per Set $3.00

A Lecture With Each Set

NEW INDEPENDENT FILMS
ISSUED WEEKLY. SEND FOR LIST

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE
Dept. P
918 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Comments on Film Subjects.

"The Girl at the Old Mill."—As a picture this film from Kalem could hardly be surpassed. The scenes are all especially good. It is an old-fashioned love story, with a city man intervening between the country lovers. It has the usual ending, after some exciting incidents, such as an attempted suicide, in which the despairing girl actually jumps into the water. It is a good story, well told, and the scenery is especially pleasing. This film deserves a long run.

"A Burglar Cupid."—An Edison comedy which develops many new and wholly novel situations. To be forced to make love at the muzzle of a burglar's pistol and to marry in the same way is sufficiently new to create fun for any audience. The applause is vigorous at the close.

"Beginning of the Serpentine."—A semi-magic film from the Pathes, and like all their films of that type the action and coloring are superb. One wonders how it is accomplished. The figures are so vivid and natural that they appear to be actually there, not mere pictures thrown on a screen.

"The Stepmother."—Instead of the Pathes giving the public a repetition of the old hackneyed idea of a stepmother, they have made her a very lovable individual. For this the various audiences who see it should be thankful. The photography and staging are good and the action of the characters is natural. The film deserves a long run.

"Wonderful Eggs."—A Pathe magic film, beautifully colored, which shows some surprising developments from different sized eggs. The work required to make a film of this character must be something enormous, and it deserves liberal patronage, which it undoubtedly gets.

"A Hot Remedy."—A Gaumont comic which has nothing to criticise excepting the destruction of property in one scene. That was unnecessary. The conception is good, and with that exception the fun is unalloyed.

"The Persevering Insurance Agent."—A Gaumont comic which has more humor than most comics, and which is technically above the average.

"The Detectives" is a Kalem story of the Black Hand outrages which the police of this country are dealing with in a courageous and effective manner. The scenes are very faithful representations of the Italian quarter, and the operations and final capture of the kidnappers is told without any offensive details and just enough excitement to please the average audience.

"The Night Alarm."—A Warwick comic which develops a new idea in the revolutions of a bed. The way the bed in this film spins and takes the one with it who is near excites hearty applause and laughter. The urchin who is responsible for the disturbance escapes with everyone after him; and that creates a good deal of fun, too.

"Running Away From Home."—A comedy in which two children start to journey from France to America in an automobile. The acting is good and the technical quality beyond criticism. Undoubtedly children would act just that way in similar circumstances.

"The Near Sighted Hunter."—A film which seems to have no particular point, excepting possibly the tumbling about of a near sighted person. It doesn't excite much interest, though the technical quality is good.

"The Bewitched Breton."—A Gaumont which has some attractions in the unexpected developments which occur during the running of the film. The technical quality is good, and the film is interesting, but there is little to say beyond this.

"The Frolic of Youth."—A Gaumont comic which presents the possibilities of old age suddenly restored to childhood or youth. The action is good and some of the situations are good, but the film excites comparatively little interest.

"Sammy Celebrates."—In this film the Pathes have developed some amusing situations, yet one must say of a film which emphasizes drunkenness so strongly that its influence is not of the best.

"The Welcome Burglar."—The Biograph people tell an excellent story in this, and tell it so strongly that it grips very close. The scene where the husband gets into the room to find his wife bending over the dead body of a man is very strong, though perhaps not materially stronger than the one where the girl's first husband deserts her. Technically the film is excellent. All the little details are worked out to precision and the characters act naturally, as real people might be expected to do in similar circumstances.

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

VOLUME III

July-December, 1908

Edited by

J. P. CHALMERS

PUBLISHED BY

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO.

125 EAST 23d STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Contents of Volume III

A

About Current Savers..... 47
Actologues, The.....45-103
Advance in the Price of Films.....135
Advertising a State..... 63
Among the Lantern Slide Makers..... 9
Ample Supply of New Subjects.....191
Among the Song Slide Makers.....217-337
Among the Film Renters.....355-419-443
Anent Slide Copying.....124-141
An Exhibitor's View.....361
An Apparatus for Securing Photographs and Moving Pictures of Operations.....377
Annual Meeting, The.....397
An Interview with J. Stuart Blackton.....497
Arc Regulator for Alternating Current, An.....401
Association of Film Manufacturers.....375
At the Convention.....148
Attractive Theater Fronts.....474

B

Better Action and Expression Needed in the Films.....295
Better Film Subjects Wanted.....199
Better Scenarios Demanded.....153
Beware of False Prophets..... 59
Business or Religion..... 26

C

Cameraphone Hits..... 63
Card Systems for Film Rental Exchanges.....281
Care Needed in the Operating Booth.....381
Caring for the Films.....443
Cellit Films, The..... 30
Cent Per Cent; or, Who Pays the Piper..... 30
Character of Your Pictures, by Burton H. Albee.....120
Cinematography in Natural Colors.....197
Cinematography in France.....475
Coloring Films by the Ives Process..... 26
Color Kinematography.....375
Coming Ten and Twenty-Cent Moving Picture Theater, by W. S. Bush.....152
Comments on Film Subjects.....257
Conduct of the Show, The.....356
Cult of the Motion Picture, The.....176
Cult of the Motion Picture Show.....106

D

Doing One Thing Well.....335
Destructive Competition..... 47
Destroying the Lantern Slide Business.....253
Duty on Films.....381
"Duping" Again.....421

E

Evil of the Moving Picture Theater, The..... 63
Enterprise Unrewarded..... 79
Excessive Freight Charges..... 47
Excessive Duty on Films.....217
Exhibitors Organize.....473
Exhibitors Organizing.....520

F

Facts Concerning the New Arrangement of the Principal Factors of the Moving Picture Manufacturing Interests in America.....519
Film Manufacture No Easy Task.....138
Films Ruined by Would-be Operators..... 65
F. S. A.....3-23-43-59
Finish of Moses, The, by W. S. Bush.....60-80-100
Fox Again to the Rescue..... 81
From the Philadelphia Kicker..... 9
Films, The.....471-495
Film Exchange of the Future, The.....255
Film Manufacturing Plant at Salt Lake.....401
Film of the Future, The.....172-235
Film Realism.....427
Film Renters Victims of Thieves.....195
Film Service Problem.....395
Film Service for Oklahoma.....195
From an Exhibitor.....141-282
Future Should Be Taken Care Of in the Present, The...211

G

Getting the Business.....424
Gills Arc Regulator, The.....104
Good Idea, A.....444
Goings On in the Slide Business.....140
Growth of the Educational Idea.....355

H

Hallberg Electric Economizer, The.....196
Harmony Is Our Slogan.....119
Handling Slides.....499
Harris, Song Writer, Etc., Etc.....140
Hints to Exhibitors, by W. S. Bush.....316
How the Vogue of the Motion Picture May Be Preserved, by H. Leigh.....101
How Talking Pictures Are Made.....137
How He Became a Crank Turner, by M. M. Leichter....159
How to Make Lantern Slides.....277
How Can the Congestion of Shows Be Averted?.....497
Humor's Part in Moving Pictures.....123

I

Illustrated Lecturettes.....522
Illustrated Lecturettes.....474-499
Illustrated Songs.....472

Illustrated Songs a Novelty in Germany..... 26
Importance of Running a Clean Show, The.....100
Is the Field Overcrowded?.....391
Items of Interest.....317

K

Kosmik Film Service, The..... 63

L

Laemmle Film Service.....359
Large Song Slide Orders..... 64
Lectures on Moving Pictures.....136
Lecturette, The.....471
Lessons for Operators, by F. H. Richardson—
House Lights..... 4
Tint Slides—How Made..... 24
A Few Things for Operators to Think About..... 44
In Case of Fire..... 60
Let the Guilty be Punished.....191
Little Annoyances.....420
Look Out, New Jersey Picture Man.....529

M

Machine Which Does Its Own Rewinding..... 27
Maligners of the Moving Picture.....444
Manufacturers, The..... 23
Marvelous and Notable Success, A.....357
Massachusetts Imposes More Restrictions.....336
Misfit Amusement Parlor, The.....296
Misinformation 254
Mistakes and Possibilities in the Moving Picture Business, Etc., Etc.....121
Model Show, A.....421
More Elevating Pictures Desirable.....499
Motion Pictures of Farming Methods..... 82
Motion Pictures As an Advertising Proposition..... 30
Motion Picture Show, The.....154
Moving Picture Plant Installed in London Hospitals..... 82
Moving Pictures Aid Temperance Movement..... 6
Moving Picture Business in Cincinnati, The.....425
Moving Pictures as an Educator.....397
Moving Picture Man, The.....156
Moving Picture Drama for the Multitude.....192
Moving Pictures in French Drama and Opera.....196
Moving Picture Drama, and the Acted Drama.....211
Moving Picture Machines Not as Dangerous as People Believe 299
Mutual Protective Association of Moving Picture Exhibitors of Philadelphia.....480-504

N

New and Improved Apparatus—
Viascope Special, The..... 86
Monarch 999, The.....179
Edison Projecting Kinetoscope.....236
The "Standard" Moving Picture Machine.....454
New Moving Picture Mechanism.....522
New Field for Pictures, A.....171
New Projection Lens, A.....221
New York Electrical Show, The.....254
New Get-Rich-Quick, Scheme, A.....429
New Jersey to Censor Shows.....474
New Musical Wonder.....498
New Film Factories.....155
Nickelodeon as a Business Proposition..... 61
Nickelodeons 63
Nordisk Films at the International Exposition.....104
Non-Inflammable Celluloid.....171
Not a Song Hit on the Market..... 6

O

Obnoxious Exhibitor, The.....444
Operating Room Hints..... 25
Opinions of the Press.....192
Opinion of an Eminent Critic, The.....337
Ourselves 3

P

Paris Notes..... 27
Pathe Freres Prefers to Stand Alone.....475
Pathe and the Associated Manufacturers of Europe.....495
Pathe Will Not Invade Rental Field.....191
People vs. Motion Picture Exhibitors..... 46
Petition to the Moving Picture Exhibitors of New Jersey 321
Philadelphia Kicker, The..... 30
Picture Business, The.....231
Picture Situation in Toledo, The.....301
Pictures Taking Their Proper Place in Vaudeville.....155
Pittsburger Gets It in Moving Picture Style.....140
Place and Province of Humor in the Moving Picture....420
Police Department of Greater New York Scored for Interfering with Moving Picture Shows.....524
Policy of the Associated Film Manufacturers, The.....520
Power's Inductor.....258
Pruning Hook Needed.....496
Public Opinion Controls.....295
Public Opinion.....298

Q

Question of Vaudeville, The.....376
Quality of the Shows, The.....397
Quality of the Films.....473

R

Raising the Wind, New Bedford, Mass.....104
Reduced Railroad Fares.....520
Renter and Exhibitor, The..... 79
Renters and the Rumored Merger, The.....295
Risks of the Business Discussed.....155

S

Schedule Continues, The.....335
Sculptor Who Designed, Etc., Etc.....445
Second Annual Meeting of the F. S. A.....471-496
Shakespeare in Motion Pictures..... 80
Shakespeare in Moving Pictures.....446
Signs of the Times.....195
Smash Down and Pulverize Is Good.....191
Smith Should Report.....156
Smokers Not Wanted in the Operating Booth..... 84
Something New Under the Sun..... 5
Some Films Improved.....499
Some Coming Headliners and a New Religious Subject...318
Spencer's Lyceum, Len.....175
Spoiling the Business.....396
Statistics 26
Standard Gauge Established, A..... 25
Sunday Shows..... 6
Success of the Hallberg Economizer..... 82
Sub-Renter, The..... 99
Sunny South in Motion Pictures.....498
Swine Have to Be Fed, The.....211

T

Talking Pictures Seem to Be Popular.....103
Talking Pictures.....195
Teaching by Moving Pictures.....121

Timely Forebodings to Exhibitors....178
Traveling Man a Loss, The.... 59
They Say It Has a Solid Ring.... 30
They Do Some Things Better in the West.... 79
They Do Things in Philadelphia....403
Theaters Better....443
Theater Manager Replies to Moving Picture Critics....451
The Second Annual Meeting of the Film Service Association....521
There Is No Accounting for Tastes.... 523

U

Urban's London Theater....198

V

Vogue of the Motion Picture, The.... 83

W

Wheeler & Co., De Witt C.... 9
Watch Your Apparatus....453
Watch Your Titles....429
What They Are Talking About Among the Exchanges...174
What Is Going On in the New York F. S. A. "Local"....253
What Are "Old" Subjects?....403
What Does the Public Want? by B. H. Allbee....472
Whither Are We Drifting?....275-341
Who Goes to the Moving Pictures....336
Why Not a Manufacturers' Association....152
Why Some Renters Don't Succeed....119
Williams, Brown & Earle Increase Their Film Output....322
With the Film Producers....355
Wonders of the Cinematograph....105

"Those Awful Hats."—The Biograph folks have illustrated the big hat nuisance so graphically in this film that it needs no praise. It speaks for itself. It might be a good thing if one of the dredging machines shown here was in operation in every theater removing hats. More could be seen on the stage and the screen.

"Who Stole Casey's Wood?"—A Lubin comic that is really funny, and excited roars of laughter in two places where it was shown.

"A Suit Case."—A Lubin comic which is really funny. The antics and failures of the would-be detective are as funny as anything seen in some time.

"The Scar."—One of those ambitious Pathe films, beautifully staged, photographed and tinted, which tell a strong story in a way that holds the audience almost breathless until it closes. To be sure, three persons are killed, yet all had to do with the forcible carrying away of a girl, and one might say with much truth that their deaths were only justice, summarily meted out, perhaps, but punishment, well merited and swift enough to be effective. The story is good enough and is well enough told to run a long time.

"Buffin Wins First Prize."—A decidedly good comic from the Pathes, in which a donkey plays a conspicuous part. The many evolutions through which he is put by his driver are amusing. In short, the entire film possesses a clean humor in contrast with some of the pictures put out.

"The Curse of Drink."—A Pathe film which temperance organizations and churches ought to circulate as widely as possible. No picture ever portrayed the drink curse more vividly. It is good, but after one sees it one is disposed to agree that it is too good and to wish that one had not seen it. Such pictures are impressive, but at the same time they are depressing.

"A Jewel of a Servant."—A Pathe comic which introduces some laughable situations, but destroys too much property to be really funny.

"Love's Old Sweet Melody."—In this film Lubin has presented the old story of love, objected to by the stern parent, in a new way. It comes to the same thing in the end, however, and the couple who are ruthlessly torn apart are reunited at the very altar. The scenes where the vision appears to the girl are very strong.

"The Assassination of President Lincoln" is a pretentious subject for a new manufacturing concern, and we are informed that it is the second that has been made by the Penn Motion Picture Company, whose advertisement appears on another page. We have seen the film and can only say that it is a very excellent production, and shows that the producers have high ambitions and are possessed of good ideals. The character of Lincoln is portrayed by an excellent personification of the nation's most popular President, and the characters of Booth and his accomplices are well brought out. The trial scene of Booth's accomplices is rather tedious, but the film ends with an allegorical representation of Lincoln receiving the reward of virtue, which leaves a pleasant impression, and altogether the film is one that should have a good run around the anniversary of Lincoln's birthday.

Vaudeville Service.—As an example of what energetic, constant and intelligent application of a thorough knowledge of the show business and the requirements of managers and directors of parks, theater and amusement enterprises can do, we cite the Prudential Vaudeville Exchange, under the able management of W. S. Cleveland, who has taken the full course of "show business," beginning at the bottom and ascending to the top, as advance and press agent, house and road manager and proprietor, and has completed his post-graduate course in conducting a booking exchange which caters to all branches of the amusement world.

In 1906 Mr. Cleveland's exchange furnished attractions for but nine parks and six fairs; in 1907 it booked twenty-three parks, twelve theaters, sixteen fairs; in 1908 it had the exclusive booking for eighteen theaters, thirty-nine parks and forty-three fairs. For this year, 1909, the exchange will supply approximately one hundred and eighty-six parks and fairs, and one hundred and six theaters, of which seventy per cent. are booked exclusively.

For logical reasons, W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange keeps growing and growing. There is no agency better equipped and surely no manager strives harder to please his clients than this former minstrel proprietor. Also it is a fact that this exchange has never had occasion to change its name or management.

SONG SLIDES

The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES for the great hits

"There's A Fleet On The Sea"
"Would You Like To Take A Walk With Me"
"I'm Going To Tell On You"

THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

IT IS OUR POLICY

To
- Purchase from three to five copies of every good subject manufactured.
- Make shipments in ample time to avoid delays.
- Avoid REPEATERS.
- Ship NO JUNK.
- Give what we promise.

We earnestly solicit a trial order for Film Service that we may convince you

WRITE TO-DAY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.
(Members Film Service Association)

1401-1405 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
421 Fourth Ave., LOUISVILLE, KY.
Care of Crawford Theatre El Paso, Tex.
Care of Shubert Theatre New Orleans, La.
306 Moore-Burnet Bldg. Houston, Tex.

Morton Film Exchange
(Incorporated)
S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.
High-Class Film Service
LICENSEES MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY
Parties desiring first-class service write us

Wonderland Film Exchange
1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa
Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company

Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.

EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices.

FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED

REWARD $25 REWARD $25

For information of present whereabouts of Burton C. Fahr and William Waliskey, or either. Formerly worked for Searchlight Amusement Company, of Saginaw and Bay City, Michigan. Former actor, latter moving-picture operator: Address

DETROIT FILM EXCHANGE
Newberry Building - - Detroit, Michigan

ECONOMIZERS for SALE
AT REDUCED PRICES

A few absolutely new instruments of standard make must be sold before removal.

One Week's Trial Allowed. Call and Inspect
C. B. CHURCHILL
31 Milk Street - - Boston Mass.

LANTERN SLIDES
Travelogues 60 Sets (3 new each week)

Among the Eskimos
Irrigation Projects in the West
The Wide Spread Tobacco Habit
The Big Trees of Oregon

Stock Slides—Over 250 Designs (all colored) 3 Stock Slides for $1.00
THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY
SEND FOR CATALOG "C" 224 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange
NINTH FLOOR
MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

EXPERIENCED OPERATORS.

Mr. E. Cook, 324 Fifteenth street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Bernard Cook, 439 Second street, Brooklyn, N. Y.
R. C. Geissler, 78 Woodcliff street, Roxbury, Boston, Mass.
Manager. Ten years' experience in motion picture and vaudeville theaters. Good references. A. C. Blythe, 1651 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

YOUR ORDER FOR

LANG'S REWINDER

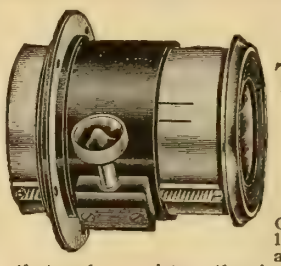
Model No. 2. Price, $5.00

Will be filled
by any of the following dealers:

The Laemmle Film Service, 196-198 Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
The Laemmle Film Service, Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.
The Laemmle Film Service, Main and Sixth St., Evansville, Ind.
The Laemmle Film Service, 800 Brandeis Block, Omaha, Neb.
The Laemmle Film Service, 214 Wells-Fargo Bldg., Portland, Ore.
The Laemmle Film Service, 78 South Front St., Memphis, Tenn.
The Laemmle Film Service, 151 Main St., Salt Lake City, Utah.
Canadian Offices, Casino Theater Building, Montreal, Can.
Canadian Offices, Chamber of Commerce Building, Winnipeg, Manitoba.
Lewis M. Swaab, 340 Spruce St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Fearis Film Exchange, Room 11, Chancellor Bldg., Amarillo, Tex.
Fearis Film Exchange, 304-306 Barnes Bldg., Wichita, Kan.
Western Film Exchange, 307-09 Enterprise Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Detroit Film Exchange, Newberry Bldg., Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., 100 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main St., East, Rochester, N. Y.
McKenzie Novelty Co., Butte, Mont.
The Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Broad St., Columbus, Ohio.
E. A. Witte, Salisbury, N. C.
Oklahoma Film Exchange, 221 W. California St., Oklahoma City, Okla.
The Kent Film Service Co., 218 Nicholas Bldg., Toledo, Ohio.
The Lake Shore Film and Supply Co., 314 Superior Ave., N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
The Cleveland Film Renting Exchange, 717 Superior Ave., N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

Manufactured by

C. J. Lang Manufacturing Co.
OLEAN, NEW YORK



IMPROVE THE PICTURE ON THE SCREEN

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

by using a high grade projection lens.

Our lenses give a sharper and more brilliant picture than anylenses made here or abroad. We will send a lens on approval that makes a picture the size you want.

PRICE $18.00 NET

When ordering state the distance from lens to screen and size of picture. The purchaser of a new machine should insist on getting one of these lenses with it instead of the inferior lens usually supplied.

CUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

THE BEST MOVING PICTURE MACHINE.

RHEOSTATS

CONTAIN

CLIMAX WIRE

Catalogue and information upon request.

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.,
HARRISON, N, J.

Beware! Mr. Manager

A very contagious disease exists (worn out sickly junk film service) means

Instant Death to your Theatre

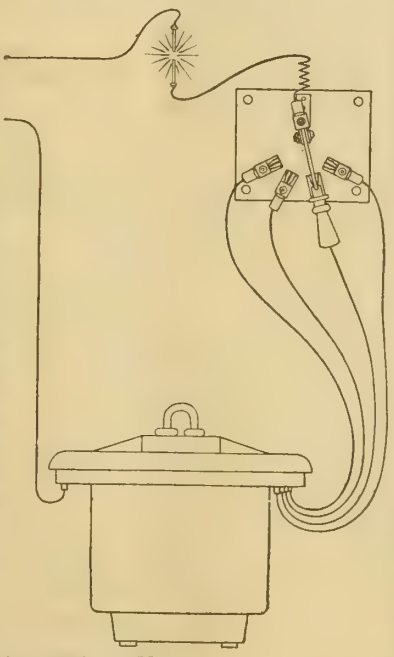
LET US PRESCRIBE OUR SELECTED FILM SERVICE

A tonic that is necessary for success. If you are worried, and need assistance, write for latest proposition; results will follow; we increase receipts.

PENNSYLVANIA FILM CO.
400-1-2-3-4 Lewis Building
PITTSBURGH, PA.

ECONOMIZE

The Lemon Arc Regulator



For alternating current ONLY. Will reduce the power consumed by MORE THAN one-half and give a much better light for the picture machines.

WRITE FOR PARTICULARS

MADE BY
Vindex Electric Co.
AURORA, ILL.

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides The Finest Made. $5 per Set All of the New Song Hits.
A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

A table d'hote dinner usually satisfies, our Song Slide Service always does

Over 200 song hits that are not hackneyed, artistically illustrated

New York Successes at your service weekly

Old time favorites for those who desire them

RENTAL, 50c PER SET WEEKLY

Announcement Slides Up-to-date
When in doubt try them

SYKO SLIDE CO.

Room 505, Cronin Building, Troy, N. Y.

WRITE TO-DAY

STILL IN THE RING

We are still Independent and are going to be. We intend to own and have some small say how we will run our own business.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

Liberty Film Exchange
Telephone Walnut 3956
1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.
Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

Mention the Moving Picture World in your correspondence.

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500
OPERA CHAIRS
IN STOCK

If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received,

Ask for Catalog No. 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

No. 44 North 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

FOR RENT 6,000 Feet Film, 3 Sets Song Slides, 6 at a time, $12.00 weekly.
FOR SALE 3,300 feet Pathe's hand colored Passion Play, $75. 1,000 feet Reels Film released since April, $10.00 per reel. Lubin Machine, $40; Edison Ex. Model, $60; Power's, $75. Will buy films.
H. DAVIS - Watertown, Wis.

CHAIRS

Folding Steel Opera Chairs. All kinds Fireproof Booths. Resistance Grids and Wire-Repairing.

New York Steel & Production Co.
NEWARK, N. J.

Money for you. In towns without electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

Do NOT put on the
PASSION PLAY
Without Music and Lecture

If you are too far away from New York or Philadelphia to engage the services of the first and foremost lecturer on Moving Pictures in general and the Passion Play in particular,

W. STEPHEN BUSH

get his lecture in print. Complete lecture on every scene with valuable suggestions as to music and interesting introductory.

This copyrighted lecture running exactly with the pictures and giving full explanation and commentary on every scene sent postpaid to any address in U. S. or Canada on receipt of one dollar. Address

W. Stephen Bush, 155 N. Conestoga St., Phila., Pa.
May be reached at any time by phone in residence, Belmont 4484.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—I have prepared special lectures with suggestions as to music and effects for every feature film turned out by the Edison licensees. The list comprises over a hundred subjects and includes the very latest feature films. Price per lecture, 25c.

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.

Wholesale and Retail
Stereopticon and Lantern Slides

56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

THE BRAHMA DIAMOND.—Depredation of the "Light of the World." The Hindu family of the Vedas were a mighty tribe as far back as 2000 B. C. Powerful and wealthy, with temples the most beautiful the world has ever known, those of Rajputana and Cawnpore being the most elaborate and famous. It was at the City of Cawnpore on a feast day that the faithful assembled in the temple to worship at the shrine of Brahma, the first person of the Hindu triune God -comprising Brahma, Vishnu and Siva, sometimes called the Brahmin Trinity. In this Hindu pantheon there were gathered natives of the Ganges Valley of all castes, with the priests, their wives, and houris; also a generous sprinkling of Western tourists, they being drawn thither by their thirst for sight-seeing. Most kaleidoscopic was the scene as out of its midst towered the stately idol Brahma. In the forehead of the idol there was imbedded a mammoth diamond of fabulous value. This was termed the "Light of the World." Among the tourists there is one who, a stranger in a strange land, finds himself in a depleted condition as regards finances. Extravagant and improvident, he is piling up a bill at the Cawnpore Hotel without funds to meet it. The sight of this diamond at once arouses his cupidity and he determines to secure it at any hazard. A visit to the temple shows that the Brahma is attended by one veiled guard. He also learns that this guard has a sweetheart who visits him during his lonely vigil. Enlisting the services of an unscrupulous Hindu they follow the girl to her home where they force her and her father to go with them to the temple, where under threat of her father's murder she gives drugged wine to her lover, the guard. He immediately falls into a stupor, and binding the father and girl, the tourist seizes the diamond and makes his way back to the hotel. Recovering his senses, the guard gives alarm, and he and the girl are taken to prison where he is doomed to die at the end of three days for the desecration of Brahma. The girl, however, offers to remain hostage if her lover be allowed to search for the diamond. This noble offer is accepted and the girl is chained to the floor of the dungeon, while the guard, humiliated by the confiscation of his royal turban, according to the law, is set free to bring back if he can the diamond. Should he not succeed in the allotted time—thre days—the girl will pay the penalty with her life. He first rushes to the Yogi, the royal seer, who shows him on the mystic mirror the face of the robber. The guard at once recognizes him as the tourist who had visited the temple and sets out to find him, which he does at the hotel, just after the tourist has sewed the diamond up in the handle of his suit case. He contrives to engage himself as a servant and as such makes a fruitless search of the tourist's effects. He is on the point of despairing when the tourist is called upon by a diamond merchant. Effecting his presence in the room by hypnotic power, the guard manages to secure the diamond and dashing madly back to the dungeon arrives just in time to stay the uplifted scimitar from the neck of the faithful girl. Length, 1,036 feet.

THE GIRLS AND DADDY.—Exciting experiences of two brave girls. "Call not that man wretched, who whatever ills he suffers, has a child to love." Although we have had occasion to use Dr. Southey's lines before we cannot resist repeating, as they are so evincive of truth for the smiling faces of children in the household shed a light more radiant than the sun, a warmth that dispels the chill of misfortune. Old Dr. Payson, a widower and father of two girl children, who is ever playing the role of the good Samaritan, giving his professional services in charity rather than for pay, as his patients are very poor, is in dire straits and has appealed to his old time friend for assistance in his present difficulties. His friend, with profound sorrow is forced to disappoint him owing to his own lecklessness. The doctor would have despaired but for the love of his two little daughters who braved him up. The little ones realize their daddy's condition and write a letter to their Grandma, apprising her of the fact, to which she answers with material aid. To the postoffice they go and find a registered letter containing a generous sum of money. So elated are they over the affair that they loudly promulgate their good fortune. "Now Daddy can have a new hat, a pair of gloves, and—well we can make him happy." This is all heard by a crook who is lounging about the postoffice, and also by a low-down negro, who plans to rob them when he finds that they will be alone owing to the doctor's being called away by the illness of one of his patients. The girls are asleep when the crook, who has also coveted their money, enters the room, but on seeing those two innocent children locked in each other's arms, his heart softens, and he leaves by way of the roof, and goes into the next house. The negro, however, has no such scruples, and when he appears he means business. He, of course, is ignorant of the crook's advent. The girls are aroused by the noise of his awkward entrance and they run through the house followed by him until they reach the

Kalem Films

ITALIAN BUREAU

LENGTH 800 FEET
Release of February 5, 1909

Lovers of Children will Rave over this Film, for the heroine is a little girl of nine, who does one of the most remarkable stunts ever shown in motion pictures.

You ought to have our WEEKLY LECTURES

No charge. A postal will do it

KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER
PRICE $5.00
THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB
340 Spruce Street
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Singer and Pianist—Good Team, 2 People. 5 years experience. GEO. A. PURRIN, 182 Rockaway Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

garret, where they try to bar the door by piling furniture against it. This, however, proves small resistance, and one of the girls climbs to the roof, where she meets the crook, who is just coming from the next house, and at her entreaty he leaps through the scuttle just as the negro bursts in upon the girl. After a terrific conflict the brute is laid out, when Daddy appears in company with two policemen, who take the negro in charge. During the skirmish the crook slips out. This is a Biograph subject comprising a heart story of an intensely thrilling nature. Length, 901 feet.

EDISON MFG. CO.

ORIGIN OF BEETHOVEN'S "MOONLIGHT SONATA."—Synopsis of scenes:

Beethoven is equally remarkable for two qualities, eloquence of expression and beauty of form, which in his best work are always held in an exact and firmly controlled balance.

If we would fully understand his supremacy, we must perceive not only his achievements in both directions, but the high artistic power with which he correlates them.

Music lovers will enjoy seeing this beautiful picture showing the great master "in his habit as he lived," and following his footsteps on the night when, moved by pity, he was inspired to compose, for a poor blind girl, his immortal "Moonlight Sonata."

Wandering one evening, alone, through the streets, his attention was attracted by the notes of one of his own compositions, rendered in a masterly manner, and, upon inquiry, he found that the player was a poor blind girl.

Entering the humble home, he found the beautiful musician, the devoted sister of a loving brother, he a mender of shoes, she a pianist—both well-bred, refined and of lofty ideals.

Without revealing himself, Beethoven, learning from the fair musician's lips that she was an ardent admirer of his music—moved by the environment and charm of the evening—sat down at the piano and improvised.

The beauty of the night, the moonlight, the breathless attention of his hearers, his sympathy, all combined to inspire a masterpiece which thousands have enjoyed since that fateful evening when an accidental turn brought to life the "Moonlight Sonata." App. length, 900 feet.

THE ADVENTURES OF AN OLD FLIRT.—Synopsis of scenes:

Mr. Jack, although past middle age and married, is only as old as he feels; and, as he feels like a "boy of twenty," it is not to be wondered at that he still looks for a good time whenever the opportunity affords.

Another "old boy" and cronie of Jack's, also ever-ready for a lark, lets Jack in on "The Perfect Peach Masquerade Ball" and sends him a ticket, which delights Mr. Jack.

"The best laid schemes of mice and men aft gang a-gley"—Jack's does, for instead of burning the letter he very carelessly leaves it in the pocket of his smoking jacket, and—wifey finds it.

Although not o'er youthful herself, Mrs. Jack still possesses ginger and snap, and instantly prepares for action. When she leaves the costumer's on the night of the masquerade it is as a captivating soubrette.

Jack and his bosom friend are there bright and early, admiring the "peaches," making numerous "mashes" and having "one good time," but do not get into action in earnest until the dashing soubrette arrives.

The old fellows are at once rivals for the fair one's attention and admiration, and try to outdo one another in gallantry, in the dance, in wit and humor, and in all the arts they possess to enliven the beauty's pleasure.

She seems thoroughly impartial regarding both, but with a leaning toward the friend, which causes Mr. Jack to try a spurt, and he wins and takes the "lady" to supper.

Mr. Jack pours out his soul in confidence to the fair listener—gently urged to "make a clean breast of it"—and nobly responds. Declares that he is unmarried—dotes on blonde soubrettes, etc.—and, when he reaches the height of his eloquence, he is doubly unmasked and Mrs. Jack gets a new sealskin. App. length, 900 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

THE MUSICIAN'S LOVE STORY.—In the opening scene we see the daughter of wealthy parents in the drawing room awaiting the arrival of her music teacher. The teacher enters and immediately begins to give his pupil a lesson on the violin. The girl is in love with her instructor, and tired of the lesson, lays aside her violin, and a few minutes later when the father enters the room he discovers the two young lovers in a fond embrace. The father orders the violinist from the house, and the daughter refusing to be parted from her sweetheart, gives up her wealthy home and departs to become the bride of the poor musician. One year later we find the girl, now a mother, in the attic home of the musician, where she is surrounded by poverty. In reading the daily paper she finds an ad. inserted by her father requesting her to return to her old home, but forbidding her to bring her husband with her. She decides to return, and writing a note to her husband, which she leaves on the table, gathers her baby in her arms and starts from the room when her husband enters. He implores her to remain with him, but to no avail, and she returns to her father's home.

Eighteen years later the musician, without funds and food, takes his violin to a pawn shop where he pledges it, in order to secure much needed funds. On his way home he rescues a young lady from the hands of a footpad. The girl is exceedingly thankful and asks for his card. In extracting the card from his pocket, the pawn ticket falls to the sidewalk unnoticed by him. As he walks away the young girl picks up the pawn ticket and decides to redeem the violin, in order to show her appreciation to her rescuer. She takes the violin to the attic home of the musician, finding her way there by means of the card he has presented her with. He then notices the ring on her finger, which proves to be the wedding ring of her mother. After a short conversation he discovers the young girl to be his daughter, who tells him that his wife's father, who many years ago ejected him from his house, is now dead. He agrees to accompany her to her home where she shows him into the same drawing room which held so many fond memories for him, and going to her mother's apartments, she entices her into the drawing room where her husband is sitting. One glance is sufficient, and they are soon in each other's arms. The picture ends showing the father, mother and daughter, a happy, reunited family. Length, 1,000 feet.

KALEM COMPANY.

THE DETECTIVES OF THE ITALIAN BUREAU.—One of the most important and interesting branches of the great metropolitan police force of today is the Italian bureau. For years it was found almost impossible to cope with a certain class of Italian criminals because the detectives had little or no knowledge of the Italian language and were not sufficiently familiar with the methods employed by the blackmailers and kidnappers who come to our shores from the dregs of Italy. But now things are greatly changed. Every big city has a distinct section of the detective force made up of courageous and honest men of Italian birth, and these men are devoting their whole time to rounding up and punishing Italian criminals. And so successful have they been that Black Hand crimes have been practically blotted out in all of our large centers. And when one of these criminals is caught he is punished to the full extent of the law.

In the splendid moving picture drama which we are about to show you we will give you a very clear idea of the manner in which these Italian detectives work and we trust that our picture will help in the good work of proving to all Black Handers that America is no place for them to operate.

Scene 1.—Pietro Rossi's Little Girl.
Scene 2.—Premature Explosion of the Bomb—An Arrest.
Scene 3.—Rosa Captured by the Black Handers.
Scene 4.—Rendezvous of the Black Hand Gang.
Scene 5.—Detectives From the Italian Bureau.
Scene 6.—Rosa Escapes.
Scene 7.—Rosa Meets the Detectives.
Scene 8.—The Black Handers Nabbed.
Scene 9.—Rosa Restored to Her Parents.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO.

THE GUARD'S ALARM (Urban-Eclipse).—Masterful representation of the thrilling and amazing experiences of a railway guard. One of the best of the comic and magical films upon which this company has built this section of its reputation.

The guard's experiences with a new alarm clock alone are sufficiently humorous to furnish the plot of a good subject, but when to these are added his further troubles—in the station, on the line and in the van as his train and his brain proceed at full speed—the effect is heightened, laughter becomes uproarious, wild incidents follow each other with dream-like rapidity, until his mad career is ended with the total destruction of two trains in collision; a most realistic episode. With this smash the sleep-bemused brain resumes its functions, and the official rouses, happy to find that there is still time for a further snooze before going on duty.

Order of pictures: The guard, anxious to wake punctually, invests in a new alarm clock; but the use of the instrument to murder sleep so impresses itself upon his mind that his dreams become awfully and comically realistic. The whole series of pictures are only dream incidents, but their presentation is so vivid that the convulsed audience only realizes this fact as the final scene is projected.

The Guard's Dream.—The indignant guard is aroused by his new clock, and throws the offending thing upon the floor. The clock is in no way injured but continues to ring and mechanically moves about the room. The sleeper arises, immerses the clock in his wash basin and again retires.

A female member of the household unceremoniously reawakens the guard. He hurriedly rises and finds he has no time even to dress. Knocking the woman down in his flight, and clad only in

THE TALK OF THE WORLD ARE
Selig's Films
The bigger we grow the bigger the pictures will grow. Remember this is a big country. Big people don't like little pictures. This is what Selig, the Pacemaker of motion pictures says. So fall in line and join the winners as Selig's films always show to packed houses.

Order Our Next
"STIRRING DAYS IN OLD VIRGINIA"
The Greatest War Picture turned out
Length 1000 feet
All Exchanges keep Selig's Films.
THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.
45-47-49 Randolph Street
CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

WILL BUY
100 reels of independent film if in good condition at low price.
WILL SELL
100 reels all kinds of film titled and in good condition $17.50 per reel.
ECONOMY FILM CO.
Room 314 Sheppards Hotel 6th Street Pittsburg, Pa.

At Liberty— MANAGER
Of M P. Show—Six years experience—Competent to Equip Open-up and Run any Size place from Street line to Screen—Best of References—Wire or Write.
H. ATTEWELL, Manager "Bijou Dream"
111 Windsor St., MONTREAL, P. Q. Canada

FOR SALE
Moving Picture and Vaudeville House. All Complete, Seating 600, Dissolving Partnership, Good Town.
ADDRESS C. B. A.
CARE OF MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

LECTURER
I lecture on any film subject; guarantee to make good; can act as manager. Results or no pay. Address LECTURER care of Moving Picture World.

PRINTING FOR THE
Earthquake in Italy
HENNEGAN & CO.
127 EAST 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

Do You Suppose

DO YOU SUPPOSE that a House of OLDEST standing, and now with four Completely Equipped Film Exchanges of its own, would continue to grow as we have Year after Year.

If

those who from the infancy of the Film Business have been served here, were not satisfied?

And If

new customers were not continually coming to us because of the sterling qualities of our Service?

The advantages that have won their confidence might reasonably invite your preference.

YOU are sure that what you get here is RIGHT.

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

Argyle Building,
KANSAS CITY, MO.

59 Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Eccles Building,
OGDEN, UTAH

Foreign Office:
HAVANA, CUBA

pajamas, he rushes to the station to find his train retiring from the platform. He jumps into his van, but the train magically disappears and he is precipitated on to the line, from which he is helped by a porter.

The inspector arrives and turns the insufficiently dressed guard away from the premises. As the guard runs backwards, his uniform clothing, article by article, flies to him and is hurriedly donned. After another vain attempt to overtake the train it is stopped and he enters his van.

Interior of the Guard's Van.—The official mops his head and prepares to begin his duties of sorting the baggage and parcels. To his dismay, the mischievous head of an imp emerges from a milk churn, and the creature throws a missile at the guard.

Surprised at first, then indignant, the guard retaliates and chases the imp around the van. Mysterious appearances and changes follow in rapid succession.

The imp constantly arrives upon the scene, but when caught, changes to a girl. Love passages ensue, and a dance—but the guard finds that he is waltzing with the milk churn.

The imp again appears from a bucket, and the guard makes a grab, upon which the creature dissolves into a heap of paste. Again he resumes his unnatural form, and from this changes to a red Indian, who seizing the guard, chops off his head.

The headless guard sways about, when the girl reappears and reunites the dissevered railway man.

A further bewilderment and a country yokel, arising, is forced into the imp's basket, out of which instantly springs a conventional Mephistopheles.

The churn now acts independently, rising to the roof of the van and emptying its contents over the astonished official, after which Mephistopheles vanishes in a wreath of smoke.

The culminating point of the drama is now reached. The train is depicted traveling through picturesque scenery; then stops, and another train at full speed runs into it. The cars are telescoped, and a most realistic scene of a railway disaster is projected; escaping steam, bounding cars and general wreckage result.

The Guard's Bedroom.—He awakes in terror, looks at his new clock, and, greatly relieved, again relauses into—this time—more peaceful slumber. Approximate length, 463 feet.

GENDARMES' HORSES (Gaumont).—An excellent comedy. The well trained horses of the gendarmes foil a daring plot of a couple of prowlers by trotting their captors into the arms of the law. In the chase that ensues many ludicrous and exciting episodes are enacted. Approximate length, 275 feet.

A MOTHER'S HEART (Gaumont).—This story portrays in a beautifully pathetic manner the incident of a careworn mother being discarded by her son and the latter's wife. When sickness befalls the young man the wife most unnaturally leaves him to his fate, but the loving mother, heeding no danger, returns, ministers to him and soon nurses him back to health. Noting the love of her son for the undeserving wife, the mother very valiantly stifles her prejudices and brings about the reunion of the estranged couple. Happiness reigns supreme again and the young couple vow ever after to minister to the wants of the aged mother. Length, 650 feet.

THE LIVING WRECK (Urban-Eclipse).—A drama enacted on the wild and weird coast of a sea town. The scene opens with a view of the populace, both male and female, gathering seaweed. The refuse of a shipwreck at sea is being washed ashore and from a rafter is taken the almost lifeless form of an unfortunate victim of the wreck. While others go to seek aid one of the men avails himself of the opportunity to rob the victim. Observed by another and later confronted he agrees to divide the spoils. For the latter purpose both men seek the seclusion of the cliffs and here in an argument the thief slays the other man of his share. When the patient recuperates and wishes to reward his benefactors he detects his loss and a search is instittued for the guilty man. Circumstantial evidence points to the guilty culprit. The victim of the foul attack regaining consciousness appears and adds his testimony and accusation, whereupon the prisoner is turned over to the officers for the law to take its course. Approximate length, 562 feet.

THE NURSE'S ROMANCE (Gaumont).—A drama of love. The two principal characters are the daughter of a farmer and the latter's hired hand. The parent readily sanctions the betrothal of the young people and all is happiness until the siren, in the form of a young woman from "town," upsets the mental equilibrium of the ardent admirer. He is led astray under false representations only to be discarded for the more polished and "gentlemanly" admirer of her own cast. Heartbroken the young man makes an ineffectual attempt to end his existence. At the hospital he finds that the nurse in attendance is none other than the demure little maid whom he so heartlessly discarded, and as punishment for which his life and happiness have been wrecked. Excellent quality throughout. Approximate length, 925 feet.

S. LUBIN.

AUNT EMMY'S SCRAP BOOK.—In her cozy room Aunt Emmy sits in a rocking chair before the fireplace, looking through her scrap book, the recollections of bygone days.

Childhood Days.—She sees herself as a little girl with blonde, curly hair.

School Days.—The next page reminds her of her school days. She is now fourteen years old. Those were happy days.

Love's Token.—Emmy is now 18 years old. Jack enters and puts an engagement ring on her finger. Aunt Emmy covers her eyes and with a sigh she turns to leave.

The Happiest Day.—It is Emmy's wedding day. How times have changed. She leans back and turns another leaf.

Sorrow.—Emmy has now a little home. She prepares the meal with her own hands to make Jack happy. Imagine her horror when he comes home under the influence of liquor. She pleads with him; he tries to strike her. In his stupor he falls to the floor. Emmy turns away from him. This has broken her heart. She takes her hat and coat and leaves the house.

The Next Morning.—The next morning finds Jack still lying on the floor. He awakes; he calls for Emmy; he cannot find her anywhere. Suddenly he sees a note lying upon the table:

> "Jack—I have suffered much, but I stayed with you. To-day you struck at me. That broke my heart. I am going forever. It is easy for you to forget me. It breaks my heart. EMMY."

Jack breaks down. Finding a whisky flask in his pocket, he breaks it upon the floor and swears never again to touch a drop of whisky.

Reward for Kindness and Patience.—Emmy turns another leaf of the scrap book. She is now nursing an old lady. Feeling that her end is near, the old lady makes her will, making Emmy her sole heir. She gives the paper to Emmy, who reads: "Having no kin, I leave all my earthly belongings to Emmy Chalmers, who for ten years was my good and true companion." Emmy bends her knees and under tears kisses the old lady's hand. The old lady pulls her up and kisses her upon the forehead.

What Jack Did in the Meantime.—Jack made every effort to find Emmy, but all in vain. He goes to the newspaper office and inserts the following advertisement: "Emmy, come back. I swear never to touch a drop again. Come back; I love you. Jack."

No Answer. Jack Goes to the West.—As no answer came to Jack's advertisement, he goes West, where he worked very hard as a miner.

Rich After Twelve Years. Off to Find Emmy.—Jack saw very dark days. At last, after twelve years, he found his efforts crowned with success. He found a gold mine, and now, being rich, he decides to find Emmy, his wife.

The Last Chapter.—Aunt Emmy is turning another page of her scrap book. Just then the door opens slowly. Jack enters; he puts his hands over her eyes. "Who is this?" Emmy guesses once, twice, then pulling the hands away she finds her head on Jack's breast. He bends down and kisses her upon the forehead. It is all like a dream to her. Then she jumps up. There stands Jack, good and true. "Emmy!" "Jack!" She hurries into his arms, they embrace and happiness beams in their eyes. Length, 865 feet.

THE BLIND MUSICIAN.—A blind musician, bent under the burden of his affliction, is led by his little daughter to the corner at which he stands, year in and year out, begging for mites from the passers-by.

Evening.—The little girl calls for her father and leads him home to a plain little house where she is preparing a modest meal for father and herself.

Morning.—Again the little girl guides her father to his accustomed stand. While leaving him and crossing the street she is run over by an automobile. Unconscious, she is carried to the hospital.

Evening. Where Is My Little Girl?—The blind musician is waiting at the corner. He stops a passer-by, asking the time. At last he asks a policeman to take him home. There he calls for his little girl, but she is nowhere to be found.

A Clue.—The policeman takes the blind musician to the police station. The lieutenant sends his man in search of the little girl. There is a 'phone call; the girl has been found at the hospital.

Found and Lost Forever.—Upon a cot in a hospital lies the little girl. Her eyes are closed. The policeman enters with the blind musician, who kneels down at the bedside of his dying little girl. One last kiss; she closes her eyes forever.

Six Weeks Later. United.—Among the graves. The musician comes toward a little hill. He bends down and kisses the stone. Then he plays the violin. Suddenly he reels, throws up his hands and falls dead over the little grave of the one he loved best. Length, 480 feet.

WILLIE'S WATER SPRINKLER.—Willie took grandpa's garden sprinkler and starts out to have some fun. His object is a dude, who, mistaking the water sprinkler's action for rain, opens his umbrella. He meets with many mishaps, all caused by mischievous Willie, and is at last subjected to severe douche by a fire hose, which seems to him like a tornado in comparison with Willie's water sprinkler. Length, 340 feet.

PATHE FRERES.

A VILLAGE QUARREL.—A pair of young lovers meet at the well, where the maiden goes to get water. While strolling back to the house the youth tells the happy girl of his love for her, and, after a little persuasion, she promises to become his wife. Bidding her good-bye at her gate, he goes on to his own home, which is on a farm adjoining that of his sweetheart.

The youth's old father takes a cow out to graze, and ties her to a stake near the boundary of the two farms, but somehow the animal breaks loose and goes over into the adjoining cabbage patch, where she is discovered by the girl's father, who rushes out and chases her, striking the animal with a club as she tries to make her escape.

This so enraged the old man who owns the cow that he comes rushing down to remonstrate with his neighbor, who turns and gives him a beating with the same club. The old man toddles back and informs his son, who, upon hearing the story, becomes so enraged that he goes over and gives the old neighbor a beating. The girl rushes out of the house and denounces the young man for his cowardly act, and tells him that she will have no more of him for daring to strike her old father.

When the youth regains his composure he realizes the enormity of his rash act, and becomes so remorseful that he makes a bolt for the river to end it all, and would have succeeded but for the timely interference of his father, who seizes him just as he reaches the brink of the stream. The kind old father compromises, and informs the son that if he will go with him to the old neighbor they will be able to patch up the quarrel. They go straight to him and offer their apologies for the mistakes made in the heat of temper, which are accepted by the old fellow, who shakes their hands, and the whole affair is forgotten. The happy young couple are again united and receive the old folks' blessing. Length, 466 feet.

INCRIMINATING EVIDENCE. — This powerful drama was acted by Mr. Severin, the great pantomimist, and a company of clever artists for our art film, and unfolds an interesting story of the seamy side of Paris life.

The first scene takes place in a haunt where a murder is committed, with robbery as the motive, by a man of respectable appearance, who, in order to avert suspicion, smears blood on a sleeping tough's hands, and puts some of the dead man's money and valuables in the innocent fellow's pocket, while he himself beats a hasty retreat from the place.

Upon the discovery of the crime, the crowd rush into the place, and immediately the blame is thrown on the poor tough, for it was with his dagger that the deed was committed, and all the evidence points to him as the guilty one. After the unfortunate fellow is led away by the police and the place is cleared of all excepting one of the accused man's pals (Pierrot by name), who is slow to believe his friend guilty of such a crime and who sits alone in deep thought. Turning suddenly, he catches sight of a handkerchief stained with blood lying on the floor, and also a card case which the murderer dropped in his hurry to escape.

Pierrot goes to the home of the assassin, who is a prosperous man, highly esteemed by all, but who is leading a double life. Pierrot accuses him point blank of the murder and the latter denies knowing anything about it, until he is confronted with the proofs, when he weakens and offers the accuser money to keep the secret.

After blackmailing the murderer out of a large amount of money, Pierrot frequents his old haunts and spends his cash with a free hand, but at all times his conscience is accusing him of letting his pal go to his doom while he stands by silent, knowing the circumstances of the case.

One night, while in a drunken stupor, he has a dream in which he sees his pal going to the guillotine to expiate another's crime. It is too much for him to bear, so upon awakening he goes to the chief of police and confesses all, substantiating his assertions by producing the evidence.

The murderer is sent for and put through a rigid examination, in which he stoutly denies any knowledge of the affair. Finally he is taken to the scene of the crime and put through the "Third Degree," and when he is confronted with the incriminating evidence he weakens and confesses all. Length, 1,160 feet.

VULTURE HUNTING IN AFRICA. This unique picture, which shows a novel form of sport, was taken in the wilds of Africa, where we see the natives hunting the vulture and other large birds of prey. A series of excellent close range views gives us a good idea of the dangers a hunter after this particular game must encounter, for we see here as he climbs up into the crevices in the rocks, where the vulture builds her nest, and where one misstep means a man's doom. Then again the tall peaks of the mountain are scaled, and when a nest is discovered they let a man down into the chasm on a rope and he captures the prey, which is hoisted to the top of the mountain.

One excellent view is given of a wounded fawn falling a victim to the voracious birds. The animal is hardly dead before they attack and devour the carcass, leaving nothing but the bones. The hunter has an excellent opportunity to get some great game in a case of this kind, and they take advantage of the situation, and we see them returning to the camp with some wonderful specimens. Length, 597 feet.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

A PRAIRIE TOWN ROMANCE.—In a small town in Montana lived a worthless drunkard who was only tolerated in the community out of sympathy for his hard working wife and only daughter. Poverty had driven the girl to accept a position as waitress in the town's only hotel a rather dilapidated and neglected building patronized chiefly by cowboys, who made frequent visits to this haven of rest from the different ranches to spend their earnings in obtaining what good cheer the hostelry afforded in the way of liquid refreshments.

Eliza Crane was a rather attractive girl and did not lack for admirers among the guests of "The Commercial." But to one, a handsome young cowpuncher by the name of Jack Lane she had given the preference, and was only waiting until Jack had saved up enough of his hard earned cash to start housekeeping as the wife of one of the best boys in the country.

By getting the drunken father on his side with the offer of quite a sum of money, another suitor laid a plan to marry Eliza in spite of herself. He gets the father to consent to the scheme to be present at the mock marriage he has arranged, and employs an unscrupulous vagabond to impersonate a minister of the gospel and conduct the ceremony. The farce is being carried out when Jack gets wind of the affair. Jack and his boys surprise the scoundrels at their nefarious work. With a wild rush the villains dash out of another door and away. Riding like mad, the fleeing outlaws round a small hillock in the valley, and suddenly wheeling fire into the midst of their pursuers, disabling their horses and leaving all but one without a mount. But that one keeps up the chase and follows them to town, where he acquaints the marshal with their crime. The valiant preserver of the peace gets busy, and by strategem soon has the three rascals securely locked in the calaboose, where they await a speedy trial and conviction. Length, 1,000 feet.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

THE DEACON'S LOVE LETTER. -In the packing room of a fruit store, Sadie and several companions are packing fruit in baskets, laughing and having a jolly good time. The boss enters and things become suddenly quiet. He scolds the girls for their lack of attention to business, then goes out, the girls making faces behind his back as he goes. Sadie, who seems to be the leader, has an idea. She writes a "mushy" note and hides it in a basket of fruit which is placed on a pile outside

CALEHUFF

A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION

Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk. MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.

LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set

N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

"See the Difference"

SONG SLIDES
Just Out

"Honey Dear"
"Always Think of Mother"
"If To-day Were Yesterday"

MUSIC FREE

LEVI CO., Inc.
(SPECIALISTS)
64 E. 14th Street, New York, U.S.A.

CHEAP
Steel Frame
Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY
Non-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
New York Office, 1402 Broadway
Boston Office, 224 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

"ALL OTHERS BEAT TO A FRAZZLE"

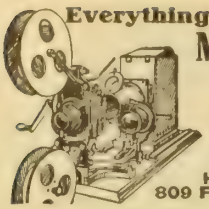
"THE WOLF HUNT"

THE GREATEST MOVING PICTURE EVER MADE

SEND in YOUR ORDER before YOUR COMPETITOR

WRITE FOR TERMS AND PROSPECTUS

Oklahoma Natural Mutoscene Co., 605 14th Street N. W., Washington, D. C.



Everything in NEW and S. H.
Motion Picture Machines
Films, Stereopticons, Song Slides and Supplies. Same wanted. Catalogues free.
HARBACH & CO.,
809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

HOLD TIGHT FILM CEMENT
Positively the best cement made, sent on receipt of 35 cents. Address
CHARLES NISPEL YORK, PA.

GET
Independent Film Service
FROM
M. C. G. FEARIS
Shreveport, La.
AND
Oklahoma City, Okla.
Formerly Oklahoma Film Exchange

NEW SLIDES
For the Following Songs
JUST OUT
Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear
DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

In writing to Advertisers Mention the Moving Picture World.

the store. Shortly afterward the deacon comes along, buys a basket of fruit and, unfortunately for him, the one in which the note is hidden. The deacon goes to his office, hangs up his hat and coat and in looking over his purchase comes upon Sadie's note. He reads it, laughingly puts it in his pocket, replaces the apples and proceeds with his work, the note being entirely forgotten. The following day his tailor calls at his home for clothes to be repaired, and his wife, in going through his pockets, comes upon the note. She is wild with anger and starts at once for hubby's office. The deacon is busy at his desk as his wife enters like a cyclone, showing the note. He tries to explain, but she won't have it and hurries out in search of a divorce lawyer. The unfortunate man grabs his hat, starts for the fruit store, and, arriving there, tells of his trouble. Sadie steps forward and confesses and agrees to "square" him with wifey. As the deacon and Sadie are going up the steps of his house, the girl slips and sprains her ankle. The deacon helps her inside and is rubbing the sprained member as his wife and a visitor appear. Both scream in horror at this further evidence of his duplicity and run out. The old man faints and Sadie gives him whiskey to resuscitate him. He partakes too freely, gets foolish and tries to make love to Sadie, who manages to make her escape.

A little later in his parlor the deacon's wife is crying, her friend trying to console her. The door opens and Sadie runs in, followed by the unsteady deacon. The women scream in terror, bringing in the police. The deacon's wife takes out the incriminating note and shows it to Sadie. The latter confesses to having written it and explains all. The wife helps her hubby out from beneath the table, where he has sought refuge, fondly embraces him and begs forgiveness. Length, 410 feet.

THE MARATHON RACE.—Tom Noble, a college student, is in the gymnasium exercising with several companions. After finishing they adjourn to Tom's room. They are discussing athletics when a messenger enters and hands Tom a note. It is from mother and informs him that unexpected trouble demands his immediate return home. He shows the letter to his chums, who express their sorrow at the unfortunate turn of affairs.

At home, Mrs. Noble is sitting in her room perusing a letter as Mr. Grab, a money lender, is announced. After formal greetings, Grab makes an offer of marriage. The widow promptly and emphatically refuses him, whereupon the shylock grows angry, takes a mortgage from his pocket and threatens to foreclose unless she accepts his offer or pays the mortgage. He is ordered from the house and in coming down the steps meets Tom, just returned from college. The young man greets Grab, who does not answer. Tom looks after him in surprise, then enters the house. He finds his mother sitting dejectedly in a chair. He quietly comes from behind, surprises her and, after an affectionate embrace, the widow tells of her trouble. Tom endeavors to comfort her, saying that he will start to work at once. He finds, however, that securing a position is no easy job. At every place he tries for work the same answer, "Nothing doing," is given. He goes to Grab and pleads for leniency, which is mockingly refused. Emerging from the money lender's office, Tom sees a three-sheet announcing a Marathon Race, in which the first prize is $1,000. He determines to try for the prize, enters the official's room, signs his name as a contestant.

Three days later the race comes off. Tom and the other runners in costume come to the starting point. They start and Tom is well up among the leaders at different points along the route and, nearing the finish, he puts forth all his reserve force and comes across the line a winner. Rushing home to tell mother of his good fortune he finds Grab there demanding immediate payment or evacuation of the premises. Tom takes the prize money from his pocket, pays Grab, throws him out of the house and tears up the mortgage. Length, 585 feet.

THE LOVE OF THE PASHA'S SON.—A Turkish romance. Outside the palace, the Pasha and his son, the Prince are see descending the marble steps, several servants preceding them, salaaming as they walk backwards. They proceed to the river bank where two caiques are moored to the landing. The father and son enter one which is loosened by a servant and they row down the river. Further along the stream another caique, containing two Turkish women, passes them. Both look admiringly at the younger women of the two, although the Prince's look contains none of the insult conveyed in that of his father. The Pasha orders his oarsmen to put about and follow the other boat. They do so and the young girl is followed to her home which proves to be that of a wealthy merchant. The daughter and her chaperone enter the house, the Pasha's servant following. He makes a note of the number of the house and hurries back to inform his master. Inside in one of the richly furnished rooms the father and daughter are talking affectionately as a servant enters and announces a messenger from the Pasha. He hands the merchant a note which reads "You are requested to appear before the Pasha immediately and bring your daughter." They are horrified at the command but realize that failure to obey will mean death, so sadly follow the servant to the Pasha's abode. The merchant and his daughter are presented to the Pasha, who announces that he wants the girl for his harem. Pleadings are in vain, the merchant is given a bag of gold in payment for his daughter while she is led away. During this time the Prince and the girl have been casting sly glances at each other. He is seen to write something on a card and as the girl is taken away he follows, the Pasha looking after him rather suspiciously. In passing through the corridor the Prince passes the card into the girl's hand and walks on. She goes to the harem and connected reads on the card "I will try to save you to-night. Stay awake." Night comes and in the corridor outside of the harem room, a guard is on watch. The Prince comes along, tells him that the Pasha has sent for him and offers to take his place on guard. As the servant hurries off, the Prince cautiously opens the door, beckons to the girl and they both hasten through the cor-

LOOK LOOK LOOK
MR. FILM EXCHANGE
Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving
B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

America's Leading Film Exchange
Would Like to Show You What Constitutes
A GOOD FILM SERVICE
We Get Every Subject of the World's leading Film Manufacturers, which includes the following:
Edison Mfg. Co., Selig Polyscope Co., Essanay Mfg. Co., S. Lubin, Vitagraph Co., Biograph Co., Kalem Co., Urban-Eclipse, Gaumont, Pathe Freres
The output of the above manufacturers is licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and presents a variety of subjects necessary to the greatest success.
Exhibitors desiring information regarding the license arrangement of the Motion Picture Patents Company, or other details pertaining to our Film Service are invited to adddress us
We handle all licensed Motion Picture Machines and a complete line of Supplies.
Give us particulars regarding your Theatre and requirements by mail wire, or personal call, and let us submit you figures.
THEATRE FILM SERVICE CO.
(Licensees of Motion Picture Patents Co.)
85 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE: 1038 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

10 Fifth Avenue - - - New York City

The following Manufacturers and Importers of Films have been Licensed by this Company.

American Mutoscope & Biograph Company
Edison Manufacturing Company
Essanay Film Manufacturing Company
Kalem Company
George Kleine
Lubin Manufacturing Company
Pathe Freres
Selig Polyscope Company
Vitagraph Company of America

LICENSED EXCHANGES

The following exchanges have been licensed, and at the present time are the only Exchanges that are authorized to handle licensed films:

Actograph Company, 50 Union Square, New York City.
Actograph Company, Troy, N. Y.
Alamo Film Exchange, 405 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Alamo Film Exchange, 304 Conroy Building, San Antonio, Tex.
American Film Exchange, 645 Wabash Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
American Film Service, 125 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.
American Film Service, 158 North Main street, Memphis, Tenn.
American Vitagraph Company, 116 Nassau street, New York, N. Y.
George Breck, 70 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo Film Exchange, 13½ Genesee street, Buffalo, N. Y.
C. A. Calehuff, Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Calumet Film Exchange, Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline & Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline, 268 South State street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Clune Film Exchange, 727 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.
Colorado Film Exchange Company, 320 Charles Building, Denver, Colo.
Columbia Film Exchange, 414 Ferguson Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Gayety Theater Building, St. Louis, Mo.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Crawford Theater, El Paso, Tex.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Hopkins Theater, Louisville, Ky.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Shubert Theater, New Orleans, La.
Harry Davis, 347 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Harry Davis, Buffalo, N. Y.
Harry Davis, 1311 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Denver Film Exchange, 713 Lincoln avenue, Denver, Colo.
Dixie Film Company, 620 Commercial place, New Orleans, La.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 104-5 Bakewell Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 235 Monticello Arcade Building, Norfolk, Va
Edison Display Co., 1116 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash.
Edison Display Co., 165½ Fourth street, Portland, Ore.
Electric Theater Supply Co., 47 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Greater New York Film Rental Co., 24 Union Square, New York City.
C. J. Hite Company, Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill.
Howard Moving Picture Co., 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Imperial Film Exchange, 44 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City.
Imperial Film Exchange, 299 River street, Troy, N. Y.
Imperial Film Exchange, 803 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Imported Film & Supply Co., 708 Union street, New Orleans, La.
Kent Film Service, 218 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Kleine Optical Company, 2008½ Third avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Kleine Optical Company, 657 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Kleine Optical Company, 52 State street, Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Company, 302 Boston Building, Denver, Colo.
Kleine Optical Company, 229 Commercial Building, Des Moines, Ia.
Kleine Optical Company, 214 Traction Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Kleine Optical Co. of California, 369 Pacific Electric Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Kleine Optical Company, 662 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Company, 309 Melhorn Building, Seattle, Wash.
Kleine Optical Company of Missouri, 523 Commercial Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Laemmle Film Service, 196 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service, Main and Sixth streets, Evansville, Ind.
Laemmle Film Service, 78 South Front street, Memphis, Tenn.
Laemmle Film Service, 1121-23 Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service, 800 Brandeis Block, Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service, 419-20 Marquam Grand Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service, 151 Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 314 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
H. Lieber Co., 24 West Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lubin Film Service, 21 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Lubin Film Service, 510 Paul-Gale-Greenwood Building, Norfolk, Va.
Lubin Film Service, 140 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 82 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
Miles Bros., Inc., 259 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Miles Bros., Inc., Washington and Dover streets, Boston, Mass.
Miles Bros., Inc., 790 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Mitchell Film Exchange, 120½ Main street, Little Rock, Ark.
Monarch Film Exchange, 201 Thompson Building, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Montana Film Exchange, 41 North Main street, Butte, Mont.
Morton Film Exchange, 107 Sixth street, Portland, Ore.
Mullin Film Service, Solar Building, Watertown, N. Y.
National Film Company, 100 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., Spokane, Wash.
Novelty Moving Picture Co., 418 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Bread street, Columbus, Ohio.
Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.
Pennsylvania Film Exchange, 403 Lewis Block, Pittsburg, Pa.
People's Film Exchange, 126 University place, New York City.
Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 121 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Wilkesbarre, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 501-503 Central Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Neave Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 421 Walnut street, Des Moines, Ia.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 60-62 Brownell Block, Lincoln, Neb.
Schiller Film Exchange, 103 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Southern Film Exchange, 1822 Fourth avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Southern Film Exchange, 148 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George K. Spoor & Co., 62 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.
Star Film Exchange, 120 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Standard Film Exchange, 79 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Superior Film Supply Co., 621 Nasby Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Swaab Film Service Co., 338 Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 160 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Wm. H. Swanson Co. of Omaha, 405 Karbach Block, Omaha, Neb.
Wm. H. Swanson St. Louis Film Co., 200 North Seventh street, St. Louis, Mo.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main street, East, Rochester, N. Y.
Tally's Film Exchange, 554 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Theater Film Supply Co., 202 South Tryon street, Charlotte, N. C.
Theater Film Supply Co., 2007 Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Theater Film Service Co., 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Theater Film Service Co., 1068 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal.
Trent & Wilson, 63 East Third street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
20th Century Optiscope Co., Shukert Building, Kansas City, Mo.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 408 Eccles Building, Ogden, Utah.
Turner & Dahnken, 1650 Ellis street, San Francisco, Cal.
Twin City Calcium and Stereopticon Co., 709 Hennepin ave., Minneapolis, Minn
United Film Exchange, 717 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
U. S. Film Exchange, 132 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Vaudette Film Exchange Co., 103 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich
P. L. Waters, 41 East Twenty-first street, New York City.
Alfred Weiss' Film Exchange, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City.
Western Film Exchange, 949 Century Building, St. Louis Mo.
Western Film Exchange, 307 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange, 201 Miners' Bank Building, Joplin, Mo.
Wonderland Film Exchange, Seventh street and Liberty ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
Wheelan-Loper Film Co., 339 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Yale Film Renting Co., 622 Main street, Kansas City, Mo.

robe, leave the palace, go to the river and row off. The servant meanwhile goes to the Pasha's smoking room. The master looks up angrily, asks why he has dared leave his post of duty. He answers that the Prince has sent him. Pasha suspects the truth, jumps up and hurries out with the frightened servant. They reach the harem chamber, where there is one empty divan, verifying his suspicions. Servants are hurriedly ordered in pursuit, the chase leading over the river, then through a stretch of woods. On a road the pursuing party is close at hand, when the Prince spies an automobile containing tourists rapidly approaching. The auto party sympathize with the couple and take them into the machine. They start off just as the Pasha's servants reach the spot.

A little later, in a well furnished room in France, the Prince and the girl are the center of a bridal party, the contracting parties being the Pasha's son and the girl whom he saved. Length, 543 feet.

VIRGINIUS. The Roman citizens are cheering for their Decemvir, Appius Claudius, and his friend, Caius Claudius, leader of the soldiers, when Dentatus, an old Roman general, scoffs at their inexperienced leader. The citizens rush upon Dentatus, to kill him, but he is saved by Icilius, a young Roman.

Virginius' House. Virginius enters with his only daughter, Virginia, and discovers by a picture that she has painted that she is in love with Icilius. Virginius consents to their union and betrothes them in presence of his brother, Munitorius, and the old nurse of Virginia, Servia, and Virginius' old friend, Dentatus. Virginius is called to the wars.

Caius Claudius is defeated in battle and comes back in despair and tells Appius the news. Appius Claudius persuades old Dentatus to lead the soldiers in battle, hoping secretly that he will be killed. Appius sees Virginia and falls in love with her. He persuades Caius Claudius to claim her as his slave. Caius seizes Virginia in the streets of Rome and drags her before the Decemvir, Appius. Appius decides the trial in Caius' favor, but the mob overrule Appius and he is forced to postpone the trial for one day. Munitorius and Icilius send the boy in haste for Virginius to return to Rome.

On the battlefield Dentatus is treacherously killed by the soldiers, who tell Virginius that Dentatus was killed in battle. Virginius mourns over his old friend, Dentatus, when Lucius rushes in and tells him he is needed in Rome, that Appius Claudius has claimed Virginia as a slave.

He comes back in haste, embraces his daughter and boldly and fearlessly goes with her to face Appius Claudius. A slave of Caius swears Virginia is her daughter. Everything failing, Virginius, to save her from Appius Claudius, he kills her to save her honor, then, defying Appius, he rushes out. The mob seizes Appius Claudius and drag him to prison. Virginius goes mad and wanders away. Just as Appius Claudius is about to swallow poison in the dungeon and Caius Claudius comes in and promises him freedom, the mad Virginius wanders in. He imagines he sees his daughter struggling with Appius and calling to him for help, and seizes Appius by the throat and chokes him.

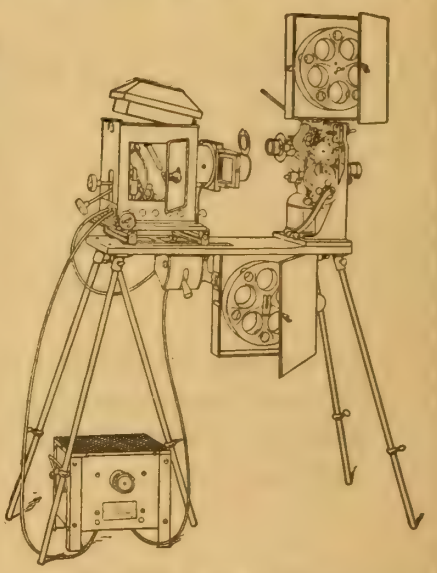
Munitorius and Icilius come in with the ashes of Virginia. They show Virginius the urn, his reason returns and he falls on his brother's shoulder. Length, 955 feet.

CLEOPATRA'S LOVER; Or, A Night of Enchantment. Outside Cleopatra's palace a youth and maiden are observed. They are evidently very much in love with each other. While conversing, the gates open, Cleopatra and Mark Antony come forth, accompanied by soldiers, dancing girls, etc. He bids farewell to Cleopatra and, accompanied by a body guard, starts on his journey. The youth takes no further notice of his sweetheart, but gazes fascinated at Cleopatra, who, after waving farewell to Antony, re enters the palace. The youth continues to gaze after Cleopatra, pushes his affianced aside, falls to his knees and kisses the step where Cleopatra stood. He then goes into the grounds, underneath her bed chamber, writes on a scroll of his ardent love, wraps the paper around his arrow and shoots it through the window. Inside the chamber Cleopatra and her servants are startled, take the arrow and read the note. Looking outside, nobody can be seen. Shortly afterward Cleopatra goes outside to the bathing pool, poises on the brink, when, looking toward a clump of bushes, she spies the lovesick youth. He is brought out and Cleopatra imperiously demands what his presence means. He is not abashed, but kneels and tells of his love. Cleopatra orders her attendants away, takes the youth and leads him off. When alone he again reiterates his love. Cleopatra orders her servants to bring wine, fruit, perfumes, etc. Dancing girls appear, execute a few manoeuvres, then leave. Cleopatra then rises and dances before the youth. A servant enters, delivers a message to the mistress, then departs. Cleopatra hands a goblet to the young man, who drinks its contents, then falls dead. Cleopatra bows over his body a moment, then springs up and sits on the throne as Mark Antony comes down the steps. He salutes and embraces Cleopatra, observes the corpse and demands an explanation. Cleopatra carelessly replies: "Just another slave I was experimenting on with poison." Length, 860 feet.

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

The exhibitor who uses an Edison Kinetoscope need not fear competition

To invest in an indifferent or inferior picture machine is to invite failure. The Edison Kinetoscope is unequalled for its brilliant, steady clear cut work. There is no unpleasant flicker, no wear on the films, no danger from fire and no complicated mechanisms to get out of order. The motion picture idea originated with Thomas A. Edison. He offers it in its most perfect form in his Kinetoscope. One of many decided improvements is its



Prices from $90.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

IMPROVED LAMP HOUSE

This lamp house is much larger than other types, has better radiation, takes longer carbons and, by reason of top, back and side openings, is much more accessible. A complete description of the Edison Kinetoscope, with illustrations, in booklet form sent free on request.

EDISON FILMS

The subjects for Edison Films are selected with great care and are acted out by talented people. They are never ordinary, but are always of a character that does not offend. They range from thrilling melodrama to brisk, lively comedy. They are made with unusual care by a process that insures absolutely perfect results. New films are prepared each week. If you will send us your address you will receive complete descriptions of the new films as they appear.

NEXT WEEK'S SHIPMENTS:

Shipment, February 2, 1909
THE ORIGIN OF BEETHOVEN'S MOONLIGHT SONATA. Dramatic.
No. 6418 Code, VENGEABLE
App. Length 900 feet

Shipment, February 5, 1909
ADVENTURES OF AN OLD FLIRT
Comedy
No. 6419 Code, VENGEANCE
App. Length 900 feet

NEW SUBJECTS:

Shipment, February 9, 1909
A BACHELOR'S SUPPER
Dramatic
No. 6420 Code, VENGEFULLY
App. Length 850 feet

Shipment, February 12, 1909
THE SALES LADY'S MATINEE IDOL
Comedy
No 6421 Code, VENGEONS
App. Length 900 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 304 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries. FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS

ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT

Write for Samples and Full Information

THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS

59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER

SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER

GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST

J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

NEXT ISSUE:

THE COINERS; or Catching the Counterfeiters

(Eclair)

Coming: No. 3 NICK CARTER SERIES

FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.

Representing

145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAIR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City

GAUMONT FILMS

Gaumont

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

Two reels of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

ECLIPSE

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

One reel of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

GEORGE KLEINE

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only to the high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4., No. 6. February 6 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

Published Weekly by THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO., 125 E. 23d ST., NEW YORK

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS

ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT

Write for Samples and Full Information

THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS

59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

THE EAGLE FILM EXCHANGE

Will give you an Exclusive Service. We handle nothing but new goods—no junk. We are prepared to give you the following makes of film: Great Northern, Eclair, Cines, Comerio, Melies, Williamson, etc.

143 N. 8th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Branch: Mauch Chunk, Pa. Oscar Bittner, Mgr.

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS are learning that It Pays to Investigate and that

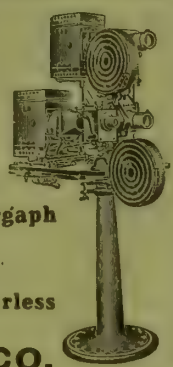
The Motiograph is truly A Wonderful Machine

FOR MOTION PICTURES AND STEROPTICON VIEWS

andthat where there's Perfect Pictures there's A Motiorgaph in the Operator's Booth.

Chicago, Boston, New York and Frisco approved.

It projects Wonderfully Brilliant, Steady and Flickerless Pictures and is absolutely fireproof.



ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.

The Motiograph is Licensed

under the patents of the

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.
OF NEW YORK.

The Rheostato Current Saver, saves 60 to 75 per cent. on Electric Bills.

The Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit is the only satisfactory substitute for Electric Light.

Our Catalog tells a lot of interesting things.

WRITE FOR IT;

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

DON'T LET THEM BULLY YOU

The Best Film Service is To Own Your Own Films

We Have Bargains for Cautious Buyers:

300,000 feet of interesting, money-making Films, Standard Guage, WE call it second-hand. After what you have been using YOU WILL CALL IT NEW

NO TRUST! We sell outright for American Dollars

Price 5 Cents Per Foot

Forwarded in parcels of not less than 1,000 feet, varied subjects, thoroughly inspected before packing.
Cheques and drafts payable to The American Express Company, Paris, France, who have agreed to hand over the money to us against parcel and to deliver the films, FREIGHT PAID to your domicile

RALEIGH & ROBERT

16 Rue Sainte Cecile, Paris, France

Owners of the French Biograph Patents, an old reliable firm, turn out the finest work ever seen—remember the "Cape to Cairo" Series.
We have operaters all over the world.

CABLE ADDRESS: Biograph, Paris

REMEMBER: PRICE 5 CENTS PER FOOT—MINIMUM 1,000 FEET DELIVERED FREIGHT PAID TO YOUR DOOR

ADDRESS: Raleigh and Robert, 16 rue Sainte Cecile, Paris, France

CASH WITH ORDER: Cheques and drafts to be sent to us with order but made payable to the American Express Company of Paris. We receive no money until parcel is delivered to them.

Look for our announcement next week. If you want good films send us your address

Special

IF YOU install our 20th CENTURY SERVICE now, you will question yourself beyond doubt, and say why did I put it off so long.

There's

no reason why we can't show you that we are still the famous 20th CENTURY FILM EXCHANGE, the leader of them ALL, if Quality Counts give us your order.

We are the oldest High Grade FILM EXCHANGE IN AMERICA, and have stood the test of many years experience.

Everything in the Moving Picture Business on hand ready for immediate shipment.

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

OFFICES AT

Argyle Building,
KANSAS CITY, MO.

59 Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Eccles Building,
OGDEN, UTAH

BIOGRAPH FILMS

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED FEBRUARY 8th.

EDGAR ALLEN POE

A picture story founded on incidents in his career, which, while not pretended to be biographical, is intended to show him as a man of heart, in contradiction to the calumnies of his enemies. It portrays his devotion for his dying wife, and the writing of that wonderful masterpiece, "The Raven," for which he receives the paltry sum of ten dollars. The subject as a whole is indeed a work of art, and most timely, commemorating this season of his birthday centennial. Length, 450 Feet.

A WREATH IN TIME

Mr. Goodhusband goes out with the boys to make a night of it, and telegraphs his wife he left town on business. The evening paper recounts the wreck and killing of all on board of the train he was supposed to take. Mrs. Goodhusband at once gets ready for his interment, ordering the floral designs, etc. When he appears in the morning and finds he is supposed to be dead, he makes the bluff that he was the only one saved, and tells how he tried to help the others, when the morning paper arrives and states the account of the wreck was a mistake—it never happened. Poor Goodhusband, he—Oh, well— Length, 558 Feet.

RELEASED FEBRUARY 11th.

TRAGIC LOVE

An intensely dramatic subject clearly told, and sufficiently thrilling to hold interest throughout. It tells the story of a young man, who, drugged by a couple of crooks, awakens to find himself beside the body of a man whom one of the crooks has killed. There is every evidence that he has committed the deed, and he himself is impressed so. He leaves the place and goes to another town, always haunted by the false specter, until one day he reads a newspaper account of the confession of the real murderer.

Length, 893 Feet.

Release days of Biograph Subjects—MONDAY and THURSDAY

Get on Our Mail List and Keep Posted. Write for Our Descriptive Circulars

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

FOR SALE

COMPLETE MOVING PICTURE SHOW

One Edison Machine, Large Phonograph, lot of Records, 2 Rheostats 3 Reels, 160 Chairs and other Equipments necessary for Picture Show, also Box Office and Stage. Will sell at a bargain, as other business requires my attention. Address of A. GOLDBERG & SONS, CYNTHIANA, KY.

RAPHAEL GOLDBERG

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!

FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!

Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material

COMPLETE, $175.00

VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

The A B C of the Film Business

Attention
Brains
Courtesy

At Your Disposal and Gladly Furnished by

Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co.

Pittsburg, Pa. Des Moines, Ia.
Cincinnati, O. Lincoln, Neb.
Rochester, N. Y.

GAUMONT FILMS

Gaumont

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

Two reels of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

One reel of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

GEORGE KLEINE

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Moving Picture World

Copyright, 1908, by
The World Photographic Publishing Company,
125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.
Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.
Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.
Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative,
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

vol. 4 FEBRUARY 6 No. 6

Editorial.

THE INDEPENDENT MOVEMENT AND ITS PROGRESS.

"We recognize the right of the Independents to fair play and adequate representation in the press, and we will warmly encourage any progressive movements that they may make. We wish to see a good and open fight, for the keener the competition on certain lines, the better for the welfare of the business as a whole. Our duty is to present all the news and facts impartially and to make such comments as may seem to be reasonably called for, and that duty we shall discharge, week by week, to the best of our knowledge and ability."

—Quoted from our last week's editorial.

Audi alteram partem: hear all sides, and as the above extract from our last week's editorial will show, the declared policy of impartiality of "The Moving Picture World" is no mere empty protestation of journalistic opportunism, but a concrete reality. We are resolved that all aspects of the moving picture industry shall receive just treatment in these pages, for it is only by such means that we can hope to receive a continuance of that widespread support which our efforts in the past have won for us.

Much water has flowed down the Hudson in the last few weeks. It needed time and opportunity to make the position of the Independents clear and definite so that it could be susceptible of comprehension and to comment. The revolutionary events of January 9 were followed by much confusion and wildness of action; much foolish talk and ill advised bluster; interminable lengths of pointless print and conjecture—all tending to obscure the Independent position, which, at last, stands out somewhat plainly and affords us the opportunity, for which we have been waiting, of correctly sizing up the position of matters as it concerns those who are outside the combine.

To begin with, it seems perfectly certain that the Independents must rank as important factors in the situation. The Film Import and Trading Company, the Great Northern Company and others profess themselves as perfectly well satisfied with the trend of business. They have control of an adequate supply of film for which there is an increasing demand, and they and those associated with them will be content with 30 per cent. of the total volume of the film business which they expect will fall to their share. It is argued, too, that imported Independent film will be more popular with the public than the Association, as it will not be shown so often and therefore will not become stale. This is certainly a strong card in the hands of the Independents.

It is urged that the objection of the exhibitor to pay a license fee is largely a matter of sentiment. He does not relish control in his business, and while this element exists the Independents may safely count upon a large volume of support for their productions. The smaller men may take out licenses; but the larger can afford to ignore the matter and can pick and choose their films from either Association or Independent sources. Generally it is the experience of the Independent Film Protective Association that the larger number of exhibitors are not signing the license agreement and are declaring for an open market.

"We will not enter into any combine," Mr. George Bauerdorf assured us, "that does not include all manufacturers, exhibitors and renters. If such a combine could be formed we would be the first to say enter. But I do not believe that such a combine is practically feasible; and therefore an open market is the best solution of the problem. Renters, exhibitors and manufacturers have different and conflicting interests, which cannot be harmonized." This view is also that of Mr. Ingvald Oes of the Great Northern, who points out that there are very many strong elements outside the combine.

The Independent films will prevent the threatened elimination of competition, as they will be plentiful, varied in subject, and to the taste of the American public. But to sustain the Independent position the support of the exhibitor is essential and the officials of the Protective Association point to the large meetings in Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Toledo and Philadelphia as evidencing the strength of the movement in favor of open competition. Here, then, we have the essential facts of the Independent position; and from the circumstance that there is such a strong demand for their films it looks as if the public will be the gainer from the keen and active competition that has set in. We also understand that legal protection will be given to the exhibitors using Independent film, should such protection be called for by circumstances.

As we have outlined it, the position of the Independents is commercially aggressive and politically defensive. They intend to sell, indeed, are selling, their films, and as regards patent disputes they are content to watch events as they arise. An offensive policy is under consideration, but it is premature to give details. Unofficially, however, we hear that a large corporation is manufacturing the Bianchi camera; that "Independent" apparatus and accessories will be available; and that the validity of the Motion Pictures Patents Company's patents will be contested. This summarizes the main facts of the situation, out of which arises a very clear position, viz., that the Independents are full of fight and are by no means displeased with the condition of affairs. We do not think we can put the matter more fairly or impartially before our readers, who, we believe, by this time are as fully in possession of all the facts of the situation as it is possible for us to ascertain them. In the last resort, as we have already pointed out, it is for the individual most concerned to weigh the pros and cons of the case and decide for himself where best his own interests can be most effectively served in the present juncture. The less sentiment about the matter, the better; the pocket is the only reliable guide. And if every one interested in the present crisis would faithfully follow that guide, the moving picture industry would prosper as it has never prospered before.

THE EXHIBITOR'S ASSOCIATIONS.

"Indignation is froth except as it leads to action!" once remarked an eminent statesman. There has been much indignation in the ranks of the moving picture exhibitors of late, but of definite lasting action it is difficult to perceive traces. "Don't sign!" has been the advice of the independent leaders. "We won't!" has been the reply of crowded meetings at Chicago and elsewhere. And thereupon certain associations, as our reports show, have been formed. Just in so far as those associations promote the welfare of the moving picture industry as a whole do we wish them success. Whatever the inspiration, it cannot be a bad thing for the moving picture field to be organized; the constant meeting of exhibitors for purposes of mutual counsel and help is certainly a thing to be encouraged.

Of course, the agitator of the purely professional kind has been on the warpath; he always is in such crises. Agitation is his stock in trade; without it he would have no reason to be. But that sort of thing soon finds its own level and subsides, and is heard of no more. The independent film manufacturer, however, occupies a different standpoint. He has goods to sell and if he can compete in the open market with privileged manufacturers he is entitled to take advantage of all the opportunities at his disposal. There is no monopoly in films; nor is the market closed to competing cameras and projectors. If there is a demand for these things it is certain that a supply will be forthcoming. We view with satisfaction the efforts of competing manufacturers to have a cut in for the profits of the moving picture field. Competition is the soul of trade, and we are surre that the guiding spirits of the Moving Pictures Patents Company will be sorely disappointed if their policy does not provoke opposition.

New York probably supplies the key to the situation throughout the country. We have been at some pains these last few days to make personal inquiries of the leading film exchanges as to how the exhibitors were treating the license question, and we have been informed that the "Don't sign" policy has been more honored in the breach than in the observance. In other words, the average exhibitor finds it to his interest to put himself in line with the policy of the Patents Company. Conversing with the owner of several moving picture theaters in the South, he indorsed that policy as likely to force out some of the ruinous competition from which he and others suffer. This we find is a very general view; and on the whole, it is a sensible one. One prominent renter informed us that the independent exhibitors were coming over to him in great numbers. Another professed ignorance of any appreciable "Don't sign" movement in New York and district.

Such being the position of affairs in the East, it is reasonable to suppose that the West will follow suit, and that Chicago and Detroit will revise their ideas. A factor of the situation is that the "Don't sign!" advertisements of certain exchanges have been followed by the "Do sign!" pronouncements of other exchanges of far greater prominence and importance. It looks as if the "Don't sign" agitation will peter out. In that case it is not clear what will be left to be done by the various exhibitors' associations that have been so hastily formed. They cannot possibly exist on a negative programme. Suppose they oppose the Motion Pictures Patents Company with all their main and might Well and good. They'll soon tire of that game; something of a constructive nature is required to keep their theaters going. What are they going to do?

Perhaps we are somewhat critical of these hastily formed exhibitors' associations; but we are not at all unsympathetic towards them. What we fail to see is how they can possibly last out on such vague programmes as they seem to have begun with. The boycotting of M. P. P. Company's machines and films is an intelligible plank in a platform; can they at present be satisfactorily replaced? That is the crux of the matter. It's no use waving the American flag and denouncing Mr. Dyer and other gentlemen over a simple business proposition. Nor is sentiment worth a cent in the matter; nor are attacks on monopolies, trusts, "illegal combinations," infractions of the Sherman law, and the other rhodomontade of the irrepressible agitator. This sort of thing doesn't help the individual exhibitor one bit; he must be guided entirely by his business instincts in the matter. And if he does that, we do not think he will go wrong in his decision.

This brings us to what we think is the pith of the present agitation as it circles round the exhibitor: whether he be in New York, Chicago, Detroit or elsewhere. Our advice is simple. Pay no heed to unauthorized agitators, or excited orators at public meetings. Consult your own interest; your own pocket. If it pays you to pay a license of $2 a week to anybody—no matter who, pay it. If it doesn't pay you to pay it, don't pay it. Let the individual decide the matter for himself. You don't need the assistance of an association on that point, whatever other advantages co-operation may bring you. As we have already pointed out, the taking up of a M. P. P. Company license doesn't barter away your "freedom" or sell you into slavery, from which there is no escape. But as a prominent theater owner said in our hearing: "It is well to be on the safe side. I'd pay $10 a week if it guaranteed me protection."

THE LICENSE QUESTION AND SOME OTHERS.

This week we publish two additional circular letters that have been distributed by the Motion Pictures Patents Company. They have some bearing on difficulties that have arisen in regard to the taking up of licenses by the exhibitors. These circulars make clear certain facts which, in the interest of all concerned, it is desirable to emphasize.

Licensed exhibitors, it appears, are not bound to the company by their licenses and may discontinue the licensed service at any time and be thereby relieved from every obligation incurred. There can, then, be no question of the signing away of one's "freedom," when "freedom" is entirely a matter of personal option.

Then again, the license fee is not an arbitrarily fixed sum of $2 per week. It is imposed on the principle of a sliding scale. The largest theaters are asked to pay $2 a week; smaller theaters $1; even smaller ones 50 cents, which becomes a merely nominal sum. We understand that licenses are being taken out all over the country by the principal exhibitors. There is no compulsion in the matter. It appears, however, that it is the policy of the company to have a licensed theater in every desirable locality.

In pursuance of its declared policy to protect its licensees, the company has already refused several licences which would be used at large and expensive theaters that it was proposed to erect by certain speculators in localities where licensed theaters already exist. Moreover, the services of counsel have been retained to watch over the company's interests at Los Angeles, Cal., where the local authorities are taking steps to forbid the public exhibition of unsuitable film subjects. The company is co-operating with the authorities with this object.

* * *

In the shorter of the two circulars, headed "Announcement to Exhibitors," there are some points which cannot fail to secure general support. Those three points are worth quoting here verbatim:

"To prevent the renter from supplying scratched and worn out film by compelling him to return all such film to the manufacturer for destruction.

"To afford the legitimate exhibitor protection from ruinous and unfair competition by refusing to license or supply licensed film to a new exhibitor attempting to start a show where not required by public demand and where the competition would injuriously affect an existing licensed theater.

"To encourage in all possible ways the commendation and support of the moving picture business by the better class of the community."

On general grounds nobody can grudge approval to these objects. Damaged film and excessive competition cannot possibly advantage the moving picture business as a whole; and it is certainly desirable that the support of the better classes of the community should be attracted to the moving picture as a form of public entertainment. Common fairness demands an acknowledgment that these objects, at any rate, of the Patents Company can only make for the uplift of the industry. We think the circulars we are reproducing clear up many points of confusion that have arisen with regard to the application of the Patents Company's policy. It is our object to make that policy, as well as the policy of the Independents, as clear as possible to the reader, so that he may be posted in all the latest developments as they arise.

IMPORTANT TO EXHIBITORS.

As we go to press we learn of the very latest development of the license question. It is that this week the licensed exchanges will be notified by the Motion Pictures Patents Company to cut off the supply of Association film from those exhibitors who have not paid their license. This action must necessarily place those exhibitors who have not already arranged for an adequate supply of Independent film in such a position that they may be compelled to close their theaters.

Meanwhile, it is obvious that when the order goes forth, the Independent exchanges will have no reason to complain of lack of customers, and if they can obtain sufficient new subjects they will quickly reap a rich harvest. At present, however, we cannot learn that there is sufficient Independent film available to meet a possible demand.

Therefore, those exhibitors who have not paid the license fee should lose no time, either in making their contracts with the Independent exchanges, or, during this week, paying the license fee. In taking the latter course, as has already been made clear, they will not sign any document which will prevent them subsequently transferring their business to the Independents, so soon as the latter are in a position to supply enough new subjects.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? $2 per year—52 numbers.

Notes and Comments.

Williams, Brown & Earle, 918 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa., are putting out a very interesting series of slides on the recent earthquake in Sicily. These slides are made from original negatives and give a very graphic description of the devastation of the ancient cities.

Raleigh & Robert, 16 Rue St. Cecile, Paris, France, are alive to the present opportunity for introducing the productions direct to the American market. This concern is famous for their travel films, but they have a large stock of comedy and dramatic subjects which have never been seen by American audiences. We have seen a few of their films and in point of quality they seemed to rank with those of the leading producers of both continents.

The Motion Picture Supply Company is a new concern that has been formed in Rochester, N. Y., to handle independent films and carry on a general business of equipping theaters. Mr. R. M. Mock, who was for two years manager of the film department of the Talking Machine Company, of Rochester, is the senior partner of the new concern. In the office of the Moving Picture World, Mr. Mock was asked what quality of service he intended to give and he said that he had placed orders for several copies of every subject issued by the Independents and he intended to give an exclusive and up-to-date service. Having no accumulation of junk to start out with, they had no intention of catering for that class of trade.

Life on an ostrich farm forms the principal part of the Kalem Company's issue of February 12th, called "The High Diver." Incidentally, Tom Quincy shows his ability in diving from a very high post, and thereupon secures a job on the farm. A pretty girl is incidentally accused of stealing a cash-box; subsequently attempts suicide and is rescued from a watery grave by the gallant Quincy, who subsequently secures the affections of the girl he has reinstated in her job. This might be called the underplot of the film, which is rich in illustrations of the way in which the gentle ostrich is handled for the purpose of yielding up his feathers for commercial purposes, so that this film is both educational and dramatic in about equal proportions. The photography of it, as is usual with all Kalem productions, is of a very high order of merit, the pictures being equally and harmoniously illuminated throughout, and the uniform depth, so that besides looking upon a highly dramatic series of incidents, the spectator also has the rare advantage of looking upon the highest class of photography as applied to motion pictures. This film will, undoubtedly, be very popular.

TO REFORM MOTION PICTURES.

The Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association of Greater New York has placed itself on record as favoring only clean and wholesome pictures. The association has appointed a committee to co-operate with representatives of social institutions, settlements, etc., for the purpose of weeding out any moving picture theaters which cast a reflection upon the moving picture business. The committee consists of: Joseph Driscoll, chairman, Dr. Lamburger, A. Schultz, Gus Koehler and Daniel Donegan.

Dr. Lichtenberger, who is connected with the Bureau of Social Research, called at the office of the World and expressed himself as satisfied that the moving picture shows were both instructive and entertaining and he thought that there were other kinds of public entertainment which needed more the action of the moral censor.

FIVE-CENT THEATERS REDEEMED.

Chicago's Juvenile Court Committee reports evolution of cheap playhouses as result of supervision. Converted from places of demoralizing influence to centers of positive educational value—such has been the evolution of the five-cent theater, according to the report made by the Juvenile Court Committee, which held its tri-monthly meeting at the Chicago Women's Club recently.

The field secretaries reported (said Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, president of the committee) that the improvement in the five-cent theater is the result of constant supervision, and, whenever necessary, prosecution for offenses, against the nickelodeon.

Statements Issued by the Motion Picture Patents Company.

ANNOUNCEMENT TO EXHIBITORS.

The objects of the Motion Picture Patents Company are:

1. To insure to the manufacturer a fair and reasonable price for his film so as to enable him to maintain and improve the quality of his pictures. No effort is to be made to prevent free and absolute competition among the licensed manufacturers, all of whom realize that ultimate success can only come when the efforts of each manufacturer are directed to the improvement of the tone and quality of his output. Unless the price shall be reasonable and the quality high, the manufacturers could not expect to obtain the friendly interest and co-operation of the exhibitor and the exchange, without which success could be neither expected nor deserved.

2. By reason of the high quality of their pictures, the licensed manufacturers expect to eliminate the cheap and inferior foreign films which have been forced upon the market, and to so educate the public taste that only high-class and attractive films will be accepted as reaching the American standard.

3. To prevent the renter from supplying scratched and worn-out film by compelling him to return all such film to the manufacturer for destruction.

4. To furnish through its several licensees an adequate variety and supply of first-class subjects (at least eighteen reels per week).

5. To afford the legitimate exhibitor protection from ruinous and unfair competition by refusing to license or supply licensed film to a new exhibitor attempting to start a show where not required by public demand and where the competition would injuriously affect an existing licensed theater.

6. To encourage in all possible ways the commendation and support of the moving picture business by the better class of the community.

The aims of the company entitle it to the cordial support of every exhibitor who is interested in the permanence and welfare of the moving picture business. The deplorable conditions existing in Europe to-day illustrate the effect of an opposite policy. It is the intention of the company to inflict hardship on no one, but by the active exercise of the above principles and a rigorous enforcement of the conditions established by it for the use of the films and apparatus covered by its numerous patents to save the business in this country from the demoralization with which it has been threatened by the activity of parties having little or no investment at stake in this country and whose only object is to reap a temporary harvest at the expense of the manufacturer, the exhibitor and the public. The exhibitor by accepting a license and licensed service from the Patents Company divests himself of no right and is free to renounce the license and abandon service whenever he may consider such a course to be to his advantage, in which case he will be in exactly the same position as if he had never been licensed.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY.

LICENSE FEE NOT ARBITRARY.

We regret that at this time it is not possible to personally reply to your communication which we have received with numerous others from exhibitors of moving pictures throughout the United States. We are rapidly getting our organization completed, and within a few days expect to move into our permanent quarters at 80 Fifth avenue, 16th floor. Our new offices and the experienced force assisting us will then be able to handle every matter pertaining to the moving picture business which may advance the interests of our licensed exhibitors. The chief purpose of the Patents Company, which is to promote the fullest co-operation between our licensees—manufacturer, exchange, exhibitor—will then be accomplished.

Until we have a further opportunity to take up particular cases, the following general information will probably answer all questions in which you are at this time interested:

We have licensed nine of the leading manufacturers of the world, who will hereafter put out their film under our patents, paying us royalties in recognition of them. We intend that the licensed films shall be distributed only by licensed exchanges and exhibited only by licensed theaters. The object of this is to put us in a position where we can regulate our business in the interest of all of our licensees and refuse licenses in any given locality where there is no public demand for additional distributors of licensed film or new theaters to show our film. It is for the protection of our patents and the exclusive use of the licensed service, which will be of the very highest class, that we require a nominal weekly royalty which the licensed theater is to pay.

We do not desire any exhibitor to pay such royalty unless he is satisfied to become a licensee of this company and exhibit our film.. We do not ask you to pay us a royalty of $2 a week, or any other royalty, if you should decide not to license your theater.

If you consider the licensed service desirable for your theater, we would call your attention to the fact that we do not ask you to sign any contract, agreement or other paper. You may send in the name and address of your theater with a license fee of $10, in return for which, if we decide to issue a license, we will send a license certificate which you may display in your theater. The license fee referred to would cover a theater up to March 8, 1909, and this has been fixed as the uniform license fee in every case in order to meet the preliminary expense of organization, etc.

As soon as we have completed the very difficult task of licensing the several thousand theaters using our licensed film we shall adjust the royalties to be paid after March 8th so that the smallest licensed theaters will pay a royalty of $1 a week, or less, the average licensed theaters $2 a week, and the largest and more prosperous theaters more in proportion to make an average of as nearly as practical $2 a week for all of our licensed theaters.

We are of the opinion that the licensed film will satisfy the public demand in the future as it has during the past year, and for that reason, we are willing to let the entire proposition rest upon the merit of the licensed service. The licensed exhibitor is not bound to us for even a single day and he may, at his own option, discontinue the licensed service and upon doing so he is relieved from every obligation assumed, and he puts himself in exactly the same position that he was in before he paid his license fee and was accepted by us as a licensed theater.

We call attention to this fact because there has been some misapprehension among exhibitors who have the idea that they are giving up some rights, or are assuming obligations, when they accept our license. We do not desire to interfere with the business of the theaters and we only propose to license those theaters which are desirable and where it is believed that our service is demanded by the moving picture public patronizing the theater.

As to your machines particularly, we wish to make it clear that a licensed theater may use any machine or machines which were purchased before February 1, 1909, if they are used in exhibiting our licensed pictures. Machines which are purchased from the manufacturers after February 1, 1909, if they are to be used in a licensed theater must bear the license plate of the Patents Company.

We enclose a list of our licensed exchanges and refer you to any one of them for fuller information if desired, and we also suggest that should this letter not answer your communication to us fully we will be very glad to have you address us a second time. Yours very truly,

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY,
By D. Macdonald, General Manager.

New York, February 2, 1909.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

In a general way what was said about the films last week has applied to the week just closed. The output has been less, and while no especially ambitious productions have been released there has been a higher general average, both in quality and technically. The films are better in every way. The subjects are better. The stories are better worked out and the technical quality of all the films controlled by the new organization has improved measurably.

The best that can be said is that the films are improving and it is but reasonable to suppose that the ambitious efforts which are to come will partake of the same degree of excellence and be, in their way, as good as the films which have been running this week.

The new organization has only to maintain its product upon as high a plane as it has adopted recently to keep the moving picture business upon a sound financial basis and to enable every one engaged in it to make money.

Send $2.00 for a Subscription to the Moving Picture World—the representative trade newspaper.

USING OLD FILMS.

In a good many theaters old films have formed the bulk of the exhibit during the past week or two. The restriction of output, following the organization of the new association, has forced managers to go back to films which came out some weeks, or even months, ago. This is not altogether to the detriment of the business, either. A good many films were brought out which deserved longer runs than they had, but the disposition to flood the market with fresh films rather compelled managers to take the bulk of the output.

Where so many were brought out a considerable proportion of them were not up to the standard which should be required. The quality dropped in direct proportion with the quantity, apparently, and not until the restriction mentioned began to be felt was the quality improved. The past two weeks has seen a far better average and the riot of bloodshed is apparently over.

Old films are permissible where they have never been seen before. The audience which has never seen the "Octoroon," for example, will enjoy it quite as well after it has been running for several weeks as they will now. It is a strong film and deserves a longer life than some good ones have had during the past few weeks.

One might mention others, but the manager who has kept a list of the good ones which have had only an ephemeral existence in the past because the quantity was so liberal can now go back and pick out plenty of good ones to keep up the quality of his program, even though output is restricted. If he doesn't repeat, his films will satisfy quite as well as they would if they were fresh from the printing room.

A RESPONSE TO DUTY.

When the call to arms was sounded recently by the Philadelphia exhibitors responses came in from all over the State and outside of the State (thanks to the wide circulation of the papers it appeared in, this being one). One of the first responses to receive attention was a very practical letter from Mauch Chunk to our State organizer, Wm. M. Hamilton, asking him to come to a meeting on January 31 and effect the organization of the Lehigh Valley. The following is a copy of the letter, which was also sent to all the exhibitors in the surrounding country:

"Mauch Chunk, Pa., January 25, 1909.

"At a meeting of the undersigned exhibitors, the following was adopted:

"Whereas, The organization of manufacturers and renters of moving picture film to control the entire picture business to better their business, has been effected, we consider it wise and prudent that the exhibitors of the Lehigh Valley (now unorganized) to organize for their mutual protection and betterment of condition. We ask you to meet us at the Lyric Theater, on Sunday, January 31, 1909, at which time a preamble and by-laws will be drawn up, officers elected and such other business transacted as those present deem necessary. In unity there i strength, let us get together, exchange ideas and advise each other for the advancement of the business. Organize, not necessarily for the control of the business, but to improve our condition, which is now jeopardized by the film combine.

"Signed by W. E. L. Reeger, for Malarkey & McKeon, of Tamaqua, Pa.; John McTague, of Coaldale, Pa.; Oscar Bittner, of Mauch Chunk, Pa.; E. W. Davis, of Summit Hill, Pa."

The result was a largely attended meeting. Mr. Chas. Rottet, of Mauch Chunk, was elected president; Michael Meal, of Nesquehoning, Pa., treasurer; Mr. Ellerslie Davis, of Summit Hill, Pa., secretary. The meeting was called to order and the name of Local Branch No. 2 of Pennsylvania, to be known as the Lehigh Valley Division, was decided upon. They decided to meet again next Sunday and pledged themselves to keep the organization up no matter how the present situation should end. The State organizer took the floor and after reviewing the history of the attempt to get entire control of the motion picture business by the combine, pointed out the headway they had made in one year by taking away the Biograph and the different makes of Geo. Kleine exploited in this country and that the Independents made good enough to be taken in with them. He brought out the point that the money they charge the exhibitor for license may be centralized and that next year that very money could be used as a whip to whip you into line by buying up the next best makes. When you consider that there are 70,000 exhibitors in this country figure out what it would mean. He then enlarged upon the remedy which is the only one left and as a good doctor would say, "A desperate case demands a desperate remedy." He pointed out how by thorough organization throughout this country were each man to pledge himself to respond to a small assessment and obey orders from a fountain head and have all done through the central body the exhibitor would then know that he is dealing with men who have the welfare of him at heart. The reason he insisted on this was that some unsuspecting exhibitors may be made dupes of by people who take advantage of their perplexity. He finished his remarks by saying that he intended to organize different sections of the State and in the near future call a State convention. This will take some time, but when it is done we will have something good. The State headquarters wants the names of the exhibitors in this State, so as to arrange for meetings. Address 2525 West Girard avenue.

PHILADELPHIA EXHIBITOR.

PUNISHING THE MUSIC PUBLISHERS.

It has been admitted that the greatest medium of publicity that a popular song could have was the phonograph record. The talking machine carried the notes of a new piece of music into every hole and corner of the land, where it would never have reached but for it. Suddenly the music publishers began to agitate for a royalty on music used in all kinds of mechanical devices and got up a great hullabaloo about getting the copyright law amended so the makers of mechanical musical devices, notably the phonograph, must pay royalty. The matter went before a Congressional Committee and they reported in favor of making the manufacturers of mechanical musical devices pay a royalty—not to the publisher, but to the composer. This caused the Witmarks, the Sterns, the Gumbinski's and other to draw a long sigh of disappointment, and the copyright agitation which brought forth the alleged remark from one Charles K. Haris: "Me and President Roosevelt," to be dropped. Then the phonograph companies practically dropped the recording of popular music unless they were paid for the master record. And at once the sales of popular music dropped, dropped as is alleged and as is practically proven by the amount of work done by the various music printers, to almost one-half less in 1908 than what it was in 1907.

There are many lantern slide rental bureaus which have subscribers who do not employ singers but use phonographs instead. They want slides for songs which have been recorded on the phonograph and phonograph companies are not keeping up the supply. Consequently many new songs published are not getting representation, particularly in those parts of the country where phonographs are used instead of singers. There the music dealers are digging into their files and bringing out old songs that they considered unsaleable for years. They are now realizing on stock that the publishers realized on years ago, and the publisher's new songs which are not recorded on the phonographs remain untouched. The phonograph recording companies are particularly active in letting alone the publications of such houses as made the loudest noise about their desire to make the phonograph companies pay royalty. They are now getting their pay by being let severely alone by the best advertising medium that ever popularized a piece of music.

On the contrary many old ballads written by such famous ballad writers as J. W. Wrighton, F. E. Weatherly, Geo. Cooper and Felix McGlennon, Stephen Glover, Clifton Bingham and Henry Trotere, J. W. Molloy and Sir Michael Watson and the still writing balladist, Julian Jordan, are now being brought to the front. One slide firm in New York which makes a specialty of illustrating old ballads is getting many calls for "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Anchored," "Then You'll Remember Me," "The Song That Reached My Heart" and other famous old ballads. These songs which have been heard very little during the present generation are rapidly coming to the front again and the standard music publishers report a growing demand for them daily. They are received with great acclaim in the dime theaters where the musical taste has been supposed to be of the lowest, showing that even there a healthier state of affairs is rapidly demanding better music than the insipid popular trash put out by most popular publishing houses.

All this goes to prove that ex-whatnot who have usurped the music publishing business during the past few years have gone too far in debauching the public taste and that the revolt has come. It is to be hoped that it will continue until the present style of popular music is buried deeper than the bottomless pit.

H. B. INGRAM.

WHAT KIND OF FILMS?

No two person will ever agree upon the films which are most popular with the public. Each person will reason out the effect of this or that film from a different standpoint and no one can be certain that his standpoint is correct.

For example, when "The Old Curiosity Shop" was running in New York the writer of this article praised it, highly, perhaps, but he thought the excellence of the film deserved it. In last week's issue of The Moving Picture World is a letter critcising this praise and declaring that a few more films like that would have an injurious effect upon the box office receipts. The film was said to be one in which the characters merely walked around.

The letter was dated somewhere in Ohio and the writer of the original criticism spoke only from what he saw in the different audiences in New York, where he chanced to be when the film was running. For several months the writer of these criiticisms has been mingling with the New York audiences, and while they are not all alike it is asserted without any fear of contradiction that such films as this are closely watched in New York City and almost invariably get some degree of applause. The story was told plainly enough so that the New York audiences understood it and they were vigorous enough with their approval or disapproval of the different characters, quite as much so as they are with the highly spiced dramas which are often given them, interlarded with murders and other violent deaths.

The writer does not hesitate to say that the original statement was correct as regards the New York audiences. It was seen in two theaters in an outlying town and the general effect was the same.

No doubt the gentleman writing the letter is correct from his standpoint, but so was the writer of the original criticism. The effect the films exert upon the audence is what is described in these paragraphs, not the writer's personal opinion. That opinion would be at variance with a good many films that are popular, but unless a film is pernicious in some way it is never criticised personally. Its effect upon the audience alone is mentioned. But in this city this class of film is popular, like an educational subject, for example. A little shooting occasionally is relished, like that in "The Colonial Romance." But wholesale murders and suicides, which have been common heretofore, are not wanted and manufacturers could cut New York off the list of that type and still reap a goodly harvest of custom.

B. H. ALLBEE.

TWENTIETH CENTURY VIEWS.

Mr. Bachman, president of the 20th Century Optiscope and Film Company, who is known as the first film renter of Chicago, and who has always maintained a reputation for quality, was interviewed by the Western representative of Moving Picture World and asked his opinion of the present situation. He viewed the future from an optimistic standpoint. "Never before," he said, "did the moving picture business offer better inducements to those who intend conducting the renting of film on a strictly businesslike basis. Since the Motion Picture Patents Company have taken the reins we have something to work for and have already doubled our business, which is steadily increasing.

"We have many customers that have been with us since the infancy of our business, and the only reason we attribute for this is, our motto of quality, and have always maintained the old saying that water at rest will always seek its level, and so does quality. A few words regarding the move taken by outsiders, circulating spurious news regarding the exhibitors endangering their future by signing license contract. If I were an exhibitor, on the square, I would not hesitate a minute, as these contracts will soon eliminate the evils that are very unprofitable to the exhibitor, renter and manufacturer. I hope the day will soon come when those individuals operating moving picture theaters will have to rent their films from some exchange not owning any interests in moving picture theaters, or discontinue one or the other. I also hope that along with the steps taken by the Motion Picture Patents Company they will have an examining board, and all pictures that are trashy and unfit for exhibition would be rejected, as three out of every ten subjects we are obliged to take on standing orders are so poor in subject matter that the most ignorant spectator leaves with a look of disgust. Such subjects deteriorate our business and we never realize more than three-quarters their actual cost under the prevailing conditions."

A TOUR AMONGST COUNTRY EXHIBITORS.

By John M. Bradlet.

Dear Sir:—In the course of a recent visit to the country I found a great amount of dissatisfaction regarding this question of the $2 license. Whether the question has been fairly explained or not to the exhibitors, I do not know, but in general they qualify this new license as an imposition. They do not see why they should be taxed $2 weekly on a machine fully paid for several months ago. They claim that as long as they regularly pay their renters, the renters should give them perfect service with all the protection offered by the manufacturers without having to pay an extra fee. I have found the great majority of the exhibitors very indignant and some of them have declared that they will not pay. A number of timid exhibitors have paid and will sign, to avoid troubles or litigation. Others have signed or will sign merely because they are under certain obligations to the renters. still others have signed or will sign merely to keep their places running, in waiting to see the move on the part of the Independents. In my opinion this license question is going to be a bone of contention and has decided many exhibitors to consider a change of service.

Another question of vital importance, which has been freely discussed, is the vaudeville act. The country exhibitors who have no transient trade, but have to depend on a local patronage must give the best and having only short hours to make their money, they cannot afford to give long programmes. They consider that two reels of good films are all that they can afford to give, to keep their places going.

We must bear in mind that the combined show places of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia represent only 10 per cent. of the shows scattered all over the country, consequently the country exhibitors should be considered. Now as the country exhibitors cannot depend on transient trade, the afternoon shows do not pay and they must manage to give three shows from 7 to 11 P. M., and they have no Sunday business. If these exhibitors can manage to make from $40 to $100 per week on their investment it is all they can do and many of them must be satisfied with even less.

Under these conditions, the country exhibitors are badly scared at the increase of the vaudeville acts and if they have to follow others they will run their houses at a loss. If they could show some cheap, vulgar vaudeville acts of $10 per week, they would not kick so much, but in small towns, where they have to depend entirely on a regular local trade, they cannot show cheap vaudeville acts. The exhibitors claim that if the Motion Picture Patents Company wants to tax them $2 per week, the said company should make it a point to not license houses showing vaudeville acts, then the company would really offer a protection for the $2 asked.

Outside of the cost of the vaudeville acts, said acts would make the programme longer and force the exhibitors to give only two shows per night instead of three, consequently reducing the receipts.

Most of the country exhibitors have expressed hard feelings toward Mr. Lubin for pushing ahead the vaudeville acts and they condemn the following programme shown in Mr. Lubin's new place, on Market street, Philadelphia, on Saturday, January 23, 1909:

A selection from the orchestra, Miss Grace Powers, banjoists, Reese Bros., trick bicyclists—5 vaudeville acts. (Pathe) "A Fish Story," 400 feet; (Pathe) "Lady Cabby's Romance," 410 feet; (Pathe) "Bobby's Sketches," 174 feet—3 films, in all 984 feet.

The exhibitors claim that if such a move was on the part of Mr. Keith or Mr. Proctor or any other theatrical manager, they would have no redress, but they cannot understand that Mr. Lubin, as a manufacturer and renter, should demoralize the business and not only kill his own industry but also jeopardize the enterprises of his associates of the M. P. P. Co.

This question of vaudeville acts has another disastrous feature, that of alienating the theatrical managers toward cinematography. When the first moving pictures appeared the managers accepted them as a side line, but when they became so popular as to show the building of so many nicolets and to take away so many persons from the theaters, the managers got alarmed and started a war by showing moving pictures with other features. Large theaters in big cities can still make money in giving a two-hour show for 10 cents, but the small places cannot stand it. Many of the theaters tried to kill the moving pictures by showing old rainstorm films, etc. The managers of theaters have succeeded in several places; for instance, Plainfield, N. J., is lost to the moving pictures.

At my trip last October, Plainfield, N. J., had three regular shows: The Bijou, a neat, clean house on Main street, 10 cents; The Orpheum, a newly opened 10-cent place; The Park Avenue, a 5-cent house, was then getting ready to open. Mr. Proctor got hold of the old Plainfield Theater and at a great expense remodeled the same, with a luxurious entrance on Main street. Mr. Proctor drew the crowd, the Bijou and the Orpheum had to close their doors, and the Park Avenue is going to close.

As Mr. Proctor went to a good deal of expense, he will eventually convert his house into a vaudeville theater. You cannot fully blame Mr. Proctor, he is merely turning the tables on Mr. Lubin and others. He tells them: "As long as you enter my field I am going to kill the moving pictures, and as you cannot give a full vaudeville show for 10 cents you will have to close your places and allow the public to return to the regular theaters."

If the M. P. P. Co. wants to grant licenses to exhibitors for shows of not over two reels, with one or two songs and no vaudeville acts, the country exhibitors will gladly sign, as the $2 extra per week will be a real protection for the future of the business.

A hard question to approach is the quality of the work. The country exhibitors do not want the productions made for the Bowery.

I have been told several times that although the manufacturers would prefer to produce only first class, clean work, they had to enter the field of highly sensational and silly films, because it is what the public is calling for. The trouble is that the manufacturers are guided by the renters and that the renters, instead of listening to the wants of the country showmen, listen only to the demands of the Bowery and of the low East Side.

You can show anything you want on Fourteenth street, New York, or Market street, Philadelphia, because if New Yorkers and Philadelphians do not want to patronize such places the two big cities can go without the patronage of the local trade, as they have enough daily transients to fill their houses. This is another question in smaller towns, where the exhibitors have to depend entirely on their local patronage.

In New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, most of the places are operated by people after the nickels. They want a lot of plaster decorations, great, wonderful electrical displays, large sensational posters, anything to catch the eye and to get you in. Once inside, they have cheap operators working the machines as on a speed contest, to have you out as soon as possible to make room for others. They do not care what they show you, as long as they have some sensational titles on their posters.

In the country it is a different question. The folks are more cultured; they go to a moving picture show, same as they go to a theater, to see some good work and to criticise.

I reached Wilmington, Del., in a bad snow storm. As I went directly to the house of some friends, we wanted to remain by the fireplace, but as the young ones wanted me to take them to some moving pictures, we went out. At each place the halls were not one-quarter filled, it was as sad as could be, but really no business could be expected on such a stormy night. When we reached the Pickwick, one of the largest places, it was a different question, standing room was at a premium. Why? Because they were showing "Sherlock Holmes," of the Great Northern Company, for the second and last day. The audiences of the previous day had talked so much of this fine work in the car shops, ship yards, tanneries, mills, offices, etc., that the folks braved the storm to not miss such a good treat. This shows that good work can be fully appreciated.

If the renters wanted to listen a little more to the country exhibitors and less to the Bowery they would soon find out that the public does not call for highly sensational or silly films, or burglaries, murders, etc.

We must bear in mind that most of the shows of the big cities are run by men who came to this country, the land of the free, believing that they could do anything and even violate the laws, consequently they do not care what they show, they do not care about the morals, all that they want are highly sensational films to please the morbid passion of certain spectators and they depend on the transient trade.

(To be continued.)

Goodland, Kan.—A new moving picture theater, the "Crystal," has opened in this city. Andrew Wessel is the proprietor.

WEEKLY COMMENTS ON THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

Mr. Gane, Moving Picture Theater, Sixth avenue and Thirty-third street, New York. My Dear Sir:—You are a man after my own heart. You look on the bright side of things; so do I. You are an optimist; so am I. You believe in laughter; so do I. Yours is the only moving picture theater of all those I have recently visited which has sent me away in a good humor. For this relief, much thanks, and I beg you to accept the assurance of my most distinguished consideration.

* * *

The thermometer registered 27 degrees of frost as I handed my humble dime to the smiling young lady in the box outside the Manhattan Theater—she smiled ever so nicely at me, but, alas! she is probably another's—but inside the house all was warmth and cosiness. The Manhattan is a comfy little theater, and it is to be regretted that the march of railroad improvements has doomed it to extinction. Then there will be no moving picture theater on Broadway. It will be up to some enterprising amusement caterer to supply the omission: there is certainly room for one. But about Gane's show: it pleased me very much. There were no maudlin song slides, and the vaudeville was supplied by a chic young lady who could sing saucy songs and dance neatly. Give us more of this, Mr. Gane, and I will hand you my benediction. Broadway audiences like sparkling entertainments. So do I; and I have plied the pen of the critic in London, Paris, New York and other large cities.

The films were comic and we all laughed at and with them. The audience was in the mood to be amused; it was there to be amused, and not shocked or saddened. I observed my neighbors very closely; I always do on these visits. They do not want the murderous; the repellent; the ghastly; the sombre. Do please, Messieurs Exhibitors, cut these things out, CUT THEM OUT, if you value the success of your business. Over and over again these last few weeks I have heard people say they are sick and tired of gloomily ending film subjects; of subjects which depress; of subjects which deal with the seamy side of life. People really do not pay their nickels and dimes to be made miserable; surely to Heaven there is enough misery in the world, and all around us, without simulcrating the thing in the nickelodeon?

Now here is a list of the film subjects which so pleased Mr. Gane's audience (and me) the other night:

1. The two bandboxes (Pathe)
2. Tumbler in a bedroom "
3. The Juggler "

These are genuine comics, and even their Parisian humor was apparent to a New York audience. The misadventures of the two bandboxes carried by a pretty milliner; the flirtations of herself and lover, and the surprises caused by changing the contents of the boxes—all this pleasant fooling amused my audience (and me). Then the antics of that tumbler—extra-mural as well as intra-mural; and the dire misfortunes of the juggler who practices his art on the furniture and thus smashes up his home, to the continual horror of his wife, was it not to laugh? Of course it was. That's what my audience (and I) went to Mr. Gane's theater for! Bless you, friend Gane!

There were other items on the bill; and of these I liked "The Girls and Daddy," a clever composition, as all Biograph subjects are. There is some excitement in this film, the girls defending themselves against a villainous burglar supplying a highly dramatic element to the story, which, however, is not so clear and consistent as it might be. Never mind; the "act" went well. I should like to put in a special word of praise for the photographic quality of the films which I saw at Mr. Gane's theater. The pictures were without streaks, markings, splashes; they are well shown, evenly illuminated, and altogether here you see exhibited the moving picture to the very best advantage. I must go and invest another dime with that smiling young lady at the door of the Manhattan Theater.

MOVING PICTURE TEST CASE.

A test case brought by the Moving Picture Association came before Justice Maddox on Tuesday in special term of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, when a return was made to a writ of habeas corpus for J. G. Leo, arrested on January 11 for running a picture show without a license at 889 Broadway. Papers were submitted and decision reserved.

Comments on Film Subjects.

"A Sure Nuff Tumbler."—A Pathe comic which is funny. The tumbler does his act to perfection. Moreover it is a comic in which destruction of property does not go to the lengths that it does sometimes. It gets a good hearty laugh wherever it is shown.

"The Village Quarrel."—A Pathe film which is intended for a comedy, but which, nevertheless, includes much of actual human nature in it. The cause of the quarrel seems trivial enough, as one sits and watches the film, but, after all, isn't this film so truly representative of human nature that it ceases to be funny and becomes pathetic? Everyday life is made up of such little incidents as are here depicted and the ones who staged this film unconsciously, perhaps, set the scenery for a typical heart story of the common people.

"Two Bandboxes."—A Pathe comic in which two hats are transformed by two bad boys into a fowl and a rabbit, respectively. The denouement is funny and many a laugh is heard as it develops.

"Aunt Emmy's Scrap Book."—Lubin is to be congratulated upon producing such a touching, and, at the same time, satisfying film. The picture is one that appeals directly to the heart and dry eyes are few when the separated husband and wife are reunited. As one after another of the scenes appear the audience lives with the delightful aunt her former life and shows its growing interest in the heart story which is being wrought out so graphically before them. And at the end they are reunited and one feels content to leave them with their new found happiness. The acting of the film is good, all the actions being well timed and the photography shows a marked improvement. The subject is such that it can be shown in any theater and be made a moral lesson for church entertainments. With such good work Mr. Lubin will help the present movement for better moving pictures.

"The Unwelcome Lover."—In this Eclipse film the story of an unwelcome lover and how he was finally disposed of is excellently told. The originality of the scheme wins the consent of the girl's father to the alliance she prefers. It is funny without being unsavory.

"A Colonial Romance."—In this picture from the Vitagraph people the heroine is carried away by the Indians at the behest of a rejected lover. Some parts of it are strong, but other parts are overdrawn and do not convince. There is considerable bloodshed, though it is in a fair fight, perhaps, and unquestionably many audiences like a little spice of this sort, though they do not want their diet all spice. The story is well told and technically the film is good. Further, it is short and the end comes quickly enough to save the long suspense which sometimes seems inseparable from subjects of this character.

"The Delirious Patient."—A film from the Radios people which almost reproduces the "Clown and the Child" from another house, which was shown some weeks ago. The action is a little different, but the idea is the same. This film possibly suffers in comparison.

"A Case of Spirits."—A Vitagraph comic in which the dropping of some cases of champagne down a well is responsible for some interesting divertisement. When temperance advocates become more or less hilarious upon what appears to be water one who has not seen the film can imagine the fun which develops.

"Cleopatra's Lovers."—In this reel from the Vitagraph workshop the human passions are very strongly portrayed. The exceptional attractiveness of the Sorceress of the Nile is strikingly depicted and the cold indifference of this same passionate woman is clearly reproduced as the dawn approaches and she hastens the death of her crazed peasant lover in causing him to drink the poisoned cup and fall dead at her feet, as she rises to meet Antony returning. It is a strong film and the story is strong, exerting a peculiar effect upon those who watch it, an effect which is exhilarating, without being altogether pleasant.

"The Living Wreck."—In excellence of photography the Eclipse is holding rank with the other well known manufacturers. The acting in this film is capital and all the details are well cared for. It is sad to see that a brutal murder must be considered a necessity in the production of good films. Let us hope that in the future the manufacturers will find subjects which will show us excellent work without the killing of someone.

"The Marathon Race."—In this film the Vitagraph Company is scoring a real success. The production is staged with much care, while the acting shows a remarkable improvement. It is a clean story which always pleases an audience and proves once more that a good deed leaves a better impression than a murder. We can not enough encourage the Vitagraph Company in this line of work. Few young men of our generation would take such interest in their mothers to save the homestead.

"The Deacon's Love Letter."—This is supposed to be a comic film, but does not bring the anticipated hilarity. The subject is complex and exaggerated in action.

"Guard's Alarm" (Urban).—A rather complicated film, full of more or less clever tricks with a story not very well told. When the guard is called by the woman, the impression is that the man, fully awake, runs out in his pajamas, and it is only at the ending of the film that we realize he was dreaming. It is on the comical line but does not arouse the audience much.

"Girls and Daddy."—From the Biograph Company we could expect better as they have spoiled us with good productions. For a dramatic subject the two girls are entirely too silly; their repeated kissing and hugging played more or less on the nerves of the audience. There was too much of it. If the present demand is for clean work, eliminating murders, burglaries, etc., we doubt if this film will meet the general approbation, as the manufacturers increase the criminality, by showing two different burglaries in the same production.

"A Poor Man's Romance."—A rather sad and pathetic story. Although treated with the well known care of Pathe's, this film did not seem to leave a good impression on the audience.

"Incriminating Evidence" is what the Pathe Freres claim to be "a film of the art." Mr. Severin proves himself a master of the dramatic art and is well supported by his own company. The photography and all the staging details are up to the standard of these well known manufacturers. On the other hand, the subject is possibly too sensational to meet the approval of the present reform movement. It is a brutal murder in which blood is shown, and, although it is presented in a vision, the apparition of the guillotine is too grewsome. Especially when the instrument of death is shown in all its working details. But as a masterpiece of mimic action and photographic presentation, it is a specimen of the highest development of the art of moving pictures.

"The Musician's Love Story."—In this film the Essanay Company have abandoned the long chases for which they are so well known. It is a serious attempt on the part of the manufacturers to produce a higher class of work and we must acknowledge a real improvement on their part. We will not encourage them too much in this line of work, as possibly they have not all the facilities to enter in direct competition with manufacturers making a specialty of high class dramatic work. There is a good field for comic films. The acting, especially the kissing is too much in the order of the comical line for a dramatic subject. The plot is rather weak, the great love of the girl for the violinist gives way too quickly to misery, and her sudden return to her first love, at the death of her father, shows that after all the love for money was the strongest sentiment.

"The Nurse's Romance," of Gaumont, is certainly one of the best productions of the season. It is a masterpiece of well told story and so simple that anyone can follow the entire plot without the help of a lecturer. The photography and staging are exceptionally fine, while the acting is of a high standard and so well timed as to make the film a real living picture. As the audience expressed much satisfaction, it is safe to predict a long run for this admirable production.

"The Octoroon."—A Kalem film, the first product of their Florida proposition. The more they produce like that the better it will be for the moving picture business. The photography is beyond criticism. The action of the characters is admirable. In short, they tell a good story in an excellent way. One wants to see this film again and again.

"The Modest Young Man."—This product of the Edison combination has all the qualities which have made the Edison films so attractive. The comedy is a bit suggestive at times, yet perhaps in reality only a slight touch of the risque. Technically the film is up to the standard of all the Edison pictures.

"Messina."—In this film the Pathes present a picture of the scenes of desolation in and about Messina after the earthquake. It brings home the effects of the disaster very strongly and graphically.

"Nick Carter's Double."—A Pathe comic in which the marvelous exploits of a dime novel detective are caricatured very successfully. Some of the situations are more than ordinarily funny.

"Calling Day."—A Pathe comic in which the destruction of property is made to play a much too conspicuous part. If this destruction could be eliminated, the other situations are funny enough.

"Which Was the Happiest Day of Your Life?"—A Lubin film in which the important events like the first pair of trousers, discovery of a moustache, the first kiss, and other important events are faithfully depicted. The subject is admirable and its development is all that could be desired.

"Love Germs."—A comic from Lubin which closely follows a Pathe issued some time ago. Both develop some funny situations, albeit a bit foolish.

"The Troubled Artist."—An Eclipse comic in which the difficulties of an artist to make a sketch with a young woman in it are depicted with a good deal of fidelity to what might be facts.

"Messina."—The Gaumont people have brought out a film here which shows the effects of the recent earthquake, perhaps even more forcibly than the Pathes. The ruin and desolation are shown with a strength that makes one almost shudder to look at the pictures. The crowds of miserable refugees and the various camps are shown, together with much more that is heart-rending.

"Rhodesia Railroad in South Africa."—A ride on the new Rhodesia railroad, which shows the African scenery to good advantage. One of the interesting features was the droves of queer looking animals that constantly crossed the track, in instances compelling the train to stop. This is an Urban film and is technically excellent.

"For Mother's Sake."—A strong story of hypnotism and crime is told by this Gaumont film. Technically it is excellent, and no one is killed excepting the villain, who deserves all he gets.

"The Messina Earthquake."—Another of these excellent pictures which represent the devastation of the recent earthquake in Italy better than any description can do. This film is, in many ways, the best yet. It actually shows the people, and, after all, the interest in a disaster like this is in the people. Buildings tumbled into ruins do not excite much interest, but the people do. And the moving picture makes the pitiable condition of the survivors very graphic and real. Those who are collecting money for the benefit of the sufferers had better get this series of films and exhibit them through the country. They wouldn't need to tell the story. This one carries the trade-mark Cines, and is excellent in every respect.

"Romance of the Lady Cabby."—A Pathe comic which introduces the story of a long run with a lot of people in it. There is a smash-up and several fights, with other exciting features, which, however, have become frayed at the edges because of long use.

"The Dancer and the King."—In this Vitagraph film there is plenty of lively action and good posing. The staging is good, too, and for the times represented the acting is probably correct. The chief difficulty was the disposition of the operator to make the figures move as though they were propelled by springs that jumped. It is better than the average and deserves the applause it gets.

"Bobby's Sketches."—A Pathe which partakes of the character of "The Love Affair in Toyland," brought out by the same house some weeks ago. In this instance the sketches Bobby makes suddenly assume life and do a good many funny things. The sketches are funny and the action of the figures never fails to amuse the old folks and set the children wild with delight.

THE SONGS.

If the songs and illustrations of the week had been entirely eliminated the shows would have been better. The slides were mostly mere daubs. In only a few instances did they illustrate the songs and the songs themselves had little or no interest or life, excepting where some of the old ones were sung.

One might as well ask what is the reason that some of the new and good songs are not offered and why the slides are such daubs of color, having all the appearance of the work of a whitewash brush artist. There ought to be either improvement or elimination.

LYMAN H. HOWE'S NEW YORK ENGAGEMENT.

The essential features which go to make a successful picture show were demonstrated at the Hippodrome last Sunday evening to a large audience. Every one present expressed themselves as being delighted. No better commendation of Mr. Howe's show, both from a sentimental and box-office standpoint, can be had than the following letter from the managers of the Hippodrome:

New York City, February 1, 1909.

Mr. Lyman H. Howe, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Dear Sir:—Your attraction at the Hippodrome last Sunday evening exceeded our most sanguine expectations.

It demonstrated the real possibilities of animated photography, in a way that was a revelation to the vast audience.

The volume of applause which followed each scene was ample proof of the pleasure it gave.

The subjects were uniformly interesting and timely.

Their arrangement was admirable.

The realism and atmosphere of the entire performance merits the highest praise.

We feel we voice the sentiment of several thousand spectators in endorsing it unreservedly as being a great triumph.

Respectfully yours,
SHUBERT & ANDERSON,
Mgrs. New York Hippodrome.

Mr. Howe is engaged for Sunday, February 7, at the same place at 8.15.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

EXPERIENCED OPERATORS.

W. J. Gibbons, 15 West 51st street, Bayonne, N. J. Operator or manager. Best references, nine years in the business.

J. W. Delk, Leon, Ia. Experienced operator. Steady; have also acted as manager.

Wm. A. Clement, 939 North 7th street, Harrisburg, Pa. Experienced operator. Can put on the right kind of picture.

Clarence Howe, 39 Clay street, Pawtucket, R. I. Experienced operator. Rhode Island or Connecticut preferred.

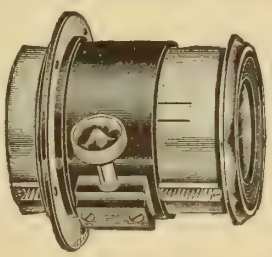
William McCreary, 2515 Ninth avenue, Beaver Falls, Pa. Experienced operator.

Mr. E. Cook, 324 Fifteenth street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Bernard Cook, 439 Second street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

R. C. Geissler, 78 Woodcliff street, Roxbury, Boston, Mass.

Manager. Ten years' experience in motion picture and vaudeville theaters. Good references. A. C. Blythe, 1051 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.



IMPROVE THE PICTURE ON THE SCREEN

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

by using a high grade projection lens.

Our lenses give a sharper and more brilliant picture than anylenses made here or abroad. We will send a lens on approval that makes a picture the size you want.

PRICE $18.00 NET

When ordering state the distance from lens to screen and size of picture. The purchaser of a new machine should insist on getting one of these lenses with it instead of the inferior lens usually supplied.

GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

THE PENN MOTION PICTURE CO.

2333-35-37 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

will release on Saturday, February 6th, 1909, a most appropriate feature film and a money maker for LINCOLN'S 100th anniversary, February 12th. This film can be run the whole week.

The Assassination of Abraham Lincoln

About 700 feet in Length at 8½ Cents per Foot, net

This Film was made several months ago,
but was never released
Order early as we will only have a limited number of copies for sale

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange
NINTH FLOOR
MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

THE CHRONOPHONE

PICTURES THAT SING AND TALK

The new money maker. You not only see all the fun but you hear it.

Think of a perfect Talking Picture Machine for $600
FULLY PATENTED

The Chrono System has no star wheel and infringes no patents.

Gaumont GAUMONT CO. Gaumont
125 E. 25th St, New York

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Centralia, Ill.—Mr. N. Locust has sold his Bijou Theater to Frank Wilson.

Elkhart, Ind.—John G. Berscheit has leased the Dream Theater from L. M. Haggerty.

Pana, Ill.—John Huggins has purchased his partner's interest in the White Palace Theater.

Kendallville, Ind.—S. S. Mutchler has purchased the Hub electric theater from H. Henry.

Merrill, Mich., is to have another moving picture theater, under the proprietorship of L. Harris.

Greenwich, Conn.—Messrs. Hume & Hearn opened their Electric Theater to a crowded house.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Philip Steinberg will erect a moving picture theater at 612 South street.

Norfolk, Neb.—J. Shinn and E. Buxton will open a moving picture theater in the Bucholz Building.

Vincennes, Ind.—The Red Mill Theater has changed its policy from vaudeville to moving pictures.

San Diego, Cal.—A new moving picture theater opened in this city under the name of the "Queen."

Baltimore, Md.—The building at 314 West Lexington street has been leased for a moving picture theater.

Streator, Ill.—A new moving picture theater will be built on South Bloomington street by Mr. Saddler.

Batavia, Ill.—A new moving picture show, known as the "Odeon," will be opened by J. Odenthal.

Telluride, Colo.—J. E. Jarvis reopened his Metropole picture theater to a crowded house last Sunday.

Gloversville, N. Y.—William D. Sullings has purchased William Smith's interest in the Theatorium.

Porteau, Okla.—A moving picture theater is being constructed on the McKenna Block by Ed. McKenna.

Atchison, Kan.—Arthur Ernest was granted a petition to open a new theater at No. 705 Commercial street.

Barnesville, Ohio.—Ray Griffin has assumed control of the Nickelodeon on Main street, which he purchased recently.

Allentown, Pa.—Messrs. Nathan & Schatenstein have opened a moving picture theater on Third and Hamilton streets.

New York City.—The building at No. 385 Sixth avenue has been leased by Mrs. C. E. Kenny for a moving picture theater.

Boise, Idaho.—Messrs. Schmeizel & Pye have sold their electric theater on Seventh and Main streets to Messrs. Martin & Thompson.

Langdon, N. D.—The Opera House has changed its policy from vaudeville to moving pictures. Mr. Carmichel is the new manager.

Leavenworth, Kans.—Ed. Sampson, proprietor of the Palm Theater, will open another theater, at 302 Delaware street, to be known as the Fern.

Lincoln, Ill.—The Nickelette Moving Picture Theater in West Broadway has ceased operation. J. F. McClain has left for Bloomington.

Streator, Ill.—Messrs. Wm. Stadler and A. Newton, of Aurora, have entered the five-cent theater field at Streator and will open in the near future.

Palouse, Wash.—W. J. Thomas has sold his Lyric Theater to Willett & France, who also operate moving picture shows in Oakesdale and Tekoa.

Chicago, Ill.—The Calumet Film Exchange, 184 LaSalle street, was incorporated for $21,000. Incorporators are H. Heinemann and George Hoke.

Burlington, Ia.—D. N. Fryman has opened a moving picture theater in the Mellinger Building. The "Lyric" is the name of the new enterprise.

Salem, Ohio.—Donald Strawn sold his interest in the World moving picture show to James Cooley. Mr. Cooley is now associated with C. A. Ray in the business.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—A. J. Gilligham, proprietor of the Vaudette Theater, on Canal street, has sold his playhouse to A. McFadden of the Idle Hour Theater.

Sabina, Ohio.—The "Best" Moving Picture Show Company have opened a show at Sabina, equipped with all modern conveniences. F. W. Shrack is manager.

Chicago, Ill.—The five-cent theater owned by Max Stein, 140 Madison street, which was closed two weeks ago by the Fire Inspector, was allowed to reopen again.

Wheeling, W. Va.—The Motion Picture Service Company, incorporated with a capital stock of $1,000. L. Pollard, N. Rubel and A. McArthur are the incorporators.

Charlottesville, Va.—The Virginia Amusement Company will open a moving picture theater, at the corner of Second and West Main streets, to be known as the Gem.

Vincennes, Ind.—Workmen are putting the finishing touches on the new Electric Theater, which will soon be opened under the management of Arthur Cobb.

Camden, N. J.—V. A. Murray, A. Martin and Doering Bellinger have been incorporated for $25,000. The corporation is to be known as the Globe Theatrical Company.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Jacob Raflo has purchased a lot at the corner of Twenty-ninth and York streets for the purpose of erecting a moving picture theater, to cost $20,000.

Charlotte, N. C.—The Alamo, a new moving picture and vaudeville show, opened for business under the proprietorship of the Greater Charlotte Amusement Company.

Wolcott, N. Y.—The Wolcott Bijou Theater, the only moving picture show in town, has ceased operation on account of lack of patronage. Pitts Bros. were the proprietors.

Chicago, Ill.—The building at the corner of Wilson and Evanston avenues is being remodeled for a moving picture theater. Linick & Schaefer Company are the proprietors.

Alexandria, Va.—G. Wills and W. McClure are preparing to erect a moving picture theater in King street. The theater will be fireproof and will have a seating capacity of 500.

Chicago, Ill.—The Mutual Amusement Company was incorporated for $10,000, to conduct vaudeville and moving pictures. The incorporators are W. G. Yost and H. Reichardt.

Chester, Pa.—The building at the corner of Fifth and Market streets is being converted into one of the most elaborate moving picture theaters. Nolan Bros. are the proprietors.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Brooklyn Palace, located at 627 Fifth avenue, will open its doors to the public within a few days. First-class moving pictures and illustrated songs will be exhibited.

New York City.—R. E. Taylor & Co. have been incorporated for $50,000, to manufacture moving picture machines. The incorporators are Elmer E. Earnshaw, 1240 Broadway, and R. E. Taylor.

Allentown, Pa.—Another moving picture theater is being constructed by Nathan & Schattenstein, at Third and Hamilton streets. The Star is the name of the new enterprise and is the fifth moving picture theater for Allentown.

Clintonville, Wis., is again without its electric theater. Bert Quimby, who came there from Waupaca two months ago and has been giving the people of Clintonville a first-class moving picture show, did not find the field there profitable enough to warrant his remaining.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The King Amusement Company of Brooklyn are constructing a new moving picture theater, located on Underdock and Palmetto streets, which will be known as the Queens Casino. It will be completed about March 15. Eddie Slatter and John King, who are the owners of Joyland, are also the proprietors of the new theater.

Two Harbors, Minn.—C. A. Yernberg, manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, has disposed of his interests to his partner, L. P. Christensen. Mr. Yernberg has formed a company and will put in a circuit of twelve moving picture houses. The towns included in the circuit are: Bemidpi, Cass Lake, Grand Rapids, Cloquet, Hibbing, Virginia, Eveleth, Chisholm, Ely, Two Harbors and Duluth, all of the State of Minnesota.

Hamilton, Ohio.—C. J. Kilian, formerly half owner of the Princess, is now the sole owner of this pretty little playhouse. Mr. Kilian bought the half interest of Dr. J. B. Scott, who acquired it from Lou Wittman some five months ago. The new owner is not a stranger in Hamilton; having come from Dayton about sixteen months ago, he formed a co-partnership with Lou Wittman and established the first successful moving picture theater in Hamilton. At this time Mr. Kilian also owned the Dreamland Theater in Dayton, which he sold last October and since then has been devoting his time and attention to the Princess. It was due to Mr. Kilian's knowledge of the moving picture business which made the Princess a success from the start. The theater will be

WANTED

For Lyman H. Howe's Moving Pictures

An Imitator to create sound effects back of the screen.

A man who has the natural ability to produce animal and mechanical sounds.

A long and immediate engagement to the right party. Address

LYMAN H. HOWE

Knickerbocker Hotel = New York City

42d Street and Broadway

INDEPENDENT FILMS

We Issue

Three Reels a Week

Send for Lists and

Description of our two new sets of

LANTERN SLIDES

"Sicilian Earthquake"

"The Life of Abraham Lincoln"

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE

Agents for the films manufactured by

The Hepworth Mfg. Co., Robert W. Paul
Cricks & Martin and Walter Tyler

918 CHESTNUT STREET - Dept. P - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange

535-536-537 Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg., 1402 Broadway, NEW YORK

Theatres, Clubs, Parks, Fairs, Rinks, Circuses, Airdomes, Picture Houses, Booked Treat all alike, Control 500 acts. Our efficient service insures success. Ask anybody.

New Department Theatres, Parks, Bought, Sold, Leased, Operated. Dramatic Bureau, Plays. Routes, People, Scenery.

The New Kind

Independent Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one.

WE HANDLE THE FILMS OF THE FOLLOWING MAKERS:

Hepworth
Cricks & Martin
R. W. Paul
Graphic Cinematograph
Sheffield
Walter Tyler
British Colonial
Wrench
Williamson
Crescent Film Co.
Great Northern Film Co.
World Film Mfg. Co.

Eclair
International
Berliner Film Borse
Heinrich Ernemann A. G.
Fritz Gilics
Alfred Duskes
Internationale Kinematografen
Deutsche Mutoscope
Deutsche Bioscope Gesellschaft
Italian Cines
Centaur Film Co.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,

A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)

CHICAGO, ILL.

under his personal management and the latest and best motion pictures and illustrated songs will be shown.

Pottstown, Pa.—The "Arcade," the leading place, is doing a good business. The success is due to the fact that the proprietors, Messrs. Cook & Wiley, well-known business men of Pottstown, are very particular in the selection of the films, and they have returned many which they considered unavailable. As the proprietors will not show questionable films, they always keep a few in reserve, to be used in case the renters should forget themselves by sending undesirable subjects. "Sherlock Holmes" left a deep mark in this place, and it is reported that some families have visited the "Gem" the two days the film was shown. The "Acme" could not stand the sharp competition and had to close its door. The "Princess Theater" is a new place devoted to vaudeville as well as to moving pictures. The "Victor" is another new place, under the management of some Reading showmen.—Bradlet.

MOVING PICTURE MEN ENJOIN THE MAYOR.

According to an order signed by Justice Erlanger of the Supreme Court, Mayor McClellan must show cause why he should not be restrained from revoking the moving picture show license of the Eldorado Amusement Company, of 1317 First avenue, and also that of McKensie & Lane, of 4223 Third avenue. The order, which includes a temporary injunction, was obtained on the alleged ground that the mayor's war on the moving picture enterprises was not in good faith, but merely intended to compel the moving picture proprietors to take out new licenses in which it shall be stipulated that they shall not give performances on Sunday.

VAUDEVILLE ACTS.

Some exceptional vaudeville acts have been offered during the week and the audiences have appreciated them fully Not all were of this stamp, and in one theater where vaudeville was advertised at least two programmes were run through without a single act. While perhaps no one can complain at this, the moving pictures there are so good, still it is not exactly keeping faith with the public. Either leave them out entirely or do as advertised.

Undoubtedly the vaudeville which has been offered during the past two weeks has been better than it was for the previous week. Evidently managers are striving to improve their shows and in this they ought to feel encouraged, since their patronage is steadily increasing.

One act was seen, for example, a bit of character study and singing which would win applause in the largest regular vaudeville houses. And it was in a 5-cent theater. In another theater another singing and dancing act was equally good. Yet the whole show cost only 10 cents

Vaudeville is good as an added attraction, but it must be kept up to the proper standard or it fails of its purpose.

NEW TITLES MADE

50 CENTS EACH

Shipped 24 hours after receipt of order

CENTAUR FILM MFG. CO., - 900 Broadway, Bayonne, N. J.

Chicago Office, Room 810, 79 Dearborn Street

THE BEST MOVING PICTURE MACHINE.

RHEOSTATS

CONTAIN

CLIMAX WIRE

Catalogue and information upon request.

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.,

HARRISON, N, J.

CORRESPONDENCE.

AN EXHIBITOR'S PROTEST.

Lexington, Ill., February 2, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—I have just read your editorials in Moving Picture World, dated January 30, and by a queer coincidence have just been notified that the intended "holdup" of exhibitors by the film trust has been indefinitely postponed. I am surprised and pained to think that you would endorse so infamous a proposition and still pretend to be a friend of the exhibitor. Your logic is very bad all round. How paying $100 per year to the film trust would protect me in any way or increase my business I am unable to see, and why the exhibitors of this country should pay the film trust a million or two dollars per year license you don't explain. Of course that would be nice easy money for the film trust. Considered as a big something for nothing scheme it's the "candy."

But what do these people propose to give exhibitors for the money exacted?

Nothing that I ever heard of. Everybody was to send the same amount regardless of how much business he did, and yet you claim there was no intention of this good Samaritan trust to hurt the small exhibitor.

You make a futile attempt at showing a parallel case in the phonograph business. As I am a phonograph dealer as well as a moving picture exhibitor I think I am in a position to know something about it.

In the first place no license fee is asked from a phonograph dealer. True, the retail price is fixed by the manufacturer, but the profit of the retail dealer is insured and included in this fixed price. In the phonograph business the dealer is helped in every possible way by the manufacturer.

In the moving picture business the exhibitor is treated like a mangy cur, to be kicked and cuffed and "held up" at every turn. I have been in the moving picture business two years and not once have I ever been asked what could be done to help build up the business in my locality. And right here allow me to say that until the exhibitor is given more voice in this matter in which he is the principal factor, the business will go down hill. The trust has undertaken to drive where they should follow. Co-operation and a better feeling between manufacturer, film exhange and exhibitor is the only thing that will bring permanent success to the business.

It will take a long time for exhibitors to forget this last outrageous attempt of the trust to extort money from them and restore good feeling and confidence where now is suspicion and hatred.

Yours,
C. W. SHADE.

[We welcome our correspondent's letter as showing that he, at least, takes some real interest in the present crisis of the moving picture industry. If exhibitors all over the country were similarly moved to express their views in an equally intelligent manner nothing but good would come of the discussion. Mr. Shade will find all the objections which he raises in his letter satisfactorily explained and disposed of in the present number of The Moving Picture World.—Ed.]

HARSTN & CO. MAKE A STATEMENT.

New York, January 29, 1909.

The Moving Picture World.

Dear Sirs:—We desire to assure our many friends who have dealt with us in the past and who, we hope, will continue to deal with us in the future, that the petition in bankruptcy filed against us is entirely unwarranted

We hereby inform you that we own over $100,000 worth of assets, free and clear, and that our liabilities never exceed $1,000, that being the ordinary running accounts, settled weekly. A sworn statement to this effect has been presented to the United States Court this day, and the rest is in the hands of our lawyers, Louis Sanders, of 165 Broadway, and James, Schell & Elkus, as counsels, of 170 Broadway, New York City, to whom all inquiries as to the legal status of affairs is respectfully referred.

In the meantime we will continue to do business at the old stand as in the past nine years.

It is unfortunate that the law of the land is such that any irresponsible person may file a petition in bankruptcy against a prosperous concern, upon his own unsupported word, and we hope that our friends will not be alarmed at this one.

The receivership was vacated at once.

Yours truly, HARSTN & CO.

MR. CARL HERBERT

begs to announce that he some time ago resigned as GENERAL MANAGER of CAMERAPHONE COMPANY, and also resigned as a DIRECTOR of said Company.

¶Seeing, however, the great possibilities for such Sound-Motion-Pictures in the Lyceum Field, he has secured from CAMERAPHONE COMPANY SOLE and EXCLUSIVE rights in the UNITED STATES and CANADA, TO OPERATE AND EXHIBIT or to CONTRACT for the rental and exhibition of Cameraphone outfits, films, records and entertainments OUTSIDE professional picture show and professional theatrical operation in such uses as are named below, for which uses he is thus enabled to offer SOLE rights to responsible parties to use Cameraphone:

¶The general field of Lyceum entertainment, Y. M. C. A., Church, School, Semi-private, Club, Lodge, Chautauqua, Benefit and Educational entertainments in the United States and Canada as described.

¶Prominent Lyceum Bureaus have already secured such sole operating rights from him in various States, viz: The Central Lyceum Bureau of Kansas City, Mo., for Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Southern Illinois, Nebraska and Oklahoma. The Rice Lyceum Bureau of Nashville, Tenn., for Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. The Central Lyceum Bureau of Indianapolis, Ind., for Indiana and Kentucky.

¶Full details of the available high-class Cameraphone entertainments, SPECIALLY SELECTED AND ARRANGED BY him, comprising hundreds of subjects, as well as terms, etc., may be had by addressing

MR. CARL HERBERT

575 Eleventh Ave. New York City

(Formerly Manager for Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Harrison Grey Fiske, Charles Dillingham, the Herbert Stock Company, the Cahill Telharmonic Music System of New York, etc., etc.)

ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES

and Slides of Historical and Memorial Scenes and Personages

Over 250 different styles of the Finest Colored and most Artistically Designed Slides at any Price

3 SLIDES FOR $1.00

TRAVELOGUES

THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY

SEND FOR CATALOG "D" 224 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

Morton Film Exchange

(Incorporated)

S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.

High-Class Film Service

LICENSEES MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

Parties desiring first-class service write us

Wonderland Film Exchange

1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa.

Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company

Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.

EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices.

FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED

ECONOMIZERS for SALE

AT REDUCED PRICES

A few absolutely new instruments of standard make must be sold before removal.

One Week's Trial Allowed. Call and Inspect

C. B. CHURCHILL

31 Milk Street - - Boston Mass.

SONG SLIDES

L I D E PEERLESS SONG SLIDES L I D E

The Kind that Almost Talk

Ever Imitated, NEVER EQUALED

Let us place you on our mailing list

Full line of ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES

SEND for SPECIAL PRICE LIST

SLIDES OF SICILY AND ITALY

Scene of the Recent Earthquake

Set of 20 plain, $4, colored $8. Set of 35 plain, $7, colored, $14

NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO. 143 N. 8th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

A table d'hote dinner usually satisfies, our Song Slide Service always does

Over 200 song hits that are not hackneyed, artistically illustrated

New York Successes at your service weekly

Old time favorites for those who desire them

RENTAL, 50c PER SET WEEKLY

Announcement Slides Up-to-date
When in doubt try them

SYKO SLIDE CO.

Room 505, Cronin Building, Troy, N. Y.

WRITE TO-DAY

A Money Making PROPOSITION

Some Exhibitors are paying their rent by exhibiting Advertising Slides before the show.

We make them, any design, from your copy. Also Announcement Slides in great variety.

SEND FOR PARTICULARS

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.

513 Superior Building - Cleveland, Ohio

Bound Volumes of Moving Picture World

VOLUME 1, MARCH-DECEMBER, 1907 (limited number)
VOLUME 2, JANUARY-JUNE, 1908 (indexed)
VOLUME 3, JULY-DECEMBER, 1908 (indexed)

$2.00 each; $6.00 for the three volumes and a year's subscription

MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 125 East 23d Street, New York City

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides

The Finest Made. $5 per Set
All of the New Song Hits.

A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

Beware! Mr. Manager

A very contagious disease exists (worn out sickly junk film service) means

Instant Death to your Theatre

LET US PRESCRIBE
OUR SELECTED FILM SERVICE

A tonic that is necessary for success. If you are worried, and need assistance, write for latest proposition; results will follow; we increase receipts.

PENNSYLVANIA FILM CO.
400-1-2-3-4 Lewis Building
PITTSBURGH, PA.

It Will Always Be Our Policy

To

- Purchase from two to four copies of every good subject manufactured.
- Make shipments in ample time to avoid delays.
- Avoid REPEATERS.
- Ship NO JUNK.
- Give what we promise.

Each Office fully equipped to furnish a regular supply of 12 to 18 First Run Reels per week

We earnestly solicit a trial order for

FILM SERVICE

that we may convince you

WRITE TO-DAY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.
(Members Film Service Association)

1401-1405 Locust St.
ST. LOUIS, MO.

421 Fourth Ave.
LOUISVILLE, KY

Care of Shubert Theatre, New Orleans, La.

SONG SLIDES

The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES for the great hits

"There's A Fleet On The Sea"
"Would You Like To Take A Walk With Me"
"I'm Going To Tell On You"

THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

Mention the Moving Picture World in your correspondence.

FOR SALE FILMS

Closing out Film Exchange, 200 reels 800 to 1,000 ft. all titled, $5.00 to $25.00 Bargains. Write for lists.

VAL STAEB
453 PARKER AVE., DETROIT, MICH.

All the Latest Song Slide Hits to Rent

New Firm. All new Slides. Best Service in Chicago. Price 50c. per set a week, a weeks supply shipped at one time.

WESTERN SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE
59 Dearborn Street Real Estate Bldg. Third Floor Chicago, Ill.

We are now in the position to supply our customers with

The Latest Output of Licensed Films Every Week

THE C. J. HITE CO.
439-441 Monadnock Block
Chicago, Ill.

The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

STILL IN THE RING

We are still Independent and are going to be. We intend to own and have some small say how we will run our own business.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

Liberty Film Exchange

Telephone Walnut 3956
1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.

Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500
OPERA CHAIRS
IN STOCK

If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received,

Ask for Catalog No. 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

No. 44 North 10th Street. Philadelphia, Pa.

FOR RENT 6000 ft. film, 3 sets song slides, 6 at a time, $12.00 weekly.

FOR SALE 3300 ft. Pathes hand colored Passion Play, $75. 1000 ft reels film, released since April, $10 per reel. Lubin machine, $40; Edison Ex. Model, $60; Powers, $75. Will buy film and machines.

H. DAVIS - Watertown, Wis.

CHAIRS

Folding Steel Opera Chairs. All kinds Fireproof Booths. Resistance Grids and Wire, Repairing.

New York Steel & Production Co.
NEWARK, N. J.

Money for you. In towns without electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

Do NOT put on the
PASSION PLAY
Without Music and Lecture

If you are too far away from New York or Philadelphia to engage the services of the first and foremost lecturer on Moving Pictures in general and the Passion Play in particular,

W. STEPHEN BUSH

get his lecture in print. Complete lecture on every scene with valuable suggestions as to music and interesting introductory.

This copyrighted lecture running exactly with the pictures and giving full explanation and commentary on every scene sent postpaid to any address in U. S. or Canada on receipt of one dollar. Address

W. Stephen Bush, 155 N. Conestoga St., Phila., Pa.
May be reached at any time by phone in residence, Belmont 4484.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—I have prepared special lectures with suggestions as to music and effects for every feature film turned out by the Edison licensees. The list comprises over a hundred subjects and includes the very latest feature films. Price per lecture, 25c.

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.

Wholesale and Retail
Stereopticon and Lantern Slides

56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

A WREATH IN TIME: A Delicate Attention Which Was Not Appreciated.—A few of us have had the chance to read our own obituary notice, but it fell to the lot of John Goodhusband the rare privilege of viewing his own elegiac cinerary floral offerings, and at the time John was anything but a "dead one." It happened thusly: John, after office hours, meets a couple of his erstwhile chums, who prevail upon him to go with them to the show and make a jolly old-time bachelorhood night of it. Now John is fully alive to his duties as a benedict, but it is hard to resist the temptation, so he yields and sends Mrs. Goodhusband a telegram that he had left on the Red Eagle Express for Freeport on business, and will return in the morning. The trio then repair to the Empire Theater, where the Burlesque Company is playing, of which La Tunita, the Queen of the Orient, is the bright peculiar star. To say they enjoy the show is putting it mildly, and after the performance they play the role of stagedoor Johnnies, inducing several of the show girls to join them in several cold bottles and hot birds at a neighboring lobster palace. Meanwhile, an "extra" evening paper is handed Mrs. Goodhusband, which contains the alarming news that the Red Eagle Express has been "wrecked and all on board killed." Sorry her lot—a widow so early in the game. Well, she dons the weeds and hies herself to the florist and orders a suitable floral tribute—a large wreath of roses, with the word "R-E-S-T" worked in violets. All this time John is having a rip-roaring good time piling up an iridescent souse, arriving in the gray of morning to a house of mourning, where he is met by his own widow. Shown the newspaper, he feels some eclaircissement is due the lachrymose Mrs. Goodhusband, so he sets to work his fabricating faculties, and in lucid terms tells how he, the lone survivor of the calamity, at the risk of his own life endeavored to save others, dragging them from the wreck. He plays the noble hero in the eyes of Mrs. G. until the maid enters with the morning paper, which states that the account of the wreck was all a mistake; it never happened. Poor John is now up against it for fair, and he certainly would have come out badly but for the arrival at this moment of the wreath, which presents to the Mrs. the thought of what might have been, hence she weakens, with a promise from John that to his bachelor traits he exclaim "requiescat in pace." Length, 558 feet.

EDGAR ALLEN POE: Picture Story Founded on Incidents in His Career.—Edgar Allen Poe, scorned, neglected, even vilified by his fellow-countrymen is now considered the cornerstone of American literatnre, and justly, for there lived, nor lives, no greater genius than the father of that wonderful literary gem, "The Raven." Never was there a man so subjected and beset with bitter enemies as Poe, that it was not strange that his purported biographies are a series of accusations, until now the temperate mind is wont to consider them with extreme pyrrhonism. He was undoubtedly the most original poetical genius ever produced by America, and might be regarded the literary lion of the universe, to which fact the public are becoming alive, hence it is most timely that the Biograph should produce a story in commemoration of this season, the centennial anniversary of his birth, showing him to be a man of heart, and not as his enemies have painted him. The story, while not biographical, is founded on incidents in his life, showing his devotion for his sick wife, Virginia. Desperate from his utter helplessness to ameliorate his dying wife's suffering, owing to extreme destitution, he is in a frenzy of grief, when a raven is seen to perch on a bust of Pallas above the door of their cold, cheerless apartment. An inspiration! He sets to work, and that masterpiece, "The Raven," is the fruit. During his work he has divested himself of his coat, putting it over his wife to protect her from the cold. The poem finished, he rushes coatless and hatless to the publisher, where he meets with scant attention. One editor, however, thinks the work possesses some merit and offers ten dollars for it—ten dollars for the greatest jewel in the diadem of fame—think of it! Poe thinks of the comforts, meagre though they needs must be, for his poor wife and accepts the offer. Hastening to the store, he procures food, a heavy comfortable for the cot, and medicine, and with much lighter heart returns home. Spreading the quilt tenderly over Virginia, he takes her hand and gazes fondly into her sightless eyes, but the cold, unresponsive hand tells him the awful truth. "My God, she is dead!" and he, falls prostrate across the cot. This subject is one of the most artistic films ever produced. Length, 450 feet.

TRAGIC LOVE.—Love is not in our choice, but in our fate; and whoever loved that loved not at first sight? Such was the case with Bob Spaulding, a manly fellow, who meets Dr. Rankin and his wife on the street while they are engaged in a violent tiff. The doctor is about to strike his wife when Bob interferes, incurring the resentment of the doctor. During the flurry Mrs. Rankin drops her card case. From a card inside he learns the address and goes there to return it. They meet, and

Kalem Films

TAKEN AT THE OSTRICH FARM JACKSONSVILLE, FLA.

LENGTH 970 FEET

Release of February 12, 1909

The High Diver is a decided Novelty, combining as it does an exciting dramatic story, with the most interesting feature of Ostrich farming.

Superb in Photography

Next: A BIG FEATURE

Two Subjects on one Reel

1. Country Sports in the South. (Cock Fighting.)
2. The making of a champion. (based on the life of Jack Johnson.)

SEND FOR LECTURE—FREE

KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

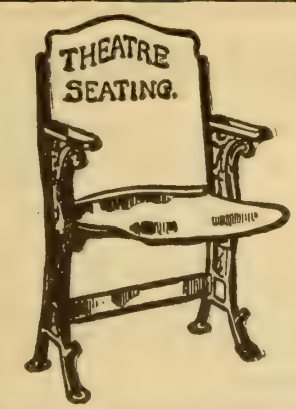
Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Singer and Pianist—Good Team, 2 People. 5 years experience. GEO. A. PURRIN, 182 Rockaway Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company

90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.

70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Any film renting Company will furnish you with film service.

But which Company will furnish you with the LATEST, BEST, and MOST AMUSING films at the LOWEST PRICE?

Answering this question without first ascertaining the WORTH, DESIRABILITY and PRICE of our film service is an impossibility.

All exhibitors are vitally interested in the answer.

Therefore all exhibitors ought to write us for our proposition.

GEO. K. SPOOR CO.

(INCORPORATED)

62 North Clark St., CHICAGO, ILL.

it is a case of love at first sight; but she is a wife, and beyond his reach. Disconsolate, he leaves, and stops in a neighboring cafe, where he sits and drinks a glass of beer, his thoughts ever on the sad, sweet face of the abused wife. While thus engaged, a couple of thugs drop knockout in his glass, and when he is well under the influence of the soporific they secure his valuables, and one then gets the card. At their den, after dividing the spoils, the one determines to go to the address on the card, where he is caught in the act by the doctor, whom he shoots in a struggle. Meanwhile, Bob has been thrown out of the cafe as a drunk, and wanders aimlessly about until he reaches the home of the doctor just as the thug leaves. He seems drawn thither by an irresistible power. Entering by the door left open by the crook, he stumbles and falls over the prostrate form of the doctor, where he lies with the crook's pistol beside him until aroused by the wife, who enters the room. As he slowly regains his reason, the awful imagination of his being a murderer forces itself upon him. There he stands over the lifeless form with pistol in hand, unable to give any account of his actions. The wife, however, doesn't believe him guilty, and allows him to escape. Leaving the city, he obtains employment in another town as machinist in a factory, but still haunted by the false spectre, for he is self-accused of a crime he did not commit. One day, while glancing over the paper, his eye strikes an article headed: "The Mystery Solved," which goes on to state that the real murderer was found dying in a hovel by a Salvation Army girl, and with his last breath confesses to killing of Dr. Rankin. Wild with joy, Bob hastens back to claim the widow, who is now free to listen to his pleadings, which are not in vain.

EDISON MFG. CO.

A BACHELOR'S SUPPER.—Synopsis of scenes: Traver's, a lonely old bachelor, on the eve of a holiday, when everyone is abroad on pleasure bent, goes to the club for companionship to drown old memories, but finding no congenial souls there he wanders forth to watch the people in the street.

Happy lovers pass, oblivious to all save themselves. Married couples are met, joyous in their offspring's delight at the gay sights. All this but intensifies Traver's isolation, and he hastens to his bachelor apartments where he is greeted by his faithful Japanese servant.

Memories still haunt him, and he decides that he will not sup alone. Directing his servant, he orders a table set for seven, with flowers and favors; then dismissing the faithful one for the night, he places before each plate a card bearing the name of a former loved one, and adds a souvenir or keepsake to remind him of the past.

He dines alone, in the quiet and solitude of his chambers, and, drinks to each fair face as memory brings it to view; and as he drinks, the vision of the fair one arises before him, and, in fancy, partakes with him, until, one by one, the chairs are occupied.

Each former sweetheart responds to his toast—and then the lights grow dim, the shadows deepen; at the stroke of twelve the last candle flickers out—he is alone! His head sinks on his breast, and when his loyal servant arrives in the morning he finds that his beloved master is lonely no more, for his spirit has gone to join his loved ones in the shadowland. Approximate length, 850 feet.

THE SALESLADY'S MATINEE IDOL.—Synopsis of scenes: Diana, a romantic minded saleslady, looks with contempt on ordinary suitors, and longs to meet an actor, some day, who will win her too-willing heart.

Fortune favors her, for she comes face to face with her ideal on a three-sheet poster, advertising the great romantic actor, Tremayne Marblebrow, at the entrance of the Olyric Theater.

On the opening night Diana occupies a box, and, by frequent applause, tries to attract the great man's attention, but without avail. A foolish note follows, signed "A Devoted Admirer."

She waits at the stage entrance and is enraptured when he brushes by. Following, on the car, she drops a flower in his lap and blushingly retreats, delighted at her daring.

At night she dreams that she is the "Idol's" wife, and is kept busy shooing other female admirers away—then wakes up and goes to work.

Next day she almost faints for joy when she sees him coming down the aisle, sure that he is seeking her—but he passes and buys a pair of suspenders at an adjoining counter.

Her mother sends her to the dressmakers. The house, an old-fashioned tenement, is occupied by chiropodists, tailors, music teachers, etc. Diana is directed up several flights of stairs.

She knocks at the wrong door, and is ushered in by Mrs. Marblebrow, to find her "Idol" seated at the fire, cooking ham and eggs, and caring for the baby at the same time—and her "Idol" is shattered. Approximate length, 900 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

EDUCATED ABROAD.—"Educated Abroad" outlines for us the tendency of some Americans of wealth to imitate foreign manners. A Chicago society matron, wife of a prominent business man, sends her youngest son abroad to be educated. He returns to mama accompanied by his college chum,

Something different from all the rest, Selig's next feature film

The King of the Ring

will be the greatest fight picture ever staged

Released February 11, 1909

Order from your nearest Film Exchange, they all Keep Selig's films

POSTERS for YOUR LOBBY, 10c

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

45-47-49 Randolph Street

CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A.

NEXT

S and A

FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK OUR

Feature Comedy Subject

EDUCATED ABROAD

(Lgth. Approx. 970 Ft.)

READY

Wednesday, Feb. 10th

Watch for release date of our new Western Feature Film

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

PRINTING FOR THE
Earthquake in Italy
HENNEGAN & CO.
427 EAST 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

Great Bargains
Motion Picture Machines, Films, Stereopticons, Slides, Supplies, etc. Passion Play $100. Colored $200. Send for Supplement 27 No. 4.
HARBACH & COMPANY
809 Filbert Street - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CALEHUFF
A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION
Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.
LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set
N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

SONG SLIDES
3 of the Best Hits now ready
"Always Think of Mother"
"If To-day Were Yesterday"
"Honey Dear"
FREE MUSIC with each set
$5.00 PER SET. 10% OFF
LEVI CO.
64 E. 14th St., New York, U.S.A.

Lord Swagger. Both are exquisite of the latest English type. They arrive in Chicago with English valets, call upon the father, who, when he sees them, throws a fit. A sister of Lord Swagger arrives and is given a social welcome. Algy, the American, falls in love with her. Lord Swagger falls likewise for Algy's sister. They propose in characteristic fashion and are accepted. A few days later, while out for a stroll, don't ye know, vaudeville performers see the exquisites and decide to imitate them in a vaudeville sketch. The manager of the theater agrees and advertises Algy and Swagger as the latest hit. They see themselves advertised and decide to take in the show, which they do, proving that they have been taught other things than manners. The vaudevillians lionize them and invade their apartments. Mother, father and two engaged young women make a sudden call. The vaudeville performers dive under the table and make their escape. The family is shocked; the young ladies hand back the engagement rings; the father orders the exquisites out of the house; the brother follows and puts them away in his business apartment; then bids them good-night, while there they make a capture of burglars. This reinstates them in the good will of the father, who makes a proposition to take them into the firm if they will become Americanized. They decide to try, and we finally see them as up-to-date American business men. Length, 970 feet.

GAUMONT.

George Kleine.

THE MINER'S WILL (Gaumont).—A story of thrilling adventure in which the principal characters roam from one hemisphere to the otuer in quest of gold. Length, 482 feet.

A SPORTIVE PUPPET (Gaumont).—This subject portrays in a vivid manner the operations of a puppet in his efforts to see the sights. Many very entertaining and novel productions of magic. Length, 403 feet.

JONES HAS BOUGHT A PHONOGRAPH (Gaumont).—A riproaring comedy, sure to make a hit. Jones buys a talking machine and soon everything in the house moves about in rhythm with the musical strains produced by the machine. Exceptionally novel features are embodied in this subject. Length, 296 feet.

THE AMBASSADOR'S DESPATCH CASE (Gaumont).—Newspaper reporters have ofttimes got things rather mixed and caused endless trouble and worry because of their erroneous statements and misconceptions of facts, and the present series of views serves to illustrate very vividly how a bit of information in the hands of an over-zealous reporter caused a flurry in the financial world. Happily, subsequent information reaching the reporter enables him to remedy matters. The substance of the story was not pertaining to the possibility of war, as the reporter presumed, but had reference to a suit of clothes concerning which the Ambassador complained. Length, 624 feet.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

GEORGE KLEINE—

THE DOUBLE'S FATE (Urban-Eclipse).—Two men of a town so closely resemble each other that a certain misdeed of one is accredited to the other, and were it not for the testimony of a little child witness the innocent would have suffered the penalty for the crime of the guilty. Strong dramatic features. Length, approximately, 430 feet.

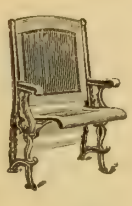
FOLLOWING MOTHER'S FOOTSTEPS (Urban-Eclipse).—A comedy well calculated to win approval of the most fastidious. Two children, brother and sister, give a demonstration of housekeeping as they see it practiced by their parents. Many most ludicrous sights are witnessed, and possibly a few parents will view in this presentation their own experiences. Length, 475 feet.

NEW SLIDES
For the Following Songs
JUST OUT
Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear
DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE
Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.
Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out-of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
Boston Office, 224 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

Next week's big feature, one full reel, hand colored, $14.10 extra
A PIRATE OF TURKEY (Pineschi)
ALSO
RIDING FOR LOVE (Comerio) FATAL WEDDING (Comerio)
THE LAST OF THE NICK CARTER SERIES—THE BANKER
FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.
Representing
145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAIR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City



THEATRE CHAIRS

Veneered and Upholstered

Can make quick delivery and give reasonable terms of payment.

H. D. WARNER

63 Fifth Ave., Rooms 14 & 15, N. Y. City

I have furnished thousands of Chairs for Moving Picture Theatres in New York City and vicinity. Have fitted six theatres for one company and several theatres for many other companies.

FOR SALE

40 reels of film (all titled) pretty good condition $10.00 a reel—50 reels (all titled) extra good condition $17.50 a reel. One Pathe Passion Play $150.00.

MAYER SILVERMAN
712 Fulton Building - Pittsburg, Pa.

WANTED

about 100 Opera Chairs new or second hand. Must not cost more than $6.00 per dozen. Address

HUME & HEARN - Greenwich, Conn.

ROLL TICKETS

Every Roll Guaranteed to be Numbered Correctly

YOUR SPECIAL TICKET PRINTED BOTH SIDES

50,000, $6.50
100,000, 10.00
500,000, $35.00
STOCK TICKETS, SIX CENTS

CASH WITH ORDER THE CARTER PRESS PEABODY, MASS.

Song Slides!
Travelogue Slides!
Announcement Slides!

Newest, latest and best. "You Select —We Ship." Lowest rental rates consistent with superior service. We also furnish thoroughly competent illustrated song vocalists, moving picture and vaudeville pianists. trap drummers, instrumentalists, dramatic lecturers, demonstrators and licensed operators.

Quick, reliable service.

Our references: Leading Film Exchanges, Song Slide Manufacturers, or "Dramatic Mirror" of New York.

Write now for Circulars and full particulars.

LEN SPENCER'S LYCEUM

4 West 28th St NEW YORK

LOOK LOOK LOOK

MR. FILM EXCHANGE

Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving

B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

America's Leading Film Exchange

Would Like to Show You What Constitutes

A GOOD FILM SERVICE

We Get Every Subject of the World's leading Film Manufacturers, which includes the following:

Edison Mfg. Co., Selig Polyscope Co., Essanay Mfg. Co., S. Lubin, Vitagraph Co., Biograph Co., Kalem Co., Urban-Eclipse, Gaumont, Pathe Freres

The output of the above manufacturers is licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and presents a variety of subjects necessary to the greatest success.

Exhibitors desirlng information regarding the license arrangement of the Motion Picture Patents Company, or other details pertaining to our Film Service are invited to adddress us.

We handle all licensed Motion Picture Machines and a complete line of Supplies.

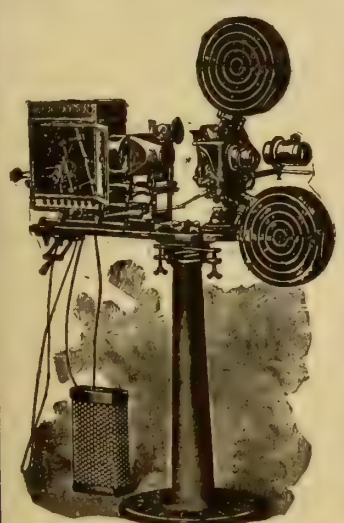
Give us particulars regarding your Theatre and requirements by mail, wire, or personal call, and let us submit you figures.

THEATRE FILM SERVICE CO.
(Licensees of Motion Piciure Patents Co.)
85 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE: 1038 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER

SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER
GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST

J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.



PREVENTS TIRED EYES AND HEADACHES

The rapidity of our new shutter has been so perfected that 30 to 40 per cent. less non-exposure (which has heretofore caused the tremulous vibration producing so many tired eyes and headaches) is found in the Motiograph than in any other machine, making perfect brilliancy of picture and sharpness of outline. Together with the rocklike steadiness of the pedestal the flicker is thus entirely eliminated.

Five-cent Theatre and Vaudeville-House Managers increase their bank account with the Motiograph. Patrons who come once will always come again where they know they see the best pictures, positively rest their eyes instead of tiring them, and where all fire risks are removed.

The Motiograph

1908 Theatre Model, Especially Approved by the Underwriters Association

OTHER POINTS OF EXCELLENCE IN THE MOTIOGRAPH found in no other machines are: A special Film Rewind by which the film can be rewound with the main crank in two minutes without removing either reels or magazines, saving time between pictures and entertainments; perfected Fireproof Magazines, Fire Traps, with four rollers and with spring actuated flanged guides, preventing side movement and making it impossible for fire to pass them; never failing Automatic Fireproof Shutters; Perfect Framing Device; Flanged Sprocket Rollers to prevent film being torn or ruined by accidentally running off sprocket wheels; Enclosed Gears and working parts; Perfect Take-up with new form of belt adjuster; Lid Off Wide Open Lamp House making it easily accessible; Improved Arc Lamp with all Hand Wheel Adjustments; Slide Carrier Swing, saving one-third more illustration for the Motion Pictures.

FILMS AND SLIDES

Headquarters for the finest, largest and most complete stock in the United States. The success of an entertainment depends on never allowing the interest of an audience to flag; patrons who have come once will come again when constgnt change of programme is made.

Send For NEW FALL CATALOGUE of Entertainers Supplies explaining everything and showing how big money can be made entertaining the public, sent free. Special literature describing the advantages of the Motiograph for professional entertainers and theatre managers.

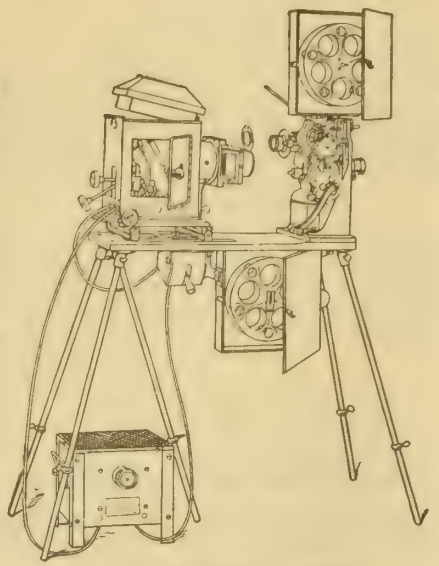
CHICAGO PROJECTING CO., E. D. OTIS, Mgr., Supply Dept., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

The Chicago Department of Electricity says of the EDISON KINETOSCOPE

"The recent examination of the Underwriters Model No. 202, of the Edison Manufacturing Company, moving pictures machine, shows that this device is constructed in exact accordance with our regulations and that the same complies with the City Ordinances governing this class of machines. In reference to this machine, I will also say that I am pleased to note the very substantial construction of the various parts and the presence of all the latest safeguards.

All Underwriters Models of Moving Picture Machines built as per the same design as Model No. 202, submitted for inspection at the office of the Board of Examiners, 107 E. Madison St., Room 3, meet the hearty approval of this department."



Prices from $90.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

Pleasing your audience with brilliant motion pictures is one thing; safeguarding it by using a machine that meets the regulations of all city authorities is another. The Edison Kinetoscope does both. Write for complete Catalogue of various models and parts.

EDISON FILMS

There is never a dull moment in any Edison film. The subjects are always popular, well acted and worked out by a process of film making that is unequalled. New films are issued each week—all presenting good, clean, wholesome entertainment.

NEXT WEEK'S SHIPMENTS:

Shipment, February 2, 1909
THE ORIGIN OF BEETHOVEN'S MOONLIGHT SONATA. Dramatic.
No. 6418 Code, VENGEABLE
App. Length 900 feet

Shipment, February 5, 1909
ADVENTURES OF AN OLD FLIRT
Comedy
No. 6419 Code, VENGEANCE
App. Length 900 feet

NEW SUBJECTS:

Shipment, February 9, 1909
A BACHELOR'S SUPPER
Dramatic
No. 6420 Code, VENGEFULLY
App. Length 850 feet

Shipment, February 12, 1909
THE SALES LADY'S MATINEE IDOL
Comedy
No. 6421 Code, VENGEONS
App. Length 900 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 304 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers FILMS
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries.
564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

LATEST FILMS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 28—The Cord of Life (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Feb. 1—The Girls and Daddy (Dramatic).....901 ft.
Feb. 4—The Brahma Diamond (Dramatic).....1036 ft.
Feb. 8—A Wreath in Time (Comedy).....558 ft.
Feb. 8—Edgar Allen Poe (Dramatic).....450 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Feb. 9—A Bachelor's Supper (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 12—The Saleslady's Matinee Idol (Comedy)....900 ft.
Feb. 9—Jessie, the Stolen Child (Dramatic).....560 ft.
Feb. 9—A Clever Trick (Comedy).....345 ft.
Feb. 13—An Irish Hero (Dramatic).....735 ft.
Feb. 13—Lost in a Folding Bed (Comedy).....247 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Feb. 5—Adventures of an Old Flirt (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 3—The Musician's Love Story (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.

FILM IMPORT AND TRADING COMPANY.

Jan. 23—Messina Disaster (Scenic).....
Feb. 6—A Pirate of Turkey (Dramatic).....
Feb. 6—Riding for Love (Dramatic).....
Feb. 6—Fatal Wedding (Dramatic).....

GAUMONT.
George Kleine.

Feb. 1-6—Gendarme's Horses (Gaumont).....275 ft.
Feb. 1-6—A Mother's Heart (Gaumont).....650 ft.
Feb. 1-6—The Nurse's Romance (Gaumont).....925 ft.
Feb. 9—The Miner's Will (Gaumont).....482 ft.
Feb. 9—A Sportive Puppet (Gaumont).....403 ft.
Feb. 13—Jones Has Bought a Phonograph (Gaumont).296 ft.
Feb. 13—The Ambassador's Despatch Case (Gaum't).624 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Jan. 27—Desert Life (Comedy).....380 ft.
Jan. —Balloon Races (Scenic).....290 ft.
Feb. 3—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Dramatic).....415 ft.
Feb. 3—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Feb. 3—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Jan. 15—The Sponge Fishers of Cuba (Educational).965 ft.
Jan. 22—The Girl At the Old Mill (Dramatic).....
Jan. 29—The Octoroon (Dramatic)..... ft.
Feb. 5—The Detectives (Dramatic).....800 ft.
Feb. 12—The High Diver (Dramatic).....895 ft.

LUBIN.

Jan. 25—A Suit Case (Comedy).....615 ft.
Jan. 25—Who Stole Jones' Wood? (Comedy).....270 ft.
Jan. 28—The New Mirror (Serio-Dramatic).....480 ft.
Jan. 28—Love Germs (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 1—Aunt Emmy's Scrap Book (Dramatic).....865 ft.
Feb. 4—The Blind Musician (Dramatic).....480 ft.
Feb. 4—Willie's Water Sprinkler (Comedy).....340 ft.
Feb. 15—The Silver Dollar (Comedy).....475 ft.
Feb. 15—The Unlucky Horseshoe (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 18—A Broken Heart (Dramatic).....530 ft.
Feb. 18—The Pass Key (Comedy).....415 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Feb. 1—A Village Quarrel (Dramatic).....466 ft.
Feb. 1—The Two Bandboxes (Comedy).....216 ft.
Feb. 1—A Sure 'Nuff Tumbler (Comedy).....292 ft.
Feb. 3—Incriminating Evidence (Dramatic).....1160 ft.
Feb. 5—Choosing a Life Partner (Comedy).....689 ft.
Feb. 5—He Can Imitate Anything (Comedy).....295 ft.
Feb. 6—Vulture Hunting in Africa (Scenic).....597 ft.
Feb. 6—Why They Fell Out (Comedy).....387 ft.
Feb. 8—Les Ricochets (Scenic).....246 ft.
Feb. 8—Women Chauffeurs (Comedy).....311 ft.
Feb. 8—Buster's Revenge (Comedy).....344 ft.
Feb. 10—Charlotte Corday (Tragic).....787 ft.
Feb. 10—Adventures of a Bag of Coal (Comedy)....203 ft.
Feb. 12—Bess and Her Goose (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 12—The Laplanders (Educational).....462 ft.
Feb. 13—The Brazilian's Ring (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 13—They Lead the Cops a Chase (Comedy)....410 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....950 ft.
Jan. 28—The Prairie Town Romance (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 4—Stirring Days in Old Virginia (Historical).1000 ft.
Feb. 18—King of the Ring (Dramatic).....1000 ft.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.
George Kleine.

Feb. 1-6—The Guard's Alarm (Urban).....463 ft.
Feb. 1-6—The Living Wreck (Urban).....562 ft.
Feb. 10—The Double's Fate (Urban-Eclipse).....430 ft.
Feb. 10—Following Mother's Footsteps (Urban-Eclipse).....475 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 23—A Colonial Romance (Dramatic).....468 ft.
Jan. 26—The Love of the Pasha's Son (Dramatic)...543 ft.
Jan. 26—The Treasure (Comedy).....461 ft.
Jan. 30—Cleopatra's Lover (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Feb. 2—The Deacon's Love Letter (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Feb. 2—The Marathon Race (Serio-Dramatic).....585 ft.
Feb. 6—Virginius (Dramatic).....955 ft.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

10 Fifth Avenue - - - New York City

The following Manufacturers and Importers of Films have been Licensed by this Company.

American Mutoscope & Biograph Company
Edison Manufacturing Company
Essanay Film Manufacturing Company
Kalem Company
George Kleine
Lubin Manufacturing Company
Pathe Freres
Selig Polyscope Company
Vitagraph Company of America

LICENSED EXCHANGES

The following exchanges have been licensed, and at the present time are the only Exchanges that are authorized to handle licensed films:

Actograph Company, 50 Union Square, New York City.
Actograph Company, Troy, N. Y.
Alamo Film Exchange, 405 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Alamo Film Exchange, 304 Conroy Building, San Antonio, Tex.
American Film Exchange, 645 Wabash Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
American Film Service, 125 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.
American Film Service, 158 North Main street, Memphis, Tenn.
American Vitagraph Company, 116 Nassau street, New York, N. Y.
George Breck, 70 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo Film Exchange, 13½ Genesee street, Buffalo, N. Y.
C. A. Calehuff, Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Calumet Film Exchange, Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline & Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline, 268 South State street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Clune Film Exchange, 727 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.
Colorado Film Exchange Company, 320 Charles Building, Denver, Colo.
Columbia Film Exchange, 414 Ferguson Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Gayety Theater Building, St. Louis, Mo.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Crawford Theater, El Paso, Tex.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Hopkins Theater, Louisville, Ky.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Shubert Theater, New Orleans, La.
Harry Davis, 347 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Harry Davis, Buffalo, N. Y.
Harry Davis, 1311 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Denver Film Exchange, 713 Lincoln avenue, Denver, Colo.
Dixie Film Company, 620 Commercial place, New Orleans, La.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 104-5 Bakewell Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 235 Monticello Arcade Building, Norfolk, Va.
Edison Display Co., 1116 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash.
Edison Display Co., 165½ Fourth street, Portland, Ore.
Electric Theater Supply Co., 47 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Greater New York Film Rental Co., 24 Union Square, New York City.
C. J. Hite Company, Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill.
Howard Moving Picture Co., 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Imperial Film Exchange, 44 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City.
Imperial Film Exchange, 299 River street, Troy, N. Y.
Imperial Film Exchange, 803 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Imported Film & Supply Co., 708 Union street, New Orleans, La.
Kent Film Service, 218 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Kleine Optical Company, 2008½ Third avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Kleine Optical Company, 657 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Kleine Optical Company, 52 State street, Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Company, 302 Boston Building, Denver, Colo.
Kleine Optical Company, 229 Commercial Building, Des Moines, Ia.
Kleine Optical Company, 214 Traction Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Kleine Optical Co. of California, 369 Pacific Electric Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Kleine Optical Company, 662 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Company, 309 Melhorn Building, Seattle, Wash.
Kleine Optical Company of Missouri, 523 Commercial Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Laemmle Film Service, 196 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service, Main and Sixth streets, Evansville, Ind.
Laemmle Film Service, 78 South Front street, Memphis, Tenn.
Laemmle Film Service, 1121-23 Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service, 800 Brandeis Block, Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service, 419-20 Marquam Grand Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service, 151 Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 314 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
H. Lieber Co., 24 West Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lubin Film Service, 21 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Lubin Film Service, 510 Paul-Gale-Greenwood Building, Norfolk, Va.
Lubin Film Service, 140 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 82 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
Miles Bros., Inc., 259 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Miles Bros., Inc., Washington and Dover streets, Boston, Mass.
Miles Bros., Inc., 790 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Mitchell Film Exchange, 120½ Main street, Little Rock, Ark.
Monarch Film Exchange, 201 Thompson Building, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Montana Film Exchange, 41 North Main street, Butte, Mont.
Morton Film Exchange, 107 Sixth street, Portland, Ore.
National Film Company, 100 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., Spokane, Wash.
Novelty Moving Picture Co., 418 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Broad street, Columbus, Ohio.
Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.
Pennsylvania Film Exchange, 403 Lewis Block, Pittsburg, Pa.
People's Film Exchange, 126 University place, New York City.
Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 121 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Wilkesbarre, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 501-503 Central Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Neave Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 421 Walnut street, Des Moines, Ia.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 60-62 Brownell Block, Lincoln, Neb.
Schiller Film Exchange, 103 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Southern Film Exchange, 1822 Fourth avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Southern Film Exchange, 148 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George K. Spoor & Co., 62 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.
Star Film Exchange, 120 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Standard Film Exchange, 79 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Superior Film Supply Co., 621 Nasby Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Swaab Film Service Co., 338 Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 160 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Wm. H. Swanson Co. of Omaha, 405 Karbach Block, Omaha, Neb.
Wm. H. Swanson St. Louis Film Co., 200 North Seventh street, St. Louis, Mo.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main street, East, Rochester, N. Y.
Tally's Film Exchange, 554 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Theater Film Supply Co., 202 South Tryon street, Charlotte, N. C.
Theater Film Supply Co., 2007 Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Theater Film Service Co., 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Theater Film Service Co., 1038 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal.
Trent & Wilson, 63 East Third street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
20th Century Optiscope Co., Shukert Building, Kansas City, Mo.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 408 Eccles Building, Ogden, Utah.
Turner & Dahnken, 1650 Ellis street, San Francisco, Cal.
Twin City Calcium and Stereopticon Co., 709 Hennepin ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
United Film Exchange, 717 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
U. S. Film Exchange, 132 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Vaudette Film Exchange Co., 103 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich.
P. L. Waters, 41 East Twenty-first street, New York City.
Alfred Weiss' Film Exchange, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City.
Western Film Exchange, 949 Century Building, St. Louis Mo.
Western Film Exchange, 307 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange, 201 Miners' Bank Building, Joplin, Mo.
Wonderland Film Exchange, Seventh street and Liberty ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
Wheelan-Loper Film Co., 339 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Yale Film Renting Co., 622 Main street, Kansas City, Mo.

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only to the high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Independent Film Protective Association

Formally and regularly organized at Hotel Imperial, New York City, Jan. 11th, 1909. Each and every exhibitor in the land is invited to join the organization.

I. W. ULLMAN, President, Film Import Trading Co., New York
DR. RICHARD RAY, Vice-President, Kansas City, Mo.
GEO. F. KEARNEY, Secretary, Detroit, Mich.
INGWALD C. OES, Treasurer, Great Northern Film Co., New York

EXHIBITORS!

DON'T SIGN YOUR LIBERTY AWAY

JOIN THE VICTORIOUS RANKS

FALL IN LINE WITH HUNDREDS WHO ARE ALREADY WITH US FOR VICTORY!

FOR PARTICULARS AND INFORMATION ADDRESS HEADQUARTERS

143 E. 23d Street NEW YORK CITY 7 E. 14th Street

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

GREAT NORTHERN FILMS CO. COPENHAGEN

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

On the 15th of February and thereafter we will release 4 subjects a week

MANY HEADLINERS COMING!

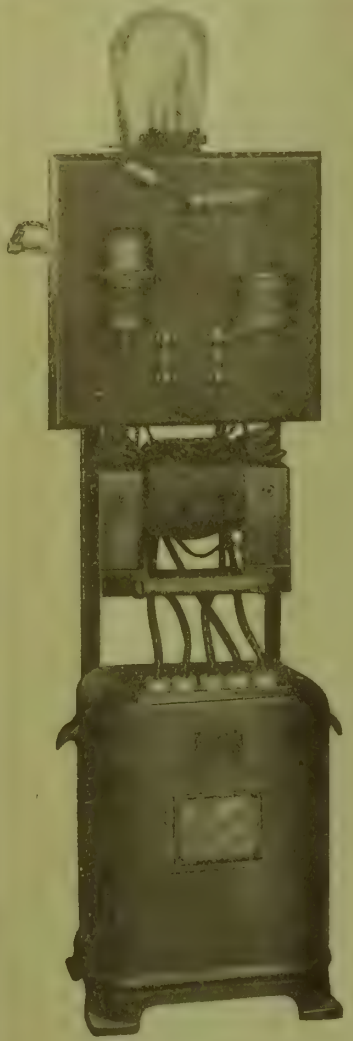
ALL FILMS of our usual high quality of well selected subjects

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY

NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN

7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY

General Electric Company



G. E. Rectifier for D. C. Arcs

Mercury Arc Rectifier Economy Arc

Two distinctly successful devices for operating moving picture arcs from alternating current circuits.

If it is desired to use a direct current arc the Mercury Arc Rectifier offers the most simple, reliable and economical means of obtaining direct current at the proper voltage, The Rectifier requires no attention whatever after it is once started.

The Economy Arc is a device especially designed for use with an alternating current arc. It is unequalled for simplicity, flexibility, compactness and high efficiency. There are no exposed switch contacts or connectors thus reducing to a minimum the liability of short circuits and danger from fires.

G. E. Economy Arc, for A.C. Arcs

The use of these General Electric devices will result in:

Maximum Safety to Patrons.
Greater Comfort to Operator.
Increased Profits to the Management.

Write now for our publications on these devices. You will find that they contain interesting and valuable information.

2041

New York Office: 30 CHURCH STREET

Principal Offices: SCHENECTADY, N.Y.

Sales Offices in ALL LARGE CITIES

Vol. 4., No. 7. February 13, 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

Published Weekly by THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO., 125 E. 23d ST., NEW YORK

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS are learning that It Pays to Investigate and that

The Motiograph is truly A Wonderful Machine

FOR MOTION PICTURES AND STEREOPTICON VIEWS

andthat where there's Perfect Pictures there's A Motiergaph in the Operator's Booth.

Chicago, Boston, New York and Frisco approved.

It projects Wonderfully Brilliant, Steady and Flickerless Pictures and is absolutely fireproof.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.

The Motiograph is Licensed

under the patents of the

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.
OF NEW YORK.

The Rheostato Current Saver, saves 60 to 75 per cent. on Electric Bills.

The Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit is the only satisfactory substitute for Electric Light.

Our Catalog tells a lot of interesting things.

WRITE FOR IT;

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

The Eagle Film Exchange

Will give you an exclusive service. We handle nothing but new goods—no junk. We are prepared to give you the following makes of film:

GREAT NORTHERN, ECLAIR, CINES, COMERIO, MELIES, WILLIAMSON, Etc.

Branch: MAUCH CHUNK, PA., Oscar Bittner, Mgr.

143 N. 8th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Beware! Mr. Manager

A very contagious disease exists (worn out sickly junk film service) means

Instant Death to your Theatre

LET US PRESCRIBE
OUR SELECTED FILM SERVICE

A tonic that is necessary for success. If you are worried, and need assistance, write for latest proposition; results will follow; we increase receipts.

PENNSYLVANIA FILM CO.
400-1-2-3-4 Lewis Building
PITTSBURGH, PA.

It Will Always Be Our Policy

To
- Purchase from two to four copies of every good subject manufactured.
- Make shipments in ample time to avoid delays.
- Avoid REPEATERS.
- Ship NO JUNK.
- Give what we promise.

Each Office fully equipped to furnish a regular supply of 12 to 18 First Run Reels per week

We earnestly solicit a trial order for

FILM SERVICE

that we may convince you

WRITE TO-DAY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.
(Members Film Service Association)

1401-1405 Locust St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
421 Fourth Ave. LOUISVILLE, KY.
Care of Shubert Theatre, New Orleans, La.

SONG SLIDES

The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES for the great hits
"There's A Fleet On The Sea"
"When You Know That The Girl Loves You"
THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

SLIDES

"SLIDES THAT ARE SLIDES"
Clear (not misty) coloring, extremely artistic
A NOVELTY in EACH SET
Latest Hits of the Season:
"Keep It for Old Times Sake"
"One Sweet Smile"
"I Wish I Was the Leader of the Band"
"Blue Skies Will Be Smiling Bye and Bye"
$4.00 PER SET
Send for List and Prices
AMERICAN LATERN SLIDE CO., 25 Morse St., Camden, N.J.

SHARP

KEEP ON TOP

All the Latest Song Slide Hits to Rent

New Firm. All new Slides. Best Service in Chicago. Price 50c. per set a week, a weeks supply shipped at one time.

WESTERN SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE
59 Dearborn Street Real Estate Bldg. Third Floor Chicago, Ill.

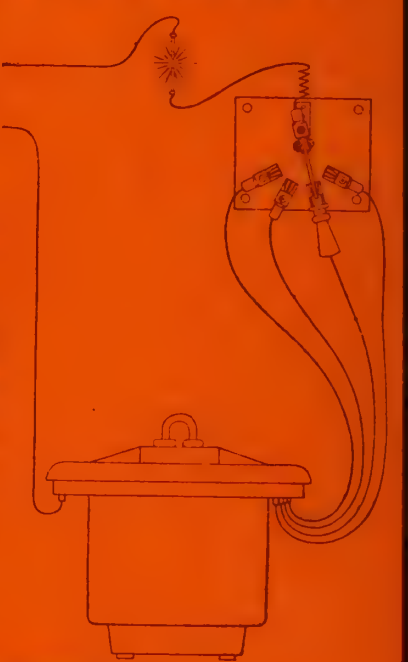
FOR SALE FILMS

Closing out Film Exchange, 200 reels 800 to 1,000 ft. all titled, $5.00 to $25.00. Bargains. Write for lists.

VAL STAEB
453 PARKER AVE., DETROIT, MICH.

ECONOMIZE

The Lemon Arc Regulator



For alternating current ONLY. Will reduce the power consumed by MORE THAN one-half and give a much better light for the picture machines.

WRITE FOR PARTICULARS

MADE BY
Vindex Electric Co.
AURORA, ILL.

THE SHOW OF QUALITY

That is what they all say about Selig's Films. Don't overlook his next feature film

ON THE WARPATH

The best Wild West picture that has ever been staged for Motion Pictures. It shows the real Sioux Indians in action. Order from your nearest FILM EXCHANGE. They ALL rent Selig's.

ORDER POSTERS FOR YOUR LOBBY, 10c

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO., 45-47-49 E. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

BIOGRAPH FILMS

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED FEBRUARY 15, 1909

The Curtain Pole

The Most Audacious Comedy Ever Produced

A subject that simply defies description, so fast, furious and kaleidoscopic are the incidents presented. Positively the most daring ever attempted. It tells the story of an eccentric Frenchman who buys an eighteen foot curtain pole and attempts to bring it home in a cab. "Well, Gee Whiz!" Length, 765 feet.

His Ward's Love

A beautiful romance showing the conscientious unselfishness of a minister towards his ward, a pretty girl of eighteen. He would sacrifice his own love for what he imagines the girl's good. Length, 235 feet.

RELEASED FEBRUARY 18, 1909

The Hindoo Dagger

A thrilling story of the ominous presence of a Hindoo dagger, a present from a friend in India, in the home of a young married couple. Nothing but misfortune hangs over the household from the time of the dagger's arrival.
Length, 583 feet

The Joneses Have Amateur Theatricals

This is really one of the funniest of the Jones Series, and shows our friend as an amateur actor. He was a grand success as a lover, until Mrs. J. butts in.
Length, 400 feet

Release days of Biograph Subjects — MONDAY and THURSDAY

Get on Our Mail List and Keep Posted. Write for Our Descriptive Circulars

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

SONG SLIDES

BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED

"BLIND PIG" (Von Tilzer)
"LOVE ME JUST A LITTLE BIT" (Chas. K. Harris)
"S. R. HENRY'S BARN DANCE" (Stern)
"ALWAYS THINK OF MOTHER" (Haller & Stafford)
"HONEY DEAR"
"IF TO-DAY WERE YESTERDAY" (Cadillack)

$5.00 PER SET. 10% OFF

LEVI CO.

64 E. 14th St., New York, U.S.A.

Send for list of slightly used song slides, $2.75 per set. Ask for catalogue of Announcement Slides.

WANTED

200 to 300 chairs suitable for a Moving Picture Show, also Moving Picture Machine give discription and lowest cash price. Address

H. L. ROCKHILL

ROANOKE, VA. Box No. 535

The A B C of the Film Business

Attention
Brains
Courtesy

At Your Disposal and Gladly Furnished by

Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co.

Pittsburg, Pa. Des Moines, Ia.
Cincinnati, O. Lincoln, Neb.
Rochester, N. Y.

GAUMONT FILMS

Gaumont

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

Two reels of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

ECLIPSE

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

One reel of new subjects issued weekly to exchanges licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

GEORGE KLEINE

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Moving Picture World

Copyright, 1908, by
The World Photographic Publishing Company,
125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.
Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.
Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

Vol. 4 FEBRUARY 13 No. 7

Editorial.

CENSORSHIP OF FILM SUBJECTS.

"I believe in censorship of films; and I see there is a movement on foot to have the People's Institute censor them. There is, however, one possible objection to the censorship: Some films might be passed in New York and rejected in St. Louis, or vice versa. I would suggest a minister, a business man, and an institute such as the People's, as a board of censors. I am opposed to leaving the matter entirely in the hands of the church, because so many ministers are narrow-minded. If it were left in the hands of the church I believe there would be no pictures at all."

So said one of the most prominent men in the moving picture field to us the other day. The statement was voluntary; it voices a feeling that is general and that has often found expression in our pages. Two facts are at the bottom of this sentiment. Damage is inflicted on the progress of motion picture photography by the production and exhibition of objectionable films; and all right-minded men are united in a desire to stamp out the evil thing. For it is morally wrong and commercially bad.

But it is one thing to talk about establishing a censorship; another to do it in a manner which shall be satisfactory to all concerned. The line between the salacious and the safe is difficult to draw in practice. "Salome," almost in puris naturalibus, is, it seems, permissible at the Manhattan Opera House; the same figure in a moving picture in the delectable State of New Jersey would excite the ire of the pulpit and make the police busy. Maud Allan, almost "mit nodings on," can safely dance before King Edward and his cronies; is it therefore wrong to show a film photograph of the lady to a five cent public? The laws of the rich and the poor are by no means the same, it appears.

We think with our friend that the churches are best left out of the council of censorship. Broad-minded clerics are numerous, it is true; but bigotry and intolerance are powerful for harm, as the recent crisis in the moving picture field amply shows. Men of the world with wide sympathies, conscientious artists and caterers for public amusements would form ideal censors. In Britain a government official, the Lord Chamberlain, censors the morals of the stage; the county councils and the licensing authorities do the same for the vaudeville and moving picture houses. Indecency of word, act or picture is not tolerated for a single instant. The result is a clean and prosperous stage.

If the public authorities of America did their duty in a similarly conscientious fashion we should have no need of an unofficial censorship. Subject the Broadway theater and the five cent moving picture house to the same code of rules and the hypercritical clergy would find their occupation gone. The recent action of Mayor McClellan was a step in the right direction. Periodical visits of qualified inspectors and extreme care in the issuance of licenses will do much to clarify the nature of the entertainments.

The film manufacturers and importers are the most powerful body of censors we can think of. If they will refrain from sending out the salacious and the risque, the original cause of complaint will be destroyed. It is a slur on a growing industry that a censorship should be suggested. Every indecent film that is put in circulation means a loss to the business as a whole, for it is a bad advertisement. In our own circle of friends there are very many who will not visit a moving picture theater, or allow their children to do so, on any consideration. Why? Because the film manufacturers and importers—or some of them—have got the business a bad name. The risque would never be shown if the risque were unobtainable in the open market. So, stamp it out, gentlemen of the Combine and the Independents; be your own censors and there will be no public call for a censorship, either official or unofficial.

Next to the manufacturers and importers the most potent of all censors is the press. The Moving Picture World has not failed of its duty in this respect in the past; we shall not shirk it in the future. Week by week we keep a sharp eye on the nature of the film subjects that are made and shown, and whenever we come across a case of flagrant uncleanliness we shall name it and denounce its producers. By those means we hope to bear an effective part in stamping out the last traces of an admitted evil. We are pleased to think that our efforts in this direction are very generally appreciated.

Meanwhile, we think the suggestion for an unofficial censorship is a good one. There are not so many film subjects produced in and imported into this country, week by week, that the task of examining them would be insuperable. The lately formed organizations could do much in the matter and we should like to see them, or some of them, take the initiative. And we rely much upon healthy public opinion backed up by the power of the press to do much in excluding the "undesirable" from production and exhibition. Let us hear from our readers on this subject, to which we shall recur as occasion offers.

THE MOVING PICTURE "OCTOPUS."

We venture to say that more bosh has been printed in the daily papers and the weekly and monthly magazines concerning the moving picture business than on any other subject during the past two years. Newspapers have enlarged on every trivial accident and with scare headings tried to create the impression that death lurked in every nickelodeon. Lately they have seized on the merger of the manufacturers as a sensation and likened it to an octopus, threatening the life of the industry. The real octopus, however, is shown in a cartoon which appeared in the bulletin issued this week by Pathe Freres and which we reproduce with their permission.

It is a fact that the daily press have been less ridiculous of late in their reference to the dangers of the show, but columns of humbug are being published that do not reflect any credit on the editorial management of a great daily newspaper. We think that it would be well for the editor of the New York World to verify the effusions of some of his reportorial staff.

THE AIM OF THE LICENSED MANUFACTURERS.

Much wild talk has been circulated that it was the intention of the licensed manufacturers to corral the whole business, to eventually rent their own films and even to become exhibitors. Of course, no sane person would attach any importance to these theories when the sources of the canards were taken into consideration, but many people were mentally upset, and this was the object of the trouble makers. Interviews with each licensed manufacturer and importer assures us that no such step has been or is likely ever to be contemplated by the manufacturers. When men like Mr. George Kleine, who has such a long and varied experience in the moving picture business, make a statement, it deserves more than passing notice. Kleine is a man of action and not of words. His statements are always so carefully weighed that they may be accepted as being orthodox. Sound judgment directs all his steps, and any promise he makes may be relied upon. When he says that "it is the endeavor of the licensed manufacturers to uplift the business at any sacrifice and that it is to be done by straight and honest dealing," we have a statement of the policy of the combine which may be relied upon. When he says that "the steps taken to improve the conditions of the trade will not interfere with the rights of anyone who is conducting a legitimate business," we have a statement that should set at rest any disturbed mind (see our report of the Independents' meeting at Chicago). From our interviews with the various manufacturers we gather that many, if not all of them, have made more or less sacrifice in entering into the combination, and that being the case, it should increase the public faith in the project that they have set forth to accomplish.

A TEST CASE.

An application for a writ of mandamus directing Mayor McClellan to issue a seven-day license to the William Fox Amusement Company for the operation of moving pictures at 889 Broadway, Brooklyn, was made by Gustavus A. Rogers before Justice Thomas, in Special Term of the Supreme Court, on Monday. A six-day license was offered to the company, but was refused. The present proceedings were brought as a test case. Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell appeared for the Mayor.

No less than four clergymen, with churches in the vicinity of 889 Broadway, have sent letters of protest to the Mayor, and their desires in the matter are taken into consideration by the Corporation Counsel. It was the contention of Rogers that the Mayor had no power to make conditions as to whether the license should extend over six or seven days Justice Thomas took the papers and reserved decision

Send $2.00 for a Subscription to the Moving Picture World—the representative trade newspaper.

A FEW REMARKS ABOUT FAILURES.

By W. Stephen Bush.

In this great country of ours we are strong believers in liberty. The Constitution of the United States and of every individual State guarantees to every citizen certain rights and privileges, among which is the inalienable right of every citizen to lose his money in any way he chooses. According to that keen and not unfriendly observer of the antics of mankind, the late Artemas Ward, there are two things which every American believes himself competent to run without previous training or preparation—a hotel and a newspaper. I think it is safe to add thereto a third, to wit: a moving picture theater. In spite of the present unprosperous condition of affairs, in spite of high licenses and strict fire regulations, moving picture theaters are springing up as if they were more profitable than Sandard Oil. If it is true that we can learn as much about water from a little drop as from the torrents of the mighty Niagara, I may be allowed to mention as an example typical of the whole country, certain conditions prevailing in the city of brotherly love. In spite of the decided ebb in the tide of nickels that has brought sorrow to exhibitors all over, new places are started here with a hopefulness worthy of a better cause. On one block, on a thoroughfare which is by no means crowded, three new places have been opened. It is of course plain to every sane and impartial observer that some of them at no distant date will go over the brink into the churning waters below, but they are all convinced it is bound to be the "other fellow." One man places great faith in the white decorations adorning the front of his "theater"; another three doors below his rival rests his hope on local vaudeville, while still another plays a trump card by selling six tickets for a quarter or fifteen for fifty cents. It is hard to waken any sympathy for these people; they are sure they need none, and not until that sternest of all teachers, Miss Experience, has spanked them to the crying point will they be able to think rationally once more. That this sort of "enterprise" harms the moving picture world in general there can be little doubt. The people in that neighborhood, as in others, will be surfeited with cheap vaudeville and indifferent pictures, and where before there were hundreds of loyal friends of the moving picture it will soon be a very unpopular form of amusement.

How does it all happen? I am sure I do not pretend to know, but in many cases it comes about in this way: An operator, tired of turning the crank, becomes in his own mind thoroughly convinced that to him the secret of success in the moving picture business has been revealed by a special act of Providence. He thereupon casts about for some citizen, who has either been careful in the selection of his parents or has stored away the savings of many prudent years in some trust and deposit company. The operator, well meaning and honest enough, approaches one of the aforesaid citizens and more or less mysteriously intimates that he knows of a fine empty store in a good location, and if the aforesaid citizen will listen he will hear something to his advantage. As a rule the citizen not only listens but strains his ears. It is strange, but true. So-called "hard-headed citizens," who sniff the scent of a wildcat scheme seven miles off, drink in the tale of the operator with the eagerness of a child listening to grandma's fairy stories. Sometimes, perhaps, the objection is feebly urged that there are too many such places there now, but this is met with withering scorn on the part of the operator, who gives the prospective "angel" to understand that his way of doing things is an infinite improvement over everything else ever attempted by any other mortal. Then it is that caution is unthroned, suspicion flung away and confidence with a capital C reigns supreme. The enterprise is actually started, in nine cases out of ten to save expenses; the cheapest kind of film service is decided upon, and after having done more or less harm to the moving picture business in general, comes the inglorious finish.

Far be it from me to deny the ability of some men to rise above their callings, but wherever they have so risen it will be found that they have started early in life. I believe that every man who has learned his trade or profession well, and who is putting forth his best effort, is entitled to the fullest respect of mankind, whether he is a haircutter or a statesman, a cook or a theologian. It must be admitted, however, that the mending of pants or shoes, the distribution of milk, the retailing of lager beer and whiskey, the selling of books or the peddling of vegetables are not the best schools for developing the successful manager of an electric theater. People who are able successfully to minister to the wants of the pleasure-seeking public are, like poets, "born, not made," though training and experience are of course valuable adjuncts. Wherever you find a successful owner or manager of an electric theater you will find something of a Belasco, the indescribable something that insures success and keeps failure at a distance.

It is very probable that these friendly warnings may not be heeded by those for whom they are so kindly intended. Many years ago someone asked the editor of "Punch" for advice "to one about to marry." The editor's advice was "Don't." It was good advice, yet it has been persistently disregarded. The folly or carelessness of the seafarer, however, does not excuse the keeper of the lighthouse from his duty to keep the beacon burning.

THE LECTURES.

While not all New York houses have lectures as a part of the program, some do and most of those of the week have been good and the illustrations have been all that one could wish. The slides—one in particular upon Jamaica—were among the best seen for a long time. Such slides add to the attractiveness of the exhibition and deserve commendation. This educational part of a program should be made as good as possible and it is gratifying to see that most managers are striving to accomplish just this thing.

As will be seen from our advertising pages, a new concern has taken up the furnishing of illustrated lecturettes. The Messrs. Gunby are well and favorably known among the trade and their experience should tell them what is best suited for the exhibitor. They will confine their work to lecturettes and the slides furnished will be uncolored and as good photographically as it is possible to obtain. This is a sensible idea, as a good photographic slide is too frequently spoiled by the amateur colorist.

THE EARTHQUAKE FILMS

have held the interest of the country for the past week. It is hard to say which manufacturer made the best showing, but it is generally admitted that the Urban-Eclipse film gave a more complete idea of the extent of the disaster. These films were not obtained without great expense and risk. Pathe had a very large crew of men working day and night for two weeks taking views of the earthquake ruins. It was one of the Pathe men that had the extremely narrow escape from death. He had been instructed to make bird's-eye views from the top of a building. His camera had been prepared and he was in the act of taking a picture showing a large crowd of refugees being fed by the Queen and King, when a violent shock was felt and the photographer was hurled into space. He was later revived and at present is convalescent in a Paris hospital.

On the Screen.

By "Lux Graphicus."

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York, Dr. Farley, has denounced the indecency of—no, not of certain humble moving picture theaters, but of the plays at many Broadway houses. The president of the Theatrical Managers' Association has admitted the truth of Dr. Farley's charges and enumerates five theaters as putting on plays which are not fit for any decent minded man, woman or child to see. Now, Mayor McClellan, as sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, when are you going to close out "The Girl from Rector's," "The Easiest Way," "Kassa," and the other specimens of histrionic putrescence which are making the New York stage the scorn of civilization?

* * *

The assets of the Independents in their contest with the Moving Picture Patents Company are more valuable than is commonly supposed. They include: (1) A Madonna-like face; (2) a frock coat; (3) an American flag, and (4) some choice gems of flapdoodle oratory according to the formula of W. J. Bryan. Enough to make Number Ten Fifth Avenue shake in its very shoes for fear and fright. Wonder if Mr. Dyer, Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Macdonald ever get any sleep o' nights?

* * *

The weekly comments on the shows by "Our Own Critic" should be a useful and popular feature of the "World," but the Editor might keep a watchful eye on the young man who writes them. He seems somewhat too attentive to the ladies, according to what he said last week about the fair cashier at the Manhattan Theater. Or is it part of the policy of the managers of these places to put their choicest goods in the windows? Not a bad idea; for I would sooner part with my dime or nickel to a good-looking girl in the box than to a grumpy old fossil of the other sex.

* * *

Mr. Shade, of Lexington, Ill., says the exhibitor is treated by the Motion Picture Patents Company "like a mangy cur." All the exhibitors I have met look fairly prosperous folk and thoroughly well able to take care of their own affairs. If they are not, they are best out of the business. The fact of the matter is, the exhibitor is being used as a tool by self-constituted agitators and saviors, whose misleading advocacy does him more harm than good. Leave him alone, say I, and he'll work out his own salvation.

* * *

The literature of the crisis has been distinctly enriched by the cogently written advertisements of Carl Laemmle. He knows what he wants to say and how to say it. Pity so much literary sweetness should be wasted on the desert air of the theatrical papers, which moving picture men do not read. Just cast some of your flowers of literature over in this direction, friend Laemmle. The Moving Picture World is the only paper in existence with a strong force of moving picture men behind it.

* * *

A certain well known renter declines to talk any more about the situation to newspaper men on the ground that he is suspected of holding stock in the World Publishing Company; is accused of being a friend of the Trust, and is jollied by his competitors on that account. How very sad! But come, friend; never mind what people say or think so long as you are doing the business and will do more. If I took note of half the things that are said about me I should be a candidate for Matteawan, where Thaw is.

* * *

A $2,000,000 concern is the latest entrant into the moving picture field. There is room for it and I wish it success. The demand for good moving pictures is illimitable. All will depend upon the excellence of the managerial ability and the technical knowledge at command. Without good management and good films even a capital of $20,000,000 would be useless. Capital is not everything in the moving picture field where a severe competition of quality has set in. Quality, gents, I repeat.

NEW PROJECTING MACHINE.

Mr. Geo. W. Bingham, of Shelburne Falls, Mass., has perfected a new moving picture machine and its merits have been recently tested out in New York and Boston. Mr. Bingham has already taken orders for 25 machines which he will manufacture at once or as soon as his machinery is placed. The required stock of the company has all been subscribed.

THE PATENTS CO. AND THE INDEPENDENTS.

By Our Man About Town.

The Motion Picture Patents Company, in view of its apparent monopolistic title, has not met with a very cordial reception. On the spur of the moment it has received the plaudits of many; on after thought it has been condemned. Others have, upon reflection, come into the fold.

Sift it out. What is there to it? The sum and substance is that all the supposed patent holders have turned over their patents to a holding company. That company has licensed certain other companies to manufacture moving picture films under the patents it holds. The situation is plain and clear. There is but one avenue for dispute, and that is for those who claim a better title to go into the courts and dispute the title.

So much for the chief point under discussion in an industry that for some reason or other has been made a prominent one by the daily press, which unfortunately leans to the sensational, rather than to the just.

The very press that now arraigns the capitalist has for months past been most active in persecuting the man of small capital. Every little point has been raised against the exhibitor. He has been branded as a guerrilla upon the theatrical profession, and no opportunity to brand him has been spared.

We take this opportunity to say that there are as good men engaged in the moving picture business as can be found in any other legitimate line, and it is only prejudice that has deprived them of the recognition they deserve.

Much has been said about the Independents, and the ringing of the Independence bell, but it should always be remembered that cheap grade in either labor or products does not tend to promote the welfare of any community. Cheap film exchange men, "dupers" and other like panhandlers, have done more to wreck legitimate capital than anything else. This is the chief argument of the so-called trust. None but those engaged in the business know what low, scheming people are engaged in it. Where a legitimate manufacturer will spend hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars to put a subject on the market, there are scores of vultures who will buy a copy and counterfeit the product. Uncle Sam does not allow his product to be so treated; why should any other legitimate producer stand idly by?

Then take the film exchange man. He buys every new subject that is put on the market, in order to give his customer (the exhibitor) the best that can be obtained. And as an opposition he finds some fellow with an office in his hat, or a basement, offering his customer one new subject and the balance of his program made up of pictures that have been on the market for months.

This allegation may be denied, but not in good faith. Anyone who knows anything about the business knows that you cannot buy new goods and deal them out to your customers at second-hand prices.

This brings me down to the point that there are in existence a number of cheap-John people whom the Motion Picture Patents Company are expected to drive out of the business. I make this declaration without fear. Every man is entitled to just remuneration for his labor—whether he be a capitalist or a laborer. Pikers should stick to their own quarters and not infringe upon legitimate fields. It is for this reason that I say the Motion Picture Patents Company will remain intact and survive. I have spent several weeks in looking into the matter and I believe that where cheapness is to be wiped out the people will stand by. At first blush there appears to be a monopolistic color, but think it over, friends, and you will see deeper.

I see that the United Managers' Association is up in arms against the so-called trust. People in glass houses should not throw stones. I well remember when the aforesaid managers were paying $75.00 and $60.00 per week for one reel of films to close their programs. One reel of films per week, mind you. At that time moving picture operators considered themselves operators, so much so that when the theatrical managers started the squeeze the same operators were capable of taking positions as stage electricians. What are these managers doing for the moving picture business to-day? Have they ever promoted it? Ask the old-time operators. Don't go to the moving picture producers. You will find in the houses of the biggest kickers a man-of-all-work. No operator. The man who works the moving picture machine also works the spotlight, and probably acts as usher, or in some other capacity, when not at his post.

Some of the theatrical managers threaten to form a combine with millions of capital to manufacture and produce their own goods. That is all bluff. That was tried by Proctor years ago and he was glad to give it up. The mouthpiece that now gives it to the daily press has no more pluck or capital than Proctor has.

But with all this in mind I wish to say that the Motion Picture Patents Company must be more conservative than it has been. From the observations I have made in my tour I feel it has been, in a measure at least, unjust. To be frank with you, Mr. Editor, I believe that the policies of the company are all right. I don't believe in cheap skates, whether they be manufacturers, exhibitors, or film exchange men, but you cannot work reforms with an iron hand. In time the policies will be universally endorsed, but time must work the way.

I get among the exhibitors more than any other class attached to the moving picture business and I find a very strong sentiment against the payment of the license fee of $2 per week. Taxation has always been repulsive to all people, and always will be; but has it ever occurred to you that people delight to pay taxes when it is to their own interests? Understand me, I do not mean to put up an argument in favor of this special tax. What I mean to convey is that the people will only too willingly pay the tax when they see the reason for it.

What next? Simplest thing in the world. The $2 tax means protection. Nothing protects like protection. It is now up to the Motion Picture Patents Company to exercise that protection by proceeding against the companies that promise and advertise to give both Patents and Independent products to customers with a guarantee against molestation or prosecution.

The way is clear. The halting exhibitors are not at fault. In the language of the day, they are from Missouri.

OLIVER.

A TOUR AMONGST COUNTRY EXHIBITORS.

By John M. Bradlet.

(Continued from page 143.)

In the country most of the shows are run by local, respectable business men and by local capital.

In Pottstown, when two well known business men, Messrs. Cook & Wiley, opened the Arcade, the Acme, a small Bowery style show had to close its doors. Messrs. Cook & Wiley have not to apologize to their friends for being in the moving picture business, they are proud of it, and they have the support of the community. Now if Messrs. Cook & Wiley were to show objectionable films they would not only drive away their local patronage and lose money on their venture, but they would also ruin their reputation and endanger their respective stores. Shows managed by respectable local men are a safeguard to the morals of the community.

In Royersford we find one of the richest citizens of the place at the head of the Star Theater, not an old store converted into a show room, but a specially constructed building, well equipped for the work, and even with an electric transformer, etc.

In Spring City, a small place, we find the New Gem, a theater that would be a great credit to Fourteenth street, well equipped for the business, neat and clean in everything, with its well uniformed employees, etc.

In Phoenixville we find still another illustration of a respectable business man driving away undesirable showmen. When Mr. Brownback decided to devote his Colonial Theater to the moving pictures an undesirable show place had to move away. He had not much to move away as most of the goods, including the piano, had been taken away for debts. So he sold the balance of the place to other persons and since the place has been resold and resold again.

In other words, the country business men have recognized that the moving pictures are not only a good and cheap amusement but an educator, provided good productions are shown, and for this reason they take hold of them instead of allowing undesirable showmen to take possession of the morals of the community.

Mr. Tucker, of the Bijou, of Downingtown, and many other exhibitors told me that I could use their names as opposed to show in their respective places, films that could offend in any way their local patronage and that they have not only given strict orders to their renters to not send them highly sensational films, showing brutal murders, burglaries or other crimes, but that they generally manage to have always in reserve a good reel of films, to be used in case the renters should send accidently some objectionable subjects.

The root of the evil of bad films can be found in the unscrupulous and ignorant exhibitors of large cities. When they show a sensational film they notice that one-third of the audience, the rough element, is wild in demonstration; but they have not enough sense to see that the other two-thirds are disgusted. Because the two-thirds is composed of a better class of citizens, who have no desire of making a show of themselves, remain silent, the ignorant exhibitors come to the conclusion that silence means consent. In other words, the exhibitors say: "One-third applauded and two-thirds consented; then it is what the public wants." To satisfy the demands of these ignorant exhibitors, the renters force the manufacturers in the field of highly sensational and silly productions.

In Chester I had another experience. I was talking with Mr. Otto Miller in front of his show place, called the Biograph. One of his patrons walked to the ticket office, then he came to us and said: "Last evening I went to Philadelphia and as I complained of some bad pictures, they told me to return to Chester, if I wanted to see some good films." Mr. Miller answered: "It is so. Over there they can show any old thing, but here I must be careful in my selection, if I want to keep my local patronage." Mr. Miller was then showing "In Old Arizona" for the second time, and added that he could show it again as folks did not seem to tire of it.

Before closing, I wish to touch another very vital point which means much to the manufacturers, "The repeaters." As the manufacturers make their money on the copies, it is to their interest to see repeaters in force and in vogue.

If our ignorant exhibitors of the big cities are opposed to repeaters, the sentiment is different in the country. Country exhibitors are not afraid of repeaters and they are always ready and willing to show again and again good films. "Sherlock Holmes" was to be repated in Wilmington, Del., "In Old Arizona" has been repeated in Chester and many good productions from our best manufacturers have been repeated.

The best example I found was in Coatesville, Pa., a small place of 10,000. At the Opera House, Mr. Harry Harshe had secured for one night "In the Shenandoah Valley," on the day of the release. He had such a success that a week after, he re-engaged the same film for four nights and showed it to crowded houses, and told me that he had a notion of again repeating this great film.

The dream of Mr. Shelley, of the Star, of Royersford, is to see repeaters in vogue.

The country exhibitors would show more repeaters if they could obtain the films in good condition. As in general, the country showmen have not a first run, they receive films already scratched and if they dare re-engage the same films they have then rain storms. As the renters go entirely by the pulse of New York, and because New York refuses repeaters, the renters do not secure enough copies to make it possible to show repeaters in good condition, and as the country exhibitors do not care for too many rain storm films, they do not call for repeaters as much as they would like to do it, if they could be assured films in good condition.

Mr. H. Harshe, of Coatesville, told me that he did not like the idea of constantly changing programmes as he was losing the real benefit of his own advertisement. He said: "If I advertise and show a good film to-day, my advertisement is lost if I cannot repeat the same film."

The country exhibitors seem to understand the business, they know that all the inhabitants cannot come the same night, that some are sick, some are working, some are visiting or busy in different ways. The exhibitors, also know that if a film is good it will be the talk of the town and that those who could not be present on the first or second nights will come on the third. They also know that if one night they show a bad film the said film will be condemned in town and no one will come. The country exhibitors do everything to please their local patronage and they are very jealous of this local patronage.

I had no idea that so much could be gained from the country exhibitors and I hope that I have quoted them properly in the different questions of vaudeville acts, good work, repeaters, etc. I also sincerely hope that the manufacturers as well as the renters will try to do something for the benefit of the country exhibitors as they certainly prove the present best field for the moving pictures and if we listen to their wants we are bound to elevate the work, while we are sure to pull down cinematography if we persist to take the pulse of the Bowery as our guide. J. M. B.

WEEKLY COMMENTS ON THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

Lyman H. Howe is doing a great public service in dignifying the motion picture. It is no small undertaking to challenge a verdict from the public at such a vast and beautiful place of entertainment as the New York Hippodrome, and on Sunday evening last, when I went there, I had my doubts as to the possibilities of his success. Is a modern audience educated up to such a pitch of intelligence that it is ready to accept the motion picture as the staple of an entire evening's entertainment? Last Sunday's great crowd gave an emphatic affirmative reply to the question, and Lyman H. Howe emerges triumphantly from the ordeal. He has conquered the public by sheer force of excellence, and a firm faith in the drawing powers of high class motion photography.

I have seen the motion picture displayed in every imaginable kind of theater, and in many large cities, but never in a hall of such size and beauty as the Hippodrome, where every visitor can see the stage and a large sized picture is possible. The programme was diversified; the photographs splendidly good, and the title slides delicately refined and telling. A master hand was at the projector, for the pictures were very skillfully shown. Then the tinting was effective and artistic. The audience, in fact, saw moving picture photography displayed to its best advantage.

And with what rapt attention these beautiful views were followed by the vast house! The travel note is a safe one to strike in cosmopolitan New York where all sorts and conditions of men from all parts of the world are gathered together. Lyman Howe, shrewd man, knows this and plays his cards accordingly. Rome, India, Nice, the Rockies, London, Sicily, Niagara were some of the places we visited the other night. The mind was ever kept in motion; ever stimulated; ever refreshed; ever excited. I cannot conceive of a more delightful and rational way of passing an evening. It is a positive brain rest. Before the Indian films were shown a gentleman came on the stage and read us a short lecture about them. Positively I resented the intrusion of that man; I did not want anybody to talk then; I wanted the pictures to do that, and so did all the people round about me. So, Mr. Howe, no more lecturing, please; your pictures are eloquent enough and we are quite content to look at them, and listen to your effects.

And such effects! How wonderfully clever and well timed these are, to be sure. It is the very perfection of stage management. In one picture a dog is seen scampering across a field of view. He is made to bark as he runs. The guide who hustles the sightseers through the streets of Rome seems to talk glibly after the manner of his kind and the words are spoken in unison with the actions of the man on the screen. Nothing more humorous could be imagined than the speech of Cicero in the guise of a statue come to life. It's the very quintessence of broad farce and the audience shook with laughter. When we went to Niagara, we shivered at the icy grandeur of Winter, and felt the roll and roar of the great waters in Summer, so subtly skilful were the introduced effects. So, too, as the train tore through the Frazer River Canon of the Rockies; as the automobile swept over the rocky gorges of the Savoy; as the merrymakers disported themselves at the Nice Carnival of 1908—there were the accompanying toots and rattle of the locomotives, the tumultuous swirl of tumbled waters, the weird ear-splitting sounds of the carnivallers. In a word, these accompanying effects were splendidly done and they added much to the attractiveness of the pictures.

The programme, which is to be repeated next Sunday evening, contains a series of Sicilian views, apropos the recent earthquake, and many other items of a humorous character. All New York should see this fine collection of moving pictures. They are educative, they are entertaining, they are humorous, they are inspiring, and above all they are beautiful. I mingled with the great crowd in and about the gorgeous house, young and old, rich and prosperous, and I listened to what they said of the display. They had come to see the pictures—"so we thought we'd come and see the pictures" was a common remark of Madame New York, who meant filling an evening to the best advantage—they saw them; and they were contented. I take off my hat to you, friend Howe; you have a great public at your back, and you are doing so well with your exhibition and its quality is so fine that, especially in these critical times of the moving pcture when the hand of the enemy is against it, you deserve every praise and encouragement in your work.

Independents' Meeting in Chicago

A meeting was called in Chicago on January 30 from the Independent headquarters. A great many exhibitors who are known to favor the Motion Pictures Patents Company received no notice of the meeting, which was called as an open one, the chairman stating that everyone would be heard.

After the preliminaries Mr. Dan E. Mulvey reviewed the situation from the time of the first independent movement a year ago. He was fair to both sides and stated that it was his belief that a man should not sign anything until he was sure which side could offer him the best protection. He said that he had been quoted as a disturber and an agitator, which was a misquotation. He wished to say that his stand was first, last and all the time only for the improvement of the moving picture business and everything that was a real uplift for the exhibitor—made no difference from what source—license or independent. Mr. Mulvey's argument, though, seemed to be in favor of the Patents Company and he didn't believe that the Independents were in a position to supply the demand of film or reach the high quality of the licensed. He was frequently interrupted by the chairman, but the audience called for him to proceed and he was allowed to finish.

Mr. Friedlander, the chairman, met the argument of Mr. Mulvey in a longer discourse and especially in relation to the possibilities of Independent film. Mr. C. B. Cannon then read the following LETTER FROM MR. GEORGE KLEINE.

"Many of our customers who are owners or managers of theaters are asking for information regarding the position of the Motion Pictures Patents Company. In the matter of exacting royalties on machines, misleading and inaccurate statements regarding this question have been made in the trade papers and in circulars which have been widely distributed by several rental agencies to whom licenses were refused. The following statement is therefore made to explain the situation.

"The Patents Company issued a blank form of application for a license to theaters for signature. The signing of this application has no permanent binding effect and does not deprive the signer of any legal rights that he may have had, as he is in a position at any time to give up this license if he so elects, and his status will be exactly the same as if he had never applied for a license. This application is of no greater significance than that which is signed when service is requested from a gas company. The signer pays his license fee so long as he retains his license, just as a consumer must pay his gas bills, but the fee stops when the license is surrendered, just as there are no further gas bills after the service is closed. Both the Patents Company and the licensee will then have the same rights as they would have had if no license had been issued.

"Most of those who object to the payment of the license fee do not object because of the amount of money involved, but on principle, and fair minded men must respect the foundation of these objections, even if they are based on a misunderstanding.

"Therefore we give our views as follows:

"The exaction of royalties assumes three phases: the MORAL, the LEGAL and that of EXPEDIENCY. Critics base their complaints chiefly upon the first, but we consider them unwarranted by the facts.

"As to the right of collection, the main argument against the royalty holds that exhibitors bought their machines in good faith without conditions, and the exaction of a royalty is therefore unjust. As against this we state that these machines have been sold without the consent of a number of interests which controlled important patents such as Armat Company, the Biograph Company, the Vitagraph Company, etc.

"It cannot be maintained that these concerns which are now interested in the Patents Company, and never sold projecting machines, have no moral right to ask royalties for the use of their patents because they have been deprived of them during the past ten years.

"In addition, the two concerns that may be considered above all others as fathers of the motion picture business, and without whose works the present trade conditions could not have developed, have for years been spending enormous sums in litigation and in other ways to protect their rights, as well as to make technical improvements [in the production of the Biograph Company] On the other hand the chief beneficiaries, that is to say, the thousand of motion picture theaters that are now in operation, have never contributed one penny to the cause, in spite of large profits made with small investments by many of them.

"But on the contrary, the vast majority of theater owners have made every effort to reduce the cost of their film service. Every man familiar with the situation of last year knows that the action of the Independents reduced rental charges throughout the United States to an extent that cannot be figured, but which probably amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars, and possibly several millions.

"In spite of the part which my Company took in benefiting the theaters in this way, I found that all of our officers throughout the United States were under constant pressure to reduce their prices, and that the theater managers did not hesitate to play one side against the other. It happened many times that theaters would pat us on the back for our independent action, and then tell us with great regret that they would take Association films, unless our prices were reduced to meet some figure that had been quoted by an irresponsible exchange, which could not make good. This may be good business on the part of the theaters, but nevertheless competition between rental exchanges has forced prices down to such a point that many of them are unable to pay their film bills.

"This has no particular bearing upon the question of paying royalties on machines, except that, to be frank, it casts some suspicion upon the sincerity of many of those who claim that they have objections on principle.

"From the legal standpoint the Motion Pictures Patents Company controls all of the strong patents covering machines and films. These include the Biograph Camera Patents and the Edison Camera Patents, both of which are declared to be valid by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which is the highest court that could take cognizance of this question. The same court declared that practically all of the cameras in use, excepting that held exclusively by the Biograph Company, infringed upon the Edison Camera Patents.

"The Patents Company control the Edison Film Patent which we fought last year; this is only one of the many patents covering both machines and films, and standing as it was.

"Machines that are now in use are claimed to embody infringements in some form of the following patents which are now controlled by the Patents Company.

"Four patents by Thos. Armat, one of which went through the United States Circuit Court, and was decided in his favor about six years ago, although strongly fought by the Biograph Company. This patent has been before the United States Supreme Court, and has not yet passed its final adjudication.

"Six patents formerly controlled by the Vitagraph Company, including the framing device system which is embodied in some form on all projecting machines now in use.

"The Latham Loop Patent, the Pross Patent and several others controlled by the Biograph Company, which appeared to us to be strong enough last year to base our fight upon, whose value is unchanged.

"It will be seen that the control of these various patents by different concerns gave their prospect of endless legal warfare to the serious annoyance of every branch of the moving picture business. Innocent parties, both rental exchanges and theaters, would be in danger of continual annoyance between the contending interests, and the final control of those patents by the Patents Company was the only logical proceeding.

"It should be noted, however, that technically the royalty which is asked from the theaters does not cover machines exclusively, but covers the use of licensed films with licensed machines.

"We next come to the question of EXPEDIENCY; that is to say, to what extent is the general condition of the films business, of manufactures, rental exchanges and theaters, involved in difficulties, and what steps can be taken to remedy the situation?

"Taking up the interests of the manufactures: The situation in Europe is extremely bad. There are no restrictions upon the manufacture of films, and this has resulted in the turning out of a mass of subjects, many of them very poor quality.

"No European manufactures, excepting a very few that have world-wide connections, are sure of the sale of enough prints to warrant a heavy investment in negatives. Every man interested in the moving picture business knows that a manufacturer must sell many prints before the original cost of his negatives is regained. If trade conditions reduce this quantity the investment must be correspondingly reduced. Excessive competition between manufactures will, therefore, make it impossible to turn out negatives involving heavy expenditures. The effect of economy in this direction would mean unsatisfactory films to the ultimate loss of exhibitors. Conditions in the United States have been such as to threaten a repetition of the European situation if some check were not placed upon the small film manufacturing concerns that would increase in number constantly and add to the total of undesirable films.

"In order to produce a film that is reasonably satisfactory to the public, it is necessary to employ a large and expensive plant. The films that are being offered under the license of the Motion Pictures Company involve the use of negatives whose cost is at least double that of last year. Owing to the use of masses of people, elaborate stage settings, actors of note and expensive plants, the initial cost of a motion picture film negative is constantly increasing.

"Throughout the United States motion picture theaters are complaining of excessive competition. It is difficult as well as unjust to put an existing theater out of business. While we cannot speak for the Patents Company in this particular, we believe that an action looking to this elimination of existing theaters should be taken only if objectionable practices are followed. At the same time it is of the utmost importance that no new theaters be licensed in locations which are not sufficiently provided for. The Patents Company can be of great assistance to existing theaters by preventing the erection of competing houses whenever possible. It will be the right as well as the duty of any theater owner to notify the Patents Company whenever a neighbor shows signs of changing his store into a moving picture theater, and to warn him before signing a lease and entering into construction work.

"It would have been a simple matter for the Patents Company to license the exchanges which were rejected, but it was thought best after consideration to eliminate those whose practices were offiensive to all fair minded men interested in the film business."

* * *

A member of the Chicago Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association moved that the meeting should take no notice of the letter, as it contained nothing of interest to the exhibitors of the meeting. The motion was carried. A recess of thirty minutes was taken to allow those exhibitors that desired to join the old Exhibitors' Association. There were only eleven to join at this time. The Association had to begin with seventy-six members and the eleven newcomers makes a total of eighty-seven. This figure seems to represent the Independent movement in Chicago. When the meeting again was called to order it was conducted as a meeting of the Independent Exhibitors' Association. Several gentlemen who did not joint the Association, among others L. E. Wagner, who, by the way, was a nominee for chairman when the meeting opened, C. B. Cannon, L. E. Sluder, Arthur Karg and S. M. Walker, tried to get the floor but were refused on the ground that they were not members of the Association, and on that account they, with a large number of others, left the meeting.

The chairman stated that he had an official list of licensed theaters in Chicago, giving the number as 285. This statement caused much argument and several said he was 100 short. The chairman stated in a response to Mr. Mulvey that it was the intention of the Independents, if they could not supply enough new films, to use old films if necessary, but still be independent.

Mr. McMillan, of the Unique Film and Construction Company, stated, in response to the suggestion that the supply of Independent film would not be enough to meet the demand, and also that the quality was not up to the standard, that he was in a position to furnish all the Independent film that would be necessary, and furthermore, as referring to the quality, he said that he would allow anybody to pick out ten reels from his vault and he would guarantee the quality to be found equal to any of the best licensed films on the market.

In response to that Mr. Harry Thompson offered the use of the Pastime Theater, 109 East Madison street, at 11 o'clock on the following Thursday night, for an exhibition of this Independent film.

A large number of exhibitors, a great many accompanied by their families, met at the Pastime Theater Thursday night and withnessed a very fine exhibition of film. The different makes of film represented Great Northern, Italian Cines, Eclair, Cricks & Martin, and Ambrosio. The film was good and in many instances brought out applause.

The Kalem Company have made a sally out of their regular path and next week will issue a sporting film. There are two subjects on the reel, the first representing a cock fight, a sport which is openly indulged in in the South but which is illegal in Northern States. The second subject shows the making of a pugilist, intended to represent the victorious Jack Johnson, the negro fighter. The Kalem Company do not claim that Johnson posed for these pictures. In reality they were posed for by his sparring partner, who closely resembles him in appearance and in tactics. That there is nothing offensive in this film is shown by the fact that it has received the approval of the Chicago police censorship, although they cut out the less exciting battle of the roosters.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? $2 per year—52 numbers.

THE INTERNATIONAL PROJECTING AND PRODUCING COMPANY.

This company was organized last week in Chicago, with J. J. Murdock as president; D. W. McKinney, vice-president; H. J. Streyckmans, secretary; Capt. L. A. Boenig, treasurer, and George F. Harding and John R. Davis, directors. The capital of the new company is fixed at $2,000,000. Mr. Murdock has long been prominent in vaudeville and theatrical management, and is one of the most influential men in Western vaudeville affairs. He is general manager of the Western Vaudeville Managers' Association, and his relations with the largest vaudeville interests are very close. Secretary Streyckmans was business manager of the "Show World," until he resigned to enter the new company, and he has held other positions of importance and trust. Captain Boening, the treasurer, was treasurer of the Wm. Swanson & Co. licensed film exchanges, and is also a gentleman of high standing. Mr. McKinney is the inventor of the camera and projecting machines which the company proposes to introduce, and which, it is claimed, are non-infringing. The company announces, also, that it will import films.

* * *

The Eastern agency of the newly formed $2,000,000 International Projecting and Producing Co. has been secured by Messrs. Harstn & Co., 138 East Fourteenth street, New York City, who will thus be able to open the market to the European films of about twenty different makers. Mr. Alfred Harstn, who personally arranged the agency for his firm, informs us that he is entirely satisfied with the arrangement, which seeks to maintain an open market and also includes the selling and renting of cameras and projectors, both non-infringing. The projectors will probably be ready in about one month from date.

Mr. Will G. Barker, who has arranged the business in London, Paris and other cities, arrives in New York this week with a large quantity of film. In about three months the company will have a factory of its own wherein subjects of an American character will be produced. The subjects already available are, however, popular with audiences in this country.

It is Mr. Harstn's opinion that the formation of the International Company makes the Independent position stronger than it has ever been; for there is ample capital, plenty of films, and non-infringing cameras and projectors available for making a free and open market. Without the support of the International Company the position of the Independents would be weak.

An important point is that all imported films will be personally censored by Mr. Murdoch, the president of the new company, and if found unsatisfactory they will be rejected.

Mr. Murdoch is at the head of a concern which controls over 500 first-class theaters, many of them moving picture houses, in various parts of the country, and associated with him in this new enterprise are such well known men in the entertainment world as Percy Williams, Martin Beck, and Keith & Proctor. In the opinion of Mr. Harstn the new company is the largest and most important happening in the moving picture field for years and is bound to be an important factor in the situation.

ST. LOUIS EXHIBITORS CLING TO THE PRODUCTIONS OF THE LICENSED MANUFACTURERS.

The war planned among local exhibitors of moving pictures against the Motion Picture Patents Company of New York fizzled out yesterday because the owners and managers of the largest theaters in the city refused to become parties to the remonstrance.

"A victory," they say, "means nothing. We have but one alternative and that is to patronize the opposition company, which cannot furnish the same class of pictures that the so-called 'trust' handles."

All of the best patents are controlled by the Motion Picture Patents Company, both in Europe and the United States, and these are the films which the exhibitor must have in order to succeed at the moving picture business. He has to pay $2 a week "royalty."

"As the Patents Company does control all of these patents, it would be worse than madness for anyone who hopes to succeed at this business to protest against the royalty asked by them for the use of their machines and films service," says a local exhibitor.—St. Louis "Republic."

Exhibitors! Note That
SOUVENIRS
are a Great Drawing Card for
5 AND 10 CENT THEATRES
We Give You the Greatest Value for the Least Money
DROP US A POSTAL. CATALOGUE FREE ON APPLICATION

No. O 12
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100

No. 500 1/6
Cup 2¼ x 2¼
Saucer 4½
75c per dozen

No. 1048
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100

TAKITO, OGAWA & CO.
Importers and Manufacturers of
JAPANESE GOODS
166 East Lake Street - Chicago, Ill.

Bound Volumes of Moving Picture World
VOLUME I, MARCH-DECEMBER, 1907 (limited number)
VOLUME 2, JANUARY-JUNE, 1908 (indexed)
VOLUME 3, JULY-DECEMBER, 1908 (indexed)
$2.00 each; $6.00 for the three volumes and a year's subscription
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 125 East 23d Street, New York City

W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange
535-536-537 Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg., 1402 Broadway, NEW YORK
Theatres, Clubs, Parks, Fairs, Rinks, Circuses, Airdomes, Picture Houses, Booked
Treat all alike, Control 500 acts. Our efficient service insures success.
Ask anybody.
New Department Theatres, Parks, Bought, Sold, Leased, Operated. Dramatic Bureau, Plays. Routes, People, Scenery.

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides
The Finest Made. $5 per Set
All of the New Song Hits.
A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

CLIMAX WIRE
FOR
RHEOSTATS
Does not become brittle
Three times the resistance of German silver
HIGHEST EFFICIENCY—LOWEST COST
DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.
HARRISON, N.J.

Comments on Film Subjects.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

The effect of the recent combination of film manufacturers and the censoring of films has had its effect. The quality is steadily improving. The most serious criticism that one can utter now is that the films are, as a rule, too somber and too much inclined to make one feel sad. They are undoubtedly life stories. Everyone who sees them will realize that fact, but, after all, are films shown for amusement more attractive if they show only the sober side of life? Isn't it better to have more of the lighter side?

Possibly managers will reply to this that the comics are weak and that the difficulty of filling programs with good films that are light and amusing is too great. And in a sense they will be right in this assertion, but there are a good many that are not so sober and do not cause one to feel that the world is all gloom. The feature of an entertainment is the amusement. And it is not amusing to see only griefs and sorrows depicted.

Give us life, and action, and amusement. Here and there the sad side can be shown as a matter of contrast, but aside from that it would be better to show clean comics. For example, the exploits of a dog have caused more applause the past week than anything else that has been shown. No one was killed. There was no grief. There was no breaking up of homes by the manifestation of infidelity on the part of husband or wife; yet the audiences who saw that film were unanimous in the assertion that the picture was unusually good. This ought to be a pointer for the manufacturer and the manager.

"Women Chauffeurs."—A Pathe comic which carries the destruction of property too far. Some exciting escapes are noted as the automobile goes careering wildly along, but so far as most audiences are concerned, it lacks the essential elements of a comic.

"No. 5874."—A heart story from the Pathes which is particularly strong and holds the audience almost breathless in places. It is gloomy, but perhaps a majority of individuals have more gloom in their lives than they do sun. It is undoubtedly true to life and it has many features about it which are better than the average story of this sort. The little daughter left alone grows up, marries well and is enabled to take care of her unfortunate father in after years, something which does not often occur in a story. For this change from the ordinary run of stories the publishers are to be cordially thanked.

"Edgar Allan Poe."—The Biograph people have here condensed Poe's life into a short film by summarizing it. The picture itself does not represent a connected series of actual occurrences. All the events shown in the picture actually occurred in Poe's life, but not all together. Nevertheless, it is a pathetic series which is offered and the audience, or that part of it which has taken some interest in Poe, was held quiet while the picture was running. The technical quality of the film is good and the action is excellent. The makeup of the character representing Poe is to be heartily commended. The film should serve to draw attention to a character too little known and understood in the history of American literature.

"Les Ricochets."—A Pathe record of motor boat races somewhere, presumably in, or near, Paris. The flight of the little boats is represented as something remarkable and the technical quality of the films is quite up to the Pathe average.

"Buster's Revenge."—A Pathe story of a dog which is well worth seeing. Not often do films receive liberal applause in a New York theater, but this one was vigorously applauded and it deserves it. The film shows that the public appreciates something good, even though there has seemed to be a disposition on the part of manufacturers to introduce the bloodthirsty and sensational. Fortunately this disposition is becoming much modified and the effect is good. This film ought to have a long run. It is good enough to satisfy anyone.

"An Evil Day."—A comic from the Pathes which shows an old gentleman getting into all sorts of scrapes in his search for a locksmith to open a door and release his wife whose skirts were caught as the door closed.

"The Anonymous Letter."—A Pathe film which shows how mean a man can be with absolutely no provocation. Aside from this pschyological manifestation it possesses no interest.

"Voyage Round a Star."—A semi-magic film from the Pathes which represents what might be possible. But after all it is a little far fetched to locate a lusty ballet in a star, and perhaps the professor's fate in being kicked out is deserved.

"Palmistry."—A Pathe film which shows a series of pictures that were conjured up by a palmist who sought out individuals for the purpose of reading their palms. It represents possibilities, but is in no wise convincing.

"Choosing a Life Partner."—A Pathe production which does not seem quite clear. The girl's choice seems reasonable enough, after watching the foolhardy attempts to win her indulged by the other two; but even though this is true, the story as a whole is not sufficiently explicit to make it more than of a passing interest. The technical quality of the film is quite up to the Pathe average.

"He Can Imitate Anything."—A Pathe comic in which the hero gets into all sorts of scrapes because he knew too much. It is good enough to keep the audience laughing.

"Detectives of the Italian Bureau."—A Kalem film which has been mentioned before in these columns, but which is good enough to be worthy another word or two. The first part is extremely good, but where the detectives are disclosed talking to the father it is weak, and where they appear to Rosa after her escape it is also weak. If some ginger could be injected into these two scenes the film would be beyond criticism. Technically the quality could be improved, but most of the acting is good enough.

"Adventures of an Old Flirt."—When the Edison people determine to make a comedy or a comic they always achieve a signal success, and in this film they have maintained the firm's reputation. The acting is far better than the ordinary and the staging is remarkably good, while the technical quality of the film itself could scarcely be improved. The film deserves a long run. It is one of the best comedies for weeks.

"Virginius," of the Vitagraph Company, left a very cool audience. Historic subjects of this class are rather complex and never fully understood by the average public, no matter how well the actions are described in the sub-titles. With operators beating time, the spectators have scarcely time to read the titles and to memorize the hard names. One remark heard in the audience was that the company could have selected better built men to represent the Romans and not show us actors with such thin legs.

"A Wreath in Time."—A comic from the Biograph's studio which caused much merriment. The best acted and most natural scene is the one of the theater box, as it is a good study of the expressions of some blase spectators, who enjoy only a certain part of the show. Most of the other scenes are more or less exaggerated. Mrs. Goodhusband is far from natural. In her exaggerated actions of sorrow, she cannot keep from smiling, af it was fun to act for moving pictures.

"The Miner's Wealth."—A clean, well told story, but we have seen far better work from the Gaumonts.

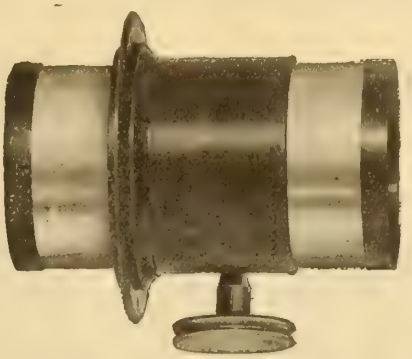
"A Sportive Puppet."—A poor attempt on the part of Messrs. Gaumont. The audience did not seem to appreciate the amount of time and the tedious work required to produce such a trick film; to everyone it was too much of a wooden toy affair.

COMING HEADLINERS.

"On the Warpath" is the title of a thrilling Wild West subject which will be released next wek. A band of real Sioux Indians were engaged to take part in the production. The Selig Polyscope Company have spared no expense to make this subject correct in detail and of such interest that it will sustain the faith of the exhibitors in the drawing quality of the Selig dramas.

"The Assassination of the Duke of Guise" is another headliner that will be released next week by the Pathe Company. We have read the reports of the foreign press on this film which are so enthusiastic that we look forward with interest to its exhibition in this country. The principal characters are acted by well-known members of the Comedie Francaise and the opinion of the British newspapers is that a peep at this film would be an education to the average actor.

"C. Q. D.; or, Saved by Wireless," is another specimen of the enterprise of the Vitagraph Company. The story is the wreck of the Republic and the photographs are actual pictures of the steamers Baltic and Florida and of the crew and officers of the ill-fated Republic.



EVERY first-class machine is equipped with first-class accessories. In a motion picture machine the lens is the most important accessory. Upon the quality of lens depends the success or failure of an otherwise good subject.

BAUSCH & LOMB
Projection Lenses

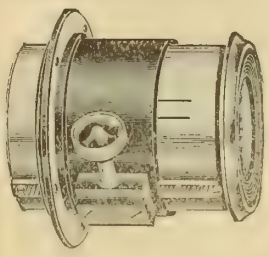
are acknowledged by experts to be superior to anything ever produced for optical correctness and mechanical construction.

¶PRISM is a little popular science monthly. Send for copy, free.

Our Name on a Photographic Lens, Microscope, Field Glass, Laboratory Apparatus, Engineering or any other Scientific Instrument is our Guarantee.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

NEW YORK WASHINGTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO
LONDON ROCHESTER, N.Y. FRANKFORT



We make the best lenses in the world for projecting motion pictures and lantern slides. Can you spend a little money more wisely and profitable than by ordering a set of lenses which will

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

IMPROVE YOUR PICTURES?

NEW PRICES

M. P. Projection Lenses any size with our improved jacket with spiral adjustment	$15.00
No. 1 Stereopticon Lenses	15 00
No. 2 Stereopticon Lenses	20.00

All dealers sell them on approval.

WRITE FOR OUR NEW CIRCULAR

When ordering state the size of your screen and the length of the picture wanted. Give the distance from the lens to the screen. Remit the price of the lens or fnrnish references.

CUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES
and Slides of Historical and Memorial Scenes and Personages

Over 250 different styles of the Finest Colored and most Artistically Designed Slides at any Price

3 SLIDE8 FOR $1.00

TRAVELOGUES

THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY
SEND FOR CATALOG "D" 224 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

Serves You Right Who?

THE CHICAGO SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE

Masonic Temple, Chicago

AND

ST. LOUIS SONG SLIDE SERVICE

Holland Building, St. Louis

We are the largest exclusive song slide renters in the U. S., and we carry an immense stock of all the latest popular song hits which we offer you in any quantity at the extremely low rate of

50c Per Set a Week

Every Set Guaranteed Complete from Title to Chorus

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Sandusky, Ohio.—The Royal Theater, under the management of Sol. Gillard, has been closed for the present.

Glens Falls, N. Y.—Work has begun on the Hagen building, on Main street, for a new moving picture theater.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Edward Fay & Co. are estimating on the erection of a moving picture theater at 413 South Fifth street.

Port Clinton, Ohio.—The Novelty Theater has installed moving pictures in connection with vaudeville, and is reported as doing excellent business.

Dayton, Ohio.—A moving picture theater is being constructed on Dakota street, which is in the center of the Hungarian colony.

Burlington, Vt.—A new moving picture theater known as the Casino opened its doors to the public under the management of Smith & Neiburg.

Syracuse, N. Y.—The Theatorium Company has filed a certificate of incorporation. It is capitalized at $4,000. Its policy is to give moving picture shows.

Hagerstown, Md.—Pearce & Scheck, who control sixteen moving picture houses in Baltimore, have purchased the City Opera House of Hagerstown.

North Wales, Pa.—The New England Motion Picture Company has rented the Amusement Hall and will conduct it as a first-class moving picture theater.

Syracuse, N. Y.—A new moving picture theater is under construction in South Warren street. Mr. Thomas Thompson is the promoter of the new enterprise.

St. Louis, Mo.—The building at 1612 Wash street was leased to Leo Largman, who will remodel it at a cost of $10,000 to be used as a moving picture and vaudeville theater.

Arctic, R. I.—The New Gem Theater, which occupies the stand of the St. Onge's Academy of Music, threw open its doors to the public, with the latest moving pictures and illustrated songs.

Sandusky, Ohio.—W. C. Kunzman, who assisted in the operation of the Cameraphone machine while at the Sandusky Theater, has again returned to operate the Vitagraph, which was installed last week.

The Rhode Island legislators are seeking to license operators and impose closer restrictions on moving picture shows. A bill has been introduced in the Assembly which has many sensible suggestions.

Wilson, N. C.—Mr. H. J. Paradis, the former manager of the Lyric Theater, has leased and renovated the building formerly occupied by the Lumina Theater Company, who closed on account of lack of patronage.

Little Rock, Ark.—The Arkansas Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association held its first annual convention at the Hotel Marion on February 1 and were afterwards entertained at a banquet given by the Mitchell Film Exchange.

Jamestown, N. Y.—A long lease has been signed for the room in the Arcade building now occupied by the New York Store Company, to be the home of a moving picture theater, which, it is expected, will be ready April 1.

Albany, N. Y., is to have two new moving picture shows. Mr. Weber has purchased the old club house of the Columbus Association on Central avenue, which will be converted into a theater, and Mr. John Ruhlof, a baker, on Lexington avenue, will erect a theater on the site of his present place of business.

"The Moving Picture Recall" is the title of a record book for the exhibitor which has been compiled by Mr. W. Rosenbloom, of 1066 East Sixtieth street, Chicago, Ill. It should be of value to the exhibitor in keeping a record of the titles of the films he has shown, being alphabetically arranged. Blank spaces are also ruled off for records of the class of subject, date of issue, weather and gate receipts.

The New York National Film Exchange, of 55 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City, is now being conducted under the sole proprietorship of Mr. N. H. Powell, who was formerly general manager. Mr. Powell has bought out his partner's interest in said concern, and expects to continue as an independent renter as heretofore.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITOR.

New York, February 8, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—I will leave to others the task of describing the beauties of the excellent show of Sunday evening at the Hippodrome, but I wish to call your attention to some points which confirm what I have tried to convey to your readers.

The fact that Mr. Howe can draw such large audiences in such a big building as the Hippodrome and keep them interested for over two hours in showing them moving pictures ONLY proves, without a doubt, that Cinematography is not dying out but is increasing in the public favor when placed under such able management.

We can draw two more lessons from Mr. Howe's shows: First, that the public does not demand highly sensational and silly films. Secondly, that good moving pictures can be shown without being sandwiched between cheap vaudeville acts.

Good films can be shown by themselves, they will always please and always draw a good patronage. On the other hand, bad or sensational films need a tonic in the shape of cheap vaudeville acts.

The manufacturers have certainly a very good friend in Mr. Lyman H. Howe, as his success should stimulate the most discouraged exhibitor. J. M. BRADLET.

THE GOOSE THAT LAID THE GOLDEN EGG.

Philadelphia, February 10, 1909.

The exhibitors can be compared to the goose of fabled lore. They have certainly laid plenty of golden eggs and will lay many more in the future; but, unlike the old story, this goose (the exhibitor) is not dead, but his faith, his confidence is dead and he will proceed to look after his own interests. Philadelphia has in one year a perfect organization, and on February 16 next will celebrate the first anniversary ball. This happens to be Election night in Philadelphia. Sixty-five thousand tickets have been distributed and one hundred slides have flashed simultaneously on as many screens; one of the biggest halls in the city with a capacity of three thousand has been engaged, and it is looked forward to break all records of a similar kind. This is, however, the smallest thing we have done. We have now in the course of incorporation a company to be known as The Exhibitors' Film Manufacturing Company. The stock has not been offered publicly as yet; but in the infancy of its conception, I might say enough stock has been assured to give a bright outlook to the future. More anon. W. M. HAMILTON.

THE MOVING PICTURE IN AUSTRALIA.

Editor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—The New South Wales makers of moving picture films are up in arms at the action of the Federal Government giving to Messrs. Pathe Freres, of Paris, a contract for the making of moving picture films of the various parts of the Commonwealth, to be sold at a very low rate to moving picture entertainers, to advertise the resources of this side of the world. This contract runs into about £2,500, and to put into the coin of the United States, roughly speaking, $12,500, and I do not blame them for it, either. The policy of the Government is protection, and here we have several concerns who are making films of moving picture events.

Mr. C. Spencer of the Lyceum Theater has gone to the most lavish of expenditure to fit up a moving picture factory, and has placed the whole of the work under the entire charge of Mr. Earnest H. Higgins, of Hobart, Tasmania, who had his first experience with moving pictures with the writer. Mr. Higgins has kept at the work since then, and has become not only an expert operator, but handles the camera to the manner born. It is he who was the official photographer at the great Burns-Johnson fight.

Mr. Spencer has no less than nine cameras for film work, and he has all the appliances of the most up-to-date factory, such as electric printing machines, large washing tanks, developing tanks and drying frames, reels and all that goes to make up a first-class place for the making of films. The work turned out is first-class in every respect. Mr. Spencer is prepared to furnish negative film in lots of not less than 1,000 feet.

I am sure that the sights of these great cities in the Antipodes would go well in the United States, as owing to the visit of the fleet to these waters there were mailed out from this city alone tens of thousands of books to the United States, and it would give the people of your great country

The New Kind

Independent Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one.

WE HANDLE THE FILMS OF THE FOLLOWING MAKERS:

Hepworth
Cricks & Martin
R. W. Paul
Graphic Cinematograph
Sheffield
Walter Tyler
British Colonial
Wrench
Williamson
Crescent Film Co.
Great Northern Film Co.
World Film Mfg. Co.

Eclair
International
Berliner Film Borse
Heinrich Ernemann A. G.
Fritz Gilics
Alfred Duskes
Internationale Kinematografen
Deutsche Mutoscope
Deutsche Bioscope Gesellschaft
Italian Cines
Centaur Film Co.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,
A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)
CHICAGO, ILL.

CALUMET

Call
And Let Us Minister
Extra
Treament

for your diseased film service.

We have got EIGHTEEN different brands of

"PATENT"-MEDICINE

not that kind you sometimes buy in your drugstore to great disapproval of your family physician, but

A GOOD AND RELIABLE REMEDY

put on the market by

The World's Nine Greatest Manufacturers and indorsed and used by

THOUSANDS OF HAPPY CUSTOMERS

The Calumet treatment is a careful administration of right proportions to suite each individual case.

Look for CALUMET On the Label

THE CALUMET FILM EXCHANGE
1609-1610 Masonic Temple - Chicago, Ill.

a chance to be put wise as regards this part of the world.

It is an old saying that the camera can't lie. Well, that will not hold any longer, for it makes people fly up to the sky, jump out of the water onto the most inaccessible of places, and do things that were not dreamed of in trick films. So much so, that I have heard remarks from the audience that the pictures of the Italian cavalry manoeuvring were faked pictures. Just as if they could fake a high mountain with the undergrowth and trees and the horse and rider going down the side of it at an angle of at the very least 45 degrees, and running streams in flood and all these things, but the trick film gets them every time.

Not only does Mr. Spencer make films, but there are Messrs. West's pictures here, probably the best known name in the moving picture world to-day, with no less than seven shows running in Australasia, and heaven only knows how many in Great Britain, with Mr. T. J. West at the helm to guide them all, from his London office.

Mr. West was absolutely the first to take the negative films in this part of the world, and they are in the same position as Mr. Spencer. They will make for American firms negative films at a fair price per thousand feet, but if film from all over the Commonwealth, then there is a minimum of 6,000 feet must be taken. Films will be marked and numbered and all the information given to those who wish to have it made. Messrs. West's work has no superior.

Any firm making application to me for negative film, I will furnish to them samples of the work, and they can see just the class of work produced. The terms must be bankers' draft with the order, and the minimum price 25 cents per foot. Then there is "Jerdan's Limited," who make a specialty of making moving picture films and have made films for several parties of well-known Australian novels and scenes of the old bushranging days, and of several thousand feet in length.

Messrs. Jerdan's Limited make a feature of all moving picture apparatus and films, and do a fine business: but probably the largest firm in that business are Harrington's (Limited), and Baker & Rouse Proprietary (Limited). Both are large and up-to-date photographic supply houses and have a very large clientele. They are also the agents for some of the largest film and machine makers in the world; but I am not aware that they take films; in fact, I do not think so. It is to be wondered at where the dealers in films get their films so much in advance of the people of the United States, but that they do is amply proved by watching the dates that films are shown here and with the dates they are first mentioned in the trade papers in the United States. The Edison Manufacturing Company have a branch here, but their films are seldom seen on the screens. Now and then you see one with the brand on, but there is no doubt that the Continental makers have got the pull. Lately a lot of Lubin's films are being shown in this city, and good work they are. Well, this letter has far exceeded what I had set out to write.

I would be very pleased if any of your advertisers that read these lines would send me a copy or two of their catalogues, as I am all the time asked about these so-called current savers. If they will do the work and they wish to have them tested out here, Messrs. West will take one on trial, and if it does the work as represented will pay for it, and no doubt would use several others, as they have seven regular shows going all over the Commonwealth.

If, Mr. John K. Bonine should read these lines I would be very glad to hear from him, as I have written him twice to Honolulu, and while my letters have not been returned, I have not had any word in reply to them, and it is business for him, and dollars also. With the season's greetings to all the patrons of the Moving Picture World, I will close, but before doing so I forgot to mention that Mr. McIntosh, of the Self Defense (Limited), that brought out Burns and Johnson, has refused the sum of £35,000 for the films and sole right of this fight. But as good as the offer was, they turned it down. I think had it been mine I would have ordered him up and gone alone. Bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

Gaumont's chrono-megaphone has not proved the draw on this side that it was expected to do, and while in lots of instances the pictures and songs were beautifully scynchronized, at other times they were most woefully out.

Mr. Spencer makes it one of the features of his entertainments. Harry Lauder and his songs seem to catch on here with the patrons. It has been out of the bill for some three weeks, but is to be restored this coming week.

Yours faithfully,

DR. W. H. H. LANE.

Queen Victoria Markets, Sydney, New South Wales.

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

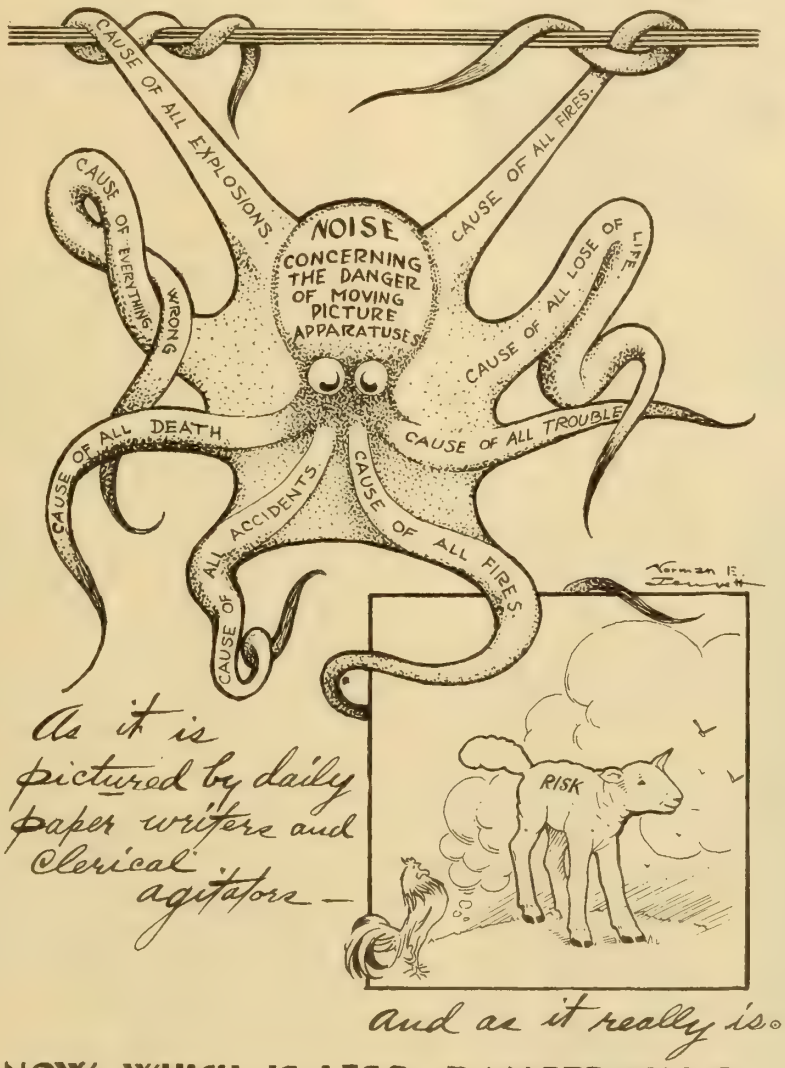
THE HINDOO DAGGER.—The name Hindoo is sure to conjure up in our minds thoughts of mysticism, fetichism, thaumaturgy and occult art, and with reason, for Hindustan is, without doubt, the birthplace of all such weird practices. Hence it is that anything coming from the Hindoos is regarded as possessed of certain phylacteric and talismanic powers, and it was not strange that Jack Windom should experience a sensation of awe at the reception of the Hindoo dagger from his old chum, Tom, who was traveling in India. Hanging the dagger on the wall, Jack goes out. For some time Jack has discerned a coolness in his wife, and his jealous misgivings were verified when he returned and found her in company with a stranger. Seizing the dagger from the wall he chased the recreant lover from the house and then follows the wife to the bathroom, wither she had flown in terror. Mercilessly he plunged the dagger and flew the place. The lover in hiding saw him leave and returns, and calling aid succeeds in reviving the wife, who afterwards with careful treatment recovers and marries her paramour. However, either from the baneful influence of this diabolical dagger, or the woman's capricious nature, just one year later the second husband enacts the same scene, but with fatal results. He leaves the place, and has hardly disappeared when the first husband, who was thought to be dead, is drawn by an irresistible power back to view what to him seems to be the scene he left one year before, for there on the bathroom floor is the woman just as he apparently left her, with the dagger beside her. The sight drives him mad and the dagger is made to perform the final act of its mission. Length, 583 feet.

THE JONESES HAVE AMATEUR THEATRICALS. Well, here we pay another visit to the Jones' domicile, with the same amusing results, for Jones cannot help being funny, and we feel sure that his obituary—not that we are in a hurry to write it—will read like "Pickings from Puck." Mr. and Mrs. J. seem to be in for a dull evening, when the amateur dramatic club is announced, and then the fun begins. Jones had never been considered even a "near-actor," but when he is selected to play the lover to Mrs. Trouble he is a brilliant success; so much so that Mrs. Jones insists upon playing the part. With this change, Jones' histronic ability deserts him, and he is a "frost." Well, things move along at a pretty rapid pace with the party, until Jones, in a jealous rage, ejects the bunch. The film is really one of the funniest of the Jones series. Length, 400 feet.

THE CURTAIN POLE.—Here is a subject that simply defies description, so fast, furious and kaleidoscopic are the comic incidents presented to the spectator. It is a veritable seething, whirling cataclysm of comedy; positively the most daring ever attempted. So audacious were the many stunts performed that the producing director was arrested by a well-meaning but over-zealous policeman for what he considered endangering human lives, and there is no doubt that the film will induce screams of laughter from start to finish wherever presented. Furthermore, it will arouse renewed interest at every reviewing, for, like a three-ring circus, so many things occur that it is simply impossible to catch them all at first sitting. This may seem "tall talk," but it is merited, for in its entire length there is not an expletive foot of film; it is all "meat." We shall not attempt to describe the subject, but will endeavor to give you an outline of the story. At the Edwards' home there is to be a house party, and unfortunately Mr. E. has an attack of gout which incapacitates him so as to throw the burden of the arrangements on the women folks. Everything is in readiness when the guests begin to arrive except the hanging of a pair of portiers, which Monsieur Du Pont, an ingratiating Frenchman, insists upon doing. In the attempt the chair slips and he falls, breaking the pole. He, of course, insists upon procuring a new pole, but Edwards tries to persuade him not to, but he says: "Oui! Oui! I bring you ze one grand pole, if I have to get ze North Pole." Away he goes, and is but a short distance when he meets a friend, who invites him to sip a couple of absinthe frappes, after which he is more intensely charged with the phlogistic determination to get that pole. Arriving at the store, a pole is selected, but not remembering the width of the door, he takes the whole length, 18 or 20 feet. Back he starts -Gee, Whiz! the limit! The absinthe vapors arising to his brain make him a bit wobbley, and the pole in his hands becomes an instrument of destruction. After a series of indescribable incidents he enlists the services of a cab, the driver of which is extremely boozy. Away goes this Pegasus, driven by a crapulous Eos, with a wild, vertiginous Frenchman as fare, holding the devastating pole across his lap with 8 feet protruding from each side, mowing down everything within its reach—lampposts, fruit stands, market stalls, carriages, etc., all fall, until at last the home of Edwards is reached, where in the meantime a pole has been placed in

The Real Octopus that has Tried to Throttle the Moving Picture Business.

Reproduced by Permission From Pathe Freres' Weekly Bulletin.



CAUSE OF ALL EXPLOSIONS
CAUSE OF ALL FIRES.
CAUSE OF EVERYTHING WRONG
NOISE CONCERNING THE DANGER OF MOVING PICTURE APPARATUSES
CAUSE OF ALL LOSE OF LIFE
CAUSE OF ALL DEATH
CAUSE OF ALL TROUBLE
CAUSE OF ALL ACCIDENTS
CAUSE OF ALL FIRES
RISK
As it is pictured by daily paper writers and clerical agitators—and as it really is.

NOW, WHICH IS LESS DANGEROUS?

America's Leading Film Exchange

Would Like to Show You What Constitutes

A GOOD FILM SERVICE

We Get Every Subject of the World's leading Film Manufacturers, which includes the following:

Edison Mfg. Co., Selig Polyscope Co., Essanay Mfg. Co., S. Lubin, Vitagraph Co., Biograph Co., Kalem Co., Urban-Eclipse, Gaumont, Pathe Freres

The output of the above manufacturers is licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and presents a variety of subjects necessary to the greatest success.

Exhibitors desiring information regarding the license arrangement of the Motion Picture Patents Company, or other details pertaining to our Film Service are invited to adddress us

We handle all licensed Motion Picture Machines and a complete line of Supplies.

Give us particulars regarding your Theatre and requirements by mail, wire, or personal call, and let us submit you figures.

THEATRE FILM SERVICE CO.
(Licensees of Motion Picture Patents Co.)
85 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE: 1038 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

Do You Suppose

that a Film Exchange offering a service costing 50 per cent. more than you are supposed to pay can exist on this plan.

No, the Exchange must get to you in some way, and it won't be by collar buttons, either

But on Film Service and right here's where we have always maintained our STANDARD and are now the The First High-grade

Film Exchange in Chicago

BUT our price, while not the Highest, the QUALITY of our service IS.

WE HAVE an original system which only years of practical expeirence could perfect. Let have have your order and give you the benefit of it.

THE ADVANTAGES that have won our customers confidence for years might reasonably invite your preference. You are sure to get what you want here.

Do it now, tomorrow may never come.

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

59 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

OFFICES AT

Argyle Building, KANSAS CITY, MO.

Eccles Building, OGDEN, UTAH

position and the Frenchman forgotten. He is a wreck, as is easy with the pole, and no one pays the slightest attention to him, which makes him furious. "Sacrebleu" Zis is ze ingratitude!" And in a rage he bites the pole in two. Length, 765 feet.

HIS WARD'S LOVE.—A beautiful romance, showing the consecrations unselfishness of a minister to wards his ward. The Rev. Mr. Howson deeply loves his young ward a pretty girl of eighteen, but as she is loved by Gerald Winthrop, a promising young man of the village, he sacrifices his own love for what he fancies the girl's good, and even intercedes for Gerald. Gerald, while considered a dear friend by the ward, is not acceptable to her as a lover, for her heart is given to the minister. Devotedly they have loved one another unknown to each other until this episode brings it out. The subject is a beautiful one and photographically perfect. Length, 235 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

M P WORLD SATURDAY —RUSH! ! ! !

BRING ME SOME ICE.—The above title readily suggests to an customers that this film is purely a comedy concert. The story briefly told is as follows: A housewife, while freezing cream, discovers she needs more ice. Calling her son, she sends him in search of the necessary article. The boy finds an iceman, secures his purchase and starts homeward by the longest route he can find. His many adventures are graphically depicted, each one being funnier than the previous one, and every one should command screams of laughter. Starting with a huge piece of ice, each time he is delayed the ice dwindles in size, until, upon arriving home, he presents his mother with a piece discernible to the naked eye. His enraged parent bestows upon him a deserved thrashing.

TAG DAY.—The custom of young women "tagging" men on the public screets (on a day specially set aside and called "Tag Day") to secure funds for various charitable purposes, offers many opportunities for excellent humor, and the fact that other manufacturers have not seen the wonderful possibilities of this subject is proven by our motto, "We lead, others follow."

This subject should call for one continuous burst of mirth from the opening scene until the finish. A matron is seen handing tags to a bevy of beautiful young ladies and they depart in search of spoils. A tramp, after witnessing the wonderful ease with which the girls entrap their victims, decides to become one of the bunch. First he discovers where the matron keeps the tags and steals all in sight. Next he appropriates some ladies' garments from a convenient clothes line and a wig from the show case of a costumer, and efficiently disguises himself as a grotesque old lady. He has many very funny adventures, securing much change. The girls and matrons discover the tags missing, start a search for the culprit and find the supposed old lady just releasing a victim. Suspecting something wrong, the ladies chase the tramp, who in his flight upsets a policeman asleep at his post. The police join in pursuit. The tramp gains a wide lead, dodges behind a hedge, disrobes and appears in his proper person just as the police appear. He throws them off the scent and remains in possession of his ill-gotten gains.

GAUMONT.

GEORGE KLEINE.

A STRONG DRAUGHT.—This is a comedy of exceptional merit and certain to result in wholesome amusement. In a comfortable home the draughts of the open hearth fail to operate properly and the chimney sweeps are soon at work removing the obstructions. This causes such a strong draught that furniture of every description is drawn up through the chimney. The latter resembles a veritable volcano and its eruptions, animate and inanimate, roll down from the roof into one enormous mass of wreckage. Length, 380 feet.

GRANDFATHER.—A dramatic presentation. The family goes out for a day's outing leaving Grandfather, a paralytic, in charge of an attendant. The latter, however, is unfaithful to his trust and conspires to rob the house in the absence of his employers. After the spoils are divided the servant permits himself to be tied to remove all suspicion against him. The daughter, a girl of twelve, returns to the home and perceives the men in the act of dividing the spoils, bides her time until the servant is securely bound and his confederate departed when she gives the alarm and causes the arrest of the guilty culprit. Length, 614 feet.

THE CHINAMEN.—Two celestials visit Paris and proceed to get into trouble. Their endeavor is crowned with unqualified success and the series of views furnish one continuous round of laughter, with their queues tied together they go pellmell over the streets upsetting pedestrians, cyclists, news stands, etc. An angry mob is soon in pursuit. Finally they are caught up by a derrick, but supported only by their hair they drop to the ground and rush off to the depot to return to their dear old Pekin. Length, 387 feet.

BERNARD PALISSY.—An artistically colored film telling in a series of exquisitely beautiful views the fondest hopes of Bernard Palissy (1510-1589), the inventor of ceramic arts. This artist, devoting his entire life to his work, was, as is customary with most men of genius, very poor, but his faith in ultimate success was so strong that he sacrificed his furniture as fuel to sustain the fires of his furnace in plying his experiments. Length, 444 feet.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

GEORGE KLEINE.

OUTWITTED. The surveillance of the police in a foreign city is so strenuous that it furnishes the basis of a series of very amusing incidents and winds up with a tableau of the canet officer's wife behind the bars, to the extreme delight of the officer and his lieutenant. Length, 463 feet.

THE AMERICAN FLEET AT SYDNEY, NEW SOUTH WALES. A superb series of international importance, reproducing the scenes of reception accorded by the New South Wales authorities on the occasion of the recent visit of the Pacific fleet to Sydney. Steaming at full speed, the battleships present a grand spectacle as in choppy weather and with wonderful smoke and marine effects the mighty vessels rush in line past the cameras stationed on a local steamer in a most favorable position for the purpose. The subsequent reception of the United States Naval authorities at Sydney is reproduced in pictures of a photographic quality seldom excelled, and the scenes presented are most impressive and historic.

Order of Pictures. The fleet steams past the camera in line of cruisers, battleships, torpedo boats and destroyers. A wonderful and majestic spectacle. Close view of a warship under full steam a remarkable and thrilling picture. State reception at Sydney of Admiral Sperry and the officers of the fleet. Procession with mounted escort through the roads from the harbor to the city. Inspection of the staff of the Guard of Honor. The guests and the Reception Committee march past the camera—a portrait group of celebrities. Length, 190 feet.

THE HAND OF A WIZARD.—The present subject is one of magic pure and simple; extremely humorous often, but always of the mysteriously clever order which results from dexterous manipulation and optical illusion. While these illusions and delusions are always most effective and beautiful, the hands of the wizard only are used to produce them.

Order of pictures.—The curtain rolls up, and an ordinary pair of gloves appear upon the screen. The hands of the wizard mysteriously fill the gloves, after which the hands cast their covering and the gloves, detached, fall to the ground.

One of the hands is next occupied with a golf ball, which appears from space, disappears as mysteriously, and changes into a handkerchief.

This is manipulated by the fingers, until it takes form and substance of an egg; then into two, three and four eggs of perfect size and appearance, which are securely held between the fingers of the one hand. After which they are enclosed in an ordinary gas-lamp chimney.

M P WORLD—Eight

The eggs now vanish in smoke and reappear, upon which they are crushed in the hand and the pieces of shell are scattered.

The broken fragments gradually rise from the ground and an egg is again re-formed.

Again broken in half, a perfect chick is evolved, which gazes with mild astonishment at its first audience, takes a few mild pokes, and is then enclosed within its shell, which resumes its original shape. A charming picture.

The chick apparently pecks holes through the enclosing shell, and from a single egg a set of dice is formed. These perform without human aid, arranging and rearranging themselves in sequence.

The dice lose their distinctive markings, and on the face of each appears an animated human face in miniature.

The hand of the wizard itself accomplishes the next illusion. The fingers and thumb separate themselves one by one from the hand, and each digit, standing up, is converted into a performing Pierrot. A lively entertainment ending in a whirling dance.

These fingers now become absorbed into a small table aquarium, which being inverted, is emptied of a bouquet of autumnal leaves.

The leaves are again crammed into a vase, and are changed into gold fish, from which are evolved a lovely mermaid.

Another evolution, and vase, mermaid and fishes give place to a beautiful feminine face, which gradually vanishes from the screen. Length, 374 feet.

S. LUBIN.

THE SILVER DOLLAR.—A tramp finds a dollar. He at once invests the money in Welsh rarebit, after which he takes a well-earned rest. But the Welsh rarebit causes bad dreams. He sees the silver dollar coming out of his pocket. It is growing and growing until it is big enough to run, and run it does. The tramp in pursuit. The silver dollar has many narrow escapes: so has the tramp. The dollar, however, is quicker than the tramp and speedily rolls on. The tramp would surely have caught the dollar had not a cart of ashes been dumped at him, which interrupted his dreamy slumber. Length, 475 feet.

THE UNLUCKY HORSESHOE.—There is a runaway. A young man is thrown out of the buggy while the horse lost a shoe. Prof. Thriller, who is passing this way, finds the horseshoe, which proves very unlucky to him. He first falls into an open cellar door and lands on the coal heap. Speaking with a friend, a wall collapses and nearly kills him. He brings the horseshoe to his home. The steampipe explodes, the kitchen gets wrecked and even over the chicken coop the horseshoe proves a Jonah, as a colored man steals the chickens. When the folding bed closes up on the professor he throws the horseshoe out of the window, but hits a passerby. He concludes he has had enough bad luck and carries the horseshoe back to the place where he found it. Length, 460 feet.

A BROKEN HEART.—Engaged.—There is happiness in the house as Madeline and Frank become engaged. Friends come and go; they have a busy time.

THE NEW MIRROR.—The young husband is leaving home. A suspicious looking character watches him, and then sneaks around the house.

A Surprise for Wifey. The young husband passes a furniture store. Remembering his wife's wish for a new mirror he enters the furniture store and purchases a bureau with a large mirror. The bureau is delivered at once. While the wife is at the door to receive the bureau the thief is entering the bedroom window. Hearing the man approach he steps behind the curtain. The new bureau is brought into the bedroom. The young wife is delighted. She fixes her hair, but, behold! she sees through the glass the thief crawling from behind the curtains under the bed. She acts as if nothing happened, closes the window, then goes down stairs and there telephones to the police station.

In a Trap.—The Police Lieutenant at once sends three policemen to the house. One goes to the rear of the house, two enter through the front door. The thief had all the silverware packed up and was just going to leave, when suddenly the policemen come upon him. He breaks through, however, and, jumping out of the window, makes leaves the house.

A Hot Pursuit.—The policemen follow in hot pursuit. At last the thief is captured and meets with the deserved punishment. Length, 480 feet.

LOVE GERMS.—The Discovery. Prof. Smarty is working in his laboratory. Suddenly he jumps up. He made a great discovery. He found a love germ.

The Young Assistant.—The professor immediately calls his assistants and explains to them the possibilities of his great discovery. The young assistant wishing to prove the professor's theory, secretly takes the bottle containing the love germs and leaves the house.

Wonderful Results.—The young assistant tries the love germs on young and old with the most astonishing results. He suffers himself, however, when the bottle breaks and he inhales all the love germs. Length, 460 feet.

A SUIT CASE.—Will He Suit. A young man in his room reading a book, "The Way to Become a Great Detective." He is very anxious to become a second Sherlock Holmes. While reading the newspaper he notices an advertisement, "Detective wanted." He at once calls at the police station, where, after some formalities, he is engaged as a detective. He is given a case at once to arrest a man who wears black clothes and a black derby hat.

The First Suit.—The amateur detective sees a man whom he suspects as being the one who he is sent to capture. He is soon convinced, however, that he was mistaken.

The Wrong Suit. He holds up another man at pistol's point. The man proves his innocence and gives the amateur detective a good thrashing.

Uncle Sam's Suit. Now the amateur detective holds up an officer of the navy. He finds, however, that this, too, is the wrong suit.

Some Soot.—The amateur detective now follows a colored man to his home. In his endeavor to examine the contents of a parcel which the colored man carries he upsets the stove and he is covered full of soot.

A Suit for Damages. The amateur detective is reporting to his superior officer. While he is talking all the victims whom he has held up come rushing in and threaten a suit for damages.

A Damage Suit. The amateur detective is handled very roughly by his victims, and at last thrown out of the police station.

This Suits Me.—While the police are busy with the amateur detective a sneak thief goes through a department store, taking everything he can lay his hands on.

A Striped Suit. The sneak thief has been caught and is now dressed in a striped suit. Length, 615 feet.

WHO STOLE JONES' WOOD?—Jones had a nice little woodpile ready for the cold weather. Mike, his neighbor, steals the wood in the night time. Jones is bound to find out where his wood went. He points a gun toward the door, puts a string on the doorknob and lies down to await developments. He falls asleep, however.

As soon as Mike sees his neighbor asleep he jumps over the fence and hands the wood to his wife. He then turns the gun toward Jones, the door opens and Jones is rudely awakened from his sweet dreams.

Jones tries again. He fills an empty log with gunpowder and puts this log on top of the woodpile. Night time. Mike comes for a new supply. Unfortunately he takes hold of the powder-filled log. There is an explosion and the guilty one and his wife are thrown into Jones' yard. Length, 270 feet.

PATHE FRERES.

LES RICOCHETS. All records made by motor boats up to the present time have been eclipsed by Mr. Le Las in his Ricochet Antoinette (hydroplane type). Instead of the boat being made with a hulk that cuts through the water, it is flat bottomed, which makes it capable of gliding over the surface of the water at a tremendous speed. In a test trip on the Seine, between the Neuilly and Asnieres bridges, the speed attained by Mr. Le Las was about 34 knots an hour. In this picture we get a good close-range view of this wonderful little craft. Length, 246 feet.

WOMEN CHAUFFEURS.—Paris has the unique distinction of possessing women cabbies; the scheme of making them chauffeurs (or, more properly, "chauffeuses") meets with rather disastrous results, as is shown in this extremely funny picture. Business is bad and one of the female cabbies reads an "ad" in the newspaper calling for women chauffeurs, so she goes to the garage and gets the job. Getting into the auto, she starts out and makes for the railway station, where there is a good opportunity to do a record business. Her first passengers load into the machine and, after giving directions to the lady in charge, she starts down the street. It is easily seen that she lacks experience in manipulating the steering gear, for she misses nothing along the thoroughfare. Her first victim is a fellow with a push cart, next the machine tears through a market place upsetting everything in its track. Going along at a swift clip with the mob closely following, it bumps into a carriage, completely demolishing it, but keeps right on going and knocks over a lamp post, then rushes through a street where there is a large scaffold in front of a building which is in course of construction. It takes the scaffold supporters along with it, throwing the whole thing in a heap on the heads of the crowd. Finally something goes wrong with the machine and it comes to a sudden stop, giving the mob an opportunity to catch up, and when they finish with the lady chauffeur, she is glad to resign her strenuous job and return to the quiet task of driving a slow cab horse. Length, 311 feet.

CHARLOTTE CORDAY.—The scene of this beautifully colored film is laid in that period of the French Revolution, showing the tragic ending of Charlotte Corday, who, through her iron nerve, planned to rid France of Marat, one of the leaders of the revolution, because he represents in her mind the party responsible for so many crimes.

Charlotte Corday was born in Normandy of noble parentage, and was a girl of striking beauty and a powerful personality. Being highly educated, she made a close study of current politics, and was in sympathy with a party known as the Girondins, whose power was overthrown. While living at Caen she met and talked over conditions with Barbaroux, a leader of the party, and, through him, she learned that Marat was an enemy to France, so takes it upon herself to avenge the death of many who were being sent to the guillotine every day.

She comes to Paris, where she writes to Marat, begging him to grant her an audience, and stating that she has important information to reveal, but he would not see her. Finally she goes to his home, and when she is refused admittance, forces her way in and presents herself to Marat, who is seated in a bathtub. She tells him the names of the men at Caen who are affiliated with the Girondist party, and as he eagerly writes them down, mentioning that they will die on the guillotine, she plunges a knife into his heart, killing him instantly.

The servants and police rush in and drag her to jail through the clamoring mob who are eager to strike her down. Taken then to the tribunal of justice, she makes a confession of her guilt and is condemned to die. Listening to her doom with cold indifference, she is then taken back to prison, and we next see her on her way to the guillotine, followed by a mob which howls with fury as the beautiful girl bravely mounts the steps and stands erect, her face pale, her eyes steady, facing death like a soldier. Laying her beautiful head on the block, in an instant all is over with Charlotte Corday. Length, 787 feet.

BESS AND HER GOOSE.—Bess is an unsophisticated country girl, and her kind parents send her to the city with a goose to be delivered to a friend. They give her the address of the party and she starts out, after receiving her usual lecture to be good and careful. Arriving in the large city, she asks a man to direct her to the given address, and he, not knowing much more about the place than herself, sends her in the wrong direction. She strolls around the crowded thoroughfares trying to find her way and inquiring of every one who will take time to listen, but it seems as though the poor

PRINTING FOR THE
Earthquake in Italy
HENNEGAN & CO.
127 EAST 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

Great Bargains
Motion Picture Machines, Films, Stereopticons Slides, Supplies, etc. Passion Play $100, Colored $200. Send for Supplement 27 No. 4.
HARBACH & COMPANY
809 Filbert Street - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CALEHUFF
A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION
Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.
LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set
N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Kalem Films
Sporting Days in the South
and
THE MAKING OF A

CHAMPION PUGILIST
Two Subjects on One Reel
LENGTH 940 FEET
This is something a little out of our line but we believe it will be a big winner on account of the tremendous interest in Jack Johnson, the new Champion of the World. Beautiful in photography and very lively and amusing in action.
Send for our Free Lectures
KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500 OPERA CHAIRS IN STOCK

If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received,

Ask for Catalog No. 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

No. 44 North 10th Street. Philadelphia, Pa.

FOR RENT 6000 ft. film, 3 sets song slides, 6 at a time, $12.00 weekly.

FOR SALE 3300 ft. Pathes hand colored Passion Play, $75. 1000 ft reels film, released since April, $10 per reel. Lubin machine, $40; Edison Ex. Model, $60; Powers, $75. Will buy film and machines.

H. DAVIS - Watertown, Wis.

Money for you. In towns without electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

Do NOT put on the
PASSION PLAY
Without Music and Lecture

If you are too far away from New York or Philadelphia to engage the services of the first and foremost lecturer on Moving Pictures in general and the Passion Play in particular,

W. STEPHEN BUSH

get his lecture in print. Complete lecture on every scene with valuable suggestions as to music and interesting introductory.

This copyrighted lecture running exactly with the pictures and giving full explanation and commentary on every scene sent postpaid to any address in U. S. or Canada on receipt of one dollar. Address

W. Stephen Bush, 155 N. Conestoga St., Phila., Pa.

May be reached at any time by phone in residence, Belmont 4484.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—I have prepared special lectures with suggestions as to music and effects for every feature film turned out by the Edison licensees. The list comprises over a hundred subjects and includes the very latest feature films. Price per lecture, 25c.

Army Auction Bargains

Tents - $1.90 up | Old Pistols - - $ 50
Shoes - 1.25 " | Officers' Swords, new 1.75 "
ARMY SADDLES 6.00 " | Cavalry Sabres - - 1.50 "
" Bridles - 1.00 " | UNIFORMS 1.25 up
" Leggins pr. 1.50 " | 7 Shot Carbine 3.50

U. S. SPRINGFIELD B-L RIFLES $1.79

Blank or Ball Cartridge, 35 cents box of 20.

1907 MILITARY CATALOGUE 260 large pages, thousands of beautiful illustrations—with 1200 supplement wholesale and retail prices. Mailed for 15 cents (stamps)
15 ACRES GOVT. AUCTION GOODS.

FRANCIS BANNERMAN, 501 Broadway, NEW YORK

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.

Wholesale and Retail
Stereopticon and Lantern Slides

56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

girl will never reach her destination. Her troubles come fast and furious, for the goose manages to escape and leads her a good chase before she captures it again. Finally she climbs on a tram car, and while she is talking to a fellow passenger a man takes the goose out of the basket and sets it free again, but Bess is soon on its track and recaptures it. She stops again to talk to some people and a mischievous boy puts the goose in a cab, which drives away, leaving her to follow on. At the station she catches up to the cab, but the goose has escaped, and in her rage she attacks the female cabby, and is giving her a beating when the police rush up and stop the altercation, placing the poor girl under arrest. They hurry her off to the station and throw her into a cell, where she fights like a demon for her liberty, but the best she can do is make herself contented and give vent to her wounded feelings.

When she does not return home her parents, fearing for her safety in the large city, start out to find her. They inquire at the station, and are horrified upon learning that she is a prisoner charged with assaulting one of her own sex. They vouch for her good behavior in the future, so Bess is released and returns to the simple life on the farm. Length, 482 feet.

THE LAPLANDERS.—This is another of our educational and interesting pictures showing how the inhabitants of the Far North live and in which we are given a vivid idea of their customs and rather gloomy existence in such a bleak country. The first picture shows their huts made of skins, where they appear happy and contented in their squalid surroundings, where outward appearances seem to give them very little care.

We see them hunting and fishing (their chief occupations) and also see some fine specimens of reindeer, which animal is the Laplander's best friend, grazing on the mountain side under the watchful eye of their owners, who manage to keep their own herd together, all of which bear the owner's brand. Length, 462 feet.

THE BRAZILIAN'S RING.—The scenes in this interesting little drama are laid in Brazil, and depict an Indian's gratitude to one who befriended him in the hour of need. The Indian is accused by the inhabitants of the town of an offence which is punishable by death. A missionary, who takes pity upon the condemned man, unties his hands and slips him a revolver to defend himself when the time comes for action, and as a mark of his appreciation the Indian presents his benefactor with a ring. The crowd comes and leads the doomed man to the scaffold and, just as they are about to hang him, he breaks his bonds and, defending himself with the revolver, makes good his escape, returning safely to the camp, where there is great celebration in honor of his return.

This Indian, however, belongs to a nefarious band of cutthroats who are forever giving the inhabitants of the adjoining town all sorts of trouble. One day several of the band kidnap a girl and leave a note demanding a large sum of money as ransom for her safe return. When the girl's father hears the news he gets together all his money and valuables (including the ring which was given him by the Indian). The old man goes to the camp where his daughter is detained and offers the reward, but it is not enough to satisfy the demands of the savages, so they tie the girl on the back of one of their horses and set the animal free to dash her to death. In the meantime, while the Indians are looking over the trinkets they find the ring and immediately recognize it. The man whom the missionary saved therefore determines to save the girl, so they mount horses and start in pursuit. After a long chase they finally overtake her and bring her safely back to camp, where she again joins her happy father. The grateful Indian gives back the money and the ring and all ends in joy and happiness. Length, 482 feet.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

KING OF THE RING.—Jack Ashton was the athletic hero of Brookfield Academy. Jack and pretty Mary Blake, schoolmates, have found time to become sweethearts, and in our opening scene on the campus grounds Mary arrives just after Jack has been summoned before the faculty, and she then and there decides to give him a lecture for neglecting his studies.

Devoting all his time to athletic pursuits, they meet the next day on the peristyle of the college grounds, and a very pretty little love scene occurs. Mary scolds and Jack pleads, and pretty Mary, as women were ever wont to do, ends the lecture by nestling within the embrace of Jack's strong arms.

We then see our hero in his room, strenuously trying to learn lessons against the coming examination, but too late. The faculty enter and the boy is extolled too much attention to football, boxing, etc., and too little attention to the prescribed studies of this academy.

We are then introduced into Banker Ashton's study. A note from the faculty has apprised him of Jack's disgrace. The old father does not take the news philosophically, for when Jack arrives we find him in a towering rage. Jack explains the situation truthfully, but the father is unreasonable. "Out of my house; go earn your living by your muscle, since you seem to prefer it."

Three months later Jack dashes into his sweetheart's home with the glad tidings that he has been engaged as boxing instructor at the famous Olympic Club; his salary is big enough for two and they can be married soon.

We next see a busy office scene at the club. Jem McCaffrey, champion middleweight of the world, is taking his daily exercise within the club walls and all the members are highly gratified. McCaffrey enters, followed by a crowd of admirers, just as Mary calls and sends in her card to Jack. While waiting for him, she is accosted by the champion, who, attracted by her pretty face, endeavors to scrape an acquaintance. The frightened girl attempts to avoid him, but he leans forward and leers in her face. Mary sees Jack approaching, and with a cry of joy runs to him. McCaffrey runs to confront Jack. A few angry words and the champion gets the surprise of his life, for the athletic boy aims true and straight from the shoulder; his fist meets the point of McCaffrey's jaw and that doughty champion is flat on his back. With a yell of rage he leaps to his feet, but the members of the club separate the contestants and the affair blows over. Just then a messenger boy arrives with a telegram: "Am unable to meet April notes for $20,000. My business failure inevitable. Forgive my harshness and come home. Your father, Harold Ashton."

As Jack turns to leave the gymnasium he sees a placard placed on the bulletin board that morning: "An open challenge from McCaffrey to any man in the world, winner to take all. The Century Club, a rival organization, guaranteeing a purse of $25,000 for such a match."

"$25,000—why, that would save dad. See here, Mr. Carter (who is president of the Olympic Club), will you back me to fight McCaffrey?" "Will I? Do you mean it?" "I do. Put me in the ring with that man and give me a chance." "My boy, I believe you can do it; I'll back you." The president steps to the middle of the floor and announces that Jack Ashton, boxing instructor of the club, accepts the Century's offer and will fight Jem McCaffrey for the middleweight championship. We then see the articles signed and both men go into active training.

Before the first round is over McCaffrey realizes his mistake, but it's too late. McCaffrey exerts all the treacherous tricks of an old fighter, but to no avail. Jack's quickness saves him from all the traps his wily antagonist lays for him, and his strength and cleverness soon begin to show. By the end of the second round McCaffrey knows he is up against the fight of his life. He proves game enough, but those rushes presage the beginning of the end. Time after time he goes down for the count, but only to regain his feet and be again sent sprawling. This is the opening Jack was looking for—a hard uppercut to the jaw and McCaffrey's pugilistic fame is over.

The referee tolls off the fatal count ten, throws the new champion's gloved hand up to his admirers and proclaims young Jack Ashton "King of the Ring."

Jack has wired his father to meet him at ten o'clock, and in his dressing room after the fight we see the proud boy present his father with the certified check.

"Gentlemen, I entered the ring to save my father's honor, and it will be my first and last fight. I hope the Olympic Club will always have the 'King of the Ring' and the belt." Length, 1,000 feet.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

JESSIE, THE STOLEN CHILD.—A gypsy caravan passes slowly along the country road. Hugo, on the front seat, drives lazily; Bill, his companion, sits on the back of the wagon smoking, while Liza, another member of the tribe, walks behind. They come to the farm house of Mr. Graham, where Jessie, his little daughter of 5 years, is playing in the yard. Bill and Liza approach the house and ask for food and money, which is refused by Mrs. Graham. Her husband comes from behind the house at this moment and gruffly orders the gypsies away. They walk off sullenly and a few moments later return and kidnap the little child. The mother soon misses Jessie, suspects the gypsies and Mr. Graham and several neighbors start in pursuit. The gypsies observe the pursuing party. The child is bound and gagged and secreted in a hollow tree, and when the party reaches the camp no trace of the missing child can be found and they return sadly home. Ten years later we find the same tribe encamped on the bank of a river. Jessie, by this time, has grown to a beautiful young lady. She is sewing as Joe, a young gypsy of her own age, comes along and speaks to her. Bill watches the couple jealously. Liza is in love with Bill, and, when she observes his infatuation for Jessie, shakes her fist in jealous rage. Jessie dances, while Joe accompanies her on his guitar, and, when she finishes, Bill grasps her around the waist and kisses her. The young man drops his instrument, knocks Bill down and chokes him into silence. Liza motions the young people to get away, which they do, and a little distance up the road, she joins them, and from a bundle which she carries in her arm takes out some child's clothes—the ones worn by Jessie when she was stolen from home. The story of the abduction is told. Liza directs the girl to her parents, then returns to camp. Bill, by this time, has regained his senses and is sitting near the fire smoking and in a very bad humor. He inquires of Liza as to the whereabouts of the young girl, and, receiving no satisfaction, starts out to hunt the fugitives. As he mounts his horse, Liza knocks him off and mounts herself, and is off after the pair. She comes up with them after a while, and the journey home is at last finished. Graham and his wife, with a farmhand, are seated in the doorway as the gypsies appear. Liza goes forward and talks to Mr. Graham, who at first refuses to believe her story. She brings Jessie forward and produces the clothes worn by the child when stolen. This is sufficient proof, and Jessie is soon in fond embrace of mother and father. They lead her into the house, Joe following. Liza stands aloof watching them, then slowly and sadly walks away.

AN IRISH HERO.—Scene 1. News from Over the Sea.—Outside the cottage of Artie O'Neill, Claire, sister of Robert Folloit, a Fenian prisoner, is churning as Father Nolan appears. He takes a newspaper from his pocket and from it reads an article citing the escape of Robert from the Penal prison at Melbourne. They are surprised and delighted, and still more so when Moya, a young girl in love with Conn Kelley, enters with a letter from Robert to Artie verifying his escape.

THE TREASURE; Or, The House Next Door.—Mr. and Mrs. Jones, a middle-aged couple, are sitting in their dining room when water is seen trickling down the walls; a large piece of plaster falls immediately afterwards. They are disgusted and determined to seek other apartments. Jones resumes reading, when the following notice meets his gaze: "Fine city house, furnished; for sale or rent. A hidden treasure is known to be in the house, but the clue to its whereabouts is unknown." Thoroughly excited, the pair leave their flat to look over the rooms. They reach the house, are shown about by the caretaker, agree upon the terms, etc., and Jones gives his check in payment. Two days later they are comfortably settled and we find the new tenants examining every imaginable place in search of the treasure. Chairs are broken, carpets pulled up with no success and finally two old-fashioned chairs from the parlor are brought in. As Jones sits down in one it collapses, spilling him on the floor. As he gets to his feet he spies a slip of paper, which proves to be the plan of silver plate stored in the panels of the house. Jones grabs a pickaxe and crowbar and rushes from the room, followed by his wife. The print is laid out. Jones begins measuring off, then starts to dig for the silverware.

In the dining room of the house next door an elderly couple are taking dinner. Suddenly they hear knocks against the wall, then the plaster falls in. The butler excitedly phones for the police, the old gentleman tries to pacify his wife and takes a pistol from the drawer, ready to protect himself and his property. By this time Jones is well through the wall. The police finally arrive and take in the situation: at least, they think they do, and hide behind the furniture. Jones and his wife come through the hole in the wall, spy the silverware on the sideboard and are highly elated at having their efforts rewarded. Jones picks up a piece of silverware, hands it to his wife and is preparing to take the rest when the sergeant grabs him. Jones is greatly excited and starts to fight. Other officers appear and overpower the intruder, the lights are turned up and Jones, realizing his position, explains to the best of his ability and pays the damage. Length, 464 feet.

TAKING A CHANCE

Is generally

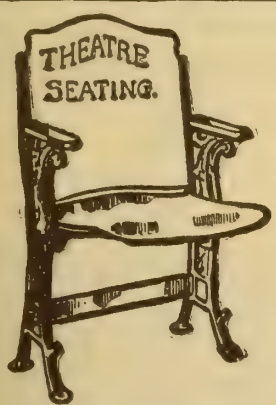
1st—Hazardous
2d—Unprofitable
3d—Unbusinesslike
4th—Unfair

Eliminate the hazard—insure your profit—be businesslike—and be fair to us.

By arranging to receive film service from a firm with an unblemished eleven year record in the Moving Picture field you are not "Taking a Chance."

Our prices are interesting—write us.

GEO. K. SPOOR CO.
(INCORPORATED)
62 North Clark St., CHICAGO, ILL.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company
90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.
70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

FOR SALE
Electric Light Plant for M. P. Show
Direct Current, 110 volts, nearly new. Will sell dynamo separately or outfit complete. A bargain
Address, P. O, Box 13, Rockford, O.

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!
FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!
Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material
COMPLETE, $175.00
VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

NEXT
Sand A
FILM ISSUE
ORDER QUICK
OUR Comedy Subjects
"TAG DAY"
(Lgth. Approx. 560 Ft.)
"BRING ME SOME ICE"
(Lgth. Approx. 350 Ft.)
READY
Wednesday, Feb. 17th

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE
Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.
Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
Boston Office, 224 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

Singer and Pianist—Good Team, 2 People. 5 years experience. GEO. A. PURRIN, 182 Rockaway Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A table d'hote dinner usually satisfies, our Song Slide Service always does

Over 200 song hits that are not hackneyed, artistically illustrated

New York Successes at your service weekly

Old time favorites for those who desire them

RENTAL, 50c PER SET WEEKLY

Announcement Slides Up-to-date
When in doubt try them

SYKO SLIDE CO.

Room 505, Cronin Building, Troy, N. Y.

WRITE TO-DAY

LECTURETTES

We are now producing

Four New Sets a Week

Of TWELVE SLIDES EACH WITH LECTURE which we will SUPPLY the trade at the low figure of

$1.50 per set

SETS NOW READY:

OUR NAVY
LIFE OF LINCOLN
LIFE OF WASHINGTON
LONDON. More Next Week

EXTRA

Slides of George Washington

$1.00 per dozen

GUNBY BROS.,

10 East Fourteenth Street New York

P. S.—Send Money Order. Credit impossible at these prices.

NEW TITLES MADE

50 CENTS EACH

Shipped 24 hours after receipt of order

CENTAUR FILM MFG. CO., - 900 Broadway, Bayonne, N. J.
Chicago Office, Room 810, 79 Dearborn Street

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

EXPERIENCED OPERATORS.

Chas. Rousher, 2219 S. Opal street, Philadelphia, Pa.; experienced operator.

M. V. Page, Box 658, Tecumseh, Mich. Six years' experience in handling film; will work in film exchange or operate machine. Married and steady. Reference.

Wm. H. Mallon, Bijou Theater, Easthampton, Mass.; experienced operator and manager and lecturer.

F. K. Evans, Oneonta Theater, Oneonta, N. Y.; first-class operator and electrician; age 30.

W. J. Gibbons, 15 West 51st street, Bayonne, N. J. Operator or manager. Best references, nine years in the business.

J. W. Delk, Leon, Ia. Experienced operator. Steady; have also acted as manager.

Wm. A. Clement, 939 North 7th street, Harrisburg, Pa. Experienced operator. Can put on the right kind of picture.

Clarence Howe, 39 Clay street, Pawtucket, R. I. Experienced operator. Rhode Island or Connecticut preferred.

William McCreary, 2515 Ninth avenue, Beaver Falls, Pa. Experienced operator.

Mr. E. Cook, 324 Fifteenth street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Bernard Cook, 439 Second street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

R. C. Geissler, 78 Woodcliff street, Roxbury, Boston, Mass.

Manager. Ten years' experience in motion picture and vaudeville theaters. Good references. A. C. Blythe, 1051 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

R. J. Keefer, Colfax, Ia. Experienced manager, also lecturer and effects producer. Can put any house on a paying basis by producing the right kind of a show. Am sober and reliable.

Bernard Corbett, 67 Walnut street, Norwood, Mass. Experienced operator. (Massachusetts licensed.) References. Capable of managing house if desired.

L. Darier, 109 West Fifty-fourth street, care of Y. M. C. A. French branch, electrician and licensed operator. 2 years' experience. Power or Edison machine.

Edw. Latell, 1396 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Experienced licensed operator or manager.

STILL IN THE RING

We are still Independent and are going to be. We intend to own and have some small say how we will run our own business.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

Liberty Film Exchange

Telephone Walnut 3956

1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.

Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs

JUST OUT

Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

NOTICE.—All advertising matter should reach us not later than Wednesday morning for insertion in the current issue.

FOR SALE

Moving Picture Theatre, cheap rent, doing good business. Partner wishes to sell don't answer if you have not a thousand dollars.
SMITH & COONEY - Cohoes, N. Y.

INDEPENDENT FILMS

PROMPT SERVICE ANYWHERE
"ONE OF THE OLDEST".
PURDY'S FILM EXCHANGE
300 East 23d Street - - NEW YORK
Long Distance Phone, 1512 Gram.

OELSCHLAEGER BROS.

110 East 23d Street, New York

Importers of OPTICAL GOODS

Condensing Lenses
Objectives for Projection Lanterns
Tubes & Jackets for Moving Picture Machines.

Supplied to the Trade Only. Write for prices

ROLL TICKETS

Every Roll Guaranteed to be Numbered Correctly

YOUR SPECIAL TICKET PRINTED BOTH SIDES

50,000, $6.50 — 500,000, $35.00
100,000, 10.00 — STOCK TICKETS, SIX CENTS

CASH WITH ORDER THE CARTER PRESS PEABODY, MASS.

LOOK LOOK LOOK

MR. FILM EXCHANGE

Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving
B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Morton Film Exchange

(Incorporated)

S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.

High-Class Film Service

LICENSEES MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

Parties desiring first-class service write us

Wonderland Film Exchange

1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa.

Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company

Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.

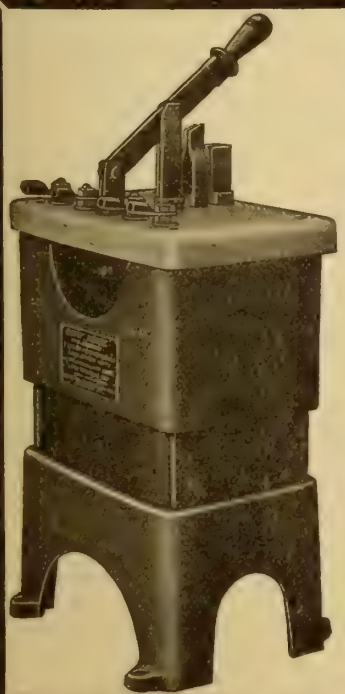
EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices

FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED



ALL THE LIGHT YOU NEED

For moving picture machine arc lamps if they are regulated with the

COMPENSARC

for Alternating Current only and you save two-thirds on your Electric Light Bills at that. The Compensarc absolutely pays for itself in less time than any other similar device on the market. We will tell you why if you write us—nothing else like it—it is in a class by itself

The Compensarc is simple, more convenient to operate and more durable than any other device—it can't wear out—nothing to go wrong.

The defects of all other devices are corrected in the Compensarc.

Ask for Booklet 25013 now. The sooner you know the Compensarc, the better it is for your business.

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS

Department A

FORT WAYNE, - INDIANA

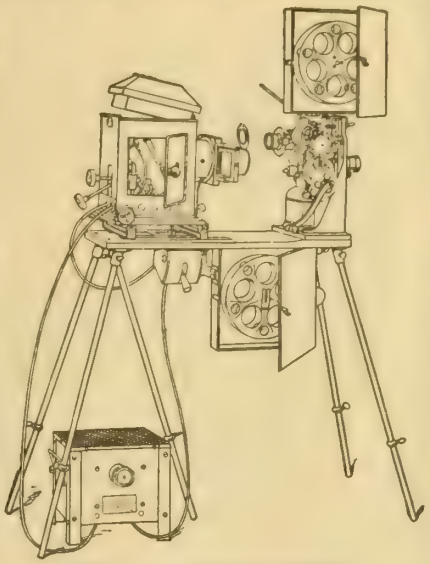
741

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

Competition is Keen in the Motion Picture Exhibition Field

The large profits secured at small expense induce many to take up this form of entertainment.

An Edison Kinetoscope puts an exhibitor in a class by himself. Its brilliant work, safety, simplicity and low operating expense give those who use it a decided advantage. If you are going into the field, start with the best equipment. If you are in it and want to keep your profits where they should be, learn about the Kinetoscope. Among Mr. Edison's many recent improvements is a



Prices from $90.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

New Style Rheostat

The coils are protected and ventilated by a heavy, perforated sheet steel casing; terminals and adjustable switch are mounted on a non-conducting slate base, protected by a sheet steel, automatic closing cover.

EDISON FILMS

are full of life and action. The subjects are well chosen and acted out before the camera by good talent. New films are issued each week, ranging from thrilling melo drama to bright and amusing comedy. The subjects are always clean, giving offense to none. Let us put you on our mailing list for weekly bulletins.

NEW SUBJECTS:
Shipment, February 9, 1909
A BACHELOR'S SUPPER
Dramatic
No. 6420 Code, VENGEFULLY
App. Length 850 feet

Shipment, February 12, 1909
THE SALESLADY'S MATINEE IDOL
Comedy
No. 6421 Code, BENGEONS
App. Length 900 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS:
Shipment, February 16, 1909
A DAUGHTER OF THE SUN
Dramatic
No. 6422 Code, VENGERESSE
App. Length 850 feet

Shipment, February 19, 1909
THE UPLIFTING OF MR. BARKER
Comedy
No. 6423 Code, VENGERIONS
App. Length 900 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.
New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 804 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:
P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO. Members Film Service Association FILMS
Repair Work a Specialty Agents for Motograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries.
564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

LATEST FILMS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY

Feb. 8—Edgar Allen Poe (Dramatic).....450 ft
Feb. 15—The Curtain Pole (Comedy).....765 ft
Feb. 15—His Ward's Love (Dramatic).....235 ft
Feb. 18—The Hindoo Dagger (Dramatic).....583 ft
Feb. 18—The Joneses Have Amateur Theatricals (C).....400 ft

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Feb. 9—A Bachelor's Supper (Dramatic).....850 ft
Feb. 12—The Saleslady's Matinee Idol (Comedy).....900 ft
Feb. 16—The Daughter of the Sun (Dramatic).....850 ft
Feb. 19—The Uplifting of Mr. Barker (Comedy).....900 ft

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Feb. 5—Adventures of an Old Flirt (Comedy).....960 ft
Feb. 3—The Musician's Love Story (Dramatic).....1000 ft
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft

FILM IMPORT AND TRADING COMPANY.

Jan. 23—Messina Disaster (Scenic).....
Feb. 6—A Pirate of Turkey (Dramatic).....
Feb. 6—Riding for Love (Dramatic).....
Feb. 6—Fatal Wedding (Dramatic).....

GAUMONT.
George Kleine.

Feb. 9—A Sportive Puppet (Gaumont).....463 ft
Feb. 13—Jones Has Bought a Phonograph (Gaumont).....296 ft
Feb. 13—The Ambassador's Despatch Case (Gaum't).....624 ft
Feb. 15-20—A Strong Draught (Gaumont).....380 ft
Feb. 15-20—Grandfather (Gaumont).....614 ft
Feb. 15-20—The Chinamen (Gaumont).....387 ft
Feb. 15-20—Bernard Palissy (Gaumont).....444 ft

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Jan. 27—Desert Life (Comedy).....380 ft
Jan. —Balloon Races (Scenic).....296 ft
Feb. 3—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Dramatic).....415 ft
Feb. 3—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft
Feb. 3—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft

KALEM COMPANY.

Jan. 29—The Octoroon (Dramatic).....
Feb. 5—The Detectives (Dramatic).....800 ft
Feb. 12—The High Diver (Dramatic).....895 ft
Feb. 19—Sporting Days in the South; or, The Making of a Champion (Dramatic).....940 ft

LUBIN.

Jan. 25—A Suit Case (Comedy).....615 ft
Jan. 25—Who Stole Jones' Wood? (Comedy).....270 ft
Jan. 28—The New Mirror (Serio-Dramatic).....480 ft
Jan. 28—Love Germs (Comedy).....460 ft
Feb. 1—Aunt Emmy's Scrap Book (Dramatic).....805 ft
Feb. 4—The Blind Musician (Dramatic).....480 ft
Feb. 4—Willie's Water Sprinkler (Comedy).....340 ft
Feb. 15—The Silver Dollar (Comedy).....475 ft
Feb. 15—The Unlucky Horseshoe (Comedy).....460 ft
Feb. 18—A Broken Heart (Dramatic).....530 ft
Feb. 18—The Pass Key (Comedy).....415 ft

PATHE FRERES.

Feb. 8—Women Chauffeurs (Comedy).....311 ft
Feb. 8—Buster's Revenge (Comedy).....344 ft
Feb. 10—Charlotte Corday (Tragic).....787 ft
Feb. 10—Adventures of a Bag of Coal (Comedy).....203 ft
Feb. 12—Boss and Her Goose (Dramatic).....482 ft
Feb. 12—The Laplanders (Educational).....462 ft
Feb. 13—The Brazilian's Ring (Dramatic).....482 ft
Feb. 13—They Lead the Cops a Chase (Comedy).....410 ft
Feb. 15—The Hand (Serio-Dramatic).....570 ft
Feb. 17—The Assassination of the Duke of Guise (Dramatic).....850 ft
Feb. 19—His First Flight (Comedy).....307 ft
Feb. 19—Choice of Weapons (Comedy).....317 ft
Feb. 19—How Mother-in-Law Got Even (Comedy).....197 ft
Feb. 20—Exacting Father-in-Law (Comedy).....42 ft
Feb. 20—Now I'm Here, I'll Stay (Comedy).....45 ft

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....950 ft
Jan. 28—The Prairie Town Romance (Dramatic).....1000 ft
Feb. 4—Stirring Days in Old Virginia (Historical).....1000 ft
Feb. 18—King of the Ring (Dramatic).....1000 ft

URBAN-ECLIPSE.
George Kleine.

Feb. 10—Following Mother's Footsteps (Urban-Eclipse).....477 ft
Feb. 15-20—Outwitted (Urban).....465 ft
Feb. 15-20—The American Fleet at Sydney, New South Wales (Urban).....195 ft
Feb. 15-20—The Hand of a Wizard (Urban).....374 ft

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 26—The Treasure (Comedy).....464 ft
Jan. 30—Cleopatra's Lover (Dramatic).....860 ft
Feb. 2—The Deacon's Love Letter (Dramatic).....410 ft
Feb. 2—The Marathon Race (Serio-Dramatic).....580 ft
Feb. 6—Virginius (Dramatic).....980 ft
Feb. 9—Jessie, the Stolen Child (Dramatic).....560 ft
Feb. 9—A Clever Trick (Comedy).....340 ft
Feb. 13—An Irish Hero (Dramatic).....730 ft
Feb. 13—Lost in a Folding Bed (Comedy).....240 ft

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

10 Fifth Avenue - - - New York City

The following Manufacturers and Importers of Films have been Licensed by this Company.

American Mutoscope & Biograph Company
Edison Manufacturing Company
Essanay Film Manufacturing Company
Kalem Company
George Kleine
Lubin Manufacturing Company
Pathe Freres
Selig Polyscope Company
Vitagraph Company of America

LICENSED EXCHANGES

The following exchanges have been licensed, and at the present time are the only Exchanges that are authorized to handle licensed films:

Actograph Company, 50 Union Square, New York City.
Actograph Company, Troy, N. Y.
Alamo Film Exchange, 405 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Alamo Film Exchange, 304 Conroy Building, San Antonio, Tex.
American Film Exchange, 645 Wabash Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
American Film Service, 125 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.
American Film Service, 158 North Main street, Memphis, Tenn.
American Vitagraph Company, 116 Nassau street, New York, N. Y.
George Breck, 70 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo Film Exchange, 13½ Genesee street, Buffalo, N. Y.
C. A. Calehuff, Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Calumet Film Exchange, Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline & Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline, 268 South State street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Clune Film Exchange, 727 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.
Colorado Film Exchange Company, 320 Charles Building, Denver, Colo.
Columbia Film Exchange, 414 Ferguson Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Gayety Theater Building, St. Louis, Mo.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Crawford Theater, El Paso, Tex.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Hopkins Theater, Louisville, Ky.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Shubert Theater, New Orleans, La.
Harry Davis, 347 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Harry Davis, Buffalo, N. Y.
Harry Davis, 1311 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Denver Film Exchange, 713 Lincoln avenue, Denver, Colo.
Dixie Film Company, 620 Commercial place, New Orleans, La.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 104-5 Bakewell Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 235 Monticello Arcade Building, Norfolk, Va
Edison Display Co., 1116 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash.
Edison Display Co., 165½ Fourth street, Portland, Ore.
Electric Theater Supply Co., 47 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Greater New York Film Rental Co., 24 Union Square, New York City.
C. J. Hite Company, Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill.
Howard Moving Picture Co., 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Imperial Film Exchange, 44 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City.
Imperial Film Exchange, 299 River street, Troy, N. Y.
Imperial Film Exchange, 803 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Imported Film & Supply Co., 708 Union street, New Orleans, La.
Kent Film Service, 218 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Kleine Optical Company, 2008½ Third avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Kleine Optical Company, 657 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Kleine Optical Company, 52 State street, Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Company, 302 Boston Building, Denver, Colo.
Kleine Optical Company, 229 Commercial Building, Des Moines, Ia.
Kleine Optical Company, 214 Traction Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Kleine Optical Co. of California, 369 Pacific Electric Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Kleine Optical Company, 662 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Company, 309 Melhorn Building, Seattle, Wash.
Kleine Optical Company of Missouri, 523 Commercial Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Laemmle Film Service, 196 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service, Main and Sixth streets, Evansville, Ind.
Laemmle Film Service, 78 South Front street, Memphis, Tenn.
Laemmle Film Service, 1121-23 Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service, 800 Brandeis Block, Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service, 419-20 Marquam Grand Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service, 151 Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 314 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
H. Lieber Co., 24 West Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lubin Film Service, 21 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Lubin Film Service, 510 Paul-Gale-Greenwood Building, Norfolk, Va.
Lubin Film Service, 140 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 82 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
Miles Bros., Inc., 259 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Miles Bros., Inc., Washington and Dover streets, Boston, Mass.
Miles Bros., Inc., 790 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Mitchell Film Exchange, 120½ Main street, Little Rock, Ark.
Monarch Film Exchange, 201 Thompson Building, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Montana Film Exchange, 41 North Main street, Butte, Mont.
Morton Film Exchange, 107 Sixth street, Portland, Ore.
National Film Company, 100 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., Spokane, Wash.
Novelty Moving Picture Co., 418 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Broad street, Columbus, Ohio.
Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.
Pennsylvania Film Exchange, 403 Lewis Block, Pittsburg, Pa.
People's Film Exchange, 126 University place, New York City.
Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 121 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Wilkesbarre, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 501-503 Central Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Neave Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 421 Walnut street, Des Moines, Ia.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 60-62 Brownell Block, Lincoln, Neb.
Schiller Film Exchange, 103 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Southern Film Exchange, 1822 Fourth avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Southern Film Exchange, 148 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George K. Spoor & Co., 62 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.
Star Film Exchange, 120 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Standard Film Exchange, 79 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Superior Film Supply Co., 621 Nasby Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Swaab Film Service Co., 338 Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 160 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Wm. H. Swanson Co. of Omaha, 405 Karbach Block, Omaha, Neb.
Wm. H. Swanson St. Louis Film Co., 200 North Seventh street, St. Louis, Mo.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main street, East, Rochester, N. Y.
Tally's Film Exchange, 554 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Theater Film Supply Co., 202 South Tryon street, Charlotte, N. C.
Theater Film Supply Co., 2007 Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Theater Film Service Co., 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Theater Film Service Co., 1038 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal.
Trent & Wilson, 63 East Third street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
20th Century Optiscope Co., Shukert Building, Kansas City, Mo.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 408 Eccles Building, Ogden, Utah.
Turner & Dahnken, 1650 Ellis street, San Francisco, Cal.
Twin City Calcium and Stereopticon Co., 709 Hennepin ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
United Film Exchange, 717 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
U. S. Film Exchange, 132 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Vaudette Film Exchange Co., 103 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich.
P. L. Waters, 41 East Twenty-first street, New York City.
Alfred Weiss' Film Exchange, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City.
Western Film Exchange, 949 Century Building, St. Louis Mo.
Western Film Exchange, 307 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange, 201 Miners' Bank Building, Joplin, Mo.
Wonderland Film Exchange, Seventh street and Liberty ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
Wheelan-Loper Film Co., 339 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Yale Film Renting Co., 622 Main street, Kansas City, Mo.

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER SAVES THE COST LASTS FOR EVER GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST
J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS
ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT
Write for Samples and Full Information
THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS
59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

TWO FEATURES
THE SHOWMAN'S DRAMA (Cines)
CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE (Comerio)
AND TWO OTHERS
FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.
Representing
145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAIR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

We Have Now Started Releasing
Four Subjects Each Week
Among the Many Headliners to go on the Market in the Very near Future is SHERLOCK HOLMES: Series II and III.
Series I issued Recently is Crowding Every Theatre in which it is Exhibited IRRESISTIBLE AND FASCINATING PICTURES

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY

WE HAVE IT

We have solved the problem for you. Our Alfred Harstn has just returned from Chicago where he had a conference with J. J. MURDOCK, President of the International Projecting and Producing Company and Mr. Murdock convinced us that he had the goods. We can convince you.

We can furnish our customers from eighteen to twenty reels a week, selected from a large number of manufacturers, including the following Europeans, for whom The International Projecting & Producing Company has the exclusive American agency:

Ambrosio	Eclaire	Clarendon
Raleigh & Roberts	Theo. Pathe	Cripps & Martin
Itali-Rossi	Mester Deutsche	Robert Paul
Pineschi	Deutsche Mutoscope	Williamson
Aquila-Ottolenghi	Wrench	Walturdaw
Lux	Hepworth	Warwick Trading Co.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY ROYALTIES TO ANY TRUST

Full particulars about the new McKinney Machine on application, and will appear in our future announcements. This machine is controlled by The International Projecting & Producing Company.

We ask every exhibitor, whether our customer or not to co-operate with us in breaking the shackles the trust is attempting to force upon the moving picture industry.

Mass Meetings will be called in New York and Boston at which addresses will be made by leading European manufacturers, as well as the officers of the new Independent Company, the International Projecting & Producing Company. Watch the New York and Boston daily newspapers for special announcement of date and place of these meetings.

We must keep the duty from being raised on foreign films.

COMPETITION AND NOT OPPOSITION PROMOTES PROSPERITY IN ANY ENTERPRISE

Write, Wire or Call

HARSTN & COMPANY

138 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

NEW ENGLAND FILM EXCHANGE
611 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

THE KEYSTONE FILM SUPPLY
303 Lackawana Ave. Scranton, Pa.

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only to the high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4., No. 8. February 20, 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

Published Weekly by THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO., 125 E. 23d ST., NEW YORK

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST
J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS are learning that It Pays to Investigate and that

The Motiograph is truly A Wonderful Machine

FOR MOTION PICTURES AND STEROPTICON VIEWS

andthat where there's Perfect Pictures there's A Motiorgaph in the Operator's Booth.

Chicago, Boston, New York and Frisco approved.

It projects Wonderfully Brilliant, Steady and Flickerless Pictures and is absolutely fireproof.

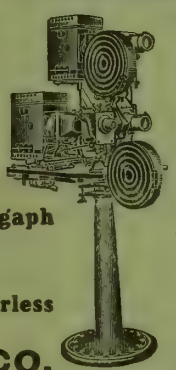
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.



The Motiograph is Licensed

under the patents of the

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.
OF NEW YORK.

The Rheostato Current Saver, saves 60 to 75 per cent. on Electric Bills.

The Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit is the only satisfactory substitute for Electric Light.

Our Catalog tells a lot of interesting things.

WRITE FOR IT;

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

THE EAGLE FILM EXCHANGE

Will give you an Exclusive Service. We handle nothing but new goods—no junk. We are prepared to give you the following makes of film: Great Northern, Eclair, Cines, Comerio, Melies, Williamson, etc.

143 N. 8th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Branch: Mauch Chunk, Pa. Oscar Bittner, Mgr.

FILM SERVICE OF MERIT

SUPPLIED BY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and furnishing an exclusive licensed service, using only the films made by the following Licensed manufacturers:

American Mutoscope & Biograph Co.
Edison Manufacturing Co.
Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
Kalem Company.
George Kleine.
Lubin Manufacturing Co.
Pathe Freres.
Selig Polyscope Co.
Vitagraph Company of America.

A regular weekly supply of 18 reels of splendid new subjects is now available.

THREE OFFICES
ST. LOUIS, MO. 1401-05 Locuts St.
LOUISVILLE, KY. 421 4th Avenue.
NEW ORLEANS, LA. c/o Shubert Theatre.

CLIMAX WIRE

Fifty times the resistance of copper

THE BEST WIRE FOR

Moving Picture Machine

RHEOSTATS

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.
HARRISON, N.J.

FOR SALE

We have an up-to-date Moving Picture Theatre, 164 seats, new No. 5 Style "B" Power's machine, elevated floor, in a City of 20,000 and the only one in town.

IMPERIAL FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.
299-301 RIVER STREET - TROY, N. Y.

THEATRE CHAIRS

Veneered and Upholstered

Can make quick delivery and give reasonable terms of payment.

H. D. WARNER
63 Fifth Ave., Rooms 14 & 15, N. Y. City

I have furnished thousands of Chairs for Moving Picture Theatres in New York City and vicinity. Have fitted six theatres for one company and several theatres for many other companies.

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!

FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!

Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material

COMPLETE, $175.00

VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS

ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT

Write for Samples and Full Information

THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS
59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

"STANDING ROOM ONLY"—That is the way Selig's Pictures Show to Crowded Houses

DON'T MISS SELIG'S NEXT FILM. Take the tip—a good one

THE SKIPPER'S DAUGHTERS

LENGTH, 1,000 FEET. CODE WORD, SKIP

RELEASED FEBRUARY 25, 1909

Order from Your Nearest Film Exchange. Tell the man you want SELIG'S latest

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO., 45-47-49 E. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

TRADE MARK BIOGRAPH TRADE MARK

FILMS

RELEASED FEBRUARY 22, 1909

The Politician's Love Story

A comedy subject with a moral, "Don't anticipate." A political "boss" has been vilely caricatured by a newspaper cartoonist, and goes to annihilate the author of them, but finding the artist a pretty girl, falls deeply in love with her.

LENGTH—526 FEET.

The Golden Louis

A pathetic episode of the day of "Old Paris," when knights and gallant blades held forth. Contrasting the scene of gayety there is seen a small child begging in the snow. She falls exhausted and sleeps. Some one drops a Golden Louis into her little wooden shoe at her side, which coin is taken by a desperate gambler, who feels there is a chance of winning for her a fortune. He does, but upon his return he finds her dead.

LENGTH—474 FEET.

RELEASED FEBRUARY 25, 1909

At the Altar

THE INTERCEPTION OF A REJECTED SUITOR'S VENGEANCE.

The story is that of a Sicilian who, rejected by the girl he loves, tries to wreak vengeance by placing an infernal machine under the altar step on the day of her marriage to an Italian musician. It is placed in such a manner that the stepping forward of the officiating priest will spring the trap, killing the girl and her groom-elect. The plan, however, is intercepted in the nick of time.

LENGTH—972 FEET.

Release days of Biograph Subjects—MONDAY and THURSDAY

Get on Our Mail List and Keep Posted. Write for Our Descriptive Circulars

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

SONG SLIDES

BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED

"BLIND PIG" (Von Tilzer)
"LOVE ME JUST A LITTLE BIT" (Chas. K. Harris)
"S. R. HENRY'S BARN DANCE" (Stern)
"ALWAYS THINK OF MOTHER" (Haller & Stafford)
"HONEY DEAR"
"IF TO-DAY WERE YESTERDAY" (Cadillack)

$5.00 PER SET. 10% OFF

LEVI CO.

64 E. 14th St., New York, U.S.A.

Send for list of slightly used song slides, $2.75 per set. Ask for catalogue of Announcement Slides.

Money for you. In towns without electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.

26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

GAUMONT FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

"AN OBSTINATE UMBRELLA"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 530 Feet.

RELEASED TUESDAY, FEB. 23, 1909.

A borrowed umbrella furnishes the substance for this subject. Fortunate to be able to borrow an umbrella on a rainy day, a gentleman finds himself the object of derision when after the storm he is unable to close it. Many very ludicrous scenes are enacted by the distracted man in his efforts to close and return the umbrella to its owner.

"SOME MILK FOR BABY"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 430 Feet.

RELEASED TUESDAY, FEB. 23, 1909.

Entrusted with an infant, the nurse forces responsibility of taking care of the charge upon the clerk of the grocery and then cheerfully saunters off in company of her sweetheart. The clerk, driven to his wits' ends by his failure to quiet the little one with the nursing bottle, connects a tube to a large reservoir containing milk. The healthy infant has a ravenous appetite and flourishes under the liberal quantities imbibed. When the keeper of the store returns he finds his supply of milk exhausted, but he feels amply rewarded when instead of the mite left behind he finds a two hundred and fifty pound cherub occuying the cradle. Certain to create unrestrained laughter.

"THE PRINCE AND THE DWARF"

Melodrama. Approx. Length, 707 Feet.

RELEASED SATURDAY, FEB. 27, 1909.

Beautifully hand colored. A prince on a hunting expedition gets lost in the woods. He has an encounter with a dwarf, whom he is about to attack, when a fairy interferes and causes the nose of the prince to elongate to enormous proportions. The appendage becomes extremely annoying and cumbersome. Court officials hold a consultation amputation is resorted to, but nothing avails, as the nose always regains its unsightly length. Disconsolate, the prince seeks love to break the spell, but the dames of other court circles would faign to love the prince. Resigned to his fate, he takes to the woods to bemoan his misfortune, when a shepherd has compassion upon him, and immediately that love prevails the spell is broken and the prince's nose is restored to normal condition.

"THE FOXY HUSBAND"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 253 Feet.

RELEASED SATURDAY, FEB. 27, 1909.

The husband goes out for an evening and returning late finds that his wife has retired and as a fee demands fifty dollars before she will admit him to his home. Under pretext of having dropped some money, the wife is induced to go out and seek to find it, when her husband locks the door and then demands the return of his money before he lets her in. Good detail and well rendered.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Co.

"JOEL'S WEDDING"

Drama. Approx. Length, 569 Feet.

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, FEB. 24, 1909.

The squire finds time hanging heavy on his hands and resolves to find something of interest to occupy his mind. In company of his valet he goes out upon his mission in quest of excitement. Disguised as beggars, they take up their position on a public road, but soon they change their vocation from beggars to that of philanthropists. A sturdy fisherman is in love, but owing to his lack of funds his prospective father-in-law looks upon him with disfavor. The squire is touched by the sincerity of the fisher lad and unknown to the latter supplies the funds necessary to overcome the objections to his troth. The father of the maid questions the lad as to his suddenly acquired riches and causes his arrest, when the squire unmasks and rescues the young lover.

The wedding ceremonies are on a large scale and the entire populace joins in the celebration.

"POLKA ON BRAIN"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 445 Feet.

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, FEB. 24, 1909.

Having acquired the rudiments of dancing, the student becomes so enamored that he engages in dance with everything possible. Many very amusing incidents are depicted, as also numerous novel magic effects.

Highly amusing throughout and of excellent photographic quality.

GEORGE KLEINE

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Moving Picture World

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company, 125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.

Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

Vol. 4 FEBRUARY 20 No. 8

Editorial.

By special permission we reprint a most excellent article on moving pictures written by Professor Starr, of the Chicago University. That such an eminent authority should speak in such glowing terms of the motion picture theater is an unanswerable argument that can be handed out to those carping critics who write about what they have not seen, or, having seen, do not understand. Prof. Starr says:

"The moving picture is not a makeshift for the playhouse; its dignity is greater, its importance far beyond the puny function of comedy and tragedy. It is a clean entertainment, lecture and amusement all rolled in one; in its highest effort it stands above literature; in its less ambitious phase it ranks above the tawdry show house. It teaches nothing harmful, and it usually teaches much that is helpful."

The learned professor's remarks were not based upon hearsay. He "simply dropped into a moving picture theater at various moments of leisure," and freely states his opinion. We understand that the article has been copyrighted by Messrs. W. N. Selig, Geo. K. Spoor and George Kleine, who are prepared to furnish reprints to licensed film exchanges for distribution. It deserves the widest circulation.

The article appeared as a full page in the special Lincoln number of the Chicago Tribune of Sunday, February 7. In that same paper there appeared a full page advertisement of the Selig Polyscope Company, a half page advertisement each from Geo. K. Spoor and George Kleine. It should be mentioned that these advertisements were not inserted as business bringers, but were written in a way to impress the public with the high plane of motion pictures as a form of amusement and of their value as a means of education. It is an expensive method of molding public opinion, but the results will be of general benefit. The trade in general must feel under obligations to the gentlemen who bore the expense and they and other manufacturers will publish from time to time similar advertisements in other leading newspapers.

It may be of interest to note that the issue of the Chicago Tribune referred to consisted of 194 pages, weighing four pounds, and is said to be the biggest newspaper ever published. Two days after publication copies were held at $2 each and there are many who would now pay $5 for a copy. The edition was one million.

Recent developments in the moving picture field find the Motion Picture Patents Company perfectly well satisfied with the situation, we learn, especially in the East where they have all the large theaters with them. It is too soon, however, for them to size up the state of affairs in remoter parts of the country, but, roughly speaking, the situation there is also in a favorable state of development. It will probably be of interest to our readers to learn that the rules which the company have drawn up for themselves will be rigidly enforced, and there is no doubt at all in the official mind of the success of the enterprise. Another point worth making public is that the exhibitors who have not taken out licenses will have to be dropped by the exchanges.

THE PROPOSED INCREASED TARIFF ON FILMS.

The tariff war is like the poor. It is always with us. It has invaded the moving picture field. American manufacturers want to see the duty on imported films raised; importers of those films wish nothing so much as the tariff left undisturbed, or abolished altogether. Incidentally, it may be remarked, the controversy has assumed a Trust and "Anti-Trust" aspect. The associated manufacturers favor an increased tariff; the opposing side consists of those importers who are known as the "Independents" in current moving picture politics. The question is therefore one of which it is trite to observe that there is much to be said on both sides. There always is in every dispute.

Looked at dispassionately, the case for the associated manufacturers is a strong one. What is the position of affairs? The moving picture industry in America is a young one and in comparatively few hands. But it is a growing industry, and it shows every sign of expansion. Considerable capital is embarked in it; thousands of employees are engaged in it; and the demand for American made films of American subjects (a most important point) is immeasurably greater than the supply. Here, it is urged, are all the primary factors which call for increased protection, which, having regard to the fiscal policy of the country, it seems unreasonable to deny. Arguing from the great to the small, what is true of, let us say, silks and laces, is surely true of moving picture films? The cases are on all fours.

The free-traders, if we may so term them, will find it somewhat difficult to make out as cogent a case as that held by their opponents. Can they deny the youth of the American moving picture industry and the obvious need of its protection? Can they deny the comparative scarcity of American made films? We think not. On the other hand, they can take a stand against the possibility of monopoly; the wisdom of opening the market to the best productions of other countries, which would have an educative effect on those of our own; the public demand for foreign goods; the restricted supply of films at present available, and the fact that the handling of a large supply of foreign film would promote internal trade and employment. It is upon such lines as these, we imagine, that the free-traders will draw up their arguments.

Congress is very jealous of reducing the tariff and the sentiment of the country is distinctly against "reform" in the matter. Hence the free-traders have a very uphill fight before them. The associated manufacturers have already taken action at Washington, and they make out what is by no means a weak case. It remains to be seen what the free-traders will do. Public meetings are talked of. Too much importance need not be attached to what is done there. Legislative bodies are rarely influenced by such means, particularly in this country.

One other phase of the matter demands notice. The importing firms in this country who want the tariff to remain as it is can be counted on the fingers of one hand. The European manufacturers naturally support them, on sheer business grounds; so that the free trade element is somewhat lacking in numerical strength. But they are fully competent to make up for this defect by a superabundance of energy, which we perceive they are doing. So there the question stands as between "Trust" and "Independents."

The public, of course, through the renter and the exhibitor, has a voice in the matter. It is not easy to say offhand how the American people regard it. Do they prefer American made films of American subjects to the foreign article? If they do, then the associated manufacturers have a most powerful ally in the public. Good foreign art or literature is always welcomed here; all the same, sentiment leans toward the home product whenever it can be obtained. Witness the opera, the theater, fiction, painting, sculpture, the arts and crafts: all the tendency of the times is to exalt, wherever practicable, the home product in preference to the foreign one. Is it possibly the same in regard to moving picture films? Certainly some very fine work comes from Europe; if just as fine can be made here, which will the public prefer? We commend this aspect of the controversy to the consideration of those interested.

* * *

Much is made of the alleged lack of native talent in this country and the consequent difficulty of obtaining good films made here. This nonsense is fostered by persons who have newly entered the moving picture field and who are therefore excusably ignorant of the history of the subject. In 1896 when moving pictures first became popular the best work was done by American photographers, the European continent, with the exception of Paris, did little or nothing worth notice. We imagine that what American skill was capable of in 1896 it can accomplish in 1909.

INSTRUCTIVE ARTICLES FOR EXHIBITORS AND OPERATORS.

In an early number we will commence to publish a series of practical articles of the greatest value to exhibitors and machine operators. These articles have been written by well known men of experience in the exhibiting field and by practical eletcricians and have been procured at great expense by the publishers of the Moving Picture World, who believe that nothing is too good for its readers. The series of articles will commence as soon as the necessary drawings and cuts are made and should be welcome and helpful reading after the surfeit of political matter that has taken up so much space heretofore. If you are not a subscriber enroll now or place your order with your newsdealer.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the Moving Picture World? $2 per year—52 numbers.

THE WORLD BEFORE YOUR EYES.

By Prof. Frederick Starr, of Chicago University.

Copyright, 1909, by W. N. Selig, George Kleine, Geo. K. Spoor.

I have seen Niagara thunder over her gorge in the noblest frenzy ever beheld by man—I have watched a Queensland river under the white light of an Australasian moon go whirling and swirling through strange islands lurking with bandicoot and kangaroo—I have watched an English railroad train draw into a station, take on its passengers and then chug away with its stubby little engine through the Yorkshire Dells, past old Norman Abbeys silhouetted against the skyline, while a cluster of century-aged cottages loomed up in the valley below, through which a yokel drove his flocks of Southdowns—I have been to the Orient and gazed at the water-sellers and beggars and dervishes—I have beheld fat old Rajahs with the price of a thousand lives bejeweled in their monster turbans, and the price of a thousand deaths sewn in their royal nightshirts as they indolently swayed in golden howdahs, borne upon the backs of grunting elephants—I saw a runaway horse play battledoor and shuttlecock with the citizens and traffic of a little Italian village, whose streets had not known so much commotion since the sailing of Columbus—I know how the Chinaman lives and I have been through the homes of the Japanese—I have marveled at the daring of Alpine tobogganists and admired the wonderful skill of Norwegian ski jumpers—I have seen armies upon the battlefield and their return in triumph—I have looked upon weird dances and outlandish frolics in every quarter of the globe, and I didn't have to leave Chicago for a moment.

No books have taught me all these wonderful things—no lecturer has pictured them—I simply dropped into a moving picture theater at various moments of leisure, and at the total cost for all the visits of perhaps two performances of a foolish musical show, I have learned more than a traveler could see at the cost of thousands of dollars and years of journey.

Neither you nor I fully realize what the moving picture has meant to us, and what it is going to mean. As children we used to dream of a journey on a magician's carpet to the legendary lands, but we can rub our own eyes now and witness more tremendous miracles than Aladdin could have by rubbing his fairy lamp. But we're so matter-of fact that we never think of it that way. We're living at a mile-a-second gait in the swiftest epoch of the world's progress—in the age of incredibilities come true. We fly through the air—chat with our friends in Paris by squirting a little spark from a pole on one shore of the Atlantic to another pole on the other side, and so we take as a matter of course that which our great-grandfathers would have declared a miracle.

The talking machine has canned the great voices and master melodies of our time, but the moving-picture machine has done more—it is making for us volumes of history and action—it is not only the greatest impulse of entertainment but the mightiest force of instruction. We do not analyze the fact that when we read of an English wreck we at once see an English train before us, or when we learn of a battle that an altogether different panorama is visualized than our former erroneous impression of a hand-to-hand conflict—we are familiar with the geography of Europe—we are well acquainted with how the Frenchman dresses, in what sort of a home he lives, and from what sort of a shop he buys his meat and greens.

We take so much for granted—we are so thoroughly spoiled by our multiple luxuries—that we do not bestow more than a passing thought upon our advantages, because the moving picture machine is an advantage—a tremendous, vital force of culture as well as amusement. An economy, not only of money but of experiences—it brings the world to us—it delivers the universe to our theater seat. The moving picture is not a makeshift for the playhouse—its dignity is greater—its importance far beyond the puny function of comedy and tragedy. It is a clean entertainment, lecture and amusement all rolled in one—in its highest effort it stands above literature—in its less ambitious phase it ranks above the tawdry show house. It teaches nothing harmful and it usually teaches much that is helpful.

To-day the moving picture industry is developed to a high degree of perfection in America and in Europe. Millions of dollars are invested in the production of moving picture films—entire companies of trained and practiced actors are carried to every interesting spot on the continent and carefully drilled to enact pantomimes which will concentrate within the space of a few minutes the most entertaining and instructive incidents of the world. A new type of dramatist has arisen—men who search through the literature of the ages and construct tableaux in action which will render vividly the entire contents of famous works of the drama, of the novel and of history.

The moving picture is not a makeshift, but the highest type of entertainment in the history of the world. It stands for a better Americanism because it is attracting millions of the masses to an uplifting institution, drawing them to an improving as well as an amusing feature of city life. Its value cannot be measured now, but another generation will benefit more largely through its influence than we of to-day can possibly realize.

Frederick Starr

OHIO SHOWMEN UNITE.

Forty moving picture show owners from all parts of Ohio met last week at the Hartman Hotel and perfected arrangements for organization of the "Film Exhibitors' Protective Association of Ohio." W. C. Quimby of Zanesville was elected temporary chairman and Max Stern of Columbus temporary secretary. A meeting has been called for Wednesday afternoon, February 24, at the Nell House, when permanent officers and committees will be named.

The purpose of the organization will be for mutual protection. There are 1,500 moving picture exhibitors in Ohio and it is expected that many of them will be present when the meeting is called. Mr. Quimby said regarding the new association:

"We do not intend to organize to boost prices of admission or to fight the 'moving picture trust.' We have always believed that the moving picture business is here to stay, but we will do our best to promote cleaner, saner and less objectionable pictures. We desire to put our business on a higher plane, that is all. Some of our places have cost a small fortune to equip and we mean to protect ourselves by protecting the public from all objectionable features."

A Metal Safety Moving Picture Booth is being offered to the trade by Williams, Brown & Earle, of 918 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa., which is built according to the fire underwriters' specifications. The booth is of ample size for the operator and machine, has spring doors, metal floor, ventilating arrangements and automatic closing openings. Finally, it is offered at a very low price.

OBSERVATIONS BY OUR MAN-ABOUT-TOWN.

I was asked the other day what I thought of existing conditions in regard to the producing and exhibiting of moving pictures and was forced to beg off from expressing any opinion further than that it resembled a big dish of Hungarian gulosh. It is a general mix-up which some seem to be well pleased with and others do not. This is not an unprecedented condition of affairs. It may be observed every day, especially in connection with affairs that interest the public. The pleased and displeased are always with us. This combination will always be in evidence.

* * *

I have viewed the field carefully during the past week and made frequent calls here and there to glean sentiments. As a result of the trip I feel justified in saying that the position of the Moving Picture Patents Company appears to be stronger to-day than at any other time since it started out to do business. In saying this I do not wish to be understood as posing as a mouthpiece for the combination, nor as attempting to boost its interests or prestige by giving false color to its status, nor would I say that its legal position is any stronger to-day than it has been. What I mean to say is that two weeks ago it looked as if eighty per cent. of the exhibitors would refuse to pay the license fee demanded by the Patents Company, and to-day it looks very much as if at least eighty per cent. of them have fallen into line. The threatened general revolt against what was at first termed a tyrannical measure did not materialize. Such being the case, as shown by the facts, it must be conceded that the Patents Company has made good in the first tussle.

* * *

You will observed I say "the first tussle." A comparatively small percentage of the exhibitors, so far as I have been able to learn, have refused to pay the license fee for the period ending March 8th. How many will continue paying the fee after that date I am not prepared to say, nor can the exhibitors themselves, for they are waiting for developments. Some are waiting to see what fee they will be expected to pay after that time, others are on the watch to determine if the fee will bring to them any more than the privilege of using licensed films, and there are others who are keeping close watch upon the Independent movement. They demand protection as well as privilege. For instance, they cite cases where exhibitors who have not paid the license fee are running both licensed and independent films; they point out that there are thousands upon thousands of feet of film that was manufactured and sold by the concerns that now comprise the Patents Company before the combination was formed and which can be used by the Independents without fear. These films can be used to give tone to the exhibitions and the new importations will furnish the first run features. There is also talk of an immense Independent film producing plant being established.

* * *

This feature is, to my mind, the most threatening to the interests of the exhibitors. The combined product of the manufacturers in the Patents Company is now in excess of the demand. It is doubtful that any film exchange in the country is taking, or can take, every subject that is produced by that company. Now, if the claims of the Patents Company cannot be maintained in the courts and the Independents are free to use all the films they can procure from the score or more of manufacturers on the other side and are free to manufacture all they please in this country, there is bound to be an overproduction that will so stagnate the market as to force the manufacturers on both sides to seek a direct outlet for their products, which will mean the direct exhibition of them and the cutting out of all middlemen.

* * *

I appreciate that many will look upon this view as premature, but it is not. Let us cite a case that proves such a development is closer at hand, under certain conditions, than many are willing to admit. Mr. P. G. Williams, who is one of the leading spirits in the vaudeville theater trust, has put up a fight in New York City against the Motion Picture Patents Company. He refuses to pay any license fee to the company and has secured a temporary injunction against that company and also against the exchange that has been renting him films for his theaters, to restrain them from cutting off the film service. This case is to be the first test of the Patent Company's claims. It is rumored in some quarters that the test is very much in the nature of a frame-up and Mr. Williams has good-naturedly undertaken to help the Patents Company to prove that their claims are good in law. I do not take much stock in this. It is true that when Mr. Williams is approached on the subject he laughingly says he is giving the combine a run for their money, but I have it from unquestionable authority that if he loses his injunction suit he will not walk up to the Patents Company cashier and pay the license fees. It is doped out to me that he has other plans. They have not been divulged, but two guesses are made at them. One is that the vaudeville trust may start in to make films for use in all its theaters; the other is that contracts may be made by the trust for the products of the Independent plants on the direct from maker to consumer basis, with a guarantee of protection against suits and recovery of damages for infringements. Should the latter scheme be put in operation and its operation successfully defended in the courts, it will be all over with the film exchanges and their patrons. If it will work with the theaters it must certainly do the same with the nickelodeons, and it will soon be a case of the exchanges getting their service from first hands.

* * *

I met a Patents Company manufacturer at a hotel the other afternoon and with considerable indignation he gave expression to these remarks: "I can't make out what the exhibitors are driving at. For a year past they have been contending that the combination of the film-producing manufacturers was an excellent idea and but for one thing would be perfection. That one thing was the omission to take the Biograph and Gaumont companies into the arrangement. For months they pleaded with us to come to some understanding with those two companies and pictured to us the death-dealing effect it would have on the Independents. Well, we have done just as they wished and still we find them discontented, and now crying out against trusts and monopolies. But on reflection I think I see the real sting. It is not so much the license fee required as it is the determination that none but licensed films shall be run in licensed places. They want the free lance and for home producing protection we want them to keep within bounds. No one disputes that they have a right to use Independent films if they so desire; and they are perfectly at liberty to use our films if they wish to, but in dealing with us they must decide which they will use and when they take a license from us they can only use licensed goods. There is no compulsion in the matter. No exhibitor is compelled to take a license from us. He is free to deal with the Independents and use their products, and any time after he takes a license from us he is at liberty to surrender it and go to the Independents. How can any exhibitor claim that this binds him hands and feet?" OLIVER.

A FEW PERTINENT COMMENTS.

By F. H. Richardson.

There has been an amazing improvement in films during the past few months. The day of the "three murders and a robbery per hundred feet" film seems to (thank Heaven!) be passed. Also there is a noticeable increase in long subjects of real, legitimate comedy, as distinguished from the absurd "breaking-up-a-houseful-of-furniture-and-chase-through-the-street" type. Photography has kept pace, or more than kept pace, with other improvements, and stock seems to be improving, too.

In the past few months there have been put out very many really beautiful, dramatic, tragic and serio-comic films. Films with real acting in them, which tell a beautiful and connected story running from 800 to 1,000 feet. Our American manufacturers have made prodigious strides and, barring colored stuff, as good and even better subjects are being produced right here in these United States as the world can show. That film, "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" actually had half my audience in tears, and that's going some for a picture!

Pathe films are good, they always have been; but, with all good feeling, the writer would like to submit a friendly criticism: His policemen are altogether too fond of pounding helpless prisoners around and showing pure brutality, and his fitting up an office or police station scene with a 75-cent kitchen table for a desk doesn't look exactly right—to American eyes, anyhow. Pathe office scenes are almost without exception poor, simply for the reason that the furniture is not at all in keeping. Perhaps Frenchmen may fit up their offices thus, but the writer doesn't believe they do. There is certainly plenty of room for improvement in this respect in Pathe's pictures.

Another encouraging sign of the times is the tendency to larger, better fitted motion picture theaters; at least, here in Chicago. Also, there has been marked improvement in operating room machinery, so much so that there no longer remains the slightest excuse for a dim, blurry, shadowy picture. It is now perfectly possible to project a clear, brilliant and in every way splendid picture with even 60-cycle alternating current without using large amperage, which could not be done with the earlier appliances.

Improved machines have reduced the "jump," "tremble" and flicker to a minimum, so that the enjoyment of audiences is enhanced fully fifty per cent. Operators are becoming better posted in their work and able to produce better results, while managers have in like ratio improved on their earlier, cruder ideas.

In fact, taken by long and short, as one views the field one can begin to see a great white light ahead on the horizon of the motion picture theatrical field, and the rays of that light project to the brain of the observant one the message of good cheer and solid, profitable, permanent business for the near future.

GOOD CHEER WANTED.

Manufacturers must be made to see their mistake in offering so many films that incline toward, or actually reproduce the sombre, the sad, or that part of life which develops grief and brings the tears. Something cheerful is wanted, something that will send those who see the pictures home feeling pleasant, or even happy. There are good comedies. There are good comics. There are interesting films of an educational character which one turns from with a feeling of satisfaction.

Plenty of dramas contain no tragedy. Plenty of interesting pictures contain no death, or separation, or murder, or abduction, or anything else that causes one to wish one had not seen the pictures. These subjects should be selected, and the best comedies should be constantly featured. Until they are, until this long line of grief and sorrow and despair is broken the moving picture business will not come fully to its own.

Ultimately exhibitors are at fault. If they would persistently insist upon having only those which create a cheerful impression manufacturers would be compelled to turn them out. One might, perhaps, go a step further and say that the public should not patronize shows which offer only these depressing subjects, yet drastic action of this sort is manifestly impossible. No one can tell what pictures may be seen until they are actually shown, consequently this force cannot be invoked to stop the flood of sin stained films. Gradually, however, this will occur.

Managers can do much. Manufacturers can do more, and unquestionably the time has come to make the change. Give the public good cheer and watch the increased stream of dimes and nickels which will flow into your coffers.

THE LECTURES.

Not all theaters introduce lectures, but they are desirable additions to the programmes if they are well done, and if the slides are informing and well made. Little fault can be found with the slides. They are generally well done and colored with reasonable fidelity to facts, but in not all instances are the lecturers as good as they might be. It requires something besides ability to barely read the English language to do the work well.

Wherever lectures are included in the programme the lecturer should familiarize himself with his subject, and it would be far better to talk to the audience rather than to read the matter, as is done in most instances. It wouldn't take long to memorize the short lectures given, and the effect and impression would be enough better to pay for the trouble.

VAUDEVILLE.

After close observation of the motion picture shows in New York for a number of months, the writer has arrived at the conclusion that a large majority of the vaudeville acts are dead letters so far as drawing the crowds is concerned. Perhaps in isolated instances a good act will draw, but one is forced to the conclusion that the theaters would have equally as good attendance without these acts as with them.

The acts the past week have maintained a fair average. A few have stood out with considerable prominence for one reason or another, but the average has been only fairly well maintained. Managers are far more likely to run down the quality of their vaudeville than they are their pictures, and for that reason, if for no other, perhaps, the motion picture business would do quite as well, maybe better, if the vaudeville of questionable quality was cut out.

The International Projecting and Producing Company.

H. J. STREYCKMANS SPEAKS FOR HIS COMPANY.

H. J. Streyckmans, the secretary of the International Projecting and Producing Company, is very optimistic, and being a newspaper man himself, it was no trouble to get a statement from him. He said:

"We are very much gratified at the progress we have already made. It would be surprising to the trust to learn of the numbers of secessions from their ranks and which will be made public when our stock is brought upon the market. When we begin to furnish our goods our films will be shown simultaneously in a chain of theaters covering the entire country. One thing that we shall do is to eliminate the standing orders. We believe that it is an injustice on the film exchange to have to buy 'a cat in the bag.'

"We are proud of our products and are glad to show it. We will secure the entire business of the country, not through intimidations, threats or underhand methods or by creating a monopoly of a trust, but by sheer superiority of our goods. It is not our object to stifle competition. We welcome it. We shall not only fight the issue with quality but also quantity. We ask any fair minded men to compare the output of the trust manufacturers to that of the firms who will furnish us with their film, and compare them in quality. We have 27 manufacturers, representing the highest degree of photographic excellence, many of them masterpieces of motography, with variety of subjects, give us a total of about 40 reels per week from which we shall select 25 or 30 reels for distribution.

"The McKinney machine will eliminate all of the exhibitors' and operators' troubles. It is simple in construction, cannot get out of repair, and throws a brighter picture, with no flicker, than any machine on the market. Working without the sprocket holes, we are enabled to have a 6 to 1 movement, while the sprocket machines can only have a 4 to 1 movement, otherwise they would rip the sprocket holes out of the film.

"Our jigs and dies are about completed and Mr. Murdock has arranged for the factories to work three shifts of eight hours each a day. We will throw upon the market 400 or 500 machines within the next three or four weeks.

"While the entire sentiment of the country is with us and against the trust, we do not ask for business upon a sentimental basis. We have the goods. We shall shortly have in operation a number of factories in America, and, for the first time in the history of motography, Americans will have American moving pictures worthy of the name, and will not make the citizens of this country blush for some of the creations that have been turned out heretofore by the trust. Mr. Ambrosio will come to America to educate our men in the making of real moving pictures.

"Mr. Murdock is bending every energy to supply the demands which are being made upon us for films. Every European steamer will carry a shipment of films consigned to us, and subjects that will make the patrons of moving picture theaters sit up and take notice. Meetings are being called all over the country and resolutions passed protesting against the attempts of certain parties to have the duty increased upon foreign films. It would be outrageous if the duty was raised, as it would give a monopoly to the trust and they would then be enabled to present to Americans pictures of foreign scenes and incidents taken in the back yards of the American manufacturers. With ourselves in the field, the trust will have to content itself to confining their fake pictures to prize fights taken upon the roof.

"Why should there be a monopoly? Why should competition be stifled? If a man has the goods and is not ashamed of them, why should he be desirous of keeping out his competitors? The age of control by intimidations, alleged competition rights and inferior pictures has passed for the moving picture industry."

HARSTN & CO. REPRESENT THE INTERNATIONAL PROJECTING AND PRODUCING COMPANY IN THE EAST.

Mr. Alfred Harstn says that his company, having been given the Eastern agency for the above company, he will personally arrange for meetings to be held in all the principal Eastern cities at which specimen films will be shown to independent renters and exhibitors. The dates of the exhibitions will be announced in the daily papers and all who are interested in exhibiting or renting will be invited to see on the screen the best the world produces.

"We have 40 reels of sample prints on hand and among them are some subjects that will be eye-openers to those who think they have seen moving pictures. In about four weeks I expect to have about 100 McKinney projecting machines which will be placed on sale at very reasonable prices.

"Since my last advertisement in the Moving Picture World I have been overloaded with mail, telephone calls, wires and all kinds of inquiries as to the nature of the films and when they are going to be on the market. I wish to say the quality will be far superior to those that are now on the American market. We have the productions of some 40 different manufacturers to select from and all films will be examined and censored by Mr. J. J. Murdock upon their arrival in this country before they are placed on the market for sale. Mr. Raleigh, of Raleigh & Robert, Paris, who holds the agency for the European manufacturers, is in this country to study the demands of the American public and will instruct the foreign manufacturers as to what is desirable. We will compete with the American licensed manufacturers on the ground of quality solely, as we already have them beaten in quantity.

"Having such a large field to select from, only the very best productions will be admitted. Insinuating love affairs, murders and thievery will not be accepted and only up-to-date dramatic subjects and clean comedy. The mere fact that we are willing and ready to exhibit specimen prints of our subjects before ordering is sufficient guarantee that we have confidence in their quality.

"I also wish to say that descriptive circulars of the films, giving dates of issue, will be mailed two weeks in advance to all interested parties who make application."

INTERVIEW WITH MR. WILL G. BARKER.

Mr. Will G. Barker, who has just arrived in America as the representative of the various European firms whose films are to be handled by the newly formed International Projecting and Producing Company, has given us a special interview on the subject of the company's proposed plan of operations. Of the 27 firms who have contracted to supply this market with film, 20 may be rated as first class, and the other 7 are new entrants into the field. Between them they will supply 25 to 30 reels per week and there will be no standing orders. It is proposed to show sample pictures in every large city of America every week in order that renters and exhibitors may inspect them; and they will be released three or four weeks afterwards.

Censoring the Films.

All these pictures will be rigidly censored in Europe by a committee of English manufacturers, and no sample will be sent here until it has passed that censorship. Moreover the pictures will be personally censored by Mr. Murdock, the president of the company. It is a point of interest that the whole of the continental European manufacturers but one are controlled by Messrs. Raleigh & Robert, of Paris, and between this firm and Mr. Barker, of the Warwick Trading Company, the entire English and European output will be handled and effectively censored.

An Open Market.

An important point brought out is that these films will be sold or rented to any one who chooses to buy or rent them, without restrictions. It is the policy of the company to keep the market perfectly open.

An American Factory.

Mr. Raleigh, of Messrs. Raleigh & Robert, who arrived at the same time as Mr. Barker, has brought a complete plant of cameras, perforators and printers of the latest European design and both Mr. Barker and Mr. Raleigh will remain in America until a factory has been started in America by American workers. It is desired to emphasize the fact that no European will have any voice in the practical management of the factory when it is started, which will be wholly and solely for the production of American made films by American labor. It is probable that the factory will be installed at Albany, N. Y., a spot which has many natural and other advantages, including beautiful scenery, for the production of films.

To Suppress Duping.

Mr. Barker informs us that he, and those associated with him, are determined to put down duping, which he alleges takes place by American film houses in this country. It is proposed to offer a reward of $500 for such information as will lead to the detection of the guilty parties. Legal process will be taken in the following manner: The original films will have the trade-marks of their producers printed upon them. The copies will betray those trade-marks, and criminal prosecutions will be instituted under the "passing off" laws of the various States, which make duping a criminal offense. Eminent attorneys and solicitors advise that this is the proper course to take and is bound to result in conviction.

A Waiting Market.

Mr. Barker was clear in pointing out that he is acting in the interests of the 27 European manufacturers, whom he represents, and his pictures will be handled by the International Company amongst 500 or 600 theatrical houses, which offer a waiting market for them. The variety and quality of the pictures will, undoubtedly, be appreciated by the public.

Independence.

Mr. Barker also informs us that though acting entirely for himself and his associates in this movement, he is in perfect sympathy with the other independents and will readily cooperate with them for the purpose of keeping an open market, so long as their policy does not in any sense represent that of a trust.

Our energetic visitor has left New York for a tour of the principal cities of the United States, in which he is to address meetings of exhibitors and others interested in this matter. He is opposed to trusts or combines in the moving picture world on the ground, amongst other things, that they tend to destroy individuality of production, thus eliminating the personal element from the quality of the films, factors which he thinks make for public appreciation. Mr. Barker's stay in this country is only limited by the time it takes him to complete the work of organizing the work of the company and superintending the erection of the new factory.

CHARLES RALEIGH IN THE ROLE OF PROMOTER.

Charles Raleigh, of the firm of Raleigh & Robert, Paris, is in this city and favored the Moving Picture World with a long and exclusive interview as to his mission. The firm of Raleigh & Robert stands very high in the foreign cinematographic world, claiming to be second only to Pathe in importance, not on account of their own productions, which are largely confined to travel scenes and educational and scientific subjects, but because they market the products of most of the foreign manufacturers, with all of whom they are on such terms that they have only to make a request and it is granted. This is shown by the fact that in one week Mr. Raleigh procured signed contracts from all the French and two German manufacturers to act for them in this country.

European Manufacturers United.

Mr. Raleigh informs us that the day before he left Paris an agreement was entered into and signed by all the foreign manufacturers, binding themselves to certain terms of sale, a uniform price, the return of old films and other measures to protect the trade. The manufacturer who violates the agreement will be practically shut out of the market and besides will be unable to obtain raw stock from the Eastman Kodak Company, who are parties to the agreement. No standing order guarantees the output of any manufacturer and the competition is solely upon merit.

Mr. Raleigh says that his stay in this country is only determined by the length of time it takes to establish a similar understanding between the American and the foreign manufacturers, viz.: an open market, a uniform selling price and competition on quality—the only measures which will insure the increasing success of the moving picture business.

An Open Market Desired.

"Are your American manufacturers afraid of competition? It would not appear so as many of them are competing with us in Europe. One of your associated group of manufacturers only recently opened an office across the street from us in Paris and we welcomed them and did everything possible to smooth the way for them, still they seek to exclude us from this country. We are here to give you a lesson in politeness and to teach you what is the 'Liberty' which is represented by the statue in your harbor which was the gift of my country.

"It has been stated that the English films are not desirable because they are 'too slow' and the excluded French films because they are 'not good enough morally or photographically.' We are here to show your people what really good films look like. Have you seen ——— and ——— and ——— (mentioning a few names)? No. I thought so. Come around to our exhibition and you will see some films that will open your eyes to the possibilities and perfection of motography. (Mr. Raleigh showed high indignation that the work of his foreign confreres should have been deemed inferior.)

Mr. Barker and myself have come over not in our own interests, because we do not expect and do not care whether our own productions are sold in the American market. We are acting for others who are producing work that the American public should see. Unless we can have variety and competition in the motion picture business it is doomed to extinction. I admire much in the platform of the Motion Picture Patents Company. We have no fight with them because we go farther to accomplish our ends. If obstacles are placed in our way we will fight and we have a few cards up our sleeves that will be played one by one as needed, but we hope that legal entanglements will be avoided.

"One thing is certain, we are bound to win and we are here to stay until we do win, but I do not think my stay will be prolonged."

Both Mr. Raleigh and Mr. Barker confided what was the nature of some of the cards up their sleeves but would give no hint as to the nature of the trump card. Both are energetic and resourceful men and we will watch their progress with interest.

IMPROVED NICKEL THEATERS.

The Rev. A. E. Bartlett, of Chicago, believes in the moving picture shows, but believes also that they can be improved. He says:

"Amusements have no character in and of themselves. They are good or bad, as the people make them so. All wholesome amusements are needed, but instead of trying to abolish them the church should seek to purify and uplift them. The five-cent theater has become one of the greatest problems in recreation which our city must solve. Its low price has enabled it to reach the multitudes, including many children. Our city needs these cheap amusements, but it does not need, nor should it suffer, coarse and unclean entertainments.

"Of course, bad moving picture shows can do harm just as bad books can do harm. But on the other hand, these shows can be and generally are both interesting and instructive. The latter kind is what the authorities and the press and the pulpit should insist upon."

The nickel theater may have positive educational value. Committees of the Chicago Woman's Club report that investigation shows decided improvement in these places of popular resort. Demoralizing tendencies are being checked, so that theaters once of doubtful character are counted among the helpful influences of their neighborhoods.

That the nickel shows meet a popular need is apparent from their drawing power. Most of them are making money despite their small admission fee. That means that they are furnishing entertainments which are sufficiently attractive to secure the repeated attendance of a more or less limited constituency. Unless they made the right sort of appeal, their receipts would soon fall off.

Certain physical evils have been noted in connection with them. As a consequence some regulation has been necessary and proper. Care has been demanded in the electric wiring. Some degree of technical skill in using the moving picture machines has been required. Supervision of the methods of handling the audiences in respect to overcrowding, to freedom of exits, and to guarding against panics has been essential. Some regard to the quality of the air breathed has been urged. The forbidding of immoral and suggestive pictures has been in line with long accepted public policy.

No one can urge effective objections against any one of these precautionary measures. They have not been used to destroy a business, but have been solely in the interest of the safety of life and morals. They have not required any exceptional or extraordinary outlays on the part of the operators. That a committee of investigation is able to report favorably upon their general character shows that the requirements have been met in the proper spirit.

If now it should develop that subjects of some educational value are preferred to those of the blood and thunder type, or to those where temporary amusement is afforded by impossible situations labeled "humorous," the theaters may become positive benefits to their surrounding neighborhoods. People demand entertainment and amusement. Many of them are limited in the amount they can spend. Others do not care to go far from home in the evening. There are far worse places than the nickel theaters which might be frequented were it not for this new, cheap and apparently satisfactory type of popular resort.—Chicago Daily Tribune.

THE DRAMA LOSES TO THE PICTURE SHOW.

The popular-price houses at which melodrama is given are feeling more and more the effects of the cheap picture shows, which continue to multiply in the large cities, and the question of survival is becoming acute. Managers are at a loss to know what to do to meet the competition, especially as at many of the picture establishments a vaudeville performance is given in addition to the film display, and all for not more than 10 cents, and in most instances for 5.

In the large cities there are sometimes three picture shows in a single block, all well patronized, and people are not obliged to pay car fare to go to the theater district for amusement. The picture places are orderly and well conducted, and the fact that one may drop in at any time for an hour or two is another inducement. In many of them plays are given.

One of the melodramatic managers suggests combining the melodrama of the popular-price houses with pictures and vaudeville—that is to say, cut down the current melodramas to two acts, and with one of these display pictures and give some vaudeville specialties. The melodrama as the single attraction of the evening, he says, has evidently had its day, and some radical change must be made if the houses are to be kept open.

That the patrons of the picture theaters still prefer a play in some form is shown by the fact that travel pictures are in little demand, and comic pictures only moderately so. The audiences like dramatic interest, especially if combined with the spectacular, and hence the acceptability of such subjects as "She," taken from the novel. Molnar's play, "The Devil," is also popular in picture form. There must be a story, and ultimately, no doubt, suitable plays will be prepared for films. —"Sun."

THE SILENT STAGE.

The growth of the moving picture industry in itself furnishes proof that "the silent stage," as it has been termed, appeals with a wonderful power to masses of people. The industry has developed productive and distributing enterprises that involve millions of capital, and it is too late in the day to dismiss this form of amusement as something unworthy, or to hastily attempt to embarrass its operations without reference to the place it has won with the public. At the time of the recent attempt to close moving picture places in New York by virtue of an omnibus order of the Mayor the number of such places in this city was stated to be more than 500. It is probable that of this number many were legitimately subject to such an order, but that a majority of them were entitled to permission to continue under the terms of direction that govern all public amusements, cannot be questioned. There have been various estimates as to the number of persons that weekly witness moving picture shows in Greater New York, and it has been said the number will reach half a million. The patronage of the fifty-odd theaters devoted to regular or standard amusements in this city sinks in comparison to an insignificant number, but, of course, the moving picture places outnumber the regular theaters ten to one, their fees for admission are small and they give many shows a day, one audience following another in most of them. That the moving picture places injure the business of the regular theaters is beyond question, yet the measure of that injury is probably less than estimated by many that have given the subject attention. The great bulk of moving picture patrons would not visit a regular theater if there were no moving picture places in existence, as the regular theater price of admission is prohibitive as to them. Yet no doubt thousands of persons who formerly attended popular-price theaters have taken up the moving picture place as a substitute, and this—in connection with the ill-advised conduct of popular-price theaters during recent years, which have steadily seen the classes of plays offered at such theaters fall lower and lower in character—has served practically to put large population. The moving picture form of amusement, in fact, is but a phase of the stage of transition through which public amusements generally are passing. What the outcome may be no one can foretell. But it would seem that moving pictures have come to stay, and other amusement enterprises must adjust themselves to the conditions presented. It is probable that there will be a revival of interest in popular-price theaters when plays related in sanity and healthful appeal to the sorts of drama that formerly prospered in that class of theaters, shall be offered again; that the moving picture phase of amusements will be condensed and refined to the character of an institution; and that the regular, or higher-price theaters will prosper at all times in accordance with the nature of their offerings. And if the moving picture places do nothing else, they will educate a great number of their patrons to use of the theater in some form, and gradually inspire in them a desire to see regular plays in regular theaters at regular prices when ability to patronize such theaters comes.—Dramatic Mirror.

VIEWS OF AN EXHIBITOR IN A CITY OF THE MIDDLE WEST.

"The managers of moving picture theaters throughout the country are not making as much money as they did a year or more ago. The film business has reached a point where the manufacturers or dealers handling them are making the money, as the charges for service are gradually advancing. It makes no difference from whom we secure the pictures, we have to pay the prices asked by the exchange. We are many times offered reduced prices on films by parties representing that they have new subjects, but when we get them we are usually disappointed. I have many times found the pictures so much different from what I expected that I would not exhibit them. The business is handled in such a way that the house manager is obliged to pay for the service whether he uses the pictures or not. Very few of the house managers stick to one service very long. I know of a number who have changed houses from ten to a dozen times in a year.

"Many of the dealers are working hard for patronage, but as a rule they do not deliver the goods promised, and for this reason do not hold their patrons continuously. There is a great demand for new subjects, but only the larger and more influential dealers are getting the latest pictures. Many of the houses in the smaller towns are obliged to repeat the pictures. Sometimes they come under new titles and the managers do not know what they are getting until they see them on the screen. Moving pictures promise to be popular as long as new and interesting subjects are introduced.

"The moving picture business has been largely overdone in many of the larger cities, as well as in some of the smaller ones. Many of the former exclusive picture houses are also introducing other features. Many of them have found that a single vaudeville feature has resulted in increasing their business, while others have found vaudeville a detriment. In this section the exclusive picture houses with illustrated songs have fared better than those having both vaudeville and pictures.

"If the so-called combination in the film business continues to advance the prices they will in time drive many of the house managers to the wall, as the average picture house is not making any money under the existing conditions. Another thing that is working against the exclusive picture house is the fact that many of the regular theaters are putting in moving pictures on their open dates in order to help meet their expenses. In a number of places the regular theaters using moving pictures have driven out the exclusive houses."

THE JUVENILE LAW.

Several exhibitors have been getting into trouble since the law prohibiting the admission of children under 16 unless accompanied by adults. Some of these have unwisely said that "graft" is at the bottom of the arrests, but this is a wrong view to take. The authorities cannot be blamed for enforcing the law. Exhibitors have no more right to make money by law-breaking than any other citizen. If this law is obnoxious and against the wishes of the majority of the people it can be repealed.

BOUND VOLUMES OF THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

We call attention to the fact that Volumes I., II. and III. of The Moving Picture World may be had; bound price $2 each. Or the three volumes and The Moving Picture World for a year will be mailed free for $6.

All who wish to keep in touch with the progress of the moving picture industry should take advantage of this offer. Address The Moving Picture World, 125 East Twenty-third street, New York City.

Send $2.00 for a Subscription to the Moving Picture World—the representative trade newspaper.

C. W. LINN ON THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS.

Says It Has Passed the Period of Speculation and Settled Down to a Firm Rock Basis.

The Birmingham, Ala., Age-Herald takes up over a column of space to enthuse over the fact that that city was selected as the site for one of the three branch offices of Pathe Freres in this country. The Birmingham office, which is at 2104 First avenue, supplies fourteen of the Southern States and is in charge of Mr. C. W. Linn, who is of German birth, but who has been in this country for many years, and who has an intimate knowledge of and great faith in the future of the moving picture business, as is seen from the following interview given to the Age-Herald.

In talking of the moving picture business, Mr. Linn said: "Many people have been of the opinion that the moving picture business was of the kind that flourished to-day and was a thing of the past to-morrow. This particular idea appeared to be especially strong among the Americans, but the continued success which the business is enjoying is foreing them to change their minds. The moving picture business is one that is going to last. Each year has found it covering a broader field, while continual improvements are making it more and more popular in localities where it has been a thing of long standing.

"For educational value there is no greater amusement than the moving picture. Scenes of life and great happenings in all parts of the world are shown, thus teaching those who travel but little, things which they could never have learned otherwise. Take, for instance, a picture which was shown in Birmingham last week—a picture of Paris taken from a balloon. So realistic was the picture that one almost felt like he was in the balloon looking down on the great city throbbing with life.

"The concern which I represent stops at no expense in getting out a picture, though, of course, they get a return for their money. For instance, the 'Passion Play' gotten up by us cost over $150,000. The pictures were taken at Paris, but a commission of artists and others were sent to Palestine to study conditions and to study the scenes. They stayed there for some time, then returned to Paris, where a much longer time was taken up in the painting of the scenery, studying out of the play and rehearsing it. Altogether the time taken for getting out this picture was much over six months.

"All of our subjects are made at our plant in the suburbs of Paris, though the pictures themselves are taken in all parts of the world. The straight dramas and comic are mostly taken in Paris, and my concern has contracted with the greatest of French playwrights for dramatic sketches. We will also show in the near future pictures posed by the 'divine' Sarah Bernhardt and other great persons of the stage, while many of the greatest plays are being prepared for the camera.

"The moving picture business is here to stay, each year finding it growing greater. It has passed the period of speculation and has settled down to a firm rock basis."

MONTREAL EXHIBITORS PLAN COMBINE.

An effort is being made in Montreal, Can., to merge all the moving picture interests in operation there, and there is every reason to believe that the scheme will go through. A rough estimate shows that there has been at least $100,000 spent in the city in fitting up the many "theaters" in which the pictures are shown. Some of the places cost a great deal more than others, one St. Catherine street establishment, for instance, being valued to-day at $10,000. Informal meetings of those who are interested have been held during the past two weeks, and the first steps towards the merger have been taken. It is understood that several of the smaller shows decline to be parties to the deal, but it is pointed out that, with the action of the authorities to sop Sunday performances, it will be well for the little fellows to get in line and have their battle fought for them. It was really the necessity for organization to continue the Sunday business that led to the idea of merging all interests. It is, of course, a recognized fact, that as the Sunday shows turn in, in many cases, three times as much as any other day of the week, the loss would be so great, should they be forced to close on Sunday, that some of the cheaper places might have to close up altogether. One proprietor in the extreme north end of the city said that without his Sunday business, which is as big as the other six days put together, he would not be able to make both ends meet. This, then, is the real and primary cause of the attempt at permanent organization, and it is likely to be successful.

WEEKLY COMMENTS ON THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

My congenial commission, if executed with clear fidelity, impartiality and knowledge, should be an attractive feature of this paper. And something more than attractive. Useful! Useful to the film maker and the film exhibitor, and useful to the public. It is sometimes said that dramatic criticism does not make a bad play successful, or that it cannot mar a good one. Lord Beaconsfield styled dramatic critics unsuccessful authors, and actors, playwrights and managers alternately cajole and repulse them. But when all is said and done, the stage would soon become intolerable, and finally die of morbid rottenness, were it not for the critical columns in the newspapers.

I don't say that a similar fate threatens the moving picture: but the events of the past few weeks in New York City certainly point to its probabiliy. The censorship of the press—the most potent and therefore the most effective form of censorship in the world—has been brought to bear on the moving picture at the pyschological moment, with the result that there has been a visible stoppage in the dry rot that was attacking the business. It is not necessary to dot the i's and cross the t's of this innuendo. It was time that The Moving Picture World, the only authoritative publication of the kind in existence, assumed the role of censor for the benefit of the industry and all concerned in its welfare (and they may be counted by millions), and my readers may rest assured that whatever is written in this section of the paper, which is to be a regular and permanent one, has its sole aim in a sincere wish to make good moving picture photography profitable for its producers and popular with the public.

* * *

I have been into a far country, otherwise Harlem, to me until this week a terra incognita. Harlem has all the appearance of sleek, smug, suburban respectability, and the manners and customs of its inhabitants are very well made evident by a contemplation of the large number of them which perpetually fills Mr. Fox's handsome and commodious Orpheum Theater, on 125th street. When I entered the portals of this gorgeous temple of amusement the other day, I felt like another being of a superior order, especially when I contemplated the reflection of myself in the decorative mirrors of that entrance.

The place was so crowded that I could not find a seat. I walked down to the pianist, and you so badly illuminated the center of your house, Mr. Fox, that, in the semi-darkness, I sat in the laps of several unoffending females, before discovering that there were no empty seats there and so I had to retire to the back part of the orchestra.

Having got rid of this solitary grumble, I should like to pass a compliment to the young lady, who on Wednesday afternoon last sang the song called "Don't Go Away," as some very prettily colored song slides illustrating it were shown. The song and slides were the best I have seen and heard recently, and if they were always as good I would not grouch a little bit.

As regards the films a very elaborate and photographically beautiful Japanese subject called the "Daughter of the Sun" was, I thought, somewhat coldly received, because the audience did not seem to follow the story. I likewise fear that this was the mental condition of my neighbors with regard to the piece de resistance of the afternoon, the magnificent Pathe called the "Assassination of the Duke of Guise."

It is a moot point whether foreign historical subjects are generally understood by American audiences, but I wish to say that as a piece of moving picture stagecraft, archaeological accuracy and correctness I have never seen a better motion picture drama than this play which culminates in the doing to death of the Duke and the remorse of the murderous King. The hand of the practised dramatist and producer is visible in every detail, the acting is superbly natural and the picture as a whole is extremely fine. Still, the audience received it in respectful silence.

On the other hand the two succeeding films which show the turpitude of a newly married man and the other which illustrates the extraordinary pranks of an amateur acrobat excited great merriment. Here I laughted heartily, and the moral of my visit is this, that the average audience of a moving picture house, as I have said before, wants laughter, wants comedy, farce, or whatever you like to call it, so long as it amuses them. [Exhibitors take note!]

In conclusion I would like to say that at Harlem the moving picture is shown to the best advantage and that houses of this type deserve the success which they undoubtedly receive.

WATCH YOUR EMPLOYEES.

In most motion picture theaters the employees are uniformly courteous, but occasionally one enters a place where the employees are quite as far the other way. New York City has a number of such places, unfortunately. Perhaps it has a good many. The writer has found a few. Managers should insist that their employees be uniformly courteous, especially to ladies and children. They will lose nothing by doing so. And they will gain much.

THOSE AWFUL SONGS.

Managers will do well to cut out the songs unless they are better. The subject matter of the songs used the past week is disgusting in nearly all instances and the slides have been poor, with a few exceptions. They do not entertain. They do not instruct. They do not amuse. The programmes would be far better without them.

As has been pointed out before it requires a good deal of taste to select a good song. It requires equal taste to properly illustrate. Where taste is lacking in both directions the result is anything but pleasing. Managers will do well to strike them out of their programmes.

One wonders what the song writers have been doing lately. Surely someone is capable of producing a good song, and if he does managers should have taste enough to recognize it. Perhaps under the inspiration of a decent song slide makers would turn out better slides. Audiences leave in droves when the songs are sung, and one can scarcely blame them. Poor songs, unsatisfactory slides and poorer singing make a combination that anyone would escape if possible.

Further, a song is not necessary for the success of a programme. Good pictures alone are needed. Good pictures and plenty of them will make a successful programme without songs, vaudeville or lectures. Managers who have pinned their faith to pictures alone have made money and unquestionably it is motion pictures only which the bulk of the patrons of the theaters want to see.

MACHINE TROUBLES AND THEIR REMEDIES.

By Merritt L. Oxenham.

1. The Film Runs Off the Top Sprocket.—See that the guide roller bears evenly against the sprocket, and that the spring holding it is not too weak. See that the film comes straight from the top magazine to the sprocket and not with a twist. Sometimes this is caused by a faulty joint in the film.

2. The Picture in Dark on the Left Side.—The door is not correctly fastened, allowing the film to flap on the right side of the window aperture, thus causing the left side of the picture to be out of focus on the screen.

3. Shaky Pictures.—Due to worn out parts, dirt on tracks, faulty photography or unsteady machine board. Replace or adjust the parts (generally star wheel and driver), clean the springs and chain the machine to the floor.

4. The Machine WON'T Run.—Oil all the bearings and do not forget the star wheel. See that the gears are clean and that the fan is free from lens or other obstructions. The intermittent sprocket roller sometimes catches the star wheel; correct this by the set screw on the roller bracket.

5. White Spots Jump.—Adjust the fan by moving it gently one way or another until it is correct, then set it tight.

6. Film Breaking.—Caused by loop disappearing (see No. 1); incorrect feeding (see No. 8); faulty mending, or film in bad condition.

7. Poor Take-Up Action.—Increase the tension on the split pulley by moving the collar closer or put greater pressure on the belt by lengthening the toggle joint on the take-up.

8. Shifting Frame-Up.—When the distance between the intermittent sprocket and the feed rollers varies by use of the frame-up, look out for the loop. Shift the frame-up all the way up, and then make the lower loop the ordinary size and the upper one slightly larger, experimenting until the correct size is found.

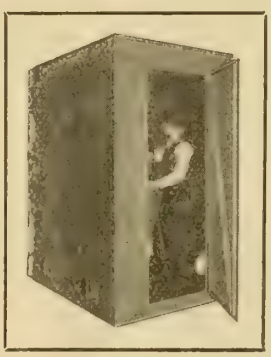
9. Three-Piece Lens.—Not all machines are equipped with a tube lens and when an operator comes across one for the first time he is sometimes confused. By moving the tube (they come for various distances) in or out with the finger a focus can be secured when ordinary movement by the ratchet will not give it.

FOR SALE

100 Reels Independent Film

In good running order, all with titles. A rare bargain. Prices from $17.50 to $30 per reel. Will be sent C.O.D. with privilege of examination on receipt of $10 on deposit. Will sell any number desired.

Moving Picture Booths



Built according to Underwriters Rules. Full size 4 x 6 x 7 ft. $40.00. Larger size in proportion.

Williams, Brown & Earle

Department P

918 Chestnut Street - Philadelphia, Pa.

Serves You Right Who?

THE CHICAGO SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE

Masonic Temple, Chicago

AND

ST. LOUIS SONG SLIDE SERVICE

Holland Building, St. Louis

We are the largest exclusive song slide renters in the U. S., and we carry an immense stock of all the latest popular song hits which we offer you in any quantity at the extremely low rate of

50c Per Set a Week

Every Set Guaranteed Complete from Title to Chorus

Comments on Film Subjects.

The week has seen little change in the average quality of films shown. The weeding-out process has been well maintained and the average quality has been better than it was a month ago. Apparently the combination is exercising its censorship to good purpose, and the patronage will increase proportionately. There should be no question about this. The independents are following the lead of the combination. Their films are better than they were.

One notices particularly the proportion of old films which are being used. They constitute perhaps one-third the total in a number of theaters. And they seem to please quite as well. The truth is that there have always been films which deserved more than the ephemeral life which lasted until changing day only. Now and then a film is produced which has an unlimited capacity to instruct or amuse. Where the output was unlimited these films never got a chance beyond the changing day, but with output restricted the films which are good will have a wider field and will amuse or instruct far more people.

It will be noticed that many subjects on which we comment are several weeks old, but this is because they have been shown during the week in the theaters where we usually go to see new subjects.

"The Silver Dollar."—S. Lubin has created a picture under this title which not only illustrates what fantastic dreams one can have after he has eaten heartily, but it also shows how the crowd will chase the dollar. Some of its situations are funny enough, but the long winded chase and the destruction of property and more or less indecent struggles between men and women are not to be commended.

"The King of the Ring."—A very good production of the Selig Company which pleased the audience. The subject is very interesting, full of life and of action, well treated and of good photographic quality. Although the prize fight was the main point of the film, the last round was rather sharply criticised by most of the audience, as the defeated pugilist is entirely too weak in his actions. It is no more a fight but a farce.

"The Hand."—This little playlet from the Pathes has several interesting situations, not the least of which is where the girl who has sent her suitor away discovers a strange hand through the curtains. The objection to it is that the costuming is extremely Frenchy. It is not customary for American women to receive their men friends in such a state of deshabille, at least not publicly. It looks out of place in this country.

"Unlucky Horseshoe."—Lubin has developed the reverse side of the picture and has shown what might happen if the horseshoe brought bad luck instead of good. Some of the difficulties are funny and some are simply inane. However the film gets more than one laugh. It would be a pleasing modification of this to have the poor luck dependent upon the way the horseshoe is placed over the door, that is, which side up it is. The photography and action are good.

"The Curtain Pole."—The Biograph have gone all the destructive comics one better and have placed a crazy man in a cab with a long curtain pole and a drunken driver and have set them careering through crowded streets and along alleys where there are things to be scraped off. Before they are done they have a mob after them and have destroyed a considerable amount of property. Nevertheless, the film makes audiences laugh heartily and usually ends with prolonged applause. One is disposed to wonder why the Biograph Company with its splendid organization has felt forced to adopt the wornout scheme of foreign producers and introduce these long chases and destruction of property as a part of their amusement films. No fault can be found with the picture technically, but the plan under which it is worked is not quite so satisfactory.

"The Prospective Heiress."—Perhaps not every father would want to resort to apparent suicide to discover the real intentions of his daughter's lovers, but the Pathes have shown what money will do for people under some circumstances. The film has one merit worth mentioning. It is short.

"A Powerful Tenor."—This comedy from the Pathes is short, a merit which is worth considering in subjects of this character. The tenor, whether he is good or bad, gets all that is coming to him in the picture anyhow, and sometimes one thinks he deserved it else he wouldn't get it.

"The Miner's Will."—In this film Gaumont has given a good interpretation of the miner's life, and has depicted as graphically as has ever been done, perhaps, the roving spirit which urges on the ceaseless quest for gold. The film has all the technical quality of the Gaumont pictures and excites much interest wherever shown.

"The Sportive Puppet."—Some novel magical effects are produced in this picture, and while it is short it is none the less entertaining. The Gaumonts are to be commended for producing a film so entertaining.

"The Inn of Death."—The Vitagraph Company has produced a picture which has some scenic qualities to commend it, but there is too much of the rough brigand flavor to it. The abuse of the little girl, for example, while it may be, and probably is, true to life, is not calculated to amuse an audience. Technically one can find no fault with the film, but the subject is as horrible as its name implies.

"Outwitted."—A film which is the product of the Eclipse people. It is good comedy, better, one might say, than a good many that are offered, and technically it is equally good. The methods adopted by the arrested parties to escape from the gendarmes are amusing and the close is greeted with applause.

"Arrival of the American Fleet at Sydney."—A record film from the Urban people which shows the American fleet steaming into Sydney and afterward pictures the crowds which attended the receptions, etc. Technically it is as good as the usual film of this character and it serves admirably to give people here an idea of how the fleet looked on the other side of the world.

"The Hands of a Wizard."—A magic picture from the Urban house which is marvelous in its manipulations of different and seemingly impossible objects. Only the hands are visible and they do some wonderful things before the picture runs its course. Such films are not only interesting but are extremely entertaining. More like this should be produced. The opportunity for variety in this direction is unlimited.

"The Honor of the Slums."—A tribute to the Salvation Army from the Vitagraph folks which would be hard to equal. This film could well be used by religious organizations in illustrating the saving grace of what they preach. The staging is excellent and the last scene, in the Bowery Mission, is unusually strong from a religious standpoint.

"How the Kids Got Even."—A comic with the Vitagraph trade-mark which is uproariously funny in spots. It illustrates a phase of country life which is fast passing away. It is good, clean fun and deserves a long run.

"An Early Round With the Milk Man."—Possibly this film is funny. A good many laughed when it was shown, but there were others who did not. There is nothing funny in the movements of a drunken man. These films should be left off the managers' list. Give good, clean fun and plenty of it, but a man who has made a beast of himself with intoxicants is not a subject for laughter.

"A Singer's Sacrifice."—The Biograph people have told a tender love story, though one can scarcely understand why they did not follow the lines of David Garrick all through and finally allow the young man to marry the singer. It was not right, and it doesn't seem right to the audience, to force the singer to make all the sacrifice. The staging and acting are alike good, but the picture leaves an unsatisfied feeling because of this apparently unnecessary sacrifice.

"Mr. Jones Has a Card Party."—A comedy of the cat's away variety. As soon as Mrs. Jones leaves for a temperance convention the house is turned into a bar room and Mr. Jones becomes seriously inebriated. It may be funny, but there ought to be other sources of fun.

"The Heroes of St. Bernard."—A film without a trade-mark which illustrates how the dogs and the life savers work, or used to work, in the Alps before the time of tunnels and excellent roads. The picture is a good record and possesses the merit of instructing as well as amusing.

"His Ward's Love" of the Biograph. It is very regrettable that such a good film should be so short. The audience was captivated by the simple but well told story, by the clever acting, the great care in all the details and the excellent photography.

"Changing of Souls."—A comic film which greatly pleases on account of the originality of the subject and of the excellent photographic work. Even in their comic productions the Great Northern folks stick to their clever acting and do not neglect the details in the excitement of the funny stunts.

A table d'hote dinner usually satisfies, our Song Slide Service always does

Over 200 song hits that are not hackneyed, artistically illustrated

New York Successes at your service weekly

Old time favorites for those who desire them

RENTAL, 50c PER SET WEEKLY

Announcement Slides Up-to-date
When in doubt try them

SYKO SLIDE CO.

Room 505, Cronin Building, Troy, N. Y

WRITE TO-DAY

Judging by Our Last Week's Business we have made

A HIT

By Combining Low Prices and Good Slides

But we are not too busy to keep Our promise of Four New Lecturettes A Week

THIS WEEK

PARIS GERMANY ROME

AND

Special for Lent

JERUSALEM AND THE HOLY LANDS

Still filling orders for Life of Washington, Our Navy, London.

Each Set consists of 12 Slides and Lecture.

$1.50 per set

Orders Filled in Rotation.

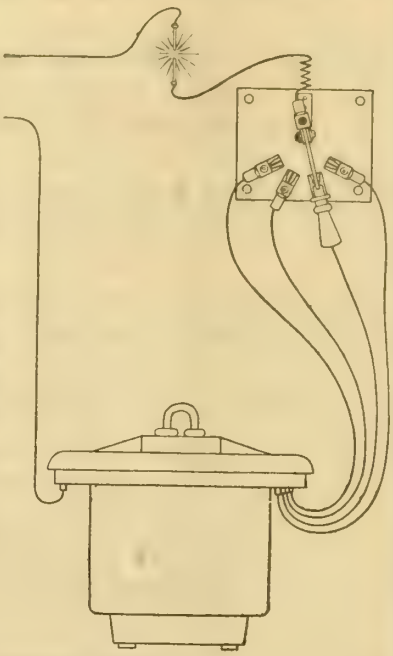
GUNBY BROS.,

10 East Fourteenth Street New York

P. S.—Send Money Order. Credit impossible at these prices.

ECONOMIZE

The Lemon Arc Regulator



For alternating current ONLY. Will reduce the power consumed by MORE THAN one-half and give a much better light for the picture machines.

WRITE FOR PARTICULARS

MADE BY

Vindex Electric Co.

AURORA, ILL.

STILL IN THE RING

We are still Independent and are going to be. We intend to own and have some small say how we will run our own business.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

Liberty Film Exchange

Telephone Walnut 3956

1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.

Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Louisiana, Mo.—W. T. Herrelson has opened a new moving picture theater in Louisiana.

Broadhead, Wis.—Mr. S. F. Williams has sold the Lyric Theater to Mr. Bert Stephens.

Baltimore, Md.—Louis T. Deetjen is converting the store room at 426½ Baltimore street into a moving picture theater.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Ralph Carter has purchased the Empire Theater and will soon open for business.

Rock Valley, Ia.—Clark Riddle and Jelle Werkhoven will open a moving picture theater in Rock Valley.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A new moving picture theater will be opened at 2238 Front street by Michael Steiffel.

Mishawaka, Ind.—J. Henry Kraker is erecting an addition to his electric theater at 120 North Main street.

Toledo, Ohio.—Abe Shapiro, of Saginaw, will open the Family Theater, at Cherry and Canton streets.

Salina, Kans.—Charles Kastner & Co. are making arrangements to open a moving picture theater in Salina.

St. Paul, Minn.—James Gilowsky and L. E. Lund will soon open the Gem Family Moving Picture Theater here.

Joliet, Ill.—Mr. L. M. Rubens, of this city, is planning to open moving picture theaters in a number of small villages.

Oneida, N. Y.—Musante & La Beef will open a new moving picture theater in the Warner Building, on Vanderbilt avenue.

Okford, Miss.—J. W. T. Falkner has sold the City Opera House to L. M. Russell, who will make extensive improvements.

Gulfport, Miss.—A room in the Hoyle Building is being remodeled into a moving picture show, to be owned by Mr. Hoyle.

Kankakee, Ill.—Wm. A. Caddere has taken possession of the Petite Theater, having purchased it from Mrs. E. M. Drukher.

Caldwell, Ida.—Carr & Holterman have purchased the Scenic Moving Picture Theater from Frank Roges and taken possession.

Akeley, Minn.—Messrs. Lee and Peterson will erect a first class opera house, to be used for the exhibition of moving pictures.

Lowell, Mass.—A new picture theater, known as the Mathews' Moving Picture Palace, opened on Dutton street to a crowded house.

Oelwein, Ia.—Mr. J. G. Capron, of Waterloo, has purchased the Oelwein Opera House and will conduct it as a vaudeville and moving picture show.

Pontiac, Mich.—The Old Star Theater has discontinued operation and the interior is being completely remodeled for a new electric one.

Ft. Smith, Ark.—The Ft. Smith Cameraphone Company has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000. Wm. Moore is president of the corporation.

Little Rock, Ark.—The Crystal Theater, located on West Second street, has been sold to W. S. Layton, and the name of the theater will be changed to the Lyric.

Argenta, Ark.—S. H. Budd, of Texarkana, has leased the building at 106 East Washington street and will open a vaudeville and moving picture theater there.

Des Moines, Ia.—The Elite Theater Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are Charles Berkell, R. Berkell and S. Philliber.

Lake Charles, La.—The Pastime Theater, which has been conducted by J. L. Pitman as a moving picture and vaudeville show, has been sold to the Ina Lehr Company.

Newark, N. J.—F. T. Proctor's Bijou Dream, formerly Blaney's Theater, in Washington street near Market, has changed its policy from vaudeville to moving pictures.

Wilmington, Del.—The United Theaters Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are E. L. Squire, G. W. Dorsey and Louis Rothstein.

Milwaukee, Wis.—A new corporation, known as the Wisconsin Theater Company, has been organized with a capital stock of $13,500. The incorporators are Wm. C. Schnell, Geo. T. Campbell and H. Harris.

Ogden, Utah.—M. Beck, head of the Orpheum Vaudeville Circuit, is planning to establish a theater in this city.

Remsen, Iowa.—M. R. Faber proposes the erection of a fireproof opera house here.

Hearne, Tex.—Y. S. Mathis has been awarded the contract for the erection of an opera house for W. A. Wilkerson.

Wood River, Neb.—Harry Hedges, of Hanlock, is making arrangements to open a moving picture theater here.

Eau Claire, Wis.—E. T. Vinton has sold the Unique Theater to H. S. Scammon and F. S. Graven, of Mason City, Ia.

Great Falls, Mont.—Messrs. J. E. Shattuck and F. I. Hindley, of Helena, have purchased the Dreamland moving picture theater here and have taken possession.

Pontiac, Mich.—John and I. Bandefiefer, of Kalamazoo, will open a new moving picture theater here.

Wilkes Barre, Pa.—The National Amusement Company, which has conducted the Family Theater, has sold out to the Monitor Realty Company, of New York.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Mr. Mensing, proprietor of the Casino moving picture theater, is making extensive improvements in the building.

Fort Dodge, Iowa.—Mr. Henry Castligion has opened a new moving picture theater in the building formerly occupied by the Empire.

Norman, Ill.—J. W. Koup, of Bloomington, has rented the Pierce building here, and will open a nickelodeon.

Utica, N. Y.—The Utica Hippodrome Amusement Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $8,000. The incorporators are Adam Tennis, Peter Karl, Frank P. Meyer and Peter J. Tennis.

Lockhart, Tex.—The fire department at its monthly meting has appointed a committee composed of Tom Connolly, V. Clark, E. Andreweather and others, to advertise for bids for the erection of an opera house.

Baltimore, Md.—The Celtic Amusement Company will erect a moving picture theater at 839 Greenmount avenue.

Sulphur, Okla.—W. P. and Pascal Head, of Whitewright and Sherman, Tex., will erect a $25,000 amusement building here, to be used as a dancing pavilion and airdome.

St. Charles, Ill.—John Bogart will soon open his moving picture theater here.

Claremont, N. H., Feb. 8.—The selectmen have decided to grant licenses to conduct moving picture shows to E. H. Doherty, Jewett Atwood, Joseph Lynch, Dean Putnam, John Goodrow and Harvey Moody. The decision is the result of a number of hearings. There was vigorous opposition.

Some of the applicants think the fee, $1 per day, too high. The license provides that school children shall not be permitted to attend the shows during the afternoon when school is in session unless accompanied by their parents or guardians.

Savannah, Ga.—Savannah is in the midst of one of the worst storms that has ever broken over the South. This storm is not made up of rain and wind, but is purely made up of human voices from in and around Savannah.

The readers of the "World" are familiar with the Trust that has sprung up lately, and the moving picture people in Savannah are not going to stand and see things run this way. So far there is only one concern that has paid its license, and what is more, this will be the only house that will pay it.

Mr. Arthur Lucas, Jr., who has been Southern distributing agent for several of the moving picture manufactories in the South, has sent in his resignation, to take effect at once, and will join hands with the people who wish to handle pictures without paying license for them.

A meeting will be held in Savannah shortly, when moving picture owners will meet to talk of plans by which they will use nothing but the independent films. Some of the cities that will have representatives in Savannah at the meeting are Atlanta, Augusta, Jacksonville, Fla., Memphis, Meridian and many other cities in the South.

L. E. Riner, of 616 West Monroe street, Chicago, an experienced operator, announces that he is the inventor of a new lubricant for moving picture machines which has some special features that recommend it to attention.

Beware! Mr. Manager

A very contagious disease exists (worn out sickly junk film service) means

Instant Death to your Theatre

LET US PRESCRIBE OUR SELECTED FILM SERVICE

A tonic that is necessary for success. If you are worried, and need assistance, write for latest proposition; results will follow; we increase receipts.

PENNSYLVANIA FILM CO.

400-1-2-3-4 Lewis Building
PITTSBURGH, PA.

Mr. Operator

If you want your machine to run easier with less noise, wear longer and keep the machine perfectly lubricated without getting oil on the film lubricate your machine with

"ONE DROP OIL"
(non-genuine without the "Star Wheel" on each bottle)

I have laboured six years to get an oil on the market that is adaptable for the projecting trade.

If your film exchange has'nt got it send 25 cents in stamps for full size bottle.

L. E. RINER

616 W. Monore St. Chicago, Ill.

Film Exchanges Write for Wholesale Prices.

SONG SLIDES

The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES

"Tell Me The Old, Old Story"
"When The Dew is on The Clover in Kildare"
"Some Day Will Be Too Late"

THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

Let Our Motto be Yours:
The Best not the Cheapest

Send 50 cents and 4 cents postage for sample of our latest annoucement slides. Write for same.

Advertising Slides Made To Order.

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.
407 Superior Building, CLEVELAND, OHIO

MEET US AT THE
SECOND ANNUAL BALL
OF THE
Miles Bros. Employees
AT WEBSTER HALL
11th Street Bet. 3d and 4th Aves.
Wednesday Eve., Mar. 10, '09
8.30 P. M.
TICKETS ADMITTING GENTLEMAN AND LADY 50 CTS.

Wonderland Film Exchange
1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa.
Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company
Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.
EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices.
FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED

Morton Film Exchange
(Incorporated)
S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.
High-Class Film Service
LICENSEES MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY
Parties desiring first-class service write us

CORRESPONDENCE.

SCHOOLS FOR OPERATORS.

Editor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—I venture to submit a few suggestions as to why the picture on the screen is so often hazy, dim and flickering. To get clear, brilliant definition should be the pride of the operator and the delight of the audience.

Is the outline of your picture dim? Maybe the operator does not know that his carbons are not properly adjusted. Maybe the current is weak. Maybe from defective contacts. Maybe that the shutter is out of adjustment and spoils the definition of the picture. Maybe that the lens is out of distance. Maybe that the lens is of too short focus.

The inexperienced operator who imagines that the science of operating consists in turning a crank will find that he is up against exact knowledge. For to know is everything. The lawyer has much to learn before he is admitted to the bar. The doctor must go through a course of scientific training before his knowledge equips him for recognition as a medical practitioner. He does not start out to get his experience by killing people. Must the operator get his instruction and his skill by putting on bad pictures, burning up machines, burning buildings and jeopardizing human lives? In my opinion there should be a school of instruction for operators in all large cities, where a course of experimental operating and practical demonstration would qualify the student for obtaining a certificate of efficiency, which would guarantee that he was competent to operate calcium or electrical machines of standard makes. Yours very truly,

ROBERT GOSS.

[Our correspondent's suggestion is a good one. It would pay some qualified instructor to start a school for operators. One large moving picture house that we know of has its own school and gives practical instruction. Many of those who present themselves for training have either mistaken their vocation or are deficient in intelligence; of those that are "taught" many fall down; but the really clever and competent are always sure of work.—Ed.]

VAUDEVILLE SANDWICHES.

February 17, 1909.

To the Editor of the Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—I am sorry to see that parties who depend on the cinematographic industry for a living can boldly say that they would be tired of looking at moving pictures, if said pictures were not sandwiched between vaudeville acts.

As the "Index" is supported by moving picture interests, is it correct for its editor to say that moving pictures are too tiresome to be shown alone?

Is it fair for the "Index" to take the money of the manufacturers, then to use its editorial columns to boom up the vaudeville acts, the greatest enemy of the moving pictures?

If Mr. Lyman H. Howe can show moving pictures only to the great audiences crowding the Hippodrome on Sunday evenings, is it not a proof that the good American public can digest long programs of moving pictures without having to take a vaudeville act as a tonic?

I am against vaudeville acts because I know that three-fourths of the exhibitors cannot afford such an expense.

We must bear in mind that the few places in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, able to show good vaudeville acts, are a mere drop of water in the great ocean of moving picture shows of the country. Some of the 10-cent places on Fourteenth street, with a large seating capacity, are able to give shows to the numerous transients from 1 P. M. to midnight, but for few such places we have thousands of moving picture shows scattered all over the country who have no matinees, who must make their money between 7 and 11 P. M., who have no Sunday work and who do not seat over 250 persons. With only such a small seating capacity and only four hours of work and no Sunday business, such places cannot collect much more than $300 per week. When the rent, the current, the license, the film service, the wages and other incidentals are deducted, the owner must be satisfied if he can clear from $30 to $60 per week of profit on his investment. On such a small margin the exhibitors cannot afford to pay any good vaudeville acts, and no vaudeville act is better than cheap ones.

If the vaudeville acts are to be a feature of the moving picture shows, it will not be long before many of the places will have to close their doors, and if such a calamity is in store for us, the renters will have to reduce their orders and the manufacturers will have to reduce their outputs.

Is the "Index" doing a wise thing in advocating the vaudeville acts as a digestive for moving pictures?

Is it wise to so boldly proclaim that moving pictures are losing ground?

Mr. Editor, be a little more cheerful. If even you cannot digest all the films produced, have at least a little consideration for the manufacturers, who give you a living by advertising in your paper. Show them a bright outlook for the future of the industry.

Can we blame the daily newspapers for constantly casting stones at the moving pictures, when a trade paper, entirely supported by the moving picture interests, turns down cinematography and declares that moving pictures are too tiresome to be shown alone? Respectfully,

JNO. M. BRADLET.

"GIVING THE SHOW AWAY."

Sparta, Ill., February 5, 1909.

Moving Picture World.

Gentlemen:—I am a careful reader of the World and wish to congratulate you on the wonderful advancement you have made, especially in the past year, and in my opinion your comments on film subjects is alone worthy the subscription price. It gives the country exhibitor who has not the opportunity to see the pictures before receiving them from the renters, a chance to know how to advertise when he receives an unknown subject. I am only sorry that you are limited to a few columns for your comments.

In your criticism on "How Moving Pictures Are Made" I note you give the Vitagraph credit of a meritorious production. This is the instance in which I cannot voice your sentiments. Why the Vitagraph Company should deem it necessary to show the leading lady smoking a cigarette while making up is more than I can see, and in my opinion it is a disgrace to all concerned and a great reflection on our American camera artists. True, they may have only been desirous of detailing their pictures true to life in this instance. But can you imagine the impression it leaves in the minds of the unsuspecting audience, who are at all times only too glad to run down the stage and its children?

We are all subject to mistakes, but here's hoping that the Vitagraph Company will put the kibosh on such minor detailing and give us something more uplifting.

Yours truly,

J. C. HEWITT.

[Our correspondent is not the first one that has raised objections to this same feature in this film mentioned. If manufacturers will cater to the more critical they cannot fall far short of pleasing the general public.—Ed.]

Don't Be a Cheap Skate

AND RUN A LOT OF JUNK

People won't stand for It

It Isn't Always Policy to Cut Down Expenses

INVEST YOUR MONEY IN A GOOD FILM SERVICE

The difference in price is a trifle, paid over and over again by increased patronage.

We are in an especially favorable position to take good care of you, getting a constant supply of
All the Latest Licensed Films Every Week

It certainly will pay you to Investigate

We still are and remain

THE C. J. HITE CO.

439-441 Monadnock Block - - Chicago, Ill.

The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

The New Kind

Independent Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one.

WE HANDLE THE FILMS OF THE FOLLOWING MAKERS:

Hepworth
Cricks & Martin
R. W. Paul
Graphic Cinematograph
Sheffield
Walter Tyler
British Colonial
Wrench
Williamson
Crescent Film Co.
Great Northern Film Co.
World Film Mfg. Co.

Eclair
International
Berliner Film Borse
Heinrich Ernemann A. G.
Fritz Gilics
Alfred Duskes
Internationale Kinematografen
Deutsche Mutoscope
Deutsche Bioscope Gesellschaft
Italian Cines
Centaur Film Co.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,

A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)

CHICACO, ILL.

OVERWORKED OPERATORS.

Baltimore, Md., February 17, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Sir: A few brief questions we would like you to answer in reference to the experienced operators for theaters that are open from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. Should they work the whole time or should they work half that time? And what wages should they receive, for an operator that has had experience for two years, sober and reliable? If a concern has two houses open from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. working three operators between the two houses, what salary should an operator receive? I remain Yours, F. B.

[The above questions should be decided between employer and employee. It is not within our province to express an opinion further than to say that no operator can or should be asked to work from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. The show that gives such a continuous performance should be well able to afford two operators with alternate shifts. It is absurd to think that any operator can put on a good show with such exacting hours, neither can he be responsible for disasters, as human endurance has its limit. The latter question depends upon the location and the prevailing rate of wages. Fifteen dollars per week is paid in some places, eighteen to twenty dollars in others. We invite replies to these questions from exhibitors and operators, as this is the third inquiry of a similar nature we have received in the past few days.—Ed.]

INCOMPETENT OPERATORS.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—The old-fashioned lecture operator who owned his own apparatus and understood all the wrinkles of operating a dissolving lantern with limelight or electricity, is becoming scarce and there is a consequent kick and complaint among the better class of lecturers who use pictures. They have had their experience with the "crank turners" who have been running moving picture machines, and what these gentlemen do not know about skillful operating has impressed them forcibly. Now, the whole trouble with the lecturers is that they want to hire a competent operator, who has spent hundreds of dollars on his apparatus, for the same pay that they can get an incompetent man with a $14.00 magic lantern.

A thoroughly competent stereopticon operator owning his own apparatus for both electricity and limelight, is worth ten dollars per day and all his traveling and hotel expenses. Where he goes one hundred miles from the city his pay should never be less than $25.00 and railway expenses.

Yet lecturers who use pictures will take the chance of being accused of dealing in lemons by taking cheap, incompetent operators with them and destroy their chances of return dates. They will likewise cut their price for their lectures and expect to take part of the cut out of the wages of their operators.

I recall to mind a famous lecturer in this city who discharged a competent operator to whom he was paying $50.00 per week, because a moving picture company offered him a man for half that sum, whom they guaranteed as an expert. This expert had never manipulated a dissolving lantern, his whole experience having been with a moving picture machine. He went to Boston with the lecturer and in the Colonial Theater made a spectacle not only of the lecturer but of himself. He couldn't make his two lights burn in unison and didn't know why. The lecture had to be run by putting in one picture, taking it out and substituting another—with the consequent wait between pictures.

The trouble with this man was that he had been getting fifteen dollars per week running a moving picture machine, and ten dollars out of the twenty-five he was getting from the lecturer now went to the moving picture concern. He was guaranteed as an expert and did not know his business. He took one rheostat with him to run two lanterns set up in multiple and couldn't understand why one light should drop out of circuit when he struck the arc on the other one. These are the kind of experts the lecturers have been experimenting with and in consequence the few really competent operators have abandoned the business. HOWARD.

The

Calumet Film Exchange

OFFERS

AN UNEQUALLED FILM SERVICE

OF

All the Latest Licensed Film Subjects Weekly

All Standard Machines, Rheostats, Current Savers, Carbons, Tickets, Lenses, and General Machine Parts and Supplies Carried in Stock.

Our prices are just right.

Drop us a line and you will find it to your advantage.

The Calumet Film Exchange

1609-1610 MASONIC TEMPLE - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

LICENSED FILMS
VS.
Independent Films

FOUR ACES vs. A FOUR FLUSHER

The comparison is exactly the same since they have shown their hand

COMPARE IT YOURSELF

OUR HAND:	THEIR HAND:
Edison,	Mr. No Name
Biograph,	" Junk
Selig,	" Failure
Pathe,	" Lemon
Vitagraph,	" Duper
Lubin,	" Oblivion
Kalem,	" Hot Air
Gaumont,	" Bankrupt
Urban-Eclipse	" Obscurity
Essanay	" Four-Flusher

MR. EXHIBITOR, Ask Yourself:

Can I afford to use this Independent Junk?
Will my patrons stand for it?
Why turn down a sure thing for an uncertainty?
Why hesitate taking out a License, which means protection to me?

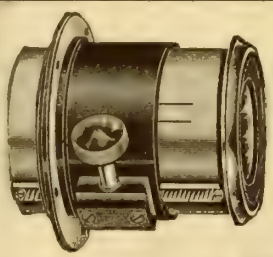
No business has ever succeeded, or will ever succeed without regulation and protection. And now that it is offered you, accept it while the opportunity affords.

For a Film Service that stands alone, write the following offices:

Pittsburg, Pa. Cincinnati, O. Des Moines, Ia.
Wilkesbarre, Pa. Rochester, N. Y. Lincoln, Neb.

PITTSBURG CALCIUM LIGHT & FILM CO.

W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange
535-536-537 Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg., 1402 Broadway, NEW YORK
We Book Theatres, Clubs, Parks, Fairs, Rinks, Circuses, Airdomes, Picture Houses, Horse Shows, etc. We treat all alike. Control 500 Acts.
Our efficient service insures success of your Enterprise. Ask anybody.
New Department { Theatres, Parks, Bought, Sold, Leased, Operated. Dramatic Bureau, Plays, Routes, People, Costumes, Scenery.



We make the best lenses in the world for projecting motion pictures and lantern slides. Can you spend a little money more wisely and profitable than by ordering a set of lenses which will

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

IMPROVE YOUR PICTURES?

NEW PRICES

M. P. Projection Lenses any size with our improved jacket with spiral adjustment	$15.00
No. 1 Stereopticon Lenses	15.00
No. 2 Stereopticon Lenses	20.00

All dealers sell them on approval.

WRITE FOR OUR NEW CIRCULAR

When ordering state the size of your screen and the length of the picture wanted. Give the distance from the lens to the screen. Remit the price of the lens or furnish references.

GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES
and Slides of Historical and Memorial Scenes and Personages
Over 250 different styles of the Finest Colored and most Artistically Designed Slides at any Price
3 SLIDES FOR $1.00
TRAVELOGUES
THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY
SEND FOR CATALOG "D" 224 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

Exhibitors! Note That
SOUVENIRS
are a Great Drawing Card for
5 AND 10 CENT THEATRES
We Give You the Greatest Value for the Least Money
DROP US A POSTAL. CATALOGUE FREE ON APPLICATION

No. O 12
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100

No. 500 1/0
Cup 2¼ x 2¼
Saucer 4½
75c per dozen

No. 1048
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100

TAKITO, OGAWA & CO.
Importers and Manufacturers of
JAPANESE GOODS
166 East Lake Street - Chicago, Ill.

All the Latest Song Slide Hits to Rent
New Firm. All new Slides. Best Service in Chicago. Price 50c. per set a week, a weeks supply shipped at one time.
WESTERN SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE
59 Dearborn Street Real Estate Bldg. Third Floor Chicago, Ill.

Bound Volumes of Moving Picture World
VOLUME I, MARCH-DECEMBER, 1907 (limited number)
VOLUME 2, JANUARY-JUNE, 1908 (indexed)
VOLUME 3, JULY-DECEMBER, 1908 (indexed)
$2.00 each; $6.00 for the three volumes and a year's subscription
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 125 East 23d Street, New York City

SONG SLIDES
PEERLESS SONG SLIDES
The Kind that Almost Talk
Ever Imitated, NEVER EQUALED
Let us place you on our mailing list
Full line of ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES.
SEND for SPECIAL PRICE LIST
SLIDES OF SICILY AND ITALY
Scene of the Recent Earthquake
Set of 20 plain, $4, colored $8. Set of 35 plain, $7, colored, $14
NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO. 143 N. 8th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
SONG SLIDES
NEW TITLES MADE
50 CENTS EACH
Shipped 24 hours after receipt of order
CENTAUR FILM MFG. CO., - 900 Broadway, Bayonne, N. J.
Chicago Office, Room 810, 79 Dearborn Street

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

EXPERIENCED OPERATORS.

W. B. Wilson, Steubenville, Ohio. Experienced operator and electrician; 4 years' experience. References. Reliable.

A. J. Langlois, Spring street, Adams, Mass. Electrician and operator. Five years' experience. Licensed. Sober and reliable. References.

M. E. Campbell, 1451 W. Third street, Cleveland, Ohio. Ten years' experience operating machines. References.

Fred Leslie, 73 First street, Albany, N. Y. Experienced licensed operator. Best of references.

Talking Pictures, Effects or Lecturer. Have 5 years' experience illustrating moving pictures. Best of references. Make good or no pay. Apply Nat. Fenton, 274 Broome street, New York City.

Lecturer, experienced on talking pictures. Address M., 254 Wyckoff street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Blaine Day, Elkins, W. V. Experienced on road and stationary. Best references.

Chas. Rousher, 2219 S. Opal street, Philadelphia, Pa.; experienced operator.

M. V. Page, Box 658, Tecumseh, Mich. Six years' experience in handling film; will work in film exchange or operate machine. Married and steady. Reference.

Wm. H. Mallon, Bijou Theater, Easthampton, Mass.; experienced operator and manager and lecturer.

F. K. Evans, Oneonta Theater, Oneonta, N. Y.; first-class operator and electrician; age 30.

W. J. Gibbons, 15 West 51st street, Bayonne, N. J. Operator or manager. Best references, nine years in the business.

J. W. Delk, Leon, Ia. Experienced operator. Steady; have also acted as manager.

Wm. A. Clement, 939 North 7th street, Harrisburg, Pa. Experienced operator. Can put on the right kind of picture.

Clarence Howe, 39 Clay street, Pawtucket, R. I. Experienced operator. Rhode Island or Connecticut preferred.

William McCreary, 2515 Ninth avenue, Beaver Falls, Pa. Experienced operator.

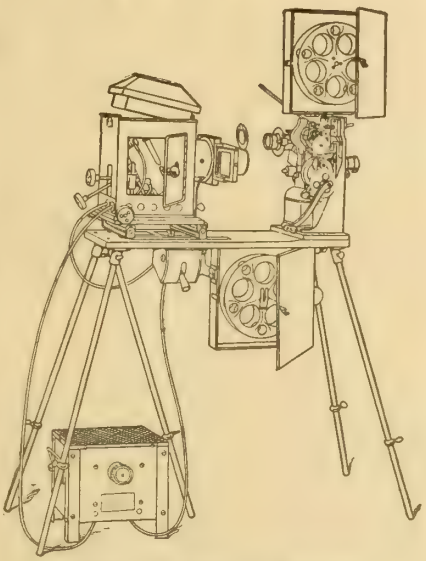
Mr. E. Cook, 324 Fifteenth street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

Competition is Keen in the Motion Picture Exhibition Field

The large profits secured at small expense induce many to take up this form of entertainment.

An Edison Kinetoscope puts an exhibitor in a class by himself. Its brilliant work, safety, simplicity and low operating expense give those who use it a decided advantage. If you are going into the field, start with the best equipment. If you are in it and want to keep your profits where they should be, learn about the Kinetoscope. Among Mr. Edison's many recent improvements is a



Prices from $90.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

New Style Rheostat

The coils are protected and ventilated by a heavy, perforated sheet steel casing; terminals and adjustable switch are mounted on a non-conducting slate base, protected by a sheet steel, automatic closing cover.

EDISON FILMS

are full of life and action. The subjects are well chosen and acted out before the camera by good talent. New films are issued each week, ranging from thrilling melo drama to bright and amusing comedy. The subjects are always clean, giving offense to none. Let us put you on oru mailing list for weekly bulletins.

NEW SUBJECTS:

Shipment, February 23, 1909

THE LANDLADY'S PORTRAIT
Comedy
No. 6424 Code, VENGES
App. Length 585 feet

THE JANITOR'S BOTTLE
Comedy
No. 6425 Code, VENGEURS
App. Length 405 feet

Shipment, February 26, 1909

LEFT OUT
Dramatic
No. 6426 Code, VENGO
App. Length 900 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS:

Shipment, March 2, 1909

100 PER CENT. JEALOUSY
Comedy
No. 6427 Code, VENGOLINE
App. Length 450 feet

BOYHOOD DREAMS
Comedy
No. 6428 Code, VENGUDE
App. Length 450 feet

Shipment, March 5, 1909

A BIRD IN A GILDED CAGE
Comedy
No. 6429 Code, VENTANERO
App. Length 900 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 804 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries. FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1891. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

AT THE ALTAR.—The Interception of a Rejected Suitor's Vengeance. Napoleon I. said "Vengeance has no foresight,' which may be true, but it has cunning, and never more than when wrought by this Sicilian, for in the evolution of means of wreaking vengeance he was past master. Revenge is always the pleasure of a little, weak narrow mind and tends to make men more savage than cruel. Such was the condition of the villain of this Biograph story. At the Italian boarding house the male boarders were all smitten with the charms of Minnie, the landlady's pretty daughter, but she was of a poetic turn of mind and her soul soared above plebeianism and her aspirations were romantic. Most persistent among her suitors was Grigo, a coarse Sicilian, whose advances were odiously repulsive. The arrival at the boarding house from the old country of Guiseppe Cassella, the violinist, filled the void in her yearning heart. Romantic, poetic and a talented musician, Guiseppe was indeed a desirable husband for Minnie. All this, of course, filled Grigo with bitter hatred and he vows vengeance, which you may be sure he will work with extreme subtlety. All preparations are made for the wedding, and when the day arrives Grigo is ready for it. He has contrived an infernal machine with a pistol so arranged that its explosion means death to anyone standing in front of it. The little church is decorated in honor of the affair and Grigo, with subterfuge, gets the sexton out, leaving the place to himself. Sawing a hole in front of the altar step, he places his weapon in such a position that one step forward by the priest would mean death to the bride kneeling in front. Grigo rushes back to his room, arriving just as the wedding party is leaving for the church. Here he becomes a victim of the frenzy of his mind and appreciating the fact that the awful deed will be laid to him and his apprehension will be inevitable, he writes a alarming note and then takes poison. His fall is heard by the housemaid, who, discovering the note, gives it to a policeman, who rushes madly to the church. Fate, however, seems to conspire, and the officer falls, breaking his ankle, just outside the church. A newsboy, seeing his plight, runs up, and the policeman directs him hurriedly to the church, where he arrives just in time to save the couple, who start back at his yell, for the priest had just made the step which fires the gun, but with no harm done. The priest gives thanks to God for their deliverance and proceeds with the wedding. Length, 972 feet.

THE POLITICIAN'S LOVE STORY.—This subject is a Biograph comedy, with the moral "Don't anticipate," for no matter how formidable and audacious you may be, you might have to back down from the tallest bluff you ever pulled. Such a thing occurred to our political friend, Boss Tim Crogan, when he started out to perforate the person of one cartoonist "Peters," who had grossly insulted him by drawing and publishing what he considered scurrilous cartoons of him during the campaign. These caricatures have been growing more and more odious to him until his suppressed rage bursts forth and he seizes a pistol and makes his way to the newspaper office to transform the aforesaid cartoonist into a human sieve, with the gentle but decisive percolation of bullets, but, as Hamlet says, "enterprises of great pith and moment, their currents turn awry, and lose the name of action." So it was with Crogan, who rushes, gun in hand, into the editorial sanctum of the "Daily Bugle," throwing the editor and reporters into a tumultuous panic, in his search for the offending "Peters." Reaching the art department, he espies a screen with a placard reading "Peters' Corner." With an invective he hurls the screen aside, and well, there was simply nothing to it, for there sat "Peters" herself, calmly working on another "Crogan" for the morning edition. The lion is now the lamb and Crogan is stung by the love microbe. He is, of course, repulsed and leaves the place with a bleeding cardiacal organ. Love-lorn, he goes into the park, and, seated on a bench, the frigid atmosphere and ice-covered landscape having not the slightest effect on his burning passion, he is greatly annoyed by the persistent presence of the loving couples, it being Lovers' Promenade, until finally Miss Peters passes. He approaches her, but is gently, but firmly, repulsed. Following at a distance, fate favors him, for the lady is accosted by an insulting masher, and Crogan flies to her rescue and knocks the vile wretch down. That settles it. What woman can resist the charms of a hero? and we next see the Hon. Timothy Crogan and Mrs. Crogan nee Peters enjoying a moonlight stroll along Lovers' Promenade. The subject is a photographic work of art, comprising the most beautiful Winter scenes ever obtained. Length, 526 feet.

THE GOLDEN LOUIS.—A Biograph subject showing the fallacy of good intentions. It was fete day in old Paris, and the city was the scene of gaiety and splendor. Contrasted with the brilliant throng we see a little child shivering in the snow, with her little wooden shoe held out expectant of a coin from those charitably disposed. But in the intoxicating jollity of the occasion the poor soul is

PRINTING FOR THE
Earthquake in Italy
HENNEGAN & CO.
127 EAST 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

Great Bargains
Motion Picture Machines, Films, Stereopticons Slides, Supplies, etc. Passion Play $100, Colored $200. Send for Supplement 27 No. 4.
HARBACH & COMPANY
809 Filbert Street - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CALEHUFF
A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION
Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.
LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set
N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Kalem Films

OR
THE DRUNKARD'S DAUGHTER
LENGTH 865 FEET
Released, Feb. 26, 1909.

We can recommend "The New Minister" as an exceptionally clean and high class film. Taken in Florida in beautiful Southern Scenery and full of local color and atmosphere.

Send for Complete Lecture—Free

KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

passed by unnoticed until, exhausted, she sinks upon the stone step and sleeps. There now passes a kindly spirited knight, who flicks a Louis d'Or into the tiny wooden slipper at her side. Meanwhile, at the gambling house there has run to ruin at roulettes a young blade, who is tipped that on the stroke of twelve the number 17 is sure to come out. So impressed is he that he tries to borrow, in the hope of recouping his lost fortune, but his friends turn coldly away. From the place he saunters dispondently and comes upon the little one on the step, still asleep. His hand, through habit, goes to his own pocket, but, alas! it is empty. As he stands and contemplates the little one his eyes strikes the Louis d'Or. "An idea! I will borrow the coin, play 17, and win her a fortune." Back to the hall he rushes, reaching there upon the stroke of twelve. Hurling the coin upon the table he yells "17," and 17 wins. He lays his winnings and wins again. Again and again he doubles his wealth until the bank is broken. Back he goes to repay with interest the "borrowed" Louis, but what a sight greets him. "Dead, and I have murdered her!" and taking the death-stained gold he scatters it in the snow. Length, 474 feet.

EDISON MFG. CO.

A DAUGHTER OF THE SUN.—Synopsis of scenes:

A story of early Japan, when but few strangers were permitted to visit the Flowery Kingdom. With the exception of the Dutch and Portuguese traders, who were mostly established at the seaports, the only persons permitted intercourse were the faithful missionary fathers, who sought to convert the warlike people.

Our story tells of the tragic romance of Mitsuka, a dancing girl of one of the famous tea houses, who loved Komura, a young soldier—both converts to the Christian religion, but worshipping in secret.

Taka, a noble, is spurned by Mitsuka, who becomes a rival of Komura. They clash, and Taka obtains permission to take Mitsuka and her lover by force.

Mitsuka and her lover are found together—Komura escapes—she refuses to divulge his whereabouts—about to be put to the torture—the crucifix is discovered—Komura bursts in, strikes down the soldiers, and escapes with Mitsuka.

Father Orlotto at mass. Mitsuka and Komura approach and kneel at sacristy railing. The alarm. The pair approach Father Orlotto as he turns from altar. A few words. He understands. Places them back of him. The rush of soldiers. Priest raises his arms. Komura leaps forward with drawn sword. Repels soldiers, then overcome. Father Orlotto raises crucifix from altar, Mitsuka clinging to him. Refuses to give her up. A soldier strikes him down. Mitsuka slain in struggle. Soldiers retire a few paces as Taka rushes on. Priest pulls himself to altar. Mitsuka raises her dying head, puts up imploring arm. Father Orlotto, clinging, dying, to altar, blesses her as she finally falls back; raises his arm in blessing on others, Taka turning his head. Priest crashes down dead. App. length, 850 feet.

THE UPLIFTING OF MR. BARKER.—Synopsis of scenes:

Mr. Barker, the breadwinner of the family, at last reaches a position where the oft expressed wish of "Ma" and the "girls" can be gratified—a trip to Europe, and a glimpse of Royalty.

The only drawback to their anticipated pleasure is the fact that "Pa" is too American—too democratic; and, ere he can hope to successfully meet the crowned heads, needs uplifting.

To please the ladies, however, he permits them to coach him in the gentle art of bowing and scraping, to his eternal discomfort and disgust.

Arrived in "Lunnon" their troubles begin with "Pa." Although his bank account is large, Barker, himself, is small, thin and insignificant looking. He finds it difficult to do all the stunts the ladies demand, and at times rebels.

After much coaxing, he is persuaded to prepare for his presentation to the King. The eventful day arrives. The ladies are resplendent in court trains —but a bit anxious and nervous over "Pa."

At the reception, a lady's train upsets Barker, and he, in turn, overturns his Majesty, causing poor Barker to retire in confusion. Later he is commanded to meet the King, who appreciates the little man, and together they have a very convivial time.

Barker, retiring during the wee small hours, seeks his way homeward, where "Ma" is awaiting his arrival. The climax is excruciatingly funny; but, in the end, the uplifting of Mr. Barker is complete. App. length, 900 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

THE TELLTALE BLOTTER.—This story is a strange and interesting study of circumstantial evidence. It concerns two young men who are rivals for the hand of a merchant's daughter. The successful suitor is a trusted employee of the merchant. The rejected suitor commits a robbery and then tries to fasten the crime on his rival. He is, however, outwitted by the merchant's daughter, who, by a woman's intuition, discovers circumstantial evidence of the crime by means of a blotter. Then the use of hypnotism is brought forward in order to secure a confession from the culprit. She succeeds in fastening the guilt where it belongs. The opening scene portrays the engagement of the lovers and the anger of the rejected suitor. Then the official of the merchant, who is about to go upon a journey, intrusts the combination of his safe to his future son-in-law. In doing this he writes the combination on a slip of paper; then dries the ink with a blotter, which he thoughtlessly casts aside. The blotter, of course, takes the impression of the combination. The rejected suitor finds this blotter, opens the safe and steals the funds, which he hides in his bedroom. The other scenes show us the ingenuous detective work of the daughter and how she secures the aid of a celebrated hypnotic physician, who hypnotizes the culprit, and, like Mathias in "The Bells," the guilty man is made to act over again the details of his crime.

KALEM COMPANY.

THE NEW MINISTER; OR, THE DRUNKARD'S DAUGHTER.—Ladies and Gentlemen: We take great pleasure in offering for your amusement and instruction another of the Kalem Company's celebrated Florida films, entitled "The New Minister." By this picture you will be taken into the very heart of the Sunny South, into the land of the moss-covered pines and the ever-blooming roses. The story is one that will appeal to you all. It tells how a poor fellow addicted to the use of liquor was falsely accused of a robbery, and how his daughter bravely stood by him and secured his complete vindication. And the character of the new minister is one which you will follow with absorbing interest. We call your particular attention to the beautiful photography of this film.

Scene I.—The New Minister Arrives.
M P WORLD—Fourteen

Scene II.—In the midst of a handshaking a girl, followed by her drunken father, club in hand, runs on and falls before the minister, crying for protection. The minister interferes on her behalf and the father slaps him in the face. Now the squire's son advances in an insolent and familiar manner and, remarking, "The old man handed you a dandy," digs the minister in the ribs with his cane, whereupon the minister with a sturdy blow knocks him down.

Scene III.—The Robbery. Rear of the clergyman's house; night time. The squire's son is seen approaching the kitchen door. He finds it locked; takes pliers and picks lock; then enters and closes the door. The minister, returning from a sick bedside, finds the door unlocked. Surprised, but he passes it up and enters.

Now we are at the front of the house, and we see the robber coming out of the window. He jumps to the ground, examines papers, hears minister and darts off.

The drunkard is now seen coming down the road alone. Now the squire's son, the robber, comes rushing down the same road in the opposite direction. An idea seizes him to throw guilt upon the old man by hiding the papers on him, while he himself retains the money. He offers the old man drink, during which he shoves papers in his inside coat pocket, after which he sends the old man on his way and goes off with a self-satisfied chuckle.

Scene IV.—The Arrest Next Afternoon. The drunkard's girl is slaving over the washtub, tired and downcast. The father, arising late from the debauch of the night before, enters and sees her. Remorse seizes him and he determines never to drink another drop. In the midst of the girl's joy at the promise two officers enter and demand to know where he was the night before. They accuse him of the crime, he making a confused denial. One enters the house for his coat, and, bringing it out, finds the papers, and they arrest and lead him away.

Scene V.—An Afternoon Tea at the Rectory. Women are gathered on the lawn of the Rectory. The minister approaches and greets them all. Gossip among the women as the different ones make their appearance. In the midst of the tea serving the two officers bring on the old drunkard, followed by the girl, who pleads with the minister. The officers show the minister the papers, and in spite of the girl's tears he is forced to admit they are his. The drunkard is dragged off while the girl kneels, sobbing.

Scene VI.—Two Years Later—Sunday Morning. The drunkard, now a convict, is seen escaping from prison with two guards in pursuit. The squire's villainous son is seen dashing madly down the road on a horse which he has lost control of. He falls from the horse, fatally hurt. A boy chancing by sees the fall and runs over, and the real robber writes a confession of his guilt and expires. The boy rushes with the confession to the minister, who reads it—and the poor drunkard, now a reformed man, is restored to his daughter and to a position in society.

SPORTING DAYS IN THE SOUTH and THE MAKING OF A CHAMPION.—This film is remarkable in many ways, but chiefly because it presents phases of Southern life in a manner never before available for motion picture photography.

You doubtless know that all through the South a great deal of attention is given to the scientific breeding and training of game cocks. These beautiful birds are to be found as pets in many aristocratic homes south of the Mason and Dixon line, and the matching of the birds is a favorite diversion of the Southern gentleman. In the first part of the film we propose to give a comprehensive view of this novel sport.

The second part of this reel is entitled "The Making of a Champion." Doubtless no exponent of the manly art of self defense has aroused more national enthusiasm than J. Arthur Johnson, of Dallas, Tex., popularly known as Jack Johnson. Johnson arrived at the top notch of fame by defeating Tommy Burns for the premier title in Australia. In our film we propose to show you some scenes representing the life of the champion from the baby in his mammy's arms to the full-fledged gladiator of the fistic arena.

Sporting Days in the South.

Scene 1.—Trimming the Game Cocks.
Scene 2.—Adjusting the Spurs.
Scene 3.—Weighing the Birds for the First Bout.
Scene 4.—The First Bout.
Scene 5.—Weighing the Champion.
Scene 6.—Betting on the Main.
Scene 7.—The Champion of Florida Wins.

The Making of a Champion.

Scene 1.—Jack's Home.
Scene 2.—Jack the Baby.
Scene 3.—Jack at School.
Scene 4.—Jack's First Experience With the Gloves.
Scene 5.—Jack Enters the Fistic Arena.
Scene 6.—The Future Champion of the World.

S. LUBIN.

THE NEW GOVERNESS.—Elsie is preparing to leave her mother. Trunks are packed. A last good-bye, and she departs.

In a Strange Town. The train arrives. When Elsie steps from the train a young man is trying to take hold of her grip, but is severely beaten by a gentleman whose protection Elsie implores.

The New Charge. Elsie is received by the lady of the house and introduced to her new charge, a boy six years old.

The Son of the House. While at dinner the son of the house enters, in whom Elsie recognizes her protector at the railroad station.

Five Months Later. Ed., the son of the house, has been greatly attached to the young governess, and asks her to be his wife.

True Love Never Runs Smooth.—Elsie received a package and a letter reading as follows:

Dearest Elsie:

I have to leave on business, and will be absent for three months. Take this diamond brooch as a small token of my true love. When I return I shall claim you as my own for aye and ever.

Devotedly,
Ed.

Elsie kisses the letter, puts the brooch in a drawer and the key in her pocketbook.

A Child's Innocent Act and Its Grave Consequences.—The father is at work at the office. The cashier brings the checks to be signed, among these two drafts for $20,000. Elsie enters with the boy. She has a note from the proprietor's wife. The proprietor exits, after him the new governess. The boy innocently plays with the two drafts, writes on them and puts the pieces of paper in his pocket. Elsie returns and departs with the boy. Shortly after the proprietor is looking for the drafts. They cannot be found, and Elsie is suspected of having stolen them.

The Detective Thinks He Finds a Clue. A detective is engaged. He examines Elsie's room and finds the diamond brooch. The brooch is held as a proof that she stole the notes.

Accused of Theft and Convicted on Circumstantial Evidence. Elsie is accused of having stolen the money, and is convicted on circumstantial evidence.

Rags for Sale. A peddler buys some old clothes. Among these the little boy's suit, which he wore while visiting his father's office. At home, in his junk shop, while examining all his clothes, he finds the two drafts, not knowing what they were. A friend explains to him the value of the papers. They at once go to the proprietor to restore to him the drafts. In the meantime Elsie is behind the prison bars.

"Where Is Elsie?" Three months have passed. Ed. returned from his trip. His first question is for Elsie. The father tells him of Elsie's dishonesty, and as a proof shows him the diamond brooch, whereupon Ed. informs his father that he is the giver of the brooch and that Elsie is innocent. Just then the peddlers enter, bringing the two drafts, on which is plainly visible the scribbling of the little boy.

"Can You Forgive Me: Father and son quickly bring the proof of Elsie's innocence to the proper authorities, and Elsie is freed. The father asks her forgiveness and joins her hand with his son's. Length, 895 feet.

LOVE ME, LOVE MY DOG.—A Present for His Best Girl. Earl buys for his best girl a little white poodle. She just adores the little poodle. She is so fond of it that she even forgets Earl, who gets jealous of the dog.

"Poodle, Me and You." The wedding ceremony is over. The bride carries her little poodle. Every-

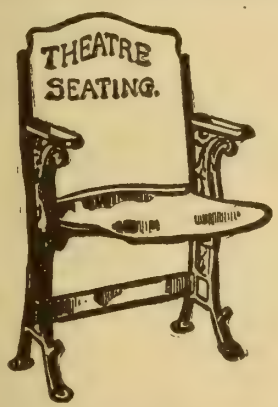
FILM Service FACTS

A pamphlet we have just issued

Of interest to every exhibitor who is not satisfied with the film service he is receiving

Drop Us a Postal Card for It To-day

GEO. K. SPOOR CO.
(INCORPORATED)
62 Nort Clark St., CHICAGO, ILL.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company
90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.
70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

NEXT
Lard A
FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK
OUR Dramatic Feature
THE TELL-TALE BLOTTER
(Lgth. 1,000 Ft.)
READY
Wednesday, Feb. 24th

Watch for Our Western Feature Subject Soon to be Released.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE
Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.
Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
Boston Office, 224 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

Singer and Pianist—Good Team, 2 People. 5 years experience. GEO. A. PURRIN, 182 Rockaway Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

The First High Grade Film Service In America

FURNISHED BY

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

59 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

OFFICES AT

Argyle Building, KANSAS CITY, MO.

Eccles Building, OGDEN, UTAH

body who comes to congratulate must first shake hands with the poodle.

"I Wish I Hadn't Bought That Dog." Earl can stand it no longer; always the poodle. He often wishes he was the poodle. He tries to drown him in the soup, he tries to kick him out of the window, but still the poodle is the first in the young wife's heart.

"Poison It!" Earl confides his troubles to a friend, who advises him to poison the poodle. He gives him a vial containing poison, and instructs him to put this in the poodle's milk. Earl follows the instruction, and immediately sends a telegram to his friend "I just poisoned Peter. See you to-night at the club."

A Smart Messenger Boy. The messenger boy, instead of carrying the message to its destination, brings it to the police station. The police scent murder. Three officers are dispatched to arrest Earl.

All Is Well That Ends Well. When Earl's wife is shown the telegram she bursts out laughing, and shows the police the poor little dog. They go away sadder and wiser men. Earl's wife, however, promises not to buy another poodle, but transfers her love to her husband. Length, 650 feet.

A GAME OF CHESS.—Her Move. A young lady invites her friend to a quiet game of chess. The lover accepts, and we see him next sitting opposite the young lady, setting up the chess figures.

His Move. A few moves are made. The young man takes out a cigarette. The young lady strikes a match, he holds her hand longer than necessary.

Both Move. While they sit opposite each other while playing, they now move slowly the chairs in front of the table. He puts his arm around her waist, she leans towards him, and their lips join in a long kiss. Length, 290 feet.

THE PASS KEY.—A young sport goes to his club. He noticed that he forgot his key. He therefore writes a note to the janitor to let him have his pass key. When the young sport leaves for home he is not able to distinguish his house from any one in the neighborhood—they look all alike to him. Through the pass key he gains admission to many houses, but is most the time rudely ejected until a neighbor shows him the right door. When lying on his bed the keys give him a dreadful nightmare. Length, 115 feet.

Scene 2. The Convict's Reception.—Conn and Robert appear at this moment and are cordially welcomed by all. Supper is laid and, while eating, Harvey Duff, a police spy, in passing, sees the prisoner through a window and hurries off to the barracks.

Scene 3. The Informer.—In the guard room the soldiers are playing cards as Duff enters and excitedly asks for Captain Molineaux. To the captain, Duff tells that Folloit has escaped and is now at his home. The captain, although in love with the prisoner's sister, realizes that personal feeling must be sacrificed for duty and with his soldiers starts for the cottage.

Scene 4. The Arrest.—Conn has been watching outside and suddenly rushes in and tells that the soldiers are coming. Robert is pushed into an adjoining room and, as the captain enters and asks for the prisoner, all save the priest deny knowledge of his whereabouts. The father hesitates and is about to speak when Robert enters and gives himself up.

Scene 5. The Plot to Escape.—Robert is taken to the barracks, where Conn visits him and unobserved slips his chum a file and saw.

Scene 6. The Pardon.—Squire Kinchella and a police spy, Duff, call at the cottage of Artie, but find no one at home. Kinchella looks cautiously about, takes Folloit's pardon from his pocket and tears it up. His companion picks up the pieces and hides them in his clothes unobserved.

Scene 7. For Freedom.—Robert is seen sawing the bars of his window preparing to climb out.

Scene 8. The Escape.—As Robert goes through the window, the squire and Duff hear the noise and call the soldiers. They answer to the call, Robert has meanwhile escaped. The soldiers, observing Duff, mistake him for the prisoner, fire upon him and seriously wound him.

Scene 9. The Signal for the Boat.—Claire and Captain Molineaux are at Rothgarron Head in a pretty love scene as a shot is heard. At this moment Claire lights a tar barrel, the signal for her brother's escape, then, with the captain, walks slowly off.

Scene 10. The Torn Pardon.—The soldiers carry Duff into the corridor, where their error is discovered. The wounded man, realizing that his end is near, hands the torn pardon to Captain Molineaux, who immediately hurries to impart the glad news to Claire.

On Rothgarron Head, Conn and Robert see Kinchella and some soldiers approaching in a boat. As there is no avenue of escape, Robert surrenders. Captain Molineaux opportunely arrives, takes the pardon and hands it to Robert, telling him that he is free. Then Kinchella is taken in custody by the officers, while Robert gives his sister's (Claire) hand to Captain Molineaux.

A BROKEN HEART.—Engaged.—There is happiness in the house as Madeline and Frank become engaged. Friends come and go; they have a busy time.

A Theater Party.—The party meets at Madeline's home, they then go together to the theater where they occupy a box.

Infatuated.—Many acts have passed, now a young lady singer comes before the curtain. Frank rises in his chair. He is so infatuated with the new star that he has no eyes for anyone else. His intended pulls him down upon his chair, but he does not see her. The theater party is broken up, they go home, while Frank goes back to the theater.

In the Meantime.—Madeline vainly waited for her intended. A good friend informs her of his infatuation with the actress. She will not believe it until she sees with her own eyes the actress on the arm of her intended.

"I Did Not Know He Was Yours, You Shall Have Him Again."—The actress in her home. Madeline enters. She tells of her engagement to Frank and how she (the actress) came between them. The actress feels honor bound to make Frank return to his intended even though it may break her heart. She assures Madeline that her intended will come back to her. Madeline leaves. Now the actress throws herself upon the couch, crying convulsively.

"I Must Make Him Believe So, Even If It Breaks My Heart."—The actress expects Frank's visit. She dresses disorderly, tells the maid to bring wine and cigars. She puts on a wig and an old wrapper. "Now let him enter." Frank enters. "Let us have a drink," says the actress. Frank is shocked. The actress plays the part of a drunken girl so well that Frank leaves her in disgust. After he has gone the actress throws off her disguise, buries her face in her hands, sobbing piteously. Frank returns to his intended, recognizing that his love for the actress was only a passing passion. Madeline is happy again while the little actress is trying to heal a broken heart. Length, 530 feet.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO.

THE CALIPH'S ADVENTURES. The caliph is dull. The grand vizier is exerting himself to the uttermost in order to amuse him, but he cannot even make him smile. The prettiest ladies of the harem are dancing the most fascinating dances for him, but it only makes him yawn all the more. The gentlemen at court are trying to do their very best to please him in performing some very comical Chinese dancing, but are only told to leave the place, and at last the grand vizier is perfectly discouraged. But suddenly an idea strikes him. He has been told of a sorcerer who is in possession of a ring, by means of which the bearer can be transmitted to any place he wishes to go to. He now sends for this sorcerer, makes him give up the ring and announce the magic word by which influence the ring is to do its powerful work.

As soon as the caliph gets hold of the ring, he rubs it, wishes himself to be a thousand miles away, and pronouncing the magic word he disappears immediately. The ministers believe that the sorcerer has made the caliph disappear by magic power, and they therefore arrest the sorcerer, telling him that he is to lose his head if the caliph does not come back soon.

As soon as the caliph has pronounced the magic word, he finds himself at a carnival in one of the big cities of the West. Here his magnificent "make-up," as his clothing is supposed to be, makes quite a sensation, and the caliph enjoys himself thoroughly, drinking wine in large quantities and courting a beautiful young lady. He soon becomes intoxicated and the young lady snatches the ring away from him and leaves him.

Now the poor caliph is obliged to act as a juggler in order to support himself.

At last one day he perceives his ring in a pawnbroker's shop window. He rushes in immediately, snatches his ring and runs away, pursued by the pawnbroker. A policeman has already his hand on the caliph's shoulder when he rubs his ring, pronounces the magic word and disappears from the very eyes of the astonished crowd.

One minute later he is back again at his own palace, where the grand vizier is just going to execute the sorcerer and proclaim himself caliph. But the old caliph has a different opinion. He appoints the sorcerer grand vizier and discharges the old one. Then he ascends his throne and receives the homage of his true people. Length, 564 feet.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

ON THE WARPATH.—The opening scene of the picture shows a pioneer family at work on the finishing touches of their new log house, built upon a section of land upon which they have staked off their claim.

Jim, the eldest son of the Waymans, has been paying attention to pretty Betty Price, the only daughter of old Tom Price, a trapper and scout, whose comfortable home is situated within a short distance of the Waymans. Betty, who had had some of the advantages of Eastern schools, but who had foresworn all the pleasures of a social life to be with her father on the frontier, was rather impressed with the handsome young suitor, and at the beginning of our story had made Jim supremely happy by giving him her promise to become his wife just as soon as he was able to clear his own land and provide her with a home.

Bright were the prospects of these two young lovers until a shadow crept into their lives in the shape of Bill Horn, a half-breed Indian scout.

FOR SALE

20 reels Film (all titled) good condition $10.00 per reel. 50,000 San Francisco Post Cards $2.00 per M. Slot machines at one-half price.

MAYER SILVERMAN
713 Fulton Building - Pittsburg, Pa.

FOR RENT 6,000 ft. film, 3 sets song slides, six at time $12 weekly.

FOR SALE 3,300 ft. Pathes hand colored Passion Play, $75. 1,000 ft reels film released since April, $10 per reel Lubin machine, $40; Edison Ex. Model, $60; Power's $75. Will buy films, machines.

H. DAVIS - WATERTOWN, WIS.

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs
JUST OUT

Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

Song Slides!
Travelogue Slides!
Announcement Slides!

Newest, latest and best. "You Select —We Ship." Lowest rental rates consistent with superior service. We also furnish thoroughly competent illustrated song vocalists, moving picture and vaudeville pianists, trap drummers, instrumentalists, dramatic lecturers, demonstrators and licensed operators.

Quick, reliable service.

Our references: Leading Film Exchanges, Song Slide Manufacturers, or "Dramatic Mirror" of New York.

Write now for Circulars and full particulars.

LEN SPENCER'S LYCEUM
4 West 28th St NEW YORK

Through dealings Bill had with Tom Price, he encountered and fell in love with the old scout's beautiful daughter. Confiding his love to her father, he was met with such a stern rebuff that he was careful for some time not to mention the subject, and his visits became less frequent until report brought him news of Betty's engagement to Jim Wayman. Then all the hatred and jealous rage of his Indian nature came to the surface and he determined to have the girl by fair means or foul.

Allying himself with a certain Sioux chief not far from the settlement of the whites, he succeeds by misrepresentation in arousing "Old Whirlwind" and his band of braves to go upon the warpath and destroy the whites, who he claimed were encroaching upon their hunting grounds. His plan was to murder all but Betty, who would thus be in his power to do with as he willed. Before carrying out his plans, however, the half-breed determined to again visit the girl and give her the chance to save her father and her friends by becoming his wife. Watching his opportunity when Betty was at home alone with her Indian maid companion, he unceremoniously entered the house and presented his conditions to the frightened girl.

With her dark eyes flashing fire, Betty ordered him out of the house, telling him that her father would kill him on sight when he learned of his vile threats. Seizing the helpless girl in his arms, he attempts to drag her out the door and bear her away, but the Indian girl, hearing the screams of her beloved mistress, rushes into the room and seizing a heavy stool brings it down with all her force upon the unprotected head of the ruffian. Holding him long enough for her and Betty to get away, our heroine springs to her pony and rides at top speed to the home of the Waymans and acquaints them with the threats of the half-breed. Seizing their rifles, the men strike out for the girl's home, determined to defend it against any attacks that might be made upon it by the hostile savages.

A friendly Indian, who follows Bill to the Sioux's village, learns of the plan to murder his white benefactors, and hastening to the home of the old scout he informs them of the danger they are in. "Its the girl they are after," the Indian tells them, and advises them to abandon Price's house and retire to the home of the Waymans, where a better defense might be made. Following his advice, they repair to the more secure stronghold and there await the threatened attack. It is not long in coming. In the Indian village the war dance is on and preparations are under way for the contemplated massacre.

We next see them on their ponies riding stealthily around the rocks and cliffs, guided over the narrow trail by the treacherous half-breed. Arriving at the cabin of the Prices the bloodthirsty redskins are not long in finding it empty. Again they take up the trail and are soon in the vicinity of the Waymans' home. Dismounting, they creep quietly over the rocks until they have surrounded the house. In order to expose the inmates of the little cabin to the aim of the murderous band, the half-breed steals to the door and knocks for admittance. The ruse works and old man Wayman opens the door to investigate the noise. A shot rings and he staggers back with a bullet through his wrist. The fight is now on.

We are given a view of the interior of the cabin, showing the entire family loading their rifles and firing from the small loopholes that have been provided for such an emergency. Keeping closely under cover, but little damage is done to the attacking party, who keep up a steady fire in order to hide the efforts of the half-breed's purpose to set fire to the cabin. Failing to evade the sharp eyes of the defenders, the Indians abandon the plan for a while and pretend to withdraw from the scene of action.

Knowing that their ammunition cannot hold out much longer, young Jim determines upon a desperate mission to obtain help. Bidding all goodbye, he and the friendly Indian, Chico, make a dash for the outside. Evading the shots of the watchful savages, they succeed in getting out of range of their rifles. Hastening with the speed of desperation, the two struggle on over the snow and through the rugged passes of the foothills towards the nearest settlement. Arriving there more dead than alive, they learn of the temporary presence of a troop of cavalry who are on their way to quell any threatening demonstrations of the Sioux, who for some time have been uneasy and restless. Finding them encamped for the night in an old barn, Jim gasps out the story of his family's peril, entreating them to lose no time in going to the rescue. Only a few minutes were spent in getting away, and Uncle Sam's Indian fighters are riding rapidly towards the scene of trouble.

Leaving their horses in a gorge near the fight the cavalrymen make their way on foot towards the besieged cabin. Quickly surrounding the unsuspecting Indians, the signal of attack is given, and with a cheer that thrills the blood of the despairing little band, who have been stubbornly fighting for their lives, the boys in blue pounce upon their savage foe, and with a perfect whirlwind of fire pouring from their carbines, completely annihilate the murderous band of bloodthirsty savages. Their arrival was well timed, as the little cabin was in flames and nothing else could have saved the almost helpless victims of the half-breed's treachery. Length, 1,000 feet.

Attention!

I have what has heretofore been unaccomplished in moving picture projection and film printing.. A machine which projects with an absolute absence of shutter shadows, giving a continuous uninterrupted flow of picture. All vibration is eliminated. No Lathan Loop. Does not conflict with any existing patents. Films that are of standard size, except for a new and ingenious method of picture spacing, with no increase in cost of manufacture. The whole principle is new both in regard to the machine and the film, and is a radical departure from ideas hitherto used.

I want a reputable business man, who is thoroughly conversant with the moving picture line and existing conditions, to finance the proposition and take hold of the business end. I am thorough and practical in my line, so do not waste my time and your own if you haven't the money and brains to carry the proposition through. To the right man, will give a substantial interest.

ADDRESS

The New Non-Infringing Projecting Machine

Care
The Moving Picture World
913-915 Schiller Building
CHICAGO, ILL.

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.
Wholesale and Retail
Sterecopticon and Lantern Slides
56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500
OPERA CHAIRS
IN STOCK

If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received,

Ask for Catalog No. 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

No. 44 North 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

FOR SALE

Reels of films 1,000 ft. released since April, $10 each, David Garrick, Life of Abraham Lincoln, Jerusalem, David and Goliath, Damon and Pythias. The Humpty Dumpty Circus and many others. Edison Ex. Model machine $60. Will buy machines, films.

H. DAVIS - - WATERTOWN, WIS.

Opera Chairs Durable

Prices Right Opera Chairs

Everything in the Seating Line

Second-Hand Opera Chairs Always in Stock.

H. S. ANSLEY
1402 Broadway, New York City
Tel. 6203, 38th St.

BE THE FIRST TO USE "Curtainyline" IN YOUR CITY!

YOUR patrons will notice the improvement in your picture at once. "CURTAINYLINE," curtain paint, makes better light, gives greater depth. Makes your picture stand out lifelike, and when your screen is painted with it, it is absolutely fireproof.

Prepared Curtains Complete, Ready to Hand. Write For Prices.

A $3.00 carton will cover any surface 10 x 15 ft. Last five times longer than any other paint that can be put on your curtain.

Geo. H. Hines, Chicago, says: "My throw is 135 ft. Couldn't get a good picture. 'CURTAINYLINE" improved my picture and light 100 per cent.—can't do without it." W. C. MacCollin—"Fairyland" Chicago, "greatest preparation ever saw—count me a booster."

PRICE $3.00 PER CARTON

We build everything in stage scenery. Estimates cheerfully furnished.

ALL CHICAGO EXCHANGES CARRY "CURTAINYLINE" IN STOCK.

CURTAINYLINE CO.
2046 West 12th Street -- Chicago, Ill

Western Agent:
CALIFORNIA FILM EXCHANGE
230-232 Pacific Bldg., San Francisco, Cal.

INDEPENDENT FILMS

PROMPT SERVICE ANYWHERE
"ONE OF THE OLDEST".

PURDY'S FILM EXCHANGE
300 East 23d Street - - NEW YORK
Long Distance Phone, 1512 Gram.

LOOK LOOK LOOK

MR. FILM EXCHANGE

Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving

B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

ROLL TICKETS

Every Roll Guaranteed to be Numbered Correctly

YOUR SPECIAL TICKET PRINTED BOTH SIDES

50,000, $6.50
100,000, 10.00
500,000, $35.00
STOCK TICKETS, SIX CENTS

CASH WITH ORDER THE CARTER PRESS PEABODY, MASS.

Buy the Best means Buy a Bal.

The only Moving Picture Machine Trunk in the world which is strong enough to carry the machine safely and light enough to save excess baggage charges, is the "BAL" FIBRE TRUNK, and, being the best, it is the cheapest.

SEND FOB CATALOGUE—W

WILLIAM BAL, Inc. - - - 210 West 42d Street, New York City

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

THE HONOR OF THE SLUMS.—Mary Stokes, whose husband, Bill, is a drunkard, is busily engaged working about the room. Bill enters, goes to the cupboard, finds his whiskey flask empty and starts out to have it filled. Mary remonstrates, whereupon her husband hurls her aside and goes to the saloon. She follows and begs of him to forsake this vile habit, but is again pushed aside and shrinks out of the door while the bartender and loungers laugh. The poor woman returns home broken-hearted and sinks wearily into a chair. A paper is on the table. She reads of a suicide and determines upon the same course as an escape from her cheerless life.

Leaving Mary for a moment, we see the Salvation Army leaving their headquarters, marching down the street, and at Thompson street entrance to Washington Park they form a circle and conduct an open-air meeting. Mary comes upon them here, mingles with the crowd; the leader speaks a few words of comfort to the disheartened wife and soon she expresses a wish to join the army. The leader welcomes her and takes her to the mission. Bill meanwhile keeps at his drinking, and a few days later we find him in a saloon drinking heavily as his wife enters dressed in a Salvation Army garb selling the 'War Cry." As she goes among the men trying to sell her paper she recognizes Bill, and again pleads with him, but to no avail. He angrily orders her from the place, attempts to strike her, when the bartender jumps from behind the bar and knocks Bill down. The fight which ensues attracts the police, who arrest the offenders and take Bill to the hospital. Mary forgets his unkind treatment and visits him, bringing him flowers and dainties. She offers up a prayer in his behalf, again begs him to change his ways, then leaves. In due time Bill is released from the hospital and immediately starts for his old haunts He enters the saloon in which he was injured and calls for a drink, and as he raises it to his lips a vision of his wife appears before him. He dashes the glass to the floor and hurriedly departs. He walks aimlessly along the streets until he reaches the "Bowery Mission." A girl is singing a song. Bill enters and takes a seat in the rear. The song finished, Mary rises to speak. She is apparently telling of her experience. Bill is deeply moved by her story, and, overcome by remorse, rushes up the aisle, falls to his knees and begs her forgiveness. The Salvationists form about them. Bill expresses sorrow for his past, asks to join the army and is accepted as a recruit. Length, 630 feet.

A CLEVER TRICK.—Two burglars plan a robbery. One of them impersonates a physician and together they walk down the street, where they spy an elderly man looking over some curios in a shop window. As the old man enters, the burglars exchange significant glances watching him through the window. He makes his purchase, starts for home, the burglars following closely behind. They take note of the house, then proceed to their den, where several evil-looking men are sitting about playing cards and drinking. Here they unfold a plan, which evidently meets with the approval of their pals. The two leaders go to the curio shop, purchase an article and, with their companions, proceed to the home of the curio collector. The well-dressed burglars enter the house, while the others secrete themselves behind the porch. They are ushered inside, and give the maid a card reading "Jordan Brothers, Curio Dealers." The old gentleman comes out, is immediately interested and shakes hands cordially with the two men. He buys the curio from them, when, suddenly, one of the burglars has a prearranged fit. His companion explains that his brother is subject to these spells, and he, being a doctor, always carries his medicine case to give him immediate attention. The sick man refuses to take the medicine, whereupon the fake doctor begs the old gentleman to retire to another room, as his brother becomes worse at the sight of strangers. As soon as the curio collector leaves the room, the doctor summons the thieves from outside. They hurriedly dismantle the place, take up the carpet, remove the piano, pictures and every piece of furniture. The old gentleman, returning in a few moments, is stupified at the sight and immediately falls in a chair in despair.

HOW THE KIDS GOT EVEN.—A country groceryman puts a seat outside his store for his customers to rest upon on their way to and from the city. The boys of the neighborhood make more use of it than his customers and bother him so much that he rigs up a long stick with a needle projecting from the end, attaches a string at the other end, so that from the inside of the store, when the boys are occupying the seat, by pulling the string, he can make them vacate. The worst boy of the lot slips up and learns the scheme, so he puts another string on it and goes around the corner, where he can see who sits down. Presently the customers begin to arrive—a negro washerwoman, an elderly gentleman, messenger boy, etc. Each one is given a shock. Then he goes to the victims and shows them the string running inside the store. The people rush inside and play havoc with the groceryman's wares and beat him and his clerks unmercifully. Length, 325 feet.

Mention the Moving Picture World in your correspondence.

The Galley Slave (Comerio)
Shoemaker's Luck (Comerio)
Drama Amongst Fisherman (Comerio)

FILM IMPORT & TRADING CO.

Representing
145 East 23d St. WILLIAMSON, ECLAIR AND SOCIETY ITALIAN CINES New York City

Establish Industrial Alcohol Distilleries

For Light, Heat and Power Purposes from Natural Gas, Wood Pulp, Sawdust and Vegetable Waste. Economy and Rapidity of Construction a Specialty :: ::

We are ready to negotiate with commercial associations or individuals. No speculative features—the market demands the product. Unquestionable references. Write today to

THE CONTINENTAL NATIONAL GAS ALCOHOL COMPANY

WHEELING, W. VA.

Latest Song Slides Out

"My Irish Mary"
"Little Black Boy"
"Fire Lad in Blue"

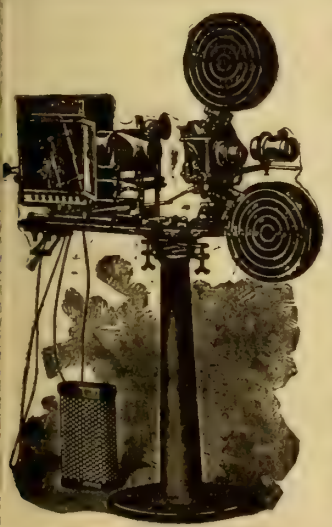
AT $5 PER SET

HARSTN & CO.
Established 1897
138 E. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.

Army Auction Bargains

Tents	$1.90 up	Old Pistols	$.50 up
Shoes	1.25 "	Officers' Swords, new	1.75 "
ARMY SADDLES	3.00 "	Cavalry Sabres	1.50 "
" Bridles	1.00 "	UNIFORMS	1.25 up
" Leggins, pr.	.15 "	7 Shot Carbine	3.50

U. S. SPRINGFIELD B-L RIFLES $1.79
Blank or Ball Cartridge, 35 cents box of 20.
1907 MILITARY CATALOGUE 260 large pages, thousands of beautiful illustrations—with 1908 supplement—wholesale and retail prices. Mailed for 15 cents (stamps).
15 ACRES GOV'T. AUCTION GOODS.
FRANCIS BANNERMAN, 501 Broadway, NEW YORK



PREVENTS TIRED EYES AND HEADACHES

The rapidity of our new shutter has been so perfected that 30 to 40 per cent. less non-exposure (which has heretofore caused the tremulous vibration producing so many tired eyes and headaches) is found in the Motiograph than in any other machine, making perfect brilliancy of picture and sharpness of outline. Together with the rocklike steadiness of the pedestal the flicker is thus entirely eliminated.

Five-cent Theatre and Vaudeville-House Managers increase their bank account with the Motiograph. Patrons who come once will always come again where they know they see the best pictures, positively rest their eyes instead of tiring them, and where all fire risks are removed.

The Motiograph

1908 Theatre Model, Especially Approved by the Underwriters Association

OTHER POINTS OF EXCELLENCE IN THE MOTIOGRAPH found in no other machines are: A special Film Rewind by which the film can be rewound with the main crank in two minutes without removing either reels or magazines, saving time between pictures and entertainments; perfected Fireproof Magazines, Fire Traps, with four rollers and with spring actuated flanged guides, preventing side movement and making it impossible for fire to pass them; never failing Automatic Fireproof Shutters; Perfect Framing Device; Flanged Sprocket Rollers to prevent film being torn or ruined by accidentally running off sprocket wheels; Enclosed Gears and working parts; Perfect Take-up with new form of belt adjuster; Lid Off Wide Open Lamp House making it easily accessible; Improved Arc Lamp with all Hand Wheel Adjustments; Slide Carrier Swing, saving one-third more illustration for the Motion Pictures.

FILMS AND SLIDES

Headquarters for the finest, largest and most complete stock in the United States. The success of an entertainment depends on never allowing the interest of an audience to flag; patrons who have come once will come again when constgnt change of programme is made.

Send For NEW FALL CATALOGUE of Entertainers Supplies explaining everything and showing how big money can be made entertaining the public, sent free. Special literature describing the advantages of the Motiograph for professional entertainers and theatre managers.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO., E. D. OTIS, Mgr., Supply Dept., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

LATEST FILMS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 1—One Touch of Nature (Pathetic).....724 ft.
Jan. 11—The onor of Thieves (Dramatic).....681 ft.
Jan. 11—Love Finds a Way (Comedy-drama).....319 ft.
Jan. 14—A Rural Elopement (Dramatic).....546 ft.
Jan —The Sacrifice (Comedy).....438 ft.
Jan. 18—The Criminal Hypnotist (Dramatic).....626 ft.
Jan. 18—Those Boys! (Comedy).....342 ft.
Jan. 21—Mr. Jones Has a Card Party (Comedy).....583 ft.
Jan. 21—The Fascinating Mrs. Francis (Comedy).....417 ft.
Jan. 25—The Welcome Burglar (Dramatic).....790 ft.
Jan. 25—Those Awful Hats (Comedy).....185 ft.
Jan. 28—The Cord of Life (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Feb. 1—The Girls and Daddy (Dramatic).....901 ft.
Feb. 4—The Brahma Diamond (Dramatic).....1036 ft.
Feb. 8—A Wreath in Time (Comedy).....558 ft.
Feb. 8—Edgar Allen Poe (Dramatic).....450 ft.
Feb. 15—The Curtain Pole (Comedy).....765 ft.
Feb. 15—His Ward's Love (Dramatic).....235 ft.
Feb. 18—The Hindoo Dagger (Dramatic).....583 ft.
Feb. 18—The Joneses Have Amateur Theatricals (C).400 ft.
Feb. 22—The Politician's Love Story.....526 ft.
Feb. 22—The Golden Louis.....474 ft.
Feb. 25—At the Altar.....972 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 5—Under Northern Skies (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 8—The Worm Will Turn (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 12—Where Is My Wandering Boy To-night? (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 15—Drawing the Color Line (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 19—Pagan and Christian (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 22—A Burglar Cupid (Comedy).....850 ft.
Jan. 26—A Romance of Old Madrid (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Feb. 2—The Origin of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata 1,006
Feb. 9—A Bachelor's Supper (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 12—The Saleslady's Matinee Idol (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 16—A Daughter of the Sun (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 19—The Uplifting of Mr. Barker (Comedy)..900 ft.
Feb. 23—The Landlady's Portrait (Comedy).....585 ft.
Feb. 23—The Janitor's Bottle (Comedy).....405 ft.
Feb. 26—Left Out (Dramatic).....900 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Jan. 6—The Haunted Lounge (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 6—The Neighbors' Kids (Comedy).....550 ft.
Jan. 20—Old Curiosity Shop (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 27—Too Much Dog Biscuit (Comedy).....400 ft.
Jan. 27—A Cure for Gout (Comedy).....540 ft.
Jan. 29—A Modest Young Man (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 5—Adventures of an Old Flirt (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 3—The Musician's Love Story (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 24—The Tell-tale Blotter (Dramatic).....———

GAUMONT.

George Kleine.

Feb. 1-6—Gendarme's Horses (Gaumont).....275 ft.
Feb. 1-6—A Mother's Heart (Gaumont).....650 ft.
Feb. 1-6—The Nurse's Romance (Gaumont).....925 ft.
Feb. 9—The Miner's Will (Gaumont).....482 ft.
Feb. 9—A Sportive Puppet (Gaumont).....403 ft.
Feb. 13—Jones Has Bought a Phonograph (Gaumont).296 ft.
Feb. 13—The Ambassador's Despatch Case (Gaum't).624 ft.
Feb. 15-20—A Strong Draught (Gaumont).....380 ft.
Feb. 15-20—Grandfather (Gaumont).....614 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The Chinamen (Gaumont).....387 ft.
Feb. 15-20—Bernard Palissy (Gaumont).....444 ft.
Feb. 23—An Obstinate Umbrella (Comedy).....530 ft.
Feb. 23—Some Milk for Baby (Comedy).....430 ft.
Feb. 27—The Prince and the Dwarf (Melo.).....707 ft.
Feb. 27—The Foxy Husband (Comedy).....253 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Jan. 13—Life in Russia (Scenic).....331 ft.
Jan. 13—Jim Smith (Comedy).....312 ft.
Jan. 13—The Stepmother (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Jan. 20—Desert Life (Scenic).....377 ft.
Jan. 20—Balloon Races (Scenic).....295 ft.
Jan. 20—The Gnomes (Dramatic).....436 ft.
Jan. 27—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.
Jan. 27—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 27—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Educational).....1415 ft.
Feb. 6—Badger Hunt (Educational).....436 ft.
Feb. 6—Wild Man of Borneo (Comedy).....433 ft.
Jan. 27—Desert Life (Comedy).....380 ft.
Feb. 3—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Dramatic).....415 ft.
Feb. 3—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Feb. 3—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.
Feb. 17—The Caliph's Adventures.....564 ft.
Feb. 19—James and Catherine.....450 ft.
Feb. 19—The Barber's Christening.....540 ft.
Feb. 26—Sherlock Holmes (2).....680 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Jan. 1—The Trial of the White Man (Dramatic)..975 ft.
Jan. 8—A Florida Feud (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 15—The Sponge Fishers of Cuba (Educational).965 ft.
Jan. 22—The Girl At the Old Mill (Dramatic).....
Jan. 29—The Octoroon (Dramatic)..... ft.
Feb. 5—The Detectives (Dramatic).....800 ft.
Feb. 12—The High Diver (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 19—Sporting Days in the South; or, The Making of a Champion (Dramatic).....940 ft.
Feb. 26—The New Minister.....865 ft.

LUBIN.

Jan. 25—A Suit Case (Comedy).....615 ft.
Jan. 25—Who Stole Jones' Wood? (Comedy).....270 ft.
Jan. 28—The New Mirror (Serio-Dramatic).....480 ft.
Jan. 28—Love Germs (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 1—Aunt Emmy's Scrap Book (Dramatic).....865 ft.
Feb. 4—The Blind Musician (Dramatic).....480 ft.
Feb. 4—Willie's Water Sprinkler (Comedy).....340 ft.
Feb. 15—The Silver Dollar (Comedy).....475 ft.
Feb. 15—The Unlucky Horseshoe (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 18—A Broken Heart (Dramatic).....530 ft.
Feb. 18—The Pass Key (Comedy).....415 ft.
Feb. 22—The New Governess (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 25—Love Me, Love My Dog (Comedy).....650 ft.
Feb. 25—A Game of Chess (Comedy).....290 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Jan. 25—Sammy Celebrates (Comedy).....354 ft.
Jan. 27—Calling Day (Comedy).....469 ft.
Jan. 27—Nic Carter's Double (Comedy).....469 ft.
Jan. 29—Vampires of the Coast (Dramatic).....590 ft.
Jan. 29—A Put Up Job (Comedy).....348 ft.
Jan. 30—Saved by His Dog (Dramatic).....512 ft.
Jan. 30—On the Zambesi (Scenic).....328 ft.
Feb. 1—A Village Quarrel (Dramatic).....466 ft.
Feb. 1—The Two Bandboxes (Comedy).....216 ft.
Feb. 1—A Sure 'Nuff Tumbler (Comedy).....292 ft.
Feb. 3—Incriminating Evidence (Dramatic).....1160 ft.
Feb. 5—Choosing a Life Partner (Comedy).....689 ft.
Feb. 5—He Can Imitate Anything (Comedy).....295 ft.
Feb. 6—Vulture Hunting in Africa (Scenic).....597 ft.
Feb. 6—Why They Fell Out (Comedy).....387 ft.
Feb. 8—Les Ricochets (Scenic).....246 ft.
Feb. 8—Women Chauffeurs (Comedy).....311 ft.
Feb. 8—Buster's Revenge (Comedy).....344 ft.
Feb. 10—Charlotte Corday (Tragic).....787 ft.
Feb. 10—Adventures of a Bag of Coal (Comedy)....203 ft.
Feb. 12—Bess and Her Goose (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 12—The Laplanders (Educational).....462 ft.
Feb. 13—The Brazilian's Ring (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 13—They Lead the Cops a Chase (Comedy)....410 ft.
Feb. 15—The Hand (Serio-Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 17—The Assassination of the Duke of Guise (Dramatic).....853 ft.
Feb. 19—His First Flight (Comedy).....397 ft.
Feb. 19—Choice of Weapons (Comedy).....315 ft.
Feb. 19—How Mother-in-Law Got Even (Comedy)...197 ft.
Feb. 20—Exacting Father-in-Law (Comedy).....423 ft.
Feb. 20—Now I'm Here, I'll Stay (Comedy).....453 ft.
Feb. 22—The Miser (Dramatic).....519 ft.
Feb. 22—Grand Canal, Venice (Scenic).....410 ft.
Feb. 24—What a Uniform Will Do (Comedy).....495 ft.
Feb. 24—A Little Coquette (Serio-Dramatic).....367 ft.
Feb. 26—The Jolly Trio's Dream (Comedy).....417 ft.
Feb. 26—Mr. Jonah Gets a Little Dust in His Eyes (Comedy).....184 ft.
Feb. 26—Topsy-Turvy (Comedy).....318 ft.
Feb. 27—Hypnotic Subject (Comedy).....479 ft.
Feb. 27—Florrie's Birthday (Comedy).....433 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Jan. 7—The Tenderfoot (Comedy).....416 ft.
Jan. 7—The Tyrant's Dream (Comedy).....420 ft.
Jan. 7—Schooldays (Comedy).....164 ft.
Jan. 14—In Old Arizona (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....
Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....950 ft.
Jan. 28—The Prairie Town Romance (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 4—Stirring Days in Old Virginia (Historical).1000 ft.
Feb. 18—King of the Ring (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Feb. —On the Warpath.....1000 ft.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

George Kleine.

Feb. 1-6—The Guard's Alarm (Urban).....463 ft.
Feb. 1-6—The Living Wreck (Urban).....562 ft.
Feb. 10—The Double's Fate (Urban-Eclipse).....430 ft.
Feb. 10—Following Mother's Footsteps (Urban-Eclipse).....475 ft.
Feb. 15-20—Outwitted (Urban).....463 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The American Fleet at Sydney, New South Wales (Urban).....190 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The Hand of a Wizard (Urban).....374 ft.
Feb. 24—Joel's Wedding (Drama).....569 ft.
Feb. 24—Polka on Brain (Comedy).....445 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 5—The Bride of Lammermoor (Tragic).....540 ft.
Jan. 5—The Painting (Pathetic).....430 ft.
Jan. 9—A Telephathic Warning (Dramatic).....675 ft.
Jan. 9—He Went to See the Devil Play (Comedy).295 ft.
Jan. 12—The Heroine of the Forge (Dramatic)....315 ft.
Jan. 12—The Castaways (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Jan. 16—The Two Sons (Dramatic).....587 ft.
Jan. 16—The Bride of Tabaiva (Dramatic).....380 ft.
Jan. 19—Ruy Blas (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 23—A Case of Spirits (Comedy).....500 ft.
Jan. 26—The Treasure (Comedy).....464 ft.
Jan. 30—Cleopatra's Lover (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Feb. 2—The Deacon's Love Letter (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Feb. 2—The Marathon Race (Serio-Dramatic).....585 ft.
Feb. 6—Virginius (Dramatic).....955 ft.
Feb. 9—Jessie, the Stolen Child (Dramatic).....560 ft.
Feb. 9—A Clever Trick (Comedy).....345 ft.
Feb. 13—An Irish Hero (Dramatic).....735 ft.
Feb. 13—Lost in a Folding Bed (Comedy).....247 ft.
Feb. 16—The Honor of the Slums (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Feb. 16—How the Kids Got Even (Comedy).....325 ft.
Feb. 20—"C. Q. D." (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 23—The Poor Musician (Dramatic).....652 ft.
Feb. 23—Perpetual Proposals (Comedy).....296 ft.
Feb. 27—Saul and David (Dramatic).....1000 ft.

LATEST SONG SLIDES.

A. L. SIMPSON.

113 W. 132nd Street, New York.

Sunburnt Salome.
Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Along.
When Darling Bess Whispered—Yes.
Lecturettes on:
Our Navy.
Skyscrapers of New York.

THE PREMO COMPANY,

1851 Germantown Ave., Phila., Pa.

I Could Learn to Love You.
I Lost My Heart When I Saw Your Eyes.
Let Me Call You Sweetheart Once Again.
When the Robin Sings Again.
There's a Fleet On the Sea.
Twilight Down in Dixie.
Your Picture Says "Remember."
It's Nice to Be Loved By Someone.
As in Days of Old, Dear Heart.
If You Must Love Someone, Won't You Please Love Me.
Would You Like to Take a Walk with Me?
I Don't Want Another Sister.
I Love You for Yourself Alone.
I'm Going to Tell On You.
When You Know that the Girl Loves You.
The Old Wedding Ring.
Tell Me the Old, Old Story.
When the Dew Is On the Clover in Kildare.
Some Day Will Be Too Late.

DEWITT C. WHEELER.

120 W. 31st Street, New York.

Why Doesn't Santa Claus Go Next Door?
Smiling Star.
Don't Take Me Home.
Shine On, Harvest Moon.
Promise.
Somebody's Heart.
Honey Dear.
I'd Like to Be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You.
Witching Hour.
Nearest and Dearest.
When the Sun Goes Down to Rest Behind the Hill.
Whisper My Name in Your Dreams.
When the Snowflakes Crown the Hilltops.
There Is Nothing in the World Like Love.
I'm Glad I'm Married.
What Is Life to Me?
I Used to Be Afraid to Come Home in the Dark.
To the End of the World with You.
Honeyland.
Say, Do You Love Me, Dear?

NEW TRAVELOGUES.
THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY,

224 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Salmon Fishing on the Columbia River, Oregon.
A Little Bit of Everywhere.
A Journey to New Zealand.
U. S. Coast Artillery at Practice.
Views in and Around Copenhagen, Denmark.
Life in Turkey.
Evangeline Land.
Santa Barbara, California.
The Crab Industry on the Oder River, Germany.
Flags and Coats-of-Arms of All Nations.
Wild Animals.
Wild Birds.
California's Infant Industries, Olive.
Scenes in Germany.
A Sunday in London, England.
As They Live on the Russian Steppe.

HARSTN & CO.,

138 E. 14th St., New York.

Take Me to Moving Pictures.
Love Spells Trouble to Me.
Mansion of Millionaires.
You Are the Girl for Me.
Flag of Green.
Don't Take Me Home.
When the Leaves Have Turned to Golden.
My Yankee Land.
In the Bright Moonlight.
Growing and Ostrich Farming.
Fire Lad in Blue.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

10 Fifth Avenue - - - New York City

The following Manufacturers and Importers of Films have been Licensed by this Company.

American Mutoscope & Biograph Company
Edison Manufacturing Company
Essanay Film Manufacturing Company
Kalem Company
George Kleine
Lubin Manufacturing Company
Pathe Freres
Selig Polyscope Company
Vitagraph Company of America

LICENSED EXCHANGES

The following exchanges have been licensed, and at the present time are the only Exchanges that are authorized to handle licensed films:

Actograph Company, 50 Union Square, New York City.
Actograph Company, Troy, N. Y.
Alamo Film Exchange, 405 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Alamo Film Exchange, 304 Conroy Building, San Antonio, Tex.
American Film Exchange, 645 Wabash Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
American Film Service, 125 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.
American Film Service, 158 North Main street, Memphis, Tenn.
American Vitagraph Company, 116 Nassau street, New York, N. Y.
George Breck, 70 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo Film Exchange, 13½ Genesee street, Buffalo, N. Y.
C. A. Calehuff, Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Calumet Film Exchange, Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline & Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline, 268 South State street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Clune Film Exchange, 727 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.
Colorado Film Exchange Company, 320 Charles Building, Denver, Colo.
Columbia Film Exchange, 414 Ferguson Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Gayety Theater Building, St. Louis, Mo.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Crawford Theater, El Paso, Tex.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Hopkins Theater, Louisville, Ky.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Shubert Theater, New Orleans, La.
Harry Davis, 347 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Harry Davis, Buffalo, N. Y.
Harry Davis, 1311 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Denver Film Exchange, 713 Lincoln avenue, Denver, Colo.
Dixie Film Company, 620 Commercial place, New Orleans, La.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 104-5 Bakewell Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 235 Monticello Arcade Building, Norfolk, Va.
Edison Display Co., 1116 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash.
Edison Display Co., 165½ Fourth street, Portland, Ore.
Electric Theater Supply Co., 47 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Greater New York Film Rental Co., 24 Union Square, New York City.
C. J. Hite Company, Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill.
Howard Moving Picture Co., 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Imperial Film Exchange, 44 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City.
Imperial Film Exchange, 299 River street, Troy, N. Y.
Imperial Film Exchange, 803 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Imported Film & Supply Co., 708 Union street, New Orleans, La.
Kent Film Service, 218 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Kleine Optical Company, 2008½ Third avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Kleine Optical Company, 657 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Kleine Optical Company, 52 State street, Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Company, 302 Boston Building, Denver, Colo.
Kleine Optical Company, 229 Commercial Building, Des Moines, Ia.
Kleine Optical Company, 214 Traction Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Kleine Optical Co. of California, 369 Pacific Electric Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Kleine Optical Company, 662 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Company, 309 Melhorn Building, Seattle, Wash.
Kleine Optical Company of Missouri, 523 Commercial Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Laemmle Film Service, 196 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service, Main and Sixth streets, Evansville, Ind.
Laemmle Film Service, 78 South Front street, Memphis, Tenn.
Laemmle Film Service, 1121-23 Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service, 800 Brandeis Block, Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service, 419-20 Marquam Grand Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service, 151 Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 314 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
H. Lieber Co., 24 West Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lubin Film Service, 21 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Lubin Film Service, 510 Paul-Gale-Greenwood Building, Norfolk, Va.
Lubin Film Service, 140 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 82 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
Miles Bros., Inc., 259 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Miles Bros., Inc., Washington and Dover streets, Boston, Mass.
Miles Bros., Inc., 790 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Mitchell Film Exchange, 120½ Main street, Little Rock, Ark.
Monarch Film Exchange, 201 Thompson Building, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Montana Film Exchange, 41 North Main street, Butte, Mont.
Morton Film Exchange, 107 Sixth street, Portland, Ore.
National Film Company, 100 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., Spokane, Wash.
Novelty Moving Picture Co., 418 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Broad street, Columbus, Ohio.
Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.
Pennsylvania Film Exchange, 403 Lewis Block, Pittsburg, Pa.
People's Film Exchange, 126 University place, New York City.
Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 121 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Wilkesbarre, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 501-503 Central Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Neave Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 421 Walnut street, Des Moines, Ia.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 60-62 Brownell Block, Lincoln, Neb.
Schiller Film Exchange, 103 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Southern Film Exchange, 1822 Fourth avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Southern Film Exchange, 148 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George K. Spoor & Co., 62 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.
Star Film Exchange, 120 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Standard Film Exchange, 79 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Superior Film Supply Co., 621 Nasby Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Swaab Film Service Co., 338 Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 160 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Wm. H. Swanson Co. of Omaha, 405 Karbach Block, Omaha, Neb.
Wm. H. Swanson St. Louis Film Co., 200 North Seventh street, St. Louis, Mo.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main street, East, Rochester, N. Y.
Tally's Film Exchange, 554 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Theater Film Supply Co., 202 South Tryon street, Charlotte, N. C.
Theater Film Supply Co., 2007 Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Theater Film Service Co., 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Theater Film Service Co., 1038 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal.
Trent & Wilson, 63 East Third street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
20th Century Optiscope Co., Shukert Building, Kansas City, Mo.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 408 Eccles Building, Ogden, Utah.
Turner & Dahnken, 1650 Ellis street, San Francisco, Cal.
Twin City Calcium and Stereopticon Co., 709 Hennepin ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
United Film Exchange, 717 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
U. S. Film Exchange, 132 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Vaudette Film Exchange Co., 103 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich.
P. L. Waters, 41 East Twenty-first street, New York City.
Alfred Weiss' Film Exchange, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City.
Western Film Exchange, 949 Century Building, St. Louis Mo.
Western Film Exchange, 307 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange, 201 Miners' Bank Building, Joplin, Mo.
Wonderland Film Exchange, Seventh street and Liberty ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
Wheelan-Loper Film Co., 339 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Yale Film Renting Co., 622 Main street, Kansas City, Mo.

Competition and Not Opposition Promotes Prosperity in Any Enterprise

The Life Saver for Independent Exhibitors and Exchanges

International Projecting & Producing Companies

CAPITAL STOCK, $2,000,000

AND NONE FOR SALE

In all the States and Territories of the United States and in Canada and Mexico.

Operating the McKinney Moving Picture Projection Machine and Camera, neither of these machines infringing in any way, shape or manner any other patents, making them entirely Independent of all Trust and Combines.

WE ARE THE EXCLUSIVE AMERICAN AGENTS for the leading European manufacturers, including the following:

AMBROSIO
PINESCHI
ECLAIR
DEUTSCHE BIOSCOP
CLARENDON
WILLIAMSON
RALEIGH & ROBERT AQUILA
THEO. PATHE
WRENCH
CHICKS & MARTIN
WALTURDAW
STELLA ITALA
WARWICK TRADING CO.
LUX
MESTER DEUTSCHE
HEPWORTH
ROBERT PAUL
COMERIO

While the product of some of the above firms has been handled heretofore by other agencies, our contracts were signed in Paris, France, on Feb. 3, and after this date we will handle the exclusive output of new subjects.

The output of these manufacturers presents a variety of subjects to select from to satisfy the demands of the most exacting patrons of a moving picture theater.

No License Fee or Royalty Exacted

ALL FILMS AND MACHINES SOLD OUTRIGHT WITHOUT RESTRICTION. When you buy them they are your own property.

ALL EXCHANGES AND EXHIBITORS ARE INVITED TO COMMUNICATE AT ONCE AND MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR SERVICE IN THEIR VARIOUS LOCALITIES. We will appoint agencies in every large city and territory, preference being given to those already established. In the largest cities the number of agencies appointed will be governed by the population and local conditions.

American factories will be established at once in New York, Chicago, Denver, California and the Philippines. Each factory will produce an exclusive line, characteristic of the territory in which it is located.

READ THESE PARALLEL CASES

The Supreme Court of the United States has rendered a decision in the case of Voight vs. Continental Wall Paper Co., that Voight need not pay the paper company an indebtedness of $57,000 because Voight had been compelled to sign a strict agreement on the threat that if he did not do so no paper would be sold to him, and that it would be made impossible for him to continue in business.

The Trust has tried to compel exchanges and exhibitors to sign its obnoxious agreements, claiming patent rights and a monopoly, and threatening dire things if they did not sign. According to this Supreme Court decision such agreements would not be sustained. This is the cause of much rejoicing on the part of exchanges and exhibitors who had been coerced into signing.

Applicants for Agencies and Service write, wire or call at our offices. All communications confidential, and will not be published, as we stated in our advertisements last week, which enabled our correspondents to write freely, and which proved to us so convincingly the feeling against the Trust, and the desire for our success. Some of the largest exchanges licensed by the Trust have assured us that they would use our films in preference to the Trust, as soon as we were in full operation.

INDEPENDENT SERVICE IS THE BEST BECAUSE YOUR NEIGHBOR IS NOT SHOWING THE SAME SUBJECTS THAT YOU ARE.

International Projecting & Producing Co's

TEMPORARY OFFICE

1006 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO

McKINNEY MOVING PICTURE MACHINE

An Entirely New Invention in Motography

Operates without a Star Wheel and Cam, without Sprocket Holes, Loop or Revolving Shutter. Has an Automatic Rewind, which obviates the necessity of rewinding film, and Automatic Tension Spring Release, which relieves strain on film. Steady as the Rock of Gibralter, of Simple Construction and Strongly Built. Has Only One Shaft, and Contains Only One-third the Number of Parts of Any Other Machine on the Market. The Movement is Six to One, while all Others are only Four to One, which Makes the Picture 33 1-3 per cent. More Brilliant, with Less Light. The Dissolving Shutter Insures Steadness. This is an Entirely New Principle and produces an Absolutely Flickerless Picture. The Mechanism Can Be Entirely Taken Out by Removing Two Screws. Every Part is Accessible at a Moment's Notice. Place Your Order Now. First Come First Served.

Write, Wire or Call for Full Information. All Correspondence Regarding Service will be Treated Confidential.

All Machines Sold Without Restrictions

International Projecting & Producing Co's

1006 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

NEXT ISSUES

JAMES AND CATHERINE
Or, LOVE ON A FARM
Length, 450 Feet

THE BARBER'S CHRISTENING
Comedy Subject, with Plenty of Laughter to it
Length, 540 Feet

Issued February 19th

SHERLOCK HOLMES II
The Detective in Danger of His Life
Raffles' Escape from Prison

Length, about 680 Feet

Released February 26th

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Licensee under the Biograph Patents. All purchasers and users of our Film will be protected by the American Mutoscope & Biograph Company

ATTENTION

We want all the Film Exchanges and Exhibitors—to send us their addresses—so that we can put them on our mailing list and send them our weekly description of the films we will place on the market.

Write, Wire or 'Phone to the nearest Office.

HARSTN & COMPANY

EASTERN AGENTS FOR

International Projecting & Producing Company
138 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.

NEW ENGLAND FILM EXCHANGE
611 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

THE KEYSTONE FILM SUPPLY
303 Lackawana Ave. Scranton, Pa.

ANTI-TRUST FILM CO.

Don't Pay Any Machine License
Don't Sign Any Agreements

Don't Let Your Film Exchange Pay the First Month
This is Only a Trick. They Will Get You Later

Are you, Mr. Theatre Owner, going to dig down in your pocket and pay $104.00 a year for the privilege of using certain makes of film?

THINK OF IT—You are asked to pay 70% per year of the original cost of your machine. Assert yourself. Fight to the last Ditch.

Be Independent

WITH US

We Can and Will

RENT YOU FILMS

ORGANIZE the showmen in your territory, and send a man to our offices and we will give you films now. Telegraph, telephone or write. We ship same day we receive your orders. And we ship to all parts of the United States. Special Offer—Contract with us for eight weeks service and we will pay half your railroad fare to Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED. Men who control circuits of theatres come to our offices quick—we can interest you

ANTI-TRUST FILM CO.

79 S. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

NOT IN THE TRUST

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only tothe high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4., No. 9 February 27, 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

Published Weekly by THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO., 125 E. 23d ST., NEW YORK

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS are learning that It Pays to Investigate and that

The Motiograph is truly A Wonderful Machine

FOR MOTION PICTURES AND STEROPTICON VIEWS

and that where there's Perfect Pictures there's A Motiograph in the Operator's Booth.

Chicago, Boston, New York and Frisco approved.

It projects Wonderfully Brilliant, Steady and Flickerless Pictures and is absolutely fireproof.

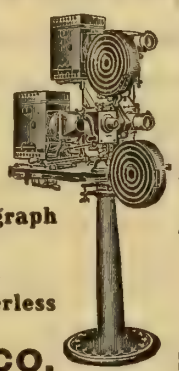
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.



The Motiograph is Licensed

under the patents of the

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.
OF NEW YORK.

The Rheostato Current Saver, saves 60 to 75 per cent. on Electric Bills.

The Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit is the only satisfactory substitute for Electric Light.

Our Catalog tells a lot of interesting things.

WRITE FOR IT;

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

The Eagle Film Exchange

Will give you an exclusive service. We handle nothing but new goods—no junk. We are prepared to give you the following makes of film:

GREAT NORTHERN, ECLAIR, CINES, COMERIO, MELIES, WILLIAMSON, Etc.

Branch: MAUCH CHUNK, PA., Oscar Bittner, Mgr.

143 N. 8th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A GOOD PROPOSITION

Special Notice to Film Exchanges

IMPORTANT—Wire Your Orders as to how many extra prints you want

With Taft in Panama

Selig's First Special under the Title "With Taft in Panama." Length 900 feet, will be released to you as a special at 13 cents a foot, Tuesday, March 2, 1909 Selig's operators just returned from Panama with the Taft Party. Here is the chance of your life time to get a picture that the general public all wants to see, as everybody has read about the great Panama Canal. This picture will not interfere with Selig's regular picture on Thursday, March 4th, "The Mad Miner," 870 feet.

This Picture will be a great attraction. Everybody take notice. Remember It Is a "Selig"

Outing Pastimes in Colorado

Length, 125 feet.

See the Great Rope Walker and the Fancy Swimming Contest. Order from your nearest film exchange.

Thanking you kindly for your order by wire, we remain,

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO., Inc., 5-47-49 Randolph St., Chicago, U. S. A.

OUR NEW LOCATION

THIRD FLOOR SECURITY BUILDING, S. C. COR. MADISON ST. and FIFTH AVE., CHICAGO

In Our New Quarters We Are Better Able to Supply the Wants of Everybody with the 18 DIFFERENT REELS WEEKLY

AMERICAN FILM SERVICE

BEST SERVICE IN AMERICA Third Floor Security Bldg., S. E. Cor. Madison St. and Fifth Ave., CHICAGO

$49.50 In One Month

is what one moving picture machine man saved by using a

COMPENSARC

For Alternating Current Only

to regulate his arc lamp. This is what he says:-

"Of all the other machines that I have seen professing to do the work along the same lines, I have no knowledge of one that I would put in if it were given to me free."

Many others have given similar opinions. Are you interested in what the Compensarc can do for you? May we send you a copy of our Booklet 25013—it gives a complete description of the Compensarc. Write today.

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS

Department A FORT WAYNE, INDIANA 754

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST
J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS
ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT
Write for Samples and Full Information
THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS
59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

BIOGRAPH FILMS
TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED MARCH 1, 1909

His Wife's Mother

A very funny comedy in which the husband manages to cut short his mother-in-law's visit by showering upon her attentions to the extreme neglect of his wife. This causes jealousy in the wife and the final eviction of mamma, dear, from the house.

LENGTH 523 FEET

The Prussian Spy

A thrilling episode of the Franco-Prussian War showing the apprehension of a spy in his daring visit to his sweetheart.

LENGTH 465 FEET

RELEASED MARCH 4, 1909

A Fool's Revenge

This is a free adaptation of the story of "Rigoletto," showing the Court-fool, who plans vengeance which reverts upon himself. Seeking to have the Duke, who he suspects to have abducted his daughter, put out of the way, he enlists the services of a gypsy couple, who kill the girl in mistake for the Duke. An intensely dramatic subject, beautifully staged and acted, with perfect photographic quality.

LENGTH 1000 FEET

Release days of Biograph Subjects—MONDAY and THURSDAY

Get on Our Mail List and Keep Posted. Write for Our Descriptive Circulars

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY
11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER
PRICE $5.00
THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.
Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB
340 Spruce Street
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

OELSCHLAEGER BROS.
110 East 23d Street, New York
Importers of OPTICAL GOODS
Condensing Lenses
Objectives for Projection Lanterns
Tubes & Jackets for Moving Picture Machines.
Supplied to the Trade Only. Write for prices

NOW READY
Rush in Your Order for Service.
Independent Film Service for particular people. We have better facilities for handling your business than any concern in the West. Machines, tickets, carbons, and everything the exhibitor needs. Write for terms.
INDEPENDENT FILM & SUPPLY CO. Inc.
216 Balboa Bldg., 2d and Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SALE—20 reels film—all titled—good condition at $10 per reel and 50 reels at $15 per reel. 50,000 San Francisco post cards $1.50 per M. Slot machines at one-half price. Mayer Silverman, 713 Fulton Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

GAUMONT FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

"THE PIANO TEACHER"

Drama. Approx. Length, 857 Feet.

RELEASED TUESDAY, MARCH 2, 1909.

A story of intensely dramatic interest. The scene opens with a view of the sitting room in the home of a merchant. Those present are the merchant, his daughter and a childhood friend. As the lady leaves the glances of the young man testify of the infatuation he has for her. At the home of her pupil the teacher meets the latter's brother and readily falls a victim to his suave manner. Friendship soon ripens into love and before long the young lady is seen to make her departure from the paternal domicile to be married to her new found friend. "Married in haste" in this instance also gives cause for "repentance at leisure." The husband proves unfaithful and the young woman soon finds herself called upon to seek legal separation. She returns to her home but the stern father is obdurate and will not grant his pardon. Her child she entrusts to the maid in her father's home and then goes out to seek a livelihood as best she can. The child is well taken care of and prospers in the luxuriant atmosphere of her indulgent grandfather's estate. Years have passed and one day as the maid is out with the child a woman of emaciated appearance and with torn garments is seen seeking alms. The merchant passes on after bestowing a coin in the uplifted hand. The benefactor, however, is recognized and the woman after gazing furtively and longingly at the child, tries to depart but is recognized by the maid as the mother of the child. Her childhood friend is present and moved to compassion begs her to remain. They escort her into the home and when the father returns efforts at reconciliation are unavailing until the little daughter intercedes. Excellent photographic quality.

"WALKING ON HIS TOES"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 406 Feet.

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1909.

A most amusing comedy with a highly entertaining performance of walking on the toes of a pair of special constructed shoes.

The guest in a hotel finds his room pilfered over night and his shoes supplanted with another pair of rare variety.

Obliged to don the shoes he accomplishes severe meritorious feats, also succeeds in regaining his property and bringing the perpetrators of crime to justice.

"IN SORE STRAITS"

Drama. Approx. Length, 522 Feet.

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1909.

A drama of merit, excellent quality and detail. After a series of misfortunes an entire family is driven to seek public charity. The aged father is left with the daughter by the roadside while the son seeks food for the starving group. His efforts meet with poor results and in a moment of desperation he follows the insane promptings of an unsound mind. His dependents, however, fare better in his absence as they are taken up by an aristocratic young woman, who singularly enough proves to be the wife of the man attacked by the unfortunate pauper.

When the latter is overpowered and learns what kindness has been shown his family he becomes penitent and seeks pardon, which is granted.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

"THE SAILOR'S BELT"

Drama. Approx. Length, 483 Feet.

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, 1909.

In a coast town the family of a fisherman is meeting with hard luck. A solicitor threatens to sell the home to realize on a mortgage when a young sailor magnanimously offers his savings to pay the indebtedness. The auction sale is prevented and the sailor goes on in pursuit of his calling. An accident at sea causes the sinking of his vessel and the young man is rescued from the wreckage washed ashore. He is taken to the nearest home where loving hands lend every aid to a speedy recovery. By means of his belt he is identified as the sailor who furnished the funds to pay the indebtedness on the homestead. His attentions to Mary Ann, the daughter, and now his nurse, are received with favor and the two hearts soon unite to beat as one.

Thrilling and intensely interesting.

"AN EMBARRASING PRESENT"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 410 Feet.

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, 1909.

This subject depicts very amusing scenes incident to having a consignment of strongly aromatic delicatessen as baggage on a pleasure trip. The pleasure seeker just having left his home the expressman follows with a package and makes delivery at a Summer garden. When an obnoxious aroma is perceived the owner of the parcel endeavors to leave it behind and is just entering a carriage with his wife when an attendant succeeds in overtaking him and delivering the forgotton (?) article. A number of similar experiences are made, when the parcel falls into another's hands in an improper manner. The latter seeks and receives satisfaction with a vengeance; a gendarme exacts tribute and numerous other efforts are made to dispose of the embarrassing gift but to no avail. Finally they determine to inter the cause of offense but are detected by the gendarmes and obliged to disclose and explain their act before they are permitted to depart.

GEORGE KLEINE

Importer of Gaumont and Urban-Eclipse Films

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Moving Picture World

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company,
125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.
Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

Vol. 4 FEBRUARY 27 No. 9

Editorial.

The rumblings of dissatisfaction and the eruptions of tall talk have subsided to some extent and the Independents are getting down to business and preparing to deliver the goods. This is the main thing and if they can guarantee the exhibitor a steady and plentiful supply of new subjects of such quality as were exhibited at the Orpheum Theater on Thursday they will have a strong following and the encouragement of everyone who is interested in the advancement of the moving picture business.

* * *

After all that has been said and done, the position of the exhibitor to-day is one with which he should be well satisfied. Both sides are prepared to keep up a supply of new subjects and the competition between the manufacturers will be keen enough to ensure a high average quality. The leading spirits of the Independents have in view regulations which will provide for the return of old films and the correction of other abuses in the rental field In this their policy is not very much different from that of the Motion Picture Patents Company and its licensees So far the Patents Company have the best opportunity to correct the abuses in that the films of their licensees are supplied only to licensed houses who must conform to all regulations or have their supply cut off. In the exercise of this control over their products they have perfect right and if you hear anyone say that they are "operating in restraint of trade" or "violating any laws of the country" you can promptly set him down as an ass or an agitator, or both.

* * *

A prominent film concern in this city received numerous complaints from an exhibitor in regard to the films breaking in the machine, claiming defects in the films. Investigation proved that the operator did not know enough to realize the importance of the loop and the tension was found to be so great on the film that nothing but a steel band could have withstood the strain. It is probable that many more complaints of this kind can be traced to the same cause and theater managers who have this trouble should first investigate the fitness of the operator and the condition of the machine before making general complaints to the exchanges or film manufacturers.

According to a decision rendered by Supreme Court Justice Platzek in New York City, on Tuesday of the present week, "the power of the Mayor of the city to issue licenses cannot be questioned and his right to revoke a license is undoubted." We quite agree with this conclusion, but we still adhere to the contention that the Mayor cannot exercise his power of revocation indiscriminately. There is nothing in either law or common sense that will sustain the Mayor in a reckless exercise, or an abuse, of his power.

An explanation is in order. The decision just rendered is not based upon the injunction proceedings against the Mayor that followed his sweeping closing up of moving picture theaters on last Christmas Eve, following the splurge made by certain ministers, nor will the decision of Justice Platzek have any bearing upon those proceedings, as the cases are entirely different and distinct. In the cases decided by the justice the complainant was the Fire Department of the city. They were based upon charges that owing to the manner in which the places complained of were maintained and conducted limb, life and property were endangered. No one will dispute that where such a state of facts exists, the Mayor will be upheld at all times in the swiftest action possible to exterminate such dangers. Specific and serious charges were made in these cases, and in view of Justice Platzek's decision, they appear to have been sustained. But in the cases upon which the injunctions against the Mayor hinge the facts are quite different. It is quite true that the Mayor was influenced in making his sweeping revocation of licenses by discoveries he had made of violations by personal visits, but this personal knowledge covered but a very small percentage of the number of places he closed by his sweeping manifesto and many innocent persons were made to suffer regardless of merits.

In the reports of Justice Platzek's decision the learned justice is quoted as saying that the prerequisite of notice to revoke the licenses and of a hearing on the merits is unnecessary. In this we also concur insofar as it is addressed to cases where violations are shown. In the publication of court decisions the daily press frequently gives them a blanket appearance. The moving picture people must not become panic stricken over the decision just announced by Justice Platzek. Those who are guilty of charges such as were involved in the cases decided should take warning, but those who are observing the laws and conducting their place as they should need not look upon the decision as a declaration that it is right to hang a man and try him afterwards.

INJUNCTION REFUSED AGAINST MOTION PICTURES PATENTS COMPANY.

Orpheum Company versus Vitagraph Company and Motion Picture Patents Company.

The refusal of Justice Fitzgerald, of New York, on Tuesday, February 23, 1909, to grant an injunction against the Vitagraph Company of America and the Motion Picture Patents Company, which was asked for by the Orpheum Company of New York, is a decision of such vital importance to all those engaged in the moving picture business that it will be imprudent of them to ignore it. The facts of the case are these:

The Motion Picture Patents Company refuse to permit their nine licensed manufacturers to supply film to theaters which have not procured a license to cover the use of patented projection machines at those theaters. The Orpheum Company, having declined to pay the license fee, the Vitagraph Company of America, one of the associated firms of film manufacturers which had hitherto supplied the Orpheum Company's theaters with films, cut off the supply. Whereupon it was sought to compel the Vitagraph Company to continue furnishing films, and to prevent the Motion Picture Patents Company from sustaining the former company in its refusal. In other words, the contention was that the Vitagraph Company had no choice but to break its license agreement with the Motion Picture Patents Company.

The Court refused to grant the injunction asked for, which consequently proves that the Motion Picture Patents Company is within its rights in insisting that its licensed films only shall be used in projection machines which it has also licensed.

As a test case this is of extreme significance in view of the loose comments of ignorant speakers and writers that have been very prevalent during the past few weeks. There appears to be an impression that the imposition of license fees for the use of patented articles is contrary to law and custom. It is not demonstrably illegal, although its abstract expediency may be open to discussion, and that it is customary if not common for a user to pay a license fee, when demanded, can be proved by specific instances. We cite the case, chosen at random, of a patented platinum photographic printing process, introduced some years ago, the users of which were required to pay, and did pay, a license fee for being permitted to work the process.

The legal aspect of this case, moreover, illustrates the common sense of the commercial policy inaugurated by the Motion Picture Patents Company. Their success in eliminating unprofitable competition; suppressing objectionable films and uplifting a popular form of entertainment depends upon the rigid enforcement of their legal rights. If these may be infringed or ignored by persons who are mentally incapable of recognizing them, the condition of the moving picture industry, so far from being improved, will be made worse than before, when the business was ceasing to be either popular or profitable, from causes which it is the object of the company to destroy or render non-recurrent. The refusal of the injunction sought by the Orpheum Company merely shows that law, as a rule, is on the side of common sense.

The Theatrical Ad. Co., of 34 East Fourteenth street, this city, are doing a thriving business in furnishing display signs for theater fronts. The crowds of people that throng the office in the morning hours prove that the business, though young, is one for which there is a field and the work that they are turning out is varied and attractive.

The Independent Film Exchange, Reading, Pa., report that they are buying twelve new reels of Independent film per week and that their business has grown beyond their expectations.

The American Film Service, Chicago, has removed to more spacious quarters on the third floor of the Unity Building, where they occupy a magnificent suite of offices. Mr. Van Runkel, the genial manager, assures us that no expense will be spared to make the service the best in America. They have large standing orders with the licensed manufacturers and also buy largely of special or feature subjects.

Selig issues this week a special film, the first of a series entitled "With Taft in Panama." This series should be of great interest and educational value, as it will show more clearly and correctly than newspaper reports what progress is being made in digging the great ditch. This series, it should be noted, is special and does not interfere with the regular weekly issue of their dramatic subjects for which they are justly famous. Selig's films are usually headliners.

MOVING PICTURES IN NATURAL COLORS.

By Thomas Bedding, F.R.F.S.

Specially written for the Moving Picture World.

My recent review of the Smith process of making moving pictures in natural colors reminds me that this inventor was not the first to publicly show the possibilities of illustrating motion in this way. The honor unmistakably belongs to W. Friese Greene, of Brighton, Eng., who at Southampton in that country in July, 1906, gave an exhibition of natural color moving pictures by a system of which he is the patentee. Moreover, and this is of importance to my American readers, I twice saw the results on the screen, in Mr. Greene's own studio, and I was impressed by their encouraging qualities and the undoubted possibilities of the process, which, like that devised by G. Albert Smith, contains the germs of valuable ideas.

THE FRIESE GREENE PROCESS.

Greene's process is not yet made commercially practicable—or, at any rate, it has not entirely passed out of the experimental stage; but besides having seen the results I have carefully studied the patent specification, and with that knowledge I am fully equipped for passing an opinion upon its everyday feasibility and for telling your readers who are interested in the subject—and which of them is not?—just how near it is likely to come to being of use in an ordinary moving picture plant. That is the test by which any process must stand or fall.

Having every desire to act fairly towards the process of Mr. Greene, who is a personal friend of mine, I will follow the example I set myself in writing of the Smith method. I will briefly describe the Greene system, and then discuss it from a practical standpoint. My information is derived from Mr. Greene's own description as given in his patent specification.

First of all, an orthochromatic film is placed in the camera for exposure. In the axis of the lens—that is, behind it and in front of the film—there is also fixed a prism of 20 degrees; next, immediately in front of the film are placed a red and a green screen, in the same plane as the image, that is, one above the other. So there we have the essential factors in the following order: 1, lens; 2, prism; 3, screens; 4, film.

The action of the prism is roughly to assist in passing two images instead of one to the image plane; this it does in virtue of the fact that it refracts some rays of light more than others, and consequently part of the image which passes through the primary lens is deflected to form the second of the two pictures placed one above the other. Both images pass through the screens, and when the positive is made from the negative those images in their turn are passed through other screens and a prism. Roughly the system for exposing the negative is that for projecting the positive.

THE PROCESS CRITICISED.

The patent is singularly lacking in perspicacity. An orthochromatic film is specified; how it is orthochromatised is not stated. About 3,000,000 dyes are available. The use of the prism is decidedly ingenious; I have not tried it, but I doubt if it will transmit a perfectly achromatic image. One of the pictures cannot therefore be sharp. With regard to the screens nothing is said as to the particular kind of dyes that are used. The patent is loosely drawn; ambiguous, and incomplete.

Mr. Greene probably could produce good results according to the data given; I doubt if anybody else could. Nobody else has as yet. The one distinct novelty in it is the use of a prism for forming a second image, and there is doubt if that is wholly effective.

PRACTICAL OBJECTIONS.

To use an orthochromatic film in moving picture work would entail special developing precautions, as the film is more or less sensitive to red rays, which an ordinary film is not. Then again, the exact reasons why an orthochromatic film is specified are not given. I cannot discover—for Mr. Greene does not say—what relationship it bears to the prism and the vaguely described colored screens. The process here is obscure and unworkable. Now to the vital novelty of the system—the prism. It is doubtful if this can form a well defined second image, and if this is so the resulting picture on the screen cannot be quite sharp. The position of the prism would have to be carefully adjusted, a matter hardly to be left to the discretion of an inexperienced photographer. Optically the idea is so much of a novelty that more information on the point is necessary before a definite idea can be given of its practical value; but I incline to the view that it is not commercially workable. No information is given as to what colors are used in the taking and viewing films; a fatal omission, which needs no comment.

On the whole, then, it must be said that though the Friese Greene process is clever, and is possibly susceptible of being made commercial, in its present form it can only be compared to the Smith process, namely, as experimentally interesting. The use of a prism for forming a second image, thus making the process a two-color one, is the outstanding novelty of Mr. Greene's invention, and I have to be convinced that this will be found of value in actual work.

Further particulars of the Smith and Greene processes will be awaited with interest; the readers of the Moving Picture World know all that can be known up to now, a knowledge which is of negative value at any rate. It amounts to this, that neither process is at present of much practical value in producing moving pictures in natural colors.

DULUTH BUILDING INSPECTOR MAKES SOME SENSIBLE SUGGESTIONS.

The Duluth, Minn., Council has approved a report on the moving picture shows made by Building Inspector S. M. Kielley.

Mr. Kielley says in his report that all places, where there are moving picture exhibitions, should be required to maintain not less than two exits in the rear, or at least one in the rear and one in the side of the building. These exits should open on a street, alley or court yard which must not be less than eight feet in width.

He recommends that no license be issued for a moving picture show unless it is in a brick building. His third proposal is that no part of a building in which a moving picture show is held, shall be heated by a stove or a hot air furnace and that the operators shall be required to have a license from the city electrician certifying that they are competent electricians.

The inspector thinks that the operator's stand should be constructed of iron posts and galvanized iron sheeting, making it absolutely fire proof and that the stand should be properly ventilated.

Mr. Kielley has no fault to find with the theater manangements. He says that he visits the "legitimate" show houses at least once a week, and that he has found the managers ready and willing to comply with any request which he may make to promote the safety and comfort of the patrons. On one or two occasions he has found that standing room has been sold, but when he informed the managers that such a practice is in violation of the ordinance, it was not repeated.

OBSERVATIONS BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

The words "trust" and "anti-trust" have been freely used by the so-called Independents in their campaign. This might have some weight if they would first prove the existence of a "trust" in the generally accepted sense of the term. In this case it is a misnomer. It has also been alleged that it is the aim of the combine to eventually exhibit their own films if the exhibitors do not accede to their terms. The absurdity of this will be seen when it is known that the charter of the company provides for no such course and that it was purposely evaded. They will never go after the business of the exhibitor, nor that of the exchange man.

At the same time it may be well to warn all exchange men and exhibitors who have been licensed that no offense will be condoned—no apologies accepted—no "will not do it again" plea will be listened to. The licensee who violates any of the terms of his agreement is cut off promptly from service—that is all.

* * *

Have you noticed the lull in the moving picture field? Much of the independent spirit that throbbed so audibly in the breasts of some enterprising men seems to have oozed out and sought some dark corner. At all times and in all quarters there is a well defined sentiment against the creation or promotion of anything that looks like a trust. There is a natural combative spirit in all quarters of the globe against combination of that sort, but, after all, what does it amount to? A momentary flurry, and then all is over, except the murmuring protest. We soon find the spellbinders wearing trust clothing, eating trust beef cooked with trust coal and drinking trust coffee sweetened with trust sugar. Much is heard of public spirited men who stand ready to throw a million or two of dollars to fight the trust, but there it ends. In nine cases out of ten where the money is put up we find the case a spasmodic one that soon submits to a treatment of premiums on the investment from the attacked quarters. When the statement is made that half a dozen or more men are ready to invest a hundred or more thousand dollars each to launch moving picture manufacturing plants against the patents combine I am inclined to believe that it is a true statement, so far as it goes. There are more people anxious to "butt into" that line of manufacture than there are consumers. They see big returns on the investment as conditions exist to-day, but you don't see any money rolling into the project just now, do you? No indeed. All the fellows with the money stand ready, but to be ready and to let go of the yellow backs are two different propositions. No matter how wealthy the man may be, you do not find him anxious to buy law suits, and if he sees that an open market is going to make a cut-rate field in the manufacturing, renting and exhibiting business he will take time to figure on how much the testing of patents is going to cost and how big a cut in profits an open market will make.

* * *

I felt a week ago that the so-called independent movement was on the wane, and I think to-day it is still waning. During the past week I have neglected the exhibition field almost entirely in order to test the pulse of the licensed manufacturers and film exchanges. The results have been surprising to me. Two weeks ago the licensed manufacturers were deluged by notices of cancellations of standing orders from the film exchanges they were supplying. Not more than ten per cent. of the exchanges failed to safeguard themselves by filing these notices. Each exchange explained that they were guarding against a sudden slump in business on account of so many exhibitors declaring they would not take a license from the Motion Picture Patents Company. Take it from me as a fact, all these cancellation notices have been withdrawn. I will admit that the concession of the Patents Company giving exchanges the privilege of cancelling their standing orders on three days' notice brought about the wholesale withdrawal of cancellations, but at the same time I contend that the most important factor in the restoration of confidence has been the return of so many exhibitors from the independent service to the licensed one. I do not pretend to say that this turn of affairs is due to poor service given by the independents. I do not claim that the subjects furnished by the independents are poor. It is not a question of quality so much as it is of variety. From what I have seen and heard I am convinced that no nickelodeon can hold its patronage by throwing on the sheet day after day only films of foreign manufacture. The audiences demand something with a home color to it and while it is quite true that some independent sources have succeeded in delivering both grades of goods, it is also true that the home color is not sufficient to hold the trade. I laid particular stress upon this in conversation the other day and was assured that it will not be long before some of the great foreign manufacturers will have factories established on this side of the Atlantic and give all the home color needed. I do not doubt that such steps will be taken, or at least attempted, but I am confident that such ventures will not be launched within a few weeks, nor within a few months. If the foreign manufacturers counted upon are to make their negatives on the other side and erect plants on this side for the making of the positives, the project will not be long maturing. The saving of duty will be an important factor in the contemplated competition, but where is the local color? If, on the other hand, it is proposed to establish plants for the taking and making of pictures here in competition with the licensed manufacturers, then I say there is going to be a powerful lot of thinking done before the cornerstones of the looked-for factories are laid. Two very important factors must be considered: The difference between the cost of labor and material on the other side of the Atlantic and the cost on this side; the approximate of profit on investments in view of this increased cost and the figures to which revenues will be reduced by an open market. I might also suggest for consideration the possible additional cutting down of revenues, or profit, by the drains occasioned on the cash boxes by patent litigations. OLIVER.

THE INTERNATIONAL PROJECTING AND PRODUCING COMPANY'S FILMS.

At the Orpheum Theater, Third avenue, New York, on Thursday afternoon, February 24, Alfred Harstn & Co., the Eastern agents of the above company, gave a show of recently imported sample films to the exchange men and exhibitors. There was a large attendance and much interest was evinced in the display, which frequently drew applause. The manufacturers whose films were shown included Lux, Ambrosio, Eclair, Great Northern, Raleigh & Robert and Comerio. A very fine display of Italian cavalry movements by Ambrosio was the first submitted and was followed by "Compassion," an excellent film by Eclair. "The Magic Horn," by Lux, in which is shown the havoc caused by the indiscriminate playing of a horn, was a very good comic. Another Lux film depicted incidents in the life of Louis XVI. "The Runaway Dog" (Lux) and "A Helmet" (Eclair) were comics which seemed to please even a critical audience, but the film which received the most applause was "A Hasty Marriage," a French subject showing the readiness with which a marriage can be made in La Belle France in order to effect monetary ends. A beautiful subject, "The Last Days of Pompeii" (Ambrosio), and "Where Winds Do Blow," a view of the rockbound coast of Biarritz, by Raleigh & Robert, were both finely toned and highly appreciated. The exhibition closed with "Sherlock Holmes II.," one of a series by Great Northern which displayed the excellent stagework of that company.

All the films shown were undoubtedly good and it remains to be seen if the enterprise which brought them here will be rewarded. The samples shown were only a small portion of the stock and Mr. Harstn announces that the supply would be fully equal to the demand both in variety and quantity. The samples will next be exhibited in Boston, then Philadelphia and in other large cities, where orders will be booked from the exchanges.

EBERHARD SCHNEIDER OBTAINED JUDGMENT AGAINST AMERICAN FOTOFONE COMPANY.

Eberhard Schneider, of 109 East Twelfth street, city, obtained judgment against the American Fotofone Company, 2235 Vine street, Philadelphia, Pa., of which Chas. Perry is the general manager and Judge S. P. McConnell, 111 Broadway, city, is the treasurer. Mr. Perry came and ordered some cinematograph film from Schneider and told him to send film C. O. D. to Philadelphia. Films were sent C. O. D. Perry came in and told Schneider to release C. O. D. and gave him a check amounting to $170 for the payment of the films. Check was found to be N. G., and was never made good.

Carl Laemmle is talking horse sense to the exhibitors. Says he: "It resolves itself into a question of which is the best for you—the European films or the feature films made by the licensed makers, such as Pathe, Selig, Lubin, Essanay, Kalem, Edison, Biograph, Vitagraph, etc." On the other hand, the International Company claim to have received applications for a weekly output of 939 reels of (European) film per week. With such a wide choice the exhibitor should be a happy man. Hope he is.

ON THE SCREEN.

By "Lux Graphicus."

The New York World heads a recent article: "Opium Dives Found Close to Moving Picture Shows." Does the Pulitzer paper wish the public to believe that there is a necessary connection between the two? Or is the whole thing only another unfair smack at the poor man's entertainment? Round the corner from Weber's, on Broadway, where they are playing "The Girl from Rector's," there are situated "Bohemia," "Cairo" and other choice Tenderloin resorts. Any connection between the two, Mr. Pulitzer? Play fair, brother.

* * *

I'm sick and tired of reading these prejudiced attacks in the New York papers on the moving picture shows. Are they inspired by jealous theatrical managers? I should not be surprised. On Sunday night last I watched the people going in and coming out of many of these Nickelodeons. For intelligence, decency and sobriety they compared favorably with the more gaudily dressed patrons of the Broadway bagnios, where garbage is distributed over the footlights amongst lasciviously minded sensualists. You know this is as true as true, Mr. New York World.

* * *

I can supplement Dr. Lane's letter on the moving picture in Australia, which was published last week, by one that I have received from a friend who has just toured the country. Generally they are much behind the United States in that respect. In places they charge 75 cents for admission, and the entertainments are not particularly good. My friend saw Pathes' colored films there. Australia is still a very undeveloped country in the larger sense, but in respect of the moving picture there is no reason why an immediate improvement should not take place. Look to it, gents.

* * *

Photographically the Kalem Company's films are some of the grandest I have seen, and my experience of moving picture work dates back a few years. These pictures are very refined, delicate pieces of photography, and I have been surprised not to see them in some of the New York moving picture theaters. However, on Saturday last I came across "The High Diver" at Harlem and on Fourteenth street, and I am sure the public appreciated this very ingenious film. The Kalem work is technically so very beautiful in its photography that for that reason alone it is bound to be popular wherever it is shown. And it is surprising how little good photography there is in modern fillums—beg pardon, films.

* * *

Ever hear of THE SKIBBEREEN EAGLE, reader? No? Well, The Skibbereen Eagle was an obscure little broadsheet published in an Irish hamlet, and on one occasion it told the Czar of Russia to tremble in his shoes for it (the sheet) had its eye on him. I don't think the Czar trembled (or troubled) a great deal. Much the same with the Motion Picture Patents Company and the thunders that are being hurled against it. I guess they are not trembling much round about Number 80 Fifth avenue! Good Lord in heaven, what an intolerable affair life would be without the funny things they are printing just now in some theatrical (and other) papers about the trust—which isn't a trust at all!

* * *

American film manufacturers behind their European competitors in quality of goods? Rubbish! Who on earth is responsible for the circulation of such a mischievous lie? Better films than those by Kalem, Biograph, Selig and others I could name are not produced anywhere; the only cause for complaint is that there are not enough of them. Competition is a healthy thing and should be welcomed by every earnest contestant in the game of life; but the bird that fouls his own nest is an ass for his pains. Bird? Ass? Oh, well you know what I mean! Which is: That it is bad business to decry the quality of your own goods.

* * *

I clip this pathetic gem from a theatrical paper: "The vaudeville actors of the country have begun a fight against the moving picture machines, which, they say, are not only cutting into their incomes, but in many cases driving them out of the business." What a humiliating confession to make, you actor men! The best way, the only way, in which you can hope successfully to fight the moving pictures is to act better, and to act so well that the public will pay to see you act. Then you won't be driven out of business by moving pictures or anything else. You won't, indeed. Try the idea.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY.

Latest Bulletins.

NEW APPLICATIONS FROM EXHIBITORS.

Rules for All Applications After March 1, 1909.

On and after March 1, 1909, the Patents Company will divide all applications from exhibitors into the two following classes:

1. Established theaters who at the time of the application are showing moving pictures.

2. New theaters which either have not been opened as yet or which have not as yet been showing moving pictures.

The conditions governing each class of applications are as follows:

1. Established Theaters.

Any theater which has been showing motion pictures continuously from on or before February 1 to the time of application, may apply for a license to the Patents Company direct or through any licensed exchange upon the form of application which will be furnished, paying at the same time a $10.00 license fee, which amount, together with the application, must be at once forwarded to the Patents Company.

In all cases in this class, the exhibitor's service may begin as soon as the license fee has been forwarded with the application of the exhibitor to the Patents Company. The service shall be accepted, however, by the exchange subject to the condition that the theater be eventually licensed by the Patents Company and with the understanding that if the license is refused, the exchange shall discontinue the service to the exhibitor immediately upon receiving notice to this effect from the Patents Company.

If a license on such an application is issued, the license fee will be retained by the Patents Company and in addition thereto the royalties of the exhibitor will be fixed, dating from the time the service began; if the license is refused the entire license fee of $10.00 will be returned to the applicant.

2. Applications from New Theaters.

Where a new theater is projected in any locality, or where an established theater which has not been exhibiting motion pictures since February 1, 1909, desires to exhibit licensed motion pictures, the exhibitor may make application for a license to the Patents Company either direct or through any licensed exchange upon the form of application which will be furnished. A license fee of $10.00 must accompany all such applications.

In all cases in this class the exhibitor may not receive any licensed motion pictures until such time as the application has been investigated by the Patents Company and the license has actually been issued to the exhibitor applying. If the license is issued, the license fee of $10.00 will be applied upon the royalties fixed; in case the application is refused, the entire license fee of $10.00 will be returned to the applicant.

EXCHANGE LICENSES CANCELLED.

The Motion Picture Patents Company has served notice upon William H. Swanson & Co. that fourteen days from February 26, 1909, the following licenses of Swanson & Co. will be cancelled:

Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 160 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 405 Karbach block, Omaha, Neb.
Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 200 N. Seventh street, St. Louis, Mo.

The Patents Company has also notified the Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa., that fourteen days from February 26, 1909, its license will be cancelled.

The Patents Company has notified all license exchanges that on and after March 1, 1909, the regular fourteen days' notice for the cancellation of the standing orders must be given.

LICENSED MACHINES.

The following moving picture machine manufacturers have been granted licenses by the Motion Picture Patents Company:

American Moving Picture Machine Company, New York City.
Armat Moving Picture Machine Company, Washington, D. C.
Edengraph Manufacturing Company, New York City.
Edison Manufacturing Company, Orange, N. J.
Enterprise Optical Company, Chicago, Ill.
Lubin Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pathe Freres, New York City.
Nicholas Power Company, New York City.
Eberhard Schneider, New York City.
Selig Polyscope Company, Chicago, Ill.
George K. Spoor Company, Chicago, Ill.
Vitagraph Company of America, New York City.
Gaumont Company, New York City.

MAKING LANTERN SLIDES.

A lantern slide is a print on glass. The non-photographer sometimes fancies that it is a negative; but the slightest acquaintance with the camera removes this misapprehension, and shows that, although a slide can be made on the same kind of plate as a negative, it differs from a negative just as a paper negative differs from a paper print—by having the high lights of the subjects represented as high lights and the darks as darks, instead of being the reverse.

Although ordinary dry plates can be used, and are used at times, for slide making, it is customary to employ special "lantern plates," which are not quite so sensitive, and can therefore be worked in a brighter light. They are also made to give a picture of a pleasant tone and with an exceptionally fine grain, since the lantern magnifies the picture a great deal. Lantern plates are of two kinds—fast and slow. There are other differences into which we need not go at present. The slow plates correspond very closely with gaslight papers. That is to say, they can be developed up to a warm tone by increasing the exposure and restraining development; and they are most suited for contact printing, although no lantern plate is so slow as to be out of the question for camera printing. The rapid lantern plates are more often used for slide making in the camera, and for slides of a black tone, though here also the difference is only one of degree.

Lantern slides are made of a standard size, so that the photographer may be quite sure that they will fit any lantern. The size in the United States is 4 inches wide, 3¼ high. There is no standard of thickness, but a slide consists usually of the plate on which it is made and a cover glass, and the latter should not be thicker than the glass of the former, to ensure it passing easily through the lantern. Though the size of the slide is 4 inches by 3¼ inches, the picture on it must be smaller than that if it is all to appear on the screen. About 3 inches by 2½ inches may be reckoned for pictorial slides, which are not often the same height as width; while for diagrams 3 inches by 3 inches can be used.

The two methods of slide making have already been mentioned—contact and in the camera. In making slides by contact, the procedure is precisely the same as in making bromide or gaslight prints, merely inserting, instead of the paper, a lantern plate into the printing frame, with its film side in contact with the film side of the negative. The picture on the plate is then of the same dimensions as it is on the negative, so that to use this method we must have such a subject on the negative that a piece of it 3 inches by 2½ inches or smaller will make a satisfactory picture. In making lantern slides in the camera, or "by reduction," as it is sometimes called, we have no such restrictions. The negative is fixed up, illuminated evenly from behind, and is photographed with a camera using a lantern plate. In such a case we can reduce the whole of the subject on a large negative to such a size as to get it all on the lantern plate, or, if we wish, we can enlarge a small portion of it up to the full lantern slide size, though this latter is not often done. An ordinary camera may be used for the purpose, if means for holding the negative and illuminating it are available. There are also special lantern slide cameras made, having a variety of conveniences for the work. A simple form of fixed focus lantern slide camera can also be bought. In this the negative, whatever its size may be, is inserted at one end and the lantern plate at the other, and in that position the lens forms an image of the whole of the large negative of such a size that it just occupies the lantern plate so that the whole of the picture can be seen on the screen. For several reasons, the beginner will do well to make his first slides by contact.

The materials required for slide making by contact are few and inexpensive. A packet of lantern plates and the requisite developer and some binding strips of black paper gummed form the entire list of extras, beyond what the photographer is sure to have for his ordinary work. Special lantern slide printing frames are supplied, and one of these will be found a great convenience when there are a number of slides to be made.

Each maker of lantern plates puts forward the developer he recommends for his own plates; and unless there is some very good reason for departing from it, that developer is the one to use. The actual developing substance does not matter very much, provided it will give a picture of a good color, and almost every developer on the market will do this if properly used. The amidol developer recommended for bromide paper, for example (instructions in each package), is an excellent one for black tone lantern slides on any of the lantern plates on the market. To save turning back, we may repeat that it is made by putting into a pint bottle twenty-five grains of amidol, five grains of potassium bromide, and three-quarters of an ounce of sodium sulphite crystals, adding ten ounces of water, and shaking the mixture until all is dissolved. It must be used within two or three days of mixing. But this developer is no better and no worse than plenty of others, and the amateur who is using the formula given by the maker of the plates should stick to it until he gets what he wants; he will gain nothing by changing over to the one just mentioned.

The first slides had better be made on the faster or "black tone" lantern plates, until the worker has familiarized himself with the process, as it is easier to make good black tone slides than those of a warmer color. All the best slide makers use backed lantern plates, and as the emulsion on a lantern plate is much more transparent than that on an ordinary dry plate backing is very advantageous. The negative is placed in the printing frame, taking care that there is no dust upon it, as this would lead to scratches. The lantern plate is laid down on that part of the negative which is to appear on the slide, and the back of the frame is put in. The lantern plate must not be slid about more than is absolutely necessary; and if the negative is a large one, say 5 by 4 or over, a paper mask with an opening 3¼ by 3¼ may be lightly stuck on the glass side, and will help in putting the plate down exactly where it is wanted. The filling of the frame and the development of the lantern slide, even on the fastest lantern plates, may be carried out in a good orange light, such as is safe for bromide paper.

Exposure can only be ascertained in the same way as is adopted with gaslight and bromide papers; that is to say, by exposing the first plate in a series of strips, as described a fortnight ago. Fast or black tone lantern plates by different makers differ considerably in rapidity, and the "average negative" is a very vague quantity. If the printing frame is held at a distance of eighteen inches from an ordinary gas burner, we may give exposures of 8, 16, 32, 64 and 128 seconds. Somewhere between those limits we shall be almost certain to find the correct exposure.

FUTURE OF THE MOTION PICTURE.

After spending a considerable part of my time during the past few months in motion picture houses, studying the pictures and the audiences who look at them, a few fundamental ideas regarding these pictures and their future impress me as true.

Everybody goes to see the motion picture. This assertion is made advisedly. It does not mean that every individual goes, but it does mean that representatives from all classes of society are found in the motion picture theaters. The individuals who attend vary from those who wear their costly diamonds and ride in automobiles to the laborer who works in the ditch, and so universal is the appeal of these pictures that each one finds something either amusing or instructive, or both.

After observing the behavior of the different audiences as the different films are shown one must admit that nearly all pictures appeal to a majority of those who see them. This appeal varies in degree, but it is there, and one who watches the audiences that gather from day to day, or from hour to hour, will realize this very forcibly. Films which represent wholesale bloodshed are not so attractive as the others, yet there is a considerable proportion of each audience who like even those, no matter how revolting or bloodthirsty the details may be.

What one sees from day to day is the present of the motion pictures. So far the picture has developed, and it is developing rapidly. The present is a great improvement on the past. The future must be an improvement on the present, otherwise the enterprise will fail for lack of patronage.

The business is so new, and its possibilities are so little understood, that it is extremely difficult to get a clear view of it as it actually exists. That it is becoming almost universal is a fact which is forcibly impressed upon one. That very many managers are groping their way, only partially understanding their position and only partly appreciating their opportunities, is certain. More and more they realize their position and come more to know what they can do. But not until the business has been established long enough to be settled will it be possible to grasp everything that belongs to the motion picture or be assured that its development will be along the best lines.

Perhaps one cannot say with truth that the future of the motion picture rests with managers, though unquestionably they will be important arbiters in the final determination. Nor will manufacturers be the final forces. They will help, and their influence should not be underestimated. One must conclude, after examining all the facts, that the public will be the influence which will be most potent in the future. And as this public becomes better educated in its appreciation, as it comes more and more to know what is possible in motion pictures, and what it can safely demand, it is certain that the pictures will improve.

* * *

Primarily the motion picture should amuse. While the educational feature need not be ignored, and should not, one must say that education is not the main province of the public motion picture exhibition. Education can be, and perhaps should be, an influential element in the average exhibition, yet one cannot reasonably ask the public to pay its dimes and nickels to be educated. Some would do it, but a vast majority would not.

The great body of the people who attend, go there to be amused, hence a program which includes a considerable proportion of comedy, or, at least, light drama, or melodrama, will be more popular than anything else. Amusement is what is wanted, and unquestionably amusement means something alive, something which will lift those who see it out of themselves, out of their surroundings, which for one reason or another may be irksome, or depressing, and place them, temporarily, at least, in an imaginary world where things seem to go right, and where discouragements and disappointments are apparently alike unknown.

* * *

The motion picture is the short story graphically enacted as one looks on, and while it requires a considerable degree of cultivation to appreciate all the subtle beauties and delicacies of a short story, the picture of it is so graphic and its movement is so natural that everyone can understand and grasp its meaning. It requires only the sense of seeing, and the apparent actual movement of the characters appeals so strongly to the imagination, whether cultivated or not, that they seem to be flesh and blood. They appear like living personages and what they do for the time seems a part of one's own environment.

Here is the future of the motion pictures. Development in this direction will be unlimited and patronage without end will be assured to every manager who offers pictures containing the elements here outlined.

BURTON H. ALLBEE.

WHEN A "TRUST" IS NOT A "TRUST."

Much senseless drivel has been printed in the daily papers of the country, emanating from the Associated Press, who of course seize upon every incident that will make sensational news matter. Those who refer to the new combination of film manufacturers and importers as a "trust" show lamentable ignorance of the terms of the agreement between the manufacturers and the Patents Company, under whose control the combination has been formed. They also display ignorance of the meaning of the word "trust," as they use it in this connection.

Exchange men and exhibitors who understand the aims of the combine and who are in sympathy with them are doing much to present the matter in a proper light.

Mr. Howell Graham, a leading exhibitor of Chattanooga, Tenn., was shown the Associated Press report by the editor of the Chattanooga Times and asked:

"Do you know anything of this giant trust?"

"Oh, yes, I belong to it."

Then he proceeded to tersely explain that there is no trust, but merely a combination of leading motion picture men throughout the country to prevent frauds and preserve decency in the business. They have no big money in the combination, he declared, but the persons who belong to it are, in point of fact, worth a good deal.

He further explained that by photographs fraudulently procured, any operator's most valuable designs may be stolen, or so closely imitated as to deprive the real owner in large measure of their worth to him. Cheap and often objectionable French and other foreign films are foisted upon the American operators and their patrons.

"This combination is to our business much like the relation of the Chattanooga excise commission to the liquor business, and to the public," Mr. Graham concluded. "We are organized for regulation and protection—for purification, incidentally, and that is all there is in the gigantic trust."

"ON SUB TITLES."

The sub-titles should be very clear. Many good films have been condemned because the sub-titles were either too long or not legible enough. Sub-titles have a reason, they are flashed on the screen to indicate certain actions. Now if the audience is not given time to read the sub-titles or if they are indistinct from either poor photography or a too small print, the spectators lose the thread of the plot and the moment they do not understand the actions they lose all interest in the production. The manufacturers should allow a few extra feet to the long sub-titles, to overcome the deplorable practice of most of our operators who are running their machines on a speed contest. If the time required to read a long sub-title is 12 seconds, the manufacturers will give about 10 feet to the said sub-title, but to overcome the fault of a speedy operator, running his machine at 75 feet per minute, the manufacturers should give at least 12 feet to the title. The sub-titles should be of good, clear and large calligraphy or of large type, while small writing or printing should be avoided. When a telegram is flashed on the screen do not take most of the space to advertise the telegraph company and their terms, but devote the greatest part of the screen to the reading matter. The word "Telegram" can be used as a title, but do not print the whole telegraph blank. Have the sub-titles as brief and as clear as possible. If you want to keep your public interested, do not snap the thread of the plot by flashing an illegible sub-title. JNO. M. BRADLET.

THE KALEM COMPANY'S LATEST SUBJECT.

The establishment of the studio in the South by the Kalem Company has been productive of a number of excellent films, each one apparently an improvement on its predecessor. The latest, which will be released March 5, is perhaps the best yet. The title makes it attractive. "The Old Soldier's Story" will appeal to very many, and particularly at this season when Memorial Day is so near.

In some respects this film is out of the ordinary. It is the first one ever made that represents the Southern side, and it is the first one of this type of film that is made in the South, having the atmosphere of that part of the country throughout.

The picture opens with a typical Southern cottage, from which a veteran emerges and seats himself before the door to read his paper. The housekeeper appears and starts him for the grocery store to purchase yeast. The care with which the details are worked out is shown in the fact that she sends him with a jug, since yeast is obtained almost entirely in liquid form there, compressed cakes being but little known.

Arriving at the store, he finds a number of veterans fighting over their battles. He joins the group and tells them a thrilling story.

The lecture which goes with the film is written in the Southern dialect, which adds to the local color. Managers can do no better than to include this in their list. It is certain to please.

ILLUSTRATED SONGS.

To illustrate a song well is an art which not everyone who sends out slides has learned. Moreover, to do it well requires an appreciation of the artistic possibilities of a song and a knowledge of how best to use the material at hand.

Among the slide makers who understand this art none ranks higher than DeWitt C. Wheeler, Inc., whose slides have artistic quality and actually illustrate the sentiment of the song. Some striking examples are now going out, and when the pictures are seen there will be no question about the verdict of the public. Those who love good pictures should particularly notice "Down at the Huskin' Bee." Note how many models are included in the different groups and how sympathetically the pictures follow the sentiment of the song itself.

"Pansies Mean Thoughts of You" is another which should attract unusual attention. The different scenes and groups are framed in pansies, arranged in varied designs, and the coloring is so finely done that they seem like actual pansies, enlarged and placed upon the screen. Only artists could do such good work. Other titles include "Golden Arrow," "To the End of the World with You" and "Honey Land," either ready to be issued or in course of preparation.

To be able to turn out such excellent work is possible only when one possesses adequate mechanical equipment; and this Mr. Wheeler has. He has a sufficient force at work to turn out 20,000 slides a week, all of the best quality. In all the processes from the making of the negative to the finished slide only competent workmen are employed, insuring the best possible reproduction of the artist's original conception. Such slides are certain to increase the demand for illustrated songs, where poor slides would surely increase the criticism which has been heard against them.

WEEKLY VISITS TO THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

The moving picture attracts many types of audiences. Hitherto my visits have been paid to houses each of which has its own distinctive following drawn from a particular social stratum. For example: at a down-town Keith & Proctor house you get, if I may say so, an aristocratic clientele; at the Dewey people of the ouvrier order; at the Harlem Orpheum the bourgeoisie; at the Unique a mixture of all classes. This fact shows convincingly that there is no section of the community that does not go to see moving pictures; and that the latter are by no means the amusement of the poor, but that the rich and prosperous are also included among their patrons.

But I have long been curious to study the attitude of the New York equivalent to a London music hall towards the moving picture. The patrons of a London music hall may smoke and refresh themselves and move about certain parts of the building at will. There is, in fact, a promenade. This amusement feature is common in Continental Europe. You are not bound to chain yourself to your seat all the evening. Come to think of it, there is a pleasant al fresco feeling about this liberty of movement in a vaudeville house which New Yorkers do not yet seem to have tasted. When they do, the vaudeville promenade will be popular, I predict.

* * *

The Atlantic Palace on the Bowery which I recently visited answers to the description of a certain type of London music hall or Parisian cafe chantant. You pay your 15 cents for a seat; you may smoke; waiters minister to your wishes for refreshment; you may move about; there is a gallery; and the entertainment is varied, vaudeville and equilibristic acts alternating with moving pictures. Some of my esteemed fellow writers on this journal argue for the entire programme being entirely made up of moving pictures at these cheap houses of entertainment. In my opinion that time is not yet.

The pictures, however, constitute the major attraction, vaudeville artists being as a rule capable mediocrities made according to pattern, whereas there is no denying the individuality and headline attributes of a good film. This was demonstrated to the satisfaction of my audience and myself on the occasion of my visit to the Atlantic Palace. The vaudeville acts and the music (for they had a good orchestra of ladies at the Atlantic Palace) were first rate, but the piece de resistance, the item that made the deepest impression was one film of an intensely dramatic nature, which was followed with breathless interest by the large audience. Ever seen "It Is Never Too Late to Mend"; "The Rake's Progress," and similar human dramas, reader? Well, this film, the name of which I omitted to obtain, told such a story clearly, connectedly and dramatically. A well placed young man, happily married, steals money to gamble with; associates with crooks; is caught and put in prison; escapes; returns (Enoch Arden-like) to his home only to find his wife married a second time and his children oblivious of his identity; is mistaken for a burglar and shot by husband No. 2—now here is a piece of well told drama, well photographed, with distinctive characterization, with a well filled canvas and much movement, that was received with deep appreciation at the Atlantic Palace.

And this is what the patrons of moving picture theaters want; a clear, well-told story. Nobody could quarrel with the moral of this one. The man who went wrong was punished and suffered; the man who went straight won a beautiful woman and was happy. Is not this the lesson of everyday life? Mind you, there was nothing mawkish, murderous, or horrible about this film; it was just pure drama, with a happy ending; and there is room for much more of the same sort on the moving picture stage.

Savannah, Ga.—Mr. Arthur Lucas, Jr., and Mr. Frank Bandy attended the meeting of the Southern vaudeville managers and owners at Atlanta, Ga. The object of the meeting was to get better vaudeville in the South, and to get it they would have to arrange no less than sixty weeks of engagement for each act.

When seen after the trip to Atlanta, Mr. Lucas said: "I think now that Savannah will get better vaudeville. Not only Savannah, but the whole South. The meeting in Atlanta was one of the best that I have ever attended." Mr. Lucas also stated that by the Summer Savannah would have a fine Air Dome, one of which the city of Savannah could be proud. Besides Mr. Lucas, there are men from Jacksonville and Atlanta that are interested in it.

Comments on Film Subjects.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

No especially notable films have been released during the week, but the general average has been good. Three murders and a suicide are no longer thought necessary to each three or four hundred feet of film and the motion picture business has improved proportionately. Perhaps the most ambitious is the "Assassination of the Duke de Guise," released by the Pathes, and while this is technically a good film, far better than the average from this house, it loses much of its point in this country because few understand to what it alludes.

The average is, after all, the important consideration. One or two notable films, with the rest below standard, do not constitute the proper proportion of attractive subjects. Formerly that was the way they often turned out. But since the consolidation of interests there has been a notable improvement and the average is above what it was and is steadily improving.

Many old films are in use. Some of them are very old; yet, fortunately for those who see these old ones, they are generally of good quality. One theater was visited during the week where three subjects were seen which had been shown there before. It would seem as though this was poor policy, still it must be confessed that the audience seem to enjoy the old subjects quite as well as they did the new ones. Perhaps this is another argument for manufacturers to prepare the best possible films from the best possible subjects. Then the life of the picture will be much longer.

"Oh, What an Appetite."—A comic from the Essanay people which has many funny situations, perhaps more than the average alleged funny film. The development of the appetite in the dyspeptic is worth consideration. Perhaps something of the sort could be attempted on other dyspeptics. The chief criticism is that it apparently carries the joke too far. Half as much would be quite as good.

"A Mother's Love."—One of those heart stories from the Gaumonts which gives an accurate idea of what a mother will undergo for a son or daughter either. The staging and action are fairly good, but it is one of those pictures which one almost regrets having seen. It is strong. No one questions that. Perhaps it is reasonable to say that it is almost too strong. It creates an impression which can scarcely be effaced.

"Gendarmes' Horses."—A bit of comedy from the Gaumonts, in which two tramps run away on the horses of the two gendarmes. The horses take their way directly back to headquarters, where the thieves are promptly captured. It excites laughter, but really there is little in it that can be called funny.

"The Assassination of the Duke de Guise."—In this picture the Pathes have told the public an excellent story of one of the royal intrigues which so often darkened the pages of history of European courts. King Henry orders the assassination of the Duke de Guise and sends for him so that he may run alone and practically defenseless into a room where the hired assassins are grouped. While the film is beautifully staged and the action is almost without a flaw, one doesn't particularly like the subject. The technical quality in the picture is beyond criticism. The effect it produces is not so good. Further, the Duke de Guise is unknown to the great bulk of the audiences who gather in an American theater, though the character may be well known in France.

"Edgar and Lucy."—A pathetic love story put out by the Italia people. The staging and action and the technical quality of the film are beyond criticism. But the subject is one that gives those who see it the horrors. To see a girl go mad and fall dead at her lover's feet, after being forced into an abhorrent marriage, followed by her killing her husband is not the pabulum that appeals to a majority of the people who see it.

"A Day's Outing."—An Eclipse film which illustrates the disagreeable things that can happen to one who carries a perpetual smile, which at times degenerates into a grin. The action and photography are good, but the picture is not very convincing.

"Little Mother."—One of those touching heart stories that wins the sympathy of the audience and leaves scarcely a dry eye in the house. While this particular instance ended happily, the picture excites the imagination and one sees beyond to those instances which do not end so pleasantly.

"C. Q. D., or Saved by Wireless."—In the annals of wireless telegraphy Jack Binns will be immortal, and the Vitagraph people have reproduced the sinking of the Republic and the attendant exciting scenes with a good deal of fidelity and in such a way that those who see it obtain a reasonably clear idea of what actually occurred. Most of the scenes are excellent. Some are particularly good, and all are above the average. This film is to be especially commended.

"The Chinaman."—A comedy from the Gaumont studio which has much life, a good deal of animation and develops some real funny situations.

"Bernard Palissy."—A beautifully colored film by the Gaumonts, in which some beautiful specimens of pottery are reproduced in all the delicate colors of the original. As an

The Best Money-Making Attraction

BATTLING NELSON.

In the Moving Picture Line To-Day

THE SEPTEMBER 9, 1908

NELSON-GANS FIGHT PICTURES

OUR PRICES FOR USE OF A SET OF THESE PICTURES ARE:
$20.00 A DAY, $45.00 FOR THREE DAYS, $75.00 A WEEK.

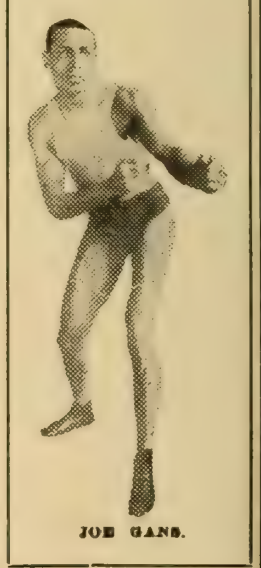
Stop for a moment and consider these extraordinarily low prices for 4,000 feet of an attraction of world-wide interest and the best money-getter in the moving picture field now.

The film is put up in four reels of about 1,000 feet each, and shows every detail of this wonderful pugilistic battle for the lightweight championship of the world, from the training quarters of the fighters, to the knockout of Gans in the twenty-first round.

Photographically, the pictures are perfect; they are so realistic that you imagine yourself at the ring-side in Coffroth's Mission Street Arena, at Colma, California.

If you want a show that will please your patrons, play to capacity and get the money at every performance, book these fight pictures at once. Send for contract blank now. Address

CHICAGO FILM EXCHANGE
Nelson-Gans Fight Department
42-50 JACKSON BOULEVARD - - - CHICAGO, ILL.



JOE GANS.

educational film this is a success, but for a mixed audience, few of whom have any knowledge of the development of the art of pottery making, this film is open to question.

"The Hindoo Dagger."—The Biograph studio has sent out a very strong picture in this, though one might say with truth that it would be quite as well if it were something else. There is too much stabbing, one of them ending in murder, and too much infidelity displayed. One almost thinks in this case that the stabbings were justified. Technically the film is good. The staging and action are also both good. It is strong and the audience watches it with breathless attention.

"Grandfather."—One doesn't quite understand why Gaumont has drawn a poor old paralytic into the story of a burglary. It doesn't seem to be connected, and while the technical quality of the film is to be commended it is difficult to understand just what the makers were trying to show when they produced it.

"A Strong Draught."—In this comic from the Gaumont studio the fun is produced in a unique way. Everything within reach is drawn up the chimney and hurled out on the ground. Such needless destruction of property is not funny, though perhaps the surprise on the countenances of those who are drawn into the chimney merits the laughter they get.

"The Uplifting of Mr. Barker."—A comedy from the Edison studios which illustrates the difference between American and English society, even though it is somewhat exaggerated. The film has all the excellencies of the Edison product and wins liberal applause. When Mr. Barker cables for the boys to go over and marry the girls the audience gives vent to its enthusiasm. As a bit of clean comedy this is one of the best films which has come out within the past month.

"The Lady Athlete Downs the Foot-Pads."—A comic picure which illustrates what might occur if all the women in America practiced the Japanese jiu-jitsu. No manufacturer's name appeared on the film.

"The Gamekeeper's Dog."—A pretty little story of a trained dog, though it is told at the expense of some gun play which mars it in a way. No manufacturer's name appeared upon it, but it is a good film.

"His Daughter's Dowry."—A love story from the Eclipse studio which is told around a chemist's daughter. The entire picture is good and the deception of the chemist himself, as well as the objecting father of the young man, is particularly good. The film is free from murders and is well worth watching.

"Willing to Oblige."—The Eclipse people have turned out a good film in this, which develops a number of extremely funny situations. It shows the fate of a man who habitually butts in.

"The Landlady's Portrait."—A good bit of comedy from the Edison house. The picture is full of life and animation, and the difficult situations follow each other in rapid succession. It has all the good qualities of the Edison product.

"The Janitor's Bottle."—An Edison comedy which brings out many a good laugh. The details are worked out exceptionally well, and the technical quality of the film is beyond criticism. It is funny without being silly and inane.

"Some Milk for the Baby."—Some of the Gaumont comics are funny, and this one is worthy to be included in the list. The appearance of the man's face when he sees the milk disappear is a study in expression, and when the giant baby climbs out of the cradle to greet his astonished parents, the effect is funny indeed.

"An Obstinate Umbrella."—Ever since its invention the umbrella has created sport and has been the foundation for innumerable jokes. The Gaumonts have made use of this in the creation of this picture. Almost everyone has struggled with an umbrella that won't close. Sometimes it is a borrowed one, too. It is all funny, and the action is quite up to the requirements of the subject.

"The Nurse's Romance."—A pathetic love story by Gaumont, which makes one feel (as the film ends with the Sister of Mercy kneeling by her false lover's bedside, after he has attempted suicide because his inamorata turned him away) that truth and fidelity are rare. Why so many stories of this sort are told one cannot tell. It can't be that they exert any moral effect, and surely they leave the audience more or less depressed. The acting and staging of this picture are alike excellent. The photography is clear and the characters seem suited for their parts; but even though this is true, the shadow of a broken heart shrouds it all in gloom.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT IS WITH YOU

It is the result of the wide spread publicity we have succeeded in gaining for independent exhibitors, and now you will reap the benefit. People everywhere want to patronize the independent exhibitors only and are already doing so.

Grasp This Opportunity

"Don't kill the hen that lays the golden egg" but cater to the desire of your patrons. Let them know that you are independent and in no way connected with the "license" combine and you'll have crowded houses. You can do this on your advertising posters and by projecting a slide in your theatre reading as follows:

Independent Pictures Only Shown Here

THEY ARE THE BEST
NOT IN THE TRUST

WRITE FOR IT—IT'S FREE

Stick it out. Don't sign that agreement and don't let anyone sign it for you. Bear in mind that if you do, you must display the license in your theatre which is significant that you are connected with the "licensed" combine and not only recognize the validity of the patents but defy the public.

There is no scarcity of new independent film—you can get all you need, films that draw big crowds wherever shown, and the kind that your neighbor don't show. Tell us your needs and we will take care of you. We are already releasing more new films, both foreign and domestic, than we ever released before, and can now give you better film service than ever.

Our supplement of new independent films is just off the press, write for it. It lists just the films you want particularly at this time.

CHICAGO FILM EXCHANGE,
Chicago, Omaha, Washington, Denver, Nashville, Atlanta, Salt Lake City

GLOBE FILM SERVICE CO., { Chicago / Denver

ROYAL FILM SERVICE CO., Chicago

Serves You Right Who?

THE CHICAGO SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE

Masonic Temple, Chicago

AND

ST. LOUIS SONG SLIDE SERVICE

Holland Building, St. Louis

We are the largest exclusive song slide renters in the U. S., and we carry an immense stock of all the latest popular song hits which we offer you in any quantity at the extremely low rate of

50c Per Set a Week

Every Set Guaranteed Complete from Title to Chorus

"The Musician's Love Story."—Here is a film put out by the Essanay people that deserves a long run. The staging, the acting, the technical quality are all far above the average and the pictures hold the audience spellbound. While there is trouble and sorrow, the ending is unusually happy, and the final reunion is so ingeniously brought about through a series of apparent accidents that the interest never flags. It is a heart story, beautifully told. This film should appeal to a large circle of people everywhere and deserves wide circulation.

"Incriminating Evidence."—A Pathe production which is unusually well staged and acted, even for a Pathe, but it was acted for them by the great Severin. Perhaps it tells a sufficiently important story, or creates a sufficiently strong impression upon the minds of those who may be contemplating a criminal act or career to make it worth while, but it must be admitted that its influence upon the average person is oppressive.

"Perpetual Proposals."—A Vitagraph film which did not seem to amuse the audience as well as it would have done if more care had been given in its production. The actions were forced and a supposed fall from a roof ill-timed. The actors who are shown making snapshots of the crazy suitor do not seem to know how to handle a camera.

"The Poor Musician."—Another Vitagraph subject that could have been greatly improved by the producer. It is not made clear how a great violinist who receives such great ovations and possesses such a fine home and servants should wind up in deep misery. The action of the leading character is decidedly weak. No great violinist ever held his violin as we are shown in this film or went through such motions during an ovation. Audiences are now too critical to overlook such faults.

"The Joneses Have Amateur Theatricals."—Another of the "Jones" comedy series being issued by the Biograph Company. This, like its predecessors, is good, clean comedy.

"The New Governess" was greeted with much indifference as the subject is an old repeated plot. An employe falsely accused of the theft of some money, arrested, tried, sentenced, sent to prison and then pardoned. While the staging is poor, the acting is very good. The producer cannot be complimented on the trial scene, as the wall decorations are very odd for a court room and the Justice bench looks insignificant.

"A Broken Heart."—A film of Lubin which made no impression on the audience. The subject is not a sympathetic one and the moral is not made clear. The photography and acting are fair, while the staging is weak. On the sub title, we read: "Theater Party," but it should be called by another name, as the interior of the supposed theater is a very crude affair, that would not even please a cafe concert hall. There is no perspective and the actors seem to perform on a stage not over a yard wide. Painted accessories no longer can replace the real article, now that keen competition on quality exists among the manufacturers.

"Tag Day" and "Bring Me Some Ice."—In these two films, the Essanay folks show great improvement. Although they stick to the comic, which in fact is the best work for them, they seem to abandon the long chases and the too silly stunts. The details are carefuly worked out, the actions are natural and well timed. The photography is greatly improved and by taking these films in a warmer climate, the Essanay Company brings out some fine tropical scenery. The hearty welcome given these films, proves that comic productions can please without being silly or a general destruction of property.

"His First Flight."—In this film, the Pathe Freres show us the flight of an aeroplane and give us an idea of the collisions we can expect, when air ships will be in vogue. It is not only a very interesting film but a very amusing one, and greatly pleased the audience. The chase of the headless omnibus passengers could be omitted without injuring the production, as it is easy to see that the passengers have not been decapitated but are merely covering their heads. The last scene in which the aviator reconstructs himself and returns to life, is one of those clever trick scenes for which the "Rooster" trade mark is so well known.

"Choice of Weapons."—A short comic which created a good deal of amusement. In this film the Pathe Freres give us a practical demonstration of smokeless powder. When the man tries his aim, he points his old pistol to a target. After a few attempts at shooting, we see the mirror fall to pieces and the man lay his pistol on the table. He has fired, missed the target, sent the bullet in the mirror and all this without the least suspicion of smoke. Otherwise the production is well treated.

"The Pass Key."—In this film of Mr. Lubin, the producer seems to have neglected some of the details. We are shown a "sport" leaving his house. After closing the front door, the "sport" puts out his hands and finds that it is raining and at the same time, discovers that he forgot his pass key and he must go to his club minus his umbrella. Mr. Lubin does not show us the rain, but a fine sunshine. The interiors of several of the scenes could be vastly improved.

"Now I'm Here, I'll Stay."—A party of ladies and gentlemen said: "How silly it is. How can the Pathes commit such blunders? it cannot be so cold, to call for a fire, when the flowers are blooming." These remarks were justified. The manufacturers show us the mid-Summer, a fine garden, the husband reading his paper in the open air, the wife picking and watering flowers. When the visitors arrive, they have no overcoats, no furs, nothing to show any cold weather, yet after a few minutes in the house, they call for a fire, and while the fire is prepared, they light matches to warm their fingers, etc. If we knew who are the visitors, knew the reason of their visit, we could understand the subject and not class the production as one "with no sense." The whole trouble is that the letter of the visitors announcing their visit, appears on the screen, in such a small hand writing, that no one can read it and as we could not make it out, we could not understand why the hosts break the furniture and try to make it so uncomfortable for the visitors.

"Exacting Father-in-Law."—A comic of the Pathe Freres which left the audience rather cool. The subject is unnatural and the story not well told all the way through. How is it that after stopping the young man from riding his bicycle and telling him to walk, after preventing him from hiring an automobile, the father-in-law, still menacing with his revolver, forces the said young man to enter a carriage? When the young man escapes, dressed as a woman and is followed by his father-in-law, the general impression (such an impression is confirmed by the actions) is that the old man has detected his son-in-law and is shadowing him. This is not the case, as in the last scene, we discover that the old man had been following what he had supposed to be a beautiful young girl.

"How Mother-in-Law Got Even."—In general the poor mother-in-law gets the worse of the deal, but in this case she proves to be the winner and there is no doubt that the young husband, to avoid another cold shower bath, will be a very respectful son-in-law. In this amusing film, the Pathe Freres abandon the long chases and the unnecessary smashing of everything in the streets.

"On the Warpath."—A Western subject from the Selig studio which has great merit. It tells an interesting story of Indians and soldiers and the technical quality of the picture is surperb. The principal criticism is on the last scene. No one ever saw United States soldiers go into a fight with the Indians so slowly and calmly. And in the final mixup there is very little life. Aside from this, which may be considered a minor fault, the picture is good and furnishes a fairly accurate idea of conditions existing in the West during an earlier period of the country's history.

"Sherlock Holmes II."—The exhibitors who did show "Sherlock Holmes I.," will be pleased to know that the Great Northern Film Company has added two new chapters to this remarkable film: "Sherlock Holmes II." is on the market and "Sherlock Holmes III." will be released early in March.

"Sherlock Holmes I." showed us how Raffles stole the diamond necklace, how he was captured and sent to prison.

"Sherlock Holmes II." shows us Raffles serving his time. How he manages to send a word to his friends and how they help him to escape.

Once free, Raffles' first thought is to revenge himself on Sherlock Holmes, and for this he enlists the services of a pretty but depraved girl, to decoy the great detective to an old house, where he is met by Raffles under the disguise of an old woman. Sherlock Holmes, taken by surprise, is thrown through a masked opening in the wall, into an old sewer.

When Raffles and his associates discover that Sherlock Holmes has been rescued, they plan a second attempt on his life.

Raffles takes lodgings opposite the detective's home and watches for a good chance to fire his gun at Sherlock Holmes. Young Billy, the alert office boy, discovers the strange new tenant and notifies his master. Sherlock Holmes, guessing the intentions of the criminal, pulls down the window blinds

FILM SERVICE OF MERIT

SUPPLIED BY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and furnishing an exclusive licensed service, using only the films made by the following Licensed manufacturers:

American Mutoscope & Biograph Co.
Edison Manufacturing Co.
Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
Kalem Company.
George Kleine.
Lubin Manufacturing Co.
Pathe Freres.
Selig Polyscope Co.
Vitagraph Company of America.

A regular weekly supply of 18 reels of splendid new subjects is now available.

THREE OFFICES

ST. LOUIS, MO. 1401-05 Locust St.
LOUISVILLE, KY. 421 4th Avenue.
NEW ORLEANS, LA. c/o Shubert Theatre.

Don't Be a Cheap Skate

AND RUN A LOT OF JUNK

People won't stand for It
It Isn't Always Policy to Cut Down Expenses

INVEST YOUR MONEY IN A GOOD FILM SERVICE

The difference in price is a trifle, paid over and over again by increased patronage.

We are in an especially favorable position to take good care of you, getting a constant supply of
All the Latest Licensed Films Every Week

It certainly will pay you to Investigate

We still are and remain

THE C. J. HITE FILM CO.

Fourth Floor Monadnock Block - Chicago, Ill.

The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

SONG SLIDES

The clearest and best colored slides on the market. Send for list and prices.

NEW SLIDES

"Tell Me The Old, Old Story"
"When The Dew is on The Clover in Kildare"
"Some Day Will Be Too Late"

THE PREMO CO., 1851 Germantown Ave. Philadelphia, Pa.

Chairs Wanted

200 second-hand opera chairs or chairs suitable for Moving Picture Theatre. Write at once giving description, best cash price, etc.

C. E. DECKER, ST. MARY'S, PA.

Let Our Motto be Yours:
The Best not the Cheapest

Send 50 cents and 4 cents postage for sample of our latest annoucement slides. Write for same.

Advertising Slides Made To Order.

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.
407 Superior Building, CLEVELAND, OHIO

MEET US AT THE
SECOND ANNUAL BALL
OF THE
Miles Bros. Employees
AT
WEBSTER HALL
11th Street Bet. 3d and 4th Aves.
Wednesday Eve., Mar. 10, '09
8.30 P. M.
TICKETS ADMITTING GENTLEMAN AND LADY 50 CTS.

Wonderland Film Exchange
1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa.
Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company
Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.
EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices.
FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED

Morton Film Exchange
(Incorporated)
S. MORTON COHN, Pres. PORTLAND, ORE.
High-Class Film Service
LICENSEES MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY
Parties desiring first-class service write us

The Capture of Raffles by Sherlock Holmes and arranges a dummy at the window. At a given moment, Billy pulls up the blinds and Raffles, who had been watching for a good opportunity, takes up his gun and shoots. He hits the dummy, but great is his surprise when leaving the window, to find himself face to face with Sherlock Holmes in flesh. As Raffles turns to run away, he is caught by two officers.

If you have seen "Sherlock Holmes I.," you know that for excellence of photography, the Great Northern Film Company cannot be excelled, you know that the acting is practically what you would expect to see at the famous "Comedie Francaise" of Paris, and you know that the manufacturers of this film pay the greatest attention to all the details and are unsurpassed in their staging. "Sherlock Holmes II." is as much a masterpiece as its predecessor, and "Sherlock Holmes III." promises to hold the same rank.

In "Sherlock Holmes II." you will find the same quiet, cool and possessed detective, his clever errand boy Billy, and the other performers in their well studied characters.

VAUDEVILLE.

One or two acts stand out as remarkably good, and there are several which were above the dead level of mediocrity, but the bulk were too cheap to be allowed in a motion picture place. The writer can not see that the vaudeville sketches add anything to the attractiveness of the motion picture shows and it would seem good policy to cut out this expense and invest it in better films and more of them.

One would think to see some of the acts that the managers of the theaters are running charitable institutions. One cannot see any other reason for keeping on some of the acts which have been seen during the past two weeks.

A manager can scarcely be expected to make money enough in these days of sharp competition to put on all of the best acts. They cost too much. He might quite as well cut them all out and save that much money to be used in improving other departments.

THE LECTURES.

During the week some fair lectures have been offered, though in this respect there is more need of changing the lecturers than the lectures. Some of them know nothing about lecturing and others have only begun to learn the rudiments, consequently a good deal must be borne from them. Again it is fortunate the audience at motion picture shows are good natured and really want to see motion pictures, otherwise there might be sudden vacancies in the lecturing department.

The Philadelphia Projecting Co. has been incorporated to acquire the film rental business of Williams, Brown & Earle. The concern starts business in N. Ninth street with 490 reels of film in active use. The service will be entirely independent and will be under the management of V. R. Carrick, who managed the same department for Williams, Brown & Earle.

LICENSED FILMS
VS.
Independent Films

FOUR ACES vs. A FOUR FLUSHER

The comparison is exactly the same since they have shown their hand

COMPARE IT YOURSELF

OUR HAND:	THEIR HAND:
Edison,	Mr. No Name
Biograph,	" Junk
Selig,	" Failure
Pathe,	" Lemon
Vitagraph,	" Duper
Lubin,	" Oblivion
Kalem,	" Hot Air
Gaumont,	" Bankrupt
Urban-Eclipse	" Obscurity
Essanay	" Four-Flusher

MR. EXHIBITOR, Ask Yourself:

Can I afford to use this Independent Junk?
Will my patrons stand for it?
Why turn down a sure thing for an uncertainty?
Why hesitate taking out a License, which means protection to me?

No business has ever succeeded, or will ever succeed without regulation and protection. And now that it is offered you, accept it while the opportunity affords.

For a Film Service that stands alone, write the following offices:

Pittsburg, Pa. Cincinnati, O. Des Moines, Ia.
Wilkesbarre, Pa. Rochester, N. Y. Lincoln, Neb.

PITTSBURG CALCIUM LIGHT & FILM CO.

All the Latest Song Slide Hits to Rent

New Firm. All new Slides. Best Service in Chicago. Price 50c. per set a week, a weeks supply shipped at one time.

WESTERN SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE

59 Dearborn Street Real Estate Bldg. Third Floor Chicago, Ill.

Bound Volumes of Moving Picture World

VOLUME I, MARCH-DECEMBER, 1907 (limited number)
VOLUME 2, JANUARY-JUNE, 1908 (Indexed)
VOLUME 3, JULY-DECEMBER, 1908 (Indexed)

$2.00 each; $6.00 for the three volumes and a year's subscription

MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 125 East 23d Street, New York City

THE BEST MOVING PICTURE MACHINE.

RHEOSTATS

CONTAIN

CLIMAX WIRE

Catalogue and information upon request.

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.,

HARRISON, N, J.

NEW TITLES MADE

50 CENTS EACH

Shipped 24 hours after receipt of order

CENTAUR FILM MFG. CO., - 900 Broadway, Bayonne, N. J.

Chicago Office, Room 810, 79 Dearborn Street

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

EXPERIENCED OPERATORS.

Frederick F. Freese, 1759 Third avenue, New York City. Expert operator; practical electrician; all connections; 10 years experience; all machines; alternating or direct current; also calcium light; either road or permanent; New York State license.

R. Johnson, 107 South High street, Steubenville, Ohio. Expert operator; three years experience.

W. B. Wilson, Steubenville, Ohio. Experienced operator and electrician; 4 years' experience. References. Reliable.

A. J. Langlois, Spring street, Adams, Mass. Electrician and operator. Five years' experience. Licensed. Sober and reliable. References.

M. E. Campbell, 1451 W. Third street, Cleveland, Ohio. Ten years' experience operating machines. References.

Fred Leslie, 73 First street, Albany, N. Y. Experienced licensed operator. Best of references.

Talking Pictures, Effects or Lecturer. Have 5 years' experience illustrating moving pictures. Best of references. Make good or no pay. Apply Nat. Fenton, 274 Broome street, New York City.

Lecturer, experienced on talking pictures. Address M., 254 Wyckoff street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Blaine Day, Elkins, W. V. Experienced on road and stationary. Best references.

Chas. Rousher, 2219 S. Opal street, Philadelphia, Pa.; experienced operator.

M. V. Page, Box 658, Tecumseh, Mich. Six years' experience in handling film; will work in film exchange or operate machine. Married and steady. Reference.

Wm. H. Mallon, Bijou Theater, Easthampton, Mass.; experienced operator and manager and lecturer.

F. K. Evans, Oneonta Theater, Oneonta, N. Y.; first-class operator and electrician; age 30.

W. J. Gibbons, 15 West 51st street, Bayonne, N. J. Operator or manager. Best references, nine years in the business.

J. W. Delk, Leon, Ia. Experienced operator. Steady; have also acted as manager.

Wm. A. Clement, 939 North 7th street, Harrisburg, Pa. Experienced operator. Can put on the right kind of picture.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Longmont, Colo.—The Dreamland Theater has been sold to C. N. Schorley.

Sprague, Wash.—F. A. Gordon has sold the Dime Theater to H. Joseph Guerin.

New Sharon, Iowa.—Mark Boyd has sold his electric theater to C. A. Swischer.

Longmont, Colo.—The Lyric Theater at this place has been sold to Ralph Barney.

Bennington, Vt.—Messrs. Corbett and Grenan have opened a new picture show here.

Portland, Me.—James E. Moore is planning to establish a nickel theater here.

Toledo, Ia.—Mr. J. M. Wright is to open a new moving picture theater in Toledo.

Ogden, Utah.—Martin Beck, of the Orpheum Circuit, will erect a new theater here.

Lehighton, Pa.—The Lyric Moving Picture Theater, owned by O. F. Bittner, was closed.

Farmer City, Ill.—Mr. E. R. Simmons has sold his nickelodeon here to L. M. Gossett.

Newark, Ohio.—George Hufford has sold his moving picture show to William J. Ferry.

Hamilton, Ohio.—McCarthy & Ward are constructing a $25,000 moving picture theater in this city.

La Porte, Ind.—Mr. J. A. Williams is making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater here.

Lisbon, Ohio.—Mr. E. P. Burbick has opened a new moving picture show here. It is known as the Grand.

Rantoul, Ill.—John Sullivan and Ed Martin have purchased the new Kinedrome Theater of G. H. Miller.

Luverne, Minn.—Chet Webber and Claude Eckliff have purchased the Grand Theater from Al Grant.

Downing, Mo.—Todd Millican is making arrangements to opening a new moving picture theater here.

Seneca Falls, N. Y.—Henry Zurcher has sold the Dreamland moving picture theater to Ralph Sommers.

Mishawauka, Ind.—Messrs. John Berscheidt and Amos Ashling have opened a new moving picture theater.

Portland, Me.—Dressler Graphoview Corporation, all kinds of moving pictures and machines; capital $1,200,000.

Columbia, Tenn.—N. J. Carter has purchased the Electric Theater, on South Main street and taken possession.

Cheboygan, Mich.—Riley Cox has purchased the Electric Theater from Mrs. Tracey, and is now in possession.

Great Falls, Mont.—Wm. Cutts has sold his interest in the Dreamland Theater to J. E. Shattuck and P. I. Hindley.

Mitchell, S. D.—Messrs. Walpole & Goldhagen have purchased the Star Theater here and are now in possession.

Wheeling. W. Va.—The Lyceum, a new moving picture theater, opened on South Fourth street, to a packed house.

Two Harbors, Minn.—Charles Yernberg has purchased from Bertrand & Martin their interests in the Star Theater.

Defiance, Ohio.—A. H. Hughes is making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater in the Blanchard building.

Philadelphia, Pa.—George Hogg is estimating on revised plans for a moving picture theater at 413-17 South Fifth street.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Ralph Carter, of Crookstown, has purchased the Empire Theater here and will soon open for business.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Joe Small has leased the Boyd Park Theater from the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley Traction Company.

Louisville, Ky.—The Jackson Amusement Company will open a moving picture house at Jackson and Market streets, at a cost of $1,200.

Philadelphia, Pa.—George H. Earle has purchased the property at 917 Market street, upon which he proposes to erect a moving picture theater.

Saginaw, Mich.—Messrs. Rusco & Schwartz, proprietors of the Bijou Theater, have purchcased the Jeffers Theater and will soon take charge.

Petersburg, Ind.—The Crescent Theater Company, of Evansville, has disposed of its Theatorium at Petersburg to Murphreesboro parties.

Philadelphia, Pa.—F. C. Michaelson is taking estimates for a one-story moving picture theater to be erected for R. N. Beiman, at a cost of $60,000.

Roseburg, Ore.—Plans are under way for the erection of a $20,000 Opera House here. H. E. Hazelrigg, of Medford, is behind the movement.

Salem, Ohio.—Grant Snyder has sold his interest in the Nickelodeon to his partner, S. C. Chisholm, who will make extensive improvements.

Lafayette, Ind.—Ten thousand dollars is to be spent by the Columbian Amusement Company in improving and beautifying the Family Theater.

Bangor, Me., is to have another moving picture theater, which will open on Exchange street. The Graphic is the name of the new enterprise.

Polo, Ill.—Mr. Leigh Sauer and Mr. Floyd R. Hinkley will open an up-to-date 10-cent motion picture show in the Getzendaner building.

Hamilton, Ohio.—John H. Bromhard and John A. Schwolm will erect a $10,000 moving picture theater at the corner of Court and Second streets.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—The Luna Theater Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are Max Florence, W. E. Sipe and Louis Marcus.

Baltimore, Md.—George C. Wilson has purchased the vacant lot at 14 North Gay street, upon which he proposes to erect a large vaudeville and moving picture theater.

Baltimore, Md.—Plans have been completed by Architect John K. Stack for the erection of a handsome moving picture theater at 839 Greenmount avenue for William E. Heise.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Architect E. Allen Wilson has been commissioned by Henry Gerlach to prepare plans and specifications for an amusement hall to be located on Thirteenth street.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Nathan Berman, contractor, is taking bids on plans for the alterations of two buildings at Sixtieth and Market streets, to be made into a moving picture auditorium.

Emmett, Ida.—Ed. Ford, of the Unique Theater, of Nampa, and W. Alexander, of the Magic Theater, in Caldwell, have formed a partnership and will open a similar theater in Emmett.

Albany, N. Y.—The Albany Majestic Theater Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. The incorporators are Emil Deiches, Bertha Rogowski and Albert M. Solomon.

Newberry, Ind. Sta., Williamsport, Pa.—Messrs. Lou Cupp and George Mears have purchased a lot at the corner of Fourth and Diamond streets upon which they will erect a moving picture theater.

Paris, Tex.—The Lyric Theater here has consolidated with the Jewel and is giving the public high class pictures and vaudeville. Mr. Bert Hildebrandt is opening a moving picture show on South Main street, under the name of Bijou.—J. H. Noyes.

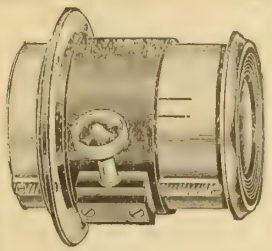
Portland, Me.—A new company known as the Universal Film Projecting Company, have been incorporated to manufacture moving picture machines, with a capital stock of $200,000. The incorporators are C. E. Eaton, T. L. Croteau and J. E. Manter.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Bristol Amusement Company, promoters of moving picture theaters, have been incorporated, with a capital of $10,000. Incorporators: Geo. H. Bristol, 100 Elkton street; C. R. Nims, 763 Hancock street, and H. W. Johnson, 484 Decatur street, all of Brooklyn.

Fall River, Mass.—Mooney's Moving Picture Theater opened on February 13. The hall seats from 350 to 400 people and they have installed a Motiograph with a throw of 92 feet, giving a 10 x 14 picture. H. R. Archer, who is the manager, was formerly connected with the Puritan Theater Company. The new theater is located at No. 1338 Pleasant street.

Boston, Mass.—The A. A. A. has, through its secretary, F. H. Elliott, made arrangements with the leading moving picture houses to furnish affiliated clubs with all the films made by these concerns which would be of interest to automobilists. A special rate has been offered to the clubs for the reproduction of these films in their club houses during the Winter season.

W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange
535-536-537 Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg., 1402 Broadway, NEW YORK
We Book Theatres, Clubs, Parks, Fairs, Rinks, Circuses, Airdomes, Picture Houses, Horse Shows, etc. We treat all alike. Control 500 Acts.
Our efficient service insures success of your Enterprise. Ask anybody.
New Department { Theatres, Parks, Bought, Sold, Leased, Operated. Dramatic Bureau, Plays, Routes, People, Costumes, Scenery.



We make the best lenses in the world for projecting motion pictures and lantern slides. Can you spend a little money more wisely and profitable than by ordering a set of lenses which will
IT'S ALL IN THE LENS
IMPROVE YOUR PICTURES?
NEW PRICES
M. P. Projection Lenses any size with our improved jacket with spiral adjustment..... $15.00
No. 1 Stereopticon Lenses..... 15.00
No. 2 Stereopticon Lenses..... 20.00
All dealers sell them on approval.
WRITE FOR OUR NEW CIRCULAR
When ordering state the size of your screen and the length of the picture wanted. Give the distance from the lens to the screen. Remit the price of the lens or furnish references.
GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES
and Slides of Historical and Memorial Scenes and Personages
Over 250 different styles of the Finest Colored and most Artistically Designed Slides at any Price
3 SLIDES FOR $1.00
TRAVELOGUES
THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY
SEND FOR CATALOG "D" 224 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

Exhibitors! Note That
SOUVENIRS
are a Great Drawing Card for
5 AND 10 CENT THEATRES
We Give You the Greatest Value for the Least Money
DROP US A POSTAL. CATALOGUE FREE ON APPLICATION

No. O 12 — Height 2½ ins. — $3.25 per 100
No. 500 1/16 — Cup 2¼ x 2¼ Saucer 4½ — 75c per dozen
No. 1048 — Height 2½ ins. — $3.25 per 100
TAKITO, OGAWA & CO.
Importers and Manufacturers of
JAPANESE GOODS
166 East Lake Street - Chicago, Ill.

CORRESPONDENCE.

PROTECTION TO THE SHOWMAN, OH PIFFLE!

Cleveland, Ohio, February 17, 1909.

To the Editor of Moving Picture World:

FOR NEW THEATERS.

The Patents Company will protect theaters already established as far as may be possible, and it will issue licenses to only such new places of exhibition as obtain the approval of The Patents Company before they are established. The Patents Company will approve only such location as in its opinion will support new houses and meet a public demand.

(From the M. P. P. Co.'s Circular.)

The above is the strongest point that has been worked upon the showman, inasmuch as it appeals to his selfish instinct, or his business instinct, which is one and the same with us all. On top of this the local exchanges advertise:

"You will be GUARANTEED PROTECTION AGAINST the Cut-throat Competition that has almost ruined you. OUR ADVICE is SIGN your Contract at once, and get on the road to Prosperity."

Now this all looks good in theory and I for one have waited patiently to see how it would work out in actual practice and, without claiming any Sherlock Holmes ability. I have located a couple of "practical illustrations" right in this city that will doubtless be matched all over the United Sates. I illustrate by using street names and numbers to prove facts submitted. The names are "phoney" for obvious reasons. When the ominous February 1 arrived and "the boys" were duly signed, among the bunch were Brown, Fifty-fourth and Broadway; Jones, Fifty-fifth and Broadway; Robinson, about Fifty-eighth and Broadway, this city. All these are small places, though plenty big enough for the patronage of the outskirts and the owners will swear there isn't room for any more. The two local "trust" exchanges are supplying Brown, Jones and Robinson with pictures, when along comes a "guy" with a proposition this week to "Mr. Trust Exchange" No. 1. The "guy"—I can give his name if necessary—has leased a big, brand new hall, 350 seating capacity, right in the midst of poor Brown, Jones and Robinson, or to be more precise at 5619 Broadway; landlord, Mr. Palada.

The lease is signed, too, and the show is being installed. By whom do you suppose? Well the partner of the "guy" is "Mr. Trust Exchange Man" No. 1. Protection? Piffle! Now for case No. 2. Messrs. Green and Black signed up on the "Fatal 1st"—Green is located at 5600 Lorain avenue, this city, Black at 4100 Lorain avenue; 15 blocks separate these two suburban shows but as the numbers "skip" there are only 11 blocks in fact, and Green and Black have not yet waxed fat at this distance apart. However, along comes a "guy" after Green and Black were signed and installs another show of double the capacity of seats right between poor Green and Black, and who supplies the pictures do you suppose? Why, "Mr. Trust Exchange Man" of course, and he's giving a "big double show fer a nickel on Sunday" while his neighbor at the old stand is trying still to get a dime. "Protection?" Again I say "Piffle!" Now in the case of Brown, Jones and Robinson the new "guy" with the big new hall and a film man for a partner will naturally "eliminate"—that's a soft Rockefeller term—Brown, Jones and Robinson with their three little cosy parlors. It will simply be a case of the "survival of the fittest" and the fittest will be the new "guy" with the first runs at a nickel—Brown, Jones and Robinson never could stand to pay for even second run stuff, so what's the answer? The answer is just this: B., J. and R. will go down and out, SURE. That is working out the theory of the M. P. P. Co. beautifully and "Mr. Trust Exchange Man" will have the location to himself very soon.

It is nothing to me as an exhibitor what happens to my fellow showmen, as in both these cases the outcome cannot affect me—being too far away—but I simply will not, nor never would, listen to this poppycock talk of "Protection" to the showmen by the "Trust" or its agents. The exchange will get all he can in rental and work one showman against the other for "first run" and the showmen will pay as little as possible, which is right and natural, and any showman is a chump who signs up in any deal curtailing his liberty in the getting of films in the open market.

The two cases quoted prove this and I'll have more on this

CALUMET Service

Means

Quality

Courtesy

and Prompt Attention

Three Good Things to Take Into Consideration

JUST GIVE US A TRIAL

The Calumet Film Exchange

1609-1610 MASONIC TEMPLE - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

shortly and I have no doubt that every city "signed up" will show the same condition of affairs.

I have given facts and locations, now let the M. P. P. Co. "show me" in rebuttal where the "Protection" is coming in to my fellow members of the Cleveland Association of M. P. Showmen, Messrs. Green, Black, Brown, Jones and Robinson.

Yours truly,

SAM BULLOCK,
Member Ex. Board, C. A. of M. P. Showmen.
2535 Lorain avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

GAUMONT CHRONOPHONE.

New York, N. Y., February 26, 1909.

In view of the many false statements that have been made to the effect that motion picture films manufactured at the various Gaumont factories are not being marketed under license of the Motion Picture Patents Company, I make the following declaration:

Standard Gaumont motion picture films are marketed in the United States exclusively by Mr. George Kleine, under a contract made with him in September, 1908, to run for a term of years, under his license from Motion Picture Patents Company

Gaumont Chronophone films, that is to say, our talking picture films, will be marketed in this country by Gaumont Company, a New York corporation, also licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company. (Signed) L. GAUMONT

UNDERPAID OPERATORS.

Charleston, W. Va., February 18, 1909.

The Moving Picture World.

Gentlemen:—Will you please publish this in your letter column? Some time ago, about October, 1908, The Wonderland Theater, of Charleston, W. Va., caught fire, and in it two reels of film and everything in the room burnt, in which the operator was burnt badly, having to go to the hospital for about one month. After being out of work for eleven weeks the proprietor of the theater wrote out a paper for him to sign or quit work. The paper was for him to work for some time for $10 a week, on which he quit. We have no protection here. The man that has taken the operator's place there gets $10 a week and he never ran a machine before. I would like to see if we cannot have a branch union from some other town for protection here.

Yours respectfully,

GEO. WASHINGTON.

PICTURES THAT DO NOT PLEASE.

Bellaire, Ohio, February 18, 1909.

Moving Picture World.

Gentlemen:—Would like to file a protest in regard to certain makes of pictures.

We read in your valuable paper where you recommend a censor of all pictures.

We think it about time that something of this kind should be done when such firms as the Edison Manufacturing Company puts out such pictures as "Unexpected Santa Claus," "Modest Young Man" and "Adventures of an Old Flirt."

If such pictures as these do not kill the moving picture business I can't imagine what will.

These pictures might go in the tenderloin district of a large city, but in a small town like ours where we have as many church-going people as the other class, they will not stand for these kind of pictures.

You might say, why do you use them? I answer by saying, we are a hundred miles from the film exchange with which we do business and as a usual thing the films do not arrive until late in the day of use, giving us no chance to replace them.

And you know it would be impossible for a film exchange to allow the exhibitors to select pictures which they wished to run on certain dates. And for that reason the fault lies wholly with the manufacturers.

If all the manufacturers would wake up and make some pictures like the Selig Polyscope, Vitagraph and Essanay the moving picture business would be looked upon as any other legitimate business.

We sincerely hope that manufacturers as a whole will in the future avoid making such pictures as above named. I am

Yours truly,

GEO. D. SPRAGG,
Per S. N.

The New Kind

Independent Film Service!

To Manager:

Dear Sir:

Would you like to have an EXCLUSIVE film service in your locality, with all NEW SUBJECTS and pictures you or your competitor NEVER had? Subjects that neither the Independent or Association have, and all NEW GOODS?

We only supply ONE customer in a locality, and the "early bird" gets the one.

WE HANDLE THE FILMS OF THE FOLLOWING MAKERS:

Hepworth
Cricks & Martin
R. W. Paul
Graphic Cinematograph
Sheffield
Walter Tyler
British Colonial
Wrench
Williamson
Crescent Film Co.
Great Northern Film Co.
World Film Mfg. Co.
Eclair
International
Berliner Film Borse
Heinrich Ernemann A. G.
Fritz Gilics
Alfred Duskes
Internationale Kinematografen
Deutsche Mutoscope
Deutsche Bioscope Gesellschaft
Italian Cines
Centaur Film Co.

Yours for the NEW KIND of Film Service,
A. McMILLAN, Pres.

Unique Film and Construction Company

79 DEARBORN ST. (Rooms 341-343)
CHICAGO, ILL.

The First High Grade Film Service In America

FURNISHED BY

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

59 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

OFFICES AT

Argyle Building, KANSAS CITY, MO.

Eccles Building, OGDEN, UTAH

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

THE PRUSSIAN SPY.—A dramatic episode during the Franco-Prussian war. Lady Florence is enamored of a young Prussian soldier. Count Lopes, an officer in the French army, also loves her, but is rejected. He suspects she loves another, and watches to find out who his rival may be. A Prussian spy has been tracked to the mansion, and the Count has reason to believe that he is the favored one, as he sees him enter her window. Following, the Prussian is hidden by Lady Florence in a closet, when the Count enters. He accuses her; she denies even on oath; but the Count detects her anxious look toward the closet. Considering it undignified to search, he plans a more subtle means. Calling two of his lieutenants, he pretends to test a new revolver, using a panel of the closet as a target, still giving her Ladyship a chance to present her lover; but she is obdurate and denies his accusation. Her Ladyship dispatches her maid to the upper floor to remove the trapdoor above the closet, but too late, for the shots are fired, and when the closet door is opened the sad truth is revealed. This is a subject most beautifully staged and acted with convincing discretion, as well as photographically perfect. Length, 465 feet.

A FOOL'S REVENGE.—A Free Adaptation of the Story of Rigoletto. We should not despise the fool, lest we become self-contemptuous, for, as Boileau, the great French poet said, "This world is full of fools, and he who would not wish to see one, must not only shut himself up alone, but also break his looking-glass." The Biograph here holds up to your pity a court-fool, whose inordinate love for his child prompted him to plan vengeance which reverted upon himself. The Duke suffers from melancholia and his courtiers are at wits' end to dissipate his ennui. Diversion of all sorts are brought, but without success, until at last they decide to abduct the pretty daughter of the fool and bring her to the Duke. This is effected, and when the Duke sees her he falls deeply in love with her, but her pure innocence instills in him a higher, holier devotion than he was accustomed to experience, so he harkens to her plea, and throwing his cloak about her, sees her safely home. This is witnessed by the fool, who is in hiding, and misjudging the Duke's attitude, vows vengeance. To this end he enlists the services of a nomad couple who are dwelling in a hut not far off. He bargains with them that to kill the man he shall point out he will pay them five hundred louis. The pact is made, and the Duke is pointed out to them by the fool as he strolls in the gardens with the girl. As the Duke leaves the girl she espies the trio skulking on the grounds and follows them to the hut, where she overhears the plan. She at once decides to save the Duke, but how? To tell him would incriminate her old father. Nothing seems feasible but self-sacrifice, which she bravely determines to do. Going to her house, she dons male attire and with the cloak the Duke had loaned her thrown over her shoulders she bids adieu to her home and life and like a soldier goes bravely unto death. Entering the hut, her face hidden, she receives the blow intended for another and dies before the horror-stricken gypsy couple, who discover their mistake. They, however, put her body in a sack, and when the fool appears, collect their promised fee and flee. The fool is now in a state of fiendish exultation over the seeming success of his vengeance, and after dancing gleefully around the sack, determines to make away with it, but upon picking it up is startled by the litheness of the form enclosed. Ripping open the sack, the sight that greets him fairly freezes his blood, for there lies his own daughter, cold in death, a victim of his own dastardly plot. This final scene is without doubt the most intense bit of work ever done in motion pictures. Length, 1,000 feet.

HIS WIFE'S MOTHER.—That one may be killed by kindness is a demonstrated fact, but that dire deeds may be wrought by generous acts is a rarity. Jones does, though, with great success. But, then, Eddie has never fallen down yet, although he has gotten into some awkward positions. Wifey's mamma promises, or rather threatens, a visit. This, of course, is most delectable news to Jones—"not"—and when she arrives he is further perturbed by her egotistical domination of the household. Son-in-law must not smoke, nor drink; the maid must not frill nor flounce, but attire herself austerely demure. To say that this gets on Jones' nerves is putting it mildly—but what can he do? "Ah! an inspiration It takes nerve, but it is worth a chance." So he sets out to make his wife jealous of her own mother. First he goes out and buys her candy and flowers, then he showers attentions upon her to the extreme neglect of wifey, which starts things in the right direction for Jones. After this he takes mamma dear to the milliner's and buys her a Merry Widow creation that is a marvel of merchandises de mode. All this, of course, costs money, but it is well spent, for the effect is very apparent, and the master stroke was struck when Jones takes mamma to Rector's and introduces to her notice that effervescent bubble water, champagne. Well, you see the stiff, prim old lady soften and become the giddiest girl extant. Back home they go, and it is all off between mother and daughter, and Mrs. Jones packs up mamma's duds and fairly throws her out of the house, with an injunction to go away and never come back. Of course, Jones is in bad for a time, but when he explains that what he did was induced by his selfish love to have wifey all to himself, he is forgiven and receives the usual "make-up" kiss. Length, 523 feet.

EDISON MFG. CO.

THE LANDLADY'S PORTRAIT.—Synopsis of scenes:

In the ranks of those who strive for the advancement of Art, the lot of the poor Artist is generally one of trials and tribulation.

Seignior Daub, an Italian artist, has neglected to pay his room rent for some weeks. How he has evaded payment for so long a period, considering the feline instincts of his landlady, can only be conjectured.

His long road of successful evasion has its turn when she suddenly appears and demands payment. A tramp, who is hiding behind a screen, sees the artist's dilemma, and suggests behind the landlady's back that the artist paint her picture in lieu of rent. "Happy thought." The landlady, flattered at the artist's admiration of her beauty, agrees to an immediate sitting, to the discomfiture of the tramp. The disgusted artist sticks manfully to his task. The minister calls. The maid announces him. The landlady, after admiring her portrait, leaves the room, while the buxom servant girl lingers. The jubilant artist enters and hugs and kisses her. The tramp attempts to join in, only to find himself sprawling on the floor. Not satisfied, she chases him with a paint brush. He hides behind the easel. She makes a lunge at him and daubs the landlady's portrait. The picture is ruined. The artist is in despair. The landlady is coming with the minister. All is lost. The artist and tramp find refuge on the roof. The landlady breathes vengeance. She follows and appears over the ledge with a club. "Horrors." The artist falls through the skylight into the studio and hides in the chimney place. The tramp falls down the chimney, and both roll out on the floor.

The landlady enters the studio and is captured, tied and placed in the chimney. The artist and tramp escape. "Congratulations." App. length, 600 feet.

THE JANITOR'S BOTTLE.—Synopsis of scenes: "I wish him health and happiness," said the janitor, as he opened the bottle of Old Rye, sent as a present from his brother Jerry. He was about to drink, but the friendly remembrance was fatal. The maid warns him of the approach of her mistress, and he hides the bottle in the desk drawer.

Much to his discomfiture, he is immediately sent out to mail a letter. Mr. Biggs, while looking for a paper, finds the bottle, and thinks it's one he has previously concealed and forgotten. While engrossed with an "eye-opener" he is startled by his little daughter Ethel, who asks what he is doing. He tells her he takes it for gout, and he illustrates the malady by limping around the room. Baby Ethel disposed of, Biggs tries again, but is interrupted by a poet, who desires to marry his eldest daughter. Biggs, exasperated, uses little ceremony and hustles Mr. Poet out. The bottle is hurried back into the drawer as Mrs. Biggs enters with gouty grandpa. Grandpa is made comfortable and Mr. and Mrs. Biggs leave for a ride. Little Ethel enters, and while playing battledore falls on grandpa's gouty leg. Feeling sorry, she brings him papa's medicine.

The remedy just suits grandpa. To keep it for himself, he changes the label to poison, and hides the bottle behind Miss Biggs' picture. Grandpa, satisfied, goes to sleep. The poet, tired of life, enters to hang himself to the chandelier before the image of his loved one. One last look—he discovers the supposed poison—" 'tis a better way to die" —Miss Biggs discovers him while drinking—her screams arouse the household.

The janitor recognizes his bottle and seizes the poet. Down comes the chandelier on grandpa's leg.

All are incensed against the poet and he is hustled ignominiously from the house. App. length, 400 feet.

LEFT OUT.—Synopsis of scenes:

The silent tragedies of life are the saddest—and the saddest of all is that of a lonely child, bereft of mother, with a father in name only, indifferent, careless, perhaps brutal. Or worse, still, if naturally kind, but calloused and soddened through intemperance.

Such is the story of a childish sorrow told in our picture. The story of a pretty, delicate child, to whom misfortune came with crushing blows. First in the death of a loving mother—then in the coldness and neglect of a good, well-meaning but weak-willed father, who is cast down by the loss of fortune and position.

The little one knows that her clothes are poor and, child as she is, can understand why she is slighted by other children and left out of every childish game. No one knew when her voice was choked—nor cared when she stole away.

No one save God, saw how at last she crept through the gate and the grasses deep, past the wall to a lonely grave where her mother lay asleep.

Could the mother feel in her narrow bed the wee cold hands as they groped about looking for love and sympathy as the big tears dropped? Ah! no—for even at the grave she had been left out.

Woe to the world were it left unguided by a mightier hand than man's—for black despair must soon enshroud us—and so the cloud lifts from the little one's life. Her father comes to realize his weakness—and wrought to a mighty resolve by the pathetic figure at the grave, conquers a bright future for both. App. length, 900 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

SHANGHAIED.—This intensely thrilling, dramatic subject is filled with heart interest from the opening to the final scene, and tells its story of love, hate, and attempted revenge, without the need of a shot being fired or a knife used. The story teems with excitement and has been produced with the aid of the best talent that can be secured in this country.

The diversity of scenery adds greatly to the charm of the film; portions of the story being surrounded by the beautiful California scenery, notably that of Catalina Islands, Pasadena, Cal., and the famous docks of San Pedro.

Two young men, one the son of a rich shipowner, the other a poor country lad with no prospects but his ability to make his way in the world, love a pretty winsome lass. The rivalry on the part of the latter is friendly, although he is well aware that his position in life does not give him the opportunity of surrounding the girl with the good things of life. The young shipowner's rivalry is of the opposite nature, filled with venom, and he considers it an effrontery that a poor country lad should dare attempt to rival him in the affections of the lady of his choice.

The girl is finally put to the test, and in a dramatic scene declares her love for the hero. The unsuccessful shipowner, much angered by his defeat, swears vengeance.

Finding the girl alone, the shipowner again attempts to force himself into her favor, but is repulsed. Her infuriated admirer grasps the girl, forcing a kiss upon her lips just as her accepted lover appears upon the scene. The boy, in his anger, knocks the man down, and after a struggle, forces him to apologize. The humiliation hurts him more than the blow, and in his bitterness and anger the shipowner secures the services of some of his seamen attached to a sailing vessel about to leave port and track our young hero as he is leaving a rendezvous with his sweetheart. They attack the youth in a lonely spot, and after a severe struggle, render him insensible and take him aboard the vessel. The lad is forced by the captain to sign articles as an apprentice, then beaten and abused, is made to swab the decks.

Biding his time, he strikes the officer in charge, knocking him down. Then plunges overboard and after swimming until he is thoroughly exhausted, reaches the rocks of the shore. (The scenery at this particular point where our hero climbs the rocks with the surf and wild waves dashing about him cannot be excelled.)

After eluding the pursuing crew our hero starts back to his lady love's cottage. In the meantime the shipowner has taken into his service a renegade Mexican, and with his aid, after knocking down her old colored servant, kidnaps the now unprotected girl, taking her to an abandoned mission, where he forces an old priest residing there to promise to marry them, regardless of the girl's consent.

The youth at last reached the mainland after a perilous climb over almost inaccessible rocks, and learns from his sweetheart's servitor the story of the outrage. Scarcely able to walk, owing to his former exertions, he secures a horse from a friendly traveler and goes in hot pursuit, reaching the rendezvous just as the final words are about to be spoken.

Realizing his helplessness, in his already weakened condition, he grasps a revolver from the Mexican's holster and puts both the shipowner and his accomplice to flight. With his sweetheart in his arms he persuades the priest to repeat the ceremony, and the final words that his unexpected appearance prevented are then spoken that make them man and wife.

We honestly believe, without egotism, that no stronger film of a like character has ever been produced by any American manufacturer. The photography is absolutely perfect and together with the scenery and the excellent action of the characters, this film, we believe, will stand preeminently alone. Length, 1,000 feet.

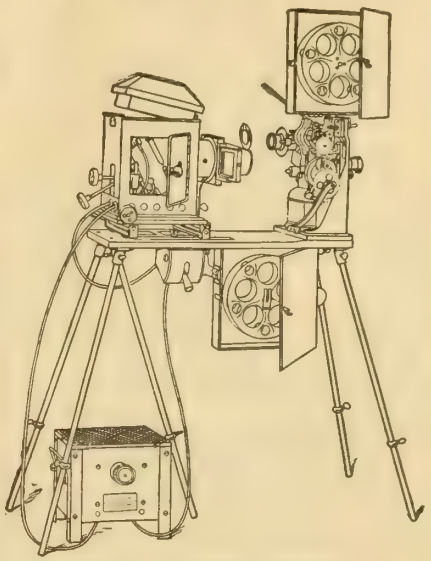
KALEM COMPANY

THE OLD SOLDIER'S STORY.—Ladies and Gentlemen: As Memorial Day approaches we naturally turn back to the stirring days of '61, and the old veterans in every town and hamlet in the country will be found getting out the faded blue and gray uniforms and preparing for their annual homage to the flag. The old battles will be fought over again and the young folks will listen with wonder to the stories of the grandfathers. In this film we illustrate in a very graphic manner one of these "Old Soldier's Stories" and we believe you will find it all the more interesting in that it is told from a Southern point of view. An old Confederate veteran tells how he once engaged in a secret service enter-

EDISON KINETOSCOPES

Competition is Keen in the Motion Picture Exhibition Field

The large profits secured at small expense induce many to take up this form of entertainment. An Edison kinetoscope puts an exhibitor in a class by himself. Its brilliant work, safety, simplicity and low operating expense give those who use it a decided advantage. If you are going into the field, start with the best equipment. If you are in it and want to keep your profits where they should be, learn about the Kinetoscope. Among Mr. Edison's many recent improvements is a



Prices from $90.00 to $225.00.
Complies with Fire Regulations of all cities.

New Style Rheostat

The old style wire resistance coils have been entirely discarded and replaced with Cast Metal Grids, supported and insulated by water and fireproof material. The Rheostat can be used on either direct or alternating current of any frequency, with equally good results, and in either case a maximum current of 40 amperes may be obtained without excessive heating on a line voltage varying from 100 to 125 volts. The front, back and sides are enclosed with solid sheet metal, while the top and bottom are enclosed with perforated sheet metal. The operating switch, switch contacts and binding posts are all inside the sheet metal frame and are thoroughly protected from outside contact. The switch handle, which is of non-conductive material, is outside the sheet metal frame, and arrow pointers indicate the position of the switch in reference to the "On" and "Off" points. The binding posts, although inside the sheet metal frame, are readily accessible and are adapted for either round or flat terminals. The open space on all four sides of the Cast Metal Grids, or resistance material, and the perforated sheet metal on the top and bottom of the enclosing metal frame provide an ideal ventilation and permit the heat to be rapidly dissipated.

EDISON FILMS

are full of life and action. The subjects are well chosen and acted out before the camera by good talent. New films are issued each week, ranging from thrilling melo-drama to bright and amusing comedy. The subjects are always clean, giving offense to none.

NEW SUBJECTS:

Shipment, March 2, 1909

100 PER CENT. JEALOUSY
Comedy
No. 6427 Code, VENGOLINE
App. Length 405 feet

BOYHOOD DREAMS
Comedy
No. 6428 Code, VENGUDE
App. Length 425 feet

Shipment, March 5, 1909

A BIRD IN A GILDED CAGE
Dramatic
No. 6429 Code, VENTANERO
App. Length 900 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS:

Shipment, March 9, 1909

THE COLORED STENOGRAPHER
Comedy
No. 6430 Code, VENTANIA
App. Length 635 feet

MARY JANE'S LOVERS
Comedy
No. 6431 Code, VENTANICOS
App. Length 265 feet

Shipment, March 12, 1909

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM
Religious
No. 6432 Code, VENTANILHA
App. Length 950 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 804 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries.
FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.

No. 44 North 10th Street. Philadelphia, Pa.

FOR SALE

Reels of films 1,000 ft. released since April, $10 each, David Garrick, Life of Abraham Lincoln, Jerusalem, David and Goliath, Damon and Pythias. The Humpty Dumpty Circus and many others. Edison Ex. Model machine $60. Will buy machines, films.

H. DAVIS - - WATERTOWN, WIS.

Opera Chairs Durable Prices Right Opera Chairs

Everything in the Seating Line

Second-Hand Opera Chairs Always in Stock.

H. S. ANSLEY

1402 Broadway, New York City

Tel. 6203, 38th St.

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500 OPERA CHAIRS IN STOCK

If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received,

Ask for Catalog No. 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

SECOND-HAND

OPERA CHAIRS

Want Two Hundred

GRAND THEATRE, CORNING, N. Y.

SOUND EFFECTS FOR MOVING PICTURES

YERKES & CO.

53 West 28th Street - N. Y.

Phone 594 Madison Square

INDEPENDENT FILMS

PROMPT SERVICE ANYWHERE.

"ONE OF THE OLDEST".

PURDY'S FILM EXCHANGE

300 East 23d Street - - NEW YORK

Long Distance Phone, 1512 Gram.

Great Bargains

Motion Picture Machines, Films, Stereopticons Slides, Supplies, etc. Passion Play $100, Colored $200. Send for Supplement 27 No. 4.

HARBACH & COMPANY

809 Filbert Street - PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!

FIRE PROOF!

NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!

NO VIBRATION!

Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material

COMPLETE, $175.00

VIASCOPE MFG. CO.

Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

LOOK LOOK LOOK

MR. FILM EXCHANGE

Why send out films to your trade without "TITLES," when I will make you the best "FILM TITLE" on the market for 10c per foot. Colored TITLES, 11c per foot. Get a "TITLE" and keep your stock moving

B. L. JAMES - - - - 108 E. Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

ROLL TICKETS Every Roll Guaranteed to be Numbered Correctly

YOUR SPECIAL TICKET PRINTED BOTH SIDES

50,000, $6.50 500,000, $35.00

100,000, 10.00 STOCK TICKETS, SIX CENTS

CASH WITH ORDER THE CARTER PRESS PEABODY, MASS.

Buy the Best means Buy a Bal.

The only Moving Picture Machine Trunk in the world which is strong enough to carry the machine safely and light enough to save excess baggage charges, is the "BAL" FIBRE TRUNK, and, being the best, it is the cheapest.

SEND FOB CATALOGUE—W

WILLIAM BAL, Inc. - - - 210 West 42d Street, New York City

prise, how he penetrated the enemy's line in disguise, how he barely escaped capture by the skin of his teeth and how he finally delivered his message in safety.

Scene I.—"Now, Hurry Back With That Yeast." A typical Southern home, with a broad and low veranda overlooking the distant cotton fields. It is the home of our hero, the old Confederate soldier, whom you now see as he limps out of the door. He is crippled with rheumatism, but for all that is still as active and spry as the best of them. He puts on his specs and sits down to read the weekly paper, and as he does so his housekeeper comes out with her pan of flour, for it is baking day and time to knead the dough. We all of us find that now and then we need the dough. But the one necessary ingredient is the yeast, and down South they get it in a jug in liquid form; rarely ever in the compressed tablets used in the North. And the yeast being missing it is up to the old vet to amble off to the corner grocery after it. He puts on his hat and his old service coat, and, leaning heavily on his cane, starts away on his errand.

Scene II.—The "Boys" Fight Their Battles Over Again and "Zeke" Tells His Story. Here we are at the country store, and you know very well that before you is a bunch of "old boys" fighting over their battles. With miniature fort and parapet built of sand and with tiny flags to indicate the various positions of the troops they have the entire field plotted out, and in their dimming eyes they can actually see the bloody fray as they saw it in reality years ago. All are intensely interested and even the storekeeper joins the group as the battle progresses.

But here is our old friend, "Zeke." See how reverently he kisses the flag and how they all bear homage to it. And now he has forgotten all about the yeast. He takes a chair and starts to tell the story which will now be unfolded in beautiful pictures before your eyes. I am going to tell it to you just as "Zeke" told it on that day.

"Yes, boys, I well remember the day I started for the war. The roses were in bloom about the cottage door and my old mother and father, God bless them, were there to say good-bye. But hard as it was to leave the old folks, it almost broke my heart when I had to say the final parting word to my dear wife, my bride of but two short months.

"I joined Mosby's men, as you all know, for I knew horseflesh in those days and I just naturally drifted into the cavalry. Well, we all w'ant no regular troop. We just skirmished around where we thought we could do the most good and we camped in barns and farm buildings wherever they were handy. One day during the second year of the fighting we were on scouting duty when our Colonel, Mosby, found that the Union forces were making a forced march intending to cut out a big store of supplies which we had in a town some twenty miles south. It was up to him to notify the general. Well I remember it. We were just getting ready to have a snack to eat, under the shelter of the old flag, when Mosby comes out and says: 'Boys, who'll take this message to headquarters? The Yanks have cut us off and it will be a risky thing, but it's got to be did and I want a MAN to do it. Well, you'd oughter hear the yell. We all volunteered, every man of us. And, boys, it was me he picked out. He knew I could ride like the devil and he knew I was a bit of an actor and had some old wigs and whiskers in my kit. He says to me, 'Zeke, you're the boy. You fix up like an old peddler and with a little luck you can get through the lines.' So I starts out.

"I made pretty good going until I got in sight of the Yankee pickets, when I took to the brush, but I didn't know then that I was being trailed by a Yankee spy. I didn't learn that till years later. But he nearly got me. I'll give him credit for that. I ducked into the brush because I wanted to change my face and the highway was no place for that.

"Afore long we comes to the Yankees' headquarters. I makes an awful fuss about it and out comes General Grant himself, smoking a black cigar, just as I had always seen him in the pictures. I shows him a paper saying I am a poor old man on my way to Fredericksburg to see my sick daughter and would he kindly give me a pass. He looks me over and sees nothing wrong. I makes believe to faint again and that fetches him. He puts a loaf of bread in my basket, gives me a pass and sends me along. Good fellow, that Grant, the greatest general of them all.

"It was only a short run to the river opposite Fredericksburg and I knew it was up to me to swim. I didn't waste no time about it, either. They were close behind me and I could feel the bullets whizzing past my head. But they didn't hit me and I swum on. They took to the water, too, and swum after me. I'll give those fellows credit for being as game as they make 'em.

"Swimming with all your clothes on is no fun, let me tell you, and I was about all in when I reached the opposite shore. But those there Yanks with their guns were right behind me, and they'd have caught me right then and there if I hadn't tried a trick I learned at fox hunting and doubled my tracks. I threw them off and that was the last I saw of them there Yanks. I guess they had another wet time getting back.

"Well, I delivered that message and I was just in time, too. Our general said: 'Zeke, you are a hero.' Yes, sir, that's just what he said."

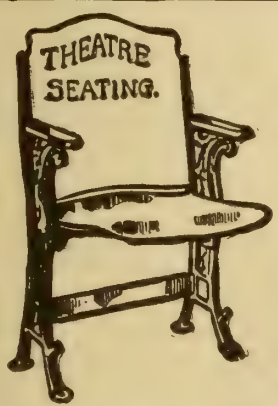
FILM Service FACTS

A pamphlet we have just issued

Of interest to every exhibitor who is not satisfied with the film service he is receiving

Drop Us a Postal Card for It To-day

GEO. K. SPOOR CO.
(INCORPORATED)
62 North Clark St., CHICAGO, ILL.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company
90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.
70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

And so the story ends and all the boys are cheering, when an unexpected interruption occurs. The bread is waiting for the yeast. A female tyrant appears and the hero who forgot his errand is walked off by the ear, while the air rings with the shouts and laughter of his old cronies.

GAUMONT.

(George Kleine.)

THE PIANO TEACHER.—A story of intensely dramatic interest. The scene opens with a view of the sitting room in the home of a merchant. Those present are the merchant, his daughter and a childhood friend. As the lady leaves, the glances of the young man testify of the infatuation he has for her. At the home of her pupil, the teacher meets the latter's brother and readily falls a victim to his suave manner. Friendship soon ripens into love and before long the young lady is seen to make her departure from the paternal domicile to be married to her new-found friend. "Married in haste" in this instance also gives cause for "repentance at leisure." The husband proves unfaithful and the young woman soon finds herself called upon to seek legal separation. She returns to her home, but the stern father is obdurate and will not grant his pardon. Her child she entrusts to the maid in her father's home and then goes out to seek a livelihood as best she can. The child is well taken care of and prospers in the luxuriant atmosphere of her indulgent grandfather's estate. Years have passed, and one day as the maid is out with the child a woman of emaciated appearance and with torn garments is seen asking alms. The merchant passes on after bestowing a coin in the uplifted hand. The benefactor, however, is recognized, and the woman, after gazing furtively and longingly at the child, tries to depart, but is recognized by the maid as the mother of the child. Her childhood friend is present, and moved to compassion, begs her to remain. They escort her into the home, and when the father returns efforts at reconciliation are unavailing until the little daughter intercedes. Excellent photographic quality. App. length, 857 feet.

IN SORE STRAITS.—A drama of merit, excellent quality and detail. After a series of misfortunes, an entire family is driven to seek public charity. The aged father is left with the daughter by the roadside while the son seeks food for the starving group. His efforts meet with poor results, and in a moment of desperation he follows the insane promptings of an unsound mind. His dependents, however, fare better in his absence, as they are taken up by an aristocratic young woman, who, singularly enough, proves to be the wife of the man attacked by the unfortunate pauper.

When the latter is overpowered and learns what kindness has been shown his family he becomes penitent and seeks pardon, which is granted. App. length, 522 feet.

WALKING ON HIS TOES.—A most amusing comedy with a highly entertaining performance of walking on the toes of a pair of specially constructed shoes.

The guest in a hotel finds his room pilfered over night and his shoes supplanted with another pair of rare variety.

Obliged to don the shoes, he accomplishes several meritorious feats, also succeeds in regaining his property and bringing the perpetrators of crime to justice. App. length, 406 feet.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

(George Kleine.)

THE SAILOR'S BELT.—In a coast town the family of a fisherman is meeting with hard luck. A solicitor threatens to sell the home to realize on a mortgage when a young sailor magnanimously offers his savings to pay the indebtedness. The auction sale is prevented and the sailor goes on in pursuit of his calling. An accident at sea causes the sinking of his vessel and the young man is rescued from the wreckage washed ashore. He is taken to the nearest home, where loving hands lend every aid to a speedy recovery. By means of his belt he is identified as the sailor who furnished the funds to pay the indebtedness on the homestead. His attentions to Mary Ann, the daughter, and now his nurse, are received with favor and the two hearts soon unite to beat as one. Thrilling and intensely interesting. App. length, 483 feet.

AN EMBARRASSING PRESENT.—This subject depicts very amusing scenes incident to having a consignment of strongly aromatic delicatessen as baggage on a pleasure trip. The pleasure seeker just having left his home, the expressman follows with a package and makes delivery at a Summer garden. When an obnoxious aroma is perceived, the owner of the parcel endeavors to leave it behind and is just entering a carriage with his wife when an attendant succeeds in overtaking him and delivering the forgotten (?) article. A number of similar experiences are made when the parcel falls into another's hands in an improper manner. The latter seeks and receives satisfaction with a vengeance; a gendarme exacts tribute, and numerous other efforts are made to dispose of the embarrassing gift but to no avail. Finally they determine to inter the cause of offense, but are detected by the gen-

NEXT Sand A FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK
OUR
Dramatic Feature Subject

"Shanghaied"

(Lgth. 1,000 Ft.)

READY
Wednesday, March 3d

Watch for Release Date of Our Sensational Western Subjects

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
Boston Office, 224 Congress Street, Boston, Mass

Singer and Pianist—Good Team 2 People. 5 years experience. GEO. A. PURRIN, 182 Rockaway Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

darmes and obliged to disclose and explain their act before they are permitted to depart. App. length, 410 feet.

PATHE FRERES.

THE MISER.—A young man is in love with a pretty peasant girl, and as the couple are chatting, the maiden's father appears on the scene, and after ordering the girl to retire, tells the youth that he will not tolerate the latter's attentions to his daughter, and orders the young man away from the place. Returning home in a most distracted mood, the youth tells his parents of the sad termination of his love affairs, and complains of being too poor to have any right to pursue his purpose.

His father, who is an old miser, becomes suspicious of his son and fears that the latter, in a fit of desperation, will rob him of his gold, which he has stored in the house. Awaiting an opportunity, the old miser takes his bag of gold and going to an obscure spot, buries it, but his good wife, suspecting as much, follows him, and when the old fellow leaves the spot, thinking that his gold is hidden, the woman goes and digs it up. Returning home, the old lady turns the money over to her son, who, overjoyed, rushes off to the home of his fiancee, and presents her with it, whereupon the latter's father, seeing the large fortune in the young people's possession, gladly gives his consent to their marriage.

The old miser takes a trip up to the place where he has hidden his treasure, and to his horror discovers that it has been taken. Immediately he becomes suspicious of his wife, and rushing home accuses her of the deed. She admits her guilt, and the infuriated old man grabs her by the throat and is strangling the terrified woman when the son rushes in and saves his mother's life. The youth immediately gives back the coveted gold and the miser is so elated over having it returned that he becomes hysterical, and falls in a fit on the ground. The excitement is too much for him and he dies on the spot, clasping his gold to his heart. Length, 519 feet.

GRAND CANAL, VENICE.—The beauties of the famous city of Venice are brought before our eyes as we gaze on this magnificent picture, which takes us in fancy for a trip through the many waterways of that ancient city, renowned for its many magnificent palaces, all of quaint architectural design. Floating tranquilly down the Grand Canal, we view with unbounded admiration the "Casa d'Oro," the most magnificent of the marble palaces. Next we see the Rialto and the famous St. Mark's Cathedral, then we have an opportunity of seeing at close range the Royal Palace with its beautiful piazza and massive pillars. Finally we pass the Palace of the Doges and the prisons, and can well appreciate the inspiration that prompted the author of the phrase, "Men built Rome, the gods Venice." Length, 410 feet.

WHAT A UNIFORM WILL DO.—Two burglars are seen entering a house where they are fortunate enough to steal a policeman's uniform and outfit, and escape through a skylight to the roof, after which they slide down a drain pipe to terra firma and make good their escape. Going to an old shanty, one of the pair dons the uniform and they both start out to see what can be realized by such a good disguise. Their first victim is an old fellow who has just arrived from the country, and who stops to ask the supposed policeman a direction. While he is being directed, one of the fellows runs away with his handbag, while the policeman gently lifts the poor old fellow's wallet, and starts in hot pursuit of his companion.

Next they hit on a scheme whereby they can make a little loose change, and one of the rogues stops in front of a factory, where the crowd of employees are just coming out. He starts to give a performance, using a sword as the main attraction, but just as he is about to swallow the keen edged piece of steel, his companion comes up and orders him away. The latter then goes along the street and steals a bicycle on which he makes his escape, and at the moment his pal comes along and the crowd thinking that he is a policeman appeal to him to follow the fleeing thief. Jumping on another wheel he starts in pursuit, and when they have gone some distance the pair join one another and have the laugh on their innocent victims.

Finally they meet their Waterloo, and when they try one of their old tricks, they are recognized by some of the crowd, who summon the police and the pair of vagabonds are locked up. Length, 495 feet.

THE JOLLY TRIO'S DREAM.—Two men and a woman are having a hilarious time, and after throwing everything out of the window, the trio follow suit and land on the walk below. They start out for a stroll through the woods, but all sorts of unforeseen things happen to them, and one of the worst calamities, the woman flies up in the air and comes down in pieces. The fellows gather up the different parts of her and pack them in a bag, and as they are going along the street they attract the attention of a couple of policemen, who place them under arrest and hurry them off to the station. They are then thrown in a cell, which is so cold that they are forced to light a charcoal fire, with the result that they suffocate and disappear, leaving only their clothes in a heap on the floor. When the officers enter the cell and find that there is nothing left of their prisoners, they gather up the clothing and throw it in a heap out on the street, where immediately the trio come to life again and steal away. From that time on they meet with all sorts of mishaps, until we see the picture change, showing them sitting on a balcony in the pouring rain, where they have been dreaming of all their funny escapades. Length, 417 feet.

HYPNOTIC SUBJECT.—A pair of disheveled characters meet and form a scheme whereby they will be able to realize some money with very little effort. One of the pair plays the part of a hypnotist and tells the other to do whatever he tells him, and in the end things will shape themselves to their mutual advantage. The pair start down the street, and at a cafe meet two young ladies who are drinking some wine. Approaching the maidens, one of the fellows tells them of his hypnotic influence over the other. The ladies are anxious to see the demonstration so consent to be silent spectators, whereupon the two play the trick and to the astonishment of the witnesses, they drink the latters' wine and make their escape.

The next victim is a man who is anxious to see the fun and the so-called hypnotic subject relieves him of his wallet, and the pair make good their escape. As they are going along the road they bump into a policeman and try the joke on him, relieving the cop of his weapons, with which they hold him at bay while they get away. Going down to the river, where they are in the act of dividing the spoils, the enraged policeman catches them, but one of the fellows is too sleek and slips out of his coat, leaving it in the policeman's hands. When they discover they have left the wallet in the coat they play another joke on the cop, and one of the pair jumps into the water and feigns drowning. The officer always ready to be of assistance to any one in trouble throws off his coat and plunges in to save the drowning man. The latter quickly swims to shore and with his pal, runs away with the cop's coat, and starts out for a jolly time on the stolen money. Length, 479 feet.

FLORRIE'S BIRTHDAY.—A youth receives a note from his lady love, informing him that it is her birthday and stating that she expects to receive a bracelet that he has promised her. The poor fellow is in an awful state, for he is without a cent to his name and has visions of losing the affections of his prized one unless he is able to make good his promise. He goes to a rich old aunt and tries to borrow money but meets with failure, so he leaves the place distracted. As he is walking down the street he meets his fair one and the first thing that she does is to hurry him off to the jewelers to buy the present. Just as they are entering the door, the poor fellow is forced to confess his true condition, whereupon the girl nearly has hysterics over her grave disappointment.

Going along the thoroughfare, they meet the stingy old aunt's servant leading her dog. For revenge, the youth cuts the leash and steals the animal. When the servant misses his little charge he returns to the house and with tears in his eyes tells the distracted woman of his misfortune. She immediately has him post up a sign on the corner, stating that a reward of twenty-five dollars will be paid for the return of the dog. The youth reads the notice and he and Florrie go to the place post haste. Miss Florrie enters and gives up the dog, and after receiving the reward, hastens out and joins her friend and the two go to the jeweler's where Florrie's ambition is realized and she gets the beautiful gift. Length, 433 feet.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.

THE SKIPPER'S DAUGHTERS.—Old Jed Horn was the skipper of a lumber schooner which plied between ports on the Gulf of Mexico and the thriving cities of the Mississippi River. Old Jed had two mates, who were big, husky fellows and well adapted for the rough work in which they were engaged. He also had two daughters, Jane and Lucy. Little Lucy was in love with the big first mate, Tom, while Jane had promised her hand to the good-natured second mate, Jim. Tom soon grew tired of Lucy and transferred his affections to Jane, much to the chagrin of that young lady and to the delight of her father, who had long cherished a desire to have his eldest daughter marry the burly Tom, who was a first rate seaman and destined for a skipper's berth.

At the beginning of the story the "Nancy Lee" is unloading her cargo of lumber. The negro crew are hard at work, when a quarrel ensues between the two mates over a difference as to how the lumber should be distributed. They come to blows, but are immediately separated by the irate old skipper, who sends them both about their business, at the same time not forgetting to place most of the blame on the shoulders of poor Jim, for whom the old man has a decided dislike, although loath to part with his valuable services as a navigator.

Just as things are beginning to quiet down a little, the two girls, hearing of the ship's return to port, come bounding on deck, and greeting their father warmly, begin casting eyes about to see in what part of the ship the mates are. They soon spy them out and steal away in opposite directions. Jane is greeted affectionately by the faithful Jim, but not so little Lucy. The surly Tom, still smarting with wrath over his encounter with Jim, receives Lucy coldly, and catching sight of Jim and Jane in each other's arms, leaves the little girl with a cruel rebuff and hastens to find the skipper, to whom he reveals the secret of Jane's love for Jim. The old "sea dog" is stirred to parental wrath by the news, and seeking out the young couple proclaims his intention of having Jane married to his first mate before the schooner starts on her outward voyage. This is more than Jim can stand. Right then and there he asserts himself and declares that no one shall take Jane from him. Like pouring oil upon the flames, old Jed's ire is fired to white heat, and seizing an iron bar he fells poor Jim to the ground. Screaming with fright, Jane rushes away to tell her mother of the awful deed. The skipper and Tom, now thoroughly alarmed at this act of violence, start to carry Jim's unconscious form back to the ship. On their way Tom, thinking that Jim is dead, suggests that they throw his body into the water. Old Jed balks at this at first, but is about to give in when Jim revives. At that moment the skipper's wife and daughters arrive and further trouble is averted.

For a few days all is quiet, until one evening Tom encounters his hated rival and Jane as they are walking along the bank of the canal talking over their future plans. Tom, who has been imbibing too freely of late, loses control of his better judgment and attacks Jim. A fierce and terrible struggle ensues. Although Tom is the stronger of the two, Jim's faculties have not been impaired by strong drink and consequently he is better able to stand the strain of the combat than Tom. Along the edge of the embankment the two burly mates struggle, raining fierce blows upon each other's bodies, clinching, wrestling and tearing at each other's throats; they at last reach the footbridge that crosses the deep canal. Out towards the center struggle the two gladiators. Jim's strength is fast leaving him, when by a mighty effort he secures a sudden hold on Tom's body, and lifting the huge bulk of his adversary he hurls him over the railing into the water. Striking his head on a piling Tom is rendered unconscious and sinks at once in the dark waters.

Now Jane, who has been a terrified witness of the great struggle, sees the helpless condition of the first mate, and fearing that the charge of murder will fall upon her lover's head, she implores him to save his enemy from drowning. Although he is exhausted from the terrible combat, the generous second mate plunges into the outgoing tide and by a mighty effort succeeds in dragging his helpless foe back to land.

We next see the actors in our drama aboard ship as the boat is being towed down the canal to the sea on her outward voyage. Relenting of his harsh treatment of the second mate and his eldest child, the skipper allows his daughters to accompany him on the trip. Apparently all is quiet and serene, when all the fierce fire of hatred again burns in Tom's breast. Watching his opportunity when all is still at night, he slips up behind his enemy as he is leaning over the for'ard rail and is about to hurl him into the water, when Skipo, a negro deck hand, sees his fiendish action and gives the alarm.

Accusations are made and denied, but old Jed's eyes are at last opened to the absolute meanness of his first mate and he orders him put in irons. Cursing the skipper and all on board, the big brute is dragged aft and lashed to a mast, there to await the return of the tugboat to convey him back to port.

Now we are shown a picture of woman's constancy. Little Lucy, although she has been repeatedly rebuffed by the first mate and her heart wrung by his cruel treatment of her, watches her opportunity and securing a sharp knife cuts the ropes that bind Tom to the mast and sets him free. In a moment the mate is over the side of the schooner and rowing rapidly away in the ship's tender, while poor Lucy falls sobbing on the deck, where she is found and carried to the cabin to be comforted by her loving sister and now thoroughly repentant old dad.

With the disturbing element out of the way, the "Nancy Lee" has a pleasant voyage, and upon her return home, Jim and Jane receive the blessing of the old skipper and are soon made one. Length, 1,000 feet.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

THE POOR MUSICIAN.—Our story opens with a noted violinist practising, his young wife sitting nearby, while their little daughter plays about on the floor—a truly happy family. The maid announces a caller, who, upon being ushered in, is presented to the wife. He is at once struck with her beauty, eyes her continually, but unnoticed by the musician or his wife. As the two men leave the room, for the first time the wife catches the expression on the caller's face and is worried.

A year later in the same room we find the wife packing her suit case preparing to elope with the villain. Before their departure the wife writes a note telling her husband of her elopement and begs him to forget her. A moment after the pair leave the room the valet enters, observes them from the window, picks up the note, reads it and immediately starts for the theater to inform his master. He rushes upon the stage just as the musician is finishing his number, excitedly tells the tale and gives him the letter. The poor man, horribly shocked, falls in a faint on the stage.

Another year passes by and we find the faithless wife dangerously ill. The doctor shakes his head gravely. Just before her death the mother takes a locket from her own neck and places it around that of her little child. The villain stands by looking and acting indifferently as the woman passes away.

Fifteen years later we find the musician's daughter and her supposed father in their handsomely appointed home. An aristocratic looking young man enters, asks for the girl's hand in marriage and is accepted. A party of young friends are offering congratulations, and while the merriment is at its height the daughter catches a sound of music from outside the house. She listens, and strangely familiar strains come to her. She rushes to the window to see the old musician (in reality her father) fall exhausted to the pavement. Servants are called and the unfortunate man is brought inside, laid upon the couch, restoratives applied, which soon restore him to consciousness. As he regains his senses the old man stares about in wonderment. The young lady is the exact image of his wife, and while gazing at her the past is brought vividly back to him. Suddenly he sees the villain, denounces him, tells the story of his perfidy. The daughter is horrified at the story. The villain comes forward and tells her to choose between the handsome home and her lover or her father and his poor surroundings. Unhesitatingly she goes to the old musician; they pass out of the house together and proceed to his ill-furnished room. While they are talking, the young lover enters, asks the old man for his daughter's hand. He has just found his child and to lose her again seems a hard blow, but the young couple insist upon his sharing their home. He cheerfully gives his consent and blessing. Length, 652 feet.

SAUL AND DAVID.—The Biblical Story of the Shepherd Boy Who Became King of the Israelites.

Scene I.—David's Home. David, the poor shepherd boy, enters with a wounded lamb, which he tenderly cares for; his father, Jesse, his mother and Adora, a bond maiden, looking on lovingly. A priest enters, blesses them, predicts the crowning of David as King. Jesse sees some people coming. They enter. Princesses Merab and Michal, Prince Jonathan (King Saul's two daughters and son), and Prince Phalti, a suitor for Michal's hand. They have come to command David to appear before King Saul (to play his harp), who is mad and can only be moved by the music from the hills. David consents to depart to King Saul. Princess Michal, who accompanies Jonathan, shows her interest in David. David evinces "love at first sight." Michal gives David a rose, which he afterwards treasures. They enter the house to supper.

Scene II.—Saul's Camp. Sentries are keeping watch. Michal wanders through the camp, picking flowers; passes up hill and away, picking more flowers as she goes. Doeg and Omah (brothers) enter. The latter suggests shooting an arrow into the camp which may destroy the King. They agree to this. Omah exits. Merab and Jonathan enter and the latter goes in search of Michal. Doeg makes love to Merab and is sternly repulsed. Doeg exits vowing vengeance.

Scene III.—Michal Picking More Flowers. A tiger appears, settles to spring upon her. Michal, in terror, falls to her knees, praying. David enters, kills the tiger with a stone from his sling. Michal, in joy, picks up the stone, waves her hand in token of gratitude to David. They leave in opposite directions.

Scene IV.—Saul's Camp. Sentries are posted around Saul. An arrow, bearing Goliath's defiance, is fired into the camp by an Edomite traitor. Jonathan starts a search for the traitor who fired it. The traitor is brought in after the search. On his person is found the rest of the paper on which the defiance was written, around an arrow. Saul is furious and attempts to slay him. His madness is quelled by David's harp playing. Saul appeals to his soldiers to free him from Goliath. They all say: "No one can fight the Giant." David volunteers to go. Saul gives his consent. David hurls a stone which slays Goliath and returns to Saul's camp and places the head of Goliath at Saul's feet.

Scene V.—King Saul's Palace. Saul's daughters discovered at work. Jonathan and Phalti enter. Phalti is in love with Michal, but she declines his suit. Saul enters and quarrels on account of her love for David. Tells Saul that David has again returned victorious. Saul refuses to see him. David enters, sees the empty throne, in despair. Jonathan promises to get his father (Saul) to see him. Love scene between Michal and David. David shows her the withered rose she gave him two years before. Saul enters to receive David and asks him what more victories he wants. "My throne?" David says: "No; all I want is your daughter, Michal." His eldest daughter objects, but Saul says she will be married to Phalti. David appeals to his soldiers. Saul seizes a javelin, attempts to stab David, but kills the waiting maid David is furious; renounces Saul and leaves.

Scene VI.—Saul Consults the Witch of Endor. The spirit of Samuel appears and tells Saul: "Tomorrow, thou and thy sons shall be with me."

Saul enters the yard outside of the Palace, badly wounded. Jonathan's dead body is brought in. Both are carried into the house. Phalti enters, shouting the return of David. David is again victorious and embraces Michal. A priest comes to the head of the stairs and says: "Saul is dead; who shall be your King?" The populace and soldiers cry "David." David is crowned King of Israel. Length, 1,000 feet.

Kalem Films

LENGTH 825 FEET

Released, March 5, 1909.

"The Old Soldier's Story" is a film which we can confidently claim to be one of the very best of it's kind ever made. The story is told from the Southern point of view and is full of pathos, humor and excitement.

Our lecture tells the story in dialect. Sent to all applicants without charge.

KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.
Wholesale and Retail
Sterecopticon and Lantern Slides
56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

CALEHUFF
A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION
Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.
LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set
N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

NEW SLIDES
For the Following Songs
JUST OUT
Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

Money for you. In towns without electric service
Our Cylinders of Gas
make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING
ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

Moving Picture Printing for Passion Play
HENNEGAN & CO.
127 E. 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

Latest Song Slides Out
"Take Me to Moving Pictures"
"Mansion of Millionaires"
"When the Leaves Turn to Golden"
"In the Bright Moonlight"
"My Irish Mary"
"Little Black Boy"
"A Fire Lad in Blue"
AT $5 PER SET

HARSTN & CO.
Established 1897
138 E. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.
NEVER CLOSED

Army Auction Bargains
Tents - $1.90 up | Old Pistols - - $.50 up
Shoes - 1.25 " | Officers' Swords, new 1.75 "
ARMY SADDLES 3.00 " | Cavalry Sabres - - 1.50 "
" Bridles - 1.00 " | UNIFORMS 1.25 up
" Leggins, pr. .15 " | 7 Shot Carbine 3.50
U. S. SPRINGFIELD B-L RIFLES $1.79
Blank or Ball Cartridge, 35 cents box of 20.
1907 MILITARY CATALOGUE 260 large pages, thousands of beautiful illustrations—with 1909 supplement, wholesale and retail prices. Mailed for 15 cents stamps.
15 ACRES GOV'T. AUCTION GOODS.
FRANCIS BANNERMAN, 501 Broadway, NEW YORK

LATEST FILMS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 14—A Rural Elopement (Dramatic).....546 ft.
Jan —The Sacrifice (Comedy).....438 ft.
Jan. 18—The Criminal Hypnotist (Dramatic).....626 ft.
Jan. 18—Those Boys! (Comedy).....342 ft.
Jan 21—Mr. Jones Has a Card Party (Comedy)....583 ft.
Jan. 21—The Fascinating Mrs. Francis (Comedy)....417 ft.
Jan 25—The Welcome Burglar (Dramatic).....790 ft.
Jan. 25—Those Awful Hats (Comedy).....185 ft.
Jan. 28—The Cord of Life (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Feb. 1—The Girls and Daddy (Dramatic).....901 ft.
Feb. 4—The Brahma Diamond (Dramatic).....1036 ft.
Feb. 8—A Wreath in Time (Comedy).....558 ft.
Feb. 8—Edgar Allen Poe (Dramatic).....450 ft.
Feb. 15—The Curtain Pole (Comedy).....765 ft.
Feb. 15—His Ward's Love (Dramatic).....235 ft.
Feb. 18—The Hindoo Dagger (Dramatic).....583 ft.
Feb. 18—The Joneses Have Amateur Theatricals (C).400 ft.
Feb. 22—The Politician's Love Story.....526 ft.
Feb. 22—The Golden Louis.....474 ft.
Feb 25—At the Altar.....972 ft.
Mar. 1—His Wife's Mother (Comedy).....523 ft.
Mar 1—The Prussian Spy (Dramatic).....465 ft.
Mar. 4—A Fool's Revenge (Dramatic).....1000 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Jan. 1—A Persistent Suitor (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 5—Under Northern Skies (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 8—The Worm Will Turn (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 12—Where Is My Wandering Boy To-night? (Dramatic) .....900 ft.
Jan. 15—Drawing the Color Line (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 19—Pagan and Christian (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 22—A Burglar Cupid (Comedy).....850 ft.
Jan. 26—A Romance of Old Madrid (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Feb. 2—The Origin of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata 900 ft.
Feb. 9—A Bachelor's Supper (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 12—The Saleslady's Matinee Idol (Comedy)....900 ft.
Feb. 16—A Daughter of the Sun (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 19—The Uplifting of Mr. Barker (Comedy)..900 ft.
Feb. 23—The Landlady's Portrait (Comedy).....585 ft.
Feb. 23—The Janitor's Bottle (Comedy).....405 ft.
Feb. 26—Left Out (Dramatic).....900 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Jan. 6—The Neighbors' Kids (Comedy).....550 ft.
Jan. 20—Old Curiosity Shop (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 27—Too Much Dog Biscuit (Comedy).....400 ft.
Jan. 27—A Cure for Gout (Comedy).....540 ft.
Jan. 29—A Modest Young Man (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 5—Adventures of an Old Flirt (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 3—The Musician's Love Story (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 24—The Tell-tale Blotter (Dramatic).....
Mar. 3—Shanghaied (Dramatic).....1000 ft.

GAUMONT.
George Kleine.

Feb. 9—The Miner's Will (Gaumont).....482 ft.
Feb. 9—A Sportive Puppet (Gaumont).....403 ft.
Feb. 13—Jones Has Bought a Phonograph (Gaumont).296 ft.
Feb. 13—The Ambassador's Despatch Case (Gaum't).624 ft.
Feb. 15-20—A Strong Draught (Gaumont).....380 ft.
Feb. 15-20—Grandfather (Gaumont).....614 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The Chinamen (Gaumont).....387 ft.
Feb. 15-20—Bernard Palissy (Gaumont).....444 ft.
Feb. 23—An Obstinate Umbrella (Comedy).....530 ft.
Feb. 23—Some Milk for Baby (Comedy).....430 ft.
Feb. 27—The Prince and the Dwarf (Melo.).....707 ft.
Feb. 27—The Foxy Husband (Comedy).....253 ft:
Mar. 2—The Piano Teacher (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Mar. 6—In Sore Straights (Dramatic).....522 ft.
Mar. 6—Walking on His Toes (Comedy .....406 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Jan. 13—Life in Russia (Scenic).....331 ft.
Jan. 13—Jim Smith (Comedy).....312 ft.
Jan. 13—The Stepmother (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Jan. 20—Desert Life (Scenic).....377 ft.
Jan. 20—Balloon Races (Scenic).....295 ft.
Jan. 20—The Gnomes (Dramatic).....436 ft.
Jan. 27—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.
Jan. 27—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 27—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Educational).....1415 ft.
Feb. 6—Badger Hunt (Educational).....436 ft.
Feb. 6—Wild Man of Borneo (Comedy).....433 ft.
Jan. 27—Desert Life (Comedy).....380 ft.
Feb. 3—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Dramatic).....415 ft.
Feb. 3—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Feb. 3—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.
Feb. 19—James and Catherine.....450 ft.
Feb. 19—The Barber's Christening.....540 ft.
Feb. 26—Sherlock Holmes (2).....680 ft.
Feb. 17—The Caliph's Adventures.....564 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Jan. 8—A Florida Feud (Dramatic)..... ft.
Jan. 15—The Sponge Fishers of Cuba (Educational).965 ft.
Jan. 22—The Girl At the Old Mill (Dramatic).....
Jan. 29—The Octoroon (Dramatic)..... ft.
Feb. 5—The Detectives (Dramatic).....800 ft.
Feb. 12—The High Diver (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 19—Sporting Days in the South; or, The Making of a Champion (Dramatic).....940 ft.
Feb. 26—The New Minister.....865 ft.
Mar 5—The Old Soldier's Story (Dramatic).....

LUBIN.

Jan. 25—A Suit Case (Comedy).....615 ft.
Jan. 25—Who Stole Jones' Wood? (Comedy).....270 ft.
Jan. 28—The New Mirror (Serio-Dramatic).....480 ft.
Jan. 28—Love Germs (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 1—Aunt Emmy's Scrap Book (Dramatic).....865 ft.
Feb. 4—The Blind Musician (Dramatic).....480 ft.
Feb. 4—Willie's Water Sprinkler (Comedy).....340 ft.
Feb. 15—The Silver Dollar (Comedy).....475 ft.
Feb. 15—The Unlucky Horseshoe (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 18—A Broken Heart (Dramatic).....530 ft.
Feb. 18—The Pass Key (Comedy).....415 ft.
Feb. 22—The New Governess (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 25—Love Me, Love My Dog (Comedy).....650 ft.
Feb. 25—A Game of Chess (Comedy).....290 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Jan. 25—Sammy Celebrates (Comedy).....354 ft.
Jan. 27—Calling Day (Comedy).....469 ft.
Jan. 27—Nic Carter's Double (Comedy).....469 ft.
Jan. 29—Vampires of the Coast (Dramatic).....590 ft.
Jan. 29—A Put Up Job (Comedy).....348 ft.
Jan. 30—Saved by His Dog (Dramatic).....512 ft.
Jan. 30—On the Zambesi (Scenic).....328 ft.
Feb. 1—A Village Quarrel (Dramatic).....466 ft.
Feb. 1—The Two Bandboxes (Comedy).....216 ft.
Feb. 1—A Sure 'Nuff Tumbler (Comedy).....292 ft.
Feb. 3—Incriminating Evidence (Dramatic).....1160 ft.
Feb. 5—Choosing a Life Partner (Comedy).....689 ft.
Feb. 5—He Can Imitate Anything (Comedy).....295 ft.
Feb. 6—Vulture Hunting in Africa (Scenic).....597 ft.
Feb. 6—Why They Fell Out (Comedy).....387 ft.
Feb. 8—Les Ricochets (Scenic).....246 ft.
Feb. 8—Women Chauffeurs (Comedy).....311 ft.
Feb. 8—Buster's Revenge (Comedy).....344 ft.
Feb. 10—Charlotte Corday (Tragic).....787 ft.
Feb. 10—Adventures of a Bag of Coal (Comedy)....203 ft.
Feb. 12—Bess and Her Goose (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 12—The Laplanders (Educational).....462 ft.
Feb. 13—The Brazilian's Ring (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 13—They Lead the Cops a Chase (Comedy)....410 ft.
Feb. 15—The Hand (Serio-Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 17—The Assassination of the Duke of Guise (Dramatic) .....853 ft.
Feb. 19—His First Flight (Comedy).....397 ft.
Feb. 19—Choice of Weapons (Comedy).....315 ft.
Feb. 19—How Mother-in-Law Got Even (Comedy)...197 ft.
Feb. 20—Exacting Father-in-Law (Comedy).....423 ft.
Feb. 20—Now I'm Here, I'll Stay (Comedy).....453 ft.
Feb. 22—The Miser (Dramatic).....519 ft.
Feb. 22—Grand Canal, Venice (Scenic).....410 ft.
Feb. 24—What a Uniform Will Do (Comedy).....495 ft.
Feb. 24—A Little Coquette (Serio-Dramatic).....367 ft.
Feb. 26—The Jolly Trio's Dream (Comedy).....417 ft.
Feb. 26—Mr. Jonah Gets a Little Dust in His Eyes (Comedy).....184 ft.
Feb. 26—Topsy-Turvy (Comedy).....318 ft.
Feb. 27—Hypnotic Subject (Comedy).....479 ft.
Feb. 27—Florrie's Birthday (Comedy).....433 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Jan. 14—In Old Arizona (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....
Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....950 ft.
Jan. 28—The Prairie Town Romance (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 4—Stirring Days in Old Virginia (Historical).1000 ft.
Feb. 18—King of the Ring (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Feb. —On the Warpath.....1000 ft.
Feb. 25—The Skipper's Daughters (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Mar. 2—With Taft in Panama (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Mar. 4—The Mad Miner (Dramatic).....

URBAN-ECLIPSE.
George Kleine.

Feb. 10—The Double's Fate (Urban-Eclipse).....430 ft.
Feb. 10—Following Mother's Footsteps (Urban-Eclipse) .....475 ft.
Feb. 15-20—Outwitted (Urban).....463 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The American Fleet at Sydney, New South Wales (Urban).....190 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The Hand of a Wizard (Urban).....374 ft.
Feb. 24—Joel's Wedding (Drama).....569 ft.
Feb. 24—Polka on Brain (Comedy).....445 ft.
Mar. 3—The Sailor's Belt (Dramatic).....483 ft.
Mar. 3—An Embarrassing Present (Comedy).....410 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 5—The Bride of Lammermoor (Tragic).....540 ft.
Jan. 5—The Painting (Pathetic).....430 ft.
Jan. 9—A Telepathic Warning (Dramatic).....675 ft.
Jan. 9—He Went to See the Devil Play (Comedy).295 ft.
Jan. 12—The Heroine of the Forge (Dramatic)....315 ft.
Jan. 12—The Castaways (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Jan. 16—The Two Sons (Dramatic).....587 ft.
Jan. 16—The Bride of Tabaiva (Dramatic).....380 ft.
Jan. 19—Ruy Blas (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 23—A Case of Spirits (Comedy).....500 ft.
Jan. 26—The Treasure (Comedy).....464 ft.
Jan. 30—Cleopatra's Lover (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Feb. 2—The Deacon's Love Letter (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Feb. 2—The Marathon Race (Serio-Dramatic).....585 ft.
Feb. 6—Virginius (Dramatic).....955 ft.
Feb. 9—Jessie, the Stolen Child (Dramatic).....560 ft.
Feb. 9—A Clever Trick (Comedy).....345 ft.
Feb. 13—An Irish Hero (Dramatic).....735 ft.
Feb. 13—Lost in a Folding Bed (Comedy).....247 ft.
Feb. 16—The Honor of the Slums (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Feb. 16—How the Kids Got Even (Comedy).....325 ft.
Feb. 20—"C. Q. D." (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 23—The Poor Musician (Dramatic).....652 ft.
Feb. 23—Perpetual Proposals (Comedy).....296 ft.
Feb. 27—Saul and David (Dramatic).....1000 ft.

LATEST SONG SLIDES.

A. L. SIMPSON.
113 W. 132nd Street, New York.

Sunburnt Salome.
Make a Noise Like a Hoop and Roll Along.
When Darling Bess Whispered—Yes.
Lecturettes on:
Our Navy.
Skyscrapers of New York.

THE PREMO COMPANY,
1851 Germantown Ave., Phila., Pa.

I Could Learn to Love You.
I Lost My Heart When I Saw Your Eyes.
Let Me Call You Sweetheart Once Again.
When the Robin Sings Again.
There's a Fleet On the Sea.
Twilight Down in Dixie.
Your Picture Says "Remember."
It's Nice to Be Loved By Someone.
As in Days of Old, Dear Heart.
If You Must Love Someone, Won't You Please Love Me.
Would You Like to Take a Walk with Me?
I Don't Want Another Sister.
I Love You for Yourself Alone.
I'm Going to Tell On You.
When You Know that the Girl Loves You.
The Old Wedding Ring.
Tell Me the Old, Old Story.
When the Dew Is On the Clover in Kildare.
Some Day Will Be Too Late.

DEWITT C. WHEELER.
120 W. 31st Street, New York.

Why Doesn't Santa Claus Go Next Door?
Smiling Star.
Don't Take Me Home.
Shine On, Harvest Moon.
Promise.
Somebody's Heart.
Honey Dear.
I'd Like to Be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You.
Witching Hour.
Nearest and Dearest.
When the Sun Goes Down to Rest Behind the Hill.
Whisper My Name in Your Dreams.
When the Snowflakes Crown the Hilltops.
There Is Nothing in the World Like Love.
I'm Glad I'm Married.
What Is Life to Me?
I Used to Be Afraid to Come Home in the Dark.
To the End of the World with You.
Honeyland.
Say, Do You Love Me, Dear?

NEW TRAVELOGUES.
THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY,
224 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass

Salmon Fishing on the Columbia River, Oregon.
A Little Bit of Everywhere.
A Journey to New Zealand.
U. S. Coast Artillery at Practice.
Views in and Around Copenhagen, Denmark.
Life in Turkey.
Evangeline Land.
Santa Barbara, California.
The Crab Industry on the Oder River, Germany.
Flags and Coats-of-Arms of All Nations.
Wild Animals.
Wild Birds.
California's Infant Industries, Olive.
Scenes in Germany.
A Sunday in London, England.
As They Live on the Russian Steppe.

HARSTN & CO.,
138 E. 14th St., New York.

Take Me to Moving Pictures.
Love Spells Trouble to Me.
Mansion of Millionaires.
You Are the Girl for Me.
Flag of Green.
Don't Take Me Home.
When the Leaves Have Turned to Golden.
My Yankee Land.
In the Bright Moonlight.
Growing and Ostrich Farming.
Fire Lad in Blue.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue - - - New York City

Licensed Manufacturers and Importers of Films.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE & BIOGRAPH COMPANY
EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY
ESSANAY FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
KALEM COMPANY
LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY
PATHE FRERES
SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY
VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA
GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed Manufacturers of Moving Picture Machines.

AMERICAN MOVING PICTURE MACHINE COMPANY
ARMAT MOVING PICTURE MACHIN COMPANY
EDENGRAPH MANUFACTURING COMPANY
EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL COMPANY
LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY
PATHE FRERES
NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY
GEORGE K. SPOOR COMPANY
VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA
GAUMONT COMPANY

LICENSED EXCHANGES

The following exchanges have been licensed, and at the present time are the only Exchanges that are authorized to handle licensed films:

Actograph Company, 50 Union Square, New York City.
Actograph Company, Troy, N. Y.
Alamo Film Exchange, 405 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Alamo Film Exchange, 304 Conroy Building, San Antonio, Tex.
American Film Exchange, 645 Wabash Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
American Film Service, 125 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.
American Film Service, 158 North Main street, Memphis, Tenn.
American Vitagraph Company, 116 Nassau street, New York, N. Y.
George Breck, 70 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo Film Exchange, 13½ Genesee street, Buffalo, N. Y.
C. A. Calehuff, Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Calumet Film Exchange, Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline & Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Eugene Cline, 268 South State street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Cline Film Exchange, 727 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.
Colorado Film Exchange Company, 320 Charles Building, Denver, Colo.
Columbia Film Exchange, 414 Ferguson Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Gayety Theater Building, St. Louis, Mo.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Crawford Theater, El Paso, Tex.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Hopkins Theater, Louisville, Ky.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Shubert Theater, New Orleans, La.
Harry Davis, 347 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Harry Davis, Buffalo, N. Y.
Harry Davis, 1311 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Denver Film Exchange, 713 Lincoln avenue, Denver, Colo.
Dixie Film Company, 620 Commercial place, New Orleans, La.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 104-5 Bakewell Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 235 Monticello Arcade Building, Norfolk, Va.
Edison Display Co., 1116 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash.
Edison Display Co., 165½ Fourth street, Portland, Ore.
Electric Theater Supply Co., 47 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Greater New York Film Rental Co., 24 Union Square, New York City.
C. J. Hite Company, Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill.
Howard Moving Picture Co., 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Imperial Film Exchange, 44 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City.
Imperial Film Exchange, 299 River street, Troy, N. Y.
Imperial Film Exchange, 803 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Imported Film & Supply Co., 708 Union street, New Orleans, La.
Kent Film Service, 218 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Kleine Optical Company, 2008½ Third avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Kleine Optical Company, 657 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Kleine Optical Company, 52 State street, Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Company, 302 Boston Building, Denver, Colo.
Kleine Optical Company, 229 Commercial Building, Des Moines, Ia.
Kleine Optical Company, 214 Traction Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Kleine Optical Co. of California, 369 Pacific Electric Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Kleine Optical Company, 662 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Company, 309 Melhorn Building, Seattle, Wash.
Kleine Optical Company of Missouri, 523 Commercial Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Laemmle Film Service, 196 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service, Main and Sixth streets, Evansville, Ind.
Laemmle Film Service, 78 South Front street, Memphis, Tenn.
Laemmle Film Service, 1121-23 Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service, 800 Brandeis Block, Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service, 419-20 Marquam Grand Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service, 151 Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 314 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
H. Lieber Co., 24 West Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lubin Film Service, 21 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Lubin Film Service, 510 Paul-Gale-Greenwood Building, Norfolk, Va.
Lubin Film Service, 140 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 82 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
Miles Bros., Inc., 259 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Miles Bros., Inc., Washington and Dover streets, Boston, Mass.
Miles Bros., Inc., 790 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Mitchell Film Exchange, 120½ Main street, Little Rock, Ark.
Monarch Film Exchange, 201 Thompson Building, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Montana Film Exchange, 41 North Main street, Butte, Mont.
Morton Film Exchange, 107 Sixth street, Portland, Ore.
National Film Company, 100 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., Spokane, Wash.
Novelty Moving Picture Co., 418 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Broad street, Columbus, Ohio.
Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.
People's Film Exchange, 126 University place, New York City.
Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 121 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Wilkesbarre, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 501-503 Central Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Neave Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 421 Walnut street, Des Moines, Ia.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 60-62 Brownell Block, Lincoln, Neb.
Schiller Film Exchange, 103 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Southern Film Exchange, 1822 Fourth avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Southern Film Exchange, 148 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George K. Spoor & Co., 62 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.
Star Film Exchange, 120 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Standard Film Exchange, 79 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Superior Film Supply Co., 621 Nasby Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Swaab Film Service Co., 338 Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main street, East, Rochester, N. Y.
Tally's Film Exchange, 554 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Theater Film Supply Co., 202 South Tryon street, Charlotte, N. C.
Theater Film Supply Co., 2007 Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Theater Film Service Co., 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Theater Film Service Co., 1038 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal.
Trent & Wilson, 63 East Third street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
20th Century Optiscope Co., Shukert Building, Kansas City, Mo.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 408 Eccles Building, Ogden, Utah.
Turner & Dahnken, 1650 Ellis street, San Francisco, Cal.
Twin City Calcium and Stereopticon Co., 709 Hennepin ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
United Film Exchange, 717 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
U. S. Film Exchange, 132 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Vaudette Film Exchange Co., 103 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich.
P. L. Waters, 41 East Twenty-first street, New York City.
Alfred Weiss' Film Exchange, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City.
Western Film Exchange, 949 Century Building, St. Louis Mo.
Western Film Exchange, 307 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange, 201 Miners' Bank Building, Joplin, Mo.
Wonderland Film Exchange, Seventh street and Liberty ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
Wheelan-Loper Film Co., 339 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Yale Film Renting Co., 622 Main street, Kansas City, Mo.

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

NEXT ISSUES

Released Week of March 1st

THE BLIND FOUNDLING
Or, ALONE IN THE WORLD
Dramatic
Length, about 570 Feet

THE FALSE SUPERINTENDENT
Comedy
Length, about 540 Feet

SHERLOCK HOLMES III
The Detective's Adventure in the Gas Cellar
Length, 890 Feet

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Licensee under the Biograph Patents. All purchasers and users of our Film will be protected by the American Mutoscope & Biograph Company

THAT LECTURETTES

have come to stay is proved by the amount of business we are doing, so be up-to-date and put them in your show before your rival gets wise. We are producing consisting of 12 slides and lecture.

FOUR NEW SETS A WEEK

THIS WEEK
TOURIST'S REFLECTIONS
BRITISH ISLES
FAMOUS STATUES AND PAINTINGS
ITALY

SPECIAL FOR THE LENTEN SEASON
JERUSALEM AND THE HOLY LANDS

Still filing orders for Life of Washington
Our Navy
London
Paris
Germany
Rome

ONE PRICE TO ALL
$1.50 per set
Including Lecture

We Do Not Rent Lecturettes

GUNBY BROS.,
10 East Fourteenth Street New York
P. S.—Send Money Order. Credit impossible at these prices.

STILL IN THE RING

We are still Independent and are going to be. We intend to own and have some small say how we will run our own business.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

Liberty Film Exchange
Telephone Walnut 3956
1319 Market Street - Philadelphia, Pa.
Formerly of Johnstown, Pa. No connection with any other house

ANTI-TRUST FILM CO.

NO LICENSE NO AGREEMENTS

Moving Picture Machines Sold Without Restrictions

Moving Picture Films for Rent to Everybody

The Following Manufacturers Don't Ask You To Pay License

Italian Cines
Williamson
Great Northern
Eclair
Walterdaw
London Cinematograph Co.
Deutsche Mutoscope
Fritz Gilics
Clarendon
Lux
Ambrosio
Rossi
Hepworth
Cricks & Martin
R. W. Paul
Graphic Cinematograph
Berliner Film Co.
Precision Film Co.
Safety Bioscope
Star Film Co.
Sheffield
Walter Tyler
British Colonial
Wrench
Alfred Duskes
Inter-National
Heinrich Erneman
Kineto
Kamm Co.
Rosie Film Co.

FILMS FOR RENT

Films shipped to any point in the United States. Large stock of Machines and Films.

WE ARE INDEPENDENT. Come and be Independent with Us. NOW.

AGENTS WANTED. Men who control circuits of theatres. Call on Us at once EXHIBITORS ORGANIZE. And send a representative to our office at once. Get our proposition. Machines Bought, Sold and Exchanged. Write, Telephone or Telegraph to Us NOW.

ANTI-TRUST FILM CO.

79 So. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

SUCCESSFUL MANAGERS USE

SWANSON PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE

OUR astounding success has come through our renters' successes, due not only tothe high quality of film service we render, but to the fact of our giving our renters' needs, individuality, the most careful attention and co-operating with them in every way possible.

There are scores of successful theatres to which we can cite you as evidence of what Swanson Personal Attention Service will do for your theatre. Theatres that are receiving the best of service, but for some reason were not doing the amount of business that could be expected. This was due to the fact that the exchange from whom they were renting was indifferent to the particular need of each individual customer. Various localities require different styles of service, and having made a study of these various conditions we are, therefore, in position to select programs best suited to your patronage.

We have a competent organization, the individual members of which have drilled into them two points: First, RESULTS; Second, PERSONAL ATTENTION SERVICE. Not only this, but our organization consists of men with experience, each in his particular line, and many times the exhibitor finds it to his advantage to be able to write and secure from his rental exchange "hard-headed" and sound advice which it is to his advantage to use. This kind of advice can be secured from us, practical and successful amusement promoters.

SWANSON'S CURTAINYLINE

We will sell you for $3.00 enough curtainyline to cover 150 square feet, and this one coating will last forever. If you will paint your curtain with this preparation we will guarantee that it will be fireproof and that the lights and shadows will stand out and that the figures in the picture will have that "live" appearance. SEND FOR SPECIAL CIRCULAR NO. 357.

NON-BREAKABLE CONDENSERS

of the best quartz glass. Not a cheap cast glass of a greenish hue, but a pure white, high class, ground lense of the best quality. Any focal length. Each $2.00, or a pair for $3.00.

LET US CHANGE YOUR EDISON TWO-PIN MOVEMENT TO ONE-PIN

and we will guarantee that it will reduce the flicker in your picture 75 per cent. or more. We will do it for $20.00. Write for booklet giving full information and stating the advantages in having this change made.

DOES YOUR MACHINE NEED REPAIRING OR ADJUSTING?

We maintain the largest and most complete Moving Picture Machine shop in the country and are in a position to turn out rush orders. We allow a discount of 10 per cent. from the manufacturers' list price on all repair parts of the Edison and Power machines.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake Street, Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO., 200-202-204 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO., Karbach Building, Omaha, Nebr.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON FILM CO., 1222 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Furnishing a Film Service That Is Better Than Seems Necessary

Vol. 4.. No. 10 March 6, 1909 Price. 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

Published Weekly by THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO., 125 E. 23d ST., NEW YORK

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS

ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT

Write for Samples and Full Information

THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS

59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS are learning that It Pays to Investigate and that

The Motiograph is truly A Wonderful Machine

FOR MOTION PICTURES AND STEROPTICON VIEWS

and that where there's Perfect Pictures there's A Motiograph in the Operator's Booth.

Chicago, Boston, New York and Frisco approved.

It projects Wonderfully Brilliant, Steady and Flickerless Pictures and is absolutely fireproof.

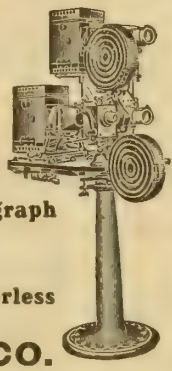
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.



The Motiograph is Licensed

under the patents of the

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.
OF NEW YORK.

The Rheostato Current Saver, saves 60 to 75 per cent. on Electric Bills.

The Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit is the only satisfactory substitute for Electric Light.

Our Catalog tells a lot of interesting things.

WRITE FOR IT;

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

THE EAGLE FILM EXCHANGE

Will give you an Exclusive Service. We handle nothing but new goods—no junk. We are prepared to give you the following makes of film: Great Northern, Eclair, Cines, Comerio, Melies, Williamson, etc.

143 N. 8th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Branch: Mauch Chunk, Pa. Oscar Bittner, Mgr.

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST
J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

FOR SALE

A licensed Moving Picture business. On account of other business coming on I will sell cheap. Good location. Address, "G" care of General Delivery

Royersford, Pa.

Situation Wanted

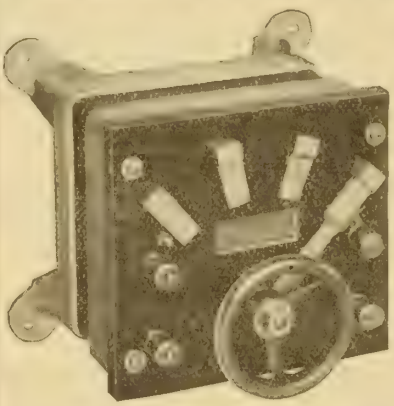
As manager. Intelligent married man of 25 years. Acquainted with show business, and machines. Excellent singer, high executive ability. Credentials. Address, C.W. J.

Care of MOVING PICTURE WORLD
125 East 23d Street - New York

Moving Picture Show For Sale.

Town 7,000. No competition; good business. ED. T. JENISON, Brenham, Texas.

Economy Lamp Regulators



Saves from 60 to 75 per cent. on current consumed.

Adjustable 90 to 125 volts. Made also for 200 to 250 volts. Weight, 80 pounds, boxed. Operator can increase or decrease light during show. This cannot be done with any other machine. Write for full information and prices.

For Alternating Current Only

ELECTRIC APPLIANCE CO.

Chicago San Francisco Dallas New Orleans

The Best Money-Making Attraction

BATTLING NELSON.

In the Moving Picture Line To-Day
THE SEPTEMBER 9, 1908
NELSON-GANS FIGHT PICTURES
OUR PRICES FOR USE OF A SET OF THESE PICTURES ARE:
$20.00 A DAY, $45.00 FOR THREE DAYS, $75.00 A WEEK.

Stop for a moment and consider these extraordinarily low prices for 4,000 feet of an attraction of world-wide interest and you will at once realize that these fight pictures are the best money getter in the moving picture field now.

The film is put up in four reels of about 1.000 feet each, and shows every detail of this wonderful pugilistic battle for the lightweight championship of the world, from the training quarters of the fighters, to the knockout of Gans in the twenty-first round.

Photographically, the pictures are perfect; they are so realistic that you imagine yourself at the ring-side in Coffroth's Mission Street Arena, at Colma, California.

If you want a show that will please your patrons, play to capacity and get the money at every performance, book these fight pictures at once. Send for contract blank now. Address

CHICAGO FILM EXCHANGE
Nelson-Gans Fight Department
42-50 JACKSON BOULEVARD - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

Branch Offices: Omaha, Neb. Washington, D. C. Denver, Colo. Nashvill, Tenn. Salt Lake City, Utah Atlanta, Ga.

JOE GANS.

YOUR PROFITS WILL INCREASE BY KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH SELIG

Selig's Record—Packed Houses Always

Don't miss this great melodrama COMING

"The Ironworker"

Released March 11th. Order from your nearest Film Exchange, they all rent Selig's Films.

The SELIG POLYSCOPE CO., 45-47-49 E. Randolph St., Chicago, U. S. A.

BIOGRAPH FILMS

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED MARCH 8, 1909

The Roue's Heart

A beautiful romance of a blind sculptress, whose beauty and purity inspires the love of a carefree Roue who experiences for the girl an affection hitherto unfelt by him. The subject while intensely interesting is most elaborately staged, and enacted with a compelling reserve that lends a subtle charm to the story.

LENGTH 759 FEET

The Wooden Leg

Strange as it may seem this mechanical and scientific substitute for nature's gifts, a wooden leg, plays an important and we may say indispensable part in a very pretty love story.

LENGTH 240 FEET

RELEASED MARCH 11, 1909

The Salvation Army Lass

A beautiful story of the battle between good and evil.

This film was taken under most unique auspices, as the Biograph Company received during its production the hearty co-operation of the officers of the Salvation Army of New York City, so that the several scenes are in strict accord with the Army's form of ceremony. The story itself contains one of the most beautiful, convincing and powerful sermons ever depicted and goes far to emphasize the charitable work of that organization among the poor to ameliorate their material as well as spiritual wants. A strong point in the subject is that it depicts real life and real people.

LENGTH 926 FEET

Release days of Biograph Subjects—MONDAY and THURSDAY

Get on Our Mail List and Keep Posted. Write for Our Descriptive Circulars

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

OPERA CHAIRS

For Moving Picture Theatres

The best line made for the least money. Chairs carried in stock and immediate shipment guaranteed. The finest Moving Picture Theatres in the country are seated with our chairs, and with invariable satisfaction. Seating for Moving Picture and Vaudeville Theatres our specialty, and that explains why we lead all others. Send for catalogue and prices. You will be interested.

IMPERIAL SEATING CO.

Chicago Opera House Building

CHICAGO - - ILLINOIS

NOW READY

Rush in Your Order for Service.

Independent Film Service for particular people. We have better facilities for handling your business than any concern in the West. Machines, tickets, carbons, and everything the exhibitor needs. Write for terms.

INDEPENDENT FILM & SUPPLY CO. Inc.

216 Balboa Bldg., 2d and Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SALE—20 reels film—all titled—good condition at $10 per reel and 50 reels at $15 per reel. 50,000 San Francisco post cards $1.50 per M. Slot machines at one-half price. Mayer Silverman, 713 Fulton Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

GAUMONT FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

GAUMONT SUBJECT.

"THE BLACKSMITH'S BRIDE"

Drama. Approx. Length, 720 ft.

RELEASE, TUESDAY MARCH 9, 1909.

A young girl forced to leave her home is taken in by a neighbor and the two become fast friends.

The ingratitude of mankind is soon apparent, and the new friend seeks to and succeeds in diverting the love of her benefactress's fiance, a stalwart young blacksmith. Fate, however, intervenes, and shortly after an accident at the shop causes the smith to lose his life. The young woman, now a mother, deserts her child and leaves for parts unknown. The little infant is found and cared for by the former sweetheart of its father.

As a sequel, we see the little child in company with its foster mother wend their way to the cemetery to decorate the grave of the parent.

Beautifully pathetic, well rendered and of excellent photographic detail.

GAUMONT SUBJECT.

"THE POSTAL CLERK"

Drama. Approx. Length, 292 ft.

RELEASE, TUESDAY MARCH 9, 1909.

This story portrays the subtle means of woman to accomplish her own ends in spite of the objections of man. A postal clerk having recently entered the ranks of the benedicts does not feel inclined to grant the wish of his wife for a diamond ring. This results in a conspiracy to arouse his jealousy. A letter is addressed to his wife and in his capacity as postal clerk the husband receives the letter. A scene is caused when the wife demands her mail, and when later the husband demands the privilege of reading the letter he finds the joke on him, surrenders and promptly makes the purchase desired.

GAUMONT SUBJECT.

"BUTTES CHAUMONT AFTER A SNOW STORM"

Scenic. Approx. Length, 282 ft.

RELEASE, SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1909.

A beautifully picturesque series of views of the Buttes Chaumont, a section of Paris. This subject is especially interesting as it is very unusual to experience a snow storm in Paris.

GAUMONT SUBJECT.

"THE IRRESOLUTE MAN"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 387 ft.

RELEASE, SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1909.

"As the wind bloweth the chaff" so the minds of men are constantly changing.

This series illustrates in a very amusing manner the actions of a man without strength of will. Scarcely has his mind come to a determination when he again resolves upon another course.

"THE SMOKING LAMP."

GAUMONT SUBJECT.

"THE SMOKING LAMP"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 324 ft.

RELEASE, SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1909.

A comedy certain to win unqualified approval. The principle character is a man of habits who is returning from a night's carousal. Without divesting himself of his apparel, he goes to sleep on his bed and soon gives a most vivid demonstration of the "s-n-a-k-e-s." The smoke from the lamp forms a frame for the visions portrayed.

Nothing vulgar or offensive, and of excellent quality.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

URBAN-ECLIPSE SUBJECT.

"SOUTH AMERICAN INDIANS"

Topical. Approx. Length, 288 ft.

RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1909.

A series of most picturesque views depicting life and custom of the South American Indians.

This subject will command attention of any audience because of its interesting and beautiful scenery.

URBAN-ECLIPSE SUBJECT.

"RIVALRY"

Drama. Approx. Length, 367 ft.

RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1909.

Many young lovers find considerable opposition to their courting. This story illustrates not only this opposition but the presence of a favored rival.

The restrictions of the parent weigh heavily upon the maid, but when the jealousy of the rival reaches its height a catastrophe is precipitated that forces the young lady to cast her lot with her lover, to the intense chagrin of her parent.

URBAN-ECLIPSE SUBJECT.

"MOTHER-IN-LAW'S DAY IN THE COUNTRY"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 350 ft.

RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1909.

This subject is chuck full of ludicrous incidents experienced in a little outing given in honor of the proverbially abused relative, mother-in-law. This latter dignitary is even pressed into service when the donkey refuses to pull the cart.

Sure to meet with the approval of the most fastidious.

GEORGE KLEINE

Importer of Gaumont and Urban-Eclipse Films

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Moving Picture World

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company,
125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.
Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

Vol. 4 MARCH 6 No. 10

Editorial.

Singing and Talking Pictures.

There are signs that the combination of the phonograph with the moving picture will receive great attention by the manufacturer in the near future, as it is evident that there is a public demand for an entertainment of this kind, which is already popular in England and continental Europe.

In another part of this number of the "World" we print a short description of the "Cinephone synchronizer," the invention of the Warwick Trading Company, which will soon be made commercial here. Much attention, indeed, is given to this question of synchronism both here and abroad, and upon the greater or less perfectability of this feature hinges the failure or success of the entertainment.

We have no hesitation in prophesying that before long hardly a moving picture theater in the country will be without the talking or singing phonograph as a part of its entertainment. We are so convinced of this that we propose to devote some part of our space week by week to recording what is being done towards rendering this combination of the phonograph and the moving picture easily practicable.

We believe that the Edison Company is experimenting in that direction. We have seen other literature bearing on the subject, which all points to the general adoption of some plan of utilizing this combination of the picture and the phonograph. We would recommend, first of all, the manufacturers to be alive to the situation, and the exhibitor to take every opportunity of giving the public what it is asking for—namely, the best synchronized system—as inferiority of quality in this respect is disastrous. Automatic means seems the only way, as the personal equation of a half-educated operator often leads to a fiasco. Nothing is so pathetic, and at the same time so ludicrous, as the picture going through one part of the act and the phonograph talking or singing the other. To our sorrow we have endured this many a time and oft.

Exhibitors' Associations.

It is indeed both encouraging and gratifying to learn that the exhibitors are organizing in various States and in the leading cities. Nothing but good can come from well-organized co-operation between the men who are the real dispensers of motion pictures to the public. We have advocated such organization and will continue to encourage any such movement that has for its object the good of the business in general.

In our editorial of December 25, 1907, we said:

> "A movement for organization to protect their own interests is on foot among the exhibitors in several cities. Co-operation is the logical solution of the difficulties which beset the exhibitor. . . . The exhibitor has much to gain and nothing to lose by association."

Commenting editorially on February 6 on the associations that had been formed, we said:

> "Just in so far as those associations promote the welfare of the moving picture industry as a whole do we wish them success. Whatever the inspiration, it cannot be a bad thing for the moving picture field to be organized; the constant meeting of exhibitors for the purpose of mutual counsel and help is certainly a thing to be encouraged."

A well-organized body of men is a power that is bound to be felt in any community. "In union there is strength." Who would be likely to object to this power? Who would suffer from its influence? Naturally, the wrong-doer. The wrong-doer may even be an exhibitor—someone whose mental make-up is so deficient that he cannot see beyond the day's box-office receipts. His methods of getting business and his treatment of the public may be such that he is doing untold injury to the business at large. Unmolested, he would continue to be an "undesirable." Taken in hand by his brother exhibitors, moral suasion might reform him, or influence brought to bear which would compel him to do business on the level.

Who else might object to this exercise of power? Possibly those film exchanges who, for economic reasons, do not purchase enough new film to satisfy their customers. Possibly film manufacturers whose products may not be up to the accepted standard of moral or technical quality. They, as a rule, pay little attention to isolated complaints, but they would sit up and take notice of any formal protest from an exhibitors' association.

Therefore, let the exhibitors organize in every locality and the secretaries of each organization keep in touch with each other through the "Moving Picture World." This would lead in time to the formation of a national organization and annual or semi-annual gatherings, where delegates from each local society could meet in conclave from all sections of the country to discuss matters pertaining to the advancement of the business.

Hastily formed associations have already done much good in combating drastic measures created by political officials, insurance directors, city councils and hostile social bodies. Oppressive measures are even now before the legislators of this and other States that can be thwarted, or at least modified, by concerted action. The enemy, from any and every quarter, would be less hostile if the army of exhibitors were properly organized.

On another page we quote from a lengthy interview with two exhibitors, who called at this office, representing the Pittsburg Exhibitors' Protective Association. It was a real pleasure to meet these gentlemen, and our opinion of exhibitors, as a class, goes up several pegs. These men, who were among the pioneer exhibitors in that section of the country, saw in co-operation a relief from certain evils which were threatening the business in Pittsburg, a city where the shows are very much congested, as many as thirteen being located within a radius of four squares in the business section and eight within the same radius in the residential section. Previous to the action taken by their organization, two or more exhibitors within a few doors of each other would be exhibiting the same subjects at the same time. Now they have effected an arrangement with the exchanges whereby similar subjects are shown in the theaters that are farthest apart; they have mutually agreed how many reels should constitute a show and expect to come to an agreement to change three times a week instead of daily, which will still further enable them to keep their programs distinct. All this tends to their own mutual advantage and the convenience of the public, who will therefore be more liberal in their patronage.

The delegates from the Pittsburg Association will visit other cities to gather ideas and discuss problems with the exhibitors' associations. We cordially invite the secretary of every exhibitors' association to send us their official address for publication, reports of meetings and any items of public interest. The "Moving Picture World" counts its readers among the exhibitors by the thousands and the policy of this paper is to co-operate with them in everything that will promote their interests and the general welfare of the business.

Some Advice to Film Renters.

We have recently received complaints from prominent exhibitors in various parts of the country as to the manner in which the film renters and exchanges are conducting their business. These complaints resolve themselves into a general charge that the renters or exchanges take little or no interest in the nature or quality of the films which they receive from the manufacturer to pass on to the exhibitor. The latter complains that he has practically no choice of subjects; that the renter in many cases does not even look at the film, and is, therefore, unaware of its quality or nature. He, in fact, is content to be a mere mechanical middleman, and for aught he cares the film might just as well be cloth or lumber or iron or any other article of merchandise that he orders of the manufacturer and either sells or leases to the consumer.

This is a state of affairs that manifestly calls for protest and alteration. The exhibitor is, after all, the servant of the public upon which he relies for his patronage and profit. It is wrong that he should be obliged to "buy a pig in a poke" and abide by the consequences, whatever they may be. The renter should be familiar with the technique and artistry of film subjects. He should be able to judge of their suitability for the audiences of certain theaters; he should gauge their effect upon people; in short, he should know just as much about the matter as either the manufacturer or the exhibitor. Were this always the case, friction between renters and exhibitors would never arise, and the renter would be in a position to exercise beneficial influence on the manufacturer. He would be able to tell him what sort of films were popular, and which were not. By that means, a more satisfactory state of affairs would prevail. We, therefore, make this special appeal to the renter to test and examine the films he receives for himself, and to get in closer touch with the exhibitor, instead of ignoring his reasonable demands. If this be done, we shall be taking another step towards the much desired betterment of the business, which can only be brought about by the intelligent co-operation of all concerned.

The Case for the Moving Picture.

By Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S.

(Reply to an article by C. H. Claudy in March "Photo Era.")

Ever since the early part of the year 1896, when I saw in London the fine moving pictures which Messrs. Lumiere, with true French spirit and enterprise, brought before a wondering public, I have never lost faith in the entertainment, educational and scientific value of the kinematic method of recording and exhibiting natural motion. Ever since the date named I have had a more or less intimate association with the moving picture; I have been the historian of the subject; I have done much technical work in connection with it; I have sat in judgment on, perhaps, as many moving pictures as any other man; I have assisted in the production of them, and, at the present moment, my interest in the matter is not only unabated but is, perhaps, as keen and as lively as that of anyone else in America.

All this being so, I took up with some interest an article in the "Photo Era" for March, by C. H. Claudy, entitled "The Case Against the Moving Picture." Your readers should know that Claudy is a clever photographer and writer, for whose work I have long entertained great respect. He is justly esteemed in the photographic world for the real value of what he says and does, consequently any article from his pen attracts attention and deserves notice.

The case which Mr. Claudy attempts to make out against the moving picture is a very weak one. If I may say so without intentional discourtesy to him, it is a "muckraking" case. He saw a certain film, illustrating how a married man flirted with a girl and deceived his wife; he saw another in which brutal treatment to an old man was meted out; and others of a "dog with a tin can tied to his tail"; "with blood and thunder"; "detectives"; "murder"; "battle"; "sudden death"; etc. He says that a moving picture of this sort is nothing less than a very live dime novel in a short and condensed but very spicy form, and proceeds to argue from his evidence that the effect upon the minds of those who witness this kind of entertainment is not elevating, to say the least of it. He also very fairly admits that there is good film and plenty of it.

Now, I and others of the "Moving Picture World" are entirely with Claudy in this matter. The "World," ever since its foundation, has deprecated the production and exhibition of unsuitable film; it is doing so this moment; so are many thousands of others who have the best interests of a popular and delightful form of entertainment at heart. All this being conceded, I challenge the wisdom and the common sense of Claudy and others in taking up an attitude of antagonism towards the moving picture. I would like to ask Mr. Claudy if no indecent and objectionable stationary photographs are ever made and circulated? I happen to know that there are. But, as an experienced photographic writer and editor, I never consider it prudent to come out in print and describe these productions, which are obtainable in any large city, with such minuteness as Claudy does this film of "The Unfaithful Husband," etc. My policy was and is always to deprecate the production of such things and to appeal to the better and higher instincts of human nature to bring about their suppression and disuse.

Claudy, and other writers, it seems, look for the bad side of the moving picture and give it injudicious prominence, forgetful of the fact that by such means they are likely to bring about the very object which they profess to condemn. With far too large a percentage of the community, "The sight to do ill deeds makes ill deeds done," and, sure enough, if you flay an indecent play, or book, or picture, or film enough in print, a section of the public will invariably want to see or read it Hence, I submit that Mr. Claudy's case against the moving picture instead of, as he professes to be his object, doing good, is likely to do harm. Had his article borne the same heading as that of this article; had he minimized the bad and exalted the good; had he set out to encourage the production of more artistic, more dramatic, better photographic films, he would have been more likely, in my humble opinion, to achieve his object, than by the means he has chosen to adopt. He says that until he can find a show which exhibits only good, educative, trick and harmless entertaining film, he will stay away from the moving picture theater, and keep his family away. Claudy, these last nine months I have gone to numerous moving picture theaters in New York City. There is not one of them that I have visited to which I would hesitate to a take a woman, a girl, or a child.

Unsuitable theaters may, and probably, exist; the best way to discourage them and put them out of business is to stay away from them. A healthy public opinion and an impartial press my be relied upon so to influence the minds of people that the exhibitions of which Mr. Claudy complains are not assured of any considerable longevity; it always was in the history of entertainments and it always will be. Thoughtless and irrational attacks, magnifying the bad and minimizing the good, are calculated to harm an honorable industry and excite the unworthy passions of the pruriently minded. It must be remembered that the moving picture is but a child in the world of entertainment, with all a child's weakness and defects. It must be handled like a child, corrected, improved and encouraged. The case is one which calls for kindly, sympathetic and wise treatment. Repressive or oppressive measures are never efficacious. They never are with the child; they won't be with the moving picture.

The moving picture field gives employment to hundreds of thousands in this country; it has millions and millions of capital embarked in it; daily and nightly the moving picture amuses millions of people. To come out, as Mr. Claudy does, and say that he cannot find good, educative, trick and harmless entertaining exhibitions argues either wilful blindness on his part or such an unfamiliarity with the subject that he has no qualifications at all for stating "The Case Against the Moving Picture." His unfortunate article will, however, have done much good if it proves to be the indirect means of convincing him and others that, in the words of Shakespeare, "There is some good in things evil." And the good in the present case far outweighs the evil, as Claudy and others can find out for themselves if they will only take the trouble to look for it.

MODERN METHODS IN MOVING PICTURE MAKING.

In addition to the series of articles for exhibitors and machine operators which we shall shortly commence, we have in preparation a series, written by expert authorities, on the subject of modern methods in moving picture making. These will be of the highest technical value. They will deal with Apparatus; The Selection and Rehearsing of the Subject; Staging, Lighting and Production; Outdoor Subjects; Exposure and Development of Negatives and Positives; Incorrect Exposure; Development Troubles; Time Development; Tinting; Toning Positives; Imperfect Definition, and many other subjects, constituting the series a complete guide to modern moving picture making.

OBSERVATIONS BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

If, as the Independents claim, the Motion Picture Patents Company would not be left a leg upon which to stand in a test case, I must say they are putting up an admirable bluff. But is it a bluff? During the past week the Patents Company served notice of cancellation of contract upon Wm. H. Swanson & Co. having exchanges in Chicago, Omaha and St. Louis. Swanson was a leader of the Film Service Association all last year and at its last annual meeting was elected its president. In picking for chastisement at the very start one of its most prominent licensees I think the Patents Company is showing considerable faith in its claims and position and a determination to carry out its policies that one does not find in a case of bluff. If the Swanson company were threatened with a suspension or cancellation I can readily see where the bluff argument might fit, or if the stroke was confined to the Philadelphia Film Exchange, of Philadelphia, which has received a similar notice, I can see where there might be room to say "it is a case of scare play." As matters stand I think it very much in order that the other licensees of the Patents Company take notice. I am not in a position to say just why the Swanson and Philadelphia concerns were selected for the first lesson. The reasons appear to be well guarded by the Patents people and it would not be fair to either of the accused to make any guesses at them or repeat some of the veiled remarks that have been made. I am disposed, for the present, to accept the statement of those interested in the Patents Company side that the accused violated their contracts by certain transactions, or failure to transact, as the case may be, and in the absence of sufficient reasons the notices of cancellation would not have been given. Mr. Swanson and the Philadelphia exchange people have been in New York since the notices were served on them. From what I am able to learn, their visits have caused no change in the situation. I did not have the good fortune to meet Mr. Swanson, but I understand that he is in a very unpleasant frame of mind. It is hard to believe that either of the accused would be foolhardy enough to commit any act that would endanger their standing with the Patents Company; and it is equally difficult to believe that the latter would cut off two of its best licensees without cause. But the Patents Company has acted in a decisive and unmistakable manner that has a powerful weight upon opinion. Perhaps later on the accused will get their side of the case and it may be shown that a mistake has been committed, but that will not remove the established fact that the Patents Company is determined to require every licensee to live up to his contract, regardless of all claims as to resources of the Independents.

* * *

Since the Swanson matter has become public I have heard the remark made that if the Patents Company is going to cut off all the licensees that violate contracts it won't be long before there will be no licensees. If this statement was not so generally applied it would command more attention. It is true that zealousness and temptation is making conditions hard for a great many of the licensees to resist straying from the narrow path, and I have information from reliable authority that other licensees than those about to be cut off are under strong suspicion; but I know a number of men holding licenses who are capable of standing by any contract they make and a general declaration of the kind I have heard made is an injustice to them.

* * *

I think some of the Independent publications are making a very silly campaign. One of them holds up to ridicule a recent advertisement of the Pittsburg Calcium Light Company by placing upon it a supposed humorous construction. A joke based upon vindictiveness is never enjoyed, even by those in whose interest it is sprung. To say that M. P. P. C. (the initials of the Motion Picture Patents Company) stand for "Modern Pocket Picking Coterie" may appear humorous to some, but it really isn't so. It is venomous, and indulgence in venom helps no cause.

It was stated recently that the city of Philadelphia is one of the strongholds of the Independents. I visited the city recently, but I failed to confirm the report. In making inquiry among the film manufacturers of that city and New York I learned that not one of the film exchanges of Philadelphia that were their customers last year have dropped. I mentioned this to an Independent claimant the other day and his reply was that the stronghold of the Independents was among the exhibitors, and not the film exchanges. I then went deeper into the matter and found that at the time the opposition to the payment of the Patents license became so pronounced on the part of the exhibitors, licensed film exchanges, with few exceptions, gave notice of cancellation of their contracts to the manufacturers. In giving these notices the exchanges stated that the step was a precautionary one, as so many exhibitors had declared they would not take out licenses, but would go over to the Independents. In such an event there would have been a big drop in the rental business of the exchanges. Before the expiration of the cancellation notices, however, they were all withdrawn. I am also reliably informed that the Patents Company has not lost an exchange since it started business, and the only exchanges that were in the Film Service Association last year and are not operating under a Patents license this year are those to whom the Patents Company refused to grant licenses.

* * *

If I may be permitted to do so, I would suggest that the Patents Company get to work without delay and impress upon its licensed manufacturers the importance of eliminating from their productions features that give excuses for cries against the "lewd and immoral." More than half the people raising such objections either do not know what they are talking about, are incapable of being liberal to any degree, or are prompted by unfair motives, but that does not do away with the advisability of exercising the same care in the selection of subjects as in the manufacture Get away from the suggestive in plot and action and tell a good story in a clean, wholesome way. This appeal is not based upon impressions gleaned from pictures that have been exhibited, but is made to show some of the great moralists who seem to be wearing themselves to exhaustion to put the moving pictures out of business that people interested in that business are not advocating and do not depend upon lewd and immoral pictures for a means of livelihood. If the Patents Company will take up this subject in an official way it will steal the thunder from the chronic complainants.

* * *

I see my friend, John M. Bradlet, has taken up the subject of "sub-titles" for films. In a recent article published in the "Moving Picture World" he made some very good points concerning them. Many manufacturers appear to be devoting attention to the same thing, and improvements have been shown in many cases, but in others efforts have been misplaced. Where letters, telegrams, etc., are introduced they should be made in sufficient lengths to enable the audience to read them deliberately, and the same applies to lengthy sub-titles, but there is absolutely no excuse for giving the same length to ordinary sub-titles. Wherever it is at all practicable, titles and sub-titles should be condensed as much as possible. I have heard renters complain that some manufacturers were evidently padding these parts of the films to bring them up to the advertised length.

OLIVER.

HOBOKEN THEATERS AGAIN KEPT CLOSED.

Following the precedent laid down a week ago when all of the theatrical shows were closed down by orders of County Prosecutor Pierre Garvin, Chief of Police Patrick Hayes, Jr., of Hoboken, did not allow a single Sunday performance. The Gaiety, Lyric and Empire Theaters were closed, as well as all of the moving picture shows. Their owners on Saturday night were warned to keep their places closed, and they obeyed.

But it was not more dry in Hoboken than it has been on other Sundays. The front doors of saloons were closed and the curtains drawn, but the initiated knew how to gain access and slake their thirst.

DECENT FILMS.

"I hope you will keep up the firing along the line of objectionable films and the enemies of good morals and decency until the manufacturers will realize the real importance of raising the flag of truce and finally surrendering to the good cause you so well and wisely advocate."—C. H. Redding, Waycross, Ga.

ON THE SCREEN.

By "Lux Graphicus."

"See that gentleman," said the courteous attendant at Keith & Proctor's Fourteenth Street Bijou Dream to me the other night, pointing to a prosperous and intelligent looking man who was leaving the theater at the moment; "he comes in here three times a day for a few minutes to look at the pictures. Hear those girls singing?"—the song slide act was one—"they're here several times a week. And we only get and cater for the patronage of the best class of people." The moving picture has become an American habit; it is a good habit, and a profitable habit. Don't forget it.

* * *

Every intelligent individual knows that, or should know it, in this year of grace 1909. But not all individuals are intelligent, or even sensible, and amongst this numerous class I place the individual responsible for a recently published report of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. This large-minded social reformer and philanthropist, who has a comfortable little job in that nest of sinecures, No. 287 Fourth avenue, New York, wildly condemns moving pictures as detrimental to the morals of children, and, generally, stigmatizes a clean and wholesome form of entertainment as bad and vicious. I call upon the associated manufacturers to whack the author of this libel until he eats his own words.

* * *

They don't seem to like these notes around Chicago. That's their fault, not mine. My journalistic motto has always been: "Accuracy, fairness, common sense," and that policy has placed me on top in many a hard-fought battle. Two weeks ago I said that the present film war was one of quality. I'm told some of the International officials have taken umbrage at this statement. Why? If all we are asked to believe about the qualities of the imported films be true, then the associated manufacturers have nothing to do but go out of business. But I'll bet they won't.

* * *

Mr. Goodfellow, of St. Louis, is credited with having a camera which will produce moving pictures in natural colors. My informant is himself a distinguished inventor—not an ignorant newspaper scribe. Send along that camera, Goodfellow; I should like to see it. Ever since the commercialization of photography, exactly seventy years ago, the camera has been credited with being able to do many wonderful things. Some it can; some it can't. Amongst the latter is that of being able to "take" moving (or stationary) pictures in natural colors. No, it can't. The solar spectrum and the salts of silver must have the first, and chief, say in the matter. Know anything about them, Goodfellow?

* * *

The political atmosphere of the moving picture field seems to have cleared. It was about time. The events of the last two months, when we come to look back upon them in a year's time, will wear a very humorous aspect, I'm convinced. There has been far too much talking and writing over the rights and wrongs of this, that, or the other person. Meanwhile, the public at large seems supremely indifferent to all the bickering and haggling and only waits patiently for more and more and MORE good films. So get down and make them, gents. The sooner you do, the sooner the dollars and cents will come your way.

* * *

The People's Institute wants to censor films. Let the People's Institute mind its own business. The censorship question will be settled, as already pointed out in these pages, by the press, the public and the manufacturers. It is being settled, this moment, as anyone with eyes to see can see for himself. Canon Chase, of Williamsburg, is also talking nonsense on the subject. He would not censor plays! What! Wouldn't censor "The Girl from Rector's," "The Easiest Way," "The Moulin Rouge" and the like. Fie! Canon Chase! You surely don't mean to say that you approve of those salacious productions. Do you?

* * *

But he would censor moving pictures, because "they cannot be varied from their first production." Granted; but is a play "varied from its first production"? Not much; for "The Girl from Rector's" is still drawing crowded houses. So's "The Easiest Way," Mr. Canon. Then: "If moving pictures start off right they will always be right." So will a play, Canon. Where's the difference? One talks; the other doesn't. Censor all, if censor you must. Theatrical managers would like to "censor" moving pictures; oh, yes, indeed, they would. So would the actors; so would the playwrights; so would the Puritans; the unco' guid; the Chadbands and the Mawworms; so would all the opponents of a cheap and popular entertainment, which every right-minded man wishes to see clean and prosperous. Mind your own business, Canon Chase.

THE PROGRESS OF THE INTERNATIONAL PROJECTING AND PRODUCING COMPANY.

On Thursday, the 26th of February, Harstn & Co., of New York, held a meeting of exhibitors, exchanges and members of every trade union and real estate owners in the city of Boston, at the Crown Theater. The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the subject of the independent film movement and to keep the duty from being raised on their imported films. At the meeting were present representatives from the New England Film Exchange; Mr. W. E. Green, of the Green Film Supply Company; Mr. John Quickley, of the Quickley Amusement Company, and various other exchanges; also the following managers representing their respective theaters: Mr. Mosher, of the Premier Theater; Mr. Washburn, of the Theater Unique; Mr. Campbell, of the Star; Mr. Brown, of the Pastime; Mr. Russell, of the Dreamland; Mr. Bunce, of the Olympic, and Mr. Burgess, of the Old South, and others, making an audience of about 150 present. These also included representatives of the Operators' Union, Electrical Union and State officials. Mr. Harstn personally conducted the exhibition of the films which were introduced as samples of the foreign manufacturers, with an idea of showing to the exhibitors the kind of films they will receive, and which are being imported from the 27 European manufacturers.

Every one present commented on the beautiful selection of films and expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the International Producing and Projecting Company, who will continuously supply them with films as were exhibited at the Crown Theater. Mr. H. J. Streyckman, secretary of the International Projecting and Producing Company, was introduced to the audience by Mr. Harstn, and spoke of the future of the International Projecting and Producing Company's large importations, and assured everyone present that they will maintain an open market and support everyone who is willing to support them. He also assured them that the International Projecting and Producing Company will import films to the amount of 20 to 30 reels per week consisting of the best output of the 27 European manufacturers, and same will be released on regular release dates all over the country at the same time. Mr. Streyckman further assured those present that in the course of three or four weeks they also will be in a position to supply the trade with American made subjects from their new factories, which are being erected in Denver, Chicago and elsewhere. These factories will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Ambrosio, of Italy; Mr. Raleigh, of Paris, and Mr. Barker, of London, and Mr. Streyckman further advised them that the machine which they are putting out and which is absolutely non-infringing, which they have called the McKinney machine, is positively the best moving picture projecting machine yet invented, and will be on the market within the next six weeks.

After the exhibition many exhibitors said that, although they have signed the agreement with the Motion Picture Patents Company, they will discontinue same and take the films that are being imported by the International Projecting and Producing Company, as they can see the superiority in the class of films.

Mr. Harstn and Mr. Streyckman then met Mr. Barker and the three left for Philadelphia, where a similar meeting was called on Sunday, February 28. At the meeting in Philadelphia were present almost every exhibitor and film exchange man and Mr. Fisher, of the Corporative Film Service. This company is said to represent 140 exhibitors out of 180 in Philadelphia. All these exhibitors have pledged themselves to stand by Mr. Fisher, who is the leader of the independent movement in Philadelphia, and Mr. Fisher in return assured them that through the concern of Harstn & Co. they may obtain an unlimited supply of film.

Mr. Streyckman, Mr. Barker and Mr. Oes, of the Great Northern Film Company, explained to those present the exact situation of the International Projecting and Producing Company, assuring every one, the same as Mr. Fisher did, that their supply of film will be absolutely the best selection of the output of the 27 manufacturers of Europe. After the exhibition each one expressed themselves as highly pleased—as all have done where this exhibition has been witnessed, stating that this was the best picture show they have seen, and if the International Projecting and Producing Company will live up to their agreement, which they have no doubt they will, the moving picture industry in New York, Boston, Philadelphia will be improved 100 per cent., as the line of pictures exhibited was exactly what the public demands. Mr. Barker, together with Mr. Streyckman, went to St. Louis, where an exhibition of the same films will be made. Mr. Harstn also advises us that in a few days he will have meetings and exhibitions in Pittsburg, Baltimore, Washington and a few other large cities, which will be regularly announced in the daily papers.

THE BOARD OF CENSORSHIP.

[From Mr. John Collier, Secretary of the Executive Committee of the People's Institute, we have received the following statement of the "methods, objects, and probable consequences" of the moving picture censorship which is being established. The attitude of the "Moving Picture World" towards this question of a censorship was defined in our Editorial of February 13, wherein we said: "We think the churches are best left out of the council of censorship. Broad-minded clerics are numerous, it is true; but bigotry and intolerance are powerful for harm, as the recent crisis in the moving picture field amply shows. Men of the world with wide sympathies, conscientious artists and caterers for public amusements would form ideal censors. . . . The film manufacturers and importers are the most powerful body of censors that we can think of. . . . Next to the manufacturers the most potent of all censors is the press. . . . We rely upon healthy public opinion backed up by the press." From this it will be perceived that while we are in agreement with the People's Institute's "methods and objects" in forming a film censorship, we do not think the proposed board is rightly constituted and we are not at all sanguine that the "probable consequences" will be satisfactory to either the manufacturers, the exhibitors or the public.—Editor "Moving Picture World."]

While the inspectors and clergy have been talking about a censorship for the Broadway theaters, a very different censorship has been actually brought about for moving picture shows. It is not the kind of censorship usually thought of when that word is used. It is established at the request of the moving picture shows, will be financially supported by the shows themselves, and will have the force of law without being official. This censorship is in one way an experiment, but in another way conditions guarantee its success beforehand.

To describe this censorship in a few words: It is being at this moment established by a number of public bodies, who are acting on the request of the Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors of New York State. There will be a Governing Board, and an Executive Committee on Censorship, composed of five members The following organizations will be officially represented on the Governing Board: The Public Education Association, The Federation of Churches, The League for Political Education, The Ethical-Social League, The Association of Neighborhood Workers, and The People's Institute. Possibly one or two other civic bodies will later be represented on the Governing Board.

The Executive Committee on Censorship will have five members, three from public bodies, two from the Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors. The two representatives of the Motion Picture Association will be chosen by the General Board on the nomination of the Motion Picture Association. The Board of Censorship will have offices, a secretary, and inspectors. The Executive Committee will meet daily, except in so far as it may see fit to delegate its duties to the secretary and the inspectors.

Two questions must now be answered. First, what is the reason for the censorship and what good will it do? Second, how will it stand related to manufacturers, renters, and exhibitors, and how will it operate?

First, it is needless to point out that the moving picture business in New York has fallen upon evil days. Enough here to mention the war that is being waged on moving picture shows by the city authorities, the bitter hostility of certain vigilance of societies to the moving picture business, the antagonistic attitude of the inspectors, and the prejudice and misunderstanding toward moving pictures which exists in the public mind. Unless the moving picture business is to be well-nigh driven out of existence in New York it must gain public standing and get organized in a way to demand a secure deal from the city. Some of the causes which led to the present state of affairs may be mentioned: The city's Licensing Bureau, which for many years was corrupt, law-breaking, and positively encouraged the disregard of law, of public morals and public safety by the shows. The lack of organization among the shows, which made it impossible to discipline the few shows which were really bad, the shows running on month after month and bringing the whole business into disrepute. Conditions which made it impossible in the first place to choose freely between competing manufacturers, and which, on the other hand, have created a wide gulf between the exhibitor and the manufacturer, so that the public, through the exhibitor, had no way of registering its demand for good pictures. Couple this fact with the fact that it is cheaper and easier to produce a picture of crime or vulgarity than to produce a picture without artistic merits, and the reasons become clear for the poor quality of pictures which have been foisted on the exhibitors in recent times. The moving picture business, from manufacturer to exhibitor, has suffered by all these conditions, but it is the exhibitor who is being ruined by them, because it is he who loses his license, is dragged to court, and is tabooed by the good people of his neighborhood when he unwittingly displays an unworthy picture.

In other words, it is absolutely necessary to get better pictures and to get public standing. The only way to get better pictures is, first, for the exhibitors to organize and demand them, and, second, for the exhibitors and the manfacturers to have some common meeting ground, where they can reach an understanding as to what kind of pictures are desirable. The censorship here described represents the fact that the exhibitors have organized to get good pictures, that they invite the manufacturers to produce better pictures, and that they are going to make it known to the public that if moving picture shows can be bad they likewise can be, and often are, good. In such disrepute is the business in New York to-day that no move merely by the exhibitors themselves can convince the public of their good intentions. But the present censorship, which has behind it the most prominent civic and educational organizations of the city, which is supported and enforced by the exhibitors themselves, but controlled by organizations which represent public interest—this censorship will absolutely command public respect, and will obtain the cooperation of the city officials. The moving picture show which can point to the fact that it is on the white list of the Censorship Board will be in a position to defend itself against attacks. And when the Censorship Board insists that if bad shows are put out of business good shows must just as consistently be protected, the Censorship Board will be obeyed. If the work is properly done it will be the saving of the moving picture business in New York.

How will the censorship operate? In the first place, the censorship will have nothing to do with any business struggle that is on in the moving picture trade. It will pass on any and all film that is submitted to it, and will condemn or approve with absolute impartiality. The show which uses censored film will be protected, and every renter and every manufacturer will be invited to submit his film and thereby become eligible to the patronage of the white list of shows. Every show in the Motion Picture Association will be bound to use only censored films, under penalty of expulsion from the association and the advertisement of that fact. The renter will naturally desire to be in a position to advertise that no film goes out of his office that has not been approved by the Censorship Board, and for this reason it will be natural to inspect the film before it leaves the hands of the renter. But it will be still more desirable to inspect the film before it leaves the hands of the manufacturer, and every manufacturer will be invited to submit his output, at no cost to himself, for censorship. If, then, a certain section of the film is objectionable, it can be remedied by the manufacturer at minimum cost. And by being in touch with the manufacturers, the Censorship Board will be able to suggest the kind of picture that it has reason to believe the exhibitors and the public want.

One word must be added as to the rest of the program in moving picture shows—the illustrated songs and the vaudeville. All shows on the white list will be expected to use only such illustrated songs as have been approved of. Practically all the songs now sung and heard in the moving picture shows would be approved of by the Censorship Board. As for the vaudeville, the Censorship Board will not make any attempt to supervise this beforehand. But if anything outrageous is given by a show on the white list, that show will be cut off from the privileges of the censorship.

The first meeting of the Censorship Board has been called for Thursday, March 4, and operation will begin promptly thereafter. The whole matter is an attempt to check the indiscriminate attack of moving picture shows which is now going on; to make the shows worthy of public respect, and to win public standing for the business.

A CATCHY AND POPULAR SONG.

"I feel that we owe the publishers of 'Under the Maples with Molly-O' much courtesy. It is safe to say that 'Molly-O' was as big a hit as any song of its class ever sung in Portland. It was one that was whistled more by the people in the three days it was out, than any other, which was, to my mind, conclusive evidence that the song was a hit. I wish we had more as good as it is." So writes Mr. Stevens, the manager of Keith's Portland Theater.

S. Lubin has presented to the city of Richmond, Va., a projecting machine and several reels of film.

THE CENSORSHIP OF FILM SUBJECTS.

No subject in connection with the motion picture industry is exciting more discussion at the present time than the matter of censorship of film.

At its last meeting, the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of the State of New York incorporated in its constitution a provision for a Board of Censors to consist of five, of whom three will be representatives designated by the most important civic bodies in New York, and two will be practical exhibitors.

The People's Institute, one of the most powerful, semi-official bodies in New York, is working hand in hand with the Association toward the elevation and betterment of the business. The Department of Drama and Music of the People's Institute has as its managing director Mr. Charles Sprague Smith, well known for his past activities and recently appointed by the Governor as a member of the committee to probe Wall Street. The chairman of the committee is Prof. William H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools of the city of New York; others of the committee are Messrs. Edgerton L. Winthrop, Jr., Samuel B. Donnelly and Abraham Stern, of the Board of Education; Robert C. Ogden, the business partner of John Wanamaker; A. Abraham, the Brooklyn merchant prince; Samuel L. Clemons, known to fame as Mark Twain; Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century Magazine, and eminent ministers of various denominations. The secretary of the Department of Drama and Music of the People's Institute, Mr. John Collier, has made an intimate study of moving pictures for the past two years, and gave expression to the desire for co-operation of the People's Institute by the following letter to the Exhibior's Association:

"You have asked me for an expression as to the value and necessity of a censorship. I can only repeat what I have said in detail in my address to you at a previous meeting of the Association, to wit: That when an objectionable picture is received by an exhibitor and is displayed, often because he can get nothing else, it is the exhibitor and not the manufacturer or renter who receives the blame and the punishment. This reason alone would make it necessary for the exhibitors to organize to protect themselves.

"It is likewise true, as a moment's thought will show, that the manager of a Broadway theater, when he puts on a stage production, gets exactly what he wants, because he has it made to order; but the motion picture exhibitor, as things stand at present, gets what the manufacturer wants. He can change his state of affairs only by organizing to change it. Once organized, he can get exactly what he and his public want. Even a hundred shows, if they are well organized and mean business, can dictate to the manufacturer and the manufacturer must obey. Another fact that a little thought will make clear, is that the manufacurer is continually tempted to produce vulgar pictures and pictures dealing with crime for the simple reason that such pictures are the easiest and cheapest pictures to produce. No well-drilled actors, no scenery of a distant country, no beautiful stage settings are required for a scene of seduction or murder. This may be gotten up in the cheapest manner and yet will momentarily hold the attention of the public. The manufacturer produces criminal pictures for exactly the same reason that the baker produces adulterated bread; it is cheaper. The exhibitors must defend themselves against this condition, and the only way is to organize and form their own censorship.

"The above facts will be clear to all members of the Association. Another fact, which is very clear to an observer on the outside, ought to be equally clear to the Association. This fact is that the moving picture business is in bad standing. This fact leaves it the prey to blackmail from public officials and to ruinous legislation by the Board of Aldermen and the Legislature. Only because the moving picture business is in bad standing is the Mayor able to go ahead with his present policy of wholesale suppression, so unjust to many good shows. How is this adverse public opinion to be overcome? How can this business win a secure standing with the public?

"The answer is, Only by organizing, shutting out the exhibitors who are a discredit to the business, and maintaining a reasonably high standard. The Association has the fate of the motion picture business in its hands. Let it stiffen itself and become a real organization; shut out the exhibitor whose show is a fire-trap or otherwise a public menace—there are not many such; let it establish the censorship now proposed, and advertise this fact broadly. Let it mean business by all this; let it remind the public that if there are some bad shows, there are many good shows, let it win the support of influential public bodies, and it will do away with the public misunderstanding and the blundering officials which are now driving the moving picture business down hill so fast. (Signed) JOHN COLLIER."

The exhibitors' associations of Philadelphia, Hudson County, New Jersey, and others have expressed their desire to co-operate with the censorship committee. It is believed that the censors will begin their duties within a few days, or at most, weeks.

ARTISTIC SONG SLIDES.

Making slides to illustrate a song requires consideration of two important points. First the artist must have a clear comprehension of the possibilities of the song and he must know how to bring out those possibilities and translate them into fact. The illustrator who can do that is certain to make his slides sufficiently good to be popular everywhere.

A. L. Simpson, 113 West 132d street, New York, has made a specialty of illustrating songs ever since songs were illustrated. It was Mr. Simpson, working with an able partner, Mr. Maxwell, who first popularized the illustrated song in the old Keith & Proctor Theater in New York. It had been done before, but only crudely, but as soon as it was done right the illustrated song became an established factor in the amusement world, and has continued so to the present.

Mr. Simpson makes a specialty of the song hits of the day and his patronage is country wide. He personally looks after the making of the original negatives and the slides themselves and his wide knowledge of the artistic development of photography enables him to always get the best results from a subject. His properties and apparatus for use in these illustrations are all the best obtainable, insuring satisfactory work in all cases.

Another important feature of his business is his lecturettes. He has a number which are good and will be found listed in the proper department in this issue. One coming out shortly should appeal to everyone now and later. It is on the Hudson River and this year, when the tercentenary of Hudson's discovery is to be celebrated, this should be popular. Mr. Simpson makes all the negatives for these lecturettes himself and prepares his own talks, insuring perfect harmony between text and pictures. His latest, "A Trip to Paris," is unusually clear and convincing.

Another feature of his business which appeals strongly to many managers is his illustrations to accompany records of songs and lectures. He has a long list of these, comprising the most popular of both now before the public.

Slide users will appreciate Mr. Simpson's promptness. He ships slides as soon as the order is received, whether a whole set is wanted or only a few to fill breakages. And he never cuts prices. The slides cost a fixed sum, and from that he never deviates. His customers are scattered throughout the country, and they are all pleased customers. They couldn't be otherwise, when they consider the service they get from him.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Having had several calls in the past to recommend a gas making outfit, we take pleasure in calling attention to one that is advertised by the Edison Manufacturing Company. It is needless to say that any article manufactured by this company is thoroughly tested before it is placed upon the market, and the announcement should prove of interest to the itinerant showman.

The Up-to-Date Film Exchange, 621 Central Building, Los Angeles, Cal., are in the market for second-hand film.

The Liberty Film Exchange have moved to 44 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, where they claim to be doing a rushing business.

The Chicago city ordinance giving the Mayor and the police power to prevent the exhibition of immoral moving pictures has been upheld by the Supreme Court.

The Independent Film Company, of Pittsburg, has been organized and chartered to manufacture, buy, sell, lease and rent moving picture films, machines, song slides, etc. The capital is $25,000.

Inauguration of President Wm. H. Taft.—A special staff of Vitagraph photographers will take views from various points of the coming inauguration ceremonies of President William Howard Taft, March 4. Special privileges have been granted this company, and they can guarantee the best and most complete series of pictures of this great national event. The film will be about 600 feet long.

The strenuous efforts of the Vitagraph staff to procure their film of the inauguration will make interesting reading next week

WEEKLY COMMENTS ON THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

The next time I visit the Scenic Theater, at Eighth avenue and Thirty-ninth street, and pay my five cents at the box like a man, I hope steps will have been taken to put that magnificent temple of the moving picture drama in proper repair. I had a front seat on the occasion of my recent visit, and so I got more than my share of the light and air which came through the broken windows or similar embrasures which were just near the screen. Of course, this may be some subtle kind of architectural scheme, the merits of which I am unable to appreciate. All the same I cling to the conventional, and I believe most other people do. So, Mr. Scenic Theater, just patch up that little house of yours so that there are no more draughts or superfluous light or holes for admitting the rain.

I said I had a front seat. Around me was a miscellaneous assortment of elderly females and active babies. The hall was well filled and it is fair to say that the audience seemed to like the entertainment. This was of a distinctly free and easy character. The staff of the theater congregated promiscuously around the piano, which instrument was energetically played by a gentleman who chewed the remains of a cigar while he did so. The vocalist, to the highly colored song slides on the somewhat familiar theme "It Might Have Been," was an athletic young man with a powerful voice and an affecting delivery, and an unfortunate propenstiy for singing violently out of tune. This part of the business reminded me of nothing so much as the old London friendly lead vocal entertainment which was carried out on the "go as you please" principle.

The nobility and gentry of Eighth avenue seemed to like the young man's singing and the gaudily colored song slides. "Isn't she beautiful?" said a motherly looking female near me as the inevitable picture of the inevitable "gyurl" spurning the inevitable lover was put on the screen. There you have it; the five-cent audience likes bathos and pathos in about even equal proportions. For a like reason the Edison film "Left Out" seemed to appeal to this Eighth avenue audience, although frankly I look upon it as unworthy of the celebrated house that produced it. It is, in brief, the story of a waif's progress, saddening and depressing. The story has been told many a time and oft before, and probably will be told many a time again, so long as there are Eighth avenue audiences content to accept that sort of thing.

Although I am somewhat severe on the details of the management of the Scenic Theater, on the whole, it seems to be well conducted and pleases its patrons. I fancy, however, that if a somewhat brighter scheme of entertainment were adopted there and at similar Nickelodeons the patrons would be even more pleased. Forty-second street is only a few blocks away, and the contrast between the theatrical palaces there and the little Scenic Theater is certainly very marked; so marked, indeed, that it rather, in my mind, remits to a very distant future the date when Forty-second street itself will have its own moving picture theater. But nous verrons.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS THE ACTION OF THE MAYOR.

The applications of William McKenzie, A. Partoluzi and the Eldorado Amusement Company for injunctions restraining the Mayor and the Bureau of Licenses from interfering with the moving picture business conducted by the defendants by revoking licenses were denied by Justice Platzek in the Supreme Court last week. The case was brought as a test, more than 100 moving picture shows being affected by the decision.

Justice Platzek says the Fire Department urged the revocation of the licenses, and that safety to limb, life and property is among the primary purposes of municipal government. The power of the Mayor to issue licenses, Justice Platzek holds, is unquestioned and the authority of the Mayor to revoke licenses issued by him is undoubted.

The court adds that it is not necessary to give advance notice to revoke licenses, and that a hearing on the merits is unnecessary under the decisions of the courts.

KALEM FILM REUNITES MOTHER AND SON.

Lafayette, Ind., February 26.—While attending a moving picture show yesterday afternoon where "The High Diver" and scenes from a Florida ostrich farm were being presented. Mrs. Hannah Mendelsohn recognized her son in the pictures. She had not heard from him for seven years. She telegraphed him and to-day received a reply saying that he was at the ostrich farm and was employed as its manager.

Comments on Film Subjects.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

In the technical quality of the pictures released during the week, improvement is noticed. There is, all things considered, a closer following of details. Not so many breaks are noticed in some films, while in others emanating from studios having a tendency to overlook details the change is marked.

Educative and amusing films have been most numerous the past week. They leave a better impression upon the audience and the appreciation with which they are received indicates that the people who attend moving picure shows enjoy the light and pleasant pictures fully as well as they do the sober and in some instances depressing pictures.

The attendance at most of the houses has been unusually good. In all the leading theaters in New York it has been rather heavier than the preceding week. Improvement in pictures will bring about increased attendance in all cases, as has been pointed out in these columns many times before. Managers and manufacturers are working in the right direction now and they should follow the tendencies which are now so marked. They are the right ones and will lead to success.

"The Skipper's Daughters."—A film of more than ordinary dramatic quality from Selig. The plot turns on the attempt of a skipper of a lumber schooner to force one of his daughters to marry the first mate of his vessel, whom she abhors, though she loves the second mate. The father and his favorite, the first mate, set upon the second mate and knock him senseless and start with him toward the wharf, but he revives and is saved from being thrown overboard. Later there is a fight between the two mates, which introduces something novel. A considerable proportion of the struggle takes place on a narrow footbridge, from which the first mate is hurled into the water. But his generous rival, at the urgent demand of the girl, plunges in to save him. The struggle in the water is out of sight, but it is easily followed by the motions of the girl, who is looking on from the bridge. The man is rescued, and the schooner sails with the two girls on board. The feud is renewed, but the treacherous character of the first mate is shown to the skipper, who has him lashed to the mast. Now comes into the story the second daughter of the skipper. She loves this villainous first mate and releases him. He escapes in a boat, and the story ends with the couple made happy, but with one girl broken hearted. The action is spirited, and in nearly all the scenes is maintained, though there are a few weak spots. The photography is good. In some scenes it is picturesque and in all it is above the average. The story is so well told that this film ought to be popular. It has been liberally applauded in the New York theaters. It is a great artistic success and the best American film produced for some time. Mr. Selig is pushing forward, he does not rest on his laurels, but seems to believe that no matter how good is the work, there is always room for improvements. The story is so well told that the audience was kept deeply interested from beginning to end. The acting is exceptionally good, every performer is strictly to his part and all the actions are well timed. The staging calls for special mention, as it is one of the rare American films in which the actors are not cramped for room and with plenty of perspective in the scenery. If our manufacturers follow the Selig Polyscope Company they will soon find themselves in a position to command the market without having to draw on the foreigners and without wasting their time on extra silly productions.

"The New Minister; or, the Drunkard's Daughter."—A Kalem subject which is worked out with the care and attention to details which is making this firm's films so popular. A young minister arrives at a parish and the people assemble to greet him. Suddenly a young girl dashes into the throng, pursued by a drunken father, with upraised whip, and pleads with the minister for protection. The father promptly slaps the minister's face. The squire's son makes an insolent comment and is promptly knocked down. He robs the minister's house and fastens the guilt upon the drunkard, who is sent to prison. Two years elapse. He escapes from prison, and, pursued by the guards he rushes to the church and into the arms of his daughter and her lover, the minister. Meanwhile the squire's renegade son has been thrown from his horse and, mortally hurt, makes a written confession that he robbed the minister's house. The messenger arrives with it just as the officers are dragging the prisoner away. The story ends there, with the exoneration of the supposed thief. The heart interest in this picture is strong, and the acting is all one could desire.

"Left Out."—If one has a heart it is impossible to look at this strongly dramatic and pathetic picture and keep the tears back. It is from the Edison studio, and while the acting is not up to the opportunities of the material, it is fair. Perhaps the picture influences more by its suggestion than it does by the action of all the characters. The story is common enough. Through neglect and thoughtless cruelty a mother dies and leaves a little girl alone. She becomes a waif and is buffeted and abused in a heartrending way, until she finds her way to her mother's grave, where the little cold hands grope in the grass for some comfort, some sympathy. Meanwhile the father, living in luxury, picks up a book from which falls a photograph of the mother. This arouses disturbing memories which finally drive him to the grave, where he finds the child weeping upon it. He takes her home, and her sufferings are over. The acting of the little girl is good, and one can scarcely believe that the rebuffs are only pictured, they seem so real. Technically the film is good.

"At the Altar."—A strong story of love and jealousy told by the Biograph people. The scene is laid in a boarding house where apparently a Sicilian had been encouraged in his attentions by one of the ladies until a musician appears on the scene. An engagement and preparations for a wedding follow. The jealous lover is sent away and goes to his room vowing vengeance. He makes an infernal machine which he conceals under the platform in such a way that when the priest steps upon a certain spot a revolver will be discharged in such a way that the bride will be killed. He goes back to his room, writes what he has done, drinks poison and falls dead. The paper is discovered and a policeman starts for the church. Alternate scenes are shown, the wedding party at the church, then the policeman running, falling and laming himself and finally going down perfectly unable to go any farther. A boy takes the message from his hands and rushes on. Meanwhile the wedding party has got to the point where the fatal step will be the next, when the boy rushes in and the bride is saved. The audience have their interest aroused to the highest pitch as these alternate pictures are shown, and there is a noticeable relaxing of nerves when the pistol is discharged and the bride is unhurt. The weakest scene is the last, where the wedding is consummated with very little apparent perturbation after such a narrow escape from death. There is no question about the intense interest this film excites, but there is no applause.

"Four Sweethearts."—A comic from the Great Northern studios in which the kitchen maid conceals her four sweethearts about the room, one in the wash boiler and others elsewhere, only to have them appear at the most inopportune time. All are driven away but one. It gets more than one hearty laugh.

"The Two Violins"—A beautiful film from the Great Northern people. It is tinted brown where interiors are represented and blue for moonlight. The interiors are exceptionally well done, but the exteriors are blurred a bit. A man agrees to give his daughter to the one of two men who shall play the best on his violin. One of the aspirants is a cripple, who has a wonderful instrument and is a finished player. The other is a handsome man, but has less ability. The girl does not want the cripple and tells him so, but he is generous, and to make sure that his rival shall win he exchanges violins, hiding the poorer instrument. The other is not so generous, he changes violins again, thus getting back his own inferior instrument. The contest occurs and the prize is awarded to the cripple, but he gives up the girl and declares that his violin is his only love. The acting of the cripple is to be especially commended, but the rest are not so good. The photography is remarkably clear and snappy. Withal it is an eminently satisfactory picture.

"A Good Thief."—A short film from the Lux house, which seems to prove that not all thieves are bad. This one leaves money in a house where the family is too poor to buy medicines for a sick child, and when the father is accused of taking it he comes forth and admits his guilt. But because he befriended the sick child, and she begs for him, he is allowed to go. The heart of the accuser is touched as well, and he gives money to the sick child. The photography is poor, and the action of the characters is not up to requirements. They move about like wood images. The story is good, and some other defects can be overlooked for that reason.

"Sherlock Holmes II."—The Great Northern people have brought out the second Sherlock Holmes film and it is quite as much of a thriller as the first. The audiences watch with the most intense interest as they see Raffles escape, and afterward see Holmes enticed to a lonely place and pushed backward into a sewer. But he escapes and captures Raffles in the act of shooting at an image in Holmes' window which Raffles takes for Holmes himself. The picture is good, technically, and the acting of the principal characters is up to the standard, but the minor characters add little interest to the film. The clearness of the film and the success of Holmes compensates for any shortcomings in other directions. The film is good, and deserves a long run.

"The Prussian Spy."—The Biograph people have given to the public a well-photographed picture in which love and intrigue form important parts. A girl rejects one suitor and drives him away. The favored one enters shortly after, but hearing someone coming she hides him in a closet. The rejected one returns, discovers the fact that some one has entered, suspects he is hidden in the closet. He places a target against the closet door and fires a revolver five times at the target. When the door is opened the lover is found dead. The last scene is strong where the girl waves aside the rejected suitor and holds the head of the dead lover on her lap. Just why it is given the name of "The Prussian Spy" doesn't appear from the picture. It might as well have been any other spy.

"His Wife's Mother."—The Biograph people have very pleasantly varied the old mother-in-law joke in this comedy. Jones' wife invites her mother to visit them, and though Jones doesn't like it he hits upon the plan of making it pleasant for her. He buys her flowers and other presents. He takes her out to dine and she drinks too much champagne, and when they return and she reels into her daughter's presence she is summarily thrown out. Then Jones squares it with his wife and, as the story books say, live happily ever after. It is a good comic and makes the audience laugh. Besides, it is such a good variation of a stale subject that it is certain to please everywhere.

"The Suffragette's Dream."—A comic from the Pathe studio which shows a woman going through all the stunts to which suffragettes are addicted. The men are made the burden bearers, and the millennium truly arrives. But it all ends very suddenly when her husband returns, finds her asleep in her chair and dinner not ready. The millennium vanishes, and she goes meekly about her business. The picture excites a roar of laughter from beginning to end, and is really funny. It is technically good as well.

"The Dime Novel Detective."—A Lubin in which the absurdities of the dime novel story are so clearly shown that they are funny. The heroine is stolen half a dozen times, hurled into the den of criminals, once into a lion's cage, once out of a window, and each time she is rescued by the detective. The picture is good technically and it is so absurd that it is funny. It should have a good run.

"Stung, or What Can It Bee?"—A neat bit of comedy from the Essanay studio. A boy puts a quantity of bees in a bottle and distributes them judiciously in his travels. The bees make an impression immediately, with the result that many amusing situations are created. The action is natural enough, and few funny films have been more liberally applauded.

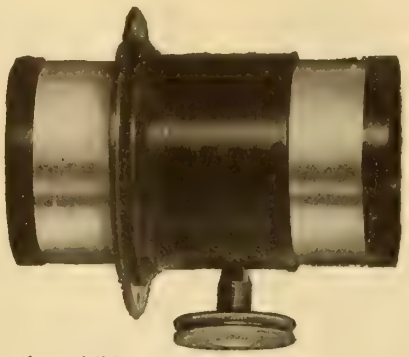
"Mr. Jonah Gets a Little Dust in His Eyes."—A comic from the Pathes which details a number of amusing accidents which befall a man who was struck in the face by a rug which was being shaken out-doors. Every situation brings the laugh, which is not always true of a Pathe comic.

"Topsy Turvy."—A Pathe comic in which there is a breaking through of a floor for the purpose of stealing a dinner set below, followed by a general scramble which reminds one strongly of the rough-and-tumble games boys play. In spots it is funny, but as whole there is little to commend it.

"The Jolly Trio's Dream."—One hardly knows what to say about this Pathe comic. In one theater it was liberally applauded. In two others there was not even a ripple of laughter. There are funny situations, and considerable magic, including some strange disappearances and appearances, but the whole is marred by making inebriation a theme for sport.

"The Two Models."—A story from the Pathes, which is lively, not unpleasant, and in which the escapade of one model in throwing kisses at a girl across the street results in the artist getting a charming model and a bride. The action and photography are good, and the picture has the merit of being entertaining, but after all there isn't much to it.

"A Modern Samson."—A film from the Pathes which is a species of burlesque upon the Bible story. A long-haired young man rages through the region displaying his great strength in various ways. He gets home and makes things



OF course the exhibitor wants to get the best results, but he doesn't always know how.

Upon the perfection of the projection lens depends the size and brilliancy of the image on the screen. So if your machine is equipped with a

BAUSCH & LOMB
Projection Lens

you can be sure of having the best obtainable.

More than 50 years experience in making lenses of all kinds has enabled us to produce the best projection lens made.

Send for booklet.

PRISM is a little popular science monthly. Send for copy free.

Our Name on a Photographic Lens, Microscope, Field Glass, Laboratory Apparatus, Engineering or any other Scientific Instrument is our Guarantee.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

NEW YORK WASHINGTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO
LONDON ROCHESTER, N.Y. FRANKFORT

Stop, Look and Listen!

Independent
Penn Film Exchange

READING, PENNA.

We are New and our Films are New so you get Clean Pictures; NO JUNK: We have NONE. We are four weeks old. Our subjects are of the latest releases. Song Service also NEW.

Try us after all others fail. Your box office will talk. Our prices are within your reach.

Since we have been using the Penn Film Exchange Service our receipts have doubled. MECCA AMUSEMENT COMPANY, Reading, Penna.

SCRANTON, PA., March 2, 1909

PENN FILM EXCHANGE, Reading, Pa.
Gents.: Enclosed find check for next week's service, Pictures very good. Very truly yours, F. G. BECTELF.

NEW TITLES MADE
50 CENTS EACH
Shipped 24 hours after receipt of order
CENTAUR FILM MFG. CO., - 900 Broadway, Bayonne, N. J.
Chicago Office, Room 810, 79 Dearborn Street

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange
NINTH FLOOR
MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

RELEASED MONDAY, MARCH 8th

THE STOWAWAY

Length 820 Feet

A story of Russian Political Life full of heart-rending interest, highly exciting and interesting from start to finish. The fugitives live afterwards happy "under the Stars and Stripes, in the Land of the Free."

RELEASED THURSDAY, MARCH 11

The Little Rag Doll

Length 460 Feet

A beautiful sentimental story of a little girl and her rag doll, which finally is instrumental in the finding of her parents.

The New Mirror

Length 420 Feet

A novel plot cleverly depicted in a short picture. The new mirror saves the house from a robbery.

LUBIN'S MARVEL, UNDERWRITERS' APPROVED MODEL
The Machine You Want

LUBIN
MANUFACTURING COMPANY
926-928 Market Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

decidedly unpleasant for his wife, who cuts off his hair when he is asleep, whereat his strength departs and she succeeds admirably in getting even. While the picture isn't exactly silly, it hasn't much in it that is strong.

"With Hon. William H. Taft in Panama."—This picture should prove very popular just now. While it is but a record the subject is one of great interest. It shows some excellent pictures of Mr. Taft, made during his last journey to the Isthmus and it gives an excellent idea of the work on the canal and the way it is carried on. The photography is good, and the views are chosen with a view of conveying information to the American people regarding the canal which few of them could obtain in any other way. The Selig Polyscope Company is to be congratulated upon its enterprise and its success.

"The Policemen's Vision."—A Pathe comic in which that firm's well known magic plays a prominent part. A burglar appears and disappears at will, coaxes money from closed drawers and safes, and draws two policemen into many laughable situations. It is good, clean humor and keeps the audience laughing.

"The Piano Teacher."—A Gaumont film in which an elopement and abandonment form the basis of the story. These stories are much alike, the difference being in the acting and the working out of the details. The acting in this is good. The scene where the mother gives up her child is very pathetic and the reunion of the mother and child after a separation of ten years is perhaps equally as good. The story is well acted throughout, however, and as the end is happy it leaves a favorable impression upon the audience.

"Mogg Megone."—A free illustration of Whittier's poem from the Vitagraph. The photography in this film is good, and in some scenes little fault can be found with the acting, but the Indians clearly betray that they are not real Indians. Perhaps this may be considered a minor fault, however, and not vital to the picture. The killing of the chieftain by Ruth is a strong scene, perhaps the strongest in the picture, and the one where Ruth kills herself is also strong. The picture is not long and adds to a programme an element which is almost certain to attract.

"And His Coat Came Back."—A Vitagraph comic in which an undesirable coat forms the basis for a number of amusing situations. The judge gives it in turn to the janitor, the porter and a tramp and it comes back from each of them. He gives it to a foreign missionary society, and on a trip to the South Seas the coat is presented to him as a mark of esteem by a cannibal chief. The humor is clean and the picture is liberally applauded.

"The Bank Messenger."—A story from Lubin which illustrates a robbery of a bank, through the impersonation of a messenger and the arrest of the thief through identification by means of a laundry mark. One sometimes wonders if it is well to tell stories like this, which explain clearly a possibility. It may be interesting, but there is always danger that a depraved imagination may be fired to do likewise.

"A Secret."—How a secret is kept is told by Lubin in this picture. One whispers a story to another. They both in turn start to tell a third, all the time enjoining silence upon each other. And so they go about from house to house until everyone knows the secret. As a bit of character study no better film has been brought out in a long time.

"The Janitor's Bottle."—A comic from the Edison studio fairly well acted but weak in photography. The best actor is the little girl; she is admirable as she spies her parent drinking from the bottle. Raising her little finger, she scolds them, but as the old gentleman tells her that it is a medicine for his gout, she accepts the excuse. When the other old man appears with his foot bandaged, the little girl has pity on him and candidly offers the bottle of supposed medicine

"What a Uniform Will Do."—With such an amusing subject, the film could stand many more feet of funny incidents, but it seems that the best goods are delivered in small packages only. The audience was greatly amused but disappointed to see such a short career of the fake policeman. The scene which carried the house, is the one when the friend steals a bicycle and the witnesses of the robbery offer a bicycle to the fake policeman to run after the thief. It is a good Pathe production.

"A Little Coquette."—A much exaggerated comic of the Pathe Freres. If some of the funny stunts created a little hilarity, the film did not meet the general approval. It is perhaps the first time that the desk of a police magistrate is shown occupied by a sort of saintly clerical man.

"A Game of Chess."—A love story over a game of chess in which she moves, and invites him to the house to play; he moves and accepts; they both move in the game, and finally move themselves side by side and go on with their love-making in quite the approved fashion. It is a neat bit of comedy which Lubin has produced and it never fails to put the audience in the best humor.

"Love Me, Love My Dog."—If Lubin had undertaken to have offered an almost unanswerable argument against a fellow giving his best girl a dog he couldn't have succeeded any better. There are numerous funny situations in which the dog is preferred to the husband, until finally the woman relents and tells him she prefers him to a dog. Technically the film is good, and it causes much laughter wherever shown.

"Polka on the Brain."—A comic film of Urban of the silly order but minus funny stunts. Nothing to laugh at, no comical falls, no amusing incidents. A fool, not to say a crazy man, has the "polka" fever; he dances a few steps with a rack, a grandfather clock, a letter box, a dummy, etc. The only interesting scene is the one where our man eats his supper and sees the glasses, dishes, dance on the table.

"Joel's Marriage."—A good success for the Eclipse. A simple but well told country story. The film, although well acted and produced with much care, is remarkable for the excellency of its photography and for its beautiful and natural scenery. The film creates a good impression on the audience and fully proves that the public does not need silly stunts to be kept interested.

THE SONGS.

The week's songs have been an improvement upon those of the preceding week, and where a song has not entirely pleased it has not been the fault of the slide makers. They have made the most of their material, and the resulting pictures have been good.

As managers acquire more experience they are able to select songs which have a stronger appeal to the public. Further, slide makers are constantly doing better work, which has the effect of increasing the attractiveness of the songs and their illustrations. Continuous work in this direction will shortly have its influence on the box office receipts.

The later songs have been better and have afforded more opportunities for the illustrator. He has taken advantage of these opportunities, and the good illustrations, coupled with the more tuneful music, have combined to form a much more attractive feature. The audiences have shown their appreciation of the good songs offered them by hearty applause and numerous encores.

"I'd Turn the World Around for You," a sentimental song of the better order, was well sung at Keith's Union Square and received applause. The slides for this song, by Scott & Van Altena, are gems of pictorial quality and coloring.

THE LECTURETTES.

Better lecturettes have been noted this week. The subject matter has been far more interesting and the slides illustrating them have been truly educational. Such lecturettes, occupying perhaps five to ten minutes in the programme, afford a welcome change from the motion pictures and assist materially in improving the show.

Many subjects of timely interest are obtainable. "Our Navy" is one that should appeal strongly to any American audience now, and there are numerous subjects which will readily recur to any manager who is looking for something to strengthen his programme.

COMING HEADLINERS.

Next week the Selig Polyscope Company will release a dramatic film that bids fair to maintain the reputation of this company for producing headliners. "The Ironworker" is instructive in that it gives graphic views of a great iron foundry, but the interest centers around a brave workman who has for an enemy an incompetent fellow whom he has reprimanded, and the superintendent of the mill, who is jealous because the mill owner's daughter has taken an interest in the skilled and brave workman. There are the usual episodes of scheming and treachery to cause him to lose his position, and finally an attempt on his life, but through the medium of the young lady he is reinstated, promoted and finally wins her hand in marriage. The story is one that would be made more clear to the average audience by a brief lecture, and this is supplied free by the Selig Polyscope Company on application.

FILM SERVICE OF MERIT

SUPPLIED BY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and furnishing an exclusive licensed service, using only the films made by the following Licensed manufacturers:

American Mutoscope & Biograph Co.
Edison Manufacturing Co.
Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
Kalem Company.
George Kleine.
Lubin Manufacturing Co.
Pathe Freres.
Selig Polyscope Co.
Vitagraph Company of America.

A regular weekly supply of 18 reels of splendid new subjects is now available.

THREE OFFICES

ST. LOUIS, MO. 1401-05 Locust St.
LOUISVILLE, KY. 421 4th Avenue.
NEW ORLEANS, LA. c/o Shubert Theatre.

Don't Be a Cheap Skate

AND RUN A LOT OF JUNK

People won't stand for It
It Isn't Always Policy to Cut Down Expenses

INVEST YOUR MONEY IN A GOOD FILM SERVICE

The difference in price is a trifle, paid over and over again by increased patronage.

We are in an especially favorable position to take good care of you, getting a constant supply of
All the Latest Licensed Films Every Week

It certainly will pay you to Investigate

We still are and remain

C. J. HITE FILM CO.

Fourth Floor Monadnock Block - Chicago, Ill.
The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

SONG SLIDES

PEERLESS SONG SLIDES

The Kind that Almost Talk
Ever Imitated, NEVER EQUALED
Let us place you on our mailing list
Full line of ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES
SEND for SPECIAL PRICE LIST
SLIDES OF SICILY AND ITALY
Scene of the Recent Earthquake
Set of 20 plain, $4, colored $8. Set of 35 plain, $7, colored, $14
NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO. 143 N. 8th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides

The Finest Made. $5 per Set
All of the New Song Hits.

A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

Let Our Motto be Yours:
The Best not the Cheapest

Send 50 cents and 4 cents postage for sample of our latest annoucement slides. Write for same.

Advertising Slides Made To Order.

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.

407 Superior Building, CLEVELAND, OHIO

Managers—Operators—Leaders—Ticket Sellers —and Every Ambitious Attache of Moving Pictures Should Have

Driben's Essential Reference Books

No. 1 How to Produce Your Own Talking Pictures. Why pay hundreds weekly, for what you can do under your own supervision. Great $1.00

No. 2 20th Century methods of advertising. Extracts from the fyles of the greatest and most successful managers in business. Increase your receipts 65 to 75 per cent. weekly if adopted ..... .75

No. 3 Systematic record of your own, and your oppositions show. How to watch your opposition. How to work effects, which greatly increase the value of your picture. This Book Makes A Showman ..... .50

No. 4 How to defend yourself against the constant malicious attacks of the pulpit and other tyrants ..... .50

No 5 How to Properly Care for Your Machine, and get the better effects therefrom. Coloring your film. Care of film. Where to secure the best orchestral music, reports, etc. This is a great book. Contains Every House Detail. 1.00

Special until March 31st, entire Driben Publications $2.00

Express or P. O. order payable.

Driben Pub. Co., London, Ont., Canada

No. stamps. No currency. References: Bradstreet or Dun.

Wonderland Film Exchange

1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa.

Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company

Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.

EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices.

FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED

SINGING PICTURES: THE "CINEPHONE" SYNCHRONISER.

A cheap form of synchroniser, the Cinephone, which is being marketed by the Warwick Trading Company of London, will shortly be placed on the American market. From a description of the instrument given in an English contemporary we take the following particulars:

"There is no connection in the Cinephone between the gramophone at the foot of the sheet and the projector at the back of the hall. The speed of the projector does not accelerate or retard the action of the record in the slightest, nor that of the record affect the projector—which means that the possibility of mechanical trouble is done away with. Once the record has been started correctly it runs right through, and it devolves on the operator to keep the picture in synchronism by turning the handle of the projector at a greater or less speed as circumstances demand.

"He learns when such acceleration or retardation is necessary in a very simple manner. Attached to the projector, stationed at the foot of the sheet, is a box, on the end of which, in view of the operator, is an illuminated circular dial. As the record revolves, a pointer circles round the dial. At the same time, in the corner of the picture on the screen, a precisely similar dial and pointer is shown, and all the operator has to do is to regulate the speed of his projector so that the position of the pointer on the screen dial coincides with that on the gramophone dial.

"The starting of the machine is easily mastered. The pointer on the gramophone dial is brought to the '12 o'clock' position, and the reproducing needle placed on a white spot marking the beginning of the record. The operator at the gramophone then signals his readiness to begin to his companion at the other end and the latter starts the projector. Following the title of the song a short length of yellow title is flashed on the screen and this is the signal for the starting of the gramophone.

"An advantage of the Cinephone which in some circumstances may be of great value should be pointed out. The absence of electrical control of any kind means that the instrument is not put out of use if a supply of electric current is not available. Limelight may be used for projecting purposes, and a candle or lamp for illuminating the dial.

"Cinephone subjects are supplied on hire only.

"Mr. W. Barker and Mr. C. Jeapes, of the Warwick, who, we understand, are jointly responsible for the Cinephone, are to be congratulated on the ingenious and yet simple way in which they secure the desired combination of record and picture."

WHAT W. S. CLEVELAND IS ACCOMPLISHING.

As an example of what energetic, constant and intelligent application of a thorough knowledge of the show business and the requirements of managers and directors of parks, theaters and amusement enterprises can do, the Prudential Vaudeville Exchange, under the able management of W. S. Cleveland, is worth noting. Mr. Cleveland has taken the full course of "show business," beginning at the bottom and ascending to the top, as advance and press agent, house and road manager and proprietor, and has completed his post-graduate course in conducting a booking exchange which caters to all branches of the amusement world.

In 1906 W. S. Cleveland's Exchange furnished attractions for but nine parks and six fairs; in 1907 it booked twenty-three parks, twelve theaters, sixteen fairs; in 1908 it had the exclusive booking for eighteen theaters, thirty-nine parks and forty-three fairs. For this year, 1909, the Exchange will supply approximately one hundred and eighty-six parks and fairs, and one hundred and six theaters, of which ninety per cent. are booked exclusively.

For logical reasons, W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange keeps growing and growing. There is no agency better equipped and surely no manager strives harder to please his clients than this former minstrel proprietor. Also it is a fact that this Exchange has never had occasion to change its name or its management.

CHANGES IN NEW ENGLAND THEATERS.

Arthur C. Milot has purchased the Cummings Theater, Fitchburg, Mass., for $60,000 and will convert it into a moving picture show. Possession August 1, open August 15. The theater will be under the management of C. H. Webster. Sorel & Webster have assumed the management of the Lyric at New Britain, Conn. The Star, now being built in Clinton, Mass., will be managed by J. Henry Sorel, and the Scenic by C. H. Webster. The Scenic, at Narragansett Pier, R. I., will open June 20. C. H. Webster, owner and manager. With a four house circuit, these gentlemen are kept very busy.

PITTSBURG EXHIBITORS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION.

We have had the pleasure this week of a visit from Mr. George Balsdon, president of the recently formed Pittsburg Exhibitors' Protective Association, who was accompanied by Mr. John J. Windle, of the same city. Mr. Balsdon is of the firm of Royer & Balsdon Enterprises and Vaudeville Circuit, and Mr. Windle is proprietor of the Windle Enterprises. Both men are prominent and successful in the moving picture field of Pittsburg.

In Pittsburg there are about 50 exhibitors, 40 of whom are members of the association, which serves the office of an employment bureau and exists generally for the betterment of the business. In the course of a pleasant interview, we learned that the moving picture business was well established in Pittsburg long before it was a factor in New York. The greatest trouble that the exhibitors in Pittsburg experience is that the manufacturers do not get directly in touch with them, and that the film renter is ignorant of what the public wants. It is the exhibitor who feels the pulse of the public, according to Mr. Balsdon, and we quite agree with him. The exchange people take little or no interest in the films they handle. Scarcely one of them ever runs a film through before it is handed over to the exhibitor, who cannot make a choice, but must perforce be satisfied with what is handed to him by the renter.

It is the opinion of the Pittsburg association, and we believe the sentiment will be general throughout the moving picure field, that it is "up to" the renter to take more intelligent interest in the business. The association is anxious to welcome in even the smallest exhibitor, so that they may persuade him against the wong policy of giving too long and unsuitable shows. It is not quantity that is wanted, but quality, by the public.

The Pittsburg association, besides standing for excellence in quality of films, is desirous of eliminating unsuitable subjects, and are anxious to impress this fact upon the manufacturers. The association has made a most successful start, and we wish it success. We hope this example will be imitated in other cities.

Messrs. Balsdon and Windle were courteously received by the manufacturers in New York, who assured them of their hearty co-operation with the Pittsburg association in every move that was undertaken with the object of better regulating the film supply and placing the business generally on a higher level.

The two delegates each own well conducted theaters in Pittsburg and after visiting some of the shows in New York made the remark that residents of the Smoky City would not stand for the tawdry appearance and loose conduct of some of the New York places, while the outward appearance of one near-white place on New York's leading theater alley presented a more shoddy appearance than any place in Pittsburg, with all its smoke and grime.

OHIO EXHIBITORS UNITE.

Having as its ultimate object the formation of a national association, the Ohio Film Exhibitors' Protective Association perfected a permanent organization at Columbus last week and elected officers for the coming year.

Nearly every moving picture exhibitor in Ohio has become a member of the association or has signified his intention of becoming one before the next meeting. The purpose of the association is to further the cause of the moving picture business, to elevate the character of the pictures shown and to help each other mutually.

Officers elected were: A. Dupuis, Toledo, president; C. Johnson, Washington C. H., vice-president; W. C. Quimby, Zanesville, second vice-president; W. B. Gandy, Lima, treasurer; Max Stern, Columbus, secretary; L. P. Sawyer, Cincinnati, counsel. About sixty members were present at the meeting.

The Southwestern Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association has been organized at Little Rock, Ark. President, S. A. Evans, Little Rock; vice-president, G. K. Jorgensen, Galveston; secretary, John McClure, Little Rock; treasurer, W. N. Owen, Little Rock. The following quoted from their constitution shows the worthy objects of the association: "The object of the association is to mutually benefit and protect, by unity of action, the interest and welfare of persons engaged in the exhibition of moving pictures, who may become members of this association; to use our influence by all proper means to induce the manufacturers of moving pictures to manufacture only such pictures as will not be objectionable to reputable or sensitive people, and encourage only the manufacture of such pictures as are entertaining, instructive and educational; to take such measures as shall be consistent with law to protect the members of such association from being made subject to erroneous or extortionate charges of any and every kind; to place the members of this association, by unity of action, in an attitude to obtain film service at reasonable prices, and prevent any discrimination of any kind being imposed on any member by film exchanges or film associations, and seek such legislation as will give to moving picture exhibitors as much protection as is given to other places of amusement and to assist in every lawful manner each and every member of such association in all just contention against demands or imposition which affect the moving picture business."

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY.

THEIR POLICY AND PROCEDURE.

Both the Eugene Cline & Co. of Chicago and Eugene Cline offices of Salt Lake City have been served with cancellation notices by the Moving Picture Patents Company. The licenses of these concerns will be revoked within fourteen days. This announcement coming on top of Swanson's ousting last week has set the moving picture industry to thinking. It is conceded that the Patents Company have made rules and regulations which are meant to be enforced. No cause for the cancellations has been alleged.

During the past two weeks, thousands of applications for exhibitors' licenses have been filed with the Patents Company. To serve the best interests of all concerned, it has been decided to divide these applications in two classes, with a result most gratifying to the exchange people. It is proposed that those now operating moving picture theaters and those contemplating entering the field by new theaters or a change of policy should be handled separately. The theaters now established and making application can secure immediate service of licensed film, doing away with all tedious delays.

All licensed exchanges are permitted to accept the application and ten dollar license fee and begin service that day. The Patents Company upon sanctioning the application will issue a license, retaining the fee paid. A nominal exhibitor's royalty will be fixed from the time that service began. Should, for any sufficient reason, the application be denied, then the ten dollar fee will be immediately returned. There is positively no cost to file any application that is eventually rejected. From numerous exchanges throughout the country came appreciation of the new ruling, which is consistent with the Patents Company's policy of assisting and protecting its licensees.

Under the other class come new theaters, or those now used for other amusement purposes intending to enter the moving picture field. The utmost discretion will be used in granting licenses to new theaters. To those who have followed the sporadic growth of the film industry the reason is apparent. On every side have sprung up places of all kinds, many with no interests to serve than quick money making; no effort being made to secure proper fire protection, ventilation or safeguards against panics. Mainly for these reasons the Patents Company insist on knowing just who wants to open a theater and how it will be conducted.

Application may be made through an exchange or direct to the Patents Company. For this application a fee of ten dollars is charged and must accompany the application. The Patents Company, after due investigation, will either grant or reject the application; if the latter, the ten dollars will be immediately returned, thus entailing positively no cost to the applicant. For theaters desiring a license, service of licensed film cannot begin until the license is granted. Hearty endorsement is being extended the Patents Company on its effort to mould the picture enterprise into an enduring industry, and it is by elevating the business to the dignified profession wherein it belongs that its profitable permanency is assured.

An important announcement was made by the Patents Company this week to the effect that all customers of exchanges who had not paid the six dollar royalty due on March 6 would have their service discontinued. This same rule will be adopted in the future. Reports from different exchanges throughout the country, however, indicate that nearly ninety per cent. of the royalties were paid several days before due.

The general improvement in the moving picture business in the past month is attributed to the regulation and system put in vogue by the Patents Company, which insists on best quality film and fair treatment to its licensees.

MULLIN FILM SERVICE EXPANDS.

Syracuse, N. Y., February 25, 1909.

The World Photographic Publishing Co.,
125 East 23d Street, New York City.

Gentlemen: We beg to announce the MULLIN FILM SERVICE, INC., Main office corner of South Salina and East Fayette streets, Syracuse, N. Y., branches as follows:

Watertown, N. Y., Antique Theater Building.
Kansas City, Mo., 215-216 Argyle Building.
Scranton, Pa., Real Estate Exchange Building, 136 Washington avenue.
Minneapolis, Minn., Deane Building, 226 South 4th street.

For the general public and the information of your editor, we wish to announce that the above offices are in full operation and handling the entire output of both the foreign and American independent film manufacturers. The motto of the above company is "INDEPENDENCE" and the offices which are conducted under this name are up to date, well equipped establishments, carrying in stock a complete line of moving picture machines, supplies, films, and, in fact, everything pertaining to the business.

Very truly yours,
MULLIN FILM SERVICE.
J. M. Mullin, Pres.

All the Latest Song Slide Hits to Rent

New Firm. All new Slides. Best Service in Chicago. Price 50c. per set a week, a weeks supply shipped at one time.

WESTERN SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE
59 Dearborn Street Real Estate Bldg. Third Floor Chicago, Ill.

Bound Volumes of Moving Picture World

VOLUME I, MARCH-DECEMBER, 1907 (limited number)
VOLUME 2, JANUARY-JUNE, 1908 (indexed)
VOLUME 3, JULY-DECEMBER, 1908 (Indexed)

$2.00 each; $6.00 for the three volumes and a year's subscription
MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 125 East 23d Street, New York City

THE BEST MOVING PICTURE MACHINE.

RHEOSTATS
CONTAIN
CLIMAX WIRE

Catalogue and information upon request.

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.,
HARRISON, N. J.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

EXPERIENCED OPERATORS.

Julius J. Klenk, 2524 So. 6th street, Philadelphia, Pa. Licensed operator, wishes position. Willing to travel.

S. R. Taylor, 148 West 46th street, New York City. Expert operator, New York license, or as manager. Ten years' experience. Six years with American Mutoscope and Biograph Company. Willing to locate anywhere.

Lecturer, Talking Pictures, Promoter and experienced manager at liberty. Strictly sober. Geo. Walker Brydgen, 233 E. Ontario street, Chicago, Ill.

C. M. Ellis, 221 Sixth street, Cairo, Ill. Experienced manager, also operator. Five years in all branches of the business. Does not smoke or drink.

J. S. Fogan, 628 E. Wintah street, Colorado Springs, Colo. Expert operator and electrician wishes position in any part of the West. References.

P. A. A., 216 South Ninth street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; experienced operator and electrician; ten years' experience; married; sober and reliable. Has N. Y. and Mass. license.

James Sang, 1444 Avenue A, New York City, desires position as manager; can sing, operate and lecture. Has ten years' experience.

E. J. Wilson, care Ownes, 37 Marion street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; experienced operator and electrician. Road or permanent. Has ten years' experience.

Frederick F. Freese, 1759 Third avenue, New York City. Expert operator; practical electrician; all connections; 10 years experience; all machines; alternating or direct current; also calcium light; either road or permanent; New York State license.

R. Johnson, 107 South High street, Steubenville, Ohio. Expert operator; three years experience.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

Braymer, Mo.—G. K. Culp and son have sold the Lyric Theater to R. L. Ford.

Toluca, Ill.—John Pasini has sold his interest in the moving picture show to L. Roberts.

Lynchburg, Va.—C. S. Reams will open a new moving picture theater on Seventh street.

Sterling, Ill.—Adolph Loux will open a new moving picture theater on West Third street.

Hobart, Ind.—John Stocker has sold his interest in the ten-cent theater to Ed Spencer.

Tacoma, Wash.—W. P. Brown has purchased the interest of C. C. Clark in the Lyric Theater.

Shelbina, Mo.—J. B. Murdock, of this city, will open a new moving picture theater in Chicago, Ill.

Toluca, Ill.—John Pasini has sold his interest in the moving picture show to his partner, L. Roberts.

Urbana, Ill.—Mr. W. E. Gavin, of Pontiac, is planning to establish a moving picture theater here.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Ed Lampson is considering the erection of a Summer theater on Shawnee street.

St. Charles, Ill.—Gus Cook has sold the Star Theater to Jack Langell, who is now in possession.

Ft. Wayne, Ind.—F. W. Hartman has purchased the Lyric Theater here and has taken possession.

Chanute, Kan.—R. J. Fowler has leased the Roof Garden and will operate it as a moving picture house.

Danville, Ill.—Mr. Conway has leased the Airdome Theater here, and will soon be open for business.

Pekin, Ill.—G. S. Stiles, proprietor of the Vaudette Theater, has disposed of his business to L. C. Woodrow.

Springfield, Mass.—Extensive improvements are to be made to the Bijou Theater, located in the Dupont's Hall.

Merrill, Wis.—Mr. Charles Staehle, of Appleton, is making arrangements to establish a moving picture theater here.

Wapping Falls, N. Y.—Fred Godding opened his moving picture theater in the Meyers building on Market street.

Scotts Bluff, Neb.—A $20,000 opera house is to be erected at the corner of Main and Wapta streets by L. C. Marquis.

Macon, Ill.—F. H. Earl and son have leased the McMurtie building here, and will open it as a moving picture theater.

Decatur, Ill.—Fred Sieviking has sold the nickelodeon on East Main street to Golder Joseph, who has taken possession.

Luverne, Minn.—Al Grant has sold the Grant Theater here to Chat Webber, and will go to Seattle, Wash., and open a similar house.

Hamilton, Ohio.—The Schwartz building is being remodeled into a moving picture theater for Messrs. Broomhaul and Schwolm.

Centralia, Ill.—The Varsity, the west side moving picture theater, has been sold to J. A. Murphy, of St. Louis, who has taken possession.

Monmouth, Ill.—Robert Lytle, and others, have leased the skating rink on South Main stret, and will convert it into a moving picture house.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—R. Clark, A. White, and E. Clark, have incorporated as the North End Amusement Company, with a capital of $5,000.

Alpena, Mich.—Napoleon Ducharme and J. Russel Thompson have purchased the Dreamland Theater, and will make extensive improvements.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A new moving picture theater has been opened at 1221 Market street; it is known as the "Unique." William D. Hall is manager.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Harry A. Miller, of Washington, D. C., has purchased the Electric Theater on Main street of W. W. Tidde and has taken possession.

Atlanta, Ga.—Work has commenced on the new vaudeville and moving picture theater at 99 Peachtree street by the Howard Amusement Company.

Frederick, Md.—F. Schaffer and Roy W. Schaffer have leased the Family Theater, in Union Hall, on North Market street, and are now in charge.

Bladensburg, Ohio.—The Bladensburg Opera House Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $2,500. The incorporators are: S. C. Horn, E. L. McKee, T. J. Porterfield, E. L. Wolfe and A. J. Rine.

Hammond, Ind.—James Rogers has completed arrangements for the opening of his new moving picture theater here. It is known as the "Star."

Bowling Green, Ohio.—George Carnes has disposed of the Princess Theater here to Messrs. J. D. Stockman and Frank Patterson, who have taken possession.

Montpelier, Vt.—The Palace Theater in the Sabin block has been sold by C. C. Page and M. James Doyle to W. J. Fisher, John F. Dobbs and L. N. Wood.

Tuscola, Ill.—W. H. Miller is making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater here. Mr. Miller is also planning to open a similar house in Champaign.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Magistrate John J. Grelis has been granted a permit for a one-story moving picture theater at the corner of Twenty-ninth and York streets, to cost about $6,000.

Chicago, Ill.—L. M. Rubens proposes to build a circuit of nickel theaters in Elgin, Aurora, Joliet, Peoria, Rockford and Springfield. All the theaters are to be known as the "Crystal Stairs."

Baltimore, Md.—Architect E. Selckmann is completing plans for the erection of a moving picture theater at Francis street and Wilson avenue, for Messrs. Theo. Doukas and George Konstant.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The F. & N. Amusement Company filed certificates of incorporation with a capital of $3,000. Directors: S. Fieldman, 235 Hart street; Frank Nudelman, and N. Slotopolsky, all of Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Crystal Palace Amusement Company, incorporated; capital, $5,000. Directors: H. Barrington, 101 Norman avenue; J. Barrington, 72 Norman avenue; and Geo. Hovell, 128 Eckford street, Brooklyn.

New York, N. Y.—The Terra-Marine Amusement Company of New York has been incorporated with a capital stock of $200,000. The incorporators are: Ernest W. Cushing and F. B. Merkle, 220 Broadway; Sol. Coller, 3 Beekman street.

Little Rock, Ark.—The Fort Smith Cameraphone Company filed articles of incorporation. The company is capitalized for $10,000 and will engage in buying, selling and operating moving picture enterprises. Wm. Moore is the president.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Bristol Amusement Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are George H. Bristol, 100 Elkton street; C. R. Nims, 763 Hancock street; and H. W. Johnston, 484 Decatur street.

Dover, Del.—The Pittsburg Calcium Light and Film Company has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $100,000, to deal in motion pictures. The incorporators are Richard A. Rowland, James B. Clark and Joseph A. Langfitt, of Pittsburg.

Syracuse, N. Y.—The Mullin Film Service has also been incorporated, to manufacture moving picture machines, films, song slides, and all devices connected with the business; capital, $10,000. Directors: Jay Mullin, Herbert K. Somborn, 125 Rosenbloom block, Syracuse; and Jos. H. Nutting, 125 Boyd street, Watertown, N. Y.

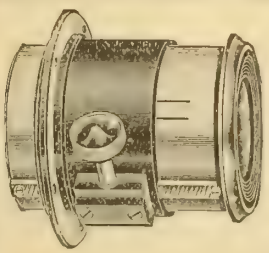
Defiance, Ohio.—The "Elite" Theater, one of the finest moving picture show houses in this section, was opened last week. The equipment includes fine opera chairs, the latest Edison machine, and everything up-to-date. Although the seating capacity is 150, many people were turned away on the opening night. Mr. A. A. Hudson, the proprietor, is not without experience in his line and it is evident that he will make a success of his new venture.

SIMPSON'S SOLAR SCREEN.

Managers have long wanted a screen that would make their pictures more brilliant, one that would reflect rather than absorb light. Simpson's solar screen appears to meet the most exacting requirements, and enables managers to overcome many of the difficulties which have hitherto beset them.

Its principal claim to consideration lies in the fact that the room can be fully illuminated while the pictures are shown without reducing their brilliancy In New York and other large cities where the fire regulations are strict the full illumination of the room is an important consideration, and should be considered by managers in preparing their theaters. Wherever this screen has been tried it has proved its worth beyond all possibility of attack. Full particulars can be obtained of A. L. Simpson, 113 West 132d street, New York.

W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange
535-536-537 Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg., 1402 Broadway, NEW YORK
We Book Theatres, Clubs, Parks, Fairs, Rinks, Circuses, Airdomes, Picture Houses, Horse Shows, etc. We treat all alike. Control 500 Acts.
Our efficient service insures success of your Enterprise. Ask anybody.
New Department { Theatres, Parks, Bought, Sold, Leased, Operated. Dramatic Bureau, Plays, Routes, People, Costumes, Scenery.



We make the best lenses in the world for projecting motion pictures and lantern slides. Can you spend a little money more wisely and profitable than by ordering a set of lenses which will
IT'S ALL IN THE LENS
IMPROVE YOUR PICTURES?
NEW PRICES
M. P. Projection Lenses any size with our improved jacket with spiral adjustment..... $15.00
No. 1 Stereopticon Lenses..... 15.00
No. 2 Stereopticon Lenses..... 20.00
All dealers sell them on approval.
WRITE FOR OUR NEW CIRCULAR
When ordering state the size of your screen and the length of the picture wanted. Give the distance from the lens to the screen. Remit the price of the lens or furnish references.
GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

Travelogues
2 NEW SETS JUST OUT
No. 5955 AMONG THE CHINESE 39 Slides
No. 5956 IN AND AROUND CUBA 34 Slides
$10 00 Per Set—All Beautifully Colored
STOCK SLIDES, 3 FOR $1.00
THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY
W. S. Walker, Mgr.
224 TREMONT STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

Exhibitors! Note That
SOUVENIRS
are a Great Drawing Card for
5 AND 10 CENT THEATRES
We Give You the Greatest Value for the Least Money
DROP US A POSTAL. CATALOGUE FREE ON APPLICATION

No. O 12
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100

No. 500 I/6
Cup 2¼ x 2¼
Saucer 4½
75c per dozen

No. 1048
Height 2½ ins.
$3.25 per 100
TAKITO, OGAWA & CO.
Importers and Manufacturers of
JAPANESE GOODS
166 East Lake Street - Chicago, Ill.

CORRESPONDENCE.

OPERATORS, THEIR HOURS AND PAY.

Chicago, Ill., February 26, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—You ask for replies to F. B.'s letter. Really, it is somewhat a matter of surprise that a man should enquire in this enlightened day and age, whether or no he should be asked and expected to work thirteen hours per day!

Most emphatically NO, he should not! And if he is asked to he should humbly call the anxious employer's attention to the fact that perpetual motion has not as yet been discovered.

A concern which has two houses, each open from 10 A. M. to 11 P. M., should by all means have two operators for each house. Wages will depend on the locality, of course. To attempt to run the two places with three operators would break up the time too much. An operator who attempts to work long hours, watching a picture constantly, with an occasional squint at a bright "spot," will discover sooner or later that his eyes will play out and that, once played out, they won't "play in" again.

As to wages—that is a hard matter on which to offer advice. Generally speaking, however, in these days of high prices a city operator should receive not less than a minimum of $18 per week for an evening show, ranging from that up to $30 or $35 per week for high-class jobs. No matter if the man does only work three or four hours per evening. He must work Sundays too, usually, and it is all he is able to do for a living since he can't expect to work during the day and half the night and work Sunday too. His living must, therefore, come from operating and the good Lord knows that $18 per week is little enough for one man, let alone a family, to exist on. Personally the writer thinks any man with sufficient intelligence to make a really good and competent operator, in all that term implies, is worth $25 per week of any manager's coin. The "great trouble" is that, as a matter-of-fact, only about two out of ten operators, taking the country over, are really competent in all that word implies.

That state of affairs is perhaps natural when one comes to consider the very rapid growth of the motion picture industry. To become a "COMPETENT" operator requires much careful study and this study must include electricity and optics mainly.

One will often hear "operators" bragging that they "have a hundred-foot throw," not knowing that they are displaying their ignorance is so doing. As a matter of fact one gets a better picture at 100 feet than at 50 feet, provided the pictures be the same size and the light the same. There is a very good reason for it too. Isn't it rather laughable, when one considers that a light-ray will travel all the millions of miles from the sun, to imagine that a ray of light will be in any wise affected by an additional 50 feet of travel? Of course, it must be admitted, at that, that the ray IS slightly affected by reason of impurities in the atmosphere, but the superior excellence of the long-range lens more than counterbalances this and, as said, the ultimate effect at 100 feet is better than at 50 feet.

Wages depends on ability and locality, but the really competent man should have ——m-m-m GOOD wages.

F. H. RICHARDSON.

THE POOR OPERATORS.

Philadelphia, Pa., February 23, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—I notice in your issue of February 20 you have quite a little to say in regard to poor operators. At this moment I know of nothing better that you could suggest to the Patents Company that every licensed machine fee, which seems to cause so much discussion, would be used for the purpose of paying inspectors to examine the work of operators. The finest work of the manufacturers can be ruined by a poor operator. The exhibitor, generally speaking, is not a mechanic and is made to believe anything the operator tells him. The insurance people protect their interest by making the most rigid examinations all the time of our places of business, and the Patents Company should see that their business is not marred by poor operators. Mr. Lyman H. Howe is the biggest advertisement the picture business ever had; he has done more to elevate it and hold it at a high standard than any other single individual, yet he jumps from town to town, his apparatus has all kinds of wear, still no one can excell him in showing a picture. He has operators that the precautious and foreseeing manager's wise investment. Let us submit you some figures that will convince you that our proposition is a real inducement.

Calumet Film Service

IS

The Calumet Film Exchange

1609-1610 MASONIC TEMPLE - - - CHICAGO, ILL.

can operate. If exhibitors had some means of securing good operators the business would constantly advance. At the present time a man says he is a good operator, and how many exhibitors can deny it? Everything is to blame, except the operator—so is his story.

Yours,
CHAS. H. AMOS.

[In the "Situations Wanted" column will be found the names of several good operators who complain that their positions were taken by men who would work for less money to get the experience. When they have secured this and ask for more money another "expert" is out of a job and a new operator is being broken in at the expense of the public.—Ed.]

THEATER FILM SUPPLY COMPANY.

Birmingham, Ala., February 15, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—The two undersigned companies take pleasure in announcing to you the consolidation of their respective businesses into one company, which has been incorporated under the name of the Theater Film Supply Company, Inc., of Birmingham, Ala., with a branch office at Charlotte, N. C.

The purposes of the consolidation of the companies is to enable a better handling of the business and a superior supply of all of the 18 reels of films being issued in this country by the licensed manufacturers and importers. It is but natural that with such a large variety of film subjects each week handled direct by one company a great many of the former imperfections of the supply service can be removed. Theaters can be supplied without the confusion or repeating of film subjects where the demand for new subjects does not exceed the weekly supply. It will enable us to take films from service at intervals and clean them before being sent out. Films will have a better opportunity for inspection and thus give greater satisfaction to users. A more intelligent selection of additional prints of the best feature films will be made in order that each of the theaters may in turn have them.

The most important of our plans is one by which we believe we can greatly increase the receipts of the theaters by a system that will enable them to know in advance what they are to have and thus by advertising the best of the feature film subjects attract more universal patronage to the theater.

This latter plan is very important but depends somewhat upon co-operation we hope to have from the Southern Express Company, with whom we are arranging to discuss the matter.

We feel confident that the consolidation of these companies will enable the film supply business to be brought nearer to ideal conditions than is otherwise possible and we earnestly hope that you will co-operate with us to this end.

Thanking you for past favors and assuring you prompt and careful attention at all times, we remain,

Yours very truly,

C. F. BAILEY, for Southern Film Exchange.

A. R. BOONE, for Theater Film Supply Co.

A FEW MORE COMMENTS.

Chicago, Ill., February 24, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—In your "Weekly Comments on the Shows," issue of February 20, the Pathe film "Assassination of the Duke of Guise" was lauded as a most excellent piece of work, but, the writer states, was coldly received by the audience, intimating that this chilliness was probably due to lack of understanding of the historical subject on the part of the audience. The writer does not think so! He is quite sure it was caused wholly by the fact that, fine as is the photographic work and acting in this picture, there is little to it except an exhibition of rank religious hypocrisy and cold-blooded brutality on the part of the "King."

All through the picture the king makes great pretense of cloaking his cowardly crime with religion and he wantonly kicks the head of the corpse his minions have just slaughtered at his behest. It is no gentle kick either! All this may be strictly historical, but, even so, the writer does most emphatically not believe the public—the American public at least—wishes to witness the reproduction of such revolting scenes or to be reminded that their ancestors suffered themselves to be lorded over and governed by such hypocritical brutes.

F. H. RICHARDSON.

[The opinion of our critic on the Pathe film referred to is shared by other newspaper writers. Brutality figures in other subjects which are understood and appreciated by some audiences —Editor M. P. W.]

CENSORSHIP OF FILM SUBJECTS.

February 18, 1909.

Editor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—Enclosed herewith find matter concerning the censorship of film, in which is incorporated the official letter of the People's Institute.

It is the desire of the People's Institute and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of the State of New York that this matter be given as wide publicity as possible, and whatever you may see fit to carry will be greatly appreciated.

Truly yours,
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association of the State of New York.

[On another page is reproduced the article referred to, together with a reprint from the People's Institute Bulletin. We are pleased to see the interest taken in this subject by the civic bodies and will co-operate with them; at the same time we are glad to note that the tone of the films now being produced seem to make the offices of the censor less and less necessary.—Ed.]

MOTION PICTURES IN NEW JERSEY.

"Over on the Jersey side" motion pictures are popular. Newark, for example, has twenty-five places, most of them good, some excellent and all showing to continuously full houses. The shows open about noon in most localities and keep going continuously until 11 at night. In Paterson they close an hour at 5.30.

The places were all inspected last week and only a few were found defective, and those in minor matters only. Three were found without licensed operators. In one instance pieces of film were lying about the booth with the machine. Additional exits were ordered in other places, but aside from this no fault was found with the show places.

Newark is troubled with the patrons who pay their nickels and make a day of it. One proprietor said that he sometimes thinks the only things that move in his place are the pictures. Some places have illustrated songs. Some have lecturettes, and a few have vaudeville; but nearly all want pictures alone and find that they keep the houses full.

Offensive pictures get short shrift in Newark. Patrons do, however, like pictures with plenty of action, and something amusing. A number of places are showing this week well known and favorite stories in pictures. Melodrama doesn't seem to be wanted, but a story that is full of good, moving action will please almost invariably. The familiar chase pictures are very popular in Newark and will excite roars of laughter.

Wild West pictures are popular and managers say they are asked over and over again to show more of that type of picture. In the main the audiences are appreciative and a good picture will get as hearty applause as would the actors themselves.

Newark has a large Italian population. In those parts of the city where the Italians congregate marionette shows were formerly popular. They have all been abandoned in favor of the moving picture, and lively subjects, with plenty of action, are most popular. When the earthquake scenes in Messina were shown a few weeks ago lamentations in the Italian audiences were marked, as one after another of the familiar places appeared on the screen, showing only ruins.

So far as the Newark shows were visited, it seemed as though the managers were giving the best possible pictures. Evidently they try to keep their pictures up to a high standard, and a film which is improper in any degree is never shown the second time. And the picture-loving public of the city is patronizing the shows. It would seem as though they must be making money. With this general desire to please and to hold the pictures up to a high standard so manifest among Newark managers there is no reason why the business should not be continuously popular there.

CINCINNATI NICKELODEON REGULATIONS.

Under the provisions of the proposed new ordinance the theater management must show, before a permit will be granted, that it has complied with all the ordinances regulating proper fire precautions. Such a place of amusement cannot be established closer than 500 feet from a church or school, and if a majority of residents within a distance of 500 feet from the place object to the establishment of such a theater the permit will not be granted.

If anything of an objectionable nature is offered the Mayor will have the right to revoke the permit at once without refunding the price of the license.

The First High Grade Film Service In America

FURNISHED BY

20th Century Optiscope Co.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

59 Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

OFFICES AT

Argyle Building, KANSAS CITY, MO.

Eccles Building, OGDEN, UTAH

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

THE ROUE'S HEART.—

Oh happiness of blindness! Now no beauty
Inflames my lust; no other's goods my envy,
Or misery my pity; no man's wealth
Draws my respect; nor poverty my scorn.
—Denham.

The Biograph with this subject presents a beautiful romance of a blind sculptress. Mons. Flamant, a typical roue of the French nobility, is surrounded by all the pleasures and pastimes his fabulous wealth can procure, but still at times he suffers extreme weariness and disgust for the toadying sycophants about him, so in quest of diversion he visits the art rooms, just as a young girl enters with a magnificent piece of sculpture and places it on sale. The roue is so impressed with the work and the girl that he purchases it at once and follows her to the atelier, where he learns that she is the maid of the sculptress, whom he sees and at once falls passionately in love with her as only a man of his type can, but when he learns that she is totally blind, his feelings change to one of deepest pity, which is, we know, the kindling of pure love. He arranges with her to sit for a bust of himself and when it is finished he declares his love for her but she realizes her condition and rejects it, although she has by intuition come to love him deeply. As he leaves the studio crestfallen she sinks down and for the first time feels the enormity of her affliction, sobbing she cries: "Oh! God, how I love him, and yet it must not be." A little child model, who is employed by the sculptress, hears this and trips from the place and makes her way to the roue's palace, where she tells him the empyrean truth. Taking up the little one in his arms he rushes back to the studio to set aside the sculptress' compunction and claim her as his own. Length, 755 feet.

THE SALVATION ARMY LASS.—A beautiful story of the battle between good and evil. In this film the Biograph issue a subject taken under most unique auspices, as we recognize during its production the hearty co-operation of the officers of the Salvation Army of New York, so that the several army scenes are in strict accord with the Army's form of ceremony. The story itself contains one of the most beautiful, convincing and powerful sermons ever depicted and goes far to emphasize the charitable work of that worthy organization among the poor and needy, to ameliorate their material as well as spiritual wants. Mary Wilson, a neglected child of the slums, falls in with Bob Walton, a tough denizen of the lower east side, and loves him with a pure, honest affection that his low nature cannot appreciate. He forces her to enter a saloon where she is insulted by Harry Brown, which is resented by Bob. They quarrel, come to blows, and Brown draws a gun as Bob closes in on him, forcing the muzzle against Brown's breast as it exploded, thereby causing him to shoot himself, dying almost instantly. But Walton is arrested and sentenced to one year in Sing Sing. The morning papers appear with an account of the affair and as Mary's name is put into prominence in the account she is grievously hounded by misfortune, evicted from her boarding place and also discharged from the factory where she works, she falls into the hands of a professional woman shoplifter, who is anxious to enlist her services as an accomplice. The girl soon discovers the character of her would-be benefactor, and rushes from the place, running into the arms of the Salvation Army, which offers her peace and rest. Taking her to the barracks she is enrolled a soldier, and one soul is lifted from the darkness into the light. With the Army, Mary has won the affection of all for her humility and goodness. Working as she does, in the slums a year later she comes face to face with Bob, who has just been released from prison, having served his time. He is on the point of becoming a party to a burglary, but she prevents, even with almost fatal results for herself. But she will not give him up, and after a series of touching episodes finally moves him to appreciate the strength of that holy invitation "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give thee rest," so in the final scene we see Bob kneel in devout humility to receive God's healing grace from His ministers. A strong point in this subject is that it depicts real life and real people. Length, 926 feet.

THE WOODEN LEG.—Homely as this might seem, it is the moving factor of this Biograph romance. Harry and Claire had long loved each other, but, while Harry was a good sort, Papa had made other plans for Claire. He had arranged to give her hand in marriage to a wealthy old fossil, of whom he knew little but the extent of his pecuniary assets. The day for his arrival was at hand and Harry and Claire determined to make one last appeal. They do, and with usual result. Dejected they leave the room, when a one-legged hobo attracts Harry's attention. An idea! He calls in the tramp and suggests Claire put on the wooden leg, the tramp to hide in the closet. Well the ancient swain appears and presses his suit, which is received with nonchalance by Claire, but when he sees the tip of the wooden leg protruding from beneath the flounce of her skirt he turns and "beats it" with such dispatch that he knocks Papa over when he tries to detain him. The tramp is given a V for his part of the game, and we leave Harry and Claire happy in each other's arms. Length, 240 feet.

EDISON MFG. CO.

THE COLORED STENOGRAPHER.—Synopsis of scenes: It is Mr. Bunk's unlucky day. Before leaving for business he is despoiled of all his ready cash by Mrs. Bunk for bargain sale.

At the office his homely stenographer (chosen by Mrs. Bunk) aggravates him by her eternal primping. About to discharge her, he is restrained by the sudden appearance of his wife laden with the spoils of the bargain counter. The bargains, of course, are of main importance. They are displayed and discussed with animation by the ladies. Business routine is shattered. Mr. Bunk, irritated beyond endurance, rages from the office intent on obtaining a stenographer of his own choosing.

At the employment office it is impossible to please him, until the arrival of Miss Dimples, a stunning blonde. Mr. Bunk can hardly wait for an introduction, she is hired on the spot.

Returning to the office he is dumbfounded to find his wife still talking. Equal to the occasion he hides Miss Dimples behind a desk—diplomatically starts his wife homeward and in no gentle manner discharges the cause of his woe. Seeking vengeance, the discharged stenographer causes Mrs. Bunk's return to the office, where she vociferously demands admittance. Mr. Bunk, caught in a trap, attempts to deceive her by substituting the colored scrubwoman at the typewriter while the pretty stenographer on her knees scrubs the floor.

Upon entering, Mrs. Bunk enjoys the situation by snubbing the stenographer and making pretensions of friendliness to the colored woman who, after making a sad mess of the typewriter, presumes to don Miss Dimples' "Merry Widow" hat. Miss Dimples resents the insult with the scrubbing brush—a spirited fight ensues, and the hat is torn to pieces as Mr. Bunk is despairingly led away by his wife. Approximate length, 635 feet.

MARY JANE'S LOVERS.—Synopsis of scenes: Mary Jane, an angler for the hearts of men, counted as her catch all the neighborhood tradesmen. Lovers were her main concern, consequently her work in Mrs. Scrap's boarding house was sadly neglected.

A burglar who gained entrance through the window hid behind the trunk at the entrance of landlady and servant, and was much amused at the landlady's warning that any further evidence of amatory proceedings would terminate in Mary's immediate discharge. Mary, however, is little impressed. The handsome postman is immediately invited into the dining room much to the discomfort of the burglar who shows disgust at the silly love making. . Someone coming, the burglar ducks behind the trunk as Mary in alarm hides the postman under the table.

The grocer's boy breezily entering grabs Mary around the waist with evidence of proprietary right. Carefully screening the postman under the table she accepts his advances. The tramp marooned behind the trunk makes the best of the situation by purloining a free lunch from the grocer's basket. The love making has reached its height. The landlady is heard on the stairs; there being no chance for escape the boy is husked into the trunk.

The landlady, oblivious to the presence of burglars and lovers, orders the quaking servant to the kitchen, and sits down for a peaceful moment. Policeman Flynn passing the window is invited in for a quiet glass. Being warm he removes his coat and revolver, unfortunately placing them on the trunk. The burglar appreciating a good joke, dons the coat of authority. With ready revolver he holds up the policeman. Orders the frightened lovers from their hiding, and lines them up against the wall in true bandit style. Relieving them of their valuables, he hurriedly escapes amidst the hysterical screams of the landlady. Approximate length, 265 feet.

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM.—Synopsis of scenes: A beautiful, reverential picture, suitable for the coming Lenten season, showing the eventful period immediately preceding the birth of the gentlest of men.

The life of the time is faithfully shown, and the hardships attending the wanderings of Mary and Joseph. Their seeking shelter, being denied, and finally forced to find refuge in a stable.

The arrival of the wise men called Magi, gentle philosophers from Persia and India, bearing gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh for the child, whom they worship as a King.

Herod, the king, sends for the wise men, questions them regarding the coming of Christ; where he is to be born, and the time—for he is very much troubled withal.

The wise men are warned by an angel and depart from Judea, returning to their own country.

Joseph and Mary are also warned and flee with the child, into Egypt.

Herod, exceedingly angry, sends forth his command to slay all the children in Bethlehem from two years and under—hoping to encompass the death of the child whose coming he feared.

Throughout, the action is beautifully sustained; enacted in a reverent spirit. Costumes and characters historically correct and stage settings as elaborate as ever used.

The scenes wherein the shepherds watch by night—the humble stable and lowly manger—the arrival of the wise men bearing gifts, and the tender devotion shown, makes this a fitting product for the coming season. Approximate length, 950 feet.

KALEM COMPANY.

THE SEMINOLE'S VENGEANCE; Or, The Slave Catchers of Florida.—A new film of great historic interest, "The Seminole's Vengeance; Or, The Slave Catcher's of Florida." Possibly you have never heard much of the brave Seminole Indians of the Florida Everglades. In one respect at least they are distinguished above all the other tribes of America and that lies in the fact that they are the only Indians who were never defeated by the troops of the United States. For years they waged war against the whites and repeated expeditions which were sent against them had to acknowledge themselves beaten when the savages retreated into the unexplored fastness of the great Florida swamps. Our story deals with the period just before the Civil War and the principal characters are Coacoochie, a young chief; Nina, his sweetheart, a half-breed Spaniard and the slave catchers of Florida. In order that you may understand just what we mean by "slave catchers" I will say that they were men who made it a business to catch runaway slaves, but who were utterly unscrupulous and on false papers would kidnap free negroes, half-breeds, and even Seminole Indians and sell them into bondage on the pretense that they were escaped slaves. We will show you how these slave catchers operated and how the Seminoles got the best of them.

Scene 1.—The slave catchers thrash Coacoochie, and Boyd, an Englishman, comes to the rescue.

Scene 2.—The slave catchers seize the mother and brother of Nina, Coacoochie's sweetheart, falsely claiming they are escaped slaves.

Scene 3.—Boyd ambuscaded; Coacoochie saves his life.

Scene 4.—The Seminoles refuse the United States decree of banishment.

Scene 5.—The escape from the fortress at St. Augustine.

Scene 6.—Nina, befriended by Boyd's sister, also falls into the clutches of the slave catchers.

Scene 7.—Boyd and his sister to the rescue.

Scene 8.—The escaped Seminoles arrive in the nick of time.

Complete lecture from the Kalem Company, 131 West Twenty-fourth street, New York City.

GAUMONT.

(George Kleine.)

THE BLACKSMITH'S BRIDE.—A young girl forced to leave her home is taken in by a neighbor and the two become fast friends. The ingratitude of mankind is soon apparent and the new friend seeks to and succeeds in diverting the love of her benefactress' fiance, a stalwart young blacksmith. Fate, however, intervenes, and shortly after an accident at the shop causes the smith to lose his life. The young woman, now a mother, deserts her child and leaves for parts unknown. The little infant is found and cared for by the former sweetheart of its father.

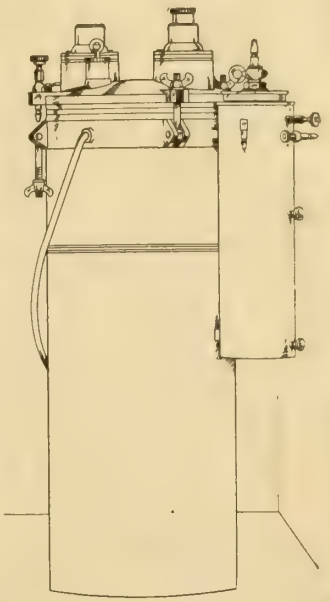
As a sequel, we see the little child in company with its foster mother wend their way to the cemetery to decorate the grave of the parent. Beautifully pathetic, well rendered and of excellent photographic quality. Length, 720 feet.

THE POSTAL CLERK.—This story portrays the subtle means of woman to accomplish her own ends in spite of the objections of man. A postal clerk having recently entered the ranks of the benedicts does not feel inclined to grant the wish of his wife for a diamond ring. This results in a conspiracy to arouse his jealousy. A letter is addressed to the wife and in his capacity as a postal clerk the husband receives the letter. A scene is caused when the wife demands her mail and when later the husband demands the privilege of reading the letter he finds the joke is on him, surrenders and promptly makes the purchase desired. Length, 292 feet.

THE SMOKING LAMP.—A comedy certain to win unqualified approval. The principal character is a man of habits who is returning from a night's carousal. Without divesting himself of his apparel, he goes to sleep on his bed and soon gives a most vivid demonstration of the "s-n-a-k-e-s." The smoke from the lamp forms a frame for the visions portrayed. Nothing vulgar or offensive, and of excellent quality. Length, 324 feet.

THE IRRESOLUTE MAN.—"As the wind bloweth the chaff" so the minds of men are constantly changing. This series illustrates in a very amusing manner the actions of a man without strength of will. Scarcely has his mind come to a de-

PORTABLE GAS-MAKING OUTFIT
EDISON OXYGEN GENERATOR



What Motion Picture Exhibitor has not at times wished that he had a reliable and inexpensive means for producing gas that would render him independent of the electric light companies? Traveling Exhibitors, especially, have often felt the need of a good outfit that would take the place of calcium outfits, which are frequently difficult to get or are held up in transit when wanted the most.

The Edison Oxygen Generator and Saturator fill this need. They have been designed to produce a complete generating outfit to take the place of Oxygen and Hydrogen gas sold in cylinders. This apparatus produces the gases automatically, in a safe, simple and direct manner, without the use of heat or excessive pressure, and without the necessity of any knowledge of chemistry on the part of the operator.

The Oxygen is produced by the reaction between water and a compound of which Sodium Peroxide is the principal ingredient. This compound in its most compact and convenient form is known as Oxone, though the Generator will work equally well with another form of the compound known as Oxylithe.

Retorts, rubber bags, wash bottles, pumps and cylinders are entirely done away with. There is nothing to do but to put in the Compound and water, attach the gas outlet to the Ether Saturator and adjust the flame by the needle valves on the Saturator. The apparatus does the rest.

We want every present or prospective Motion Picture Exhibitor to write us for detailed information about this outfit.

EDISON FILMS

NEW SUBJECTS:
Shipment, March 9, 1909

THE COLORED STENOGRAPHER
Comedy
No. 6430 Code, VENTANIA
App. Length 635 feet

MARY JANE'S LOVERS
Comedy
No. 6431 Code, VENTANICOS
App. Length 265 feet

Shipment, March 12, 1909

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM
Religious
No 6432 Code, VENTANILHA
App. Length 950 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS:
Shipment, March 16, 1909

A CANADIAN WINTER CARNIVAL
Scenic
No. 6433 Code, VENTAPOPPA
App. Length 1000 feet

Shipment, March 19, 1909

A MIDNIGHT SUPPER
Comedy
No. 6434 Code, VENTAROLA
App. Length 535 feet

LOVE IS BLIND
Comedy
No. 6435 Code, VENTARRON
App. Length 420 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 804 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries.
FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.
No. 44 North 10th Street. Philadelphia, Pa.

SOUND EFFECTS FOR MOVING PICTURES
YERKES & CO.
53 West 28th Street - N. Y.
Phone 594 Madison Square

Opera Chairs Durable
Prices Right Opera Chairs
Everything in the Seating Line
Second-Hand Opera Chairs Always in Stock.
H. S. ANSLEY
1402 Broadway, New York City
Tel. 6203, 38th St.

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500 OPERA CHAIRS IN STOCK
If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received,
Ask for Catalog No. 305
E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Theatre Chairs
Veneered and Upholstered
Can make quick delivery and give reasonable terms of payment.
H. D. WARNER
63 Fifth Ave., Rooms 14 & 15, N. Y. City
I have furnished thousands of Chairs for Moving Picture Theatres in New York City and vicinity. Have fitted six theatres for one company and several theatres for many other companies.

INDEPENDENT FILMS
PROMPT SERVICE ANYWHERE.
"ONE OF THE OLDEST".
PURDY'S FILM EXCHANGE
300 East 23d Street - - NEW YORK
Long Distance Phone, 1512 Gram.

Great Bargains
Motion Picture Machines, Films, Stereopticons Slides, Supplies, etc. Passion Play $100, Colored $200. Send for Supplement 27 No. 4.
HARBACH & COMPANY
809 Filbert Street - PHILADELP

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!
FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!
Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material
COMPLETE, $175.00
VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

termination when he again resolves upon another course. Length, 387 feet.

BUTTES CHAUMONT AFTER A SNOW STORM.—A beautifully picturesque series of views of the Buttes Chaumont, a section of Paris. This subject is especially interesting as it is very unusual to experience a snow storm in Paris. Length, 282 feet.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.
(George Kleine.)

MOTHER-IN-LAW'S DAY IN THE COUNTRY.—This subject is chock full of ludicrous incidents experienced in a little outing given in honor of the proverbially abused relative, mother-in-law. This latter dignitary is even pressed into service when the donkey refuses to pull the cart. Sure to meet with the approval of the most fastidious. Length, 350 feet.

RIVALRY.—Many young lovers find considerable opposition to their courting. This story illustrates not only this opposition by the presence of a favored rival. The restrictions of the parent weigh heavily upon the maid but when the jealousy of the rival reaches its height a catastrophe is precipitated that forces the young lady to cast her lot with her lover, to the intense chagrin of her parents. Length, 367 feet.

SOUTH AMERICAN INDIANS.—A series of most picturesque views depicting life and custom of the South American Indians. This subject will command attention of any audience because of its interesting and beautiful scenery. Length, 288 feet.

S. LUBIN.

A DIME NOVEL DETECTIVE.—Having falling in love with a rich heiress, the villain comes to ask for her hand, but is refused. He tries to force the young lady to accept his attentions, when the father enters and shows him the door. The villain leaves and swears revenge.

To protect herself, the young lady calls on the famous detective, Hawkshaw. He shows her the rogues' gallery. After pointing out the picture of the villain she leaves, the detective promising her to be near her all the time.

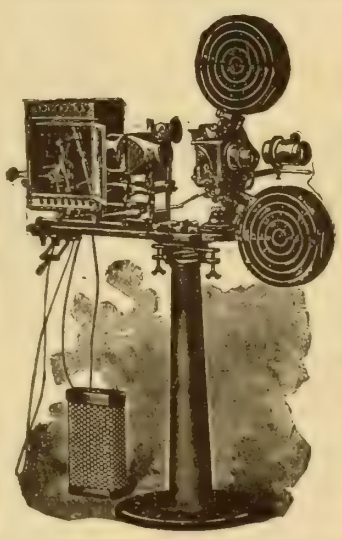
The villain, determined to call the girl his own, dead or alive, [illegible]ubs through her window into the sitting room, [illegible]here she is reading a book. The father, who just entered, is struck down by the villain, and he is just ready to strike the girl when Hawkshaw enters in the mask of the father and disarms the villain.

The young lady is promenading through the Zoological Garden looking at the animals, when suddenly the villain appears behind her, opens the bears' cage and throws her in, thinking the ferocious animal will now tear her to pieces. The animal, however, is no one else but the famous detective, who now pursues the villain.

We next meet the villain in the thieves' den. He brought a life-size picture of the detective and instructs his accomplices to destroy this man. Suddenly the picture becomes alive, and the bewildered toughs flee in terror.

Still the villain pursues her. He takes a rope and throws it through the window into the room where the young lady is asleep on a couch. The rope coils around her neck, forming a loop; the villain then pulls the young lady out of the window and carries her off. Hawkshaw, however, is on the scene. He jumps over the house roof and comes just in time to rescue the girl.

The villain hides in the sitting room. When the young lady enters he throws her out of the



PREVENTS TIRED EYES AND HEADACHES

The rapidity of our new shutter has been so perfected that 30 to 40 per cent. less non-exposure (which has heretofore caused the tremulous vibration producing so many tired eyes and headaches) is found in the Motiograph than in any other machine, making perfect brilliancy of picture and sharpness of outline. Together with the rocklike steadiness of the pedestal the flicker is thus entirely eliminated.

Five-cent Theatre and Vaudeville-House Managers increase their bank account with the Motiograph. Patrons who come once will always come again where they know they see the best pictures, positively rest their eyes instead of tiring them, and where all fire risks are removed.

The Motiograph 1908 Theatre Model, Especially Approved by the Underwriters Association

OTHER POINTS OF EXCELLENCE IN THE MOTIOGRAPH found in no other machines are: A special Film Rewind by which the film can be rewound with the main crank in two minutes without removing either reels or magazines, saving time between pictures and entertainments; perfected Fireproof Magazines, Fire Traps, with four rollers and with spring actuated flanged guides, preventing side movement and making it impossible for fire to pass them; never failing Automatic Fireproof Shutters; Perfect Framing Device; Flanged Sprocket Rollers to prevent film being torn or ruined by accidentally running off sprocket wheels; Enclosed Gears and working parts; Perfect Take-up with new form of belt adjuster; Lid Off Wide Open Lamp House making it easily accessible; Improved Arc Lamp with all Hand Wheel Adjustments; Slide Carrier Swing, saving one-third more illustration for the Motion Pictures.

FILMS AND SLIDES
Headquarters for the finest, largest and most complete stock in the United States. The success of an entertainment depends on never allowing the interest of an audience to flag; patrons who have come once will come again when constgnt change of programme is made.

Send For NEW FALL CATALOGUE of Entertainers Supplies explaining everything and showing how big money can be made entertaining the public, sent free. Special literature describing the advantages of the Motiograph for professional entertainers and theatre managers.

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO., E. D. OTIS, Mgr., Supply Dept., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

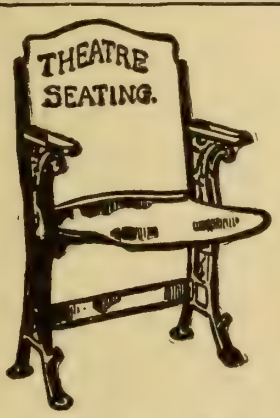
FILM Service FACTS

A pamphlet we have just issued

Of interest to every exhibitor who is not satisfied with the film service he is receiving

Drop Us a Postal Card for It To-day

GEO. K. SPOOR CO.
(INCORPORATED)
62 North Clark St., CHICAGO, ILL.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.

American Seating Company
90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.
70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

window and then drags her into the thieve's den, where an old woman watches over her.

Hawkshaw hears her cries through the sidewalk and soon discovers her hiding place. The villain is just ready to strike her when the old woman throws off her mask, and lo! there stands Hawkshaw!

Now the villain and his accomplices watch at the outside of the house. They drag the young lady to the river front. The villain asks her to marry him, but she refuses. He is just ready to throw her down the embankment when the young lady takes off her hat and veil, and behold! there stands Hawkshaw!

Now they bind Hawkshaw to a tree while the villain and his accomplices again go after the girl. With the aid of a hypnotist they get her out of the house. Again the villain asks her to marry him, but she remains firm in her refusal. He is just going to strike her when the hypnotist takes off his mask and again there stands Hawkshaw!

This drives the villain to consternation. He returns home, but wherever he looks and wherever he goes there is Hawkshaw! The villain cannot stand this strain any longer, and he bursts into atoms, while the great detective calmly proceeds with his work! Length, 820 feet.

THE LAST CALL.—The First Call: The call into the world. The husband is walking nervously up and down. Just then the doctor and nurse enter, presenting to him the new born baby.

The Second Call: The call to school. Boys and girls playing in the school yard. The doors open, the children march in.

The Third Call: The call to work. The factory bell rings, the men go to work.

The Fourth Call: The call of the wedding bells. The interior of a church. The bridal pair marches to the altar, where they are married under a wedding bell made out of beautiful flowers.

The Fifth Call: The country's call. Volunteers are wanted. Our hero enlists. The regiment marches away to war.

The Last Call. The old man is sitting in a comfortable Morris chair. His wife tenderly cares for him. Suddenly there appears a vision, the sky opens, the angels are blowing their trumpets for the last call. The old man rises in his chair, smilingly lifting his hand, as if to say, "I shall come," and then falls back in the chair—dead. He has answered the last call. Length, 485 feet.

I'LL ONLY MARRY A SPORT.—While Mary is taking a spin on her wheel a young man is calling at her house. He waits until she returns and then asks her to be his wife. She is very happy over his proposal, but tells him that she only can marry a sport. Whenever he is able to show that he can ride a bicycle, and has registered on his speedometer 3,000 miles then he may call again, she says, and get her answer. Downhearted, he leaves. How can he ever learn to ride a bicycle and how will he ever be able to wait for the sweetest girl on earth until he has ridden 3,000 miles? He is determined, however, to win her, and starts out to buy a bicycle. After many unsuccessful attempts he at last learns how to ride. The strain, however, is too much for him. He lays down on a bench and employs a boy to turn the wheel while he takes a nap. One day the young lady, seeing him passing her house, follows him on her wheel. She sees the boy waiting, she watches until her lover is asleep and then sends the boy away, while she herself turns the wheel. When the young man awakes he is greatly surprised to see the new attendant and still more when she points to the speedometer, which registers 3,000 miles. He asks the long delayed question, and takes his answer with him. Length, 395 feet.

PATHE FRERES.

THE TEST.—This beautifully colored and artistically acted picture shows us an old couple seated on the lawn with their pretty daughter, Lady Martha. A young nobleman, the son of an old and much respected family in the neighborhood, has written to the father requesting his daughter's hand in marriage. This does not quite meet with the approval of the young lady, who pouts and leaves the scene with her maid. Going to the house, she writes a note to her parents, stating that she will put the Marquis to a test in order to find out if he really loves her for herself or if her money is the attraction.

The young girl then changes costumes with her maid, and when the Marquis arrives the latter is presented to him as the beautiful heiress. They stroll through the garden, closely followed by the amused Lady Martha, who witnesses the love scenes in which the masquerading maid is bored nearly to distraction.

After the young Marquis has gone, Lady Martha realizes that he has made quite an impression on her, so starts out to invite him to return. Arriving at his palace, she is met by his insolent servant, who mistakes her for the maid and tries to make love to her. The Marquis then appears on the scene and accompanies the blushing maid back to her home. On the way he has an opportunity to study her charming ways; so when he meets his fiance he displays a rather strong liking for her maid, which naturally pleases Lady Martha beyond measure. Finally the latter tells him of the de-

NEXT Sand A FILM ISSUE

ORDER QUICK OUR

Comedy Subjects

"AN EXPENSIVE SKY PIECE"
(Lgth. 500 Ft.)

"THE CRAZY BARBER"
(Lgth. 500 Ft.)

READY
Wednesday, March 10th

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

CHEAP

Steel Frame Theatre Chairs

ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
New York Office, 1402 Broadway
Boston Office, 224 Congress St., Boston, Mass.
Western Office,
Monadnock Building, San Francisco, Cal.

ception, and when he learns the truth he is made happy by receiving her promise to wed him. Length, 475 feet.

THE SUFFRAGETTE'S DREAM.—A woman, who is a strong advocate of women's rights, falls asleep and has a dream in which she has the pleasure of seeing the tables turned and men performing the duties of women, and vice versa. In her sleep she attends a suffragettes' meeting, where all the women assembled are dressed and act exactly like men, and seem to take pleasure in strongly denouncing the opposite sex. On leaving the meeting room they begin immediately to carry out resolutions adopted by being as masculine as possible in their ways. Some of them enter a park where men are seen as nurse maids, and one big, husky fellow is chocheting for dear life.

A suffragette, who is acting in the capacity of street cleaner, spies a helpless man and turns the hose on him with vengeance, and when he appeals to some other women standing by to protect him they turn and handle him in no gentle manner, and he is hurried off to the station by two female cops. Next, we see the crowd of women at a cafe, where they are enjoying themselves and trying to be as masculine as possible. The male sex are conspicuous by their absence, for no sane man would dare intrude upon such a gathering. Seated among the other suffragettes, we recognize the heroine of this tale, when suddenly the scene changes and the dreamer awakens from her beautiful dream to find that her husband has just come in; the latter is so enraged because the dinner is not ready that he gives his frightened wife a sound beating. Length, 407 feet.

THE GUILTY GUARDIAN.—A pretty girl is the ward of an old man who is extremely solicitous as to her welfare, and takes it upon himself to interfere in her love affairs and keep a close watch over her lest she should marry beneath her. The old man's secretary is in love with the maiden, and when the old guardian sees them together, he becomes so infuriated that he cruelly remonstrates with the girl. The latter, having a will of her own, goes to her room and writes to her lover, telling him of the unpleasant interview with her guardian, and asking him to demand her hand, and if it is refused, they will elope. The youth goes to the old man and states his case, but meets with a cruel rebuff, so returns to his home determined to have the girl at any risk. He writes to the maiden, telling her to steal out at a certain time and meet him, and when the appointed hour comes, the youth is there and soon the girl joins him. The old man, expecting this, is keeping a close watch, and when he sees the pair meet, he rushes out and fires a shot, killing the girl in the presence of her lover. The old fellow drops the revolver at his victim's feet and gives the alarm, and when the police arrive, they find the grief stricken youth bending over the form of his loved one. Immediately the blame is thrown on him and the heartbroken boy is led away to face the results.

The next scene is in the office of the chief of police where the youth is being examined and the old guardian bearing false witness, with the result that the evidence is strong against the young man, and he is locked up to pay the penalty. The old man, realizing the seriousness of the youth's situation, is conscience stricken, and as he sits brooding over the affair his victim appears to him, accuses him of the deed, and tempts him to end it all with a revolver lying on the table. The miserable fellow can bear no more, and seizing the gun, he fires. At the sound of the shot the police rush into the room, in time to hear the old guardian's last words, exonerating the young man. Length, 466 feet.

THE MAN MONKEY.—A man, going along the street, suddenly loses his reason, and when the astonished crowd realizes the true state of affairs a policeman is called, who humors the queer acting fellow, and finally, through strategy, coaxes him into a sanitarium, where he is attended by a brain specialist. The latter hypnotizes the fellow, and, after removing his diseased brain, replaces it with a monkey's thinking piece. Immediately there is a great transformaation, and the patient turns into a monkey and begins cutting up all the antics for which this animal is noted.

The doctor takes his charge on a leash and starts out, and as they are going down the street the mischievous fellow plays all sorts of tricks, upsetting stands in the market place and causing no end of excitement and amusement to the general public. Finally they wind up at a dime museum, where Mr. Monkey is put on exhibition, and before long the standing room sign is put up in order to keep out the clamoring crowds that flock to see the latest acquisition. Length, 394 feet.

A BAD SHOT.—While scurrying through a field, looking for prey, a hunter hears a noise among a clump of bushes, and, thinking that it is a good opportunity to bag some game, takes aim and fires. To his horror, out comes a man who has received the shot in the leg and seems badly injured. The huntsman, feeling deep pity for the unfortunate fellow, takes the latter on his back and carries him to his (the hunter's) home, where the helpless man is given the greatest of care and receives a promise that if he will not bring suit, he and his family will be taken care of for the rest of their lives.

The latter, being a rough-and-ready sort of a fellow, takes advantage of this offer, and as soon as he is able to leave goes home to get his family. When the latter arrive, the hunter and his wife are horrified and nearly collapse on seeing what a brood of dirty, disheveled little brats they are taking in. The unwelcome guests begin immediately to make their presence felt by their many mischievous tricks. Trying to make the most of the situation, however, the kind benefactors decide that the first thing to do is to give all the youngsters a much needed bath. They are turned over to the maid, who takes them to a tub of water out in the back yard, and during the trying ordeal the little rascals get the best of the helpless woman and throw her headlong into the water and run away. They then go to the chicken coop and rob the nests of all the eggs, and when the maid comes to remonstrate with them for their unbecoming conduct, they throw the eggs at her and follow her into the kitchen, wrecking everything in the place. The young scamps next find a gun in the hall; so out they go to the yard, where they put up a target and begin practicing sharpshooting. The master of the house rushes out to stop them, but gets in range of the gun and is shot in the leg. Now, feeling that he has enough of his bargain and that things are about evened up, he orders the man and his unruly brood off the premises, after which he and his wife settle down once more to a quiet, happy life. Length, 590 feet.

BEHIND IN HIS RENT.—A struggling young artist is besieged by his creditors, and finally his landlady comes up to his squalid studio and threatens him with eviction unless he pays up. Soon one of his models enters the place, and it is so cold that they cannot go on with their work; so she breaks up some furniture and builds a fire in the little stove. In order to get revenge on the old landlady, he writes a note to her, telling her that the room is haunted, and when the model delivers the note the old woman and her husband are horrified and start up to the room to investigate. They are reluctant about entering, but finally they pluck up courage and come into the place where the young artist seats them on chairs and tells them to wait for results from the spooks. He turns out the lights, and in the darkness he ties the couple together, and starts a general rough house and breaks everything in the place, and beats a hasty retreat, leaving the horrified couple prostrate on the floor. The other tenants in the house hear the racket, and come up to investigate, and upon entering the room they find everything in disorder and the old couple tangled up and in a terrible plight. Length, 358 feet.

DR. WRIGHT S INVENTION.—At a sanitarium, where all the poor invalids are sunning themselves on the lawn, one unfortunate, who has bad legs, reads an advertisement in the paper stating that one Dr. Wright has a wonderful invention which will make any lame person walk. He starts out on his crutches, and after many mishaps, finally arrives at the doctor's office, and states his case. The doctor adjusts his invention on the fellow, which is an airship sort of an arrangement, with a propeller in the back, which causes the invalid to move along. When they start the thing going, it works like a charm; and away he goes out of the place and down the street, for all the world like an automobile. A policeman, seeing him coming, arrests him for not having the required license number and auto horn. When the fellow finally procures all these his troubles come fast and furious, for as he tries to navigate back to the sanitarium he hits a woman and drags her for many blocks; but his device keeps on working, and he slides along like wildfire until he trips and falls head first through a cellar window. He remains in this position until a few policemen discover him and come to his aid. They bundle him into a cab and take him back to the institution, and he resumes his crutches and swears off using any more such strenuous motor arrangements. Length, 525 feet.

FORCED TO PLAY COP.—A wealthy old lady goes away on a trip, leaving her beautiful home in charge of her servants, who start immediately to have a good time. The footman conjures a scheme to play a joke on the rest of the servants; so going to the mistress' room, disguises himself in some of her clothing and walks in on the merry crowd, giving them an awful scare. After having the laugh at their expense, he throws off his disguise and joins the merry party.

In the midst of the festivities, two of the old lady's nephews arrive and send up their card; so, thinking it would be a good plan to carry out the deception, the footman readjusts the disguise and receives the young men in a most cordial manner. The latter, not knowing of the deception, sit down to the table with their hostess, and there being plenty of wine, they keep filling up the glass of their so-called auntie until they have her completely under its influence, when she falls asleep.

Seizing the opportunity, they start through the house, rifling everything in the search of the old woman's money. The would-be auntie, upon awakening, misses the pair, so starts looking for them. Hearing them in the next room, he peers through the keyhole, and, to his horror, sees the pair at their nefarious work. Breaking through the door, the masquerader grabs the culprits, who are too dumbfounded to make any resistance, and with a strong grip drags them off to the station, where they are handed over to the law. Length, 358 feet.

SELIG P. . YSCOPE CO.

THE MAD MINER.—Another great Western subject—produced in the rugged mountains of the West—is the latest Selig picture, surpassing in magnificent scenic backgrounds anything of a like nature yet turned out.

The story deals with the adventures of James Hart and his young wife in their search for gold.

Setting out from the trading post one bright morning, these two intrepid seekers of fortune, in company with a trusted friend and prospector, wend their way up the mountain side, their pack mules loaded with provisions and mining tools, their faces set toward the West, toward the land of promise of golden treasure.

For several days their progress is rapid and uneventful, but misfortune for a time seems to have overtaken them. Ethel, our hero's pretty wife, unused to the hardships of such rough travel, falls ill and her condition threatens to seriously impede the progress of the little band.

Every effort is made to reach some habitation or miner's cabin, so that shelter and rest may be secured for the sick wife. At last they stumble onto a little log hut nestled in a clump of pines and sheltered from the winds and storms by the lofty rugged sides of a mountain peak. Hastily dismounting from his mule, James knocks on the cabin door for admittance; a savage growl, half human, half animal, greets his ear, followed by the appearance of a strange, wild-looking old man, rifle in hand, who, incited to uncontrollable anger at their presence, screams out his rage in savage yells and demands to know why such meddling fools had dared to intrude on his domains. It is old Hager, the Mad Miner of Arrow Gulch. Recognizing the madness in his eyes, James, knowing the uselessness of further parley with the befuddled old hermit, gives orders to proceed on their way. Before they have journeyed very far Ethel's strength leaves her entirely and she collapses. Camp for the rest of the day is made and James sets about to minister to his wife's needs. While the two men are busy with their preparations for making the camp as comfortable as possible, three renegades from one of the distant mining settlements, hearing of the reputed wealth of the Mad Miner, have planned to shadow the old man and follow him to his rich diggings, said to be located in some unknown gorge. A shot, followed by a scream, as from some wounded beast, falls upon the ears of the two prospectors. Seizing their rifles, they hasten away in the direction from whence the sound came.

The three renegades, after following the old miner to his secret claim, pounce upon him and attempt to carry away his precious gold. Fighting desperately, he is seriously wounded, but clings to his sack of dust with a death-like grip. The ruffians are just about to succeed in their plans, when James and his companion appear upon the scene, and wounding one of the robbers, draw a bead on the other two and disarm them. Driving the three away, the two prospectors carry the now helpless old madman back to camp and there minister to his wants. But his hurt has proven fatal, and with approaching death, reason partly returns to his fevered brain and he begs his benefactors to carry him to his little cabin, where he might breathe his last in the home he had builded with his own hands. His request is obeyed, and there in the rude hut under the crest of the mountain the mad miner passes away, after dictating a rough will, in which he leaves all he possesses, including his rich claim, to James Hart, his benefactor.

Burning with rage at their defeat, the three renegades determine to revenge themselves upon the two prospectors for interfering with their plans. So learning of the death of the old miner, they go before the sheriff of Arrow Gulch and swear out a warrant charging James Hart with the murder of the hermit. The sheriff mounts his horse, and accompanied by a deputy, proceeds to the little cabin to arrest the murderer. But the tables are soon turned on the renegades when James produces the miner's will and explains who the guilty ones really are.

Taking the three scoundrels in charge, the sheriff marches them off to town, while the prospectors prepare to give a decent burial to the remains of the mad miner. Length, 870 feet.

Released March 4.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

AND HIS COAT CAME BACK.—Judge Jones purchases what he thinks a very swell top coat. Neither his wife nor daughter share in his opinion and ridicule same. The official starts for court, and in the ante room comes upon a couple of lawyers, who also make fun of the garment. The judge gets mad, throws the coat on the table and puts on his gown. The janitor enters at this time and is presented with the coat. The janitor puts it on and goes home to show his wife. She is of the same opinion as the judge's wife and sends the janitor back with it. When the judge returns to the closet, he finds the coat still there. The colored porter enters with a message, and he is given the much despised coat. The new owner immediately starts for the pawn shop to convert the present into money. The Hebrew pawnbroker looks over the garment, finds the judge's name inside, and, believing it to be stolen, returns it to the owner's house, rings the bell and runs away. The judge comes to the door, and, when he sees the coat is furious. A tramp passes by and the judge gives him the coat. "Weary" parades down the avenue, is spied by a cop, who thinks the hobo has stolen the coat, arrests him and brings him before the judge. Again Jones is affronted with the coat. A letter from the foreign mission comes to him asking for contributions of money or clothing, and the judge, thinking to forever rid himself of the coat, sends it to the authorities and they in turn send it with other clothes to the Pago Pago Islands.

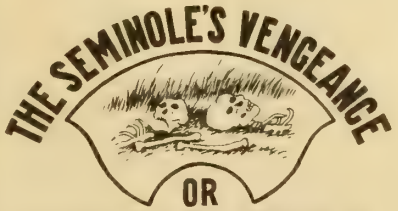
Six months later the judge decides to take a vacation, and with his family starts for the South Sea Islands. In due time the party arrives and all are hospitably received by the natives. The judge presents the ruler and his chiefs with little tokens of his appreciation of the reception accorded him, and the king wishing to reciprocate, despatches a slave for a fitting present for the judge. The servant shortly returns, and the judge almost collapses as he is presented with the coat he sent to the heathen months ago. Langth, 600 feet.

MOGG MEGONE; An Indian Romance.—The story opens with Paul Bonythau, an Indian trader, offering Mogg Megone, chief of the Saco tribe, jewelry, money, etc., for a large strip of land which he wishes to purchase from the Indian. Mogg Megone refuses all offers, but says that if the trader will give him his daughter in marriage he can have the strip of land. Bonythau finally accepts, and they go to the trader's hut in company with Faldone, Mogg Megone's aide. When the daughter hears of the bargain, she is horrified and absolutely refuses to be a party. Wine is brought in for the chief and his companion. They drink freely. Mogg Megone falls across the table hopelessly drunk, his companion only partly so. Ruth asks her father to save her from such a fate. When he refuses she urges him to kill the Indian. Again he refuses and the girl pulls a knife from her father's belt and overcomes Megone. The aide runs to the tribe and tells of the tragedy, while Ruth goes to the Jesuit priest and confesses. When the father spurns her she flees. Faldone meanwhile brings the tribe to the trader's hut, burns the same to the ground and starts out for the daughter. In searching through the woods they come across her head body on the banks of the Saco River. Length, 390 feet.

A DAY IN WASHINGTON. The Capital of the United States, Showing Many Points of Interest.—An enjoyable series of views of various points in our nation's capital; the Capitol building, the Army and Navy building, the United States Treasury building and Washington monument and the White House, with governors of the different States and Supreme Court judges on a portico, and a trip down Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol building. Length, 350 feet.

Kalem Films

Issue of March 12, 1909.



OR

THE SLAVE CATCHERS OF FLORIDA

LENGTH 920 FEET

"The Seminole's Vengeance" is a film of great historic and dramatic interest.

Taken in Florida, it tells a true story of the Seminole Indians in the days just prior to the Civil War. Nothing more stirring has been issued in a long time.

Free lecture to all applicants.

KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.
Wholesale and Retail
Sterecopticon and Lantern Slides
56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

CALEHUFF
A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION
Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.
LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set
N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Song Slides!
Travelogue Slides!
Announcement Slides!

Newest, latest and best. "You Select —We Ship." Lowest rental rates consistent with superior service. We also furnish thoroughly competent illustrated song vocalists, moving picture and vaudeville pianists. trap drummers, instrumentalists, dramatic lecturers, demonstrators and licensed operators.

Quick, reliable service.

Our references: Leading Film Exchanges, Song Slide Manufacturers, or "Dramatic Mirror" of New York.

Write now for Circulars and full particulars.

LEN SPENCER'S LYCEUM
4 West 28th St NEW YORK

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs
JUST OUT

Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

Mney for you. In towns without electric serviceo
Our Cylinders of Gas
make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING
ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

Moving Picture Printing for Passion Play
HENNEGAN & CO.
127 E. 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

Latest Song Slides Out

"In the Bright Moonlight"
"My Irish Mary"
"Little Black Boy"
"A Fire Lad in Blue"
"Little Nell My Blushing Bride"
"All is not Gold that Shines"
"Naoma"

HARSTN & CO.
Established 1897
138 E. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.
NEVER CLOSED

Army Auction Bargains

Tents	$1.90 up	Old Pistols	$.50 up
Shoes	1.25 "	Officers' Swords, new	1.75 "
ARMY SADDLES	3.00 "	Cavalry Sabres	1.50 "
" Bridles	1.00 "	UNIFORMS	1.25 up
" Leggins, pr.	.15 "	7 Shot Carbine	3.50

U. S. SPRINGFIELD B-L RIFLES $1.79
Blank or Ball Cartridge, 35 cents box of 20.
1907 MILITARY CATALOGUE 260 large pages, thousands of beautiful illustrations—with 1909 supplement wholesale and retail prices. Mailed for 15 cents (stamps).
15 ACRES GOV'T. AUCTION GOODS.
FRANCIS BANNERMAN, 501 Broadway, NEW YORK

LATEST FILMS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 18—Those Boys! (Comedy).....342 ft.
Jan. 21—Mr. Jones Has a Card Party (Comedy)....583 ft.
Jan. 21—The Fascinating Mrs. Francis (Comedy)....417 ft.
Jan. 25—The Welcome Burglar (Dramatic).....790 ft.
Jan. 25—Those Awful Hats (Comedy).....185 ft.
Jan. 28—The Cord of Life (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Feb. 1—The Girls and Daddy (Dramatic).....901 ft.
Feb. 4—The Brahma Diamond (Dramatic).....1036 ft.
Feb. 8—A Wreath in Time (Comedy).....558 ft.
Feb. 8—Edgar Allen Poe (Dramatic).....450 ft.
Feb. 15—The Curtain Pole (Comedy).....765 ft.
Feb. 15—His Ward's Love (Dramatic).....235 ft.
Feb. 18—The Hindoo Dagger (Dramatic).....583 ft.
Feb. 18—The Joneses Have Amateur Theatricals (C).400 ft.
Feb. 22—The Politician's Love Story.....526 ft.
Feb. 22—The Golden Louis.....474 ft.
Feb. 25—At the Altar.....972 ft.
Mar. 1—His Wife's Mother (Comedy).....523 ft.
Mar. 1—The Prussian Spy (Dramatic).....465 ft.
Mar. 4—A Fool's Revenge (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
March 8—The Rouge's Heart (Dramatic).....755 ft.
March 8—The Wooden Leg (Comedy).....240 ft.
March 11—The Salvation Army Lass (Dramatic)....926 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Jan. 12—Where Is My Wandering Boy To-night? (Dramatic) .....900 ft.
Jan. 15—Drawing the Color Line (Comedy).....900 ft.
Jan. 19—Pagan and Christian (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 22—A Burglar Cupid (Comedy).....850 ft.
Jan. 26—A Romance of Old Madrid (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Feb. 2—The Origin of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata 900 ft.
Feb. 9—A Bachelor's Supper (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 12—The Saleslady's Matinee Idol (Comedy)....900 ft.
Feb. 16—A Daughter of the Sun (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 19—The Uplifting of Mr. Barker (Comedy)..900 ft.
Feb. 23—The Landlady's Portrait (Comedy).....585 ft.
Feb. 23—The Janitor's Bottle (Comedy).....405 ft.
Feb. 26—Left Out (Dramatic).....900 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Jan. 6—The Neighbors' Kids (Comedy).....550 ft.
Jan. 20—Old Curiosity Shop (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 27—Too Much Dog Biscuit (Comedy).....400 ft.
Jan. 27—A Cure for Gout (Comedy).....540 ft.
Jan. 29—A Modest Young Man (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 5—Adventures of an Old Flirt (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 3—The Musician's Love Story (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 24—The Tell-tale Blotter (Dramatic).....
Mar. 3—Shanghaied (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
March 9—The Colored Stenographer (Comedy).....635 ft.
March 9—Mary Jane's Lovers (Comedy).....265 ft.
March 12—The Star of Bethlehem (Scenic).....950 ft.

GAUMONT.
George Kleine.

Feb. 15-20—Grandfather (Gaumont).....614 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The Chinamen (Gaumont).....387 ft.
Feb. 15-20—Bernard Palissy (Gaumont).....444 ft.
Feb. 23—An Obstinate Umbrella (Comedy).....530 ft.
Feb. 23—Some Milk for Baby (Comedy).....430 ft.
Feb. 27—The Prince and the Dwarf (Melo.).....707 ft.
Feb. 27—The Foxy Husband (Comedy).....253 ft.
Mar. 2—The Piano Teacher (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Mar. 6—In Sore Straights (Dramatic).....522 ft.
Mar. 6—Walking on His Toes (Comedy).....406 ft.
March 9—The Blacksmith's Bride (Dramatic).....720 ft.
March 9—The Postal Clerk (Dramatic).....292 ft.
March 13—The Smoking Lamp (Comedy).....324 ft.
March 13—Buttes Chaumont After a Snow Storm 282 ft.
March 13—The Irresolute Man (Comedy).....387 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Jan. 13—Life in Russia (Scenic).....331 ft.
Jan. 13—Jim Smith (Comedy).....312 ft.
Jan. 13—The Stepmother (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Jan. 20—Desert Life (Scenic).....377 ft.
Jan. 20—Balloon Races (Scenic).....295 ft.
Jan. 20—The Gnomes (Dramatic).....436 ft.
Jan. 27—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.
Jan. 27—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Jan. 27—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Educational).....1415 ft.
Feb. 6—Badger Hunt (Educational).....436 ft.
Feb. 6—Wild Man of Borneo (Comedy).....433 ft.
Jan. 27—Desert Life (Comedy).....380 ft.
Feb. 3—Sultan Abdul Hamid (Dramatic).....415 ft.
Feb. 3—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Feb. 3—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.
Feb. 19—James and Catherine.....450 ft.
Feb. 19—The Barber's Christening.....540 ft.
Feb. 26—Sherlock Holmes (2).....680 ft.
Feb. 17—The Caliph's Adventures.....564 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Jan. 15—The Sponge Fishers of Cuba (Educational).965 ft.
Jan. 22—The Girl At the Old Mill (Dramatic).....
Jan. 29—The Octoroon (Dramatic)..... ft.
Feb. 5—The Detectives (Dramatic).....800 ft.
Feb. 12—The High Diver (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 19—Sporting Days in the South; or, The Making of a Champion (Dramatic).....940 ft.
Feb. 26—The New Minister.....865 ft.
Mar. 5—The Old Soldier's Story (Dramatic).....
March 12—The Seminole's Vengeance (Historic).....920 ft.

LUBIN.

Jan. 28—Love Germs (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 1—Aunt Emmy's Scrap Book (Dramatic).....865 ft.
Feb. 4—The Blind Musician (Dramatic).....480 ft.
Feb. 4—Willie's Water Sprinkler (Comedy).....340 ft.
Feb. 15—The Silver Dollar (Comedy).....475 ft.
Feb. 15—The Unlucky Horseshoe (Comedy).....460 ft.
Feb. 18—A Broken Heart (Dramatic).....530 ft.
Feb. 18—The Pass Key (Comedy).....415 ft.
Feb. 22—The New Governess (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 25—Love Me, Love My Dog (Comedy).....650 ft.
Feb. 25—A Game of Chess (Comedy).....290 ft.
March 1—A Dime Novel Detective (Comedy).....820 ft.
March 4—The Last Call (Dramatic).....485 ft.
March 4—I'll Only Marry a Sport (Comedy).....395 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Feb. 1—A Village Quarrel (Dramatic).....466 ft.
Feb. 1—The Two Bandboxes (Comedy).....216 ft.
Feb. 1—A Sure 'Nuff Tumbler (Comedy).....292 ft.
Feb. 3—Incriminating Evidence (Dramatic).....1160 ft.
Feb. 5—Choosing a Life Partner (Comedy).....689 ft.
Feb. 5—He Can Imitate Anything (Comedy).....295 ft.
Feb. 6—Vulture Hunting in Africa (Scenic).....597 ft.
Feb. 6—Why They Fell Out (Comedy).....387 ft.
Feb. 8—Les Ricochets (Scenic).....246 ft.
Feb. 8—Women Chauffeurs (Comedy).....311 ft.
Feb. 8—Buster's Revenge (Comedy).....344 ft.
Feb. 10—Charlotte Corday (Tragic).....787 ft.
Feb. 10—Adventures of a Bag of Coal (Comedy)....203 ft.
Feb. 12—Bess and Her Goose (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 12—The Laplanders (Educational).....462 ft.
Feb. 13—The Brazilian's Ring (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 13—They Lead the Cops a Chase (Comedy)....410 ft.
Feb. 15—The Hand (Serio-Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 17—The Assassination of the Duke of Guise (Dramatic) .....853 ft.
Feb. 19—His First Flight (Comedy).....397 ft.
Feb. 19—Choice of Weapons (Comedy).....315 ft.
Feb. 19—How Mother-in-Law Got Even (Comedy)...197 ft.
Feb. 20—Exacting Father-in-Law (Comedy).....423 ft.
Feb. 20—Now I'm Here, I'll Stay (Comedy).....453 ft.
Feb. 22—The Miser (Dramatic).....519 ft.
Feb. 22—Grand Canal, Venice (Scenic).....410 ft.
Feb. 24—What a Uniform Will Do (Comedy).....495 ft.
Feb. 24—A Little Coquette (Serio-Dramatic).....367 ft.
Feb. 26—The Jolly Trio's Dream (Comedy).....417 ft.
Feb. 26—Mr. Jonah Gets a Little Dust in His Eyes (Comedy).....184 ft.
Feb. 26—Topsy-Turvy (Comedy).....318 ft.
Feb. 27—Hypnotic Subject (Comedy).....479 ft.
Feb. 27—Florrie's Birthday (Comedy).....433 ft.
March 1—The Test (Dramatic).....475 ft.
March 1—The Suffragette's Dream (Comedy).....407 ft.
March 3—The Guilty Guardian (Dramatic).....466 ft.
March 3—The Man Monkey (Comedy).....394 ft.
March 5—A Bad Shot (Comedy).....590 ft.
March 5—Behind In His Rent (Comedy).....358 ft.
March 6—Dr. Wright's Invention (Comedy).....525 ft.
March 6—Forced to Play Cop (Comedy).....358 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....950 ft.
Jan. 28—The Prairie Town Romance (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 4—Stirring Days in Old Virginia (Historical).1000 ft.
Feb. 18—King of the Ring (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Feb. [illegible]—On the Warpath.....1000 ft.
Feb. 25—The Skipper's Daughters (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Mar. 2—With Taft in Panama (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Mar. 4—The Mad Miner (Dramatic).....
March 4—The Mad Miner (Dramatic).....870 ft.
March 4—Outing Pastimes in Colorado (Scenic).....125 ft.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.
George Kleine.

Feb. 15-20—Outwitted (Urban).....463 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The American Fleet at Sydney, New South Wales (Urban).....190 ft.
Feb. 15-20—The Hand of a Wizard (Urban).....374 ft.
Feb. 24—Joel's Wedding (Drama).....569 ft.
Feb. 24—Polka on Brain (Comedy).....445 ft.
Mar. 3—The Sailor's Belt (Dramatic).....483 ft.
Mar. 3—An Embarrassing Present (Comedy).....410 ft.
March 10—Mother-in-Law's Day in the Country (C)..350 ft.
March 10—Rivalry (Dramatic) .....367 ft.
March 10—South American Indians (Scenic).....288 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 12—The Castaways (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Jan. 16—The Two Sons (Dramatic).....587 ft.
Jan. 16—The Bride of Tabaiva (Dramatic).....380 ft.
Jan. 19—Ruy Blas (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 23—A Case of Spirits (Comedy).....500 ft.
Jan. 26—The Treasure (Comedy).....464 ft.
Jan. 30—Cleopatra's Lover (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Feb. 2—The Deacon's Love Letter (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Feb. 2—The Marathon Race (Serio-Dramatic).....585 ft.
Feb. 6—Virginius (Dramatic).....955 ft.
Feb. 9—Jessie, the Stolen Child (Dramatic).....560 ft.
Feb. 9—A Clever Trick (Comedy).....345 ft.
Feb. 13—An Irish Hero (Dramatic).....735 ft.
Feb. 13—Lost in a Folding Bed (Comedy).....247 ft.
Feb. 16—The Honor of the Slums (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Feb. 16—How the Kids Got Even (Comedy).....325 ft.
Feb. 20—"C. Q. D." (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 23—The Poor Musician (Dramatic).....652 ft.
Feb. 23—Perpetual Proposals (Comedy).....296 ft.
Feb. 27—Saul and David (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
March 2—And His Coat Came Back (Serio-Dramatic).600 ft.
March 2—Mogg Megone (Dramatic).....390 ft.
March 6—A Day in Washington (Scenic).....350 ft.
March —Inauguration of President Wm. H. Taft 600 ft.

Three Winners

A FILM SERVICE

that satisfies the most exact Exhibitor

Our Economy Coil

which makes an Electric Light Bill look like a cancelled postage stamp

Our "Claro" Condensers

practically unbreakable, and increases your light 25%. $1.00 each.

Connect With

"THE SUCCESSFUL HOUSE"

Pittsburg Calcium Light AND Film Company

CAN BE HAD FROM

Pittsburg, Pa. Cincinnati, O.
Des Moines, Ia. Wilkes Barre, Pa.
Rochester, N.Y. Lincoln, Neb.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue - - - New York City

Licensed Manufacturers and Importers of Films.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE & BIOGRAPH COMPANY
EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY
ESSANAY FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
KALEM COMPANY
LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY
PATHE FRERES
SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY
VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA
GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed Manufacturers of Moving Picture Machines.

AMERICAN MOVING PICTURE MACHINE COMPANY
ARMAT MOVING PICTURE MACHIN COMPANY
EDENGRAPH MANUFACTURING COMPANY
EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL COMPANY
LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY
PATHE FRERES
NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY
GEORGE K. SPOOR COMPANY
VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA
GAUMONT COMPANY

LICENSED EXCHANGES

The following exchanges have been licensed, and at the present time are the only Exchanges that are authorized to handle licensed films:

Actograph Company, 50 Union Square, New York City.
Actograph Company, Troy, N. Y.
Alamo Film Exchange, 405 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Alamo Film Exchange, 304 Conroy Building, San Antonio, Tex.
American Film Exchange, 645 Wabash Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
American Film Service, 125 Monroe street, Chicago, Ill.
American Film Service, 158 North Main street, Memphis, Tenn.
American Vitagraph Company, 116 Nassau street, New York, N. Y.
George Breck, 70 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Buffalo Film Exchange, 131½ Genesee street, Buffalo, N. Y.
C. A. Calehuff, Fourth and Green streets, Philadelphia, Pa.
Calumet Film Exchange, Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.
Clune Film Exchange, 727 South Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.
Colorado Film Exchange Company, 320 Charles Building, Denver, Colo.
Columbia Film Exchange, 414 Ferguson Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Gayety Theater Building, St. Louis, Mo.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Crawford Theater, El Paso, Tex.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Hopkins Theater, Louisville, Ky.
O. T. Crawford Film Exchange Co., Shubert Theater, New Orleans, La.
Harry Davis, 347 Fifth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Harry Davis, Buffalo, N. Y.
Harry Davis, 1311 Market street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Denver Film Exchange, 713 Lincoln avenue, Denver, Colo.
Dixie Film Company, 620 Commercial place, New Orleans, La.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 104-5 Bakewell Building, Pittsburg, Pa.
Duquesne Amusement Supply Co., 235 Monticello Arcade Building, Norfolk, Va.
Edison Display Co., 1116 Third avenue, Seattle, Wash.
Edison Display Co., 165½ Fourth street, Portland, Ore.
Electric Theater Supply Co., 47 North Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Greater New York Film Rental Co., 24 Union Square, New York City.
C. J. Hite Company, Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill.
Howard Moving Picture Co., 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Imperial Film Exchange, 44 West Twenty-eighth street, New York City.
Imperial Film Exchange, 299 River street, Troy, N. Y.
Imperial Film Exchange, 803 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.
Imported Film & Supply Co., 708 Union street, New Orleans, La.
Kent Film Service, 218 Nicholas Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Kleine Optical Company, 2008½ Third avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Kleine Optical Company, 657 Washington street, Boston, Mass.
Kleine Optical Company, 52 State street, Chicago, Ill.
Kleine Optical Company, 302 Boston Building, Denver, Colo.
Kleine Optical Company, 229 Commercial Building, Des Moines, Ia.
Kleine Optical Company, 214 Traction Building, Indianapolis, Ind.
Kleine Optical Co. of California, 369 Pacific Electric Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
Kleine Optical Company, 662 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Kleine Optical Company, 309 Melhorn Building, Seattle, Wash.
Kleine Optical Company of Missouri, 523 Commercial Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.
Laemmle Film Service, 196 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service, Main and Sixth streets, Evansville, Ind.
Laemmle Film Service, 78 South Front street, Memphis, Tenn.
Laemmle Film Service, 1121-23 Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service, 800 Brandeis Block, Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service, 419-20 Marquam Grand Bldg., Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service, 151 Main street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 314 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
H. Lieber Co., 24 West Washington street, Indianapolis, Ind.
Lubin Film Service, 21 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Lubin Film Service, 510 Paul-Gale-Greenwood Building, Norfolk, Va.
Lubin Film Service, 140 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 82 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
Miles Bros., Inc., 259 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y.
Miles Bros., Inc., Washington and Dover streets, Boston, Mass.
Miles Bros., Inc., 790 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Mitchell Film Exchange, 120½ Main street, Little Rock, Ark.
Monarch Film Exchange, 201 Thompson Building, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Montana Film Exchange, 41 North Main street, Butte, Mont.
Morton Film Exchange, 107 Sixth street, Portland, Ore.
National Film Company, 100 Griswold street, Detroit, Mich.
National Film Renting Co., Spokane, Wash.
Novelty Moving Picture Co., 418 Turk street, San Francisco, Cal.
Ohio Film Exchange, 16 East Broad street, Columbus, Ohio.
Pearce & Scheck, 223 North Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.
People's Film Exchange, 126 University place, New York City.
Philadelphia Film Exchange, 1229 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 121 Fourth avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Wilkesbarre, Pa.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 501-503 Central Bldg., Rochester, N. Y.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., Neave Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 421 Walnut street, Des Moines, Ia.
Pittsburg Calcium Light & Film Co., 60-62 Brownell Block, Lincoln, Neb.
Schiller Film Exchange, 103 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Southern Film Exchange, 1822 Fourth avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Southern Film Exchange, 148 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.
George K. Spoor & Co., 62 North Clark street, Chicago, Ill.
Star Film Exchange, 120 Randolph street, Chicago, Ill.
Standard Film Exchange, 79 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Superior Film Supply Co., 621 Nasby Building, Toledo, Ohio.
Swaab Film Service Co., 338 Spruce street, Philadelphia, Pa.
The Talking Machine Co., 97 Main street, East, Rochester, N. Y.
Tally's Film Exchange, 554 South Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.
Theater Film Supply Co., 202 South Tryon street, Charlotte, N. C.
Theater Film Supply Co., 2007 Second avenue, Birmingham, Ala.
Theater Film Service Co., 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
Theater Film Service Co., 1038 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, Cal.
Trent & Wilson, 63 East Third street, Salt Lake City, Utah.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 59 Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.
20th Century Optiscope Co., Shukert Building, Kansas City, Mo.
20th Century Optiscope Co., 408 Eccles Building, Ogden, Utah.
Turner & Dahnken, 1650 Ellis street, San Francisco, Cal.
Twin City Calcium and Stereopticon Co., 709 Hennepin ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
United Film Exchange, 717 Superior avenue, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.
U. S. Film Exchange, 132 Lake street, Chicago, Ill.
Vaudette Film Exchange Co., 103 Monroe street, Grand Rapids, Mich.
P. L. Waters, 41 East Twenty-first street, New York City.
Alfred Weiss' Film Exchange, 219 Sixth avenue, New York City.
Western Film Exchange, 949 Century Building, St. Louis Mo.
Western Film Exchange, 307 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange, 201 Miners' Bank Building, Joplin, Mo.
Wonderland Film Exchange, Seventh street and Liberty ave., Pittsburg, Pa.
Wheelan-Loper Film Co., 339 Main street, Dallas, Tex.
Yale Film Renting Co., 622 Main street, Kansas City, Mo.

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

NEXT ISSUES

To Be Released Week of March 8th

THE CHIMNEY SWEEP'S BIRTHDAY DREAM
Length About 544 Feet

ROUND THE LAKE OF CONSTANZ AND THE RHINE FALLS
Length About 344 Feet

THE CAPRICIOUS MONUMENT—Comedy
Length About 361 Feet

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Licensee under the Biograph Patents. All purchasers and users of our Film will be protected by the American Mutoscope & Biograph Company

Independent Films
THREE REELS RELEASED EACH WEEK

This Week's Subjects:

The Story of A Life
The Reprobate
The Musician
The Miner's Wife
The Ashes of Hercules

Film Import & Trading Co.
143 East 23d Street :: :: New York

BOTH
Independent
AND Association
Dealers are our Customers
WHY?
Because We Are Delivering the Goods In
LECTURETTES
Four New Ones a Week—Every One a Hit
THIS WEEK'S PRODUCTIONS
Our Golden West
Snapshots Abroad
Wonders of the World
America
STILL FILLING ORDERS FOR
Our Navy—Paris—London—Germany—Rome
—Jerusalem and the Holy Lands—Italy—British Isles
—Famous Statues and Paintings—Tourist's Reflections
PRICE, INCLUDING LECTURE, $1.50 PER SET
GUNBY BROS.,
10 East Fourteenth Street New York
P. S.—Send Money Order. Credit impossible at these prices.

INDEPENDENT FILMS

Come to-day and join the happy throng of exhibitors at

79 SOUTH CLARK STREET, CHICAGO

No License to Pay. No agreements to Sign.
Come Now. We have the Films you want,
Absolutely Independent, now and always.
We won't leave you. We will stick to you.

Our 25 Branch Offices Will Soon be Open

Send your orders to our General Offices in Chicago now. When our Branch Office is opened in your territory, we will fill your orders from that office

The Largest Independent House in the U.S.

FILMS FOR RENT

ANTI-TRUST FILM CO.

79 So. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

FILM RENTERS

We wish to announce to you that from this date all Swanson offices will be pleased to rent you Film, no matter whether or not you have paid the machine license required by the Patents Company and their licensees. Because of the interest Mr. Swanson personally has taken in the existing conditions of the Moving Picture business and the strong opposition he has made against the compelling of payment by the exhibitors, of the Two Dollar weekly royalty imposed by the Patents Company, and his interest in and loyalty to his customers, together with his refusal to advise them to take a step which he did not believe was for their well being, will, we believe, lead to our becoming

Independent

Mr. Swanson has considered the question most carefully and has investigated very thoroughly the source of supply of Film for the Independent Exchanges, and he believes that the subjects which are to be placed on the market by the International Projecting & Producing Company are unequaled, not only in subject matter, but also in photography, and will be the choicest productions of the European manufacturers. We ask that all exhibitors who are interested in securing the highest class of Film Service write us today for full particulars.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake St., Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO. - 200-202-204 North Seventh Street, St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO. - - 106 South Fourteenth Street, Omaha, Nebr.

Vol. 4., No. 11 March 13, 1909 Price, 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBIT

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

Published Weekly by THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO., 125 E. 23d ST., NEW YORK

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS are learning that It Pays to Investigate and that

The Motiograph is truly A Wonderful Machine

FOR MOTION PICTURES AND STEROPTICON VIEWS

and that where there's Perfect Pictures there's A Motiograph in the Operator's Booth.

Chicago, Boston, New York and Frisco approved.

It projects Wonderfully Brilliant, Steady and Flickerless Pictures and is absolutely fireproof.

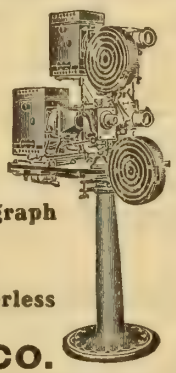
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.



The Motiograph is Licensed

under the patents of the

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.
OF NEW YORK.

The Rheostato Current Saver, saves 60 to 75 per cent. on Electric Bills.

The Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit is the only satisfactory substitute for Electric Light.

Our Catalog tells a lot of interesting things.

WRITE FOR IT;

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

INTERCHANGEABLE ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDE

A different announcement in thirty seconds. Highly colored—Artistically designed—Simple. Complete, ready for use. 50 cents by mail. We make all kinds of Announcement Slides.

SPECIALTY SLIDE MAKERS :: :: 312 Chicago Opera House Building, Chicago, Ills.

THE EAGLE FILM EXCHANGE

Will give you an Exclusive Service. We handle nothing but new goods—no junk. We are prepared to give you the following makes of film: Great Northern, Eclair, Cines, Comerio, Melies, Williamson, etc.

143 N. 8th Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Branch: Mauch Chunk, Pa. Oscar Bittner, Mgr.

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

RELEASED, MARCH 15th

Cowboy Argument

Two cowboys fire at an eagle at the same time. Each claims the prey. They decide that the winner in a game of cards shall receive the eagle. One of the two plays false, which costs him his life,

Length 600 Feet

Talked to Death

The picture shows exactly what the title implies. It is an exceedingly funny subject and a regular laughter-maker.

Length 215 Feet

RELEASED, MARCH 18th

Reforming a Husband

The young wife returning from the wedding trip tries to reform her husband but she soon is convinced that it is easier to reform a wife than a husband.

Length 530 Feet

Uncle Reuben's Courtship

Uncle Reuben decides to get married. Seeing an advertisement in the paper, he calls on a young widow and wins her after a most strenuous courtship.

Length 350 Feet

LUBIN'S MARVEL, UNDERWRITERS' APPROVED MODEL

The Machine You Want

LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY

926-928 Market Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange

NINTH FLOOR

MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

The tremendous growth of our business in the last few weeks has compelled us to double our floor space

We invite exhibitors to call at our new headquarters. We have facilities to meet the most pretentious demands, and we can offer wide-awake managers exceptional inducements

C. J. HITE FILM COMPANY

360-361-362-363 Monadnock Block
CHICAGO, ILL.

The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

SELIG'S NOTICE—IMPORTANT

SAVE TIME, MONEY AND WORRY

Good judgement recommends carrying a good supply of Selig films at all times. Always dependable, and always in demand. The Public wants them.

WHY?

Because Selig's films never fail to afford the best of satisfaction. Watch for his next. Another great Western melodrama

Code word—SAD. BOOTS AND SADDLES Length 1000 feet.

Don't miss seeing this picture as it was staged by real Sioux Indians, Order from your nearest exchange. They all will rent Selig's LATEST.

Order our own original posters—one sheet. We keep them in stock all the time. Price Ten Cents.

Send for one—The Skipper's Daughters, Mad Miner, The Iron Worker, and Boots and Saddles. These posters will be a great help for your show, and remember Selig stands for SUPERIORITY. Show a Selig film and we will show you a packed house.

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO., 45-47-49 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

BIOGRAPH FILMS

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED MARCH 15, 1909

The Lure of the Gown

Showing the fascinating influence of a masterpiece of dressmaker's art. It lures away the sweetheart of a pretty little street singer, until she herself becomes possessed of a creation that eclipses it, and then—well it is the old story, "fine feathers make fine birds."

LENGTH 547 FEET

I Did It, Mamma

A very pretty little story of a child's confession of a deed she sees another about to be punished for.

LENGTH 342 FEET

RELEASED MARCH 18, 1909

The Voice of the Violin

Romance of a Poor German Music Teacher

Herr Von Schmitt, a young musician, imbued with communistic principles of socialism, falls in love with his pupil, a wealthy heiress. His suit spurned, he becomes a full-fledged anarchist and is chosen as one of the assassins of a monopolist. Through the hearing of one of his violin compositions he discovers that the place is the residence of his former pupil and so begs his companion to desist, which brings about a conflict in which he is overpowered and bound, with the lighted fuse of the bomb slowly burning towards disaster. He manages, however, to crawl over and extinguish the fuse with his teeth, thereby saving the girl, her family and himself. This act of heroism wins for him the love of the girl and consent of the father.

LENGTH 975 FEET

Release days of Biograph Subjects—MONDAY and THURSDAY

Get on Our Mail List and Keep Posted. Write for Our Descriptive Circulars

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied.

Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

OPERA CHAIRS

For Moving Picture Theatres

The best line made for the least money. Chairs carried in stock and immediate shipment guaranteed. The finest Moving Picture Theatres in the country are seated with our chairs, and with invariable satisfaction. Seating for Moving Picture and Vaudeville Theatres our specialty, and that explains why we lead all others. Send for catalogue and prices. You will be interested.

IMPERIAL SEATING CO.

Chicago Opera House Building

CHICAGO - - ILLINOIS

NOW READY

Rush in Your Order for Service.

Independent Film Service for particular people. We have better facilities for handling your business than any concern in the West. Machines, tickets, carbons, and everything the exhibitor needs. Write for terms.

INDEPENDENT FILM & SUPPLY CO. Inc.

216 Balboa Bldg., 2d and Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SALE—35 reels perfect film, all titled and in good condition at $15.00 per reel. Best bargain ever offered. One Columbia B. A. Phonograph for $50. Mayer Silverman, 713 Fulton Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

GAUMONT FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

"INNOCENT, BUT FOUND GUILTY"

Drama. Approximate Length, 750 Feet.
RELEASE, TUESDAY, MARCH 16, 1909.

A very pathetic presentation. "It never rains but what it pours" was seemingly never applied with greater force than in this instance. The family principally affected consists of husband, wife and child. In his efforts to find work the father visits the entire community seeking any honest labor by which he might provide for his family. A farm house is set afire and our unfortunate friend having been the last one to be seen in the vicinity is accused of the deed. He is tried for arson, convicted on circumstantial evidence, and sentenced to prison. The shock is too great for his wife and she succumbs to apoplexy. Their child becomes a public charge. Six years later the man is liberated and seeks his family. The curate imparts the sad news of the wife's death. At this point divine providence interferes and the owner of the farm is stricken with an illness from which there is no recovery. He confesses to the crime, thus exonerating the innocent from guilt and expires, to appear before a higher tribunal to answer the charges there preferred against him. (Coloring $7.00 extra.)

"THE MUSICIAN'S DREAM"

Farce-Comedy. Approximate Length, 255 Feet.
RELEASE, TUESDAY, MARCH 16, 1909.

The proverbially poor musician in an apartment devoid of artistic decorations goes to sleep from lack of nourishment as much as from physical exhaustion due to strenuous efforts to maintain a livelihood. The gods look kindly upon this mortal and as he reposes in the arms of Morpheus allow him to experience thrills that would do justice to the most inveterate rarebit fiend. By accident his violincello falls and strikes him causing sudden awakening, to his extreme regret.

Beautifully and artistically colored, well rendered and of excellent photographic quality.

"THE SECRETARY'S REVENGE"

Drama. Approximate Length, 786 Feet.
RELEASE, SATURDAY, MARCH 20, 1909.

This story elucidates the nefarious practice of anonymous letter writing. The private secretary of a public official being subjected to criticism, vows vengeance and concocts a diabolical plot to avenge his imaginary wrong upon his superior. The latter has renewed the acquaintance of an old school chum and has offered him the privileges of his home. The friend, an army officer, is a gentleman of suave manner and soon ingratiates himself with the wife of his host. This is the opportunity for the unscrupulous subordinate and a few well chosen words in the form of an anonymous letter start the suspicions of his superior and a jealous disposition readily finds nourishment in the courtesies of the gallant officer to the hostess.

A challenge to mortal combat is made and the details for the encounter being arranged by the seconds when an army official of high rank interposes and seeks to clear the situation. During the conference this officer by accident discovers the impression of the address given on the anonymous letter on a blotter. Confronted with the evidence the unfaithful employee bows shamefacedly and receives his dishonorable discharge. Through the kind offices of the angel of peace, an unusual trait in an army officer, the breach in the friendship of the two old chums is overcome and they are reunited in a stronger union than ever.

"THE SURVIVOR'S STORY"

Comedy. Approximate Length, 195 Feet.
RELEASE, SATURDAY, MARCH 20, 1909.

A tourist returning from the scene of the earthquake at Messina visits some friends and is hard pressed for details of the occurrence. He consents to describe his experiences and succeeds in rendering a very graphic report.

He describes an abrupt shock and the edifice rocks from sudden impact; a heavy gale is demonstrated; the panic, resulting in flight of the narrator forms the climax of the recital.

A very novel and amusing series of views, well rendered and of excellent detail.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

"CREMATION ON THE RIVER GANGES"

Topical. Approximate Length, 176 Feet.
RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1909.

This series of views depicts very vividly scenes incident to the performance of religious rites by the Hindoos. The banks of the River Ganges form a picturesque setting for the performance.

"THE CELEBRATED MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS"

Comedy. Approximate Length, 393 Feet.
RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1909.

Visiting a resort in the mountains three tourists undertake to scale the precipitous mountain peaks. With brave hearts they start to carry out their hazardous undertaking. Their efforts are crowned with measured success, but they render very amusing sights as they crawl and drag each other over the cliffs and are finally obliged to summon aid to be rescued from a precarious peak to which they manage to ascend. Much the worse for their experience they return to the hotel.

"MASTER GOES SHOPPING"

Comedy. Approximate Length, 331 Feet.
RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 17, 1909.

The maid of the household is entrusted with the marketing and when she returns the master concludes that he could do much better himself, and accordingly goes out upon his mission. What happens to him is a caution, and a woe begone and regretful shopper returns to his home to be held up to the scorn and ridicule of the family.

GEORGE KLEINE

Importer of Gaumont and Urban-Eclipse Films

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Moving Picture World

With which is Incorporated

The Exhibit.

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company, 125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.

Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

The contents of this magazine are protected by copyright and all infringements will be prosecuted.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

Vol. 4 MARCH 13 No. 11

Editorial.

Moving Pictures Protected by the New Copyright Law.

A clause in the new copyright law which comes into force this year reads as follows:

> "That any person entitled thereto, upon complying with the provisions of this act, shall have the exclusive right:
>
> "To perform or represent the copyrighted work publicly if it be a drama, or if it be a dramatic work, and not produced in copies for sale, to vend any manuscript or any record whatsoever thereof, to make or procure the making of any transcription or record thereof, by or from which, in whole or in part, it may in any manner, or by any method, be exhibited, performed, presented, produced, or reproduced, and to exhibit, perform, produce or reproduce in any manner, or by any method whatsoever."

This clause has been submitted to several authorities on copyright law, and they are of the opinion that whatever its intention may be, its effect is undoubtedly to give American film manufacturers protection in their work. It lifts the moving picture from the level of the mere photograph to that of a dramatic work; consequently it minimizes the risk of duping; for the penalty for pirating dramatic films is so heavy that few dupers will care to take the chance. Thus both the author of the moving picture play and its manufacturer can adequately protect themselves. That is the interpretation of the clause, but it remains to be seen whether the courts, on a test case, would give the same reading to it. We are inclined to think that the argument in favor of classifying the moving picture as a piece of dramatic work is so strong that the courts would unquestionably so regard it.

Law Makers and Law Breakers.

Strange to relate, there is no one who makes a louder howl against persecution than the man who is caught breaking the law. This may apply in more than one category, but we are at present interested in urging exhibitors to observe the laws that are laid down by the municipal or State authorities. Strict observance of these laws will result to their individual benefit as well as tend to raise the business in the public estimation.

If a law is unjust or obnoxious, open violation is not the means of redress. Exhibitors in many cities have persisted in violation of the law and the authorities have come to the conclusion that the only course to take with these individuals is to take away their licenses. The courts have sustained the action of the Mayor of New York City in revoking the licenses of law-breaking exhibitors and we notice that the authorities in other cities are adopting similar heroic measures.

Warning notice has been served on the Philadelphia exhibitors that the license of every exhibitor will be revoked who persists in crowding the aisles and staircases. The law is very clear on this point and specifically states that all passageways must be kept free from obstructions at all times. The fire marshal of Philadelphia made a round of the theaters and found that the passageways were crowded in many places.

The chief of police of Taunton, Mass., has issued an edict that he will close any picture show that admits children under 14 years of age after six o'clock. This is rather early for the ringing of the curfew bell and nothing is said about children who are accompanied by their parents. It is to be hoped that the chief will use discretion in enforcing this ruling.

An exhibitor in Cleveland has been placed under arrest for persistently ignoring the instructions of the building department to keep the fire exits unlocked and change the doors so that they swing outward. It is violations of such precautionary measures that we particularly object to, and, as we pointed out last week, the exhibitors' associations that are now being formed can do much good by taking in hand the reformation of the habitual law-breaker.

TALKING AND SINGING PICTURES.

The combination of the phonograph or graphophone with the picture machine has now advanced to such a state of perfection, and is being promoted by so many well financed concerns, that it is destined to occupy an important part in the moving picture field. Realizing the vague impressions prevailing in the minds of the exhibitors as to the practicability and advisability of adding the talking pictures to the show, we have secured the services of several authorities and will present to our readers all sides of the subject in a series of practical articles, the first of which will appear in next week's issue of this paper.

Robert L. Hastings will write on the state of perfection of the art in Europe, and Carl Herbert, formerly general manager for the Cameraphone Company, will treat on the subject from the exhibitor's point of view. Other articles will follow, and descriptions of the various systems and synchronizing devices.

EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATIONS

Are requested to send particulars of their meetings and the secretary's name and address. We have several requests for the names and addresses of these officials.

The Modern Way in Moving Picture Making.

By Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S.

[The author of this important series of articles, which will form a complete hand-book to the most modern methods of producing moving pictures, is an accepted authority on the subject. He was for several years Editor of the "British Journal of Photography," in London; is well versed in all branches of the theory and practice of photography, and has devoted much attention to the preparation and production of "silent plays." These articles will be continued from week to week, and will be completed in about eighteen chapters.]

INTRODUCTORY.

If I were asked to give the reader my idea of what would be a good example of moving picture technique to take as a guide in the preparation of these films, I would select a recently published picture by Pathe, entitled, "The Assassination of the Duke of Guise." It would be well if the student of these lines would see this picture for himself, because, then, he would more readily appreciate the piece of constructive criticism which I am about to pass on it.

In the first place, let us examine the picture in both its principal aspects, 1, as a piece of stage craft; 2, as a photograph. As a piece of stage craft it is comparable to the finest productions of Sir Henry Irving, who was, without doubt, the best stage producer of modern times. The scenes of the Assassination show accuracy of costume, accessories, archæological and other details; the grouping, and what we commonly call the mise-en-scene are perfect; the acting such as only long and careful rehearsing under a master mind can produce. From this point of view, and I speak from experience of the Paris, London and New York stages, I have no hesitation in pronouncing the film in question as an ideal piece of stage craft in the way of silent drama. It is an example to be studied, and studied again, until this lesson has been got thoroughly to heart: That the first essential for success in moving picture making is to have a suitable subject, well rehearsed.

Now for the second aspect of this remarkable film. It was well, fully, evenly and naturally illuminated and exposed. There was nothing theatrical or stagy about the scenes; there were no obtrusively high lights or very dark shadows. The whole effect, as I have said, was natural, giving one the impression that the scenes shown actually took place in the beautiful rooms of a French court. Evidently Pathes are past masters in the art of illuminating their subjects. The exposure was accurate —accurate and full, which is a very great point in this kind of work. The negative was properly developed, for it had no defective marks on it to transmit to the positive, which was a richly toned piece of work. By "toned," I don't mean color-toned, I mean that the image of the positive was developed so as to give a pleasing variation of the silver pigment of the film; in other words the positive was of a rich warmish hue, in contradistinction to the soot and white-wash effects that are so common in moving pictures.

Such a picture as this is not made by accident. It was rehearsed by a world renowned French dramatist who is versed in the archæological and historic lore of the period of French history at which the Assassination of the Duke of Guise took place. Then as regards the photographic end of the work, it has long since passed into proverb that Pathes are at the head of the world's producers of moving pictures. The reason for this is plain. They have studied the business scientifically; they go about it scientifically, that is to say, they apply the best available knowledge to the making of the picture in each of its departments. The result is success each time in point of technique.

Even better in some respects than the subject referred to is the dramatic rendering of "The Return of Ulysses," another film d'art which is about to be issued by this same house and which may again be referred to in illustrating the motif of these articles.

* * *

The object of this series of chapters is to induce those engaged in the making of moving pictures to bring to bear on the work all the scientific knowledge available, to abandon haphazard and rule-of-thumb methods, and generally to exercise as much care in the making of moving pictures as they would devote to any other branch of industrial production, that is based upon clearly defined and intelligible first principles. If these chapters are carefully studied, I believe that the hints they contain, which are the result of considerable experience and observation, will do something towards uplifting the average of quality of modern moving picture making.

CHAPTER I.

The Play and Its Production.

Poeta mascitur non fit—the poet is born not made. This good old phrase of one's school days comes to mind as I approach, with some diffidence, this part of my subject, that of the making of the silent play and its stage production. Most persons, at some time in their lives, who use a pen to make a living, think they can edit a newspaper, construct a play or write a novel. Large numbers of them try and fail. Some of the failures become reviewers, dramatic critics or take to peddling. The latter is the usual fate of people who mistake their vocations. Play writing, novel writing, newspaper editing are businesses which have to be studied as laboriously as any other business; as laboriously, for example, as architecture, engineering, medicine or dry goods selling. And just in proportion to the amount of study and preparatory work put in the business, so does success usually accrue. It is well, I think, in the present stage of the moving picture drama to insist upon these points, just as strongly as they are insisted upon in regard to the regular or talking stage. A great many films that are current at this moment, fail in securing the appreciation, the understanding and the applause of those who witness them—and there are hundreds of thousands a day all over the world—simply because the author of the piece, either did not understand the business of the stage or the producers and the manufacturers responsible for them were equally ignorant on the same important point.

I cannot undertake to tell the reader how to write a moving picture play any more than David Belasco can teach an aspiring author how to fit Mrs. Leslie Carter or Miss Barrymore with a drama, but I can tell him this much, that among the essentials of his equipment for the work is a thorough knowledge of stage craft. To define stage craft is somewhat difficult. It means roughly the business and work of the stage. In real life people do not move about the world without some predetermined idea of what they are doing, or whither they are going, or what they are thinking about. So it is on the stage, every act, every gesture, every movement has a definite object in view which the author must think out for the guidance of his characters. Then again the stage has a front, a back and sides. It has also entrances and exits. The scene has to be furnished and decorated, and it has to have a color scheme. None of these things are accidental. They are placed on the stage for a purpose. That purpose must be in the author's mind, and the reason for it must be made apparent to the minds of the audience. Nothing, in short, is accidental on the mimic stage.

Then as to the piece. Whether this be a drama, a comedy, a comic chase, or any funny kind of piece, in short, no matter whatever the subject of the film may be, it must be founded upon a definite formula, that is to say, it must tell a clear and lucid story, progressing in interest up to the climax and finish. It must hold the attention of the audience from the moment that the film commences to move. There must not be an instant of needless pause or unintelligible action. It must have a beginning, at which the plot is outlined; a middle in which that plot is carried on and developed; an end in which all the mystery or doubt or misunderstanding is made clear, and a satisfactory conclusion reached. Above all it must be dramatic; it must have action; action of a marked and pronounced kind, so that as little as possible is left to the imagination of a moving picture audience. Remember that the voice plays no part in the productions of the silent stage. These are purely pantomimical to the eye; have little to do with the beauty of the picture, per se. The brain and the understanding can only be successfully reached by clear, crisp, sharp tense action; in other words the piece must be written to be acted and acted only; acted that is, in such a sense, that the emotions can be aroused and excited not only by the non-display of emotion, but rather by silent suggestions.

In America the world of pantomime is not so strongly developed as in France and other parts of continental Europe, where the wordless play is very popular. Hence the word "mime," a corruptive of "mimic." Actions are mimicked without the accompanying assistance of speech. Many film pieces that are produced fail because of some obvious disconnectedness in action, in other words, it becomes manifest to a serious critic that there is a hiatus which only spoken words can supply. This is a very serious defect and confuses an audience. The action is incomplete, the producers or those responsible for the piece have slurred it over, ignoring the first essential for success, namely, that action, ACTION, ACTION, all the time, is imperative.

The practical point I wish to bring out in this chapter is this: It would pay manufacturers of films to encourage the very highest attainable class of play writing talent. Then the somewhat loose system of procuring material for the silent stage would be abandoned or taken out of the hands of incompetent and half educated scribblers. There is as much labor involved in the writing of a piece which will take up a thousand-foot reel, there is as much thought and knowledge, skill and brain work required, as much acquaintance with stage craft and the requirements of an audience as is demanded by a piece, whatever its nature—for a high class New York Broadway theater. In some respects there is more, because, as I have already pointed out, the author of the silent play is denied the assistance of speaking actors. So much, then, as to the class of piece suitable for film representation. It must be in all essential respects comparable to the work of our best dramatists; it must not fall below it in interest, novelty of plot, in continuity and clearness of action, and it must produce on the minds of those who witness it just as much effect as the work of Clyde Fitch, Augustus Thomas, A. W. Pinero, J. K. Jerome or any other modern author whose work commands high prices in the play market.

I have placed this matter of the writing of the piece and its proper stage treatment in the forefront of these articles, because first of all, it is of real importance in any adequate method of making moving pictures. The whole tendency of the latter, at the present time, is to replace the productions of the talking stage. To do that successfully they must be equal to them in excellence of dramatic action and effect; in other words they must be high class plays with the talking left out. The future of the moving picture drama demands all this and will unquestionably obtain it.

OBSERVATIONS BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

I don't wish to create false hopes in the breasts of the exhibitors located in Greater New York, but I see so many of them strolling about with countenances that make the observer believe that there is nothing left open for them but the grave that it is time to step in and inject some encouragement. Isn't it funny that the most mournful exhibitors of the present day are the fellows that have the most money and have made the most? No, this is no attempt at humor, but the statement of an actual fact. Look about you and see for yourself. See that little fellow coming along the street, wending his way to a film exchange to get a change of show? He is what some of his more pretentious neighbors in the business call a piker, because he has one small picture place. It has no modern front, but so far as the requirements of the electrical, building and fire departments are concerned, the little place is strictly up to the last number. This is due to one of the characteristics of the owner of the one small place. He believes in a good foundation rather than a bluff front. He has other characteristics: He pays his rental and all other bills promptly; he would rather pay a few extra dollars and employ an experienced, reliable operator than take chances with a novice or a cheap youth; if a movement is inaugurated to better protect or promote the interests of the exhibitors he is always ready with his contribution. "What an odd little fellow!" some will say. Yes, but his oddity runs in the right direction. He went into the picture business with, perhaps, limited capital, but with the intention of making it his means of livelihood, and not as a speculation. His place may not be " a thing of beauty," but in every respect it reflects money well spent. Another characteristic about him is the absence of a desire to operate a chain of picture houses and become a magnate, spending most of his time in trying to figure how he can get a supply of films for four or five houses for what is really only a moderate price for one. It is this little, single-handed fellow to whom encouragement is held out. His straightforwardness, energy and pluck entitles him to it.

* * *

There is no mistaking the fact that for the past few months the situation has been a discouraging one for the exhibitors. Competition has been keen all along and it has been a hard fight for many to meet it. Add to this the blow struck by Mayor McClellan last December that forced the exhibitors into an expensive injunction proceeding that involved heavy assessments; the tormenting exactions of the various department that required remodelling of places, improvement of apparatus, etc.; the effect of the moral wave that took Sundays from the source of revenue and shut out the juvenile patrons; and, last, but not least, the license fee imposed by the Moving Picture Patents Company, and it can be readily seen that the path of the exhibitor has not been strewn with roses. With all these things (and many others which it is not necessary to mention here) to contend with the present frame of mind of the exhibitor is not surprising. So far as appearances go, both the large and small fry have been justified in lamenting over the situation, but none should forget that every cloud has a silver lining and the darkest hour comes before the dawn.

* * *

Let us, for a moment, view the moving picture field philosophically. All must admit that it has been a go-as-you-please game. All ventures having attached to them the nature of a mushroom growth must at some time or another meet a check that eventually results in a readjustment and a gradually settling down to a sane basis. When nickelodeons first came into vogue there were no municipal regulations or State laws apply-to them. As they multiplied, the authorities gradually awoke to a realization that steps were necessary to safeguard life and property. Step by step the necessary precautions were framed and enforced, and, of course, those engaged in the business were put to labor and expense to meet the requirements. As this readjustment was gradually worked out, so will others eventually be accomplished until finally everything will be in a shape that will force a general verdict that, hard and oppressive as the measures appeared to be in the process of development, they after all worked out the salvation of the business as a whole.

* * *

Many exhibitors have been unmistakably bitter in their criticisms of the various civic organizations that have recently interested themselves in movements to regulate the picture shows. In some respects the criticsms have not been wholly uncalled for, as reformers are just as likely to overreach themselves as well as those they wish to reform. But it is as certain as anything can be that if the exhibitors exercise patience and good judgment they will yet formulate a plan in which they will have the hearty co-operation of the civic organizations whose activity has heretofore aroused bitter feeling. This prediction is not based upon imagination and is not an arid bug floating on hot air. It is founded upon information that comes from an apparently authoritative source. To go a step further, it may be stated that representatives of the exhibitors and the civic organizations are now working together with a view to coming to some understanding that will be satisfactory to all concerned and will result in the passage of a bill by the next State legislature that will not only govern the exhibitors, but protect their interests and, for the first time in the history of nickelodeons in this State, remove from the minds of the exhibitors all doubt as to what they are expected to do and what rights they enjoy. It is stated that among the features of the bill to be introduced will be the re-establishment of Sunday exhibitions with certain restrictions and a provision allowing children, regardless of age, to attend the picture shows during certain hours of afternoons.

* * *

It is safe to say that what has been stated above is not generally known among the exhibitors. This is accounted for by the invariable neglect of some people as to matters that frequently apply to their most vital interests. They leave their salvation and protection to be worked out by others. It is left to the few. The bulk of those to derive benefit contribute neither labor nor money. They either fail to see, or neglect to grasp, an opportunity. It is a pity that some people do not try to help themselves, or at least lend a helping hand to those who are trying to help them. Reader, if you are one of these turn over a new leaf. Look about you. If your purse is too small, or you have the strings about it wound too tight, make one effort and at least give a word of encouragement to those who are working so hard for you.

MUST FURNISH DUPLICATES OF WARSHIP PHOTOGRAPHS.

Hereafter persons not belonging to the naval establishment who get permission to photograph war vessels or navy yards will be required to furnish without cost duplicates of all pictures taken.

These pictures may be used by the department for such purposes other than commercial as it may deem advisable. Moving picture films are included.

SAN FRANCISCO OPERATORS ORGANIZE.

The employes of nickelodeons and moving picture theaters have organized under the name of "Projecting Operators' Protective Association," and will wage a bitter warfare against theatrical managers and owners in their attempt to legislate against the five-cent theater, which they claim is the poor man's theater. The association has also made arrangements with the proprietors of the five-cent theaters to display the union sign, a brass plate, in every theater where the employes are union men. The new association is an auxiliary to the theatrical stage employes' association and will shortly become affiliated with the San Francisco labor council.

¶ CAN you afford to miss a copy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? $2 per year—52 numbers.

ON THE SCREEN.

By "Lux Graphicus."

"There is a prostitution more damning than the prostitution of the body, the prostitution of body and soul and mind, caused by the moving picture machines." This is an extract from a sermon recently preached in the Fall River (Mass.) Cathedral by the Rev. Father Cassidy. A very eloquent sermon; but, I humbly submit, a somewhat intemperate one. Anyone would think, to read this and similar utterances, that such a thing as a clean, moral moving picture show did not exist. I can take you to plenty of them in New York City, Father Cassidy, and believe me, they are in the majority.

By all means stamp out these prostituting "picture machines" (the poor "machine" is guiltless enough, goodness knows!) but do be fair and discriminating in your attacks, you gentlemen of the pulpit. Irrational denunciation never did, never will, do good; it is more likely to do harm. People may be persuaded to avoid the bad in life; you may reason, argue with, convince, and convert—you will never drive, coerce or frighten them into goodness. Permanently, at any rate. "When the devil was ill, the devil a saint would be; when the devil was well the devil a saint he'd be." The old man got cold feet, you see. Much the same with human beings, I expect.

I'm as earnest as Father Cassidy in wishing to stamp out unsuitable moving pictures; we differ only in methods, and I think pulpit denunciation a wrong method, especially denunciation of the perfervid kind. It draws too much attention to the very evils it seeks to suppress. Look at the unfortunate publicity it gets in the press—publicity not always accurate and discreet! There are people alas! who only read the papers for the evil they contain; books, too. Otherwise such volumes as "Three Weeks" would remain on their publisher's bookshelves. They sell because reviewers, clergymen and others innocently advertise their contents. May it not be the same with objectionable moving picture shows?

"Moving Pictures as Helps to Crime" is the head line of a recently published article in the New York Times. Inspector James McCafferty, of the New York Detective Bureau, has traced many crooks to the picture shows and credits the criminals with getting ideas from the pictures. Is it wise to publish all this? I doubt it. If it is, is it fair? Crime is shown on the Broadway stage. Do these incite to criminality? If so, why not, O, New York Times, publish an article headed "Stage Plays as Helps to Crime?" The heroine of "The Easiest Way" returns to her life of sin at the end of the play. Are we to suppose that her example will influence the subsequent actions of the thousands of women who are flocking to see Mr. Walters' much discussed production?

The talking and silent stages have recently come in for some rough treatment at the hands of the purity agitators. What about the other sores of a great city? The New York "Tenderloin," for example? Nobody seems to go for that! The assignation hotels? Aspasia of the sidewalk, who is seldom inconspicuous? Social reform is all a question of method, and the experience of ages shows that a repressive method works out badly in practice. So does indirect publicity. The "dry" States are hotbeds of evasion and illicit drinking. Tennyson sighed for "Better manners, purer laws," but he didn't schedule violent sermons and sensational newspaper articles as likely to bring about that millennial state of affairs. Poets are seldom practical men of the world.

It will be the practical man of the world who will settle this moving picture trouble. He is realizing, as he was bound to do in time, that there is surer money in the clean and non-salacious; and so he'll deliver the class of goods required. This is not a very lofty motive, to be sure, but it is a safe one and a business-like one, and it is more likely to be successful in the long run than philanthropy run riot. Time was when a London music hall or variety theater was not a place to which a man could decently take his wife, daughter or fiance. To-day, thanks to the progress of enlightenment and common sense, there are no better conducted places of amusement in the world than those of London—a result brought about by the application of business principles. The so-called "purity party" had nothing to do with it.

Now, I wish to give notice to all whom it may concern, that wherever I come across an unfair or intemperate attack on moving picture shows, I shall scourge the author of it in this very column. I'll lash him out of recognition—until his own mother won't know him. Mind that! The moving picture is the poor man's entertainment; and those who would rob him of it are none too scrupulous in their methods. If we could get at the inspiration of many of these published attacks, we should probably find that they are not wholly disinterested. I've known cases where influence has been secretly exerted on press and pulpit in order to bring about a desired result. Money is a potent force and it can be disbursed so adroitly that the real motives of those who spend it are obscured. Wonder how much money has been secretly distributed for the purpose of influencing the public mind against the moving picture?

Among the Exhibitors.

[By a Special Correspondent.]

Philadelphia, with its numerous, splendid moving picture theaters, gives the lie to persons who claim that the old Quaker City is the slowest town of the Union. Philadelphia beats them all to a frazzle, as there is not another city which can boast of so many elegant show places, not only in size, decorations, electrical displays, but in comfort for the visitors. This is due to the indefatigable energy of the pioneer showman, Mr. S. Lubin. Mr. Lubin's new place should be taken as a model. Leaving aside the beauty of the building, let us consider the comfort. The hall, with a seating capacity of 850, is furnished with the finest and most comfortable chairs. As these seats are not too close, spectators can leave without disturbing anyone. The floor is inclined, giving a good view of the stage from every seat. The aisles are numerous and wide, and an army of uniformed and polite ushers is ready to show you to seats.

When pictures are shown, the hall is not in total darkness, as many electric lamps, of different colors, are ingeniously inserted in the wall decorations and maintain a dim, soft light, not strong enough to injure the effects on the screen. The hall has a very high ceiling and numerous hidden fans and exhausts are conveniently placed to clear the atmosphere. Mr. Lubin has refused to place galleries, as he claims that in case of fire, the loss of life is generally due to the panic-stricken spectators tumbling over the stairs, no matter how wide they may be. This precaution seems superfluous, as I can see no chance of fire, unless some one would deliberately set the place on fire.

The numerous machines are kept on a specially built gallery, a fireproof room, all of iron and supplied with a flue to carry out smoke and flames, if by accident a film should take fire. It is not a booth, as we see in other places, but it is a real room of high ceiling and large enough to give a dancing party. If a film should explode, the audience would be kept in complete ignorance of the accident. To complete the safety, I must mention large exit doors, in the rear as well as in the front. An elegant parlor for ladies; and lavatories, everything to make an audience as comfortable as possible.

When Mr. Lubin took me around the place, he told me that he had received many visits from prospective builders, and as I was leaving, Mr. Gorman, a Williamsport, Pa., exhibitor, who is building a new house, approached Mr. Lubin to ask him permission to examine the place. There is no doubt that many builders are taking model on Mr. Lubin, as the Unique, a new place on Market street, just opened for business, is a copy of Mr. Lubin's palace. Has the same inclined floor, no gallery, same arrangement of stage and of exit doors, but the Unique lacks this je ne sais quoi, which makes one feel so much at home in Mr. Lubin's palace. The Unique does not seem to have a first run of pictures, and as they have still a longer projection than Mr. Lubin's and not the same powerful light, the rain storm pictures are not clear and do not fit the rich frame. Spectators certainly enjoy fine and comfortable show places, but they will not patronize them if the pictures are not good and the vaudeville acts are vulgar.

As I am once more on the vaudeville question, I wish to say that if houses on the main street of a large city, with a daily transient trade, can show vaudeville, it is not the same with small towns. Camden, N. J., is considered a suburb of Philadelphia, although some jokers claim that Philadelphia is the village across the Delaware River from Camden. On Market street, Philadelphia, all the houses are open for business from 11 A. M. to 11 P. M. Some even open at 9 A. M. It is true that from 9 A. M. the two big terminals of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad pour on Market street load after load of suburbanites and strangers, coming to do their shopping in the great department stores of Market street. After leaving Wanamaker's, the shoppers have to pass numerous moving picture theaters to reach the other great stores. It is then a very convenient and agreeable change to look at a show between two shopping tours.

This is not the case with Camden. I went there at 4 P. M. Out of ten shows on Kaighn avenue and Broadway, I found seven doors closed, as they are open only in the evening. I found three of them trying to do some business, but surely they were not making their expenses. With a limited evening business, these Camden shows cannot make enough to afford to pay any decent vaudeville, and we all agree that a poor vaudeville act is worse than none at all.

The Dreamland, of Trenton, N. J., is a nice place of about 200 seats, doing a good business, but not enough to show vaudeville. As other places started to show one act, then two acts, etc., the Dreamland folks found themselves compelled to go into the vaudeville business and for this they are remodelling two stores into a fine moving picture theater, with a marble front, etc., to seat over 400 persons. The increased seating capacity will enable them to show some vaudeville acts and keep up with their competitors.

Mr. Gorman, of Williamsport, with a $20,000 house, and building a new one at a cost of $25,000, surprised us when he said that he was showing pictures only and that he was opposed to vaudeville. This is his opinion, but he did not say what he would do if others start with some vaudeville acts.

The Independents seem to control the majority of the houses of Camden, at the head of which is the Majestic, the handsomest, largest and newest moving picture theater. On another hand the Star Palace, a small place, is giving a poor idea to the Camdenians of what the Independents can do by showing some old rain-storm films and this under such poor light as to make them still more indistinct. Who would believe that $102 can purchase a fully equipped moving picture theater? We have to go to Camden, N. J., for such a bargain.

A married couple opened a small show, but as both were great spenders, it was not long before the creditors pressed for their money. The young wife got a check for $195 from her mother in favor of the husband. Was the check cashed or not, the rumor does not say, but the young wife obtained a chattel mortgage for the amount. The creditors did not care to press, as an auction sale would have not satisfied the claims, mortgage and expenses. They all agreed to offer the place for sale. In the meantime a clever woman, who had an eye on the place, leagued herself wiith the landlord, had the show ejected and the goods sold for back rent. The woman in question managed so well that she bought everything, chairs, Power's machine, rheostat, etc., for $102, and, paying a few dollars of back rent, she was ready to open for business.

The Bristol, of Bristol, Pa., has been and is still showing licensed films. The Family Theater, which was showing Independent films, joined the trust, at least for the time being, until they they can be assured of a good and regular supply from the Independents. The business in Chester, Pa., seems to be on the increase, as the Majestic is a new addition and the Bijou Dream is planning a great addition, which will give them 1,200 seats.

There is war in the 59 houses of Chester. Some claim that they cannot show vaudeville, while their opponents risk their benefits to make vaudeville a regular feature of the moving picture shows. The feelings between the two factions are very bitter in view of a truce on the part of the Opera House and of the Family Theater, the two play houses of the place. It is rumored that the two theaters have promised to not keep open and to not show moving pictures during the busy Summer season, if the moving picture shows agree to not show vaudeville acts, but if vaudeville is a feature of the 59 houses, the theaters will keep open all Summer and show moving pictures. It is a serious question and my advice to the different interests was to forget their personal griefs and unite for the good of all concerned.

The interest in Cinematography is not lacking in Wilmington, Del., if we consider the good evening audiences. Wilmington is under the control of the licensed manufacturers, with the exception of the Lyric, where they were showing some of the best Independent films. The Hyrup's Auditorium is planning some new improvements which will add to the seating capacity and provide a stage in case they should be compelled to add some vaudeville to keep pace with the competition. Personally the manager does not believe in vaudeville, but on the contrary, he claims that pictures should be shown alone. The said manager is wide awake and desirous of showing some good productions; he engaged the services of Mr. S. Bush, of Philadelphia, to lecture on "The Devil," of the Edison Company, as he feared that his audiences would not appreciate such an excellent film, if not explained by a good lecturer.

[To be Continued.]

FOX VS. GILLIGHAM—THEATER FRONTS.

Judge's Decision.

Mr. Gilligham leased these premises, and the parties well understood the purpose for which the lease was made. The purpose is clearly expressed in the lease to be for "Exhibiting moving pictures and illustrated songs." It is clear from the lease itself that the parties intended, in the first instance, that any changes that might be made in the premises, to prepare them to be occupied for the purposes specified, were to be changes for the benefit of Mr. Gilligham, the lessee, rather than for the benefit of the Fox Company.

That is clearly made manifest by a provision in the lease. It is perfectly evident that the parties reached a satisfactory arrangement with reference to this matter of the improvement to be made in the property, the changes, because the lease was not forfeited by the landlord by any notice given to the tenant, but the tenant was permitted to occupy the premises for the whole term without any interference. He was permitted to make these changes, to take out the old front, to put in a new front suitable for the business for which the premises were rented, and to make other changes in the premises. It appears that in making these changes Mr. Gilligham, the tenant, expended something like $1,800; that he removed the old front and replaced it with a new front appropriate to the business he was about to engage in. The lease was for three years, as I understand it, and was dated the 10th day of March, 1906. It is about to expire. It appears that Mr. Gilligham made application for a renewal of this lease; that the landlord, the complainant in this case, would not release the premises to Gilligham for the same rent that he had been paying, but it is claimed that a price was charged which was prohibitive, or substantially so, and Mr. Gilligham refused to rerent on that account.

It also appears that the landlord, the complainant in this case, has sublet the premises to others, Rose and another, who have been made parties in this case and who have filed an answer to the bill of complaint, an answer in the nature of a cross bill, as I understand it.

It does not appear by the affidavits or by the pleadings just what rent the complainant charged Mr. Gilligham which led him to refuse to release the premises, nor does it appear just what rent Rose and his associates are paying or have agreed to pay to Fox & Co. for the premises. But it does appear—and that is the point I referred to in the first instance when I said that both parties seemed to be desirous of outwitting each other in this transaction—it does appear that Mr. Gilligham has no desire on account of his other business arrangements to permit Rose and his associates to get the benefit of the improvements he put upon this store building; and it also appears that Fox & Co. are anxious to secure the benefit of these improvements in order that they may get the additional rent from Rose and his associate; and further, that Rose and his associate are extremely anxious that the premises be left in their present condition in order that they may also get the benefits of these improvements. That is the fight between these parties undoubtedly. And that is what has given rise to this suit and to the expressions of feeling on both sides that have been made this morning.

If Mr. Gilligham were willing to dispose of this front, as it is now built into this building and the other details, so-called, at a reasonable price, assuming them to be personal property and that they belong to him and are under his control as he claims, or if the other side, Fox & Co., were willing to buy or make a reasonable arrangement for the fixtures, if they be fixtures, added to these premises, in order that they may advantageously re-rent the premises, we would not have any lawsuit here. But neither Mr. Gilligham is willing to let Fox & Co have the benefit of these fixtures that they may be re-rented to Rose and his associate, nor is Fox & Co. willing to pay or arrange satisfactorily for these fixtures with Gilligham. Now that is about the size of it, as I view it. The whole question, of course, upon a motion of this kind is one of intent on this subject of trade fixtures. The question is, is the property now in controversy a trade fixture? Or, did the property become a part of the realty and thereby become the property of the complainant in this case, Fox & Co.? That, as I said and has been conceded, is a question of intent. If the property was a trade fixture, it becomes wholly immaterial to the complainant and to Rose & Co. how much loss Gilligham may suffer by reason of its removal. It may become junk and utterly worthless, and he may remove it with the expectation that it will become worthless; that is his privilege, if it is personal property or a trade fixture.

On the other hand, if it is real estate, then to remove it would result in a substantial loss to the complainant, because to replace it would necessitate the expenditure of a considerable sum of money. Now, what was the intent of the parties? As I have already said, on the face of the lease the intent of the parties was clearly expressed that these fixtures, this front, should be trade fixtures. I think so, beyond any question of doubt. It is provided in the lease itself, substantially, for their removal; because the lease provides in addition to what I have already read that the premises shall be delivered up at the expiration of the lease in the same condition as when taken, reasonable use and wear thereof and damage by the elements excepted. I think that they became trade fixtures for another reason, and that is because at this time, three years ago, it was not customary to fix over buildings in the way this one was fixed over. It was unusual; it was unprecedented. Indeed, it was the first building of its kind so remodeled in this city, and, as has been said, the whole thing was an experiment; neither party knew that success would attend the venture; both were evidently in doubt, and for that very reason these provisions in this lease were inserted.

But it is claimed that after the lease was executed there was a change made, a change not in writing, whereby, instead of making a written contract in relation to these changes and attaching it to the lease, the parties orally agreed to something. The complainant claims that this oral agreement was substantially that the defendant Gilligham should pay it $248 for the privilege of removing this front and replacing it with another. The precise language of the answer is:

"That the said defendant might install the front which he did place in said premises and which is now a permanent improvement therein, and upon the payment to the said complainant of the sum of $248, the said complainant did assume the right to remove the front now in said premises whenever it so desired at the expiration of said lease, and the said complainant therefore gave the right to make the changes, alterations and improvements in the front of said building upon this condition, but defendant was given no right to remove said front or any part thereof, even at the expiration of the lease."

Now, what does that mean when you analyze it? It simply means this, in my judgement, that these parties orally agreed, according to the complainant's contention, that if the tenant, Gilligham, should pay $248 to it, that the complainant would have the right to remove the fixtures or not as it saw fit at the expiration of the lease.

On the other hand, the defendant Gilligham claims that this $248 was deposited as security for the performance of the conditions of this lease in replacing the property in the same condition as it was before on the expiration of the lease. The complainant says that the deposit was made and that it had the option to retain the money, $248, and remove the front or to leave it there as it saw fit.

I do not think that an injunction ought to stand resting upon the mere verbal statement of the parties as to what this agreement was, where the agreement is absolutely denied. There is no question so far as the record shows but what Gilligham is responsible. Here is the lease of the parties, and, as I have said, that lease clearly defines their rights. The only thing in addition to the lease is as to the payment and the purpose of the payment of this $248. One says one thing, the other says the other. The whole case rests, then, upon the contradictory statements of these parties in court when it comes to a hearing, because from the standpoint of the law relative to trade fixtures, this lease in my judgment gives this party a right to put these fixtures in and gives him the right to replace the premises in the same condition they were in when he took them. The intent of the parties is clearly manifest that whatever Gilligham might do there was being done on his own responsibility and that the premises should be placed back where they were in the first place on the expiration of the lease.

Now, you come in with an oral agreement and you do not agree as to its terms, and you ask the court to stay the operation of this lease by an injunction, and you ask the court to do that because you have sublet the premises to another just as they now are. If the premises are to be taken possession of by another in their present condition, and it should not afterwards be found that the complainant's contention is right as against the express provisions of the lease, then what will the result be? It will be serious damage to Gilligham. On the other hand, if the complainant's contention is sustained, that these changes were fixtures, it would be a serious injury to the complainant to have them removed. And yet if the defendant proceeds to remove the fixtures he subjects himself to liability for damages, and that liability for damages would depend upon the construction which the court or the jury may give to these respective claims, which is a question of fact.

I do not believe I will sustain this injunction.

In this cause the motion of the defendant, Albert J. Gilligham, to dissolve. The court having raed the pleadings in this cause and the proofs offered upon the said motion and the arguments of counsel for the respective parties thereon, and having duly considered the same and being fully advised therein: On motion of Peter Doran, of counsel for the defendant, it is ordered and adjudged, that the said injunction be, and the same hereby is dissolved and vacated, and that the said defendant recover the sum of $10 as his costs of said motion against the complainant to be taxed. And that the defendant have execution therefor.

MORE FIGHT FILMS.

John "Doc" Krone, of Chicago, under whose direction and efforts the Chicago Film Exchange secured the ownership of the Gans-Nelson, September 9, 1908, fight pictures, which cleared over $100,000 in rentals, is on his way to this country with ten sets of the recent "Jimmy Britt-Johnny Summers" battle, held before the National Sporting Club, of London, on the afternoon of February 22, 1909. Krone has been in England for over four months exhibiting the Gans-Nelson and the Gotch-Hackenschmidt moving pictures.

The Britt-Summers fight is a ten round affair, and was won by the English battler. The contest proved the sensation of John Bull's domain. Summers's ability as a fighter attracted the attention of Hugh McIntosh, the promoter of the recent Burns-Johnson fight, and the Sydney promoter will also be in this country in the hope of signing Battling Nelson and Johnny Summers for a championship bout. Jimmy Coffroth, the San Francisco fight promoter, is also endeavoring to clinch a Nelson-Summers contest, and he is also negotiating to get the Englishman here.

The American public ought to be greatly interested in the moving pictures of this battle, first because it will afford them a chance to learn the relative ability of the Englishman as to that of Nelson, and, secondly, because the fight is said to be one of the fastest and best that has ever been fought abroad.

There is added interest in this mill, inasmuch as it was fought under London prize ring rules, a style practically unknown to the American "fans," and while different from the American rules is very interesting to look at.

Krone is due in Chicago, Saturday, March 13, and will immediately begin booking the films. He will open headquarters at 816 Ashland Block, but his temporary address is 483 S. Troy street, Chicago, Ill.

The Great Northern Film Company are not behind in good comedy. Their film, "The Wild Man from Borneo," is a laugh-producer of the right kind.

The Mutual Moving Picture Supply Company, of Philadelphia, is a new company that has been organized with J. Gabriel, president; Matthew Adams, secretary, and A. H. Woehlcke, treasurer. All are well known in moving picture circles in Philadelphia, running their own show houses, and are active members of the Philadelphia Exhibitors' Association. They have established themselves at 934 Arch street, and visited New York this week to arrange for a steady supply of International film and secure stock to carry along their business until the foreign subjects were released. They left New York with a large number of reels and feeling very optimistic as to their future success.

The C. J. Hite Film Company is rapidly gaining front among Chicago film renters. This popular firm has already twice, and that in a very short time, been forced to seek larger floor space to be able to handle an ever-growing clientele. The latest headquarters of the C. J. Hite Film Company occupies a magnificent suite of rooms at 360-363 Monadnock block. In an interview with Mr. C. J. Hite, the genial manager of the C. J. Hite Film Company, Mr. Hite stated that no expense would be spared to make their film exchange the most up-to-date in the country. "We are getting a bunch of new customers every day," said Mr. Hite, "and we are doing all in our might to please them. We got contracts with many of the largest theaters in the city and we had to put an extra force on to rush the mail order department. People are beginning to realize that we are meaning business, and I am very much gratified with the conditions at the present time and the excellent productions of the licensed manufacturers.

SWANSON'S MOVING PICTURE THEATER, CHICAGO.

Of the chain of theaters controlled by William H. Swanson, of Chicago, the one on Cottage Grove avenue and Thirty-third street, is the largest, for it seats 600 and costs about $65,000. The interior decorative scheme is in green and gold leaf.

Opening at one each day and closing at eleven, in all, seven shows are given during those ten hours. At night the charge for admission is ten cents; at other times five cents. Song slides and three reels of films comprise the entertainment. Three projecting machines and a double stereopticon are placed in the operating booth and the theater is fireproof, every care being taken to provide for the safety of the audience and the operators. Ventilating, heating and lighting have been arranged in the most up-to-date system. At night time the exterior of the house is illuminated with several thousand incandescent lights, and an electric sign, over twenty feet high, with a vast revolving star. Effects behind the screen are obtained by the use of numerous properties so that suitable sounds may accompany the pictures.

There are about twenty persons employed in the theater, which is well patronized by ladies and children. In every respect the Swanson Cottage street theater is a model moving picture house, and it is not to be wondered at, that with the tastefulness of its design and arrangement, as well as for the excellence of the pictures shown, it is so popular and successful.

Our congratulations to friend Swanson on his handsome theater.

PICTURE MACHINE BRANCH LOCAL 35, I. A. T. S. E.

On March 8 the first annual smoker was given to all operators holding 1909 license, at the Union Hall, 402 Eighth avenue, New York City. There were present about 175, and about fifteen new members were enlisted.

The next regular meeting for operators will be held on March 15, at midnight. This meeting will also be held at the above address.

THE "CINEPHONE."

A practical demonstration of the "Cinephone," a synchronizing device which was described in our pages last week, was given at the offices of the Great Northern Film Company, New York, on Thursday last, and a number of records and pictures of the Warwick Trading Company, of London, were being used for that purpose. The "Cinephone," roughly, consists of two dials, one in the picture and one at the foot of the phonograph. Around each dial a hand revolves, and it is the object of the operator to keep the hand that revolves on the phonograph in perfect unison with the hand shown in the moving picture. If he does this, then there is perfect synchronism. The "Cinephone" American rights are in the hands of Mr. Ben. Nathan, of London, who is at present in Chicago on business connected with the disposal of the "Cinephone."

Notes from Chicago.

By Our Western Representative.

Strolling down Madison street the other day, we dropped into a 5-cent show. It was George Hines' place, "The Senate." Everybody knows George Hines, a showman for 30 years. The Senate is one of the most popular and well conducted electric theaters on the West Side. When Chief Horn made his big row on 5-cent theaters in Chicago he got a pleasant surprise when he came to The Senate. "The only theater I have seen so far," said Chief Horn, "that is up to the regulations of the inspection department." A special feature of The Senate is the ventilation, and George Hines has gone to large expense and much additional work to accomplish this important reform from a sanitary point of view. A number of large exhaust fans are working at high speed, changing the supply of air in the auditorium, which is of quite a large seating capacity and has a throw of about 126 feet. Hines is a picture fiend and strongly opposed to cheap vaudeville. "Two reels of pictures and one song; that's all they get; but everything first-class—first run stuff from Laemmle, slides from Chicago Song Slide Exchange, Curtainyline on the curtain and an expert operator. What more do they want?" asks Mr. Hines.

We take a peep in the booth and shake hands with Mr. Riner, operator-in-chief and the inventor of the "One Drop Oil." You would hardly call this a booth; it is as large as a drawing room, but sheet-iron all over.

Of course, we perceive License No. 1, issued by the Patents Company, in a frame hanging on the wall. We also understand that Mr. Riner holds operator's license No. 1 in Chicago.

We go down again and take a seat in the auditorium to see the latest Biograph—"a grand film," we are told by Mr. Hines. A Pathe comic is on, with funny chases and crushed china, and the audience is shouting with delight. Here is the feature of the day, "A Fool's Revenge," by Biograph. The fool's revenge is a highly dramatic subject on the theme of "Rigoletto." "The Fool's Revenge" is a film that keeps one in an intense suspense from beginning to end. The feature of the film is the beautiful girl that plays the fool's daughter in a way beyond criticism. The staging and acting in general are very good. The photography is superb. The film made a deep impression on the audience.

A pleasant variation from the eternal ragtime was a refined deliverance of classical music corresponding to the character of the picture, including Schumann's "Treumerei" and Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata." The first time, indeed, we ever heard Beethoven in a 5-cent theater.

Mr. Hines has cutthroat competition. Next door is the Mills Wonderland, where a program of five vaudeville acts and moving pictures are given for 5 cents. We don't want to express ourselves too much about the place, but as far as ventilation and a whole lot of other things are concerned there could have been vast improvements. The vaudeville in the Mills Wonderland doesn't claim to be the standard of the Majestic and could hardly be expected for such a small consideration as 5 cents; but if we could give some small advice in the matter we would suggest to cut the number and add to the quality of the performers. We saw a very fine Lux film over there, "A Trip to Monte Carlo," projected with a Pathe motor machine—a real imported European outfit that we were informed cost over $400. Of course, Pathe's is a very good machine and almost exclusively used over in Europe. It is oftentimes remarked by travelers that you see so much better moving pictures over in Europe, and, in fact, oftentimes you do, but the reason is that the European theater works under far more favorable conditions. In the first place, direct current is used, which gives a far better result than alternating, and more expense is used on the operating room, which is equipped almost as the switchboard of an electric light plant with ampere and voltmeters and resistance coils of every description, in order to have a perfect control of the fluctuations of the current. In the second place, the exhibitor buys his film outright from the manufacturers, which makes a first run on every fair-sized theater. But an exhibitor over there can easily enough afford an expense of that kind, for the "nickel proposition" is, so far as the writer knows, not yet introduced in Europe, the general admission being 10, 15 and in some places 25 cents for an hour's show without vaudeville or illustrated songs. There are cine halls in Paris, Berlin and other Continental cities where the general admission is from 25 cents up, built like regular theaters, with box seats coming as high as 75 cents to one dollar for a two hours' exhibition of high-grade moving pictures. A comparison of these places and our 5-cent theaters wouldn't be quite fair. We have some very fine theaters over here that charge only 5 and 10 cents, and many of them right here in Chicago.

The Orpheum Theater, on State street, is, without doubt, one of the finest moving picture theaters in the country. Located down on the loop in the busiest section of the town, it draws an immense attendance from early in the morning to late at night. The Orpheum is noted for its excellent pictures and illustrated songs. In the Orpheum Theater the other day, "Shanghaied," by Essanay, was the feature film on the program; a picture story full of excitement and much appreciated by the audience, who vigorously applauded when the shanghaied hero got his girl. "And His Coat Came Back," by Vitagraph Company, created lots of merriment. Mr. Thomas J. Quigley sang "I Dream in the Gloaming of You," a beautiful song, well illustrated by A. L. Simpson. Mr. Quigley is one of the best illustrated song singers we have heard in a long time and is without doubt one of the biggest drawing cards at the Orpheum Theater. A vaudeville act was presented by a Spanish quartet, who sang in Spanish, which we and many with us didn't understand and by the audience was received rather coldly. Pathe's "A Village Quarrel" was thrown on the screen; a film of very little activity and no special merit. Miss Ruby Harrison sang "I'd Like to Be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You" very nicely to beautiful slides of DeWitt C. Wheeler. The Orpheum is a nice theater, but the esthetic appearance of the place could be improved by taking away that horrid black-painted announcement sign in the front of the stage. Some very neat affairs for that purpose can be seen in numerous places round the city. Another peculiar feature about the place is that all or most of the ladies wear their hats. It is very disagreeable for the poor fellow behind, and in many places not tolerated by the management. Almost every 5-cent theater in the city uses an announcement slide: "Ladies pleases remove your hats," on the appearance of which the "brutal" sex give their approval with thundering applause. We didn't see or hear any request to that effect in the Orpheum Theater. It might have escaped our notice, though.

EXHIBTORS' ASSOCIATION OF NEW YORK.

At the Crown Theater, in Harlem, the exhibitors of Greater New York assembled on Wednesday night at the call of the Exhibitors' Association of New York. Several matters of vital interest were discussed, the first being the proposal of the Board of Aldermen to regulate moving picture parlors under a common show license, the fee of $250 per year being recommended. Mr. Donegan, the secretary of the association, related how he had interviewed Alderman Smith and persuaded him that while the exhibitors were willing to pay a reasonable license fee, he considered $250 too high, and the alderman intimated that a compromise might be effected.

Opinions were called for by Mr. Donegan, he suggesting that $150 would not be a hardship and that he believed it would be acceptable to the Board of Aldermen. Some speakers suggested $100, but the discussion ended in a unanimous vote to recommend $150 as the fee at a meeting which Mr. Donegan had arranged with the aldermen on Friday at one o'clock, and at which he urged every exhibitor to be present.

Dr. Lemburger then read the following letter from John Collier, the chairman of the Censorship Committee, and followed it with an earnest address, urging the exhibitors, one and all, to fall in line with the censorship movement and have their shows placed on the "white list."

New York, March 10, 1909.

Dr. Lamberger and Mr. Driscoll:

Gentlemen—It will be of interest to the Association meeting to-night, to know just what has been accomplished by the Censorship Board thus far.

As you know, we have been negotiating with the manufacturers. It has been understood all along that the independent manufacturers would submit to the Censorship Board and co-operate with it. We felt some doubt as to the Motion Pictures Patents Company and have had a long consultation with the General Manager of the Patents Company, and have heard from him that the Patents Company will co-operate in full measure with the censorship. This means success.

In accordance with our understanding at the meeting of the Executive Committee on Censorship on Monday, we have not approached the renters as yet. The association renters will be influenced in their attitude toward the censorship by the attitude of the Patents Company, and as this attitude is favorable the association renters will be with us unquestionably. This is still more true of the independent renters, inasmuch as we have the independent manufacturers with us.

We have been considering the question of the Aldermanic resolution regarding Sunday moving pictures. As you know, the Censorship Board as such cannot take a hand on the Sunday question, but individual members of the Board are going to speak out. We are going to influence some prominent clergymen to be present at the hearing favoring the resolution, and the People's Institute is going to be represented officially, and possibly other organizations as well.

We have chosen a secretary, N. Joseph Slicklen, but he will begin his official duties only next Monday. At this moment I am carrying the burden, and no expense to the Association is being incurred. We are to-day receiving printed matter from the press, and this will go to the exhibitors, renters, newspapers, and others concerned. We shall not begin the actual work of censoring until we have manufacturers and renters, independent and association, in line. This will be next week.

Finally, it looks as though we were going to have more success than we have even hoped for, in influencing public sentiment and city officials toward a more co-operative attitude to moving pictures. Very truly yours, JOHN COLLIER,

Mr. Driscoll followed with a warning that shows which were on the black list would soon feel the hand of the city authorities, and enumerated a list of names of prominent New York business men, social organizations and divines who had banded together, not to fight the moving picture show, but to place it on a level where it has never been before, and by their sympathetic co-operation and supervision, stifle once and for all the silly adverse public criticism.

Joseph Miles, representing Miles Brothers, and speaking for the exchanges, addressed the meeting in favor of the Board of Censorship and assured the exhibitors that the exchanges would co-operate with them to the fullest extent to elevate the character of the show.

Several members of the Executive Committee then called attention to the work that the association had already accomplished, the benefit of which extended to those exhibitors who had not even joined the association or borne any of the expense. The editorial in last week's Moving Picture World was quoted in which exhibitors were urged to organize—having thereby much to gain and nothing to lose.

Mr. Gordorfer, the treasurer, pointed out that funds were needed to carry on the work and every exhibitor in Greater New York is invited to join and share in the benefits of the organization.

The initiation fee is $25 and the monthly dues $4. The officers give their time freely. Applications, together with the initiation fee and dues for the first three months of this year, should be sent at once to the treasurer.

THE INAUGURATION FILM.

The most talked-of film issued last week was the "Inauguration of President Taft." The quality throughout was surprising when we consider the terrible weather conditions under which it was obtained. J. Stuart Blackton, of the Vitagraph Company, and three assistants, each armed with cameras, obtained a few thousand feet of negative, but only 600 feet was utilized, as the company did not desire to burden the exchanges with a long film of a subject of passing interest. We have heard several people say that they would like to have seen a longer film. Mr. Blackton engineered the taking of the film and it is well known that no ordinary obstacles are allowed to stand in the way of his getting what he wants. He is diplomat, detective and strategist. While an English firm paid big money for the sole right to photograph the recent ter-centenary celebrations at Quebec, it was Blackton who secured for his company the only picture that was worth exhibiting. After a strenuous time at the inauguration, the party arrived in New York at 1 A. M. on Friday morning. Automobiles were in waiting to convey them to the factory, where the working staff was in readiness, and before the sunrise the first print was on the screen for inspection. The following day the films were issued as a regular release.

The Liberty Film Exchange, of Philadelphia, has moved to more central offices at 12 North Thirteenth street.

Purdy's Film Exchange has purchased the full stock of Geo. E. Marcy, formerly the firm of True & Marcy, East Fifteenth street, New York City, and will be in a position to fill all orders for banners and signs on and after March 8, 1909, at the office of Purdy's Film Exchange, 300 East Twenty-third street, New York City, at the regular price. This firm is buying at the rate of four to five reels per week of Independent film.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

THEIR POLICY AND PROCEDURE.

The inevitable has happened. Exchanges who signed the agreement with the Patents Company, but who expected to secretly conduct their business in direct violation of the license agreement have had their licenses promptly cancelled and replevin suits have been started by the licensed manufacturers for the return of their property. This is the first gun fired by the Motion Picture Patents Company to defend their loyal licensees and maintain their own rights to the patent privileges.

The "Moving Picture World" has published warning notices to the exchanges to observe the terms of agreement. In consequence we have been branded by some people as the mouthpiece of the Patents Company. We said to the exchanges and exhibitors, "sign the agreement if they wanted licensed films." We warned them that this agreement would have to be lived up to. Under pain of displeasing both the Patents Company and its enemies we will again warn the licensees that these agreements have been so carefully drawn up that they are, like the laws of nature, inviolate and any violation means business suicide.

* * *

Under the license agreements between the Patents Company and the licensed exchanges, all film is leased by the exchanges from the manufacturers. The title to the film rests with the manufacturer and upon the violation of any condition of the license agreement by the exchange, the licensed manufacturer becomes entitled to immediate possession of the film.

The Patents Company has been aware of the fact that there are theaters in different parts of the country which have not been licensed but yet are using licensed film. In the interest of the licensed theaters, the Patents Company has taken steps to stop this practice. While the patents Company does not urge any theater to use the films of its licensed manufacturers, it does insist that the proper legal restrictions which have been placed upon its films by virtue of the patents owned by the Company, be strictly observed, and that no theater shall be permitted to show licensed film until it first has secured a license from the Patents Company.

The Patents Company has been advised by counsel that under the terms of the license agreement, an action of replevin will be in favor of the manufacturer against any unlicensed theater showing licensed film, and that the particular film in the hands of the unlicensed theater can be seized in a replevin suit and held, pending the determination of the action. That the Court will award the film to the manufacturer with an addition thereto of a sum to cover whatever may be the amount of the damage proven. Licenses to exchanges that supply films to unlicensed theaters will be promptly cancelled Actions have already been taken by the Patents Company against theaters in New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Chicago, and these actions will be vigorously prosecuted.

Licensed films have already been seized in unlicensed theaters, and the Patents Company will protect the interests of its licensees in all parts of the United States.

They are not warring against Independent films or theaters that confine their exhibitions to independent films. We wish to see more of these and we trust that the quality of the foreign sample films which have been shown will be maintained, because it will mean a healthy and vigorous competitor to the licensed manufacturers.

It is an open secret that truckling to both sides is going on among some exchanges and exhibitors. The loyal licensees are reporting these cases and again we warn all that the action of the Patents Company to fully protect its licensees will be absolute and unrelenting.

REPLEVIN ACTIONS STARTED BY THE MOTION PICTURES PATENTS COMPANY.

In New York City:

Lubin Manufacturing Company vs. George Hilkemeier, George Hilkemeier & Co., and Jefferson Amusement Company, 1740 Fulton street, Brooklyn.

In Pittsburg:

Edison Manufacturing Company vs. Wonderland Theater, Braddock, Pa.

Edison Manufacturing Company vs. Crystal Theater, 860 Bradwells avenue, Braddock, Pa.

In Chicago, Ill.:

Selig Polyscope Company vs. Robertson & Normal, 482 Lincoln avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Vitagraph Company of America vs. Chris. Rolandson, 427 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, Ill.

THE FOLLOWING CORRESPONDENCE IS SELF-EXPLANATORY.

March 12, 1909.

Wonderland Film Exchange,
Pittsburg, Pa.

Dear Sirs:

To-day we telegraphed you as follows:

"Wonderland Film Exchange,
"Pittsburg, Pa.

"Our license to you is hereby cancelled for your breach of its terms. We demand that you return licensed films in conformity with clause nineteen of license agreement.
"MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO."

We hereby confirm our notice to you that we have to-day terminated our exchange license agreement with you, and demand that you return to the licensed manufacturers all licensed film leased by you since February 1, 1909, in conformity with clause nineteen of your license agreement.

Yours very truly,
MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.,
By J. J. KENNEDY, Treasurer.

March 12, 1909.

Pennsylvania Film Exchange,
Pittsburg, Pa.

Gentlemen:

To-day we telegraphed you as follows:

"Pennsylvania Film Exchange,
"Pittsburg, Pa.

"Our license to you is hereby cancelled for your breach of its terms. We demand that you return licensed films in conformity with clause nineteen of license agreement.
"MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO."

We hereby confirm our notice to you that we have to-day terminated our exchange license agreement with you, and demand that you return to the licensed manufacturers all licensed film leased by you since February 1, 1909, in conformity with clause nineteen of your license agreement.

Yours very truly,
MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.,
By J. J. KENNEDY. Treasurer.

ANOTHER CURRENT SAVING DEVICE.

To all moving picture exhibitors attention is called to the advertisement of the Imperial Arkicyde on another page. It is claimed by the manufacturers to possess unusual merits and should interest anyone desirous of saving expense or current. The Arkicyde is sold under a guarantee to save from 50 to 62 per cent. above an ordinary rheostat, is thoroughly tested before leaving the factory, which is controlled by the Imperial Film Exchange, 301 River street, Troy, N. Y.

The Arkicyde is built along different lines from any current saver on the market, is absolutely perfect and practical and an ornament as well, for it is claimed no renewals and no heat, and that it cannot burn out, and is guaranteed to give satisfaction. The price has been made as low as possible and is within the reach of any exhibitor; although tested thoroughly before leaving the factory, the Arkicyde is sold on trial to responsible parties on remittance of a substantial deposit. Any piece of mechanism that will save an exhibitor money is well worth investigation.

COMING HEAD LINERS.

"The Return of Ulysses," a Pathe film to be issued next week, is a classical subject of a nature that will be more popular than their recent "Assassination of Duke de Guise." It lends itself to the masterly acting of the members of the Comedie Francaise, and Pathe Freres are deserving of every encouragement in thus raising the silent drama to the pedestal of perfection. The story of Ulysses is familiar to every scholar, who will be well repaid in viewing the presentation of the drama by actors of international reputation.

Non-Scraping Film Cement

No more unsightly scraped places. No more bother scraping off the emulsion. Send 25 cents for a bottle of my New Non-Scraping Film Cement. Hardens almost instantly as firm as any part of the film

R. A. Nichols Star Theatre, Cortland, N. Y.

Comments on Film Subjects.

THE WEEK'S FILMS.

The most popular film of the week was "A Fool's Revenge," the most interesting the "Inauguration of President Taft." Not a film came out in which there was either murder or suicide. And only one or two in which there was a violent death of any kind. That this is an improvement compared with what formerly came out is not open to question. Manufacturers are doing well to maintain their films at this standard.

It is unquestionably true that a programme of good films, even though they may not have an element of bloodshed or something else violent, will be far more attractive and the audiences will be better pleased than with the sensational films which were formerly so numerous. The improvement has been along right lines. With the technical quality held up to the present standard there is no reason why the motion picture business should not continue upon the present high plane of attractiveness.

Many managers are running old films, some of them released last Summer. In one theater visited during the week not a new film was shown, yet one must say that the audience was apparently as well satisfied as with the new films. They were all good and were well worth repetition. Where judicious selections of old subjects are made the programme is perhaps quite as attractive to the average visitor at the shows. They like good pictures and age makes no particular difference.

"Converted."—A film from the Gaumonts which religious organizations could use with profit in their work. Some scenes are inspiring and the moral effect of the entire picture is good. As a serious picture in a run of others it stands out remarkably strong. But perhaps it will not appeal to so many in an audience as the average run of films.

"Sherlock Holmes."—A film in which the great imaginary detective is depicted with considerable fidelity. The action is not especially spirited and there are instances where the characters move like wooden puppets, but in the main the picture is good. Some of the photography is poor, which is perhaps due to circumstances which could not be controlled. The subject has interest, however, and will please every audience that sees it.

"Following in Mother's Footsteps."—If any more attractive film could be conceived than this from the Urban establishment one wonders what it might be. These two children who are imitating their grown-up relatives are the dearest little things and they do their work in the cunningest possible manner. Such films deserve the higghest commendation and it is impossible to produce too many of them. The film was heartily applauded in two places where it was seen and it should have a long run. No film for the past month or more has had such a strong reason for an appeal to everyone who sees it. The last scene, where the two little folks are asleep, is one of the sweetest pictures imaginable. If the Urban people have any more conceptions as good as this they should not delay in getting them before the public.

"The Origin of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata."—The Edison actors have produced a beautiful film which illustrates faithfully the story of the composition of that marvelous piece of music which has caused the whole world to worship the master. The story is followed very closely and the staging of the film is unquestionably true to life. Some criticism might be heard regarding the acting of Beethoven, but at the same time it is well understood that he was irascible, and perhaps the actor has not exaggerated. The scene in the shoemaker's rooms where he makes the blind girl see the beauties of the moonlight and the visions appear and fade one after another, is beautiful and inspiring beyond description. Such work deserves the highest praise, coupled with the wish that more of it is produced. At the close the audience bursts into applause, and well they might.

"Jessie, the Stolen Child."—A Vitagraph subject which is worked out with all the fidelity to fact and character for which the company is so well known. The strongest scene is where the child is restored to her parents after she is fully grown, and she and her Gypsy lover disappear into the house with her new-found people, while the old Gypsy woman creeps mournfully back to her wagons. The staging is excellent and the action of the characters seems as natural as it is possible to make them.

"Charlotte Corday."—With elaborate staging and delicate coloring the Pathes have produced an excellent film depicting the life of this heroine (?) of the French revolution. It is undoubtedly substantially historically correct, though it must be said that it illustrates the life of one whose only title to fame is a deliberately conceived and carried out purpose to murder another. It may serve to call attention again to some of the characters of the French revolution, but aside from that one can scarcely see wherein the picture is beneficial, or even diverting.

"Adventures of a Bag of Coal."—A comic from the Pathes which illustrates the possibilities for mischief enshrined in the breast of every small boy.

"King of the Ring."—A story from Selig which has some elements of interest, though the story itself does not appeal strongly to the audience. The prize fight is good, though the last round loses interest because the principals are nearly exhausted. There is plenty of action in the film, however, and the story, even though improbable, may please in a way.

"When Love Will."—A Pathe, beautifully staged and colored. The story is that a girl told a man she would marry him if he could infuse human life into roses. This gives the manufacturers opportunity to develop some of the magic for which their films are famous. With the assistance of a good fairy the roses are endowed with human life, and the girl marries him as she promised. As a variation of a love story this film is pleasing and it has numerous interesting situations.

"All's Well That Ends Well."—A Pathe subject in which a father sails away to sea and leaves his daughter behind. She meets a young man many times. The father returns in time to learn of one such meeting. He goes to the trysting place, sees the young man, provokes a quarrel and challenges him to a duel. They meet and the young man fires in the air. Whereat they make up and the father gives permission for the daughter to marry the man of her choice.

"The Blacksmith's Bride."—A Gaumont which introduces the old depressing story of the death of the husband and father, the abandonment of the child by its mother, with the accessories of sorrow that go with it. It is well told, but one wonders if it is all of life to suffer these sorrows and disappointments. Acting and staging are quite satisfactory, but the subject exerts a depressing influence.

"The Postal Clerk."—A Gaumont comedy which develops a number of interesting situations. A wife asks for a certain ring, but is refused. She writes a letter to herself, which must go through her husband's hands. He refuses to give it to her. She calls an official and he is forced to do it. Jealousy absolutely controls him and he rushes away to find her reading her letter. He demands it, and finds only a brief note which says that men who will not buy their wives rings are wretches, or words to that effect. He succumbs and buys the ring. As a break in a moderately heavy program this film is quite satisfactory.

"Mary Jane's Lovers."—A story of love in the kitchen, from the Edison studio. Mary Jane has a number of lovers, who appear at inopportune times and must be hidden in various places to screen them from the prying eyes of the mistress. But, as usual in such pictures, they are all discovered, though in a somewhat different way, and they are all thrown out very unceremoniously. The picture brings many hearty laughs before it closes.

"The Water Cure."—In this bit of comedy from the Pathes the story turns upon the egotism of a troublesome guest at a hotel. The servants, to repay him for constantly calling them, suspend a shower bath over his bed, so when he pulls the rope he will make a mistake and pull the bath rope. The water falls over him in a shower. He chases them with a revolver and forces them to plunge into a huge tub which is filled from a passing sprinkling cart. It is good, clean humor and brings many laughs.

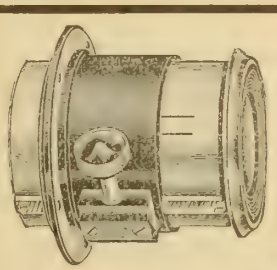
"A Day in Washington and the Inauguration of President Taft."—In these pictures the Vitagraph people have produced something which is not only interesting now, but will be historic. The picture opens with some excellent views of Washington itself. The buildings and streets are shown with remarkable fidelity to the originals. Then comes the picture of the inauguration, and while one pities the unfortunates who were there, it must be stated that the picture is far more interesting than it would be if it was the regulation inauguration. Here is Washington covered deep in a mantle of snow. And the organizations and others who tramp through it in that historic parade have been immortalized by the motion picture camera. One can see the snow come down in huge flakes, and the water stands in the streets in a very natural way. The picture is naturally not as good

60-80 PER CENT. SAVED

The Triumph Reactance will by actual test save you from 60 to 80 per cent. of the current and give a more intense white light than can be obtained with a rehostat. It totaly eliminates the "ghost". No hum. No heat. No maintenance expense, lasts forever. No live contacts. No fire hazard. COMPARE PRICES —THE TRIUMPH, $35. Send for circular giving full description and terms.

THE TRIUMPH ELECTRIC APPLIANCE COMPANY

OLEAN, N. Y.



We make the best lenses in the world for projecting motion pictures and lantern slides. Can you spend a little money more wisely and profitable than by ordering a set of lenses which will

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

IMPROVE YOUR PICTURES?

NEW PRICES

M. P. Projection Lenses any size with our improved jacket with spiral adjustment	$15.00
No. 1 Stereopticon Lenses	15.00
No. 2 Stereopticon Lenses	20.00

All dealers sell them on approval.

WRITE FOR OUR NEW CIRCULAR

When ordering state the size of your screen and the length of the picture wanted. Give the distance from the lens to the screen. Remit the price of the lens or furnish references.

GUNDLACH-MANHATTAN OPTICAL COMPANY
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

Independent Films

You, Mr. Exhibitor, are most likely too good an American to let some one else dictate to you how you shall conduct your picture theatre.

If you want to be manager of your affairs and desire an exclusive film service write us.

LIBERTY FILM EXCHANGE
12 N. 13th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

$1.50 LECTURETTES $1.50
FOUR NEW ONES THIS WEEK
The Orient—Scenes Abroad—France
The Americas
Each complete with lecture. Price $1.50 per set.
Send for list.
CUNBY BROS., 10 East 14th St., N. Y.

Simpson's Celebrated Song Slides

The Finest Made. $5 per Set
All of the New Song Hits.

A. L. SIMPSON, 113 W. 132 St., New York City

Let Our Motto be Yours:
The Best not the Cheapest

Send 50 cents and 4 cents postage for sample of our latest annoucement slides. Write for same.

Advertising Slides Made To Order.

OHIO TRANSPARENCY CO.

407 Superior Building, CLEVELAND, OHIO

Managers—Operators—Leaders—Ticket Sellers —and Every Ambitious Attache of Moving Pictures Should Have

Driben's Essential Reference Books

No. 1 How to Produce Your Own Talking Pictures. Why pay hundreds weekly, for what you can do under your own supervision. Great $1.00

No. 2 20th Century methods of advertising. Extracts from the fyles of the greatest and most successful managers in business. Increase your receipts 65 to 75 per cent. weekly if adopted ..... .75

No. 3 Systematic record of your own, and your oppositions show. How to watch your opposition. How to work effects, which greatly increase the value of your picture. This Book Makes A Showman ..... .50

No. 4 How to defend yourself against the constant malicious attacks of the pulpit and other tyrants ..... .50

No. 5 How to Properly Care for Your Machine, and get the better effects therefrom. Coloring your film. Care of film. Where to secure the best orchestral music, reports, etc. This is a great book. Contains Every House Detail. 1.00

Special until March 31st, entire Driben Publications $2.00

Express or P. O. order payable.

Driben Pub. Co., London, Ont., Canada

No. stamps. No currency. References: Bradstreet or Dun.

Wonderland Film Exchange

1308-09-10-11-12 Keenan Building, - Pittsburgh, Pa.

Licensed under the Motion Picture Patents Company

Handling the entire product of the Biograph, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Vitagraph, Kalem, Essanay, Lubin, Gaumont and Urban.

EIGHTEEN brand new reels of different subjects every week. Try our quality service and write us how many reels you use and we will quote you prices.

FIRST RUN CUSTOMERS SUPPLIED

technically as it would have been on a clear day, but the main features of the inauguration are shown with striking clearness, and when the President comes from the Senate Chamber to enter his carriage he can be distinguished as plainly as though one were actually there. It is much better to sit in a comfortable orchestra chair and see this inauguration and parade than it was to take part in it. This film ought to be extremely popular throughout the country. Everyone is interested in the ceremonies of inducting a new President into office, and here is a film which shows very clearly how it is done, with the additional picturesque background of Washington swathed in snow.

"The Colored Stenographer."—This Edison film is supposed to be funny, but there is little fun in a picture, or a story, which maligns the faithful stenographer who frequently knows more about her employer's business than he knows himself. The substitution of a colored scrubwoman for a stenographer to deceive a wife, the discharge of one whom she was supposed to favor, and the general mix-up incident thereto, are none of them true and they are but poor attempts at fun. Technically the film is all that the Edison subjects usually are; but the subject is open to question.

"The Wooden Leg."—The Biograph people have sent out this film showing how a wooden leg borrowed from a tramp saved a girl from a money match and gave her to the man she wanted. It develops some amusing situations, but is not especially interesting. As a break in a heavy program it is attractive enough.

"The Roue's Heart."—The story of a roue, told by the Biograph.. He sickens of the fawning sycophants about him, and, accidentally discovering a piece of sculpture, he expresses a desire to see the sculptress, hoping to amuse himself with a new face. He finds she is blind, and her purity prevents his carrying out his evil designs. He asks her to marry him, but she refuses, finally consenting, however. The scenes are worked out with excellent attention to detail and the picture is unusually attractive. The audience sits almost breathless through some of the scenes, notably the one where she rejects his first offer of marriage.

"He Can't Lose Wifie's Ma."—A comic from the Pathes which offers a slight variation on the old mother-in-law joke. One cannot say that the variation, or the way it is worked out, are in good taste; but it creates a good deal of sport, which is perhaps sufficient test of its success. Throwing a woman from a moving train, tipping her into the water, and later into a sewer, are not especially funny, nor are they to be commended. The rest of the scenes are about the same.

"Rivals."—In this Eclipse film the familiar jealousy which so frequently exists where a woman is concerned, is made the basis of another story in which one lover wins the woman he wants, while the other, favored by the girl's father, is left to mourn. This one is modified somewhat by the fact that the jealous lover twice attempts to kill the other, but fails, and finally the girl chooses the one she wants and goes away with him, leaving her father in a quandary as to what he shall do. The technical quality of the film is good and the spirited action compensates for some shortcomings.

"South American Indians."—An Urban film in which the Indians of South America, or, more properly speaking, the Argentine, are shown in their homes, at their work, at their play, and in various other ways to illustrate graphically their principal characteristics. The film is a good one and should make an attractive addition to any program where variety, which may include instruction, is wanted. The bringing of distant lands and peoples to our doors is a valuable quality of the moving picture.

"Mother-in-Law's Day in the Country."—No reason for naming this Eclipse film "Motherin-Law's Day in the Country" seems to exist. A whole party start away in the morning for a day's outing, and she goes along. Perhaps it is her bulk as compared with the others which leads to the title. They meet with various moving accidents by flood and field, including the escape of the donkey, which had been impressed into service to haul the car. When he goes, the mother-in-law is substituted. Finally the donkey is discovered just as all are ready to drop from exhaustion. The donkey is hitched in again and the party moves toward home in various stages of collapse. It is amusing, though there seems to be little point to the humor.

"The Crazy Barber."—The offer of a prize of $100 to the fastest worker arouses the interest of a crazy barber. He registers and immediately begins to train for the coming contest. He shaves and cuts the hair of all the persons he discovers, including a dog, a Summer girl in a hammock; but when he begins operations on a tree in a public park he is promptly run in by a policeman, who gets his face lathered in the tussle. It is an Essanay and has the merit of being more original than the average humorous picture, and the acting is funny throughout. It created considerable laughter.

"Who Has My Sky Piece?"—An Essanay comic which is really funny. A man sitting on a bench places his money in his hat and puts the hat on the bench beside him. A tramp appropriates the hat and disappears. Then begins a wild search for it. He takes every hat he sees from the heads of the owners, tears them to bits and hurries on to the next victim. Each one who loses a hat joins in the chase. He is finally captured by a policeman whose hat he takes. Meanwhile the tramp has been taken by another policeman and the four meet. The original owner yanks his hat from the tramps's head, finds his money, and disappears, while the crowd who have lost their hats take it out on the tramp. The situations are unusually funny and the audience is kept in laughter.

"An Indian's Gratitude."—The Selig trade-mark has come to mean a film of unusual quality. This from the Selig studio is a film which one wants to see again. The story is of an Indian who is taught the fifth commandment. Then comes a story of jealousy and intrigue because of a girl. It ends in atempted murder and the flight of the jealous lover. The scenes are laid in the West, including prairie, mountain, canon, river and wild hillsides. The chase of the criminal by the Indian and his final capture afford opportunity for a good many interesting bits of scenery, including a number of beautiful waterfalls. The criminal is taken to the ranch, but because the Indian pleads for his life, seconded by the girl who taught him the commandment and whose lover was shot, he is allowed to go, though the rope was already about his neck. The film is unusually interesting, is admirably staged and the details are worked out as true to life as possible. It is an attractive addition to any program.

"Little Cyril, the Runaway."—A Pathe story which is so smooth and attractive that one wants to see it a number of times. A boy, smarting under the abuse of a drunken father, runs away to sea. Shortly afterward the father dies from the effects of a drunken spree and the mother is left alone. The scene changes, ten years having elapsed. The little Cyril who went away as a boy returns as a man, wearing an officer's uniform. He gets back just in time to save his mother from being sold out of house and home. The film is a work of art and never fails to please. Some might object to it on the ground that it teaches boys to run away, but that part is subordinated and the provocation is made sufficient for the deed.

"The Forgotten Watch."—A Lubin which introduces the chase that seems so popular. It is worked out a bit differently, but it is the same idea—the joining in a chase of everybody that comes along. These chases seem to interest audiences more than almost anything that can be done, and the laughs that are heard in each theater testify to the fact that tumbles and runs, even though there is no particular reason for them, are looked upon as funny.

"The House at the Bridge."—A Lubin picture in which a foreman undertakes to force his unwelcome attentions upon one of the women employees in a factory and is promptly knocked down by another, who sees the young woman home. He is followed by the foiled villain, who hits him with a stone and throws him over a bridge into the river, from which he is rescued by the young woman. He is nursed back to health by the young woman and her mother. He proves to be a son of the proprietor of the place, and when he and another son begin a search for him, the villain's deeds are quickly discovered and he is placed where he will do no further harm, after a lively chase at the muzzle of the revolver. A wedding follows in due course, which makes the happy ending. The action is good and the staging is up to the requirements of the subject.

"The Old Soldier's Story."—As was announced last week, this beautiful film from the Kalem Company's Southern studio has been accepted as the best yet produced by that company. It is told from the Confederate side, the first picture ever shown from that side. It is unnecessary to make a lengthy account of it. The picture was fully described in a recent issue. The effect on the audience is all the manufacturers could ask. It is watched with the most intense interest, and during the exciting chase by the Union soldiers the audience scarcely breathes; and at the end there is applause and laughter as the hero's housekeeper appears and leads him away by the ear. It is a thrilling story, without any killing, and deserves a long run.

"A Bad Shot."—A Pathe film which depicts a hunter making a bad shot and hitting a man in the leg. The hunter, to save a suit for damages, agrees to give this man charge of his estate and board he and his family for the rest of their lives. When the man returns with half a dozen children of different sizes the man and his wife nearly collapse. They do quite after submitting a while to the tyranny of the boys. Finally one of the boys fires a shot which hits the hunter in the leg. He says he is even and drives them off the place. The film is technically good and develops some funny situations, but is not so well received as some of the Pathe comics have been.

"I'll Only Marry a Sport."—A Lubin in which a girl refuses to marry a man until he has recorded 3,000 miles on his bicycle. He hires a boy to turn the wheel. The girl rides that way, discovers the boy turning the wheel, takes his place and has recorded 3,000 on the cyclometer when the owner of the wheel wakes up. The question of matrimony is settled immediately. The picture is mildly amusing, but is not specially funny.

"The Last Call."—A Lubin picture showing the principal events of one's life in a series of calls. The call to the world, the call to school, the call to work, the call of the wedding bells, and the last call. They are all good, and well staged, except the final one. The scene supposed to depict angels flying down to bear the old man's spirit home is very poor and is wholly unnatural. This scene requires revision.

WEEKLY COMMENTS ON THE SHOWS.

By Our Own Critic.

With one reservation I was entirely pleased with the entertainment of the Wonders Varieties Theater at Third avenue and Fourteenth street, which I saw one afternoon this week. That reservation is a structural one. Let the proprietor more artistically block out the useless windows, which, in their present state have a woebegone aspect, and he will greatly enhance the pleasing aspect of his neatly decorated little hall.

The theater was comfortably filled when I was there, mostly with tired and "blase" men of affairs, like your own critic, seeking five cents' worth of solatium from the carking cares of this wicked world. And we got it; at any rate, I did. I had my money's worth from the young lady at the piano. She played the instrument like an angel. She earns her salary, that young lady; she is fair to look upon, she plays well, and long. She is just about as good a pianist as one can have in a Nickelodeon.

There were no sombre, murderous or depressing subjects, amongst the films which I saw. The one vaudeville act was performed by a capable young man, whose impersonations of a Jew and an Italian were ably done.

The principal film of the entertainment was the Vitagraph "Inauguration of President Taft at Washington," which is an exceedingly fine piece of work executed amidst great climatic difficulties. The outdoor scenes in snow; the crowds; the marching troops; the President himself; and the scenes around the Capital were all very nicely shown on this film, and it created great interest. The Vitagraph Company should score a great success with this remarkable picture.

I was much interested in a lengthy film illustrating snow sports of an amusing character, but it was somewhat rainy in appearance. There was a short film of a clever and bibulous kind without a title; indeed, none of the pictures I saw at the Wonders Varieties, with the exception of the "Taft," had any titles, a defect which I suggest should be remedied. A fine Pathe dealing with the abduction of an heiress went very well. The subject is somewhat crowded in interest, and disconnected in action, and so the closeness of the story suffers. It is in toned sections harmonizing with the colors of the scenery; and, as a photograph, is up to the well-known Pathe standard. It might, however, have been made more dramatic by compression of the plot. Another subject of a humorous character was "Compelled to Be a Cop," an American title of a French subject; in fact, all Pathe's subjects are obviously French. This firm is setting the American manufacturers a very high standard to work up to.

This five-cent house is situated in the most crowded part of New York City, and offers an entertainment to which Mr. C. H. Claudy, who was referred to in this paper last week, need not hesitate to go himself, and take his sisters, his cousins, and his aunts. Frankly, I went there expecting nothing nearly as good and was agreeably surprised to find that the little Wonders is just as well conducted as the more pretentious moving picture theaters around the corner on Fourteenth street.

Travelogues

2 NEW SETS JUST OUT

No. 5055 AMONG THE CHINESE 39 Slides

No. 5956 IN AND AROUND CUBA 34 Slides

$10.00 Per Set—All Beautifully Colored
STOCK SLIDES, 3 FOR $1.00

THE NEW ENGLAND LANTERN SLIDE COMPANY
W. S. WALKER, Mgr.
224 TREMONT STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

All the Latest Song Slide Hits to Rent

New Firm. All new Slides. Best Service in Chicago. Price 50c. per set a week, a weeks supply shipped at one time.

WESTERN SONG SLIDE EXCHANGE
59 Dearborn Street Real Estate Bldg. Third Floor Chicago, Ill.

W. S. Cleveland's Prudential Vaudeville Exchange

535-536-537 Knickerbocker Theatre Bldg., 1402 Broadway, NEW YORK

We Book 68 Theatres, Clubs, Parks, 75 Fairs, 87 Rinks, Circuses, Airdomes, Picture Houses, Horse Shows, etc. We treat all alike. Control 1500 Acts.

Our efficient service INSURES SUCCESS of your Enterprise. ASK ANYBODY.

New Department { Theatres, Parks, Bought, Sold, Leased, Operated. Dramatic Bureau, Plays, Routes, People, Costumes, Scenery, Properties.

CLIMAX WIRE
FOR RHEOSTATS

Does not become brittle
Three times the resistance of German silver

HIGHEST EFFICIENCY—LOWEST COST

DRIVER-HARRIS WIRE CO.
HARRISON, N.J.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

Good Operators out of work may have their names listed free in this column

Notify us when you have secured a position.

EXPERIENCED OPERATORS.

Competent and Reliable Manager wishes position to manage moving picture or vaudeville house. Address L. Hoffmann, 353 East Third street, New York City.

Julius J. Klenk, 2524 So. 6th street, Philadelphia, Pa. Licensed operator, wishes position. Willing to travel.

S. R. Taylor, 148 West 46th street, New York City. Expert operator, New York license, or as manager. Ten years' experience. Six years with American Mutoscope and Biograph Company. Willing to locate anywhere.

Lecturer, Talking Pictures, Promoter and experienced manager at liberty. Strictly sober. Geo. Walker Brydgen, 233 E. Ontario street, Chicago, Ill.

C. M. Ellis, 221 Sixth street, Cairo, Ill. Experienced manager, also operator. Five years in all branches of the business. Does not smoke or drink.

J. S. Fogan, 628 E. Wintah street, Colorado Springs, Colo. Expert operator and electrician wishes position in any part of the West. References.

P. A. A., 216 South Ninth street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; experienced operator and electrician; ten years' experience; married; sober and reliable. Has N. Y. and Mass. license.

James Sang, 1444 Avenue A, New York City, desires position as manager; can sing, operate and lecture. Has ten years' experience.

E. J. Wilson, care Ownes, 37 Marion street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; experienced operator and electrician. Road or permanent. Has ten years' experience.

R. Johnson, 107 South High street, Steubenville, Ohio. Expert operator; three years experience.

NOTES OF THE TRADE.

St. Louis, Mo.—Herman Deters will erect a nickelodeon at 400 Lee street.

Selma, Ala.—Tim O'Flynn's moving picture theater was destroyed by fire.

Newport, Ark.—J. A. Tapley, of Batesville, will open a new moving picture theater here.

Bluffs, Ill.—R. W. Harkins, of Pekin, Ill., will open a new moving picture theater here.

Little Falls, Minn.—Smith & Robbe have sold their Bijou Theater to Hoffman & Koop.

La Grange, Ga.—H. Park is adjusting to open a moving picture theater on Ball street.

Monmouth, Ill.—The Pattee Opera House, conducted by V. Manuez & Son, has been closed.

Allentown, Pa.—Chas. Gendrix will erect a moving picture theater on Second street, near Centre.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—The Republican building is being remodeled into a theatorium for J. Steine.

Springfield, Ill.—William M. Chiles will erect a new moving picture theater at 214 South Sixth street.

Aurora, Ill.—C. F. Richardson is making arrangements to open a Penny Arcade at 115 Main street.

Utica, Ill.—Vincent and Frank Daniels, of Lasalle, have opened a new moving picture theater here.

Dell Rapids, S. Dak.—H. M. Backes has sold his interest in the Kinodrome to his partner, Mr. Scheick.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Henry Lubelski has sold a half interest in the Fairyland Theater to Daniel Tracy.

Ottawa, Kan.—Leon Fredericks has sold his moving picture theater here to J. H. C. Monninger, of Richter.

Downing, Mo.—D. T. Milliken, of Memphis, will open a new moving picture theater in the Fraker building.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Louis Goldberg will erect a moving picture theater, west of Seventh street, at a cost of $4,500.

Canton, Ill.—C. C. Dutro has leased the Michael building and will open a new moving picture theater there.

Emmett, Idaho.—Mr. Alexander, of Caldwell, has opened a new moving picture theater here in the Bone building.

Tomah, Wis.—Gus Bronson, Jr., of Oshkosh, has purchased a moving picture theater here and has taken possession.

Delphi, Ind.—O. R. McCall has purchased the Bijou moving picture theater here and will make extensive alterations.

Princeton, Ill.—R. A. Healy, proprietor of the Crystal Theater, has decided to open a new moving picture theater here.

Baltimore, Md.—William Gaken will erect a large moving picture theater at 2110 East Monument street for E. Potts.

Metropolis, Ill.—The Metropolis Amusement Company is making arrangements to open a new moving picture house.

Monmouth, Ill.—Will and Ralph Lytle will soon open a moving picture show here, in the McQouwn skating rink.

Pekin, Ill.—D. C. McClellan has purchased the Dreamland 5-cent theater, at 202 Court street, and has taken possession.

Walbrook, Md.—A new moving picture theater will be put in commission at North avenue and Ninth street, at a cost of $2,000.

Lacon, Ill.—Mr. Earl, of Plano, has completed arrangements for the opening of his new moving picture theater here.

Sedalia, Mo.—The American Amusement Company, of Chicago, will erect a new moving picture theater on West Third street.

Baltimore, Md.—The Gilmor Amusement Company will construct a moving picture theater at 314 North Gilmor street.

Waco, Tex.—A. Terry has purchased the interest of his partner in the Dixie moving picture theater, and is now sole owner.

El Paso, Texas.—E. M. Skinner, of San Francisco, will erect a Summer theater here, at the corner of Texas and Stanton streets.

Roanoke, Va.—The National Amusement Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $15,000. The incorporators are J. H. Kidd, G. C. Parsons, J. P. Flippo and others.

Richmond, Va.—Messrs. Fredman & Kohen are making arrangements to open a new vaudeville and moving picture theater here.

Hamilton, Ohio.—The Schwartz building is being remodeled for a moving picture theater, to be owned by Broomhaul & Schwolm.

Baltimore, Md.—A large modern moving picture theater is to be erected here by the Lubin Circuit. Edward C. Earle is resident manager.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Messrs. Fitzer & Isaacs are making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater at 224 North Salina street.

Utica, N. Y.—A new moving picture theater is soon to be opened at 31-33 Lafayette street, it will be known as the "New Hippodrome."

Parson, Kan.—C. A. Kenney has sold the Gem moving picture theater, on Broadway, to J. J. Marsteller, of Coffeyville, who took possession.

Philadelpia, Pa.—Wallace C. Powelson has formed a company to erect a new moving picture palace on Twenty-ninth street, below Fletcher.

Tuscola, Ill.—Ed Martin, of Rantoul, and G. H. Miller, of Rossville, have formed a partnership and will open a new moving picture theater here.

Montgomery, Ala.—The Colley Amusement Company, of Birmingham, has purchased the Orpheum Theater here and will soon be ready for business.

Eau Claire, Wis.—E. L. Dowling, of his city, and Mr. Nelson, of La Crosse, have leased the Fox House, and will convert it into a moving picture theater.

Steubenville, Ohio.—F. McLister and H. Altman have disposed of the Wonderland Theater on Commercial street to the Wonderland Amusement Company.

Sacramento, Cal.—The Acme Theater is to abandon vaudeville for the summer season and install again moving pictures. Mr. Goddard is the manager of the enterprise.

Chillicothe, Ill.—D. McKeel, proprietor of the Union Hotel, has purchased the Orpheum Theater of R. E. Lawrence, for his son, J. W. McKeel, who will have charge of it.

Cohoes, N. Y.—Messrs. John Maynard and Frank Spreiter are making arrangements to open a new moving picture theater at the corner of Factory and Remsen streets.

Rockville, Conn.—J. T. Donovan has purchased from James Ryan the Imperial moving picture theater in the Rockford Opera House Block, and will conduct it for the future.

Baltimore, Md.—The moving picture craze has struck West Baltimore; another theater is to be constructed by the Gilmore Amusement Company, at 314 North Gilmore street.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The old building at 913 Market street is being demolished and will be fitted up for a moving picture theater for Geo. H. Earle, at an estimated cost of $75,000.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The Penn Amusement Company has acquired the leasehold of Blaney's Empire Theater, in Collins avenue, East End, and will convert it into a vaudeville theater.

Detroit, Mich.—The American Moving Picture Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $60,000. The incorporators are Willard H. Goodfellow, Ben Jacobson and Meyer Frank.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The New York Motion Picture Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are William R. Pearce, Lucy Constabile and Jennie Stafford.

Norwood, Ohio.—The Norwood Amusement Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are Arthur Erdman, Harry Gordon, Joseph Erdman and others.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Wonderland Amusement Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $72,000. The incorporators are E. I. Fischer, Frank M. Talbot, A. Lehman and others.

Excelsior Springs, Mo.—John C. Bronough, of the Kansas City Scenic Company, has decided to make extensive improvements to the Summer theater at the corner of Concourse and St. Louis avenues.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Herman Fehr and Frank Trottman have leased the building at 381 Grove street, which they will convert into a vaudeville theater. Estimated cost of the improvements will be $10,000.

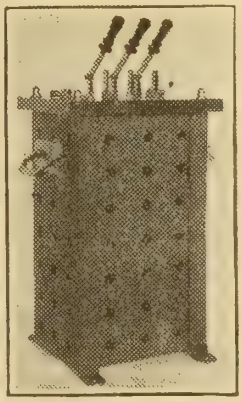
Hold-Tight Film Cement

Positively the best film cement on the market. Sent on receipt of 35 cents. Agents wanted. Address

CHAS. NISPEL :: YORK, PA.

Imperial Arkicyde

Greatest of All Current Savers



For Alternating Current Only

Cannot Burn Out

Saves from 50% to 62% of your Moving Picture Current

No Renewals—No Heat

The BEST and the Cheapest

With Brass Case, $35.00
Without Case - $30.00

Thoroughly tested before leaving factory

Let us know what cycle and what voltage

Shipped subject to examination on receipt of $5.00

Sold under the guarantee of

IMPERIAL FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.
Room 504
301 River Street - - . Troy, N. Y.
H. R. Phone 184 Home Phone 75

Who Wants Western Agency of this Machine

FILM SERVICE OF MERIT

SUPPLIED BY

O. T. CRAWFORD FILM EXCHANGE CO.

Licensed by the Motion Picture Patents Company, and furnishing an exclusive licensed service, using only the films made by the following Licensed manufacturers:

American Mutoscope & Biograph Co.
Edison Manufacturing Co.
Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
Kalem Company.
George Kleine.
Lubin Manufacturing Co.
Pathe Freres.
Selig Polyscope Co.
Vitagraph Company of America.

A regular weekly supply of 18 reels of splendid new subjects is now available.

THREE OFFICES

ST. LOUIS, MO. 1401-05 Locust St.
LOUISVILLE, KY. 421 4th Avenue.
NEW ORLEANS, LA. 314 Carondelet Street

CORRESPONDENCE.

SIMPLER SUBJECTS NEEDED.

Editor, Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—Manufacturers have lately made great efforts to elevate Cinematography by abandoning silly and highly sensational productions, and we should encourage them in those efforts. The question is, "Are they following the right course by going so deeply into historic subjects?" They must bear in mind that until the show places are patronized by the cultured class, they are dependent on a public of comparatively little knowledge. The films of "Mary Stuart," "Virginius," "Charlotte Corday" and "The Assassination of the Duke of Guise," are not fully understood by the moving picture patrons of to-day, as few of them are versed in Roman and French history.

The craze for running after the dollar and the prevailing pride of living above our means deprives many young folks of a thorough scholastic term. In the evening they are too tired to complete their education by reading history, geography, etc., and if they have any spare time they read, not good authors, but trashy novels. They are too ignorant to understand a good book. This is a daily experience in our moving picture shows. The young folks cannot appreciate good acting; cannot see the difference between good or bad staging; cannot even understand a clean joke; they want silly stuff, and the manufacturers cannot find stuff silly enough to please their fancy.

Few young Americans can tell us how many Presidents we have had; their names, etc. They cannot name the number of States or tell us when California, Texas or Illinois joined the Union. A smart girl working in an office at $10 per week and married to a man making $15 per week, told me that Boston was a State, that California was a city; but if she is ignorant of the geography of her country, she knows how to dress in the latest fashion, to live above her means and to be always in debt. How many of our young folks can tell us the origin of the American flag, or recite the Declaration of Independence? They all know of Washington on account of the hatchet story. How can we expect them to know anything of the history of the Romans or Greeks?

No doubt if our manufacturers keep on the line of serious improvements, they will reconcile the better classes, and show them that moving pictures are not only the cheap amusement of the poor, but a pastime and an educator for all. The day that manufacturers elevate their work or reject all that is low, indecent, badly acted, badly staged, etc., and offer only good clean subjects produced with all the care given to theatrical plays, we shall see a new boom. Show houses will not only be found on the Bowery or on the East Side, but in the more refined sections of the city. When this day arrives, we will have a new public able to understand historic films and admire good work. As there is much pleasure felt by the cultured class in reading a book from the pen of a good author, there will be the same pleasure on the part of the better class in following the motions of a good film. The public of to-day is the same as that which is reading trashy books, they would like to see the operator slip several feet of film, just as they skip a number of pages in a book so that they may come to the critical point. I am, Yours, etc.,

J. M. B.

[This is good advice and we counsel the manufacturers to profit by it. It is a common complaint that many subjects are caviare to the general, i. e., "above the heads" of popular audiences.—Ed. M. P. W.]

MOVING PICTURE THEATER FRONTS.

Editor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir—I take pleasure in sending you the opinion of Hon. Willis B. Perkins, Judge of the Circuit Court, County of Kent, State of Michigan, in regard to a suit that I think will interest moving picture people all over the United States. I took a lease of the property here at 18 Canal street, three years ago, on the 10th day of March, 1906, lease expiring March 10, 1909. I put up the sum of $248 as security that I would place the front back in its original condition, same as I found it when I leased the store. The landlords endeavored to hold the front which I put in, quite an elaborate one, costing $1,800 or more, claiming it was part of the realty. Also wished to keep the $248 which I had deposited as security that I would replace the front, claiming it was optional with them whether they put the front in or not. To my knowledge this is the first time this question has ever come up in the court of equity and I am very thankful I got the decision in this matter, as I feel it is one that can be used as a precedent by any moving picture exhibitor in the United States where his landlord attempts to retain the front which he has put in to conduct a moving picture theater. Judge Perkins' opinion, that all fronts and lobbies used in connection with a moving picture theater are trade-mark fixtures, is one that settles a very delicate question. Hoping that you will give this the publicity that it deserves. Yours truly,

A. J. GILLIGHAM.

Vaudette Film Exchange, 29 Grand Rapids Savings Bank Building, Grand Rapids, Mich.

March 4, 1909.

[We reproduce the essential portions of Judge Perkins's decision in another part of this week's "World."—Ed.]

W. H. SWANSON AND "OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN."

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir—I desire at this time to acknowledge the reading of the comment of your "Man About Town," on the action of the Moving Picture Trust as regards our various offices.

It is almost incomprehensible to me that a man of your fair-minded judgment who has been so entirely neutral in the past regarding controversies of the various sides of the moving picture industry, should lend himself to a leaning so closely allied to affiliation that it is almost imperceptible as to the division between your affiliation with the Trust and your regard for the Independents.

The action of the Trust as regards myself was so palpably unjust in the methods they pursued, which were brought about by a feeling engendered in the past and which was very well understood by me on the grounds of my aggressiveness against the manufacturers in the interest of the rental exchange men. It was rumored to me as long ago as the January Convention that they intended to make a "goat" of me. It stands to reason that I have not violated their agreements any more than is customarily done by all exchanges. Their action was on account of the fact that I have always stood by right and principle with every faculty that I possess, regardless of consequences .

While at first flush it may appear that the Patents Company's severance of my concerns from their agreements is a misfortune, I assure you, on the contrary, that I look on it as the most fortunate thing that possibly could have happened to me. This is demonstrated by the increased volume of business we have taken on in ten days' time along with many dozens of letters of congratulation and assurance of support received not only from accounts which we already have, but from other exhibitors.

It may appear to the trade papers that the unusual windfall of advertising which they are enjoying through the medium of the Patents Company is of extreme benefit, which it no doubt will be for a time, but as surely as darkness follows daylight the working out of the Trust scheme would eventually obviate the necessity of advertising on the part of either the manufacturers or exchange men. Can you not discern the future with more of an insight and understand that your one salvation in advertising lies in the strength of the Independent movement? Without doubt, the more strength and momentum the Independents accumulate, the stronger will be the position of the exchange men related to the Trust. Their action in so far as I was concerned savors so strongly of Spanish Inquisition methods that I do not quite understand how it is possible for a fair-minded press to refrain from commenting on the matter together with the injustice they contemplate meting out in the future to exchange men who in the slightest iota differ in opinion from them and on what very slight grounds they intend to stamp out of existence a man's personal business in which he has a fortune invested and which has taken years of energy and tireless effort to build up and maintain. They care little as to what escapement there might be in existence for the prolongation of a man's business, especially when he has been one of the leading factors in the uplifting and promotion of the business in general that exists to-day. I have been one of the most loyal and conscientious workers for the upholding of agreements and the regulation of violators, which they have been fortunate enough to have connection with. In their last agreement they demanded the severance of all exhibitors who on a certain day had not paid their license demand and they gave me positive instructions to cut off such of my customers as had not paid. Out of a total of 156 customers of my Chicago office there were but seventeen who after much laborious circularizing and an exhaustion of personal correspondence agreed to pay the license. I was then informed that I could pay it myself. This I refused to do. They then ordered me to discontinue shipping those customers. This I did. After cutting off the bulk of the business which I had been years in building up, with one stroke of the pen they cancelled their agreement with me for no other reason than that I had protested vigorously against the exchange men in any manner or way collecting this royalty demanded by them. After compelling me to relinquish the greatest number of accounts held by any single Chicago exchange they then cancelled their agreement with me. This is Justice dealt out by a Goddess with open eyes.

No doubt the Patents Company will find that it is much easier to build a fire than it is to put it out and that individuality and a spirit of combativeness along with a desire for self-preservation will be a force that will be difficult indeed for them to overcome.

The campaign entered into by the International Projecting and Producing Company and the exchanges who are now independent, and a great number of others who will be independent in the very near future, will no doubt be more vigorously felt by them than they at any period deemed possible. We have public opinion for our greatest asset. So far as film subjects are concerned with the exception of those which will lack local coloring, we will have a service far superior to that which will be furnished by the Trust concerns. As a further support to our cause the two-dollar shake-down has a predominance in the campaign that is as yet little appreciated by the powers that be and will eventually develop into the straw that broke the camel's back. While I have no desire to deny that at the present time regulations would probably be of more or less benefit to the moving picture business in general, it is not essential that the moving picture business any more than any other business be regulated with an iron hand, and in the moving picture business as in any other business with the assistance of the law of commercialism the disturbing elements will gradually be driven away and the matter brought to a basis of "the survival of the fittest." There can be no question of doubt that the regulation of the moving picture business was not so much a matter of concern to the Trust as was a desire to accumulate a vast amount of money regardless of the manner in which it was secured. The entire fabric is so obviously one of graft and selfish desire that it does not require the wise judgment of a Solomon to discern their ultimate aims and objects. It is only just a few months ago that one of the two manufacturers in Chicago declared openly and also wrote to one of his partners in the rental business in Denver, that inside of a year there would be only four film exchanges in Chicago. How closely this prognostication is working out is evidenced by the events of the past ten days. No later than last Saturday Eugene Cline had his agreement cancelled. I was informed on the most reliable authority while in New York a week ago Monday, that two other exchanges here on Lake street, besides Eugene Cline, were to be dropped. Along with this one other film exchange on last Saturday was found with a duped film in the hands of one of their customers. This will, no doubt, cause him to drop out of the Trust also. This, then, brings it down to the four film exchanges predicted months ago, viz.: Spoor, Theater Film Service, American Film Service and George Kleine with his branches here in the city, and I will say that all of the film exchanges that will be in operation should the above facts materialize will be controlled in part by George Kleine.

While in New York I was informed by General Manager Macdonald that Chicago men were to be made examples of for the reason that they were more active in opposition to the wishes of the Trust than all the other exchanges in the United States combined. This probably was true. Chicago men are active and energetic and independent in their aggression, and I think you will agree that this spirit is the one that has built this city from a small fort to the second city in the United States.

This Independent campaign will not be conducted along the pacific lines as followed out by George Kleine, but will be one of aggression organized on systematic lines, and every exhibitor will become interested through the demands of the public and the opinion of the public press, and it is almost impossible for me to realize that so many of the trade papers are, through the trifling sop of temporary advertising, kneeling down to the wishes of the Trust. I know absolutely and for a fact that the Trust has demanded in several instances from some of the publications that copy of any matter that might be published questioning their position be first submitted to them for approval. This I most sincerely trust will not become prevalent and be acceded to by the more reputable journals.

In conclusion, I again reiterate that the day is not far distant when, so far as the moving picture manufacturer and exchange man is concerned, there will be very little cause for advertising, if the plans of the Patents Company gain any particular strength.

Yours very truly, W. H. SWANSON.

With many thanks for past courtesies, I beg to remain,

[Mr. Swanson is in error, as are others, in crediting us with a special leaning towards any one section of the moving picture field. "Our Man About Town's" views are peculiarly his own and are not necessarily ours. The policy of "The Moving Picture World" was outlined on page 113 of the paper for January 30, and is here reiterated:

"We wish to record the fact once and for all that we do not permit this paper to be used for the advancement of any one particular faction in the moving picture field. Quite recently we were invited to espouse the Independent cause. We replied that party affiliations were never considered in our policy. THIS PAPER STANDS FOR THE PROGRESS AND BEST INTERESTS OF MOVING PICTURES. WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR. We have not been approached by the Trust and do not expect to be; but if we are, our answer would be the same.

"We also recognize the right of the Independents to fair play and adequate representation in the press, and we will warmly encourage any progressive movement that they may make. We wish to see a good and open fight, for the keener the competition on certain lines, the better for the welfare of the business as a whole. Our duty is to present all the news and fact impartially and to make such comments as may seem to be reasonably called for, and that duty we shall discharge, week by week, to the best of our knowledge and ability." Nothing has happened since January 30 to cause an alteration in this policy which, we repeat, is all "for the best interests of moving pictures without fear or favor."—Editor M. P. W.]

THE INTERNATIONAL PROJECTING AND PRODUCING COMPANY'S FILMS.

The little Unique Theater at Avenue A and Seventh street is well worth visiting. Perhaps the theater itself has no more claims to consideration than many others in Manhattan, but what occurs there daily should be of interest to every user of films. Harstn & Co. are conducting a series of exhibitions of independent films for exhibitors. The program is changed every day, so whatever day one may go there is something new to be seen, and usually before the second film is off the screen the manager or any other who is seeking for something new will realize that he has found some good films. While it might not be well to say that they surpass the bulk of films shown, it would be quite within the truth to declare that they at least equal them and do surpass a good many that are offered in the regular daily shows.

INDEPENDENT FILM.

Chicago, Ill., March 10, 1909.

Gentlemen:

We are pleased to inform you that we have secured what are, without a doubt, the most perfect and best Inauguration pictures. We have them so arranged that we can show the Inauguration in either one or two reels—one reel, of course, being condensed. Our prices on these pictures are as follows:

One reel, one day	$10.00
One reel, two days	15.00
One reel, one week	35.00
Two reels, one day	15.00
Two reels, two days	25.00
Two reels, one week	60.00

If you want to use this great drawing-card, please write us for booking dates, telling us how long you want to use them and full particulars.

Awaiting your reply, we remain,

Very truly yours,

THE CHICAGO FILM EXCHANGE.

RELEASE DATES OF INDEPENDENT FILM.

CHICAGO FILM EXCHANGE.

Providential Chance	696 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 9
For the Motherland	633 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 10
Arrival at the Village	667 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 10
Alcoholic Doctor	756 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 11
Medieval Episode	593 ft.		Italia	Mar. 12
Grand Maneuvers	———	Sensational	Italia	Mar. —

ROYAL FILM EXCHANGE.

Story of Every Day	1083 ft.	Pathetic	Italia	Mar. 9
Scenes of Morocco	———		Italia	Mar. 10
Chances of Life	704 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 10
Salon in 1820	576 ft.		Italia	Mar. 11
Wanted, a Colored Servant	400 ft.	Comic	Italia	Mar. 11
Love and Motherland	530 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 12
He Is a Cousin Who Eats the Truffle	526 ft.	Comic	Italia	Mar. 12
Father and Son	727 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. —

Not our own importations.

GLOBE FILM EXCHANGE.

Title.	Length.	Character.	Mfr.	Released.
Episode in Boer War	737 ft.	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 7
Good Excuse	156 ft.	Comic	Italia	Mar. 7
Hurricane of Love	653 ft.	Religious	Italia	Mar. 8
Widow to Console	333 ft.	Comic	Italia	Mar. 8
Giordono Bruno	———	Dramatic	Italia	Mar. 10
Parscovia	616 ft.		Italia	Mar. 11
Love Letter	390 ft.		Italia	Mar. 11
Student's Predicament	———		Gr. Nor.	Mar. 9
False Superintendent	———		Gr. Nor.	Mar. 9
Sherlock Holmes, No. 3	———		Gr. Nor.	Mar. 10

The Calumet Film Exchange

has a SPECIAL proposition to offer every exhibitor in the United States.

Its a live proposition to live managers. Nothing dead about the Calumet. We are hustlers and looking for the business—YOUR business.

We think that we can take a better care of you than anybody else. JUST LET US SHOW YOU WHAT WE CAN DO.

A person is always looking for something better—

BUT

the BEST is good enough.

HAVE YOU GOT THE BEST?

CAN'T YOUR SERVICE BE IMPROVED?

Maybe you know; maybe you don't. If you don't, just drop us a line. It doesn't cost you anything to inquire.

The Calumet Film Exchange

1609-1610 MASONIC TEMPLE :: CHICAGO, ILL.

Stories of the Films.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

THE LURE OF THE GOWN.—"Fine feathers make fine birds," and handsome gowns make handsome women, and a handsome woman is the most fascinating thing extant. Hence it is when Isabelle appears on the scene clad in a gown that is a masterpiece of the dressmaker's art she easily fascinates the male contingent, among whom is Enrico, the sweetheart of Veronica, a street singer. Enrico is so enraptured at the sight of Isabelle in her resplendent attire that he becomes her abject slave, casting aside the poor, peasant-clad little Italian street singer, who has loved him devotedly. Crushed almost beyond endurance the poor girl stands sobbing at the entrance of the park where the inconsistent lover left her. Her tears attract the attention of a wealthy young couple who happen to pass. In answer to their queries she tells them how contemptibly her sweetheart acted, and all because of the fascinating influence of a gown. The lady is moved to commiseration and offers her aid in the gift of the most beautiful gown Veronica has ever seen. Her opportunity for revenge has turned her love to hate, and as she appears at the Italian Benevolent Association ball, she is the star of the event, for she looks like a queen as she promenades the ball room. She at once becomes the "Mrs. Trouble" of the evening, for the men all desert their partners and flock around her, beseeching but a smile. All this elicits from the women folk delicate little bon-mots such as "Hussy," "Temptress," "Cat," "False hair," "Paints,"—oh, well, you know how it is. Enrico is thrown into a rage that runs the entire gamut of emotions,—love, jealousy, hate, disappointment and a few others, too numerous to mention here. He begs forgiveness, declaring undying love, but she tells him it is the gown that has attracted him and not her, but on his knees he swears. Still she will not trust him and turns to a poor good hearted Italian who has persistently loved her despite her coldness.

THE VOICE OF THE VIOLIN.—The romance of a poor German music teacher. Herr Von Schmitt, a young musician, comes to this country from Germany, and eks a living teaching violin. At home he has become imbued with the doctrines of Karl Marx, the promoter of the communistic principles of socialism, the alleged utopian scheme of universal co-operation, which in time, and under the control of intemperate minds becomes absolute anarchy. Von Schmitt, however, succeeding in a moderate degree to procure comfort by his art, is gradually being weaned from his former covetous spirit, and turns a deaf ear to the persuasive arguments of his former companions. Among his pupils is Miss Helen Walker, the daughter of a wealthy capitalist. A strong friendship springs up between teacher and pupil, which ripens into love before they are aware of it. Von Schmitt, unable to restrain himself any longer, during a lesson at his studio declares his love, and is, of course, owing to the disparity of rank, spurned. Enraged by the seemingly unreasonable condition of affairs, he hearkens to the argument of his anarchistic friends, and becomes one of their body. At a meeting there takes place a drawing of lots to select the assassins of a certain monopolist, whose name is unknown to him. By a fateful fortuity he is selected as one of the two to do the job. Armed with a bomb, they proceed to the home, a mansion in the swell section of the city, and while one goes into the cellar to place the infernal machine, Von Schmitt stays outside to watch. While there the melody of his own violin composition floats out on the night air, and ascending the stoop he peers through the window and beholds Helen playing the violin. The realization of what is about to happen for the moment rivets him to the spot. This is her home; he had never known it as she always came to his studio for her lessons. To save her he must act quickly. Diving into the cellar he finds his companion has adjusted the bomb and already lighted the fuse. He begs him to desist, but to no purpose. To his entreaty the other replies, "Remember your oath." "To perdition with such oaths, from whence they emanate!" and seizing him an awful struggle ensues. The other man succeeds in overpowering him, and binding him hands and feet leaves him to be destroyed with the rest. With supernatural effort he crawls toward the bomb and with his teeth bites the fuse in two as the fire is within a few inches of the bomb. Calling for help he arouses the household who release him from his position. Well you may guess what the finish will be. Well it did, and they lived happy ever afterwards.

I DID IT, MAMMA!—Little Gladys and Claude are playing in the nursery. Claude has monopolized the building blocks to the extreme perturbation of Gladys. She, with sly procedure, knocks over the little castle Claude has built. The children at once engage in a bitter quarrel, and Gladys leaves the room, going into the dining room just after the maid has put some cream puffs on the table. Gladys appropriates them and Claude enters and asks for a share, which she refuses. He then eats up the sugar, which is left on the plate. Mamma enters as Gladys sneaks out of the room, and discovering the loss of the puffs accuses Claude, who mutely receives the punishment—a switching. Gladys hearing this is seized with a spirit of contrition, and coming from her hiding place says "I did it, mamma," and picks up the switch, hands it to mamma, saying "whip me."

EDISON MFG. CO.

A CANADIAN WINTER CARNIVAL.—Synopsis of scenes:

Ski-ing. Ski-ing is one of the principal Winter sports in Canada. The picture shows ski jumpers on the Mount Royal Ski Course. The longest jump was made by E. L. Wilson, being 91 feet, 6 inches. He was disqualified by falling after touching the ground. The winner, P. McKinnon, jumped 86 feet, 6 inches.

Tandem ski jumping was done by P. McKinnon and E. L. Wilson, who jumped 79 feet, 6 inches.

In this scene is included a panoramic view of Montreal, taken from the Mount Royal Ski Course.

Civic and Merchants' Sleigh Drive. This is one of the greatest features of the Montreal Carnival. It shows a great quantity of private sleighs, as well as turn-outs of the merchants of Montreal. Many handsomely decorated sleighs are seen on this occasion.

Ice Harvesting on the St. Lawrence River. This is one of the interesting and instructive sights of Montreal during the Winter months. The complete operation of ice harvesting is shown, including marking out of the ice with horse plows; scraping away the snow and cleaning the top; dragging the ice from the river to the skids; loading on sleighs and hauling away. The ice shown is 26 inches thick, each block weighing about 1,200 pounds.

Snow Shoeing. Every evening during the carnival snow shoeing races were held around the ten-mile course at Mount Royal. In this scene is presented a number of enthusiasts leaving the city for the Mount Royal Course.

Tobogganing. Fletcher's Field is given to the carnival crowds who congregate for what is called "Go As You Please Sports." The toboggan slides used are arranged so that the coasters enjoy the sport. It is known among the enthusiasts as "Bumping the Bumps."

Ice Skating, Montreal A. A. This is one of the finest open-air rinks in the world, and at the time this picture was made upwards of 2,000 were enjoying this pleasure. Approximate length, 950 feet.

A MIDNIGHT SUPPER.—Synopsis of scenes: The game is won! The traditional honor of the college is preserved. As a fitting climax to the day's victory, the fair co-eds decide to hold a midnight supper. Invitations are distributed with great secrecy. An invitation dropped by a careless student, is found by the janitor.

The janitor, his arms filled with stovepipes and bottles, meets the enthusiastic students as they troop through the corridor. On mischief bent, they jolly him until his good nature rebels. In an effort to retaliate he slips, and crashes down in a medley of stovepipes and bottles. The uproar sends the merrymakers scurrying to their rooms.

Aroused, the Preceptress finds the janitor floundering on the floor. Thinking him drunk she calls a policeman. Brought to his feet by the officer, in a dazed condition his explanations are unintelligible. Disgrace stares him in the face. "Providential thought"—The invitation saves him. The "Midnight Supper" is no longer a secret. Reading the invitation the amazed Preceptress plots a surprise. She orders the janitor to stand guard and call her on the stroke of twelve.

Miss Sprite, of the supper committee, overhears the plot. To outwit him she watches her chance and turns back the hands of the corridor clock. The grim sentinel on guard wearies and goes to sleep. Once he wakens, but the clock only tells him of more leaden hours. Smuggling the good things in the window the girls enjoy themselves as only care-free maidens can.

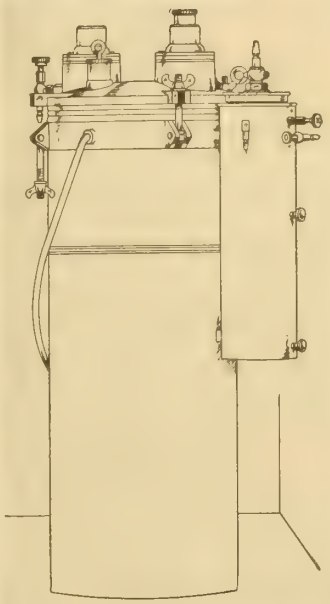
The supper is over -one more mad prank to close the day's sport. Stealing softly out, they tie the sleeping janitor's legs to the fire gong. They wake him. His struggles ring the alarm. Prepared, the students rush in and deluge him with water before the arrival of the city's guardians. Approximate length, 635 feet.

LOVE IS BLIND.—Synopsis of scenes: Love and jealousy are ever ready to join hands with Folly in the dizzy whirl of life's mad dance. The exciting events that threaten the disruption of the Brown household were caused by the striking resemblance of Mr. Brown, the master, and James, the man.

The engagement of James, the butler, to Mary, the maid, is sealed with ring and kiss. Merrymaking, the maid dresses her lover in his employer's coat and silk hat. Creating much amusement by his impersonation of the master, he ends his little comedy by kissing the maid. Breaking away laughing, she leaves the room.

The kiss is witnessed by Mrs. Brown. Mistaking the butler for her husband she angrily mashes the hat over his head. Discovering her mistake she screams and faints. The astonished butler removing his coat makes heroic efforts toward her restoration. Hearing the scream Mr. Brown rushes in. Misinterpreting the situation he seizes the unhappy

PORTABLE GAS-MAKING OUTFIT
EDISON OXYGEN GENERATOR



What Motion Picture Exhibitor has not at times wished that he had a reliable and inexpensive means for producing gas that would render him independent of the electric light companies? Traveling Exhibitors, especially, have often felt the need of a good outfit that would take the place of calcium outfits, which are frequently difficult to get or are held up in transit when wanted the most.

The Edison Oxygen Generator and Saturator fill this need. They have been designed to produce a complete generating outfit to take the place of Oxygen and Hydrogen gas sold in cylinders. This apparatus produces the gases automatically, in a safe, simple and direct manner, without the use of heat or excessive pressure, and without the necessity of any knowledge of chemistry on the part of the operator.

The Oxygen is produced by the reaction between water and a compound of which Sodium Peroxide is the principal ingredient. This compound in its most compact and convenient form is known as Oxone, though the Generator will work equally well with another form of the compound known as Oxylithe.

Retorts, rubber bags, wash bottles, pumps and cylinders are entirely done away with. There is nothing to do but to put in the Compound and water, attach the gas outlet to the Ether Saturator and adjust the flame by the needle valves on the Saturator. The apparatus does the rest.

We want every present or prospective Motion Picture Exhibitor to write us for detailed information about this outfit.

EDISON FILMS

THIS WEEK'S SUBJECTS:

Shipment, March 9, 1909

THE COLORED STENOGRAPHER
Comedy
No. 6430 Code, VENTANIA
App. Length 600 feet

MARY JANE'S LOVERS
Comedy
No. 6431 Code, VENTANICOS
App. Length 265 feet

Shipment, March 12, 1909

A CANADIAN WINTER CARNIVAL
Scenic
No. 6433 Code, VENTAPOPPA
App. Length 1000 feet

NEXT WEEK'S SUBJECTS:

Shipment, March 16, 1909

A MIDNIGHT SUPPER
Comedy
No. 6434 Code, VENTAROLA
App. Length 535 feet

LOVE IS BLIND
Comedy
No. 6435 Code, VENTARRON
App. Length 420 feet

Shipment, March 19, 1909

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM
Religious
No 6432 Code, VENTANIELA
App. Length 950 feet

EDISON MANUFACTURING CO.

MAIN OFFICE and FACTORY: 72 LAKESIDE AVE., ORANGE, N. J.

New York Office: 10 Fifth Avenue. Chicago Office: 304 Wabash Avenue.
Office for United Kingdom: Edison Works, Victoria Road, Willesden, London, N. W., England.

Selling Agents:

P. L. WATERS, 41 E. 21st St., New York GEORGE BRECK, 70 Turk St., San Francisco, Cal.

Dealers in All Principal Cities

FILMS A Live Service For Live Managers
HOWARD MOVING PICTURE CO.
Members Film Service Association
Repair Work a Specialty. Agents for Motiograph, Power's and Edison Machines. Supplies and Sundries.
FILMS

564 Washington Street, - - Boston Mass.
Established 1894. (Opposite Adams House). Incorporated 1908.

ELECTRICAL THEATRE SUPPLY CO.
We handle everything pertaining to the Moving Picture business. Highest quality Film service—Edison License—Power's and Edison Machines. Hallberg Economizers always in stock. Operators send $1.00 for our Reliable Four-in-One Test Lamp.
No. 44 North 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

SOUND EFFECTS FOR MOVING PICTURES
YERKES & CO.
53 West 28th Street - N. Y.
Phone 594 Madison Square

Opera Chairs Durable
Prices Right Opera Chairs
Everything in the Seating Line
Second-Hand Opera Chairs Always in Stock.
H. S. ANSLEY
1402 Broadway, New York City
Tel. 6203, 38th St.

INDEPENDENT FILMS
PROMPT SERVICE ANYWHERE
"ONE OF THE OLDEST".
PURDY'S FILM EXCHANGE
300 East 23d Street - - NEW YORK
Long Distance Phone, 1512 Gram.

Twenty-Four Hour Shipment

1,500 OPERA CHAIRS IN STOCK
If you want a GOOD CHAIR, ON TIME at a LOW PRICE, we have it. Inquiries answered same day as received,
Ask for Catalog No. 305
E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

THE VIASCOPE SPECIAL!
FIRE PROOF!
NOISELESS! FLICKERLESS!
NO VIBRATION!
Guaranteed forever against defective workmanship or material
COMPLETE, $175.00
VIASCOPE MFG. CO.
Room 6, 112 East Randolph St., Chicago

butler and kicks him out of the door. Mrs. Brown revives, explains the events and leaves the room. Mr. Brown, greatly amused, unconsciously dons the butler's coat. Entering, the maid, thinking Mr. Brown the butler, teases him from behind the chair. He accepts the attentions as coming from his wife. The enraged butler returns with Mrs. Brown in time to witness love's comedy. A kiss caps the climax. The future peace of all is threatened. An explanation of the mistake clearing the air, and all appreciate the joke.

Unknown to the butler, to avoid complications, Mr. Brown cuts off his whiskers. Secretly the butler does the same. They meet! Thinking one another intruders they grapple and roll about the floor until parted by a policeman. Explanations following, they agree as a unit that the blindness of love affects mistress and maid as well as master and man. Approximate length, 420 feet.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.

THE ROAD AGENTS.—This subject is a correct picture story of a once famous California hold-up. Two out-laws, one an Englishman, the other a Mexican both well known for their daring robberies and their phenomenal success in eluding the sheriffs and their deputies) plan to rob a certain stage supposed to contain valuables and money amounting to a considerable fortune. The method always pursued by the Englishman in his nefarious work was to become acquainted with travelers, and ascertain the amount of valuables they carried. The opening scene shows the Englishman mixing with the travelers as they are boarding the stage coach, wishing them a pleasant journey and making his adieux; then the stage driving away. The bandit then meets his confederate, the Mexican, and they mount their horses, and together they take a short cut and head off the unsuspecting travelers. After relieving the occupants of the coach of their valuables, the bandits remount their horses and escape. A messenger is at once dispatched to the nearest town, and the sheriff notified of the robbery. The latter mounts his horse, rounds up his deputies, "swears in" a number of cowboys and starts in pursuit of the daring duo. In the meantime the two bandits return to the home of the Mexican and divide their ill-gotten gains. During the division a quarrel ensues, owing to the Englishman claiming the larger part of the spoils. The Mexican draws his knife, but his companion is too quick for him, and after forcing the Mexican to drop his weapon, picks up the most valuable articles and departs. Stung by the humiliation and enraged by the unfair treatment of his companion, the Mexican follows, bent on vengeance, but too cowardly to attack his late comrade openly. He springs upon him as he is changing his clothing and after a severe struggle fatally wounds the Englishman, robs him and escapes. The man revives; struggles to his feet; staggers to the road and intercepts the sheriff and his posse. Acknowledging his guilt he names his confederate and falls dead at the feet of the sheriff. Remounting his horse, the sheriff and posse start in hot pursuit of the surviving bandit. The Mexican espies the posse from afar, and securing his mount leads his pursuers a most exciting chase over mountains, through trackless deserts, bristling with cacti and sage brush, and after a running pistol duel is finally lassoed from his horse and brought to justice. Length, 1,000 feet.

KALEM COMPANY.

THE CRACKER'S BRIDE.—Scene 1. The Wedding.—Here we have the family and friends assembled on the lawn for a typical Southern wedding. The old parson says the final words which join the two and the ring is slipped on the finger. Note the man at the extreme right. There is something between him and the girl and when she is left alone with him for an instant it is apparent that the bride knows him, oh! too well. But the festivity goes on and after all hands have returned from toasting the bride, an old darky fiddler appears and all hands make ready for a jolly country dance.

Scene 2. A Month Later—False to Her Vows.—It is now a month later and the bride and groom are settled down in their little home. We see the husband as he leaves for his daily work in the sugar fields, and the deceitful woman kissing him good-bye, although she knows her lover is only waiting for the husband to disappear. Now the husband is gone and the lover rushes in. See she is absolutely faithless. But they are not alone as they think. One of the farmhands has come in unexpectedly. He slips beneath the porch, and there he overhears all they say. He is amazed, but there is all the evidence anyone could wish right before his eyes.

Scene 3. Grinding Sugar Cane—The Husband Warned. Now we see the primitive method of grinding sugar cane in the South. The cane as it is brought fresh from the fields is ground between two iron rollers turned by a patient horse, and the sap as it oozes out is gathered in barrels and taken to the big kettle near by where it is boiled down into syrup for the family use. The residue is frequently distilled and made into moonshine whiskey. The young husband is directing the operation all unconscious of the perfidy of the wife at home. But see the hired man rushes in all out of breath and tells his story. The young husband at first will not believe him and springs at him like a wild beast. But the man persists in his story and the husband goes with him to see whether he is telling the truth. The others are dumbfounded at the situation.

Scene 4. Trapped.—Back to the house go the husband and the man. Still the husband is unbelieving and he hallooes to his wife to come out. But there is no response. He tries the door. It is locked. Now he suspects the truth. His rifle is handy in its usual place at the door. He seizes it in a wild rage. He batters at the door. The hired man helps him. Now they have the door open and they rush in.

Scene 5. The Husband's Death.—Hearing the hammering on the door, the man and woman realize their danger and rush to the second story of the house. There at the rear window they are intent on making their escape. This is their only chance. The woman comes out first and lands in safety. The man follows her, sliding down the rope. But hardly does he touch the ground when the husband appears at the window above. The lover draws his revolver and shoots. The husband gets the shot and would have fallen headlong had not the hired man caught him. But the wounded man drops his rifle and the guilty wife, creeping up, seizes it, and darts away with her lover. She sees that her husband has been killed and she knows she and her lover are in desperate straits.

Scene 6. Neighbors Organize a Posse.—At the corner grocery where the neighbors are wont to congregate the news makes a tremendous sensation as the hired man rushes up and tells the dreadful story. He asks for help to pursue the guilty pair. The men all respond instantly; seizing whatever weapons are handy they rush away led by the hired man, and woe be to the man and the woman if they are overtaken, for in the South vengeance is swift and sure.

Scene 7. At Close Quarters.—The guilty pair have fled headlong knowing that they will be pursued, and the woman is about exhausted. And hearing the coming clamor they rush for refuge into the old barn, first ascertaining how many shots remain in the magazine of the rifle. They have hardly closed the door when the pursuers arrive and find the evidence that the pair are in the old barn. They burst open the door. Two rush to the rear to guard there, but as they do so, the pair rush out of the other door and finding their way clear, run for the swamps. But the posse quickly finds their trail and is in close pursuit. As they rush out through the forest they come upon an old negro chopping wood. The man treacherously fells the old man, but he is able to tell the posse in what direction the couple have fled.

Scene 8. Through the Banana Grove and the Swamp. Into a dense grove of banana trees, almost hidden by a thick growth of tropical underbrush, the couple fly, but the pursuers are close after them and there is little hope of escape. And from the banana grove they run into a dense swamp. Here one of the pursuers is shot and matters are rapidly coming to a desperate climax.

Scene 9. The Last Stand.—Into an abandoned hovel they rush and hardly have time to get inside when the crowd is upon them. Now it is a fight to the death. Shots are pouring into the shack from every side, but from within shots are returned and it looks to be impossible to take the pair alive. So they decide to smoke them out. One of the crowd crawls beneath the porch and sets fire to the dry moss and in an instant the stifling smoke pours out in great volume. The men now rush into the house. But the desperate pair climb out of a window and amid the smoke and flames they climb to the roof. Even here they are followed. And the woman, exhausted by the long flight, is unable to keep her footing on the moss covered shingles. She slips and falls, she rolls off the roof to the ground below and her lover, in a last frenzy, follows her. The woman is instantly killed by the fall, but the lover lands in safety. However, the posse is on him like a flash. He is captured and will be taken back to face the laws of the land, while the guilty woman will go to an unhonored grave.

GAUMONT.

(George Kleine.)

INNOCENT, BUT FOUND GUILTY.—The family principally affected consists of husband, wife and child. In his efforts to find work the father visits the entire community seeking any honest labor by which he might provide for his family. A farm house is set afire and our unfortunate friend having been the last one to be seen in the vicinity is accused of the deed. He is tried for arson, convicted on circumstantial evidence and sentenced to prison. The shock is too great for his wife and she succumbs to apoplexy. Their child becomes a public charge. Six years later the man is liberated and seeks his family. The curate imparts the sad news of the wife's death. At this point divine providence intervenes and the owner of the farm is stricken with an illness from which there is no recovery. He confesses to the crime, thus exonerating the innocent from guilt and expires, to appear before a higher tribunal to answer the

NEXT
S and A
FILM ISSUE
ORDER QUICK
OUR Sensational Western Feature Subject
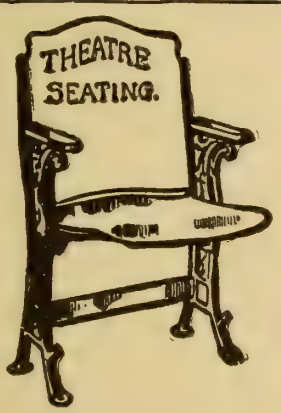
"The Road Agents"
(Lgth. Approx 1000 Ft.)
READY
Wednesday, March 17th

ESSANAY FILM MFG. CO.
501 WELLS ST. CHICAGO, ILLS.



We have 20,000 of these chairs in stock and can ship your order in 24 hours.
American Seating Company
90 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.
19 W. 18th Street, New York, N.Y.
70 Franklin Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
1235 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

charges there preferred against him. Length, 750 feet.

THE MUSICIAN'S DREAM.—The poor musician in an apartment devoid of artistic decorations goes to sleep from lack of nourishment as much as from physical exhaustion due to strenuous efforts to maintain a livelihood. The gods look kindly upon this mortal and as he reposes in the arms of Orpheus allow him to experience thrills that would do justice to the most inveterate rarebit fiend. By accident his violincello falls and strikes him causing sudden awakening—to his extreme regret. Length, 255 feet.

THE SECRETARY'S REVENGE.—The private secretary of a public official being subjected to criticism, vows vengeance and concocts a diabolical plot to avenge his imaginary wrong upon his superior. The latter has renewed the acquaintance of an old school chum and has offered him the privileges of his home. The friend, an army officer, is a gentleman of suave manner and soon ingratiates himself with the wife of his host. This is the opportunity for the unscrupulous subordinate and a few well chosen words in the form of an anonymous letter start the suspicions of his superior and a jealous disposition readily finds nourishment in the courtesies of the gallant officer to the hostess. A challenge to mortal combat is made and the details for the encounter being arranged by the seconds when an army official of high rank interposes and seeks to clear the situation. During the conference this officer by accident discovers the impression of the address given on the anonymous letter on a blotter. Confronted with the evidence the unfaithful employee bows shamefacedly and receives his dishonorable discharge. Through the kind offices of the angel of peace, an unusual trait in an army officer, the breach in the friendship of the two old chums is overcome and they are reunited in a stronger union than ever. Length, 786 feet.

THE SURVIVOR'S STORY.—A tourist returning from the scene of the earthquake at Messina visits some friends and is hard pressed for details of the occurrence. He consents to describe his experiences and succeeds in rendering a very graphic report. He describes an abrupt shock and the edifice rocks from sudden impact; a heavy gale is demonstrated; the panic, resulting in flight of the narrator forms the climax of the recital. Length, 195 feet.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.
George Kleine.

MASTER GOES SHOPPING.—The maid of the household is entrusted with the marketing and when she returns the master concludes that he could do much better himself, and accordingly goes out upon his mission. What happens to him is a caution, and a woe-begone and regretful shopper returns to his home to be held up to the scorn and ridicule of the family. Length, 331 feet.

CREMATION ON THE RIVER GANGES.—This series of views depicts scenes incident to the performance of religious rites by the Hindoos. The banks of the River Ganges form a setting for the performance. Length, 176 feet.

THE CELEBRATED MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS.—Visiting a resort in the mountains three tourists undertake to scale the mountain peaks. They start to carry out their hazardous undertaking. Their efforts are crowned with measured success, but they render very amusing sights as they crawl and drag each other over the cliffs and are finally obliged to summon aid to be rescued from a precarious peak to which they managed to ascend. Much the worse for their experience they return to the hotel. Length, 393 feet.

S. LUBIN.

REFORMING A HUSBAND.—Back from the wedding trip. The young couple arrive at home and get ready to settle down for a happy life. "Now, darling, you must not smoke any more." While wifey is taking off her wraps the husband lights a cigar. The wife returns, and is startled. She takes the cigar out of the young husband's mouth, telling him that he must not smoke any more. Hubby's face is a study. "Well, dearie, no more card playing." It is evening. The young husband is trying to pass the time by playing solitaire. Wifey enters, takes the cards, tears them up and tells hubby that he must not play cards any more. "But, sweetheart, you must not drink any more." The husband is resigned. He goes to the buffet to take a drink of whiskey, but wifey takes the glass from his lips and tells hubby that he must not drink any more. The husband looks in surprise, wondering what next he shall do no more. "Isn't he a darling?" The young couple have visitors. They offer them wine and cigars. The young husband does not smoke, neither does he drink. "Isn't he a darling?" says the young wife to her visitors. The darling in the club. What the husband misses at home he gets in the club. He plays cards, smokes and drinks until he has a glass too much. The visitor from the evening before is greatly surprised to see the young husband in this condition and brings him home. The young husband enters his bedroom, places his hat under the bed, his

CHANGING SERVICE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY
BUT NOT WITH OUR CUSTOMERS
Our film service, once tried, ALWAYS proves satisfactory.
No statements made that are not adhered to.
If we cannot supply you with what you want—we'll tell you so.
LET US QUOTE YOU.
GEO. K. SPOOR. CO.
(INCORPORATED)
62 Nort lark St., CHICAGO, ILL.

KEITH, PROCTOR & POLI
Are using these chairs in their best theatres.
AUTOMATIC FOLDING and REVOLVING
OPERA CHAIRS
Nothing Better for Nickel Theatres and General Seating
The HARDESTY MFG. CO.
Canal Dover, Ohio

CHEAP
Steel Frame Theatre Chairs
ABSOLUTELY Non-BREAKABLE
Suitable for small theatres and Moving Picture shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.
Second Hand Chairs
Also Seating for Out of-Door Use.
Address Dept. W,
STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Rapids, Mich.
New York Office, 1402 Broadway
Boston Office, 224 Congress St., Boston, Mass.
Western Office,
Monadnock Building, San Francisco, Cal.

OUR LATEST

The Presidential Inauguration Film

It's Independent, too, and Positively the Only Perfect and Officially Recognized Film of the Great Presidential Inauguration

Expert Chicago exhibitors pronounce it to be the best film, photographically, of any great event ever seen. Other Inauguration pictures, and particularly those taken by the "license" combine, are not to be compared in any way to this film. It is one hundred per cent. better and you'll say the same after seeing both. It ought to be. The Independents paid big money to secure special privileges which others could not obtain, and that accounts for our having this, the only successful film of the great event, and mind you it is independent and can be had only through Independent exchanges.

A Great Help to the Independent Cause

This film is a great help to the independents. It's proof that independent films are unexcelled, a fact that the public in general now accedes. People everywhere will flock to see it, and exhibitors showing it will have the biggest attraction of the season. Therefore, be the first in your locality to exhibit it, and get the bulk of the money those in your community will spend to see it.
The complete set of pictures consist of about two thousand feet, is put up in one or two reels, to meet your requirements. Order it through any independent exchange. Live exchanges should wire their order now. Price 12c per foot.

Don't Sign Anything Now By All Means

If you do you'll be sewed up for a year and can't exhitit our new Independent Films that are proving such big attractions. If you don't you can exhibit both Independent and Licensed films. Write for more information about this, and don't forget to read the synopsis of Independent Films just released which will be found in another page of this publication. These Films themselves are enough to prompt any exhibitor who may be on the fence, to remain independent.

CHICAGO FILM EXCHANGE
Chicago, Omaha, Washington, Denver, Nashville, Atlanta, Salt Lake City

GLOBE FILM SERVICE CO.
Chicago, Denver

ROYAL FILM SERVICE CO.
Chicago

watch in the water pitcher, his shoes in the bed, and after many accidents goes to sleep. The next morning, the young wife is horrified to see the bedroom in such condition. "I will fix you," she says and leaves the room. It is easier to reform a woman than a man. The young husband is eating his breakfast. Now he hears steps. He takes the paper, and oh! how interested he is in the news. Wifey enters. She kisses him good-morning. Oh! how hot his forehead is. She goes to the sideboard, takes the whiskey bottle, pours out a full glass, then she gets a cigar, which she lights for hubby. She gives him the whiskey and then the cigar and has never tried since to reform her husband. Length, 530 feet.

UNCLE REUBEN'S COURTSHIP.—Uncle Reuben is working hard on his farm. After the day's work he cooks his meal and reads his paper. There he discovers an advertisement, reading as follows: "A widow with some means wishes to meet a gentleman with pleasing ways." "That's me," says Reuben, and gets ready to meet the widow. A strenuous courtship. Dressed in his best, the rube calls on the widow. He makes a great impression. While making love a dude enters. The rube takes him and throws him out of the window. The next suitor is an Irishman, about seven feet tall. He did find favor in the eyes of the widow, but not so in the eyes of the rube, who takes a chair and knocks the Irishman down to three feet high. A German who next enters does not fare any better. He is thrown around like a ball and quickly exits. "Now do you want me?" says the rube to the widow, who blushingly accepts the strenuous suitor. Length, 350 feet.

A COWBOY ARGUMENT.—In a Western inn cowboys are drinking. On the floor sits an Indian quietly smoking his pipe. Jim, a cowboy, under the influence of liquor, knocks the Indian down. The Indian is just about to strike him with a dagger, when Jack, another cowboy, holds him back and calms him with a few pleasant words. Jim mounts his horse and rides off. He meets the queen of the ranch, whom he tries to kiss. At this moment Jack appears on the scene, knocks Jim down and walks away with his sweetheart. He brings her home and then returns to the inn, where he meets Jim. At this moment an eagle circles over the inn. Both draw their revolvers and fire. The eagle comes down between them. Each one claims having made the lucky shot. A fight ensues, and they agree to let the cards decide who is the victor. Before entering the inn, Jim puts some cards in his boots determined to win the game and thus the glory for having killed the eagle. The Indian has noticed Jim's crookedness and follows him into the inn. At an opportune moment Jim exchanges his cards with those in his boots. He holds the highest hand and wins the game. Jack, enraged, pulls his shooting iron and fires at Jim. He then mounts his horse and rides away, followed by the cowboys, who swear to string him to the first tree they may find. The cowboy rides to the home of his girl and tells her of what has happened. She exchanges clothes with him and rides away, pursued by the cowboys. Thus she hopes to give Jack time to escape. After a long chase she is recognized by the cowboys, who return to her home, where they capture Jack. They take him back to the inn and were just placing the rope around his neck when the Indian reveals the crookedness of Jim. They search him and find the cards concealed in his boots and in his coat. They quickly release Jack and place the rope around Jim's neck, leading him away, while Jack and his girl leave in fond embrace. Length, 600 feet.

TALKED TO DEATH.—While an old maid is dressing she is talking so rapidly that the looking glass breaks. Leaving the house she meets the grocer and talks to him until he drops dead. Passing on she meets two lady friends, who vainly try to get in a word. The old maid talks and talks them to death. A messenger boy is the next victim. She talks him to death just in front of a doctor's house. The doctor comes running out of the house, the old maid explains what happened, the doctor drops dead. Next a nurse is coming out of the house and she, too, is talked to death. A policeman who wants to investigate is also a victim of the old maid's rapid-fire gun. The old maid passes on and meets a friend, another old maid equally as strong in speech as her friend. They talk and talk until both drop down dead. Length 215 feet.

HALLBERG'S ECONOMIZER SAVES THE MOST LASTS FOR EVER GIVES THE BEST LIGHT TAKES OUT THE GHOST
J. H. HALLBERG, 28 Greenwich Ave., N.Y., U.S.A.

"FABIUS HENRION" CARBONS
ABSOLUTELY NOISELESS ON ALTERNATING CURRENT
Write for Samples and Full Information
THE EDWARD E. CARY CO., Inc. SOLE IMPORTERS
59-61 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK CITY

The First High Grade Film Service in America.

FURNISHED BY

20th CENTURY OPTISCOPE CO.

R. G. BACHMAN, Pres.

OFFICES AT { Argyle Building, KANSAS CITY, MO. — Eccles Building, OGDEN, UTAH

WANTED

to buy A Moving Picture Theatre, state full particulars, and lowest Cash price. Address Box 323 Cumberland, Md.

WANTED—about 300 second hand opera chairs in good condition, not upholstered. Address Geo. Breng, care of Manhattan Hotel, Far Rockaway, Long Island, N. Y.

Money for you. In towns without electric service

Our Cylinders of Gas

make you think you have the current. Calcium Jets, Burners, Limes, Tubing, EVERYTHING

ALBANY CALCIUM LIGHT CO.
26 William Street - Albany, N. Y.

Moving Picture Printing

HENNEGAN & CO.

127 E. 8th STREET, CINCINNATI, O.

FOR RENT 6 reels film, 3 sets song slides $10 weekly.

FOR SALE 1000 ft. reels film released up to February 1st, $10 per reel, such as Sheridan's Ride, Monkey Land and Hunch Back. Pathes hand colored Passion Play, 3 reels, $100. Edison M. P. machine $35. Will buy Passion Play, machines, films.

H. DAVIS - Watertown, Wis.

WANTED—A Pathe Passion play (complete and colored) in good condition. State price.

Address C. DONATO, 334 E. 33d Street, New York City

OELSCHLAEGER BROS.

110 East 23d Street, New York

Importers of OPTICAL GOODS

Condensing Lenses
Objectives for Projection Lanterns
Tubes & Jackets for Moving Picture Machines.

Supplied to the Trade Only. Write for prices

CHICAGO STEREOPTICON CO.

Wholesale and Retail
Stereopticon and Lantern Slides

56 Fifth Avenue - - CHICAGO.

CALEHUFF

A Member of the
FILM SERVICE ASSOCIATION

Headquarters for only the best of latest FILMS and SONG SLIDES. No junk.
MACHINES, SUPPLIES, Etc.

LATEST SONG SLIDES
$5.00 per set

N. E. Cor. 4th & Green Streets,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Kalem Films

Issue of March 19, 1909.

A Sensational Romance of The Sunny South.
LENGTH 790 FEET.

A Roaring Comedy Concerning a Tramp and a Donkey.
LENGTH 125 FEET.

If you are not on our mailing list drop us a postal and we will send you a complete lecture each week without charge.

KALEM CO., Inc.
131 West 24th St., New York City

NEW SLIDES

For the Following Songs JUST OUT

Shine On, Harvest Moon
Don't Take Me Home
Somebody's Heart
Promise
I'd Like to be the Sweetheart of a Girl Like You
Honey Dear

DeWitt C. Wheeler
120 W. 31st St., N. Y. City

START A FILM EXCHANGE

For $240.00, we will sell you twelve reels of first-class film and change them every week for $1.00 a reel. Send for list. DON'T DELAY.

ECONOMY FILM COMPANY
Room 314
Sheppard's Hotel, 6th St. - Pittsburg, Pa.

Latest Song Slides Out

"In the Bright Moonlight"
"My Irish Mary"
"Little Black Boy"
"A Fire Lad in Blue"
"Little Nell My Blushing Bride"
"All is not Gold that Shines"
"Naoma"

HARSTN & CO.
Established 1897
138 E. 14th Street, New York, N. Y.
NEVER CLOSED

LATEST FILMS.

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE AND BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 25—The Welcome Burglar (Dramatic).....790 ft.
Jan. 25—Those Awful Hats (Comedy).....185 ft.
Jan. 28—The Cord of Life (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Feb. 1—The Girls and Daddy (Dramatic).....901 ft.
Feb. 4—The Brahma Diamond (Dramatic).....1036 ft.
Feb. 8—A Wreath in Time (Comedy).....558 ft.
Feb. 8—Edgar Allen Poe (Dramatic).....450 ft.
Feb. 15—The Curtain Pole (Comedy).....765 ft.
Feb. 15—His Ward's Love (Dramatic).....235 ft.
Feb. 18—The Hindoo Dagger (Dramatic).....583 ft.
Feb. 18—The Joneses Have Amateur Theatricals (C).400 ft.
Feb. 22—The Politician's Love Story.....526 ft.
Feb. 22—The Golden Louis.....474 ft.
Feb. 25—At the Altar.....972 ft.
Mar. 1—His Wife's Mother (Comedy).....523 ft.
Mar. 1—The Prussian Spy (Dramatic).....465 ft.
Mar. 4—A Fool's Revenge (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
March 8—The Roue's Heart (Dramatic).....755 ft.
March 8—The Wooden Leg (Comedy).....240 ft.
March 11—The Salvation Army Lass (Dramatic)....926 ft.
March 15—The Lure of the Gown (Comedy).....547 ft.
March 15—"I Did It, Mamma" (Pathetic).....342 ft.
March 18—The Voice of the Violin (Dramatic)....975 ft.

EDISON MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

Jan. 19—Pagan and Christian (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 22—A Burglar Cupid (Comedy).....850 ft.
Jan. 26—A Romance of Old Madrid (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Feb. 2—The Origin of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata 900 ft.
Feb. 9—A Bachelor's Supper (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 12—The Salesladv's Matinee Idol (Comedy)....900 ft.
Feb. 16—A Daughter of the Sun (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 19—The Uplifting of Mr. Barker (Comedy)..900 ft.
Feb. 23—The Landlady's Portrait (Comedy).....585 ft.
Feb. 23—The Janitor's Bottle (Comedy).....405 ft.
Feb. 26—Left Out (Dramatic).....900 ft.
March 9—The Colored Stenographer (Comedy).....635 ft.
March 9—Mary Jane's Lovers (Comedy).....265 ft.
March 12—The Star of Bethlehem (Scenic).....950 ft.
March 12—A Canadian Winter Carnival (Scenic)....1000 ft.
March 16—A Midnight Supper (Comedy).....535 ft.
March 16—Love Is Blind (Comedy).....420 ft.

ESSANAY FILM MFG. COMPANY.

Jan. 26—Old Curiosity Shop (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Jan. 27—Too Much Dog Biscuit (Comedy).....400 ft.
Jan. 27—A Cure for Gout (Comedy).....540 ft.
Jan. 29—A Modest Young Man (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 5—Adventures of an Old Flirt (Comedy).....900 ft.
Feb. 3—The Musician's Love Story (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 10—Educated Abroad (Comedy).....970 ft.
Feb. 24—The Tell-tale Blotter (Dramatic).....
Mar. 3—Shanghaied (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
March 17—The Road Agents (Serio-Dramatic).....1000 ft.

GAUMONT.

George Kleine.

Feb. 23—Some Milk for Baby (Comedy).....430 ft.
Feb. 27—The Prince and the Dwarf (Melo.).....707 ft.
Feb. 27—The Foxy Husband (Comedy).....253 ft.
Mar. 2—The Piano Teacher (Dramatic).....857 ft.
Mar. 6—In Sore Straights (Dramatic).....522 ft.
Mar. 6—Walking on His Toes (Comedy).....406 ft.
March 9—The Blacksmith's Bride (Dramatic).....720 ft.
March 9—The Postal Clerk (Dramatic).....292 ft.
March 13—The Smoking Lamp (Comedy).....324 ft.
March 13—Buttes Chaumont After a Snow Storm282 ft.
March 13—The Irresolute Man (Comedy).....387 ft.
March 16—Innocent, But Found Guilty (Dramatic)..750 ft.
March 16—The Musician's Dream (Farce-Comedy)...255 ft.
March 16—The Secretary's Revenge (Dramatic).....786 ft.
March 20—The Survivor's Story (Comedy).....195 ft.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

Feb. 3—Moving Furniture (Comedy).....370 ft.
Feb. 3—Summer Sport (Scenic).....236 ft.
Feb. 19—James and Catherine.....450 ft.
Feb. 19—The Barber's Christening.....540 ft.
Feb. 20—Sherlock Holmes (2).....680 ft.
Feb. 17—The Caliph's Adventures.....564 ft.
Feb. 19—James and Catherine (Comedy).....450 ft.
Feb. 19—The Barber's Christening (Comedy).....540 ft.
Feb. 20—Sherlock Holmes II. (Dramatic).....680 ft.
March 3—The Blind Foundling (Dramatic).....570 ft.
March 3—The False Superintendent (Comedy).....540 ft.
March 3—Sherlock Holmes III. (Dramatic).....890 ft.
March 8—The Chimney Sweep's Birthday Dream (Comedy).....544 ft.
March 8—Round the Lake of Constanz (Scenic)....344 ft.
March 8—The Capricious Monument (Comedy).....361 ft.
March 14—For Love of a Fisher Girl.....575 ft.
March 14—The Artist's Model's Sweetheart.....400 ft.
March 24—From the North Cape.....430 ft.

KALEM COMPANY.

Jan. 22—The Girl At the Old Mill (Dramatic).....
Jan. 29—The Octoroon (Dramatic)..... ft.
Feb. 5—The Detectives (Dramatic).....800 ft.
Feb. 12—The High Diver (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 19—Sporting Days in the South; or, The Making of a Champion (Dramatic).....940 ft.
Feb. 26—The New Minister.....865 ft.
Mar. 5—The Old Soldier's Story (Dramatic).....
March 12—The Seminole's Vengeance (Historic).....920 ft.
March 19—The Cracker's Bride (Dramatic).....

LUBIN.

Feb. 22—The New Governess (Dramatic).....895 ft.
Feb. 25—Love Me, Love My Dog (Comedy).....650 ft.
Feb. 25—A Game of Chess (Comedy).....290 ft.
March 1—A Dime Novel Detective (Comedy).....820 ft.
March 4—The Last Call (Dramatic).....485 ft.
March 4—I'll Only Marry a Sport (Comedy).....395 ft.
March 8—The Stowaway (Dramatic).....820 ft.
March 11—The Little Rag Doll (Dramatic).....460 ft.
March 11—Which Was the Happiest Time in Your Life? (Comedy).....420 ft.
March 15—A Cowboy Argument (Dramatic).....600 ft.
March 15—Talked to Death (Comedy).....215 ft.
March 18—Reforming a Husband (Comedy).....530 ft.
March 18—Uncle Reuben's Courtship (Comedy).....350 ft.

PATHE FRERES.

Feb. 8—Les Ricochets (Scenic).....246 ft.
Feb. 8—Women Chauffeurs (Comedy).....311 ft.
Feb. 8—Buster's Revenge (Comedy).....344 ft.
Feb. 10—Charlotte Corday (Tragic).....787 ft.
Feb. 10—Adventures of a Bag of Coal (Comedy)....203 ft.
Feb. 12—Bess and Her Goose (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 12—The Laplanders (Educational).....462 ft.
Feb. 13—The Brazilian's Ring (Dramatic).....482 ft.
Feb. 13—They Lead the Cops a Chase (Comedy)....410 ft.
Feb. 15—The Hand (Serio-Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 17—The Assassination of the Duke of Guise (Dramatic).....853 ft.
Feb. 19—His First Flight (Comedy).....397 ft.
Feb. 19—Choice of Weapons (Comedy).....315 ft.
Feb. 19—How Mother-in-Law Got Even (Comedy)...197 ft.
Feb. 20—Exacting Father-in-Law (Comedy).....423 ft.
Feb. 20—Now I'm Here, I'll Stay (Comedy).....453 ft.
Feb. 22—The Miser (Dramatic).....519 ft.
Feb. 22—Grand Canal, Venice (Scenic).....410 ft.
Feb. 24—What a Uniform Will Do (Comedy).....495 ft.
Feb. 24—A Little Coquette (Serio-Dramatic).....367 ft.
Feb. 26—The Jolly Trio's Dream (Comedy).....417 ft.
Feb. 26—Mr. Jonah Gets a Little Dust in His Eyes (Comedy).....184 ft.
Feb. 26—Topsy-Turvy (Comedy).....318 ft.
Feb. 27—Hypnotic Subject (Comedy).....479 ft.
Feb. 27—Florrie's Birthday (Comedy).....433 ft.
March 1—The Test (Dramatic).....475 ft.
March 1—The Suffragette's Dream (Comedy).....407 ft.
March 3—The Guilty Guardian (Dramatic).....466 ft.
March 3—The Man Monkey (Comedy).....394 ft.
March 5—A Bad Shot (Comedy).....590 ft.
March 5—Behind In His Rent (Comedy).....358 ft.
March 6—Dr. Wright's Invention (Comedy).....525 ft.
March 6—Forced to Play Cop (Comedy).....358 ft.
March 8—All's Well That Ends Well (Comedy)....479 ft.
March 8—When Love Will (Comedy).....475 ft.
March 10—Little Cyril, the Runaway (Dramatic)....695 ft.
March 10—He Can't Lose Wifie's Ma (Comedy).....295 ft.
March 12—Convict's Revenge (Dramatic).....436 ft.
March 12—Educating the Blind (Educational).....476 ft.
March 13—Sad Awakening (Dramatic).....656 ft.
March 13—Visit from the "Down Home Folks" (D.).302 ft.

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.

Jan. 21—Love and Law (Dramatic).....950 ft.
Jan. 28—The Prairie Town Romance (Dramatic)....1000 ft.
Feb. 4—Stirring Days in Old Virginia (Historical).1000 ft.
Feb. 18—King of the Ring (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Feb. 18—On the Warpath.....1000 ft.
Feb. 25—The Skipper's Daughters (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
Mar. 2—With Taft in Panama (Scenic).....1000 ft.
Mar. 4—The Mad Miner (Dramatic).....
March 4—The Mad Miner (Dramatic).....870 ft.
March 4—Outing Pastimes in Colorado (Scenic).....125 ft.

URBAN-ECLIPSE.

George Kleine.

Feb. 15-20—The Hand of a Wizard (Urban).....374 ft.
Feb. 24—Joel's Wedding (Drama).....569 ft.
Feb. 24—Polka on Brain (Comedy).....445 ft.
Mar. 3—The Sailor's Belt (Dramatic).....483 ft.
Mar. 3—An Embarrassing Present (Comedy).....410 ft.
March 10—Mother-in-Law's Day in the Country (C)..350 ft.
March 10—Rivalry (Dramatic).....367 ft.
March 10—South American Indians (Scenic).....288 ft.
March 17—Master Goes Shopping (Comedy).....331 ft.
March 17—Cremation on the River Ganges (Scenic)..176 ft.
March 17—The Celebrated Mountain Climbers (C.)..393 ft.

VITAGRAPH COMPANY.

Jan. 19—Ruy Blas (Dramatic).....900 ft.
Jan. 23—A Case of Spirits (Comedy).....500 ft.
Jan. 26—The Treasure (Comedy).....464 ft.
Jan. 30—Cleopatra's Lover (Dramatic).....860 ft.
Feb. 2—The Deacon's Love Letter (Dramatic).....410 ft.
Feb. 2—The Marathon Race (Serio-Dramatic).....585 ft.
Feb. 6—Virginius (Dramatic).....955 ft.
Feb. 9—Jessie, the Stolen Child (Dramatic).....560 ft.
Feb. 9—A Clever Trick (Comedy).....345 ft.
Feb. 13—An Irish Hero (Dramatic).....735 ft.
Feb. 13—Lost in a Folding Bed (Comedy).....247 ft.
Feb. 16—The Honor of the Slums (Dramatic).....630 ft.
Feb. 16—How the Kids Got Even (Comedy).....325 ft.
Feb. 20—"C. Q. D." (Dramatic).....850 ft.
Feb. 23—The Poor Musician (Dramatic).....652 ft.
Feb. 23—Perpetual Proposals (Comedy).....296 ft.
Feb. 27—Saul and David (Dramatic).....1000 ft.
March 2—And His Coat Came Back (Serio-Dramatic).600 ft.
March 2—Mogg Megone (Dramatic).....390 ft.
March 6—A Day in Washington (Scenic).....350 ft.
March —Inauguration of President Wm. H. Taft 600 ft.
March 9—Adventures of a Drummer Boy (Dramatic).620 ft.
March 9—Parted, But United Again (Dramatic)...310 ft.
March 13—Kenilworth (Dramatic).....985 ft.

Three Winners

A FILM SERVICE

that satisfies the most exact Exhibitor

Our Economy Coil

which makes an Electric Light Bill look like a cancelled postage stamp

Our "Claro" Condensers

practically unbreakable, and increases your light 25%. $1.00 each.

Connect With

"THE SUCCESSFUL HOUSE"

Pittsburg Calcium Light AND Film Company

CAN BE HAD FROM

Pittsburg, Pa. Cincinnati, O.
Des Moines, Ia. Wilkes Barre, Pa.
Rochester, N.Y. Lincoln, Neb.

To Licensees of the Motion Picture Patents Company

WE regret that owing to the volume of our mail, which has averaged more than two thousand pieces a day since February 1st, we have thus far been unable to promptly reply to all correspondence unless we delayed work of greater importance to our licensees.

The increase in our office staff and facilities will enable us to answer, at an early date, all communications to which replies have been delayed.

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS COMPANY

March 12th, 1909.

GRAND PRIX
Awarded First Prize and Prize of Honor at the Cinematograph Exhibition at Hamburg, 1908

Manufacturers of
Films of Quality
Photographic Excellence Unexcelled

NEXT ISSUES

To Be Released Week of March 14th

FOR LOVE OF A FISHER GIRL
Length About 575 Feet

THE ARTIST'S MODEL'S SWEETHEART—Comedy
Length About 400 Feet

FROM THE NORTH CAPE
AN EXTRAORDINARY BEAUTIFUL PICTURE
Length About 430 Feet

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY
NORDISK FILM COMPANY, COPENHAGEN
7 EAST FOURTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK CITY
Licensee under the Biograph Patents. All purchasers and users of our Film will be protected by the American Mutoscope & Biograph Company

ANTI-TRUST FILM CO.
CHICAGO

INDEPENDENT
Films for Rent

Moving Picture Machines and Supplies

NO LICENSE—NO AGREEMENTS—BE INDEPENDENT

ANTI-TRUST FILM CO.
77-79 So. Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

TELEPHONE 1115 RANDOLPH Private Exchange All Departments

It Is A Crime TO Waste Money

Stop being a criminal. Save your money by using the best film and song slide service in America.

Absolutely Independent

using the films imported by THE INTERNATIONAL PROJECTING & PRODUCING COMPANY.

"The films" that are different from your neighbors.

New England Film Exchange

611 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Long Distance 'Phone, Oxford 21022.

Order a Carton OF CURTAINYLINE TO-DAY Mr. Exhibitor

Paint your curtain with it; you will note the difference at once between the old and the new way.

It is

A Perfect Light Absorbent

Restful to the eyes
Dissolves the yellow out of the light
Brings out all the details in the Photography
Gives the picture great depth
No reflect rays to detract from your picture
Gives a mirror surface to your curtain

CURTAINYLINE is not a WHITEWASH
CURTAINYLINE is not a KALSOMINE
CURTAINYLINE is not a WHITING

BUT IT IS

A Light Absorbing Fireproof Paint

The greatest discovery ever made for a curtain covering!

For $3.00 we will sell you a carton sufficient to cover 150 Square Feet. It will last five times longer than anything else you can put on your curtain.

Prepared curtains any size or weight—Stationary or Roll—Our Specialty. Write us for Prices.

Stage Scenery—Carnival Fronts—All Kinds—Built to Order. Write for Estimates.

Curtainyline Curtain Co.

Office: 401 Ashland Block Chicago

Studio: 2046 W. 12th St. Chicago

NOTE—If your Exchanges do not carry "CURTAINYLINE" in stock—write direct to us. The following Exchanges stock "CURTAINYLINE." Laemmle Film Service, 196 E. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and all branches; Wm. H. Swanson & Co., 160 East Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and all branches; Pittsburg Calcium Light Co., Cincinnati, Ohio; Anti-Trust Film Co., 79 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.; California Film Exchange, San Francisco, Cal.; Miles Bros., San Francisco, Cal.; Buffalo Film Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.; Lewis M. Swaab, Philadelphia, Pa.; Standard Film Exchange, Chicago, Ill.; Imported Film & Supply Co., New Orleans, La.; St. Louis Song Slide Service, Holland Building, St. Louis, Mo.

FILM RENTERS

We wish to announce to you that from this date all Swanson offices will be pleased to rent you Film, no matter whether or not you have paid the machine license required by the Patents Company and their licensees. Because of the interest Mr. Swanson personally has taken in the existing conditions of the Moving Picture business and the strong opposition he has made against the compelling of payment by the exhibitors, of the Two Dollar weekly royalty imposed by the Patents Company, and his interest in and loyalty to his customers, together with his refusal to advise them to take a step which he did not believe was for their well being, will, we believe, lead to our becoming

Independent

Mr. Swanson has considered the question most carefully and has investigated very thoroughly the source of supply of Film for the Independent Exchanges, and he believes that the subjects which are to be placed on the market by the International Projecting & Producing Company are unequaled, not only in subject matter, but also in photography, and will be the choicest productions of the European manufacturers. We ask that all exhibitors who are interested in securing the highest class of Film Service write us today for full particulars.

WM. H. SWANSON & CO., 160-162-164 Lake St., Chicago, Illinois

AMERICA'S LARGEST FILM EXCHANGE

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON ST. LOUIS FILM CO. - 200-202-204 North Seventh Street, St. Louis, Mo.

—OR—

WM. H. SWANSON OMAHA FILM CO. - - 106 South Fourteenth Street, Omaha, Nebr.

Vol. 4., No. 12. March 20, 1909 Price. 10 Cents

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED THE EXHIBITOR

ALL THE FILM AND SONG SLIDE NEWS

Published Weekly by THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING CO., 125 E. 23d ST., NEW YORK

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS are learning that It Pays to Investigate and that

The Motiograph is truly A Wonderful Machine

FOR MOTION PICTURES AND STEROPTICON VIEWS

and that where there's Perfect Pictures there's A Motiograph in the Operator's Booth.

Chicago, Boston, New York and Frisco approved.

It projects Wonderfully Brilliant, Steady and Flickerless Pictures and is absolutely fireproof.

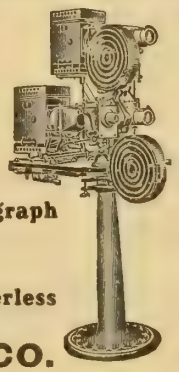
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.



The Motiograph is Licensed

under the patents of the

MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.
OF NEW YORK.

The Rheostato Current Saver, saves 60 to 75 per cent. on Electric Bills.

The Model "B" Calcium Gas Outfit is the only satisfactory substitute for Electric Light.

Our Catalog tells a lot of interesting things.

WRITE FOR IT;

83-91 W. Randolph St., Chicago

The Eagle Film Exchange

We are prepared to give you the following makes of film:

GREAT NORTHERN, ECLAIR, CINES, COMERIO, MELIES, WILLIAMSON, Etc.

Dealers in all makes of Machines, Carbons, Cement, Tickets, Condensers, Fort Wayne Compensarc

Branch: MAUCH CHUNK, PA., Oscar Bittner, Mgr.

143 N. 8th Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A WORD TO THE WISE

Successful Moving Picture Exhibitors Use

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

The best results with alternating current are obtained with

POWER'S INDUCTOR

SEND FOR CATALOGUE G AND CIRCULAR A

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY, 115-117 Nassau Street, New York

RELEASED, MARCH 22d

The Day of the Dog

"Every dog has his day," says a proverb. It is also true in this instance when the workingman stands before the question of saving his employer or letting him perish in the flames. His better self prevails and he saves his foe.

Length 710 Feet

Our Ice Supply

This is a beautiful short picture, showing how the ice is cut, transported by the chutes and stored for future use.

Length 200 Feet

RELEASED, MARCH 25th

A Just Reward

This is an exceptionally fine subject. The villian gets his reward, so does the heroine. The picture is full of dramatic action from start to finish.

Length 645 Feet

Mad Dog

A tiny little dog and a lot of big people form the foundation of this comic picture. A little boy who is frightened by the little dog's playful barking starts the trouble.

Length 222 Feet

LUBIN'S MARVEL, UNDERWRITERS' APPROVED MODEL

The Machine You Want

LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY

926-928 Market Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

SONG SLIDES

Read Our Gigantic Offer

We will rent you any quantity of sets you require for

50c. per Set a Week

We absolutely guarantee every set to be complete from title to chorus slide.
We will forward your entire weekly supply in one consignment every week.

Chicago Song Slide Exchange

NINTH FLOOR

MASONIC TEMPLE - CHICAGO, ILL.

The tremendous growth of our business in the last few weeks has compelled us to double our floor space

We invite exhibitors to call at our new headquarters. We have facilities to meet the most pretentious demands, and we can offer wide-awake managers exceptional inducements

C. J. HITE FILM COMPANY

Third Floor Monadnock Block
CHICAGO, ILL.

The House of Fair Dealing and Courteous Treatment

We Challenge the World for Their Equal

SELIG'S FILMS

See His New Ones, Different From All the Rest in the Comedy Line

Code word—FOUR FOUR WISE MEN Length 650 feet
Caught by their wives as they were sight-seeing through the wild revels of the Mardi Gras Caruival, 1908, New Orleans

Code Word—Child INFANT TERRIBLE Length 350 Feet
This comedy will keep you laughing all the while, showing you the greatest child actor in the world. Full of action. Don't miss it. Remember it is a SELIG. IT MUST BE GOOD. ORDER FROM YOUR NEAREST EXCHANGE

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE CO. - - - - - 45-47-49 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Exclusive

Agencies are given only to those who are representative of their class. We have just secured the exclusive agency for

LANG'S PATENT REWINDER

PRICE $5.00

THE BEST EVER

We are exclusive Agents for POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH and the MOTIOGRAPH. The trade supplied. Machines and parts always in stock, likewise supplies.

Have you tried the Swaab Film Service?

LEWIS M. SWAAB

340 Spruce Street

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

OPERA CHAIRS

For Moving Picture Theatres

The best line made for the least money. Chairs carried in stock and immediate shipment guaranteed. The finest Moving Picture Theatres in the country are seated with our chairs, and with invariable satisfaction. Seating for Moving Picture and Vaudeville Theatres our specialty, and that explains why we lead all others. Send for catalogue and prices. You will be interested.

IMPERIAL SEATING CO.

Chicago Opera House Building

CHICAGO - - ILLINOIS

NOW READY

Rush in Your Order for Service.

Independent Film Service for particular people. We have better facilities for handling your business than any concern in the West. Machines, tickets, carbons, and everything the exhibitor needs. Write for terms.

INDEPENDENT FILM & SUPPLY CO. Inc.
216 Balboa Bldg., 2d and Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SALE—35 reels perfect film, all titled and in good condition at $15.00 per reel. Best bargain ever offered. One Columbia B. A. Phonograph for $50. Mayer Silverman, 713 Fulton Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

BIOGRAPH FILMS

TRADE MARK TRADE MARK

RELEASED MARCH 22, 1909

The Deception

A story of a wife's sacrifice, which is misconstrued and almost leads to the estranging of a devoted couple. An artist is struggling along for recognition, but things are going badly with him. His wife pretends to get a position teaching piano, but instead is working in a laundry. The artist sells one of his pictures and hastens to the Music Conservatory to tell her of his good fortune, and not finding her thinks she is deceiving him. An accident to his wife at the laundry shows him the true color of things.

LENGTH 653 FEET

And A Little Child Shall Lead Them

One of the prettiest and most touching film stories ever made. It shows how a little child brings together a couple who through a trivial quarrel are about to separate. The work of the child is equally clever.

LENGTH 340 FEET

RELEASED MARCH 25, 1909

A Burglar's Mistake

A thrilling story of an attempt at Blackmail

A wealthy banker in the day of his youth was guilty of a trifling indiscretion, that although of little consequence, he wished buried. An ertswhile friend has evidence which he threatens to exhibit if he does not give up handsomely. This he yields to and the wretch after squandering his easy-gotten wealth, becomes a party to a burglary. Imagine the suprise of both he and his victim, when he finds himself in the house of this banker and suprised by him in the act of robbery. Well the result is easily seen. Here is a chance for the banker to rid himself of this odious cur and he takes advantage of it. The story is well acted and beautifully staged.

LENGTH 959 FEET

Release days of Biograph Subjects—MONDAY and THURSDAY

Get on Our Mail List and Keep Posted. Write for Our Descriptive Circulars

AMERICAN MUTOSCOPE and BIOGRAPH COMPANY

11 E. 14th STREET, NEW YORK CITY

GAUMONT FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

"POCKET POLICEMAN"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 674 feet.

RELEASE, TUESDAY, MARCH 23, 1909.

A cracker jack comedy with numerous demonstrations of the adaptability of a pocket edition officer.

In time of need the citizen takes from his pocket a neatly rolled parcel; this is unrolled and the uniformed officer ready for service is at hand.

The maid about to brush her master's coat finds and experiments with the contrivance. It responds to her manipulation and the officer proves himself very popular.

Many very funny occurrences are shown and the climax is reached when the substitute officer gets wet and shrinks to miniature size, whereupon he is presented to a child as a doll.

Good quality and detail throughout.

"JAPANESE MAGIC"

Magic. Approx. Length, 326 Feet.

RELEASE, TUESDAY, MARCH 23, 1909.

This subject presents a remarkably clever series of illusions in which a Japanese lantern, several dolls, chickens, mice and grasshoppers play a very prominent part.

Mystifying and highly entertaining throughout and of perfect photographic quality.

"ACROSS THE BORDER"

Drama. Approx. Length. 905 Feet.

RELEASE SATURDAY, MARCH 27, 1909.

A story of deep pathos. In the territory adjacent to Paris a little lad at the age of seven finds upon the church stairway a mite of an infant. He tenderly carries it to his home and mother, where the little girl is given every care.

Together they start out upon a journey to the city of Paris, where they hope to realize their ambitions and acquire fame and fortune by entertaining the public with music and dance.

His strong features make him a desirable "catch" and scarcely have they started on their journey when a young woman concludes to win him by either fair or foul means. She endeavors to induce him to forsake his companion, but this he positively refuses to do, as he is all taken up with the charms and accomplishments of the latter. Disappointed, the woman then determines upon a course by which she hopes to outdo her rival.

One of her companions conceals contraband articles in the personal baggage of the performer and as they pass over the border the customs officials find the secreted articles and place the girl under arrest. The man returns to his home, where he tearfully relates his experience.

A second attempt to win the young man's love very nearly proves disastrous, and the woman relents and gives herself up to the authorities, who then allow the innocent maiden to return to her home and minister to the wants of her faithful lover.

Dramatization and photographic quality are unexcelled.

URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS

GEORGE KLEINE

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

"MR. PALLET GOES OUT LANDSCAPING"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 463 Feet.

RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24, 1909.

A zealous exponent of the brush and palette is in search of a number of prize winning subjects. His first choice of subject is taken from nature and as he is completing his sketch local residents crowd about the picture in their efforts to inspect it and unfortunately upset and tear the canvas. He is successful in securing the commission to produce an image of a country woman, but misunderstands the instructions and produces the likeness of a burrow being led by the woman, whereupon he is upbraided and his work destroyed. A rabbit is so successfully reproduced that when placed against some shrubbery for final inspection a passing hunter mistakes it for the real article and despoils it with shot, precipitating a violent encounter. A brook in a hollow is next chosen as a suitable subject but the wind is so strong as to blow away his paraphernalia. In disgust he concludes to discard his ambitions for outdoor subjects, betakes himself to his home, where he sets up a study, but fate has apparently determined to undo him and his efforts in this pursuit are equally unavailing.

A number of other experiences make this a most interesting and highly amusing series of moving pictures.

"I HAVE LOST TOBY"

Comedy. Approx. Length, 403 Feet.

RELEASE, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24, 1909.

An elderly lady is seen to take her pet dog Toby for an afternoon airing. A number of mischievous lads prove very annoying with their attentions to the dog, but madam finally manages to elude them and safely reaches her home with him.

When the husband arrives for his evening meal he finds his spouse is unprepared on account of her attentions to her canine idol. Much aggrieved he unceremoniously throws the dog out of the window, thus causing his death.

Madam is greatly put out about this and her grief knows no bounds. Her interest in dogs is ever apparent and she falls an easy victim to the intrigue of a designing young man with a trick dog.

Excellent action and very interesting.

GEORGE KLEINE

Importer of Gaumont and Urban-Eclipse Films

52 State St., Chicago, Ill. 662-664 Sixth Ave., New York

Moving Picture World

With which is Incorporated

The Exhibit.

Copyright, 1908, by

The World Photographic Publishing Company, 125 East 23d Street (Beach Building), New York.

Telephone call, 1344 Gramercy.

Edited by J. P. Chalmers.

Subscription: $2.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

Advertising Rates: $2.00 per inch; 15 cents per line. Classified advertisements (no display), 3 cents per word, cash with order.

G. P. VON HARLEMAN, Western Representative.
913-915 Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Telephone, Central 3763.

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

Vol. 4 MARCH 20 No. 12

Editorial.

The Press and the Moving Picture.

"The Fourth Estate," as Edmund Burke called the press, is one of the greatest powers for good or evil in the world. And it must be free, for through it and in it, a people vindicates its right of freedom and of thought. But that power and that freedom must be exercised with wisdom and moderation or public opinion is likely to be misled and the cause of good government injured.

We have observed with regret for some time that many important sections of the American press, either through ignorance or some interested motive, assume towards the moving picture an attitude that can only be described as condemnatory, unfavorable and unfair, which is all the more to be wondered at having regard to the fact that this form of entertainment is now firmly established in the favor of millions of Americans—as much so as the theater, the concert, instrumental music and the like. The moving picture, in fact, is now part of the national life and should be treated as such.

But the American press seems blind to the potent truth that the moving picture is an accepted institution of the people. They still affect to treat it as a novelty, an interloper, a curiosity. If this is not inexcusable ignorance then it is downright stupidity and the sooner more intelligent writers are employed the better for the newspapers' reputation for common sense, which at present is not so high as it might be. An unfailing source of misrepresentation in the press is an accident or a fire at a moving picture theater. Ten to one a wrongful cause is assigned, or the facts are exaggerated. Rarely does the film catch afire; more often than not the trouble or accident has nothing whatever to do with the projection apparatus and its accessories. The alarmist press, however, seldom takes the trouble to ascertain the facts. Cold fact, you see, is not sensational and does not make for effective scare lines. If the newspapers confined themselves to facts many of them would have to go out of business.

The unsafety or unsanitary conditions of moving picture theaters are legitimate subjects for newspaper discussion, but how often are they handled with knowledge and discretion? Seldom. No, they are too frequently denounced on insufficient evidence. Then as to the alleged obscenity or unsuitability of the pictures shown; the dreadful behavior of the people in Nickelodeons—the "immorality," the "vice," and all the rest of the wild farrago of abominations that take place, nine-tenths of all this we unhesitatingly declare to exist in the imaginations of the reporters, and the Pharisaical clergy whose utterances they print,—these, and these alone. Such things unquestionably obtrude themselves here and there—they exist, Gentlemen of the Press and the Pulpit, everywhere on this earth—but not more so in the moving picture field than in any other. We protest against the Nickelodeon being saddled with all the sins of the community.

Throughout the whole of the United States of America there is an earnest desire to uplift the moving picture; to make it clean, bright, dramatically and photographically beautiful; something that shall delight the eyes and stimulate the minds of millions and millions of people who find in moving pictures a satisfying form of entertainment and relaxation.

We bespeak the co-operation of the American press to that good end. Have done with foolish sensations; exaggerations; falsehoods; loose writing and not disinterested attacks, brothers. Encouragement not depreciation is needed. Criticise if you will, but criticise justly, impartially and above all with knowledge. Then you will have the consolation of feeling that you are encouraging and not retarding the progress of a form of entertainment, the possibilities of which are only just being revealed. For the moving picture will last just as long as the newspaper, and in any competition for the popular suffrage would outlast it.

CENSORSHIP OF FILM SUBJECTS.

The Board of Censorship of Motion Picture Programs will begin operations next week. Arrangements have been completed for censoring all the fresh output of both Independent manufacturers and licensees of the Motion Picture Patents Company. During an experimental period no film will be put on the New York market unless it is approved by the Board of Censorship.

The Board of Censorship, with Dr. Geo. William Knox, of the Union Theological Seminary, chairman, was organized by a number of civic bodies on petition of the New York Association of Exhibitors. Expenses are paid by the exhibitors and the Board will work in co-operation with the manufacturers and renters. Its only authority at present is derived from public opinion and the co-operation of manufacturers and exhibitors, but any show giving a strongly objectionable program will be pursued under the law. John Collier, of the People's Institute, is chairman of the Censorship Committee, and two of the five members of this committee are exhibitors.

The censorship will not get in its full effects for perhaps two weeks yet, and the number of new and old films that must be passed on by the Board will represent several weeks' work. For the present the inspection will be carried on in the offices of the manufacturers, importers and renters. No stamp of approval will be required for new film, as all film put on the New York market must be approved beforehand, but for old film a stamp has been adopted. It will read, "Approved, Board of Censorship," and will be printed on film to be attached immediately in front of each subject title.

On their side, the manufacturers in the Motion Picture Patents Company have decided to institute a censorship which will cover the entire country. There will be a committee on censorship in New York and in Chicago, and all new film will be passed on by this committee of manufacturers. The object is to catch up the occasional offensive picture which makes trouble for the exhibitor and gets hurtful publicity for the motion picture business. In New York the Committee on Censorship of the Patents Company and the Board of Censorship of civic bodies will work in conjunction.

The Modern Way in Moving Picture Making.

By Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S.

CHAPTER II.

Producers and Performers.

To show the importance attached by progressive English firms to the quality of the play selected for moving picture photography I preface this chapter by remarking that Gaumont's, of London, recently commissioned George R. Sims, the famous British melodramatist, to specially write them a society drama. This, according to my exchanges, is very successful at English moving picture houses. American manufacturers and producers please note.

Again: With reference to the Pathe film d'art, "The Return of Ulysses," to which I referred last week, it is interesting to point out that the story was written by Jules Lemaitre, of the Academie Francaise, and the principal characters are taken by Mme. Bartet, MM. Albert Lambert, Lelauny and Paul Mounet, all of the Comedie Francaise, Paris. This is equivalent to David Belasco and his Stuyvesant company doing the work for the Edison Company. Again I say, American manufacturers and producers, please note!

By producing an act, I mean its proper rehearsal and preparation for photographing. In my observation and experience, too much is left to the producer by the "authors," if I may so dignify the miscellaneous crowd of persons responsible for the origination of current moving picture plays. Provided the play is complete in the stage directions, details of furniture, accessories and the disposition of the stage and, generally what is known as the ensemble, the acting quality of the film will be satisfactory. Such a playwright as W. S. Gilbert, author of H. M. S. "Pinafore," or A. W. Pinero, who wrote "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," leaves little or nothing to the discretion of the producer. Every movement, every word, every "property" as the articles or furniture on the stage are conveniently called, every important item of dress, as worn by the performers, is carefully prescribed by the author, used in the manner directed, and must be provided by the management. In many cases, the author rehearses the play, and then commits it to the care of the stage manager who works according to a plan, or formula, which he is not allowed to vary. The entire business, in fact, is systematized right through and nothing is left to chance. It is obvious from this that the presence of the author at the rehearsing of the moving picture play is just as important as in the analogous case of a talking play. No doubt, we shall ultimately come to this desirable state of things. Meanwhile, the work must necessarily be left in the hands of the producer, consequently it is of the utmost importance that he should be qualified for the work; that he should be able to enter into the mind of his author; understand the points aimed at, and be able to rehearse his people so thoroughly, that the play on its final representation will go through without a hitch. Fortunately the regular theaters can be drawn upon for competent producers. I have seen many of them at work; their productions would do credit to the regular stage.

The main point to bear in mind is that there should be perfect sympathy between author and producer; if possible, the two should work together. Very often an author can profit by the suggestions of a practical stage man, and frequently the producer can be enlightened as to the meaning of an author's intentions. In any case too much importance cannot be attached to an understanding between the two men. I would suggest to those responsible for making films that they should always endeavor to bring this about. The film manufacturer is very much in the position of a theater manager. He buys a piece and pays people to produce it and just in the ratio of his success in choosing successful authors and producers, so is his success in profitably marketing his piece. If the latter be popular with the moving picture audience at its first representation, its popularity will continue throughout its run, and the result is a successful reel. I would like a second time to emphasize the similarity between the film manufacturer and the theater manager. The point has never yet been brought out in writing of the subject, and the sooner it is grasped all round as firmly as it deserves to be, the better I think it will be for the business. So much, then, for the producer. A word as to the actors and actresses employed. I have been party to the production of numerous silent plays and have seen many competent performers figure in them; the results being good and popular films. On the other hand I have witnessed with regret the inclusion of inferior performers, whose knowledge of stage work was so pathetically small, that they had to be drilled into it like army recruits at their work. When we came to see the results on the screen, the amateur acting was ludicrous. I cannot too strongly emphasize the point that if good plays are essential, so also are good actors and actresses. Indeed, the two first may be of the super-excellent kind, but if the interpreters of the silent drama are inferior to the best kind of actors and actresses on the regular stage, then certain failure is courted. The performers in "The Assassination of the Duke of Guise," to which I referred in the introductory note to these chapters, were all first-rate French actors, they acted their parts, and they acted their parts well. They wore their clothes with distinction. The king looked a king; the duke looked a duke, the courtiers looked and moved like courtiers.

Now, all the pieces that are produced on the silent stage do not deal with kings and courtiers, but they deal with supposedly real persons, to impersonate whom, you must select capable actors and actresses. Nothing should be left to chance. This end of the work should be carried out with as much care and attention to detail as the technical end of making the film. For it is of cardinal importance, it is the end by which the public is beginning to judge the silent stage. They look for good photography, as a matter of course; they are prepared to tolerate second class photography, but what they will not tolerate is a bad or unintelligible play indifferently produced and carelessly acted, or even a good play negligently produced or murdered by poor actors and actresses. There must be high class work all along the line if the silent play is to hold its place in the affections of the people, a place which it has created for itself, and which I believe it is destined to retain.

A NOVELTY FROM KALEM.

A complete travelogue on the order of those which have made Burton Holmes famous will be issued by Kalem Company on April 9. The title is "A Trip to the Wonderland of America," and it illustrates the Yellowstone Park as it never has been illustrated before. The pictures show the geysers in action, a triumph of photography, since it is difficult to obtain clear negatives because of the mist that always gathers about them.

The lecture accompanying this picture is by Col. Edward Justus Parker, national lecturer of the Salvation Army, and is not only instructive, but is entertaining as well.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TALKING PICTURES.

By Carl Herbert,*

(Lately General Manager of Cameraphone Company of New York.)

*[Editor's Note: The author writes with authority. With a wide experience in theatrical affairs of the better kind, as manager for Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Harrison Grey Fiske, Charles Dillingham; as proprietor of his own stock company for several years; as a producing stage manager, and a writer and adapter of plays, his knowledge upon stage subjects is unquestioned. As manager of the marvelous Telharmonic System of Electric Music of New York, generating music electrically and transmitting it to many subscribers from a central dynamo station, his practical observation of acoustical problems has proven invaluable in dealing with the phonographic side of "talking pictures."]

There are three kinds of "talking pictures" exhibited in the theaters of America. First, standard film subjects are projected while persons behind the sheet speak more or less plausible dialogue to give the illusion of being uttered by the characters in action upon the screen. Two men and a woman usually comprise such a "company" of speakers. As very few pictures are made, in general film production, in which action is shown by more than pantomime, such "talking pictures" are not of lasting effect. It is too great a tax upon our imagination to watch a figure whose lips do not even move and believe him to be uttering the more or less ungrammatical, colloquial speeches coming from behind the sheet. A clever speaker, resourceful in gags, humor and disguises of voice can, however, infuse much interest and add greatly to the enjoyment of the average film in this way. The dialogue is usually improvised in such performances.

In the second kind the phonograph (behind or near the sheet) is combined with the projected motion picture, after the latter has been photographed especially for the purpose, and lip-movements, gestures and "stage business" of the characters on the sheet, are supposed to fit the words issuing from the phonograph.

The third kind is pictures specially posed with completely spoken dialogue by all characters and with the same dialogue rendered from manuscript during projection by the speakers behind the screen. This species of talking pictures is just making its appearance and is yet to be reckoned with.

Fortunes have been sunk in experiments and manufacturing and many intelligent exhibitors have eagerly seized the pictures so offered for rental or sale, only to find that after the first flush of novelty has faded away, audiences faded likewise. Then the exhibitor returned to "silent" pictures, enhanced in some cases by adroitly manipulated "sound-props" and the ability of a clever pianist and trap-drummer.

Why is this? It would appear at the first glance that the phonograph is certainly established firmly as a means of reproducing truthfully most forms of music and of human speech. The motion picture is also highly perfected and pleases millions every week in the year. All that has seemed necessary, therefore, is to produce or manufacture the phonograph records and the film in synchrony and to project them in like manner. This simple mechanical problem has cost many thousands of dollars to solve. Yet there are synchronizing devices which are amazingly simple. To describe one. The normal speed of a phonograph cylinder (not a disc machine) is 160 revolutions per minute. That of a motion picture machine crank is 60 revolutions per minute. If we add to the phonograph shaft or mandril a gear of say 15 teeth, and have it engage a second gear of 40 teeth, we have a speed on this second shaft identical with the picture machine, or 60 per minute. Let each revolution of this added shaft make and break a simple "buzzer" or electric light circuit of low voltage; conduct this circuit to the projecting booth, locate the buzzer or lamp there, and no matter how far the picture operator is from the phonograph or screen, he can maintain a synchrony good enough for all practical purposes at a very low cost. Each time he sees the lamp glow or hears the buzz, he completes a revolution of the crank of his picture machine. In the original making of the film the same device assures the same synchrony in the crank of the camera, and if the posing actors be speaking (or pretending to speak) in time with the phonograph record, their playing (beside the camera), film and record must perforce be in synchrony for all practical purposes.

With three contact points on the phonograph device furnishing the picture operator signals at three segments of his crank revolutions, we have, with the same device, a synchrony within a fraction of a second. And all costing probably ten dollars.

But many "synchronizers" exist now, and are seeking a general introduction. In America at least three devices have been produced, besides several of French and at least two of German origin. Elaborate mechanism has been devised and large capital spent. In at least one French device the synchrony is within 1-16 of a second, being controlled to each exposure on the film; all automatic, when the machine is run by an electric motor. In the American inventions the widest use has been gained by devices which, far from being automatic, require a high degree of skill in the operator, and depend entirely upon his alertness in watching the lip-motion of his characters on the sheet and so controlling the speed of his pictures as to make them match the words as he hears them coming from behind the sheet.

When there are no words, as during any considerable pauses or silences in the record, the results are usually unfortunate, to say the least. Yet a device which gives the operator control is the best, if the revolution signals are provided, as outlined above, for the silences cannot then prove embarrassing. Devices giving purely automatic synchrony have many drawbacks. If an accident happens and a few feet of film be removed from the reel the synchrony is gone. And any device by which the picture machine is motor-driven is useless in the United States, because of a very strict regulation of the Boards of Fire Underwriters which prohibits motor-driven picture machines.

Now, any fairly intelligent mechanic or electrician can obtain practical synchrony for a few dollars by attaching a lamp or buzzer circuit as here described, to any picture machine and cylinder phonograph. The inherent weakness of the phonograph talking pictures lies elsewhere, principally in the phonograph itself. If the phonograph were as highly perfected to-day as is motion picture photography the problem might be easily solved, provided certain vital principles of the "show" or theatrical business were observed.

It must be remembered that the phonograph is governed by the most elusive and mysterious of all physicial laws, the laws of acoustics. For instance, the same sound which is pleasing and adequate in one room or hall seems muffled, harsh or distorted in another, and no one can tell exactly why. This fact has cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to projectors of music enterprises. Again, a phonograph which gives pleasing, plausible, fairly mellow, musical or natural reproduction in the home, is a flat failure in a public auditorium. To amplify or increase reproduced sound has involved the vain outlay of fortunes by now, and will continue to do so, probably, for a long time. (Refer to the various microphone experiments and enterprises.) When reproduced sound is increased or amplified it loses its quality. Hence, used in talking pictures the phonograph is at present in an introductory stage. After the effect of the novelty wears off the deadly effect of monotony asserts itself. Again, the short length of a phonograph record (three minutes, at the outside, in loud-speaking phonographs) makes it necessary, in any subject over three minutes in length, to employ two phonographs, so that one record continues after another has said its say. This changing of records, while feasible mechanically, is apt to betray itself by the sudden change of quality or pitch of the tone from one phonograph to the other. If the second machine is running a little slower than the first the pitch drops, if faster, the tones are of course in a higher key. And no two records are exactly alike.

Most such pictures are made, however, in short films, involving a single phonograph record, usually a song. Here, therefore, we have "Illustrated phonograph songs" rather than talking pictures. In most of the subjects so far made, a "stock" record, obtainable by anyone, at any phonograph store, is used and the film picture is rehearsed, posed and photographed to fit it. (To try to make sound records fitting existing picture film has been found a waste of time and money, by the way. It is practically impossible.) This accounts for the predominance of short song acts in the lists of talking pictures at present. Comparatively few phonograph records have been made especially for talking picture purposes and the wide use of "stock" records constitutes one of the weaknesses of this form of entertainment.

In an audience of several hundred there is always a sprinkling of people who have phonographs at home and who recognize the songs and singers already familiar to them at thirty-five cents per record at the store.

This leads up to another weakness of the proposition. It is a peculiar fact in the phonograph industry that comparatively few persons can make good records. Among the performers who have perfected themselves in the tricks of enunciation and tone production necessary to successful "recording" every phonograph user knows the voice of Spencer, Collins and Harlan, Jones, Haskins, Carroll, "et al.," whenever and wherever he hears it. And when records are to be specially made for pictures these same artists must be called upon. (Other persons are used to pose the pictures and pretend to utter the dialogue.) Hence, when an audience hears the average performance and many persons exclaim: "Why that same man's been talking (or singing) in all three acts, though they're all under different names."

It is here that the rosiest hopes of the "talking picture" theorizer are blasted. He has dreamed of securing celebrated artists, now before the public, and counts the dollars to be made by reproducing their performances in smaller cities and towns. In vain! Most prominent vaudeville actors and actresses make poor records, especially in talking acts. So true is this that among a score of high salaried "headliners" so employed barely two or three have proved more than provoking disappointments. The funny lines, convulsing over the footlights, prove unintelligible when produced by phonograph and heard through a sheet. To learn this has cost manufacturers many thousands of dollars. The legitimate actors would make better recorders, and great preachers and orators the best, outside the professional phonograph men. Celebrated opera singers cannot be obtained for the pictures.

